SALONICHI, formerly Theſſalonica, a City of Macedonia, with a fair Haven; it ſtands at the foot of an Hill upon a ſmall River, and at the bottom of a Bay, bearing its own name. On the Weſt ſide of it is the great River Vardar, which is almoſt half a League over, and whoſe Banks are planted with very tall and thick ſtanding Trees. The Walls are built after the old Faſhion, with Turrets or Towers at certain Intervals, they are about four Leagues in circuit. It is ſtrengthned with three Forts, the leaſt of which is the furtheſt from the Walls of the City, and ſtands at the landing place, mounted with twenty pieces of Canon; the other two are larger, and are joyned to the City Wall, the Sea beating upon them, each of them planted with forty pieces of Canon. To landwards it hath a Fortreſs like to that of Conſtantinople, and bears the ſame name, viz. The Seven Towers, which commands all the City, as ſtanding upon an high Hill, at the bottom whereof there is a great Suburb, which alſo hath its particular encloſure. The City is well peopled by reaſon of the Trade of Silk, Wooll, all ſorts of Leather, Cotton, Grain, Powder and Iron. The principal Offices of the City are in the Jews Hands, who are exempt from Tribute, in conſideration whereof they are to furniſh the Janiſaries of the City with Cloth for their Clothing. William King of Sicily Conquer'd this City in 1180, but afterwards the Emperor of Conſtantinople reduced it to his Obedience again. Andronicus Palæologus gave it to the Venetians in 1413, but eight Years after the Turks drove them thence, and have been Maſters of it ever ſince. The Greek Chriſtians have thirty Churches in this City, the chiefeſt whereof is the Archbiſhops See, and dedicated to St. Demetrius. There are alſo five Convents of the Order of St. Baſil, in every one of which are about an hundred young Women, who may, if they pleaſe, quit the Habit and marry. The moſt magnificent Turkiſh Moſques are thoſe Buildings that formerly were the Churches of St. Sophia, the Bleſſed Virgin, St. Gabriel and St. Demetrius. Mahomet IV. who was dethron'd in 1687, changed the Church of the Bleſſed Virgin into a Moſque; on each ſide of this Building are twelve great Pillars of Jaſper-ſtone, whoſe tops or chapiters ſupport ſo many Croſſes, which the Turks have not defaced. The old Church of St. Demetrius, which has three Iſles ſupported by very fair Pillars, was formerly honoured with the Preaching of St. Paul. The Jews alſo have thirty Synagogues in this City, the moſt conſiderable of which are that of Caſtille, of Portugal, and of Italy. They have alſo two Colleges, which contain above Ten Thouſand Scholars, who come to ſtudy there from all parts of the Ottoman Empire. Of all the ſtately pieces of Architecture that were of old in this City, there remains nothing very remarkable at preſent, ſave only a Triumphal Arch of Brick-work, ſupported by two Marble Pillars full of Trophies, and abundance of other Figures, but ſo much ſhatter'd and defac'd by time, that it cannot well be gueſs'd what it was erected for. The City is govern'd by a Mouſſelin, Juſtice is adminiſtred by a Molla, and a Mufti orders all Matters relating to Religion. Coronelli deſcrip. Moree.

SALONINUS (Pub. Licinius, Cornelius, Valerianus) Son of the Emperor Gallienus, was made Cæſar, and ſent into Gaule with Albinus his Governour; but Poſthumius at the Head of a victorious Army of Goths, being revolted towards the end of the Third Century, obliged the Inhabitants of Colonia Agrippina to deliver this young Prince to him, whom he put to Death. This Saloninus is mentioned in an Inſcription found at Briancon. This Prince had a Brother named Julius Saloninus Gallienus, who was alſo created Cæſar. Their Mothers name was Salonia. Trebell. Poll. Aurel. Victor.

SALPION, a Famous Sculptor born at Athens, who was the Maker of that curious Baſon of Marble which is ſtill to be ſeen at Gajetta a Sea-port and City of the Kingdom of Naples, and is at preſent the Baptiſmal Font of the great Church there. Spon.

SALSATE, Lat. Salſeta, an Iſland of India in the Peninſula, on this ſide Ganges, near the Town of Goa, well inhabited by the Portugueſe. Baudr.

SALSES, Lat. Salſulæ, a Town of Gallia Narbonenſis, with a very ſtrong Caſtle built on a Hill near a Lake of the ſame name in the County of Rouſillon; it was firſt built by the Spaniards to bridle the Caſtle of Lucate, which lies within two Miles of it, but taken by the French in 1640, and aſſigned to them by the Treaty of the Pyrenees, with the County of Rouſillon. It is four Leagues North of Perpignan, ſeven North of Helena, and two Weſt from the Mediterranean.

SALTASH, a Market and Borough Town of Eaſt Hundred in Cornwall, ſeated upon the River Tamer about ſix Miles from Plimouth in Devonſhire. It conſiſts of three Streets on the deſcent of a ſteep Hill, ſo that they are clean waſh'd from Filth by every ſhower of Rain. This Town is govern'd by a Mayor and nine Aldermen: The Market on Saturday is indifferent good: They Trade much in Malt and Beer: It lies 184 Miles from London.

SALTFLEET, a Market-Town in the Eaſt parts of Lincolnſhire, ſituate by the Sea-ſide in Loutheask Hundred, part of Lindſey Diviſion, and much frequented by the Gentry in the Summer-ſeaſon for the eating of Fiſh, otherwiſe inconſiderable: It ſtands 115 Miles from London.

SALT-ISLE, Lat. Salis Inſula, called by the Inhabitants Il-hado ſal, by the French Liſle du ſel, one of the Iſlands of Cape Verd in the Atlantick Ocean under the Portugueſe: Here is great ſtore of Salt which denominates the Iſland. It lies forty Miles Eaſt of St. Nicolas, and ſeventy North of St. James Iſland, and is but thinly inhabited. Baudr.

SALT-MINES, half an hours Journey from Epiries in Upper-Hungary. Dr. Brown gives us this Deſcription of this noted place, that from the firſt place of deſcent unto the bottom, it is about 180 Fathoms deep; that the Miners deſcend firſt by Ropes, and afterwards by Ladder into the loweſt parts; that the Mine is for the moſt part in an Earthy and not a Rocky Ground; that the Veins are large, in ſome whereof are lumps of Salt that weigh above 10000 Pound; that the Salt is hew'd out into long ſquare pieces of two foot in length and one thick, which are ground for uſe: The Water that is drawn out of this Mine, when boil'd away, yields a blackiſh Salt, which the Country People give their Cattle. The ſtone Salt dug ſomewhat grey, when broken and ground to Powder, becomes as white as if it were refin'd, and conſiſts of pointed parts or foſſets; nor is all the Salt of the Mine of one colour, for even that which is moſt pure, and reſembles Chryſtal, receives Tinctures of ſeveral colours, ſo that there are ſome tranſparent blew and yellow lumps carved into divers Figures as if they were Cryſtal.

SALTSBERG, Lat. Saltsberga, a Town of Norway in the Prefecture of Aggerhuis on the River Dromen, fourteen Miles Weſt of Anſlo. This Town and Dioceſs hath its name from the River Saltzor which riſes in the Country of Tyrol, and falls into the Inn between Ottingen and Brana in Bavaria.

SALTZBURG, a City of Germany in the Circle of Bavaria, and an Archbiſhops See. It hath its name from the River Saltz on which it ſtands, or as others from the Salt Fountains that were diſcover'd there in the time of Diethus III Duke of Bavaria. Anciently it was called Hadriana and Juvavia, and the Germans then called it Hulffenburg from the word Hulff, which ſignifies Help, for that the Romans had built a Caſtle there, wherein they had a good Garriſon for to keep and ſecure the Country. St. Maximus was the firſt Biſhop of this See, in the Reign of Leo I. ſurnamed the Great, Emperor of Conſtantinople, about 474. But the Goths having ſacked this City, and put the Chriſtians that were in it to Death, there was no Biſhop almoſt for two Centuries together, to the time that St. Robert of the Royal Family of France was ſent thither to be the Biſhop, after having Baptized at Ratisbon Diethus III. Duke of Bavaria, who cauſed the City to be rebuilt, where this Holy Biſhop died in 623. This Church was made an Archbiſhops See in 798, in the Reign of Charlemagne, who transferred hither the Title of the Church of Paſſaw, which before was the Metropolitan Church of all Bavaria. Arnoldus was the firſt Archbiſhop, to whom was alſo granted Eccleſiaſtical Jurisdiction over the one half of Carinthia, and over all Stiria. This City was almoſt wholly reduced to Aſhes in the Reign of the Emperor Henry VI. about 1195, but was ſoon after rebuilt again. At preſent it is accounted one of the faireſt and beſt fortified Cities of all Germany; and its great Church, which was conſecrated in 1628, is one of the moſt Sumptuous and Magnificent of all Chriſtendom. This Archbiſhoprick to which the Biſhoprick of Chiemſee has been incorporated, hath under it the Biſhopricks of Trent, Paſſau, Vienna, Gurk, Brixen, Friſingen, Seccau and Lavau. The Archbiſhop hath his Seat and Voice in the Diets or General Aſſemblies of the Empire, on the firſt Bench of the Eccleſiaſtical Princes, next to the Electors, and is born Legate of the See of Rome in Germany. The Chapter of Saltzburg is very Rich; the Four and twenty moſt ancient Canons have the right of chuſing the Archbiſhop, and of being choſen to that Dignity. The City is ſecured with very good Fortifications, which were finiſhed by the late Count of Lodron Archbiſhop of Saltzburg, who alſo added to the perfecting of the Metropolitan Church, and re-eſtabliſh'd the Univerſity, whereof the Benedictines are the Directors and Regents. There are in this Archbiſhoprick Mines of Gold, and Mineral Waters which perform wonderful Effects upon ſick Perſons for their Recovery. Heiſſ. Hiſtoire de l'Empire.

SALVAGES (les) two ſmall Iſlands towards the Coaſt of Africa, and reckoned amongſt the Canary Iſlands. Notwithſtanding that they are uninhabited and Barren, yet they are often frequented for the getting of Canary-birds, which are there in ſo great abundance, that a Man cannot walk without cruſhing ſome of their Eggs. Villalain.

SALVATERRA, a Town of Spain, in the Province Alava, at the foot of Mont St. Adrian, three Leagues Eaſt of Victoria.

SALVATHIUS, the 64th King of Scotland, was Son to Eugenius VIII. and for his perſonal Valour might have had place amongſt Kings of the firſt Rank, if it had not been for a Gout which he contracted by a Cold in the third Year of his Reign; yet nevertheleſs he appeaſed all Tumults with great Succeſs and Prudence by his Generals. As firſt the Rebellion headed by Donald Bane, who ſeized all the Æbudæ or Weſtern Iſlands, and called himſelf King of them, and afterwards Landing on the Continent began to Ravage, but was forced into a Wood by Cullan of Argile, and Ducal of Athol, where he and his Men were all of them put to the Sword. In the next place Gilcolumbus invaded Galloway which his Father had formerly plundred, but was defeated by the ſame Generals, and afterwards executed. During this Reign there was Peace with the Engliſh and Picts, and Salvathius having ſate on the Throne twenty Years, died much lamented of his Subjects, An. Ch. 787. Buch.

SALUCES or Saluzzo, a City and Marquiſate in Piedmont at the foot of the Alps. It was formerly in the Poſſeſſion of the French Kings, but Henry IV. gave it to Charles Emanuel Duke of Savoy, in exchange for La Breſſe, Bugey, and ſome other places on this ſide the Alps in 1600. It is bounded by Piedmont on the North, by Dauphine on the Weſt, and the County of Nizza on the South. The Marquiſate takes its name from Saluzzo, Salutiæ the principal Town in it, anciently called Auguſta Vagiennorum, which ſtands upon a pleaſant Hill, having a very fair Caſtle, and magnificent Cathedral, which deſerves to be viewed, being a Biſhops See under the Archbiſhop of Turin. Carmagnole a very important place, is one of the Dependencies of this Marquiſate; the other Cities of it are Bargues, Revel, Droner, Cental, Roqueſpaviere, &c. The River Po takes its Riſe in this Country from the Mountain Viſo, accounted the higheſt of the Alps. The Marquiſes of Saluces have cauſed a Vault to be hewed out in this Rock half a League long, for the more commodious conveighing of Merchandiſes from Italy to France. It is ſaid that the Family of the Marquiſes of Saluces had its beginning from one William an Italian Count, who lived in 910. Aubery Hiſt. des Card. S. Marth. Gal. Chriſt. Columbi. Sewert.

SALVIANI, (Hyppolitus) an Italian, born at Citta di Caſtello, a Town of Umbria, was a general Scholar, and gain'd a great deal of Reputation by his Treatiſe of Fiſhes. This Gentleman, towards the latter end of his time turn'd Phyſician, and practis'd with Succeſs; he died in 1571. His Works are De Piſcibus, cum eorum Figuris. De Criſibus ad Galeni cenſuram. Ruffiana Comœdia. Thuan.

SALVIANUS (Calpurnius) a Roman, who during the Feriæ or Vacation time, preſented himſelf to Druſus the Governour of Rome, with an Indictment againſt Marius. He ſuppoſed he ſhould have gained Tiberius his Favour, by ſhewing himſelf ſo eager to proſecute the Emperors Enemy, at a time not allow'd of by the Conſtitution; but contrary to his Expectation, the Emperor diſapproved his proceeding, as not being according to the Forms of Law, and having publickly check'd him for it, ſent him into Exile. Tacit. Annal. 4.

SALVIANUS, a Prieſt, or as ſome ſay Biſhop of Marcelles, Flouriſh'd in the Vth Century, was very well skill'd in Divinity and Humanity. He wrote two fine Treatiſes, the firſt De Providentia Dei in Eight Books; and the other, In Avaritiam; the beſt Edition is that of Ritterſhuſius, Printed at Nuremburg in two Volumes in Octavo, in 1623. Monſieur Baluzius has likewiſe Publiſh'd 'em with Vincentius Lirinenſis. Gennad. in Catal. Vir. Illuſt. cap. 67. Eucherius Epiſt. ad Salor. Ado Vienenſis in Chron.

SALVIATI (Bernard) Cardinal, Biſhop of Clermont, and of St. Papoul, and Lord Almoner to Queen Katharine de Medicis, and Brother of Cardinal John Salviati. He was at firſt a Knight of Malta, and render'd himſelf ſo conſiderable, that he became Prior of Capua, and afterwards Grand Prior of Rome, and Admiral of his Order. It was in this Station that he ſo gloriouſly ſignalized himſelf, and made his name ſo terrible to the Ottoman Empire; when he utterly ſpoil'd the Haven of Tripoli, entred the Canal of Fagiera, and deſtroy'd all the Forts that oppoſed his Paſſage and his Arms. At another time being General of the Army of his Order, he took the Iſland and City of Coron, advanced as far as the Streights of Gallipoli, burnt the Iſle of Scio, and brought away many Slaves. Some time after he embraced the Eccleſiaſtical State, and was raiſed to the high Church Dignities before mentioned. Thuan. L. Mart.

SALVIUS COCCIANUS, Nephew of the Emperor Otho, who being daunted becauſe of his Uncles Defeat by Vitellius, Otho took occaſion to comfort him the day before he killed himſelf, commending his Affection, and reproving his faint-heartedneſs. Tacit. Hiſt. 2*d.*

M. SALVIUS JULIANUS, a Famous Lawyer in the ſecond Century, under the Empire of Adrianus and Antoninus Pius. He had been ſeveral times Conſul. We have divers of his Works, whereof the Emperor Juſtinian has given us an Elogy in the Publication of his Inſtitutes. He was of Milan, and Grandfather or Father of Didius Julianus, who was afterwards Emperor. Spartian. Forſter. in vit. Juriſ.

SALVIUS (Titianus) Brother of the Emperor Otho, with whom alſo he was Conſul. Otho going to fight Vitellius, left the Care of the City and the Government of the Empire to Salvius; but ſoon after ſent for him, and gave him the Command of his Army, but he too precipitately engaging with the Enemy, was defeated near Bebriacum, now Caneto in the Dukedom of Mantua. This loſs made the Emperor Otho kill himſelf, and Salvius obtained his Pardon of Vitellius. Tacit. Annal. 1ſt.

SALUS, a Goddeſs worſhipped by the Romans under the Figure of a Woman ſitting upon a Throne, holding a Cup over an Altar, round about which there was a twiſted Serpent. The Cup repreſented the Receipts and Preſervatives with which this Goddeſs was always furniſhed; and the Serpent being a Symbol of Prudence, was to let People know that Medicine without diſcretion in the Regimen and Adminiſtration is good for little. There were ſeveral Solemnities at Rome, in honour of this pretended Deity. C. Junius Bibulcus a Senator was the firſt who built her a Temple near Mount Quirinal to acquit himſelf of the Vow he had made in the Samnite War. Livy obſerves, that this Temple was promis'd when he was Conſul, built when Cenſor, and dedicated when he was Dictator. It was afterwards Painted by Fabius, who, by this Performance, gave the Sir-Name of Pictor to his Family. Cic. Tacit. Macrob. Liv. Lib. 9. cap. 43, &c.

SALWARP, a Worceſterſhire River, which after a ſhort courſe South-weſtward, empties it ſelf into the Severn three Miles above Worceſter, watering Droitwich and Bromiſgrove by the way.

SAMABUGI, the Diſciple of Cambadagi, and the Founder of a new Sect in Japan, whoſe Religion conſiſted in the worſhipping of Dæmons. See Kircher's China.

SAMACHONITIS, or Semechonitis, a Lake near the Fountains of the River Jordan, called Joſhua 11. 5. the Waters of Merom, lying North of the Sea of Galilee, being thirty Furlongs wide, and ſixty in length; the River Jordan runs through it. It is commonly dry all the Summer, though it abounds with Water in Winter, by reaſon of the great Current flowing into it from Mount Libanus, upon the melting of the Snow which covers that Mountain. The reſt of the Year it produceth great variety of Herbs, and ſeveral ſorts of Shrubs and Trees, with ſuch a wonderful Fertility, that it appears like a Foreſt, where the Lyons, Bears, Leopards and other wild Beaſts have their retreat, and make it an extraordinary place for Game, which the Great Men thereabouts often reſort to, for the pleaſure of Hunting. Joſeph. Brocard. Bredein.

SAMANA, an Independant Iſland of North America, being one of the Lucays, betwixt St. Salvador to the North, and Magagnana to the South: It is but thinly Inhabited. Baud.

SAMANDRIA, called by the Turks Semandre, a Town in Servia, formerly the reſidence of the Deſpot, but now under the Turks: It ſtands upon the Danube, is an Epiſcopal See, well inhabited and defended by a ſtrong Caſtle, and at preſent the Reſidence of the Turkiſh Governour, it having been in their hands ſince 1439, when it was taken by Amurath II. It ſtands ſix German Leagues below Belgrade, and fourteen South of Temiſwar; it was taken by the Imperialiſts in their late Conqueſts, but retaken again by the Turks in Sept. 1690. Some call it Spenderobi.

SAMARATH, the name of a Sect of Banjans in the Eaſt-Indies, they are a ſort of Pythagoreans, and believe the Pre-exiſtence and Tranſmigration of Souls. They ſay that God whom they call Permiſeer, governs the World by three Lieutenants; the firſt of whom they call Brama, who ſends the Souls into the Bodies they are deſign'd to by Permiſeer: The ſecond is Buſſiuna, who teaches Men to live according to the Commands of God, which they have writ down in four Books; he alſo ſuperintends the growth of Corn and all Vegetables: The third is called Mau, who has power over the Dead, and according to the Proportion of their good or evil Actions, ſends them into a Body to do more or leſs Penance, and when their Penance hath had its full Effect, he preſents the purified Souls to Permiſeer, who receives them into the number of his Servants. The Wives of this Sect chearfully Sacrifice themſelves upon their Husbands Funeral Piles, as being fully perſuaded that for ſo doing they ſhall enjoy ſeven fold in the other World, whatſoever they have renounced here. As ſoon as any of their Women are Delivered, they ſet before the New-born Infant an Inkhorn with Pen and Paper, to intimate that Buſſiuna will write the Law of Permiſeer in its underſtanding; and if it be a Boy, they add a Bow and Arrows, as a Preſage of his being fortunate in War. Mandeſlo, Olearius.

SAMARCHAND, Maracanda, the capital City of the Zagatayan Tartars, the Birth-place and Royal Seat of Tamberlain, who called himſelf Flagellum Dei. It is a large City, and of conſiderable Commerce: Tamberlain built a ſtrong Caſtle here, and inſtituted an Univerſity: It ſtands a hundred Miles North of the River Oxus.

SAMARIA, a City of Paleſtina, and Capital of the Kingdom of Iſrael. Omri King of Iſrael bought a Mountain in the Tribe of Ephraim of Shemer, and there built this City, which he called Samaria from the name of the firſt Poſſeſſor, 1 Kings 16. about A. M. 3112. Benhadad King of Syria beſieged it firſt, A. M. 3146. with a vaſt Army, and reduced it to great Extremity, ſo that the Head of an Aſs was ſold for eighty Shekels of Silver, which is about 10 l. Sterling, but was then miraculouſly delivered according to the Prediction of Eliſha the Prophet. A. M. 3314. Samaria was taken by Salmanaſſar, after three Years Siege; this Prince took away the Iſraelites Captives, and inſtead of them ſent a new Colony of divers Nations into that City, who carrying their Idols with them, the whole Country was ſoon overſpread with abominable Idolatry; whereupon God ſent Lyons amongſt them, which deſtroyed ſo many of the Inhabitants, that they ſent to Salmanaſſar, deſiring they might no longer live there; at their inſtance he ſent them one of the Prieſts of the true God, to inſtruct them in the Ceremonies of his Worſhip, and thereby to remove the Judgment that was upon the Country. But theſe new Inhabitants, notwithſtanding this, ſtill retaining their Superſtitions, patch'd up a Religion of both theſe. Joannes Hyrcanus, A. M. 3941. took this City and wholly ruined it, which was afterwards repaired by Herod the Great in 4033. and called Sebaſte in Honour of Auguſtus, but is now called Naplouſe according to ſome Authors: Sanballat was Governour of the Country of Samaria for Darius King of Perſia, but proved Treacherous to him, and took part with Alexander the Great, who in recompence of his Treaſon, gave him Permiſſion to build a Temple upon Mount Gerizim, like to that at Jeruſalem, whereupon Sanballat made his Son-in-Law Manaſſes High Prieſt thereof, who was the Brother of Jaddus. All the Prieſts who had eſpouſed ſtrange Wives, as well as he, to avoid the Puniſhment due to their fault, joyn'd themſelves to him, and Samaria ever after was the Refuge of thoſe who could not endure the ſevere diſcipline of the Law. And this was a main cauſe of the Schiſm the Samaritans made from their Brethren the Jews; for neither did they Sacrifice at Jeruſalem, neither had they any Communication with the Jews in Matters of Religion. They denied the Reſurrection of the Dead, and of all the Canonical Scripture received only the five Books of Moſes. After this, in the Reign of the Emperor Zeno, they began to torment the Chriſtians, ſpoil'd their Churches, and to Maſſacre their Biſhops and Prieſts; but the Emperor having chaſtiſed their Inſolence, put the Chriſtians in poſſeſſion of their Temple. But ſome time after, in the Reign of Anaſtaſius, they ſurprized Mount Gerizim, and kill'd all the Chriſtians they found there: Procopius revenged this Barbarity, by defeating and killing the Undertakers. In the time of Juſtinian the Emperor their Inſolence came to that heighth, as to ſet up a King called Julian, under whoſe Conduct they ravaged all the Country about Samaria, burning the Churches, plundering the Holy Veſſels and Ornaments, maſſacring the Prieſts, and broiling their Fleſh with the Relicks of Martyrs they found in the Holy places. Juſtinian being informed hereof, ſent an Army which defeated theſe Rebels, and Julian their King was taken and Burnt. After this Juſtinian publiſhed very ſevere Laws againſt them, which he renewed from time to time to keep them in their Duty. At laſt in 551, finding themſelves unable to make Head againſt the Chriſtians, they reſolved to make ſhew of a feigned Converſion, and making their intent known to Sergius Biſhop of Cæſarea, he applied himſelf to the Emperor on their behalf, who vouchſafed them the Liberty of bequeathing by Teſtament and receiving Donations as his other Subjects. This City was very ſtately, as appears by the marble Pillars found in its Ruins, but has now but a few Colleges inhabited by Grecian Monks. The Temple of Samaria was in being in our Saviours time, as appears by St. John iv. 20. and in the 35*th* of Chriſt, Philip the Evangeliſt preached the Goſpel in this City, and amongſt other Converts had Simon the Heretick and Founder of the Sect of Gnoſticks. An. 42. Herod Agrippa obtained this City from Caligula, and ſiding with the Romans againſt the Jews under Veſpaſian, they avoided the publick Calamity of the Nation; but Anno 135, taking other Meaſures, they were together with the reſt of the Jews extirpated by the Emperor Adrian, and the City has ever ſince been Ruinous; yet there are ſome Remains of the Samaritans in Paleſtine and Grand Cairo, where they have their Synagogues and ancient Sacrifices; their High Prieſt reſides at Sichem, now Naplouſe, and pretends to be deſcended from Aaron. The Province of Samaria was bounded with the Mediterranean on the Weſt, on the North by Galilee, on the Eaſt by Jordan, and on the South by Judea. It was very Fruitful in Corn and Paſture, and conſequently Populous, but now Poor and Deſolate. 1 Kings. 2 Chron. Joſeph. Antiq. Jud. Torniel and Salian in Annal. Vet. Teſt. Godeau Hiſt. Eccl. &c.

SAMARITANS. There are to this day ſome Remainders of the ancient Sect of Samaritans, who are Zealous for the Law of Moſes, and yet are look'd upon by the Jews as Hereticks, becauſe they receive only the Pentateuch, and obſerve different Ceremonies from theirs. There are of theſe at Gaza, Damaſcus, Grand Cairo, and in ſome other places of the Eaſt, but eſpecially at Sichem now called Naplouſe, which is riſen out of the Ruins of the ancient Samaria, where they Sacrificed not many Years ago, having a place for that purpoſe on Mount Gerizim. Joſeph Scaliger, who knew this, wrote a Letter to the Samaritans of Egypt, and to their High Prieſt, who had his Reſidence at Naplouſe, in which he propoſed ſeveral Difficulties, to which they anſwered, though their anſwer never came to Scaliger's hands, but came ſince to the hands of Genebrardus and afterwards of Peyreſk, who gave it to Fa. Morinus, who tranſlated it into Latin, as may be ſeen in Morinus his Letters printed here at London under the Title of Bibliotheca Orientalis. And Father Simon had, before this, in the Supplement of his firſt Edition concerning the Ceremonies and Cuſtoms of the Jews, publiſhed the Subſtance of the two Letters ſent to Scaliger, by the two Samaritan Synagogues of Naplouſe and Egypt. R. Benjamin who makes mention of theſe Samaritans in his Travels, amongſt other things obſerves that they have Prieſts that pretend to be of the Houſe of Aaron, who never Marry but in the ſame Line, for fear of Confounding the Prieſtly Race, and that they Sacrifice on Mount Gerizim, upon an Altar made of the Stones which the Children of Iſrael, at Gods Command, took out of the River Jordan, and ſet up in Memory of their miraculous ſage over it. He adds, that theſe Samaritans are very ſcrupulous of defiling themſelves by touching any dead Body, that they change their Cloaths when they go to the Synagogue, and waſh themſelves before they put them on. He ſaith that they are of the Tribe of Ephraim, and that they have the Sepulchre of Joſeph amongſt them, beſides the Sepulchres of many of their Prophets, and amongſt the reſt thoſe of Eleazar and Ithamar Sons of Aaron, and of Phineas his Grand-Child. They preſerve alſo amongſt them an Inſcription, which they ſuppoſe to have been written by Phineas himſelf, the fifteenth Year after the Iſraelites entrance into the Land of Promiſe. Some of our Engliſh, not many Years ago, ſent Letters to theſe Samaritans, who anſwered them much to the ſame purpoſe as they did Scaliger, the Inſcription of their Letter runs thus, To their Dear Brethren in England (by which it ſeems they ſuppoſed them to be of their own Sect) they declare that they have no longer any High Prieſt, and that they are not tainted with thoſe Errors the Jews charge them with, and particularly that they are no Sadduces. An Arabian of the Samaritan Sect, whoſe Book is now in the French Kings Library, Tranſlated the Pentateuch into his own Language, and in his Notes upon the Original, he plainly acknowledges the Spirituality and Immortality of the Soul; affirming likewiſe that the Angels are of a Spiritual and Immaterial Nature. Pietro della Valle, a Roman Noble-man, had ſome Converſe with theſe Samaritans in his Eaſtern Journies, and bought of them the Hebrew Samaritan Copy of the Pentateuch, which M. de Sancy, then French Ambaſſador at the Port, brought along with him from Conſtantinople, and now it is kept in the Library of the Fathers of the Oratory of Paris. From this Manuſcript was Printed the Samaritan Pentateuch, which is in the great Bible of M. le Jay, and has ſince been reprinted in our Engliſh Polyglott. The Characters of this Manuſcript are much more Fair and Majeſtick than thoſe of the Printed. The Samaritans boaſt of their having a Copy of the Law writ by Phineas himſelf: However thus much is certain, that thoſe of Naplouſe have a very ancient Copy of the Books of Moſes, and it were to be wiſhed that we had an exact Copy of ſome Lines of it at leaſt, to know the Characters in which it is writ. One of the High Prieſts of the Samaritans in 1590, called Eleazar, writ a Book in which he reckons up 122 High-Prieſts from Aaron to himſelf, maintaining that the Jews have no Prieſts of the Race of Aaron; and ſaith, that the Samaritan Character is the ſame God himſelf made uſe of in writing the Law he gave to Moſes. *F. SAMBACH, or Sanbich in Cheſhire, a Town of no great Extent, nor is its Market very conſiderable; it is graced with a fair Church, and two ſquare Croſſes of Stone which have Steps up to them, they ſtand in the Market-place. The Town lies 125 Miles from London, noted for its Ale.

SAMBALES. Some little Iſles near to the Peninſula of Jucatan in New-Spain towards the Honduras; in which there is as good Ambergreaſe found, as that which is brought from the Eaſt. Some Americans who are Tributary to the Spaniards, come hither to fiſh for it, after the following manner. Having obſerved that when the Sea is toſs'd with a Tempeſt, the Ambergreaſe is caſt upon the Shore, they repair thither as ſoon as the Storm begins, to prevent the Birds, who come and devour it as ſoon as the Tempeſt is over. And to diſcover where there is any, they go with their Faces againſt the Wind, till they perceive the ſmell of it, which being freſh exhales ſtrongly, and ſo walk on ſoftly till they have loſt the Scent, and then look for it in the Sand; ſometimes the Birds ſhew them where it is, by pecking at the place; when they have gathered it, they carry it with them to the Coaſt of Jucatan to ſell it to the Spaniards. Oexmel. Hiſt. W. Indies.

SAMBALI, a Kingdom of India, bordred with the Kingdoms of Agra and Patna to the Weſt, and the River Ganges on the Eaſt. Its capital City is of the ſame name, and is ſubject to the Great Mogul. Baud.

SAMBAS, a Town on the North of the Iſland Borneo in the Eaſt-Indies, having a convenient Haven, and is ſituate upon a Creek thirty Miles from the main Ocean. Baud.

SAMBRACATE, an Iſland of Arabia Fælix, on the Eaſtern Coaſt of the Red Sea, overagainſt a Town of the ſame name on the Continent of Arabia. Baud.

SAMBRE, Lat. Sabis or Saba, a River of the Netherlands, which hath its ſource in Picardy, runs through Hainault, waters Landreci, Barlemont, Maubeuge, Charleroy and Namur, where it falls into the Meuſe; it is noted in Cæſar's Commentaries, becauſe the People of Artois, Vermandois, and other neighbouring Provinces incamp'd on its Banks. In other Authors it is called Savus, and Egrod the Monk was the firſt that called it Sambra or Sambre about a thouſand years ago. There is alſo a River of Carmania called by this name, which falls into the Perſian Gulf, about a hundred Miles from the Borders of Perſia. Hoffman.

SAMBUCA, a Town of Sicily very well inhabited, ten Miles North of Sacca, and as much from the Shoar of the African Sea towards Panormus.

SAMBUCCUS (Joannes) a Famous Phyſician born at Tyrnau or Dyrn a City of Upper-Hungary in 1531. He compoſed ſeveral Moral Poems, and writ a learned Commentary upon Horace de Arte Poëtica, as alſo a Collection of the moſt notable Sentences out of St. Gregory Nazianzen, and four Dialogues concerning the imitation of Cicero, with a Diſcourſe, wherein he proves that Maſters ought to read Orators to their young Scholars, before Poets. His Hiſtory of Hungary is counted one of his beſt pieces, as being writ no leſs Elegantly than Faithfully, from the Reign of Matthias to the Empire of Maximilian II. as likewiſe his Lives of the Roman Emperors, which he hath publiſhed, corrected and much augmented. He Tranſlated out of Greek into Latin, Heſiod, Theophylact upon the Acts of the Apoſtles, and the Phædrus of Plato. He died of an Apoplexy at Vienna in Auſtria, June 13. 1584. being Fifty three Years of Age.

SAMFORD PEVERELL, a Market Town of Halborton Hundred in the Eaſt part of Devonſhire.

SAMLAND or Zamland, Lat. Sambia, a Province of Poland, and one of the twelve parts into which Pruſſia was divided by their Prince Venodotius in 733. It was a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Gneſna, but now united to the Biſhoprick of Warmerland; it lies between the Bay of Courland to the North, and the River Pregel to the South, being part of the Circle of Natang ſubject to the Elector of Brandenburg. Baud.

SAMMAEL, according to the Jewiſh Cabbaliſts, is the name of the Devil that ſeduced Eve, whom they call alſo the Angel of Death, and the Prince of Devils. R. Moſes tells us, that by this name they commonly underſtand Satan, who would have hindred Abraham from Sacrificing his Son Iſaac, and endeavoured to make Iſaac diſobedient to his Father. This Sammael is made mention of in the Targum of Jonathan, and called The Angel of Death. R. Moſes. More Nevochim.

SAMNITES, an ancient People of Italy, who inhabited that Tract of Land where at preſent is the Dukedom of Benevento, the Province of Abruzzo, la Capitanata and Terra di Lavoro, &c. They waged Wars againſt the Romans for a long time, 'till they were wholly ſubdued by them. Their Country was called Samnium.

SAMO, King of the Carinthians in Germany, whom his Valour raiſed to the Throne. He was at firſt a Merchant, and being come out of France his Native Country, put himſelf at the Head of the Carinthians, to deliver them from the Tyranny of the Huns, in which he ſucceeded ſo well, that being by them raiſed to the Throne, he reigned afterwards thirty ſix years over that People with great Renown. Andr. Brunner. Virt. & fortu. Boiorum.

SAMO, Samos an Iſland in the Archipelago, on the Coaſt of Ionia South Eaſt of Scio, eighty Miles in compaſs, Fruitful, and of old very Populous, but now laid deſolate by the Pyrates and oppreſſing Turks under whom it is. See Samos.

SAMOGITIA, a very large Province of Poland, being bounded on the North by Courland, on the Eaſt by Lithuania, on the South by the Ducal Pruſſia, and on the Weſt by the Baltick Sea. Its length from Eaſt to Weſt is 35 German Miles, but the breadth is not anſwerable. It was formerly divided into twelve Governments, but at preſent hath no more than three; its principal Cities are Medniky or Wormie, Roſſiem and Conna, the firſt of which is a Biſhops See under the Archbiſhop of Gneſna. The Peaſants live meanly, but have plenty of excellent Honey, their chiefeſt Wealth: The People are good Soldiers, but moſt part Idolaters, and worſhip Serpents. Guagninus.

SAMOID, a Province of the Northern Muſcovy on the mouth of the River Oby, whence the People are called Samoides, it was formerly part of Tartaria Deſerta, but is now in ſome meaſure ſubject to the Duke of Muſcovy, yet for the moſt part independent. It lies on the Northern and Tartarian Sea; it was a part of the ancient Scythia, and called Samoid by the Ruſſians, becauſe the Inhabitants were Cannibals, and are ſaid to eat the Fleſh of their neareſt Relations with a mixture of Veniſon; to this day they have no Cities, but live in Huts, whereof one half is above and the other under ground, having a hole at top which ſerves for Chimny and Door. The Snow falls ſometimes the depth of a Pike, and then they have paſſages under ground from Hut to Hut; one half of the Year is all Night, the other half all Day. Their Victuals are dry'd Fiſh, Honey and Veniſon; their Cloaths the Skins of Beaſts with the Fur on, ſow'd with the Nerves of Beaſts inſtead of Thread; and by mixing various colours they repreſent Foreſt-work, or Flowers on their Habits. They are low ſized, large and flat-faced, little ey'd, ſhort leg'd and long hair'd, and have neither Wooll nor Corn. In 1595. when the Dutch diſcovered theſe Coaſts, they found abundance of their Idols on the Shoar, but they would ſuffer none to be carried off: Since that time the Ruſſians ſent Uladimer, one of their Biſhops, who converted them. Olearius. See Samoyeda.

SAMOS, an Iſland and City on the Coaſt of the Leſſer Aſia, overagainſt the City Epheſus, in ancient times alſo called Parthenia, Anthemoſa, Melamphylos, Dryuſa, Cypariſſa, Parthenyaruſa, Stephane, Imbriſos and Imbraſia. The Samians maintained a long War againſt the Epheſians, who at laſt drove them out of their Country, where they were not ſetled again till a long while after; as alſo againſt the Athenians and the Mileſians. In the LXXXIV Olympiad, about the Year of Rome 313, the Athenians, under the Command of Pericles, aſſiſted the Mileſians againſt the Samians their Enemies, who at firſt had the worſt, but taking Courage from Pericles his Retreat, they avenged themſelves upon the Athenians, ſtigmatizing the Foreheads of all thoſe they took with an hot Iron. Some time after Pericles beſieged Samos, and after nine Months Siege, forced the City to ſurrender at Diſcretion. It was at this Siege that Artemon of Clazomene firſt invented the uſe of Battering-Rams, and other Warlike Machines proper for the taking of Cities. This Iſland was the Birth-place of Herophile called the Samian Sibyl, and of divers great Men, and amongſt them Pythagoras the Prince of Philoſophers. The City which in ancient time was Famous for a Temple of Juno, hath ſince been a Biſhops See under the Archbiſhop of Rhodes. Aulus Gellius tells us that the Samians were the firſt Inventors of Earthen Veſſels, their Iſland abounding with a ſort of Clay very fit for that purpoſe. This Iſland is ſo Fruitful, that whatſoever is planted thrives in it. There is a ſecond of this name on the Coaſt of Thrace, now called Samandrachi. Aul. Gell.

SAMOS is a very Ancient and Famous City, and was at firſt very Potent, being of the ſame Name with the Iſland, and ſeated on a very high Mountain. The firſt Inhabitants were Carians, differing from the latter in Language and in Manners, who were brought in as a Colony by Androclus a Son of Codrus the laſt King of Athens, A. M. 2979. (Vellejus ſaith by Anaceus a Citizen of Samos in Cephalonia.) This Colony however built the City of Samos, where it had the conveniency of a large and ſafe Port, and it preſently grew in the Number of People and Houſes to be very conſiderable, for it was from the firſt Riſe a Free and Independent State. Herodot. Lib. 3. After this Polycrates one of the Citizens uſurped the Government about the time that Cyrus reigned in Aſia, and Piſiſtratus at Athens: He had the Honour to be the Friend of Amaſis King of Egypt; and of Cambyſis King of Perſia, to whom he ſent a Fleet of ſuch of his Subjects as he moſt ſuſpected, with a Requeſt that they might never be permitted to return. They having attempted various ways to make their eſcape home without Succeſs, at laſt applied themſelves to the Lacedæmonians for their Aſſiſtance. They made a War upon the Samians to that end but it had no Effect. Polycrates in the mean time was circumvented by Orvetes a Perſian and ſlain. Meandrius his Steward ſucceeded him, who by the means of Otan a Perſian at the Command of Darius was depoſed, and Syleſon the Brother of Polycrates was ſet up: He dying, Æaces his Son ſucceeded, and was driven out by Ariſtagoras the Mileſian, who was then Arming all the Ionian Cities againſt the Perſians. Thus Samos became Free once more, and joined with thoſe Cities in that War. Ariſtagoras being dead, and Dionyſius of Phocea having the Management of the War, the Samian Commanders, by the Advice of Æaces their depoſed Prince, deſerted the reſt of the Allies in a Sea-fight they had with the Phœnicians, who were drawn into this War by Darius; all the reſt followed their Example and fled with them, except the Chiots, who with ſix Gallies maintained a deſperate Fight, 'till having loſt moſt of them they were forced to yield. Miletus being thereupon taken, was miſerably haraſſed and burnt. The Samians fearing the like Uſage, and Æaces more than the Perſians, and taking up the Fugitives of Miletus, they fled to Zancla in Sicily, and there built Meſſina. Chius, Lesbus and Tenedus were taken the next Year by the Perſians and Phœnicians, and very much depopulated. So Ionia in Aſia was made ſubject to the Perſian Empire, 'till Xerxes was beaten out of Greece, and Mardonius and all his Forces were cut off or driven into Aſia. This Defeat of the Ionian Fleet happened in the firſt Year of the LXXI Olympiad, Ann. M. 3454, and the Ionian Cities continued in this Servitude about ſeventeen Years; 37 Years after this Deliverance (viz.) A.M. 3508, there aroſe a Contention between the Cities of Samos and Miletus, concerning Priene a City on the River Meander; the Miletians being worſted, called the Athenians to their Aſſiſtance; they two prevailed ſo far againſt the Samians, that the Athenians changed the Samian Government from an Ariſtocracy to a Democracy, and ſent eighty of the beſt of the Inhabitants of Samos Priſoners to the Iſland of Lemnos, to be kept there as Hoſtages for the reſt, and having alſo placed a Garriſon to awe them, they returned home. The greateſt of the Citizens however eſcaped, and obtaining a good Force of Piſſuthna the Perſian Governour of Sardis, they regained the City of Samos, and put the Athenian Garriſon into the hands of the Perſian, and fetch'd away the Hoſtages that were ſent to Lemnos, and then began to War again with the Miletians. The Athenians in the mean time made a ſecond Expedition againſt the City of Samos, and having beſieged the City nine Months under the Command of Pericles, they at laſt took it, pull'd down the Walls, took new Hoſtages, and ſetled there another Garriſon. This happened nine Years before the Peloponneſian War, about the beginning of the LXXXV Olympiad, A. M. 3510. The Samians were after this 29 Years the Allies of the Athenians, but in the twentieth Year of that War, after the Athenians were beaten in Sicily, the more conſiderable Inhabitants of Samos, being weary of the Democracy which the Athenians had ſetled amongſt them, reſolved to change it. The People getting ſome Intimation of this Deſign, with the Aſſiſtance of the Athenian Garriſon, and the help of three Gallies that were then in the Haven, they ſlew two hundred of the Conſpirators and baniſhed three hundred. Upon this the Athenians ſetled the Samians in perfect Liberty by a publick Decree of the Senate. The War being after this managed for the moſt part at Sea, and on the Coaſt of Aſia between the Athenians and Lacedæmonians, Samos was the Harbour to which the Athenians reſorted at all times for their Security. But at laſt the Athenians Affairs at home became very much diſordered by the abrogating the Democracy, and ſetting up an Oligarchy which they could not bear, whereupon many of them fled to Samos, which was by this means made a ſecond Athens, as well in People as Government. After Athens was wholly maſtered, Lyſander came before Samos with a Fleet, and had it deliver'd up without any reſiſtance, A. M. 3547. The Citizens had leave to go away with their Cloaths, the reſt was all taken from them, and the City was put, together with the Government, into the hands of the Baniſh'd Samians, who ſetled a Council of ten for the management of it. But about ten Years after Conon having obtained a Naval Victory over the Lacedæmonian Fleet near Gnidus, and the Dominion of the Seas being thus regained by the Athenians, Samos became an Ally of that State again: Four Years after ſhe returned into the League of the Lacedæmonians and Rhodians, always joining with the ſtronger ſide. Tyranes a Perſian Prefect took the City, and it was delivered by Timotheus the Son of Conon who came thither with a Fleet. After this time this City is not mentioned in Hiſtory, and it is probable ſhe was in a mean Condition when ſhe fell into the hands of the Romans. Auguſtus Cæſar permitted her to be governed by her own Laws; and Strabo ſaith, in his time the Inhabitants of this Iſland were ſo numerous, that they were forced to ſend Colonies into Icaria, which was then ill Peopled. Janſon de Antiq. Geog. p. 140.

SAMOSATE, the chief City of Comagena a Province of Syria, now called Scemſat, having formerly been a very Famous and conſiderable place, with a Biſhops See under the Archbiſhop of Edeſſa, and was the Birth-place of Lucian the Atheiſt who was torn to pieces by Dogs, and of Paulus Samoſatenſis an Heretick. This City ſtands on the Borders of Meſopotamia; and is forty Miles Eaſt of Edeſſa, and ſeventy North of Zeugma.

SAMOTHES or Dis, whom ſome will have to be Meſech the Son of Japhet, is acknowledged to have been the firſt King of the Gauls; from whom the Gallick Prieſts were called Samothei. Cæſar, lib. 6. de Bello Gallico.

SAMOTHRACE, at preſent Samandrachi, an Iſland of the Archipelago towards the Coaſt of Europe, about three Leagues from Romania, having on the South of it the Iſle of Lemnos, which is now called Stalimene. In ancient times it had a conſiderable City built on a Mountain towards the Eaſt, which is now but a Village. It hath ſeveral commodious Harbours, and abounds with Honey and Fallow-Deer. It's about 20 Miles in Circuit, 15 from the mouth of the River Hebrus, and 20 South from the Coaſts of Thracia. It is well inhabited, and the People are called Samothracians. It was formerly Famous for the Dij Cabiri, or great Gods which were there Worſhip'd. Baud. Bochart in his Canaan, lib. 1. cap. 12.

SAMOYEDA, a Province in the North Eaſt of Moſcovia upon the Frozen Sea, lying on both ſides of the River Obb, near the Streight of Waigats; the Inhabitants whereof go to paſs their Summer in Nova Zembla, and the Land of Waigat. They are leſs in Stature than the Nova Zemblians, and more ſquare and thick ſet than thoſe of Lapland, have great Heads, platter-Faces, and their Noſes broader and flatter. They have almoſt no Hair at all, and their Faces are of a tawny colour; their Cloathing are Beaſts Skins, with the Furr turned inwards in the Winter, and outwards in the Summer; they have furr'd Cowls that cover their Heads, and their great Lords have Caps of Bever-Skins, or Cloth on their Heads, to the top of which they tye a Cloth of divers Colours: and when they ſalute any one, they take off their Cowls or Bonnets, bowing themſelves to the ground. The ordinary Habit of Men is a round Bonnet of Frize or ſhagg'd Cloth like a Lambs-Skin, a Doublet, and a Gown or long Coat of white Bears-skin, which reacheth only to their Knees, girt below their Bellies with a Girdle about four fingers broad; their Shooes and Stockings are of the ſame skin, the Furr turn'd outwards, and under their Shooes they have a kind of Skates or Pattins two foot long, made of the Bark of Trees, in the form of a Gondola, with the help of which they run very ſwiftly over the Snow, which lies in great drifts and very deep in their Country. Their Women are very nimble, and take much pains to teach their Children to hunt. They are clothed like the Men, ſave only that they have no Furrs upon their Shoulders: They go a hunting with a Quiver full of Arrows, and a Bow in their Hands: They make uſe of Sleds drawn by Rangifers, (which are a ſort of wild Deer of that Country, extreamly ſwift) to carry them in their Journeys. They eat raw Fleſh after that it hath been a while dried in the Air. Blaeu's Geography.

SAMPIETRO BASTELICA Sieur d'Ornane, and Colonel General of the Corſes, was himſelf a Corſe (that is, a Native of the Iſle of Corſica) and was more known and eſteem'd for his Valour, under the Name of Sampietro, than for the Riches and Grandeur of his Family. He ſerv'd France a long time in their Wars in Piedmont, and in Italy againſt thoſe of Genoua, and won almoſt the whole Iſle of Corſica from them. After the Peace of Chateau Cambreſis in 1556, and the tragical end of King Henry II. he reſolved to go to Conſtantinople, to demand Aſſiſtance there; the Genoueſe had ſeized all his Goods, and ſet his Head at a price; for which he was reſolved to be reveng'd of them. As he was on this Journey, he was informed that his Wife, whom he had left at Marſeilles, was reſolv'd to go to Genoua. This News putting him into a deſperate Rage, he ſent one of his Domeſticks to ſtop her Journey: Some had perſuaded her that ſhe might eaſily obtain her Husbands Pardon of that Republick, and the great Love ſhe had for her Husband engaged her in this Reſolution. Sampietro being come back, found his Wife at Aix, from whence he carried her back to Marſeilles; and being all alone with her, told her ſhe muſt prepare for Death. Vannina, ſo was his Wifes Name, receiv'd this dreadful Sentence with great Courage; and for a laſt Favour deſir'd of her Husband, that ſince never any other Man but he had touch'd her, ſhe now alſo might enjoy the ſame Favour, and die by his hand: Whereupon Sampietro putting one Knee to the ground, call'd her his Miſtreſs, and begg'd her Pardon; which done, he took a Handkerchief and ſtrangled her. This barbarous Action ſtain'd Sampietro's former Reputation, yet returning into Corſica in the Year 1564, he made a great part of the Iſle revolt: Though he had not above 25 Men with him at his Arrival, he got ſeveral Advantages over the Genoueſe, and took divers Places from them, who at laſt procur'd one of his Company, called Vitelli, to murther him in January 1567. Sampietro left a Son whom he had by Vannina, whoſe Name was Alphonſus d'Ornane; he was General of the Corſes, Marſhal of France, and Knight of the Royal Orders; he was train'd up in the Wars by his Father from the 13th Year of his Age, and was not above 17 when he brought a conſiderable Supply of Money to his Father, who was then in Corſica in 1565. After his Fathers death he return'd to France, and ſerved Charles IX. and Henry III. in their Wars againſt the Proteſtants; and afterwards made the Cities of Lyons, Grenoble, and Valence, and other Places in Provence and Dauphine, to ſubmit to King Henry IV; who, to reward his good Services, beſtowed upon him the Honours above-mention'd, and made him Lieutenant-General of Guienne. He died of the Stone, at Paris, the 21ſt of January 1610, in the 63d Year of his Age.

SAMSEA, or Samchè, a Midland Province in the South of Georgia towards Armenia, having Guria on the Weſt, Imeritia on the North, and Gagueſia on the Eaſt. They have a Prince of their own, but under the Grand Seignior's protection. There is no Town of note in the whole Country. Baud.

SAMSOI, Lat. Samſoa, or Samus Danica, an Iſland of Denmark in the Baltick, betwixt Jutland and Zeland.

SAMSON, a Judge and Deliverer of the Jews, whoſe Birth, Life and wonderful Death, An. M. 2899, may be read Judges chap. 13, 14, 15, 16. and Joſeph. lib. 5. Antiq. Jud.

SAMSON (Richard) an Engliſh-man, was a Favourite of King Henry VIII. who made him Dean of his Chapel, and ſoon after gave him the Biſhoprick of Lichfield and Coventry. He wrote againſt the Pope's Supremacy, in defence of the King's Proceedings; but after the death of that Prince, he retracted his Book, and kept ſteddy to his laſt Opinion. He died in 1555, in Queen Mary's Reign. Pitts de Illuſt. Angl. Script.

SAMUEL, a Prophet and Judge of Iſrael. Some are of opinion that he wrote the Book of Judges and that of Ruth, beſides a great part of the firſt Book called by his Name, where a further Account may be ſeen of him.

SAMUEL, a Prince of the Bulgarians, gained a Battle againſt the Emperor Baſilius, but was afterwards defeated by him, who caus'd the Eyes of 15000 of his Soldiers, whom he had taken Priſoners, to be pluck'd out, except one Captain to whom he left one Eye, that he might be able to conduct the reſt back again to their own Country. This horrid Spectacle ſo affected Samuel, that he died for grief a few days after. Volater.

SAMUEL, a Jew of Morocco in the Eleventh Century: He was baptized, and afterwards writ to the Jews a Letter, wherein he proved that the Meſſiah was already come, condemning them for the hardneſs of their Hearts; of which there are ſeveral Editions. He declares that he wrote that Letter a thouſand years after the taking of Jeruſalem by Titus; which informs us that he lived in 1070. Bellarm. de Script. Eccleſiaſt.

SAMUEL BEN TSARTSA, a learned Rabbi, who wrote a Book De Biurim, or Explanations upon the Commentaries of Aben-Ezra, call'd Mekorhajim, or, The Spring of Life, printed at Mantua in 1559. As Aben-Ezra is one of the moſt valuable Jewiſh Writers for explaining the Scriptures, ſo his way of Writing being cloſe and conciſe, this Rabbi clears up the meaning very much; and neither does he confine himſelf ſo entirely to his Author as not to relate the opinion of ſeveral others, explaining likewiſe ſome difficult places of Scripture upon his own Reaſoning. R Simon.

SAN, Lat. Sanus, a River of Poland, which riſes in the Carpathian Mountains near the Borders of Hungary, runs through Black Ruſſia, waters the Towns of Tremiſlaw and Jaroſlaw, runs through Upper Poland, and disburthens it ſelf into the Weſel near Sandomir; near which Place Charles Guſtavus King of Sweden was in vain beſieged by the Germans and Polanders for ſome Weeks. Hoffman.

SANAA, anciently Oſal, the Metropolis of Arabia Fœlix, ſeated like Damaſcus amongſt Mountains in a very temperate Air. It's 50 Leagues from Mecca on the Eaſtern ſhore of the Red-Sea. It's rich, well built, the ancienteſt and greateſt City in Arabia, and well peopled.

SANACHIES, the ſame which the Latins call Seneciones, a ſort of inferiour Bards entertained by the chief of the Scots Highland Clans to celebrate their own and their Anceſtors Atchievements in Rhime, which the Head of every Family kept as the Hiſtory belonging to the ſame. Buchanan.

SANCERRE (Lewis of) Knight, and Lord of Charenton, &c. He performed great Services to King Charles V. in his Wars, who honoured him with the Batton of Marſhal of France in the year 1369. He aſſiſted the Conſtable Gueſelin in the Conqueſt of Guienne, and ſome time after he was made Commander of the King's Army in that Country againſt the Engliſh in 1381. He had alſo the Command of the Vanguard of the French Army, jointly with the Conſtable de Cliſſon at the Battle of Roſſebec in 1382, againſt the Flemings. Afterwards returning to Guienne, he oppos'd himſelf againſt the Attempts of the Engliſh in 1383, and 1385. After the death of the Earl of Eu, he was made Lord High Conſtable of France. He died in 1402, aged 60.

SANCERRE, Sacrum Cereris, and Sacro-Cæſarianum, a City and Earldom of France, in Berry. It was taken by the Proteſtants during the Civil Wars; but the Governour of Berry, Claudius de la Chartre, having beſieged it, and reduced the Inhabitants to extreme Famine, the City was ſurrendered in 1573, whereupon the Caſtles and Fortifications thereof were demoliſhed. The Town ſtands upon a little Hill on the Bank of the River Loire. Jean de Lery.

SANCHIAN, Lat. Sancianum, an Iſland of China on the Coaſt of the Province of Quantoia, where the Jeſuit commonly called St. Francis of Xavier, died in 1552. It is in the middle betwixt Macha the famous Empory and the Iſle of Enan, about 18 Leagues from each.

SANCHO, Sanchius, King of Leon and Aſturia, ſucceeded his Brother Ordonnus in 956. He was ſirnamed the Big, becauſe ſo fat that he was unfit for any Action, which obliged him to continue the Truce with Abderama King of Corduba, to which City he came, to take the Advice of ſome Phyſicians, who perfectly rid him of his Fatneſs. In the mean time his Subjects rebelled againſt him, and ſet upon the Throne Ordonnus the Son of Alphonſus IV. called the Monk; but Sancho defeated them, and routed the Moors that were come to attack him in his capital City; and having ſuppreſs'd this Rebellion, and pardoned the Ringleader of it, was ſoon after poiſon'd with an Apple by him whoſe Life he had ſpared, in 967. Turquet, Mariana.

SANCHO I. King of Caſtile, is the ſame with the King of Navarre, the third of that Name, ſirnamed the Great. Ferdinand I. ſucceeded him in the Kingdom of Caſtile, and was Father of Sancho II. who reigned ſix Years and an half. He was Brother of Garcias King of Galicia, of Alphonſus King of Leon, and of a Siſter who was Lady of Zamora. Sancho dethroned the firſt of theſe, forced the ſecond to go into a Monaſtery, and himſelf was killed at the Siege of Zamora in 1072. Sancho III. the eldeſt Son of Alphonſus VIII. ſirnamed the Good, ſucceeded him in 1157, and reigned only one Year and eleven Days. Sancho IV. was Son of Alphonſus X. King of Leon and Caſtile, and yet waged War againſt him with ſo much fury, that Pope Martin IV. excommunicated him upon that account. He uſurped the Kingdom from his two Nephews Alphonſus and Ferdinand, who were the Sons of his elder Brother Ferdinand and Blanche of France the Daughter of St. Lewis. Sancho reigned alone in the year 1284. He was ſirnamed the Brave. Mariana.

SANCHO, the firſt of that Name, King of Navarre, ſirnamed Garcias, was the Son of Garcias Innigue. He married two Wives; and of the ſecond, called Tuta, he had Garcias, who ſucceeded him in 905, and was Father of Sancho II. ſirnamed Abarca. See ABARCA. Sancho III. ſirnamed the Great, ſucceeded Garcias his Father: He was a vertuous Prince, and his Valour added great luſtre to the Crown hepoſſeſs'd. He married Nuna the eldeſt Daughter of Sancho Garcias Earl of Caſtile; ſhe made him Maſter of that State, and bore him a Son called Garcias, who ſucceeded him in the Kingdom of Navarre; and another called Ferdinand, who was King of Caſtile; and Gonzalvo or Gonzales, who was King of Sobrarbe and Ripagorza. Dom Ramiro, who was his Natural Son, obtain'd the Kingdom of Arragon. In the mean time, Sancho, becauſe of his good Fortune and Courage, was ſirnamed the Great, and took upon him the Title of Prince of Spain. Beremond King of Leon, who had married the younger Siſter of Nuna, would diſpute his Right to Caſtile, but was worſted, and fain to loſe part of his Dominions, which were poſſeſs'd by Ferdinand the Son of Sancho, who was married to a Siſter of Beremond. He was kill'd as going on foot like a private Man to Ovedio, in 1034. Garcias IV. his Son, King of Navarre, was Father to Sancho IV. who began his Reign in 1054, and was dethroned by his Couſin German Sancho V. Son of Ramiro I. King of Arragon, in 1074, though others ſay it was by his own Brother, who killed him in Battle, and that Sancho Ramiro was only the Guardian of his Sons. Howſoever this may be, certain it is, this laſt King of Arragon was the Father of Peter I. King of Arragon and Navarre, who had for Succeſſors his Brothers Alphonſus, and afterwards Ramiro called the Monk, as being taken out of the Abbey of St. Pons. Sancho was kill'd at the Siege of Hueſca, in 1094. In the mean time, Garcias the Son of Ramiro of Monſon, and Grandſon of Ramiro Calaborre, Brother to Sancho IV. recover'd Navarre in 1134; and being killed by a fall from his Horſe when Hunting, had for his Succeſſor, in 1150, Sancho VI. ſirnamed the Wiſe. He maintained divers Wars againſt his Neighbours, and after a Reign of forty three years died at Pampelona the 27th. of June, 1194. Sancho VII. ſirnamed the Strong, his Son and Succeſſor, being depoſed, was caſt into Priſon, where he died in 1234. Berengaria, one of his Siſters, was married to Richard I. ſirnamed Cœur de Lion King of England, by whom ſhe had no Children; and his younger Daughter Blanche was married to Theobald V. Earl of Champagne, and was Mother of Theobald V. King of Navarre, after his Uncle Sancho VII. De Marc. Turquett. Favin.

SANCHO, the firſt of that Name, King of Portugal, ſucceeded his Father Alphonſus I. in 1185. He wanted neither Wit nor Courage, whereof he gave many pregnant Inſtances againſt the Kings his Neighbours, as well as the Moors. He died in 1212, being 58 years of age, leaving behind him two Sons (which he had by his Wife Dulcia or Douſe, the Daughter of Raimond Berenger Earl of Barcelona) Alphonſus II. and Ferdinando who was Earl of Flanders in right of his Wife Joanna Daughter of Baudouin Emperor of Conſtantinople, &c. Alphonſus II. was Father of Sancho II. ſirnamed Capel. He had too mean a Spirit for a Prince; and his Wife, the Daughter of a Lord of Biſcay, had one as much too high. His Subjects being weary of him, ſent for Alphonſus Brother of Sancho, who was in France, where he had married Maud Counteſs of Bologne; who being placed upon the Throne, continued the ſucceſſion of the Kings of Portugal: and Sancho being driven from his Kingdom, died at Toledo in 1248, aged 45.

SANCHONIATHON, a Phœnician Hiſtoriographer, Contemporary with Gideon the Iſraelitiſh Judge, and whom they thought to have conſulted. He writ nine Books, containing the ancient Theology and Hiſtory of the Phœnician Antiquities, which was tranſlated into Greek, in Adrian's time, by Philobiblius. It was taken from the Regiſters and Hieroglyphical Inſcriptions on the Temples of Phœnicia and Egypt. We have ſome fragments of it in Porphyry de Abſtinentia, nentia, and Euſebius de Præparatione Evangelica ; but Mr. Dodwell, in his Diſcourſe concerning Sanchoniathon, printed at London in 1681, thinks that there never was any ſuch Hiſtory, and that what is ſo called was counterfeited by ſome Græcian Philoſopher.

SANDA, an Iſland within a mile of Kintyre on the Weſt of Scotland, whither the Danes directed their Fleets when they invaded that Kingdom, becauſe of its convenient Harbours. There is another of this Name amongſt the Orcades, being a very fruitful and pleaſant Iſland. Buchanan.

SANDERS (Nicholas) an Engliſh-man born in the County of Surrey, and Dioceſe of Wincheſter, became Profeſſor of the Canon Law in the Univerſity of Oxford ; and afterwards leaving the Kingdom out of a hatred to the growing Reformation, went to Rome, whence he accompanied Cardinal Hoſius to the Council of Trent, and afterwards to Poland. At his return thence he was choſen Profeſſor of Divinity at Louvain, where he compos'd his Treatiſe de Viſibili Monarchia Eccleſiæ, in eight Books. Pope Pius V. ſent for him to Rome, and Gregory XIII ſent him Nuncio to Spain, and afterwards into Ireland, where he died in a Wood in 1580, after he had endeavoured to raiſe a Rebellion in that Country againſt Queen Elizabeth. Pitſeus his Siſter's Son ſpeaks of him in his Book de Illuſt. Angl. Script. and Dr. Burnet in his Crititiques de Varillas. He wrote likewiſe De Typica & Honoraria Imaginum Adoratione, Lib. 2. Sacrificij Miſſæ ac ejus partium explicatio ; De Origine ac Progreſſu Schiſmatis Anglicanæ, Lib. 3. De Militantis Eccleſiæ Romanæ Poteſtate ; De Martyrio quorundam Temp. Hen. VIII. & Eliz. &c. Cambden in Annal. Reg. Eliz. Burnet's Hiſtory of the Reformation, Part 1. Append. Athen. Oxon.

SANDERSON (Robert) was born at Sheffield, a Market-Town in the County of York, September 18. 1587, and youngeſt Son of Robert Sanderſon of Gilthwait-Hall, Eſq; by Elizabeth one of the Daughters of Richard Carr of Butharwait-Hall in the Pariſh of Ecclesfield, in the County aforeſaid, Gent. He was educated in Lincoln College in Oxford, made Fellow of the College, and Proctor of the Univerſity, Prebendary of Southwell and Lincoln, and Rector of Boothby-Pannel in Lincolnſhire, having ſometime before ſurrender'd his Fellowſhip. Being by Laud Biſhop of London recommended to King Charles I. for an excellent Caſuiſt, he was made Chaplain in Ordinary to His Majeſty, who had a great eſteem for him. In 1636 he took the Degree of Doctor of Divinity at Oxford, performing his Exerciſes to ſatisfaction. He was nam'd by the Parliament in 1643, to aſſiſt at their Aſſembly of Divines, but refuſed to appear : The reaſon of his declining to be preſent is ſuppoſed to be the ſame with that of many other worthy and learned Perſons, i. e. becauſe the Aſſembly was not ſummon'd by the King's Authority. He was made Regius Profeſſor of Divinity of Oxford, where he Read about a year. In the year 1647 he was principally concern'd in drawing up the Univerſity Reaſons againſt the Covenant and Negative Oath, and ſoon after was ſent for by the King to the Iſle of Wight, who adviſ'd with him upon ſeveral Points of importance, and was much ſatisfied with his Judgment and Learning. In 1648 he was turn'd out of his Profeſſorſhip and Canonry of Chriſtchurch by the Parliament Viſitors ; upon which he retir'd to Boothby-Pannel, where he was plunder'd, impriſon'd and wounded ; and though reduced to but indifferent circumſtances, yet was ſo remarkable for his Caſuiſtical Learning and Integrity, that many apply'd to him for the Reſolution of difficult Caſes of Conſcience, ſeveral of which have been preſerv'd and printed for the benefit of Poſterity. He had been in his younger days a Calviniſt ; but Dr. Hammond and himſelf having diſputed the Points of the Quinquarticular Controverſie, he came off from Calvin and Twiſs, and had a better opinion of Arminius, and diſlik'd both the ſupra and Sublapſarian Schemes. Soon after the Reſtauration he was made Biſhop of Lincoln, and was one of the Biſhops who aſſiſted at the Conference between the Conformiſts and Non-Conformiſts in the Savoy. He died on the 29th. of January, 1662, and about a day before deſired his Chaplain Mr. Pullen to give him Abſolution ; at the performing of which Office he pull'd off his Cap, that Mr. Pullen might lay his Hand upon his bare Head. As to his Character, he was a Perſon of an exemplary Life, of an obliging and condeſcenſive Behaviour, and of an unreſenting and diſpaſſionate Temper. As to the qualifications and improvements of his Underſtanding, his Memory was great, and his Judgment ſolid, his Learning methodical and exact ; he was well read in the Fathers and School-men, in the Hiſtory of the Engliſh Nation both ancient and modern, being a conſiderable Antiquary : but his great Talent was Caſuiſtry, in which he is ſuppoſed to be one of the beſt and cleareſt Writers. He wrote Logicæ Artis Compendium ; A Volume of Sermons, in Folio ; Nine Caſes of Conſcience, re-printed in 1685 ; De Juramenti Obligatione Prælectiones Septem, &c. De Obligatione Conſcientiæ Prælectiones Decem ; Epiſcopacy not prejudicial to Regal Power ; His Judgment for Settling the Church in exact Reſolutions of ſundry grand Caſes, printed at the end of a Book entitled Reaſon and Judgment, or Special Remarks of the Life of Dr. Sanderſon, late Biſhop of Lincoln ; Phyſicæ Scientiæ Compendium ; Pax Eccleſiæ, &c. Walton's Life of Biſhop Sanderſon, Athen. Oxon.

SANDEZ, Lat. Sandecum, a City of the Upper Poland, on the River Dunuaic, in the Palatinate of Cracovia, ten Leagues South from the City Cracovia, and eight from Vieliska. It borders upon Hungary and the Carpathian Mountains, is Capital of the neighbouring Country, and very well fortified. Hoffman.

SANDFORD (William) of Askham in the County of Weſtmorland, Eſq; Son of Thomas Sandford, Eſq; and Elizabeth Daughter of William Orfeur of Plumland, in the County of Cumberland, Eſq; This Family appears to be originally of Norman Extraction, the Name being in ſeveral of the Editions of the Roll of Battel-Abbey, mention'd among thoſe that came in with William the Conqueror, ſoon after whoſe Reign they ſettled at Sandford in Weſtmorland, from whom that Town took its Name, but has been parted with many Ages ſince. In 46 Edward III. William de Sandford purchaſed of Robert de Swinburn, Kt. the Manor and part of the Demeſns of Askham in Truſt for his eldeſt Brother Edmond, afterwards Sir Edmond, who married Idonia, Daughter and Heir of Sir Robert Engliſh, Lord of Little Aſhby : Her Grand-mother, Lady to Sir Robert Engliſh, was Daughter and Co-heir to the Lord Morvil. From this Sir Edmond and Idonia, William above-mentioned is the twelfth in a direct Deſcent. The Inter-Marriages of the Sandfords, beſides thoſe already mentioned, are with theſe following ancient and conſiderable Families, (viz.) Thornborough in the Barony of Kendall ; Muſgrave of Muſgrave ; Curwen (Sir Chriſtopher) of Workington ; Warcop of Warcop-Tower, Weſtmorland ; Cubenthorp of Howgill-Caſtle, from whoſe third Son Richard, by Thomas Sandford of Askham, is deſcended the Family of Sandford, now of Howgill-Caſtle aforeſaid ; Hutton of Hutton-John ; Widderington (Sir John) of Widderington-Caſtle in Northumberland ; and Aglionby of Aglionby in Cumberland, Eſq. The preſent William was firſt married to Mildred, eldeſt Daughter and Co-heir to Sir William Rokeby of Skires, in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, Bar. by whom he had a conſiderable Eſtate in the Weſt and Eaſt-Ridings of Yorkſhire. This his firſt Wife dying without Iſſue, he afterwards married Dorothy, ſole Heir of George Smalwood of Upleatham in Cleveland, Gent. by which latter Match he has a plentiful Fortune in Lands lying in Cleveland above-mention'd. By this laſt Marriage he had Iſſue ſeven Daughters, four of which are living, (viz.) Mildred, Dorothy, Elizabeth and Catharine. This Family were great Sufferers for their Loyalty to King Charles I. and King Charles II. Their Arms are, Parted per Cheveron Sable and Ermin, two Boars Heads Cooped in Chief, Or ; the Creſt on a Helmet Mantled ; Gules Doubl'd Argent ; within a Wreath a Boar's Head erected Argent, armed Or ; Gorged with a Dagger.

SANDIUN, a City ſeated on the North of the Iſland Azzabeb, 15 miles from Tua, and 66 Eaſt of Alexandria, and upon the Borders of a Salt Lake 40 miles in length, at the Weſtern end of which is another 20 miles long.

SANDIUS (Chriſtophorus) an Arrian or Socinian, was born at Koningsberg in Pruſſia, and died at Amſterdam in 1680. He was the Author of the Library of the Anti-Trinitarians, being a Collection of the Works of the moſt noted Socinian Writers. In it he gives an Account of their different Ediditions and Tranſlations, and of the occaſion of their Writing, and mentions many Particulars of the Lives of the Authors ; only he ranks ſome Perſons among the Socinians whom others do not take for ſuch. This being a poſthumous Work, ſome beſides him have had a hand in it, and made Additions to it. This Author hath writ ſome Remarks upon Voſſius's Latin Hiſtorians, wherein he gives a proof of his Learning. But his principal Works are his Nucleus Hiſtoriæ Eccleſiaſticæ, being a Collection of all that occurrs in Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory concerning the Arrians ; Interpretationes Paradoxæ in Joannem ; De Origine Animæ ; Scriptura Trinitatis Revelatrix. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

SANDO, Lat. Sandum, a City of Japan, on the North of the Iſland Niphonia. There is alſo a Town of Italy of this Name.

SANDOMER, Lat. Sandomiria, a Town in Upper-Poland, on the Weſel, at the mouth of the River San. It's the Metropolis of a Palatinate of the ſame Name, 28 Poliſh Miles Eaſt of Cracovia, 32 above Warſaw to the South, ſituate on a Hill, and defended with a ſtrong Caſtle, was taken by the Swedes in 1655, and reſtored the next year.

SAN DOMINGO DE LA CALCADA, a little Town of Old Caſtile, near Naſara in Spain, noted for little elſe than the Story of the Cock and Hen, which paſſes for current Truth in that Country, though accompanied with moſt fabulous Circumſtances. The Story runs thus ; A Pilgrim of St. Jago being Condemn'd and Hang'd here for a Theft that he was thought innocent of, his Father went to beg him of the Judge; who ſmiling at his Requeſt, ask'd, Why he beg'd a Man's Life after his Death? To which the Old Man is ſaid to have made this Anſwer; You will not doubt that my Son lives, when you ſee that Cock and Hen that lie in your Diſh get up with their Feathers on. Which happening in that very inſtant, the Judge himſelf ran to cut the Criminal down: And the Clergy removed the Gallows, and plac'd it on the top of their Church, and keep a White Cock and Hen coop'd within an Iron Grate under one of their Altars, which the credulous People believe to be the ſame ſpoken of before, and beg their Feathers as precious Reliques. Bertaut Journal du Voyage d'Eſpagne.

SANDWICH, Lat. Sandwicus Rutupiæ, a Market, Sea-Port and Borough-Town of Eaſtry Hundred, in the North-Eaſt parts of Kent, above eight miles North of Dover, and the ſame diſtance Eaſt of Canterbury. This Town ſprung out of the Ruines of Rutupiæ, an old Roman City, which falling into decay under the Saxons, was entirely ruined by the Danes. Sandwich alſo felt their fury, but recovered it, and in the Norman times was one of the Cinque-Ports. Lewis Dauphin of France burnt it in 1217. Edward III. recovered it from Chriſt-Church in Canterbury, to which it had beengiven by Canutus the Dane, when he was crown'd King of England, and re-united it to the Crown of England. In the Reign of King Henry VI. it was burnt by the French. A great Ship belonging to Pope Paul IV. ſinking in the very Haven, prov'd an incurable miſchief, for that and Sands ſo choak'd up the Paſſage, that it has loſt moſt of his Trade and Reputation; yet it's noted ſtill for the making of Bayz, and giving the Title of Earl to the Right Honourable Edward Montague the preſent Earl of Sandwich, devolv'd to him from his Grand-father Edward Montague created Baron Montague of St. Neots, Viſcount Hinchingbrook and Earl of Sandwich by King Charles II. in 1660; which Earl loſt his life in the Sea-Fight againſt the Dutch, May 29. 1672. There is alſo a Town of this Name in the South-eaſt parts of Dorſetſhire. Here are two Markets a Week, viz. on Wedneſdays and Saturdays. Its diſtance from London is 62 miles.

SANDYS, an ancient Family in Hantſhire, of which Sir John was Knight in Richard the Second's time; but William Sandys, by his eminent Services to the Kings Henry VII. and VIII. advanced the Family in Wealth and Honour, and had a great ſhare in the Victory over the Rebels at Black Heath in Kent. Their ancient Seat was at Vein near Baſingſtoke, in the County of Southampton. This William was made Knight of the Garter, and employ'd by Henry VIII. in his Wars againſt France. In 15 Hen. VIII. he was created Lord Sandys, afterwards made Lord-Chamberlain of the Houſhold, and was one of thoſe who ſubſcribed the Articles againſt Cardinal Woolſey, and the Declaration againſt Pope Clement VII. His Son Thomas ſucceeded, whoſe Son William was one of the Peers who ſate upon the Tryal of Thomas Duke of Norfolk in the 5th. of Queen Elizabeth, employ'd in the Treaty betwixt Her Majeſty and the Dutch, and one of the Peers who tryed Mary Queen of Scots. He was impriſon'd for joining in an Inſurrection made in London by Robert Earl of Eſſex. His Son William ſucceeded, but died without Iſſue, and was ſucceeded by William his Nephew, who alſo died in 1668 without Iſſue, and was ſucceeded by his Brother Henry. Dugdale's Baronage.

SANDYS (Edwin) ſecond Son of Edwin Archbiſhop of York, was born at Worceſter in 1577: He ſtudied at Oxford, and in 1581 was collated to the Prebendſhip of Welwang in the Church of York; which Preferment he reſign'd in 1602, and was the next year Knighted by King James I. who employ'd him in ſeveral Affairs of great truſt and concern: being a Member of Parliament in 1621, he behaved himſelf with ſo much freedom, that the King order'd him and Mr. Selden to be committed to the cuſtody of the Sheriff of London, where they both ſuffer'd above a Month's confinement. He was a Perſon of great Judgment, a good Stateſman, and had a very fine Pen. He wrote, Europæ Speculum, or, A Survey of the State of Religion in the Weſtern part of the World; the moſt correct Edition of which is that printed in 1629, and thoſe afterwards printed from the ſame Copy. He died in 1629, at his Seat at Northbourn in Kent, leaving Fifteen hundred Pounds to the Univerſity of Oxford, for the Endowment of a Metaphyſick-Lecture. Athen. Oxon.

SANDYS (George) youngeſt Son of Edwin Archbiſhop of York, an accompliſh'd Gentleman, well known for his Travels into, and Deſcription of the Holy Land, and other Eaſtern Countries, as alſo for his elegant Tranſlation of the Pſalms into Verſe. He died in 1642. He likewiſe tranſlated Ovid's Metamorphoſes into Verſe, and wrote learned Mythological Commentaries upon 'em.

SANGUINARA, Lat. Aleſus, a ſmall River of St. Peter's Patrimony in Italy. It riſes near the Lake Dibraxiane, and running Southward falls into the Tyrrhenian Sea, 20 miles from Rome, near Civita Vecchia.

SANGUIS JESU CHRISTI, the Name of an Order of Knights in Mantua, inſtituted by Vincentius IV. Duke of that State, in 1608, in honour of our Saviour's Blood, whereof they pretend to have ſome Drops at Mantua. The Collar is made of Ovals, ſome of them ſet long-ways, with this Inſcription, Domine probaſti me; the other broad-ways, on which is repreſented a Crucible in the fire; at the end of it hangs an Oval, in which are repreſented two Angels holding a crowned Chalice, with three drops of Blood, and this Motto, Nihil hoc triſte recepto. Spon. Le Mire.

SANHEDRIN, an Hebrew word borrowed from the Greek Συνέδριον, Synedrion, which ſignifies an Aſſembly of Men ſitting, and more particularly of Judges. There were ſeveral of theſe Sanhedrins in Paleſtina, all of them ſubordinate to the great Sanhedrin which ſate at Jeruſalem. All the Rabbins and moſt Chriſtian Doctors do believe that the erecting of the great Sanhedrin was commanded by God to Moſes, in theſe words, Numb. 11. 16. Gather unto me ſeventy Men of the Elders of Iſrael, &c. and that the Eſtabliſhment of the other ſubordinate Juriſdictions were commanded by thoſe words in Deut. 16. 18. Judges and Officers ſhalt thou make thee in all thy gates which the Lord thy God giveth thee throughout thy Tribes, and they ſhall judge the People with juſt judgment. True it is, that this Divine Command gave them their Sovereign Authority; but 'tis certain, that before this Inſtitution there were Aſſemblies of Old Men amongſt the Jews, to inſpect the Affairs of the People: mention is made of them in Exod. 3. 16. The Judges of the Sanhedrin were called Elders or Senators, becauſe none were choſen but ſuch whom their Age had furniſhed with neceſſary Prudence for that Function. As to the word Sanhedrin, it was ſince bor- of the Greek by the Talmudiſts. The Holy Scripture informs us in divers places, that the Judges, for the moſt part, were to be choſen out of the Tribe of Levi, i. e. from out of the Prieſts and Levites, yet without excluding thoſe of the other Tribes that were eminent for Wiſdom and Piety, 2 Chron. 19. 8. The High-Prieſt ordinarily preſided in the Sanhedrim; yet was not the Honour ſo annexed to them, but that others ſometimes took that Place. Some ſay, that the Prieſts and Laicks that belonged to this Council made up but one Body, and all of them equally took cognizance of any matter that came before them; ſo that there were not two ſorts of Cauſes, whereof the one belonged to the Juriſdiction of the Prieſts, the other to that of the Laicks, which they prove from Deut. 17. 9. and 2 Chron. 19. 8. Yet we ſee it is order'd in the ſequel of the ſame Chapter, ver. 11. that Amariah the High-Prieſt was to preſide in all matters of the Lord; and Zebadiah, the Ruler of the Houſe of Judah, ſhould have the ſuperintendance over the King's matters. But to this they anſwer, That the meaning of this paſſage is, that Amariah was to give counſel in Caſes belonging to the Divine Law, and Zebadiah in Politick and Civil Matters. Beſides the Prieſts and Levites, and ſome of the moſt worthy Perſons of the other Tribes, which compos'd the Sanhedrin, we are inform'd by Joſephus, there were alſo a ſort of Perſons called Scribes. Grotius and Valeſius are of opinion, that theſe

Scribes took their Places in the Sanhedrin, as Aſſiſtants, to adviſe the Judges in difficult Caſes of Law, wherein they were very knowing. Others ſuppoſe that they were no more than Clerks of the Council, and were only admitted to ſit there in that quality, and that they were never received as Senators till for their Knowledge and Merit they were found worthy to be choſen Judges or Senators. We are to take notice, that the Prince of the Senate was not comprehended in the number of the Seventy Elders; ſo that the Sanhedrin always conſiſted of Seventy one Judges. The Preſident was called Naſs, that is, Prince; and the moſt ancient of the Senators, who had the next Place in Honour to him, was called Ab-Bethdin, that is to ſay, Father of the Conſiſtory. The Place where this Senate firſt aſſembled was Shiloh, a Country Town or Village near Jeruſalem; but afterwards their place of Seſſion was fix'd at Jeruſalem, in the South-ſide of the Temple, in a Fret-work-ceiled Hall, which was called Liſcat-Hagazith, that is to ſay, The Stone-Chamber, and the Thalmudiſts call it Baſilica. We are next to enquire what was the Authority of this Senate, according to the differences of Time. During the time of the Judges, they had the care and management of all the great Affairs of the Nation; the Judges, to ſpeak properly, having only the Command of their Armies, as Captains-General of the Commonwealth. Neither was their Power diminiſhed under the Jewiſh Kings, it being little inferiour to that of the Prince. Accordingly there were ſeveral Cauſes of which the Kings took no cognizance at all; nay, the Kings were not ſo much as admitted to the Senate, except David and thoſe of his Race, who being of a milder Temper, and more moderate than the Kings of Iſrael, permitted them an abſolute liberty of ſpeaking their Opinions. During the Captivity of Babylon, the Senate ſtill retained their Authority, and had the Power of Condemning to Death, if we may believe the Hebrew Authors, who aſſure us that the Senators were inveſted with this Power by the Kings of Babylon and Perſia. After this Captivity the Kings of Perſia confirmed to the Jews this their Sovereign Power, and the free exerciſe of Judicature, which they continued to enjoy till the Reign of Antiochus; who having ſubdued the City of Jeruſalem, exerted his utmoſt Endeavours for the Deſtruction of the Jewiſh Nation, together with the Authority of their Senate. But the valiant Maccabees reſtored the exerciſe of their Religion and Judicature; yea, ſo great was the Power of the Sanhedrin at that time, that the Royal Scepter was put into the King's hands in the Fret-work Chamber where the Senators kept their Seſſions. The Sanhedrin continued much in the ſame flouriſhing condition until Pompey; but he having conquer'd Judea, and reduced it to the form of a Roman Province, the Splendor of the Sanhedrin began to decline. Gabinius the Roman Preſident of Syria erected four Places of Judicature in Judea; and tho' theſe Tribunals were inferiour to the Sanhedrin, yet they deprived it of the cognizance of ſeveral Caſes. The other Preſidents that ſucceeded continued to leſſen the Power of the Jewiſh Sanhedrin as much as they could, which about the time of Auguſtus loſt the Power of the Sword, as the Jews themſelves avow'd at the Paſſion of our Saviour, when they ſaid, It is not lawful for us to put any man to death, John 18 31. After that the Romans had deprived the Senate of their Power of Life and Death, Herod ruined the Order of their Election, and overturn'd the whole Conſtitution of the Sanhedrin; he put all the Senators to death except Sameas, and raiſed to that Dignity whomſoever he pleaſed, without obſerving any Law or Formality. It will not be impertinent to add ſomewhat here of the Authority of the great Sanhedrin. For beſides its Power to take cognizance of all great Matters, it was by the Direction and Conſent of this Aſſembly that a King was choſen before Royalty became hereditary; nor could the King undertake a War for enlarging his Territories without the Approbation of this Senate, whoſe Power reach'd even to the Tryal of a High-Prieſt, a Tribe fallen into Apoſtacy, or a falſe Prophet. And Cardinal Baronius adds, that it was above the King, and could Judge him; which he proves by the Example of Herod, who was ſummoned before the Sanhedrin, according to Joſephus Antiq. lib. 14. cap. 17. but Herod was then no more but Governour of Galilee, and not King of the Jews. Now granting ſome of the Rabbi's have aſſign'd this extraordinary Power to the Sanhedrin, 'tis well known they were generally prejudiced againſt Kings, and extravagantly fond of their Liberty; however, ſome of 'em have had the ingenuity to own, that the King was accountable to none but God, and that the Senate or Sanhedrin had no Authority to ſit in Judgment upon him: In ſhort, all the paſſages of Deuteronomy and the Chronicles, which give a particular Account of the Privileges of this Sanhedrin, never mention'd the leaſt word of its Authority to Try their Kings; neither is there one Text of Scripture to prove that their Princes were ever cited before this Aſſembly to juſtifie their Adminiſtration. Selden de Synedriis. P. Simon obſerves, That after the Jews return from Babylon to Jeruſalem they held one of theſe great Aſſemblies, which, according to them, was compos'd of Twelve Notables or Perſons of Figure, over which Eſdras ſirnam'd the Scribe preſided as Chief; and at this, they ſay, were preſent the Prophets Haggai, Zacharias, Malachy, with other great Men inſpired by God, as Daniel, Nehemias, Mardocheus, Zarobabel, Azarias, Miſael and Ananias. He adds, That there was nothing ſo great in the Republick of the Hebrews as this Sanhedrin, which had Power, as the Jews ſpeak, to make Sajeg Latora, that is, to fence in the Laws, becauſe this Aſſembly was Maſter of the Expoſition of the Text, the People being generally oblig'd to follow their Interpretation. In which ſence R. Moſes calls the Sanhedrin, The Foundation of the unwritten Law, and the Prop of the true Doctrine. They that refuſed to ſubmit to its Deciſions, were look'd upon as Rebels, and Excommunicated. Some Proteſtant Authors have been of opinion, that Moſes eſtabliſh'd the Sanhedrin only for his own time. See R. Simon's Anſwers to ſome Holland Divines, printed at Roterdam in 1686, where he examines at length the Reaſons of theſe Proteſtants, which is likewiſe his method in his Anſwer to the Defence of theſe Dutch Divines printed in 1687. Monſieur Le Clerk refers the Reader to the Sentiments of the Holland Divines, and to their Anſwer to Father Simon, where the Perpetuity and Infallibility of the Sanhedrin is ſo entirely overthrown, that Father Simon could not advance any tolerable Plea in Defence of it. Ferrand Reflections ſur la Religion Chrêtienne. Beſides the great Sanhedrin, there were at Jeruſalem two leſſer Aſſemblies, which conſiſted of Twenty three Perſons a-piece, according to the Rabbins. The one of theſe was kept on the Mount of the Temple, otherwiſe at the Gate of Shuſhan; and the other in the Court of Iſrael, otherwiſe at the Gate of Nicanor. The Jews called the firſt Court the Mount of the Temple: Heathens, Excommunicated and Unclean Perſons, had leave to come into this Court; but might not paſs any farther. Next to this was the Court of the Women, and then the Court of Iſrael. And a like Convention of Three and twenty Judges there was to be in every Place which contained One hundred and twenty Inhabitants or more. This number of Twenty three Judges is ſpecified by the Rabbins, but Joſephus only ſpeaks of Seven Magiſtrates, and Fourteen Levites, which make only the number of Twenty one, and we have reaſon to prefer his Authority before that of the Talmudiſts. R. Jochanan tells us, that no body was admitted to be one of the Sanhedrin, except he underſtood ſeventy Languages, and R. Ben-Maimon ſaith they were to underſtand many Languages, to the end they might not ſtand in need of Interpreters. But it ſeems more probable, that the Judges were only obliged to underſtand the Latin and Greek Tongues, as Selden as well as Rambam aſſures us. Beſides theſe, there was alſo amongſt the Jews another Sanhedrin, conſiſting only of Three Judges; and this kind of Juriſdiction was appropriated to thoſe Places which conſiſted of leſs than One hundred and twenty Inhabitants: Theſe had no Power to give Sentence of Death, for to this the compleat number of One and twenty Judges was required. No Man could be received into any of theſe Sanhedrins without being a Jew originally. The Ordination of a Senator or Judge was performed by the Impoſition of Hands, with pronouncing of theſe words, I Ordain thee, be thou Ordained; and ſometimes by a Letter ſent to the Party elect, wherein the ſame words were incerted. The Rabbins tell us, that Moſes was Author of the firſt kind of Ordination, and that R. Juda Benbaba (who lived till the Reign of Adrian) invented the ſecond way, in favour of thoſe that were abſent.

SAN JAGO DE GUATIMALA, a City of North-America, in Guatimala a Province of New Spain, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Mexico. There is alſo another City of the ſame Name in the Iſle of Cuba, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of San Domingo, ſituate in the Eaſtern-part of the Iſland, with an excellent Haven, having formerly been the Capital of the Iſland; but the preference is now given to the Havana, which is the Reſidence of the Governour.

SANLECQUE (Jaques de) was born at Cauleu in the County of Bologne, in Picardy. He applied himſelf from his youth to the cutting of Stamps, and the ſtriking of Moulds which ſerve for the caſting the Letters or Characters of Printers: And he was ſo skilful at it, that he was look'd upon as the only Man that was able to make the Syriack, Samaritan, Armenian, Chaldean and Arabick Characters that were uſed in the Impreſſion of the Royal Bible, printed at Antwerp. He died at Paris in the 90th. year of his age, Novemb. 20. 1648. He left a Son of his own Name, born at Paris, who applying himſelf to the ſtudy of Languages, underſtood the Hebrew, Greek, Latin, Engliſh, German, Spaniſh and Italian Tongues, and could play on all ſorts of Muſical Inſtruments without being inſtructed by any one. He undertook to cut Stamps, and make Moulds for all manner of Muſical Notes, of which he hath left maniſeſt Proofs of his incredible Labour and Diligence. He died at Paris in the 46th year of his age, the 23d. of December, 1660.

SAN LUCAR DE BARRAMEDA, a City of Spain in Andaluſia, which ſtands at the mouth of the River Guadalquivir upon the Atlantick Ocean, called in Latin Fanum Sancti Luciferi, and ſome take it to be the Lux dubia of Strabo. It is of large extent, but without Walls; and the entrance to it by Sea is ſomewhat dangerous by reaſon of ſome Rocks that lie before it. At the mouth of the Haven is The Golden Tower ſo called, and a Caſtle built on the top of a Rock. It is adorn'd with very fine Churches, and a great Piazza, with a curious Fountain in the midſt, whoſe Baſon is of white Marble.

SAN MAGNO, a Principality of the Kingdom of Naples, in the Hither Province.

SAN-MARINO, a Town and ſmall Republick of Italy, lying within the Eccleſiaſtical State. The Italians call it Republichetta, upon the account of the narrow extent of its Juriſdiction; notwithſtanding which, the Style of this Republick in her Letters to that of Venice, according to Boccaline, runs thus. Alla Noſtra Cariſſima Sorella, la Sereniſſima Republica di Venetia. The Town ſtands upon a Hill, and is by ſome Author's call'd Acer Mons.

SANNAZARO. Actius Sanazarius, an Italian of great Wit and noble Birth, and an excellent Poet, famous for his Latin and Italian Poems, but more eſpecially for that De Partu Virginis, which is look'd upon as one of his Maſter-pieces. He was Author alſo of a noted Epigram in praiſe of the City of Venice. He died for grief, at the News that Philibert Prince of Orange, General of the Emperor's Army, had ruined the beſt part of his Country-Houſe, in the Year 1530. He was buried in the Church of a Farm or Country-Houſe he had at the foot of Poſelipo. He got his Tomb placed behind the Altar, notwithſtanding that the Statue of Apollo and Minerva ſtood on the top of it; but to hide this Profanation, they put the Name of David over the Statue of Apollo, and over that of Minerva the Name of Judith. His Latin Poems were Printed at Amſterdam 1689. Iſaac Bullard.

SAN SALVADOR, the Capital City of Braſil in South America, ſituate upon the North ſide of the Bay called by the Portugueſe Bahia de todos los Santos. This City is about 200 Rods diſtant from the Haven, ſtanding upon the top of a Hill, which is ſo ſteep on the ſide that faceth the Sea, that it is inacceſſible, ſo that they are fain to lift up their Merchandiſes thither by the help of Cranes, or take a great compaſs with them to bring them to the City. The Churches of it are fair, and neatly kept, eſpecially the Cathedral, and that of the Jeſuits. The Convents of the Carmelites and Cordeliers are alſo very fine Buildings. This City was made a Biſhops See in 1550, but is now advanc'd to an Archbiſhoprick. The Vice-Roy of Braſil for the King of Portugal has his Reſidence here. In the Year 1623 the Hollanders ſurprized this City, plundred it, and burnt all the Warehouſes: the Booty they got here was very great, which made a great part of the Dutch Soldiers to deſert, as having ſufficiently enrich'd themſelves. The King of Spair, who at that time was King of Portugal, being inform'd of the taking of this City, ſent thither 7500 Men under the Command of Dom Frederick de Toledo, who forc'd the Hollanders to ſurrender it again upon compoſition, before they had poſſeſt it a whole Year. The Portugueſe, to prevent the like Surpriſes for the future, have built a Fort between the Sea and their Warehouſes, and another that commands the Entrance of the City. The Haven is alſo ſecured by ſeveral Towers and Redoubts.

SAN SALVADOR, the capital City of the Kingdom of Congo in Africa, ſituate in the Province Pemba, and was formerly call'd Congo. The Portugueſe changed this Name to San Salvador, in acknowledgment of a memorable Victory God vouchſafed to 36 of their Soldiers, who being join'd with ſome of the Country Troops belonging to the King of Congo, gave a ſignal Defeat to a very numerous Army of Rebels, commanded by the King's Brother, who were reſolv'd to dethrone their Lawful Sovereign, becauſe he was turn'd Chriſtian. This City ſtands upon a Hill ten Leagues from the Sea, is of a large Extent, and very populous. The Houſes ſtand all by themſelves at diſtances one from another: and becauſe the Stones of the Country fall to duſt when they are cut or ſquar'd, therefore they build their Houſes of Wood, and the Branches of Trees faſtned together with Mortar. Its Cathedral, a Biſhops See, is built of Stone brought from abroad. The City formerly lay open, but is now ſurrounded with a Wall of the ſame Materials they build their Houſes with. Marmol.

SAN SEVERINO, Septempeda, a City of the Eccleſiaſtical State in Italy, in the Marquiſate of Ancona, being a Biſhops See under the Archbiſhop of Fermo. It is built by the River Potenza, ſix Leagues from Tolentino to the Weſt, and ſixteen from Macerata to the South Weſt.

SANSON (Nicolas) a Famous French Geographer, born at Abbeville in Picardy in 1599; who, after he had finiſhed his Studies, betook himſelf to Merchandize; but having met with conſiderable Loſſes, quitted that calling; and coming to live at Paris in 1627, he became very famous there, as an Engineer and Mathematician. Some time after he was made the French Kings Geographer, and beſtowed his time in making Maps, which are eſteemed the beſt. He was ſo indefatigable in his labour at this Work, that he made almoſt 300 large Maps; and cauſed alſo an hundred Methodical Tables to be graven concerning the Diviſion of the Dominions of Chriſtian Princes. He hath alſo writ, Remarks upon the ancient Gauls in quarto, four ſmall Treatiſes of the four Parts of the World, in the ſame Volume, being an Explication of the Maps he had join'd with them; two Tables of the Cities and Places, which occur in the Maps of the Rhine and Italy: A Deſcription of the Roman Empire, in ſeveral Tables, as likewiſe thoſe of France, Spain, Italy, Germany, and the Britiſh Iſles, which are very commodious, together with the ancient Itineraries. He writ alſo, an account of the Antiquity of Abbeville, which engag'd him in a Conteſt with divers Learned Men, eſpecially with F. Labbe a Jeſuit. He made alſo A Sacred Geography, divided into two Tables, and a Geographical Index of the Holy Land. He was minded to have publiſhed ſome other Works, having collected a great deal of Matter for to make an Atlas of his own Maps; but his watching and great Pains caſt him into a weakneſs, whereof he languiſhed a long time, and after many Relapſes died at Paris in 1667, being 68 Years of Age. It was expected, that his two Sons he left behind him would have publiſhed ſome of their Fathers Collections; but they have done little as yet in reference thereto, except ſome Maps which his Son William hath corrected and enlarged; and ſince the Year 1690, there have been 120 fine Maps of his Publiſh'd at Paris, and Amſterdam.

SANTABARENUS THEODORUS, Abbot of a Monaſtery of Conſtantinople about 877, was the Son of one Santabarenus, who being accuſed of Witchcraft, made his Eſcape from Conſtantinople to Bulgaria, where he abjur'd his Faith. Theodore then but very young, being much eſteem'd by Prince Bardas, was put into a Monaſtery, where he afterwards took the Habit, and was made Prieſt, and then Abbot by Photius. This Santabarenus prov'd naught, and practis'd what he had learnt of his Fathers Art with ſuch Addreſs, that he made the Effects of it paſs for divine Favours, perſuading ſome that he had the Gift of Prophecy as well as that of working Miracles. Growing Famous he was ſent for to Court, and preſented to the Emperor Baſilius, who being extreamly afflicted for the Death of his Son Conſtantius, he conjured Santabarenus to obtain him the Favour of ſeeing him once more: Whereupon this Hypocrite making ſhew to prepare himſelf by Prayer and Faſting for this Miracle, is ſaid to have performed the thing, and ſhewn the Emperor his Son's Apparition by his wicked Art; which ſo confirmed Baſilius in his good opinion of him, that he believed whatever he ſaid. Santabarenus having gain'd this Point, and obſerving that Leo the Emperors Son had no great Kindneſs for him, uſed this Stratagem to be revenged of him; he perſuaded him that there was an unknown Perſon deſigned his Father's Death, which he ſaid he might prevent if he kept cloſe to him with a Dagger under his Coat. The credulous young Prince promiſing to comply, the Impoſtor goes ſtrait to the Emperor, and acquaints him, that he was aſſured by a Revelation from Heaven, that Leo intended to mount the Throne by a Parricide; and as proof of what he ſaid, would be found with a Dagger next day hid under his Coat; which being found accordingly, the Emperor fell into ſuch a Paſſion, that he Commanded his Son ſhould be confin'd, and would not hear him ſpeak a Word in his own Defence. Leo ſetled upon the Throne after his Father's Death, reſolved to puniſh this Treachery, ſent ſome Troops to fetch Santabarenus from his Archbiſhoprick of Spatras to Conſtantinople, whence after he was publickly whip'd, and his Eyes put out, he was baniſh'd to the remoteſt parts of the Eaſt, Curopalat. Maimbourg. Hiſt. du Schiſme des Grecs. Cedren.

SANTACH BEG, Lord of the Standard, a Turkiſh Officer ſo called, having a Standard delivered him when made Governour of any Province, which is carried before him when he goes to War. Leunclav. Hoffm.

SANT AGATHA DELLI GOTI, or di Gotti, in Latin, Agathopolis or St. Agatha Gothorum, a City of the Kingdom of Naples, in the further Principality, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Benevento. Alſo a Principality of the ſame Kingdom in the further Calabria near to Reggio. Alſo a Dutchy in that Kingdom in the Capitanata. In former time alſo there was another Agathopolis, which was a City of Thrace, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Adrianople.

SANTA MARIA, in Latin Pandataria, a ſmall Iſle of Italy, in the Tyrrhene Sea, belonging to the Kingdom of Naples, whither Auguſtus baniſh'd his Daughter Julia for her looſe Life. Agrippina the Mother of Nero ſuffer'd the ſame Deſtiny. And it was to this place alſo that the Emperor Domitian baniſhed Flavia Domicilla, the Wife of his Uncle Flavius Clemens, becauſe ſhe had embraced the Chriſtian Religion with her Husband. Tacit. lib 14. Euſeb. lib. 3. cap. 17.

SANTA MARIA DEL DRAGONA, a Principality of the Kingdom of Naples in Terra di Lavoro. There is another Santa Maria di Leuca, which is a City and Biſhoprick in Italy, in la Terra d'Otranto a Province of the Kingdom of Naples.

SANT ANGELO DE LONGOBARDI, in Latin Fanum Sancti Angeli Longobardorum, & Angelopolis, a Town of Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, with a Biſhops See, under the Metropolis of Conza.

SANT ANGELO IN VADO, Fanum Sancti Angeli in Vado, and in ancient times called Tiphernum Metaurum, a City of the Eccleſiaſtical State in the Dutchy of Urbin, which formerly was a Biſhops See, but Pope Urban VIII. united it to the Archbiſhoprick of Urbin its Metropolis.

SANTA SEVERINA, Siberena, a City and Principality of the Kingdom of Naples in the Further Calabria. The City, though but ſmall, is an Archbiſhops See, being ten Miles diſtant from the Ionian Sea, twelve from Crotone, and forty from Coſenza. Stands upon a ſteep Rock by the River. It is of great Antiquity. The Roman Town being burnt by the Goths in 543. in 1198 a Caſtle was built here, which occaſioned the rebuilding of the City in 1598. Pope Sixtus V. made it a Biſhops See.

SANTEN, a large Town in the Dutchy of Cleave, two Leagues Weſt of Weſel in the way to Nimeguen, and two North of Gelderland. It is under the Elector of Brandenburgh, and noted for the fineſt Church in all that Dutchy, wherein are above thirty Altars, with the Hiſtory of the Goſpel cut exquiſitely in Timber; they have abundance of Relicks here, and among other things pretend to a Manuſcript of St. Paul's writing. St. Norbet the Founder of the Order of the Præmonſtratenſian Monks was born here. Hoffm. Baudr. &c.

SANTERINI, an Iſle of the Archipelago on the Coaſt of Europe, which in former times was called Thera, and not Theraſia, as ſome would have it, for this latter is an Iſle that lies near to the former towards the Weſt, having been ſeparated from it by an Earthquake, according to the Teſtimony of Pliny and Pauſanias. The Inhabitants call it Gozi, but ſome Italians have given it the name of Santa Irene, whence by Corruption came the name Santerini. The Soil of it is very dry, without Brooks or Springs, ſo that the Inhabitants are fain to drink Rain-water, there being no other to be got there. It produceth no Corn beſides Barly and Millet. There are ſome Vines up and down in the Iſland, of which they make Wine, notwithſtanding the great Dryneſs of the Ground. Almoſt a Tenth part of the Inhabitants follow the Rites of the Latin Church under the Conduct of a Biſhop, the reſt are ſubject to a Greek Biſhop. It is thirty Miles in circuit, and ſixty Miles diſtant from Candia to the North. The Sea of the Haven, and all along the Coaſt, appears black, becauſe of the Mines of Brimſtone that are under this Iſle, which are kindled from time to time, and caſt out Flames at a great diſtance, mixed with Pumice-ſtones, which are forced up into the Air with ſo much Violence, that they make little leſs noiſe than the diſcharge of a Cannon. About fifty Years ſince, theſe Sulphur-mines caſt up ſuch a prodigious quantity of Pumice-ſtone, that part of the Archipelago was covered with them, and many Havens ſtop'd up. It is reported that Alexander the Great cauſed the Sea about this Iſle to be ſounded, and found it bottomleſs. The Inhabitants drive a Trade with their Wines and Linens, and are Tributary to the Grand Seignior. Thevenot.

SANTERNO, Lat. Vaprinus, a River of Tuſcany in Italy, which riſes in the Appennine, flows Northward by Emola, and empties it ſelf into the Po, below Argenta, twenty Miles Weſt of Ravenna.

SANTERRE, Sanguiterſa, a Country in Picardy, between Vermandois to the Eaſt, and Amiens to the Weſt, in which are the Towns of Peronne, Roye, Neſle and Mont de Dier.

SANTES PAGNINUS, a Dominican of Lucca, a great Linguiſt, and chiefly verſed in the Oriental Tongues, he publiſhed a Verſion of the Bible, an Iſagoge ad Sacras Literas, and Theſaurus Linguæ Sanctæ. He died at Lyons, An. 1541. His Works were publiſh'd there. Sixt. Senen. Leand. Albert. Poſſevin.

SANTO, Lat. Xanthus, called by the Europeans Il Samandro, a City and River of Phrygia in Aſia Minor, which has its Source in Mount Ida, and waſhing the Ruins of the ancient Troy, diſgorges it ſelf into the Archipelago.

SANTONES, an ancient People of France, whence the Province now called Saintonge takes its name. They were bounded by Poictou on the North, Engoleſm on the Eaſt, Aquitain on the South, and the Aquitain Ocean on the Weſt: They alſo inhabited the Country of Aunis, the Iſle of Rhe, &c. The Chief Town is Saintes, deſcribed in its place. Baud.

SANTONS. The name of a ſort of Monks amongſt the Turks. The Turkiſh Monks are diſtinguiſh'd by their different Habits, their way of living, and their different Rules or Inſtitutions. There are ſome of them that make a Vow of Poverty, others of Chaſtity, and others of perpetual Faſting and Abſtinence; others wholly apply themſelves to a Contemplative Life, and every one carries about him the marks of his Profeſſion. Thoſe who wear Feathers on their Heads, do thereby denote that they are Perſons who addict themſelves to Meditation, and have Revelations: Thoſe who wear Cloaths patch'd up of pieces of Cloth of different colours, do thereby ſignifie their Vow of Poverty: Thoſe who wear ſomething at their Ears, denote their Obedience and Submiſſion to the Spirit, who tranſports them in Raptures and Extaſies: Thoſe who wear Chains about their Necks and Arms, declare the Vehemence of the Spirit that animates them. They have alſo amongſt them a kind of Religious that live in Community together, and Hermits who live in deſert places. There be alſo a ſort of Mendicants amongſt them, that live on Alms: And laſtly, there are ſome that wholly apply themſelves to ſerve their Neighbours. Fa. Simon his Remarks upon a Journey to Mount Libanus.

SANTORIUS, or Sanctorius, a Profeſſor of Phyſick in the Univerſity of Padua, who after a long Study of Nature, learnt that the Superfluities of Food, being retain'd in the Body, were the principal Cauſe of all Diſeaſes; and that a free Tranſpiration through the Pores, was the greateſt help in this caſe, that Phyſick could afford. And having found out divers Reaſons to convince others of this Truth, he digeſted them into many Aphoriſms, with which he made up a ſmall Treatiſe, entitled, Medicina Statica, which is well eſteemed of by the moſt Learned of this Age. He ſhews in this Treatiſe, that this Tranſpiration is ſo neceſſary, that it is in a manner impoſſible without it, to reſtore ſick Perſons to their Health; foraſmuch as this way being ſtop'd, the Humours that ſhould have exhal'd through the Pores, become corrupted, and that almoſt all Diſeaſes do proceed from this Putrefaction, which is not only imparted to the Spirits, but alſo to the Blood, and all the inward and outward parts of the Body. And to give a more exact Idea of the Advantage that comes from free Tranſpiration, he ſaith, that if a Man Eats and Drinks in a days time the quantity of eight Pound, he tranſpires five of them or thereabouts; which Tranſpiration is no ſooner ſtop'd, but all the Functions of Nature are diſordered; and that if the natural or ſome foreign Heat do not expel by the Pores thoſe Humours that are the cauſe of an Ague or Fever, it then becomes Malignant: That the Aliments which are not well digeſted, by the long ſtay which they make in the parts, cauſe an Obſtruction of the Pores, which Obſtruction afterwards cauſeth the Corruption of thoſe Aliments, whence proceed laſſitude, reſtleſneſs of Spirit, and the extraordinary Heavineſs and Torpor of the Body. That the want of Tranſpiration, when the extream parts of the Body are cold in a Fever, are the cauſe of Death, except Nature or Art do heat them again. That old Men prolong their Lives by much Spitting, but as ſoon as they are no longer in a Condition to bring up their Flegm, theſe Excrements incapable of being concocted, and conſequently of being digeſted, do hinder Tranſpiration, whence follows Suffocation and Death. That this Tranſpiration alone is more copious than all other Evacuations put together. That the ſudden Death of young People, though ſober and temperate in their Diet, muſt be attributed to this want of Tranſpiration. The Sieur Cuſac, much taken with this Doctrine, ſpent ſome Years to find an External Remedy proper to procure Tranſpiration, and had the good Fortune to hit upon a particular Preparation of Spirit of Wine, with which he performed great Cures. This new way of Cure, without examining the Patient's Conſtitution, or the cauſe of Diſtempers, has made great Noiſe in the World, and has put the Author upon writing a Treatiſe of the Tranſpiration of ſuch Humours as occaſion Sickneſſes. Memoires du Temps.

SANTOS, the principal City of the Province of St. Vincent in Braſil, forty Leagues from the River January to the South, four from the Atlantick Ocean, and from St. Vincent to the North. It ſtands upon a Bay that will admit a great Ship to load and unload. In 1591 it was taken by Sir Thomas Cavendiſh, plundred and kept two Months; ſince that the Portugueſe have fortified it on all ſides but that which is waſhed by the River, which is half a League over, and five Fathom deep, and they have added two Forts for its Security. In thoſe times it had a hundred Houſes, a Pariſh-Church and two Monaſteries. See St. Vincent, Laet. Page 579.

SAONE, Savona, Araz, a great River in France, it riſeth out of Mount Vauge between Lorrain and the County of Burgundy, about twelve Miles from the Fountains of the Moſelle, and runs through the County and Dutchy of Burgundy, where being increaſed by the Waters of the River Dous [Dubis] it paſſeth by Auxonne, St. Jean de Laone, Bellegarde, Verdun, Chalon, Tournus, Macon, divides the City of Lyons into two parts, and falls into the Rhoſne a little below that City. Some Authors think that this River was called Sangona from the Blood of Martyrs which was ſo abundantly ſhed in it during the great Maſſacre of the Chriſtians at Lyons in the Reign of Marcus Aurelius, that it changed the colour of its Waters. On this River Cæſar defeated part of the Helvetian Forces going to invade Gaul. Papire Maſſon. deſcr. Flum. Gall.

SAPATE, a ſort of Feaſt, in which it was the Cuſtom to make Preſents, without letting thoſe that receiv'd them know whence they came, that they might be the more agreeably ſurpriz'd. This Feaſt was invented by the Spa- niards, who always keep it on the fifth of December, upon St. Nicholas's Eve; from Spain, the Cuſtom paſs'd into Savoy, and from thence to France, where it has been ſince kept with great Magnificence. Memoirs du Temps.

SAPIENZA, an Iſle in the Mediterranean, of old called Spagia, over againſt Modon a City of the Morea, on the South ſide of it, and hath given its name to the Sea that waſheth thoſe parts. This Iſle is well known to the Pyrates of Barbary, who skulk behind it when they are lying in wait to ſeize the Veſſels that come from the Gulf of Venice or Sicily. P. Coronelli Deſcription de le Morée. Spon. Voyage in 1675.

SAPOR, or Sapores I. of that name, King of Perſia, was the Succeſſor of Artaxerxes about the Year 242. He was a very cruel Prince, delighted in ſhedding Blood, and deſtroying of Cities. He ravaged and laid waſte Meſopotamia, Syria, Cilicia, and divers other Provinces of the Roman Empire, and had it not been for the vigorous Reſiſtance of Odenat Captain and afterwards King of the Palmyrenians, he had overrun all the Eaſt. The Emperor Gordianus forced him to retire into his own Country; but was ſoon after murthered by Philip, who having invaded the Imperial Throne, made Peace with Sapor, who took the City of Antioch in 252. And ſeven Years after defeated and took the Emperor Valerian Priſoner by the Treachery of one of his Commanders called Macrinus, and made uſe of him as a Footſtool to mount his Horſe. Neither was this ſufficient to this barbarous Wretch, but he cauſed him to be flea'd alive, and in this condition caſt Salt upon him. Odenates and his Wife Zenobia took from him Niſibe, Carres, and other places, and often defeated his Forces, and ſent to the Emperor Gallienus the moſt conſiderable of his Commanders they had taken in Battle. Sapor died in 273. after a Reign of 31 Years. Pollio in Vit. Trigint. Tyran. Agathias, &c.

SAPOR II. was declared King when he was yet in the Cradle. Conſtantine the Great being informed that he had raiſed a great Army, with deſign to attack Niſibe, march'd againſt him, but died on the way in 337. His Son Conſtantius the next Year after, ſent an Army to oppoſe Sapor, as he did likewiſe in 345 and 349, when there happened a Bloody Battle between both Armies near the Town of Singar in the night-time. In 359 the Perſians took the City Amida in Meſopotamia, after a Siege of 73 days, having firſt defeated the Roman Army commanded by Sabinianus. Sapor in the mean time raiſed an horrible Perſecution againſt the Chriſtians, (the Jews and Heathens having repreſented them as Enemies to the State) and leaving them to the mercy of their Perſecutors, they ſpared neither Sex, Age nor Condition. Conſtantius was always unſucceſsful in his Attempts againſt him, and Jovianus was fain to conclude a Peace with him, by which he delivered to him Niſibe and ſeveral other Cities. He renewed the War again in 370, by making an Invaſion into Armenia, but with ſmall Succeſs, and died in the Year 380. Am. Marcel. Sozomen.

SAPOR III. ſucceeded in 384, his Father Artaxerxes, who was the Succeſſor of Sapor II. he was neither ſo Cruel nor Succeſsful as his Predeceſſors, and was obliged to ſend Ambaſſadors to Theodoſius the Great, to deſire a Peace. He died in 389.

SAPPHO, called by ſome the Tenth Muſe, was born in the Iſle Lesbos, and Contemporary with Steſichorus and Alceus in the XLV Olympiad, i.e. ſix hundred Years before the Birth of our Saviour. She compoſed many Poems that were the wonder of ancient times, of which we have nothing at preſent, beſides an Hymn to Venus, and an Ode inſcribed to a young Girl ſhe loved, preſerved by Dionyſius Halicarnaſſeus, and Longinus the Rhetorician. Some Authors report that Sappho caſt her ſelf head-long into the Sea, becauſe ſhe was rejected by her Lover Phaon. Sapphick Verſes took their name from her. Plutarch. Euſeb. Lilius Girald, &c.

SARA, a River that runs into the Moſelle at the City Treves or Trier. There is another River of the ſame name in Campagnia di Romana in Italy, which taking its courſe through Terra di Lavoro a Province of Naples, empties it ſelf into the Tyrrhene Sea between Volturno and Sinueſſa.

SARA, a City of the Great Armenia. Alſo another of Illyria.

SARAH Wife of Abraham, and the Daughter of Haran, followed her Husband into Egypt, where paſſing for his Siſter, the King of the Country ſent to take her from him, and would have married her, but there happening great Calamities in his Family and Kingdom, he ſent for Abraham, and underſtanding that Sarah was his Wiſe, rebuked him for concealing it, and ſent her laden with Preſents out of his Kingdom. After which ſhe adviſed Abraham to marry Agar his Servant, by whom he had Iſhmael. Being ninety Years of Age, God let her underſtand that ſhe ſhould bear a Son, which appeared ſo improbable to her, that ſhe ſmil'd at it as incredible. The ſame Adventure that happened at Pharaoh's Court, befell them again at that of Abimelech petty King of Gerar, who falling in love with Sarah, would have married her, but finding that ſhe was diſpoſed of already, returned her to her Husband, after which ſhe was brought to Bed of Iſaac; who when a little grown, being mock'd by Iſhmael, ſhe preſs'd her Husband to ſend him and his Mother away, which he did: She died A. M. 2175, aged 137 Years, and was buried in a Cave near the Town of Hebron. Torniel. Salian in Annal. Vet. Teſt.

SARABAT, Lat. Hermus, a River of Aſia Minor, which riſes in Phrygia Major, and being ſwelled with the Rivers Crya, Nilus and Pactolus, disburthens it ſelf into the Bay of Smyrna.

SARACENS, a People originally of Arabia, called alſo Agarens and Iſhmaelites, as proceeding from Iſhmael the Son of Hagar. Ptolemy mentions a City of Arabia called Saraca, from whence ſome Authors derive their name; but others with more reaſon fetch it from סרק a word which in the Arabick ſignifies a Vagabond and Robber; and indeed the common Practice of the Saracens was to rob and plunder their Neighbours Country. They began to appear in the World about the Fifth Century. We read in the Life of St. Euthymus the Abbot writ by St. Cyril, that one Terebon a Commander of the Saracens, having been miraculouſly healed of the Palſie, almoſt all his People embraced the Chriſtian Religion: but not long after he betook himſelf to Mahomet, and made Profeſſion of his Sect. From this time they began to be Powerſul, and under the Conduct of their Kings, made Irruptions into Africa, Aſia and Europe, where they were Maſters of part of Sicily, and ſubdued Egypt, Syria and Perſia. The Chriſtian Princes had Wars with them for a long time in the Eaſt, during the XI and XII Centuries. But the Turks, the Caliphs of Egypt, and the Sophies of Perſia having Conquered the Saracens Dominions, their name likewiſe vaniſhed and was loſt. Ptolem. lib. 6. *Am. SARAGOSSA, Cæſar Auguſta, a City of Spain upon the River Ebro, being the Capital of the Kingdom of Arragon, with an Archbiſhops See, Parliament, Univerſity, and Court of Inquiſition. It is a very ancient City, and hath been formerly more conſiderable than it is at preſent. It is ſituate in a very pleaſant Plain, and contains ſeventeen great Churches, and fourteen Monaſteries. The Church called Our Lady of the Pillar, is much frequented by Pilgrims. Nænius ſays of this City, that nothing is wanting for the Pleaſantneſs of its Situation, the Fruitfulneſs of its Soil, and the Fineneſs of its Buildings to make it equal to the beſt City in Spain; the Houſes are of Brick, and the Streets large. It is defended by a very ſtrong Wall beſides its Citadel, and hath four Gates, with abundance of Towers. It is three Miles in compaſs, and enjoys a good Air, but rather too hot: It was anciently a Roman Colony, and in thoſe times one of the chief Cities of Spain. It was recovered from the Moors in 1118, and is fam'd for the Birth of Prudentius, one of the moſt ancient Chriſtian Poets. It ſtands 42 Spaniſh Leagues North of Valencia, 26 from Pampelona, and 38 from the Mediterranean. Long. 20. 10. Lat. 42. 30. The Priſcillianiſts were condemned in a Council held here in 381.

SARBORA, General to King Choſroes, who charging him with the Defeat he received at Heraclium, commanded him to be killed, by which he was diſappointed of his Army, and deprived of his Kingdom and Life by his Son Siroes. An. Ch. 627. Hoffman.

SARBRUGH or Sarbruken, Lat. Saræpons or Saræburgum, a Town in Germany on the River Sar over againſt St. Jean on the Borders of Lorrain, formerly an Imperial Town, but exempted by the Emperor Rodolphus I. and does now belong to the Electorate of Treves. It is a fine Town, very ancient, and mention'd in the Itinerary of Antonine, but falling under the Duke of Lorrain, is now in the hands of the French. It gives Title to a Prince of the Houſe of Naſſau, and has a Caſtle which was his uſual Reſidence. The River Sar is here navigable by ſmall Boats. Baud.

SARCATERUS, a Daniſh King, who having cauſed a certain Man called Lenus to be put to Death unjuſtly, to make amends, offered to deliver himſelf into his Sons hands, and to ſuffer Death. Saxo Grammat. lib. 8.

SARCELLÆ, or Ruſiceber, Raſubrica, according to Antonine, a large Town on the Coaſt of the Mediterranean in the Kingdom of Algier, from which it is diſtant 28 Miles Weſt, and hath a large Haven with a Caſtle. Baud.

SARDANAPALUS, otherwiſe called Thonos Connoleros, Reigned over the Aſſyrians about A. M. 3215, or as others, 3158, ſome take him to have been King of Nineveh at the time when Jonas was ſent to preach Repentance to that City. He was a Prince of a moſt voluptuous and effeminate Life, to that degree that he was uſed to ſit and Spin in a Womans Habit amongſt his Concubines. Wherefore his Subjects diſdaining to be governed by ſuch a Wretch, rebelled againſt him under the Conduct of Arbaces Governour of Media, beſieging him in his chief City Nineveh, and forced him after two Years Siege to burn himſelf, with his Wives and Children, A. M. 3178, or 3234, and with him ended the Kingdom of Aſſyria. Nineveh was rebuilt ſoon after this, and was the Reſidence of the Governours of Media, who are ſtil'd

Kings in Scripture. But other Authors ſay that Sardanapalus finding himſelf in a ſtrait, retired into his Palace, and having erected a Funeral Pile, laid thereon all that was moſt Precious, and burnt himſelf with his Wives, Children and Palace, ordering this Diſtich to be engraven on his Tomb.

Hæc habeo quæ edi, quæque exſaturata libido
Hauſit, at illa jacent multa ac præclara relicta.

Which Ariſtotle ſays was a fitter Epitaph for an Ox than a King. Clemens gives it in Greek thus· Lib. 2. Stromat.

Ταῦτ' ἔχω ὅσ' ἔφαγον, καὶ ἐφύβρισα, καὶ μετ' ἔρωτος
Τέρπ' ἔπαθον, τὰ δὲ πολλὰ καὶ ὄλβια κεῖνα λέλειπται,
Καὶ γὰρ ἐγὼ σποδός εἰμι Νίνου μεγάλης βασιλεύσας.

But Athenæus lib. 12. gives a more favourable Inſcription thus:

Σαρδανάπαλος Ἀνακυνδαράξεω Ἀγχιάλην ἔδειμε, καὶ Ταρσὸν μιῇ ἡμέρῃ ἀλλὰ νῦν τέθνηκεν. Juſtin. Petav. Scaliger.

SARDICA, formerly a City of Thracia, but now the Capital of Bulgaria, with a Biſhops See upon the River Morava or Sucova (which is the Ciagrus of the Ancients) near to Mount Hæmus. The Bulgarians call this City Triaddizza, and the Greeks and Turks Sophia. It hath been the Reſidence of the ancient Deſpots of Servia. Here was a Council held under the Conſulſhips of Rufin and Euſebius in 347, which according to Theodoret conſiſted of 250 Prelates, and according to St. Athanaſius of 300, from 35 or 37 as well Weſtern as Eaſtern Provinces. Oſius, Archidamus and Philoxenus were ſent Legates by Pope Julius. The Arians came thither alſo, but having moved to no purpoſe, that St. Athanaſius (whoſe unexpected preſence ſurpriſed them very much) might not ſit in the Aſſembly, they withdrew, pretending that they were ſent for by the Emperor Conſtance, to ſolemnize a Victory he had gained over the Perſians. This excuſe was carried to the Council by Euſtathius a Prieſt of the Church of Sardica, but did not hinder the Proceeding of the Aſſembly, which afterwards declared St. Athanaſius with ſome other Orthodox Prelates Innocent, examined the Accuſations brought againſt the Arian Biſhops, and depoſed ſeveral of them; but being unwilling to add any thing to the Creed of Nice, or to Form a new Confeſſion of Faith, they made 20 or 21 Canons for the general Diſcipline of the Church; one of which granted the Pope the Juriſdiction of receiving Appeals in ſome Caſes; but here we may obſerve, Firſt by the form and expreſſion of the Canon, that this Privilege of the See of Rome was not founded on Divine Right, but only upon Eccleſiaſtical Authority. 2dly, Even the advantage taken thus low, was not generally acknowledged by the Church, the Canons of this Council not being look'd upon as generally binding; and therefore Pope Zoſimus, in the Diſpute he had with the African Biſhops, Cites theſe Canons under the Name of the Council of Nice, to give 'em the greater Authority. 3dly, The Roman Catholicks themſelves confeſs, the Sardican Council was no General one, giving this Reaſon for their Opinion; becauſe, ſay they, it determin'd no Point of Faith, proceeding therein no farther than the Confirmation of the Council of Nice. To which we may add the Opinion of the Archbiſhop Peter de Marca, who affirms that this Synod loſt the Privilege of a General Council by the diviſion of its Members, the Eaſtern Biſhops refuſing to joyn with the Weſtern. De Marca lib. 7. De Concord, &c. Godeau Hiſt. Eccl. Cave Hiſt. Liter. pars Alt. In the mean time the Arians aſſembled at Philippes, a Town of Thrace, condemned the Conſubſtantiality of the Father and Son, and afterwards confirmed their Sentences of Depoſition againſt Athanaſius, Paul, Marcellus and Aſclepas; they depoſed Pope Julius, Oſius, Maximin of Treves, Protogenes of Sardica, and Gaudencius of Brixia. Theodoret, Socrat. Baronius.

SARDINELLA, a great Village Eaſt of Damaſcus in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, in which none can inhabit but Chriſtians, all other Inhabitants dying before a Year be expired, if we may believe Bonaventura. Hoffman.

SARDINIA, an Iſland and Kingdom of Europe in the Mediterranean, belonging to the King of Spain: It is commonly divided into two parts by the Rivers Cedro and Titſo, the one Cabo di Lugori being the North, and the other Cabo di Cagliari, which is the South part of the Iſland. The Soil is very fertile, but the Air very unhealthy, by reaſon of exceeding high Mountains on the North ſide of it, which keep out the North Wind, upon which account the Roman Emperors uſed to baniſh ſuch Perſons as they had a mind to be rid of, to this Iſland, the Air being eſteemed Peſtilential. In former times it was more conſiderable than at preſent, there having been no leſs than 18 Biſhopricks in it. Cagliari is the Capital City at preſent, the others are Saſſari, S. Pedro d'Uſſellas, Torre, Terra-Nova, Oriſtagni, Algher, Caſtel-Aragoneſe, Ampurias, &c. The Ancients tell us that Sardus the Son of Hercules having ſetled a Colony here, from his own name called it Sardinia, and that before it was called Sandaliotis and Ichnuſa from the ſole of a Foot, which the Figure of this Iſland repreſents. Since thoſe times it has been inhabited by divers Nations, until the time that the Carthaginians made themſelves Maſters of it, from whom the Romans took it, in whoſe Poſſeſſion it continued a long time, until it was taken by the Saracens; but they of Piſa and Genoua having forced it out of the hands of the Saracens, fell into a Diſpute which of them ſhould poſſeſs it. But Pope Boniface VIII. having given leave to the King of Arragon to Conquer it, it hath been ever ſince annexed to the Crown of Spain. This Iſland alone produces thoſe Animals called Maſrones or Maſtriones. There is no Venomous Creature in it, but they have Foxes, and a very little Creature called Solifuga which reſembles a Frog. It has the Title of a Kingdom, is 170 Miles long, 80 broad, and in circuit is about 450, and is ſix Miles from Corſica. It is governed by a Viceroy from the King of Spain. Its Metropolis is Cagliari. It hath now but ſeven Towns of Note, and all thoſe Biſhops Sees. It hath 11 Sea-ports and 94 Watch-Towers upon the Sea-coaſt: The Proverb Sardi Venales takes riſe according to ſome, becauſe Gracchus having ſubdued it, brought away ſuch a multitude of Captives, that they could not be ſold in a long time; or according to others, becauſe the Sardinians are reckoned Changeable and of Vendible Tempers. Thales and Bias, two of the Wiſe Men of Greece, adviſed the Ionians to remove hither, that they might avoid the Perſian Yoke: It had anciently a Silver Mine, and affords Coral in ſeveral Places.

SARDIS, an ancient City of Lydia, at preſent ruined. It was formerly the Capital City of the Kingdom, ſituate near Mount Tmolus, and was the Royal Reſidence of the Mermnades deſcended from Gyges. Cyrus took this City in the LIX Olympiad, and ſubdued the whole Kingdom of Lydia, taking Crœſus the King Priſoner. In the LXIX Olympiad Ariſtagoras having got twenty Ships of the Athenians, perſwaded the People to Rebel againſt the Perſians, and ſome time after took the City and burnt it, which was repaired ſince, and came under the Dominion of the Greeks. Antiochus Magnus took this City in 3736 from Achæus by Treaſon after a Years Siege. The Turks ſay that Tamerlane beſieged this City ſix Years, and when he had taken it ruined it intirely, about 1398, if it be true; but however this be, Sir George Wheeler aſſureth us the Inhabitants are reduced to a very ſmall Number, and live by the Sweat of their Brows in digging and planting Gardens belonging to the few Turks who now live hereabouts, having neither Church nor Prieſt amongſt them, and are a Neſt of worſe than Beggars. The City ſtood on the North ſide of the Mount Tmolus on the edge of a ſpacious and fruitful Plain, and has ſtill many marks of its Antiquity to be found amongſt its Ruins. Wheeler, Tavern. It was anciently one of the ſtrongeſt Inland Cities of Aſia, eſpecially when beſieged by Antiochus Magnus. It was Famous for excellent Carpets. It was in this City that Antigonus cauſed Cleopatra the Siſter of Alexander the Great to be put to Death, in the Year of Rome 446. This City was one of the firſt converted by St. John, but not long after relapſed into Idolatry. Sardis formerly was an Archbiſhops See. Herodotus. Ferrari. Euthemius the Biſhop of this place was whip'd to Death by the Emperor Balbus's order, An. Ch. 825. Sardis is 26 Miles South of Philadelphia, and 36 North of Thyatira.

SARDONES, an ancient People of Gallia Narbonenſis, who inhabited on the Sea-ſide near the Town Salſes in the County of Rouſſillon, between Languedoc to the North, and Catalonia to the South.

SARDONII, Sardonians, a People of Africa, ſo called from one Sardo who was King over them, their Country joyned to that of the Carthaginians. They had a Cuſtom of Sacrificing their Relations to Saturn, when they attained the Age of Seventy, and performed this barbarous Ceremony with Laughter and Mirth; which has given occaſion to the Latin Proverb of Riſus Sardonius, as ſome ſay; for others are of opinion that this Proverb took its riſe from an Herb called Sardoa, or Sardonia herba, growing in Sardinia, which Poiſons thoſe that eat of it, and draws their Mouths in ſuch a manner, that they ſeem to die Laughing. Solin. Pauſan. But Franciſcus de Vico refutes this whole Story as a meer Fable, nor do the Sardinians, according to Hoffman, know any thing of this Herb, or Proverb.

SARDUNII, Lat. Planaſia, an Iſland in the Mediterranean, on the Coaſt of Provence, whither Tiberius baniſh'd Agrippa, Auguſtus's Nephew. The French call it Sainčte Marguerite. Baud.

SAREPTA, Sarephath, a City of Phœnicia, almoſt in the midſt between Tyre and Sidon, now called Saphet or Sarafendi. It is a Biſhops See under the Archbiſhop of Tyre. In this City Elijah the Prophet miraculouſly increaſed the Widows Oyl and Meal, and raiſed her Son to Life. This Town is about ten Miles from Sidon, and as much from Tyre, being alſo fam'd for its noble Wine. Sidon.

SARGAN, or Sarganſerland, a City and Territory in Suiſſerland, ſubject to the ſeven ancient Cantons. The Inhabitants of this Country are the Sarunetes of Pliny. See SARUNETES.

SARGAPISES, the only Son of Thomyris the famous Queen of the Scythians : He was but very young when Cyrus invading Scythia with a powerful Army, paſſed the River Araxis, and advanced within a day's Journey of Thomyris's Dominions, and then feigning as if he had ventured too far, retired in haſte, and the more to make it believed he was fled indeed with Precipitation and Diſorder, he left abundance of Wine and other Proviſions in his Camp. Thomyris ſent the third part of her Army under the Command of her Son to purſue him, who being of ſmall Experience in Warlike Affairs, ſuffered his Soldiers to drink Wine, with which they not being accuſtom'd, were preſently overtaken, and Cyrus returning upon them, cut them all to pieces. Sargapiſes died in the Battle, but his Mother revenged his death ſome days after, by killing Cyrus himſelf, and 200000 Perſians. Juſtin.

SARGASSUM MARE, called by the Portugueſe Mar di Sargoſſo, a part of the Atlantick, betwixt Cape Verd to the Eaſt, and the Iſland of that Name to the Weſt. It is denominated from the Herb Sargoſſa, which grows there in ſuch plenty, that it hinders the courſe of Ships. Baudrand.

SARGETIA, now Iſtrig, a River of Dacia which runs through Vallachia, fam'd for King Decebalus's hiding his Treaſures in it when the Emperor Trajan made War upon him, which the ſaid Emperor did find out nevertheleſs. Sambucus.

SARKE, a ſmall Iſland near Jerſey on the Coaſt of France, ſix miles in compaſs, but not inhabited till the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, though it has an Harbour and a ſmall Fort, not acceſſible to above two at a time. This place, in the year 1558, was ſurprized by the French, but recovered by a Flemming, who pretending he had a dead Friend in his Ship, promiſed the Governour a good Preſent if he might have liberty to bury him in their Chapel. The Governour was content, on condition his Men ſhould be ſearched and diſarmed, as they were; but the Coffin being full of Arms, they opened it, and drove out the French, thoſe who went for the Preſent being by the Flemmings Order kept Priſoners in the Ship. Queen Elizabeth granted this Iſland to Helier de Cartret, Lord de St. Oen, who firſt peopled it ; and about 40 years ſince it had fifty Families. Before this it ſerved only as a common Paſture to the Inhabitants of Jerſey.

SARLAT, Sarlatum, a City of France, and Capital of the Lower-Perigord, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Bourdeaux. It is ſituate, as it were, in an Iſle between the Dordogne and Vezere, from whence it is but a League diſtant, eight from Perigueux to the South-eaſt, and thirty four from Bourdeaux to the North-eaſt. It was made a Biſhop's See by Pope John XXII. It is very ſtrong, and withſtood two Sieges in the Civil War in 1652. Du Cheſne, St. Marth.

SARMATIA, a vaſt Country called Sarmatia, or Sauromatia. It was formerly divided into the Aſiatick, European and German Sarmatia. The Aſiatick Sarmatia was that part about the Confines of Europe and Aſia, and the River Rha or Volga, being bounded on the North with the North-Sea, on the South with the Euxine and Caſpian Seas, with Scythia on the Eaſt, and European Sarmatia on the Weſt. This Tract contained the Northern part of Moſcovia called Ruſſia Alba, and the Ruſſian Tartary containing the Provinces of Dwina, Condora, Petzora, Permski, Samojeda, Siberia Wiatka, Lappia, Lucomoria, and the Kingdoms of Caſan, Aſtracan and Bulgaria. The European Sarmatia was between the Aſiatick Sarmatia on the Eaſt, and the German Sarmatia on the Weſt, the North Ocean on the North, and the Lake of Mæotis with the Euxin Sea on the South, and contained Scythia the Leſs, the County of the Roxolani, Hamaxobij and Alani, where now is Moſcovia and the Leſſer Tartary. The German Sarmatia was ſeparated from the European Sarmatia on the Eaſt with the River Boryſthenes or Nieper, and from Germany on the Weſt by the Viſtula, from Dacia on the South by the River Tyra or Nieſter and the Carpathian Mountain, and on the North it had the Baltick Sea and the Gulf of Finland. It contained almoſt all the Kingdom of Poland, its chief Inhabitants of old being the Venedi, Æſtiai, Peucini and Baſtarnæ. Sarſon, Baudrand, All this Country was inabited by a Barbarous People, who dwelt partly in the Mountains and partly in the Foreſt, and had moveable Huts or Waggons for Houſes, and they were anciently noted for feeding on Horſe-blood mingled with Milk ; whence Martial ſays,

Venit & epoto Sarmata paſtus equo.

Tacitus writes of them as the worſt Infantry of the World, but the beſt Horſe-men : And Florus ſays they were ſo Barbarous, as not to know what Peace meant. Bochart thinks them to be the Off-ſpring of the Medes, their Language being a mixture of theirs and the Scythian Tongue, and their Habits reſembling the Medes. Such as have a mind to ſee the Liſt of all the noted Towns in Sarmatia may conſult Baudrand.

SARMATICUM MARE, called by the Moſcovites Mourmanskoy More, by the French Mer de Moſcovie, or Ocean Septentrional, is the ſame with Pont Euxin, according to Ovid. Baudrand ſays it is part of the Northern Ocean towards the White Sea, and the Northern Coaſt of Moſcovy, between the mouths of the River Oby and Dwin.

SARNA, a Caſtle formerly belonging to the Houſe of Auſtria, in the Canton of Underwald in Swiſſerland, which being well fortified and impregnable, the Swiſſers took it by this following Stratagem : They lodged fifty Men in a neighbouring Wood, and ſent thirty of them with Preſents of Cheeſe, Butter, Pork and Mutton thither, as uſual, with Clubs in their Hands, one end of which being fitted for an Iron Pike, which they carried in their Pockets ; as ſoon as they entred, they ſeized the Gates, fitted their Pikes, and giving their Signal, the twenty who ſtaid in ambuſh coming to their aſſiſtance, they took the Caſtle, conducted the Garriſon to the Borders, made them ſwear they ſhould never return, and afterwards demoliſhed the Fortreſs. Hoffman, Simler. de Repub. Helvet.

SARNO, a City of the Kingdom of Naples in the Hither Principality, with a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Salerno, and a Dukedom appertaining to the Houſe of Barbarini. It takes its Name from the River Sarno. This City is ſituated partly on a Hill, partly in a Valley, has a very ancient Caſtle, and ſtands in the Borders of Terra di Lavoro, near the Fountains of the Sarno, thirteen miles South of Salerno, eight South of Nola, and five of Nocera.

SARONICUS SINUS, now called Golfo d'Engia, a Bay in the Ægean Sea.

SARPEDON, the Son of Jupiter and Laodamia, was a King of Lucia, from whence he brought ſome Auxiliary Forces to Priamus againſt the Greeks, Sarpedon having ſignalized himſelf before Troy, was killed by Patroclus ; but his Corps was reſcued by Apollo, waſh'd in the River, beſprinkled with Ambroſia, adorn'd with Royal Apparel, and delivered to his Subjects to be interred. Jupiter, in Commemoration of his Death, appointed an Anniverſary among the Gods to Mourn for him.

SARPEDON, a Promontory of Cilicia, which is the Boundary betwixt it and Pamphylia. and continually beat upon by the Waves ; ſo that it became a Proverb applicable to thoſe who are Clamorous and Turbulent. Heſychius.

SARPI, or Fra-Paolo, or Paulus Servita, of the Order of the Servitæ, a Divine and Councellor of the Commonwealth of Venice, was born in that City in the year 1552. His Father's Name was Franceſco Sarpi, and his Mother's Iſabella Morelli, whoſe Brother Ambroſius Morelli took care of his Nephew's Education, who having an excellent Wit, with great Memory and Judgment, made a great progreſs in a ſhort time in Learning ; for after he had got the maſtery of Latin, Greek and Hebrew, he applied himſelf to the Mathematicks, and afterwards ſtudied Philoſophy and Divinity under the Conduct of F. Joannes Maria Capella, who being of the Order of the Servitæ, Fra. Paolo, out of reſpect to his Maſter, entred himſelf of the ſame Order, in the year 1564. His Fame was ſoon ſpread through Italy, where the Popes Sixtus V. and Urban VIII St. Charles, the Duke of Mantua, and many other Perſons of great Quality, had a ſingular Eſteem for him. Vincentius Pinelli, Aquapendente, and other learned Men of his time that were his Friends, were aſtoniſh'd to ſee a young Man of a weak and tender Complexion, excel in Learning as he did. For beſides what has already been ſaid, he was very well skill'd in Hiſtory, Law and Phyſick, and more-eſpecially in Anatomy, and the knowledge of Simples and Minerals ; and what was moſt to be valued, was, that all theſe Excellencies were joined with extraordinary Modeſty and Piety. He was made Provincial of his Order when he was but Seven and twenty years of age, and Procurator-General. The Difference which happened between the Commonwealth of Venice and Paul V. proved matter of Trouble to Fr. Paul, who was then the declared Divine and Councellor of the Republick of Venice. The Pope commanded him to come to Rome, and upon his refuſal excommunicated him : But this did not much affect him, for he continued with his Tongue and Pen to aſſert the Rights of the Commonwealth. It was about this time that a Book was publiſh'd, entitled, Scrutinio del la Libertà Veneta, or, An Enquiry into the Venetian Liberty. The Venetians perſuaded F. Paul to write an Anſwer to it, who told them he had an Anſwer ready, and delivered to them his Hiſtorry of the Council of Trent, which Marcus Antonius de Dominis took upon him to publiſh, and got it printed at London, under the Name of Pietro Soave Polano, which is the Anagram of Paolo Sarpi Veneto. The other Works of F. Paul are theſe, Conſiderations upon the Cenſures of Pope Paul V. againſt the Commonwealth of Venice ; A Treatiſe of the Interdiction ; A particular Hiſtory of the Matters that paſs'd between Paul V. and the Republick of Venice ; De Jure Aſylorum ; A Treatiſe of the Inquiſition ; A Continuation of the Hiſtory of the Vſcoques ; beſides a great many Manuſcripts upon divers Subjects. The Pope's hatred againſt him created him many Enemies ; he was once ſet upon in the Street by five Murtherers, who gave him three Wounds, of which he recovered. He was in many things of the Opinion of the Proteſtants, and kept a Correſpondence with ſeveral learned Perſons of the Reformation. He died with a great Repute of Piety, on Saturday the 14th. of January, 1623, being Seventy one years of age. He had done great Services to the Commonwealth for ſeventeen years together. The People, after his death, made their Prayers at his Tomb, as ſuppoſing him a Saint, which was forbid by Pope Urban VIII. See his Life, written by Fr. Fulgentio.

SARRA, a Town of Phœnicia, afterwards called Tyre. It had its firſt Name from Sarra, a Fiſh which abounds there, whoſe Blood was uſed for a Purple Die ; hence Sarranæ Veſtes. Virgil. Auſon. Juven.

SARRON, the third King of the ancient Gaules, who reigned next after Magus or Magog, and had Drius for his Succeſſor. He was a lover of Learning, and erected publick Schools, the Profeſſors whereof were called Sarronides, which were the ſame with the Druids. He is ſaid to have been the firſt Man of the World who inſtituted Academies and Publick Schools, whence Philoſophers were called Saronidæ. He died 2057, and 1013 before Chriſt, after a Reign of 48 years. Diodor. Sicul. Dupleix. See Bochart in Canaan. lib. 1. cap. 42.

SARSINA, a City of the Eccleſiaſtical State in Romandolia in Italy, famous for having been the Birth-place of Accius Plautus. It is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Ravenna. It is very ſmall, containing ſcarcely above fifty Houſes, ten miles South of Ceſena, and four and twenty Weſt of Arimini, and famous for its noble Paſtures.

SARTACH, a Tartarian Prince, who reigned over the Country adjoining to the Volga and Tanais in the Thirteenth Century, to whom St. Lewis ſent a Franciſcan Monk as his Envoy, having underſtood that he was turned Chriſtian ; but it prov'd a miſtake, ſo the poor Monk was fain to return re infectâ. The Man employed in this Embaſſy was a French Cordelier named Rubruquis, who embarking on the Black Sea, coaſted the Palus Mœotis, and having croſſed the Tanais, arrived in two months after at Sartach's Tents, towards the Country of the Mardes. The People were clad in Dogs and Goats Skins, and had no other Houſes but Waggons covered with coarſe Cloth. Rubruquis, with a Bible in one hand, and a Pſalter in the other, both richly embelliſh'd with Gold, his chief Aſſiſtant carrying a Croſs and Maſs-book, and the other a Cenſor, were admitted to an Audience, ſinging a Song, according to cuſtom, as they came into the Preſence. Sartach ſeem'd very well ſatiſfy'd with the King's Letter, but was ſo far from being a Chriſtian, that he made difficulty to let them ſtay to Preach as the King deſired, ſaying, They ſhould adviſe with his Father Baatu, who lived towards the Country of the Bulgarians, to the Eaſt of the River Wolga. Baatu ſent them for leave to the Great Kan Mangu, who kept his Tents near the Village Caracoram, in the 60th. Degree of North Latitude : And when they had gone this tedious Journey to no purpoſe, they returned again into Paleſtina, and brought King Lewis two Veſts from Sartach. De la Chambers Hiſt. de St. Lewis, in 1688.

SARTE, Sarto, a River of France, which riſeth in Normandy, upon the Borders of Perche, and watereth Alanzon and le Maine, and receives the River Huine a little below Mans ; at length being ſwelled with ſeveral other Rivers, it paſſeth into Anjou, and a little above Angers falls into the River Mayenne, and both of them ſoon after loſe themſelves in the Loire. Papire Maſſon Deſcrip. Flum. Gal.

SARTHAN, a Place in the Tribe of Reuben, near which the Jews paſſed over Jordan on dry Land. There is a ſecond Place of this Name in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, near Jezreel, which ſignifies Tribulation and Anguiſh ; and a third in the Tribe of Gad, 1 King. 4. 7. Joſ. 3. 3. 2 Chron. 4.

SARTO (Andre del) a famous Painter of Florence. The Florentines had ſo great an eſteem for his Works, that during the fury of the Popular Factions amongſt them, they preſerved his Pieces from the Flames, which were in the Monaſtery of St. Salvi in Florence, at a time when they ſpared neither Churches nor things ſacred. He died of the Plague at Florence in 1530, at the age of 42. He copy'd, for the Duke of Mantua, an Original of Leo X. done by Raphael, which Copy was valued as much as the Original : One of his laſt and beſt Pieces was Abraham ſacrificing Iſaac, which he drew for the King of France.

SARUG, or Serug, Abraham's Great-Grand-father, mentioned Gen. 11. 21, 22. Epiphanius and Suidas ſuppoſe Idolatry to have begun in his time, which was in the Reign of Belus ; others ſuppoſe it to have begun in the time of Ninus, who was the Promoter of it. Sarug died A. M. 2079, aged 230.

SARUNETES, a People of Suiſſerland inhabiting the Country of Sargans or Sarganſerland. Their chief Town is called Sargans. This Country was formerly under the Counts of Werdenberg, who afterwards mortgaged it to the Houſe of Auſtria ; and when redeemed again in 1483, George Count of Werdenberg ſold it to the Swiſs Cantons, who ſend a Governour thither every year : but the Town of Sargans has peculiar Privileges, and chuſes its own Magiſtrates. The Country is divided by the River Sara. The Courts of Juſtice for the Upper Part are held at Regatium, and thoſe for the Lower at Sanegaw a fine Town. Simler.

SARWICZE, Lat. Urpanius, a River of Lower Hungary, which has its Source near Weſprin, and running through Alba Regalis to the Eaſt, falls into the Danube betwixt Colock and Tuitburg. Baudrand.

SARZANA, Luna Nova Sergianum, Sarezana, a City in Hetruria on the Borders of the States of Genoua, near to Tuſcany. It hath a Biſhop's See, which was transferred hither from Luni by Pope Nicholas V. under the Archbiſhop of Milan. It lies 34 miles from Lucca to the North-weſt, and almoſt 60 from Genoua to the South-eaſt. The Genoueſe are in poſſeſſion of it. This City was raiſed from the Ruines of Luna an ancient Roman City, whoſe Biſhoprick was transferr'd hither by Pope Nicholas V. in 1450. It is defended with a ſtrong Wall and deep Ditch, a Caſtle flanked with four Towers, as alſo by a Fort called Sarſanella, which ſtands on a neighbouring Hill that commands the City. This Fort was built by Caſtruccio who ſubdued Lucca. After his death it was poſſeſſed by Charles VI. of France, after him by the Milanois, and then by the Florentines, from whom Charles VIII. of France recover'd it ; but his Governour ſold it to the Genoueſes, in whoſe poſſeſſion it is at this preſent. It's ſixty Miles South-eaſt of Genoua, and thirty four North-weſt of Lucca. Baudrand.

SASON, the Name of an Iſland betwixt Epirus and Brunduſium, five Miles from each ; and alſo the Name of a River which falls into the Adriatick Gulf. Hoffman.

SASONES, a People of Scythia about Mount Imaus, according to Ptolemy. Albertus Crantzius, and others, think that the Saxons came thence into Germany.

SASQUEHANOXES, Savages of Virginia, of a prodigious Stature ; for according to the Account that Captain Smith gives us, he ſaw one of them the Calf of whoſe Leg was Three quarters of an Engliſh Ell about, by which one may gueſs at the reſt of his Body ; he was well made and handſome, his Hair hung down on his right Shoulder, and was cut in the form of a Cock's-comb from his Forehead to the hinder-part of his Head ; the left-ſide of his Head was ſhaved. His Arrows were an Ell and an half long, having a ſharp Flint at the end of them inſtead of Iron ; the Skin of a Wolf, which hung on his Back, ſerv'd him for a Quiver : He held his Bow in one hand, and his Club in the other, and had the appearance of a very valiant Man. The Voice of this People, when they ſpeak, ſounds as if it were from an hollow Cavern, and they ſhew no great averſion to Chriſtianity. De Laet. Hiſt. du Nouveau Monde.

SASSARI, a City in the Iſle of Sardinia, with an Archbiſhoprick. It is a great City, but not ſtrong.

SASSENAGE, a Town of Dauphiné, on the confluence of the Iſere and Drac, at the foot of the Alpes, famous for its Noble Lords the chief of the whole Province, and noted for its ſmall Pebles ſaid to cure ſore Eyes, and two Hollows in a neighbouring Rock which the Country People affirm to be always full of Water on Twelfth-Day, though perhaps there is not a drop in 'em all the reſt of the year. According as this Water is in quantity, they gueſs at the Fruitfulneſs fulneſs or Sterility of the enſuing Year; one of the Hollows prognoſticating for Wine, and the other for Grain. Several Authors have writ of this. Davity, Foder.

SASSUM, Lat. Saſſima, a Biſhop's See in Cappadocia Suffragan of Caſarea, ſam'd for having been the Seat of Gregory Nazianzen, who by his Learning and Piety defended the Truth againſt the Arrians in the Reign of Theodoſius the Great. This City is 32 miles South of Tyana, and 200 Eaſt of Ancyra. Baudrand.

SASSUOLO, Lat. Saxulum, a Town of Italy in the Dutchy of Modena, called Saſſeville by the French. It has a very ſtrong Caſtle, and ſtands 10 miles South of Modena.

SASVANGANT, Lat. Gandavenſis Agger, a very ſtrong Caſtle of the Netherlands in the County of Flanders, built by the Spaniards, but taken by the Dutch in 1644, who ſtill poſſeſs it. It ſtands 4 Leagues North of Ghant, and is alſo called Cataracta Gandavenſis. Baudrand.

SATAGAN, a City in the Eaſt-Indies, at the mouth of the Ganges, ſeated in an Iſland in the Latit. of 24 deg. one League from Hagueli. It is an hundred Miles from the Sea, yet they row to it in eighteen hours with ſmall Barks, by the force of the Tide, which is very great; but the Ships go only to Butor. It is a reaſonable fair City, abounding with all things, and in 1568 was under the King of Patane, but a little after conquer'd by the Great Mogul. It was built by the Moors or Arabians. Hackl. In the latter Maps it is placed in 24 deg. of Lat.

SATALIA, a Sea-Port of Pamphylia in Aſia, an Archbiſhop's See, and the Metropolis of the Province built by King Attalus at the mouth of the River Cataractus, 10 miles from the Gulf of Atalia, 18 from the mouth of the River Seſtrum, 15 from Perga, and 32 from Aſpendum. It's now well fortified, and under the Turks, but in the beginning of this Age was much damnified by the Chriſtians. It has a good Harbour, and is much frequented by the European Merchants. The Turks call it Satalyah, and have a Governour in it. It ſtands ſome Miles farther Eaſt than the Old Atalia, and is at preſent defended by a ſtrong Caſtle, beſides its own Fortifications, Long. 60. 50. Lat. 38. 56. Baudrand.

SATAPES, a Noble Perſian the Son of Theaſpes, greatly belov'd by Xerxes; but having raviſh'd the Daughter of Zopyrus, he cauſed him to be crucified for that Crime, pretending he had diſobeyed his Orders, in not going to the Frontiers of Africa to bring his Prince Intelligence of the ſtate of that Country. Herodot.

SATARCÆ, a People of Europæan Scythia, now call'd Little Tartary, who, according to Solinus, deſpis'd the uſe of Gold or Silver. Mela lib. 2.

SATCAMA, a Kingdom and City of Japan on the South of the Iſland Xyoma.

SATIVA, Zativa, or Sateba, a City of Spain, 10 miles South of Valencia, and ſomewhat more North of Alicant. The beſt Paper of Spain was formerly made here. It's built on a Hill defended by two Caſtles, has about 3000 Families, very large Houſes, and abounds with excellent Water; the adjacent Fields are fruitful, and have many Orchards noted for good Pomegranates. It's alſo noted for its good Flax.

SATOR, a Heathen God, who had the care of Sowing, whom therefore they call'd upon when they caſt their Seed into the Ground.

SATRAEL, the twenty ſixth King of Scotland, ſucceeded his Brother Ethodius, his own Son not being of age: He endeavoured to eſtabliſh the Crown in his own Family, and to deſtroy his Nephews; in order whereunto he forged Accuſations of Treaſon againſt the Nobility who loved Ethodius, and cut them off; and becauſe the Commons reſented it, he began to oppreſs them: Whereupon Tumults ariſing, he durſt not ſhew himſelf in publick to ſuppreſs them; and was ſo univerſally hated, that he was ſlain by his own Men as lurking at home, after four years Reign, about Anno 188. Buchanan.

SATRIANO, a ruinous City of the Baſilicate in the Kingdom of Naples, in the Borders of the Hither Principate, which gave its Name to the River Satriano, now Il Cacino. Baudrand.

SATURN, whom the Heathens call'd the Father of the Gods, was the Son of Cœlus and Veſta, and younger Brother of Titan, who reſign'd his Birthright to him, upon condition that he ſhould deſtroy all his Male Iſſue, to the end the Empire of the World might fall to his Sons. Saturn accepted of the Condition, and knowing that one of his Sons ſhould dethrone him, he determin'd to devour them as ſoon as his Wife was deliver'd of them. But his Wife made a ſhift to hide them from him, and ſecretly put them out to Nurſe. Titan being inform'd of this falſe dealing, putting himſelf at the head of his Children, made War againſt Saturn: and having ſeized him, kept him in Priſon, till Jupiter deliver'd him thence. But Saturn calling to mind that one of his Sons ſhould dethrone him, endeavour'd to rid himſelf of Jupiter. Whereupon Jupiter driving him out of his Kingdom, made him flee into Italy, where he was kindly entertained by Janus, as bringing along with him the Golden Age. The Poets, in theſe their Stories concerning Saturn, ſeem to have mixed many myſterious Fables, which compos'd the Heathen Divinity. Some pretend that Saturn was the Emblem of Time, quod ſaturatur annis, which is fill'd and ſatiated with Years, and his Greek Name Κρόνος is likewiſe derived from Κορεῖν, which ſignifies to fill or ſatiate. They ſay that Saturn brought the Golden Age with him into Italy, becauſe he taught the Inhabitants to Till the Ground, civiliz'd them, and gave them Laws and Moral Precepts. They ſay alſo, that he invented the way of Coining Copper Pieces, which had his Head on one ſide, and on the other the Ship with which he got into Italy. Bochart ſuppoſeth Saturn to have been Noah; but the Reverend and Learned Biſhop Cumberland, in a late Piece of his of exquiſite Learning, hath prov'd him to be Cham, Noah's youngeſt Son. Some will have Saturn to have been Adam, becauſe he was the Father of Men, and the firſt Gardener and Tiller of the Ground; that he was call'd Son of Heaven, becauſe form'd by the Hand of God; that the Golden Age was in his time on Earth, before he ſinned; and finally, that according to the Sibylla Erythræa, Saturn was the firſt that reign'd in the World, which may be properly ſaid of Adam.

SATURNALIA, Feſtivals celebrated in honour of Saturn, which the Romans at firſt kept on the 14th day before the Kalends of January; but Julius Cæſar having added two Days to this Month, the Feaſt came to be on the 16th day before the Kalends, which was the reaſon why ſome kept it on the 14th, and others on the 16th, which made Auguſtus to order that Feaſt to be celebrated three Days together; though ſome Authors ſay, that before theſe Feaſts were kept for three Days together, and ſometimes for ſeven. This Feaſt was inſtituted by Janus, not long after the death of Saturn, and was obſerved afterwards by the Romans and Greeks. During this Feaſt the Slaves ſate down at Table with their Maſters, being cloathed in cloſe Coats inſtead of their Frocks, which they laid by during this Solemnity: which they did in memory of the Golden Age of Saturn, when Men lived in common, without difference of States or Conditions. At this Feſtival the Romans were uſed to ſend Preſents one to another, and particularly Wax-Candles; and 'tis ſuppoſed that this was the Original of our New-Years-Gifts. The Greeks at firſt worſhipp'd Saturn with Humane Sacrifices, poſſibly, becauſe he had devour'd his own Children; but Hercules made 'em ſenſible of the Barbarity of this Worſhip, and put them upon the practice of burning Candles to him inſtead of Men. They ſacrificed to Saturn bare-headed, the Ceremony of covering the Head with a Veil being not in uſe till a great while after: yet this Ceremony of putting on a Veil when they ſacrificed to other Gods, was not uſed with regard to the Goddeſs Honour, whoſe Sacrificers were bare-headed, like thoſe of Saturn. Whilſt the Saturnalia laſted, it was not lawful to take up Arms, nor to puniſh any Criminal. Macrob. Funger.

SATURNINUS, a Roman Tribune of the People, who going about to introduce ſome Innovations into the Government, was oppoſed by Metellus, who forced him to depart the City; but being come again, was beſieged in the Capitol, and killed in the Palace-Court by Order of the Conſul Marius, in the 654th Year of the City.

SATURNINUS (Publius Sempronius) a Gaul, who having done great Services to the Empire in Africa and Spain, Aurelian beſtowed upon him the Government of the Eaſt: And the Egyptians having afterwards made him Emperor againſt his Will, he was murther'd at the taking of a Caſtle, into which he was retired, though others ſay it was in the City of Apamea. Vopiſcus.

SATURNINUS, or Saturnillus of Antioch. About the Year 140 he propagated the Hereſie of Simon Magus, Menander and Baſilides; adding Errors of his own, (viz.) That Marriage was an Invention of the Devil, and deny'd the Reſurrection of the Body. He affirm'd the World was made by ſeven Angels; That at the ſame time two of theſe

Spirits made two Men, one of which reſembled the Goodneſs and the other the Malice of the Angel that made him ; and, That our Saviour convers'd on Earth in the Appearance of an Humane Body, to reſcue the Good People from the Oppreſſion of the Bad who were actuated by the Devil : And by his Auſterity of Life, and Abſtinence from eating any thing that had Life, he endeavoured to impoſe upon the World. Epiph. Hær. 23. Tertullian, Theodoret, Iren. lib. Euſeb.

SATURNINUS (Sextus Julius) one of the moſt valiant and brave Commanders of his time. He was in good eſteem with the Emperor Valerian, under whom he ſerved, as alſo under Gallienus. He was endued with ſingular Prudence, and beloved of all Men for his Worth, and for the Victories he had obtained. The Soldiers raiſed him to the Imperial Dignity ; and when they put the Purple Robe upon him, in a Speech he made to them he told them, My Companions, You have ſpoil'd a good Captain, and have made a bad Prince. After having given frequent marks of his Valour, becauſe he was ſevere in obſerving Military Diſcipline, he was murthered by one of thoſe who had made him Emperor, about the Year 280 Trebellius Pollio de Triginta Tyrannis, c. 22. See alſo POMPEIUS called Saturninus.

SATYR, a Poem ſharply Cenſuring and Reflecting upon the Vices of Men. There is a vaſt difference between the Satyr of the Greeks and that of the Romans. The Grecian Satyr, as Diomedes informs us, Grammat. lib. 3. was a kind of Tragedy, wherein, beſides Hero's and Princes, the Poet introduced Satyrs, to divert and recreate the Spectators by their extravagant Talk and Behaviour, from being too much affected with the melancholy Events of the Tragedy. But amongſt the Latins, a Satyr was only a piece of Poetry inveighing againſt Vice. Lucilius is look'd upon as the firſt Author of the Roman Satyr. There is alſo another ſort of Satyr, call'd Satyra Varroniana & Menippea, becauſe Varro was the firſt Author of it : This Satyr was not only made up of ſeveral ſorts of Verſes, but thoſe alſo interlac'd with Proſe and Greek. Seneca's Book of the Death of Claudius, Bœthius de Conſolatione Philoſophiæ, and that of Petronius, were of this kind. We find therefore that the word Satyr amongſt the Latins, is, in a large ſence, applicable to all Diſcourſes that recommend Vertue, and explode Vice : But the word, as it is now commonly uſed with us, only ſignifies a ſtinging piece of Poetry, to laſh and expoſe the Vices of Men. Scaliger and a great many others believed that the Satyri, call'd Fauni by the Romans, were the occaſion that theſe ſort of Poems were call'd Satyrs, and that they reſembled the Greek Satyrical Poems : but this is a miſtake ; for the Greeks had no Poem like the Roman Satyr, excepting their Silli, which were remarkable for their Gall and ill Language ; but then they were taken out of ſome Serious Poem, and apply'd in a Ridiculous Sence. The true Etymology of Satyr comes from Satur, Full ; and in this ſence Satura Lanx was taken, i. e. a Diſh fill'd with all ſorts of Fruits, which the Heathens offer'd to Ceres and Bacchus, being the firſt they had gather'd that year. From hence the word Satura was applied to ſeveral other Oglio's or Melanges, as thoſe call'd Leges Saturæ, being Laws which contain'd variety of Matter. So Hiſtoriæ Saturæ are Hiſtories which treat of ſeveral Arguments run together in the ſame Book. The Reader may conſult Iſaac Caſaubon de Satyrica Græcorum Poëſi, & Satyra Latinorum, where this Subject is handled at large. Dacier Remarques Critiques ſur Horace, Tom 6.

SATYRES, a ſort of Monſters, whom the Poets feigned to be Demi-Gods living in Foreſts and Mountains, having their upper Parts like a Man, but with Horns upon their Heads, and their lower Parts like Goats. Pliny tells us there are ſuch Monſters as theſe in the Eaſt-Indies, that go on all Four : And we read in the Life of St. Paul the Hermit, related by St. Jerom, and in that of St Anthony by St. Athanaſius, that St. Anthony upon a time met with a Monſter of this nature in the Deſart, and demanding of him who he was ? he anſwer'd, that he was a Mortal, and one of the Inhabitants of that Deſart, whom the Heathens, by a vain Errour, call'd Fauns, Satyrs, and Incubus's. Theſe Authors add, that the Satyr preſented him with ſome Fruit of the Palm-Tree, and told him, that he had been deputed by his Company to come and entreat him to intercede for them to God, whom he acknowledged to be come into the World for the Salvation of Mankind ; and that thereupon he diſappeared. St Jerome, who relates this as a Truth of which he was perſuaded, adds for a further confirmation of it, that about an Hundred years before, under the Reign of Conſtantine, one of theſe Monſters was ſeen alive at Alexandria in Egypt, and that after his death his Carkaſs was embalmed, and conveyed to Antioch that the Emperor might ſee it. Beſides theſe Examples, Plutarch tells us, That Sylla being at Dyrrachium, now called Durazzo a City of Albania, he was preſented with a living Satyre, who being interrogated by divers Interpreters, uttered nothing but a rude inarticulate Voice, like the Neighing of a Horſe, or the Cry of a Goat. Diodorus Siculus alſo tells us, that ſome of theſe Monſters were preſented to Dionyſius the Tyrant, who had long Hair hanging down to the midſt of their Bellies. Yet there is reaſon to believe all theſe Stories fabulous, or that theſe were Illuſions of the Devil. The Rabbies are more extravagant than Poets upon this Subject, ſome pretending that the Sabbath ſurpriſing God when forming theſe Creatures, occaſioned his leaving them imperfect ; that therefore they have ſuch hatred for that Day, that they always retire into Woods and Deſarts upon it, whence they come to torment Mankind. Caſaubon thinks them either to have been the Illuſions of Satan, or ſome Monſters of Nature, but does not believe that ever there were any Companies or Societies of them, and thinks that Story of the Satyr and St. Anthony wholly fabulous.

SATYRORUM INSULÆ, three Iſlands overagainſt India, on the other ſide the Ganges, according to Ptolemy, which are ſaid to be inhabited by ſuch Monſters as thoſe called Satyres. There is alſo a Promontory in Æthiopia, near the Arabian Gulf, call'd the Promontory of Satyres. Hoffman.

SATYRUS, the Name of ſeveral famous Men ; one an Athenian General, who having got 420 Men into the Town by Night, thought to have ſurpriz'd Demetrius's Garriſon, but was defeated by Heraclides : Another a Corinthian Soothſayer, who killed Timophanes the Tyrant, and deliver'd his Country : Another who was Brother to St. Ambroſe, famous for Goodneſs and Prudence : Another, who becauſe he would not renounce his Religion, was thrown to the Lions to be devoured, under the Emperor Valerian : Another, who was a Stage-Player, and uſed to imitate Demoſthenes on the Stage ; and being obſerved by Philip to be very penſive at celebrating the Triumph for taking of Olinthus, he enquired the reaſon, and why he alone asked him no Boon ? Satyrus laying hold on the opportunity, generouſly deſired and obtained, that his Landlords two Daughters, who were taken Captives, might be reſtored. Hoffman.

SAVA, the Save or Saw, a River of Germany, which hath its Riſe in the Province of Carniola, near to Carinthia, and falls into the Danube at Belgrade in Hungary. It riſes in the Upper Carniola from two Fountains in the Confines of the Upper Carinthia, about three Leagues South of Villacum ; and then running Eaſtward through both the Carniola's, and ſeparating Sclavonia from Croatia, Boſnia and Servia, after a courſe of 300 Miles it falls into the Danow at Taurun, being ſwelled with the Rivers Laubac, Conora, Colapi, Vana and Drine. Claudian. The Waters of this River are clear, and it has ſeveral Iſlands, whereof ſome had conſiderable Roman Towns.

SAVA, a great City of Perſia in a barren Plain, not far from Mount Alouvent. It's two Miles round, ſtrongly wall'd, but ill inhabited. It was firſt built by the Saracens, and ſince by the Perſians. Longit. 85. 00. Lat. 35. 50. Chardin's Travels.

SAVAGE (Sir Thomas) the Nineteenth Knight of the Ancient and Noble Family of Rock Savage in Cheſhire, married Elizabeth the eldeſt Daughter and at length Co-heir to Thomas Lord Darcy of Chich in Eſſex ; and upon the Advancement of the ſame Thomas Lord Darcy to the Dignity of Viſcount Colcheſter, the 5th. of July, 19 Jac. I. obtained that that Title of Honour ſhould deſcend to him and the Heirs Male of his Body, in Reverſion after the death of him the ſaid Thomas Lord Darcy, without Iſſue Male of his Body : As alſo in 2 Car. I. by another Patent bearing date the 4th of November, the Dignity of Earl Rivers, after the death of the ſaid Viſcount Colcheſter without Iſſue Male of his Body, he being then advanced to that Degree of Honour. Sir Thomas had ſeven Sons, and ſix Daughters. His eldeſt Son John ſucceeded him, who by the death of the before-ſpecified Thomas Earl of Rivers, in 1639, enjoy'd that Title. This Earl died the 10th of October, in the year 1654, and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt Son Thomas, who has had two Sons, Thomas Lord Colcheſter, and Richard, which Thomas married Charlot Daughter of Charles late Earl of Derby. Thomas died without Iſſue ; Richard ſucceeded his Father in Eſtate and Honour, and is Captain of the Third Troop of Guards.

SAVANAROLA (Hieronymus) a Fryar of the Order of St. Dominick, was born at Ferrara, and lived towards the end of the Fifteenth Century. He was a Man of great Piety, Learning and Eloquence, which made him to be highly cheriſhed by all good Men. But nothing was more obſervable in him than his extraordinary Zeal for God, which put him upon a bold reproving of the Abuſes of the Court of Rome, and a ſharp inveighing againſt the flagitious Life of Pope Alexander VI. Some time after, this excellent Man being prohibited to Preach any more, he thought it his Duty to obey God rather than Man, and went on with his open reproving of the Vices of the Court of Rome; whereupon he was caſt into Priſon, and at laſt, by the Command of Pope Alexander VI. with two of his Companions, Florentinus and Dominicus de Piſis, condemn'd to be hang'd and burnt, which was executed accordingly in the 46th Year of his Age, An. Dom. 1498. Whilſt he was in Priſon he wrote ſome Meditations upon the 30th and 51ſt Pſalm, as likewiſe his Book de Triumpho Crucis. He alſo propheſied of the Deſtruction of Florence and Rome, and the Reformation of the Church. Joannes Fr. Picus de Mirandula and Marcilius Ficinus have writ in Defence of him, and celebrated him for a Prophet. Beſides the Pieces already mention'd, he hath writ Commentaries upon the 50th, 70th and 71ſt Pſalms, and Sermons upon Ezekiel, Amos, Haggai, &c. and An Expoſition of the Lord's Prayer. Luther called him A Fore-runner of the Reformation, and Beza has inſerted him amongſt his Famous Men. Guicchiard lib. 3. Hiſtor. Phil. de Comines lib.8. cap.12. Bzovius and Spondanus in Annal. Sixtus Senenſis lib. 4. Bibl. S. Paul Jovius in Elog.

SAVERNE, Tabernæ Alſatiæ, a City of the Lower Alſatia under the Biſhop of Strasburg, and his uſual Reſidence, who is Lord of it. It is ſeated at the foot of ſome Mountains near the Frontiers of Lorrain, upon the River Sor, in the High Road that goes to Strasburg, Spire, Francfort, and the chief Cities of Germany; wherefore alſo it is inhabited by many rich Merchants. It lies four Miles from Strasburgh to the North, and as many from Hagenaw to the Weſt towards Nancy. The Inhabitants call it Zabern or Elſaſzabern. There is another Town of this Name in the Palatinate called Bergzabern, upon the River Erlbach, towards the Mountains, on the Borders of the Lower Alſatia, burnt in the year 1675; and a third called Rhinezabern, likewiſe in the Palatinate, where the River Erlbach runs into the Rhine, about two miles from Philipsburg, and three from Spires. Near the Severne in Alſace, Anthony Duke of Lorrain defeated the Lutherans in 1525.

SAVIGLIANO, Savilianum, a great Town in Piedmont upon the River Magra, under the Duke of Savoy, between Foſſano to the Eaſt, and Saluces to the Weſt, ſix miles from either, and two and twenty from Turin. Its ſituation is very pleaſant, and it is capable of being made very ſtrong, as lying between two Rivers; wherefore alſo Philibert Emanuel Duke of Savoy thought to make it the Capital of his Dominions. It's thought to be ſituated the beſt of any Town in Italy.

SAVILE (Sir John) deſcended of the Ancient and Noble Family of Thornhill, underwent the Office of Sheriff for the County of Lincoln in 32 Eliz. and ſerved in divers Parliaments in King James the Firſt's and the beginning of King Charles the Firſt's Reign; and by Letters Patents bearing date the 21ſt of July, 4 Car. was advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Savile of Pontfract. Sir Thomas Savile, his third Son, ſucceeded in his Honour, was ſoon after made Viſcount Savile of Baſtle-Barr in Ireland, as alſo Comptroller of the King's Houſhold; whereupon attending His Majeſty at Oxford in the late Troubles, he was by Letters Patents bearing date the 25th of May, the 25th of that Prince's Reign, dignified with the Title of Earl of Suſſex. His Son Thomas married two Wives, firſt Frances Daughter to Sir Michael Sands of Throuley in the County of Kent, Kt. ſecondly the Lady Anne Daughter to Chriſtopher Earl of Angleſey, and at length ſole Heir to Charles Earl of Angleſey her Brother, by whom he had Iſſue James his Succeſſor in that Honour, who married Anne Daughter of Robert Wake a Merchant in Antwerp, and died in the year 1671, without Iſſue; as alſo Frances a Daughter, married to Francis Lord Brudenel Son and Heir to Robert Earl of Cardigan.

SAVILE (Sir George) Son of Sir George Savile of Thornhill Knight and Baronet, by Mary his Wife Daughter to George late Earl of Shrewsbury, was for Services to King Charles I. and II. advanced by the latter, in the 19th year of his Reign, to the Degree of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Savile of Eland in Com. Ebor. and likewiſe to the Dignity of a Viſcount, by the Name of Viſcount Hallifax, and afterwards to the Dignity of Marqueſs. He firſt married Dorothy Daughter to Henry Lord Spencer Earl of Sunderland, by whom he hath Iſſue Henry, William, and George, and one Daughter call'd Anne; ſecondly, Gertrude Daughter to William Pierpont of Thoresby in the County of Nottingham Eſq; ſecond Son to Robert late Earl of Kingſton upon Hull.

SAVILE (Sir Henry) born at Bradley in the Pariſh of Hallifax in Yorkſhire, of ancient and Noble Extraction, bred in Oxford, became Warden of Merton College, and after Provoſt of Eaton. He carefully collected the beſt Copies of St. Chryſoſtom, which he publiſh'd with Annotations at his own coſt: But the Roman Catholicks at Paris having ſome Agents in England, ſurreptitiouſly procur'd this Knight's learned Labours, and ſent them over weekly by the Poſt thither; where Fronto Ducæus a French Jeſuit had them printed letter for letter, joining a Latin Tranſlation, and ſome other inconſiderable Additions. Sir Henry was alſo an excellent Mathematician, as his learned Lectures on Euclid manifeſtly ſhew. This learned Man was born in the year 1549, and died in 1621.

SAVIO, Lat. Sapis or Iſapis, a River of Italy, which riſing in the Appennine, twelve miles from Sarſenia, runs through Romandia, and falls into the Adriatick Gulf five miles Weſt of Servia.

St. SAVIOUR, a Monaſtery of Franciſcans at Jeruſalem, in the Weſtern part of that City, between the Gate of the Caſtle and that of Damaſcus. It is a Place of Entertainment for all the Weſtern Chriſtians that come on Pilgrimage to the Holy Land, whether they be Romaniſts, Lutherans or Calviniſts, as long as they ſtay at Jeruſalem; neither may they take up their Lodging any where elſe, upon pain of paying a great Mulct. The Guardian of this Convent has Epiſcopal Juriſdiction and Spiritual Authority over all Latin Chriſtians that come there.

SAVIOURS, a ſort of White Wizards, whom the Spaniards call Saludadores, that is, Saviours. They are a ſort of Impoſtors or Magicians, who pretend to cure Diſeaſes with their Spittle, or their Breath, and ſometimes with their Prayers. Delrio ſaith, they obſerve certain Numbers and Ceremonies full of Superſtition. Moſt of theſe Fellows have the mark of a whole Wheel or the piece of a Wheel imprinted on their Bodies, which they call St. Catharine's Wheel, and pretend themſelves to be of kin to that Saint, and that they are born with that Figure upon them, though indeed they have made it themſelves: They boaſt that Fire cannot hurt them, and that they handle it without being burnt by it. There is another ſort of theſe Saludadores in Italy, who ſay they are of St. George's Kindred, and carry the figure of a Serpent on their Bodies, which they perſuade People to be natural: Theſe pretend that they cannot be hurt by any Serpents or Scorpions. Peucerus and Delrio note them for Impoſtors and Magicians.

SAUL, the firſt King of Iſrael: He was the Son of Kiſh, of the Tribe of Benjamin. His Death happened in the Year of the World 2979, after twenty Years Reign. Saint Paul, in the Acts of the Apoſtles, ſays that he reigned forty Years, but he comprehends the twenty of Samuel's Government. As to the buſineſs of the Witch of Endor, conſulted by Saul, though there are probable Reaſons againſt the reality of Samuel's Apparition to Saul, ſeveral Authors making no better of it than a Diabolical Illuſion; yet the contrary opinion is generally believed the trueſt, as appears both by the 46th Chapter of Eccleſiaſticus, where 'tis ſaid, Samuel propheſied after his death, and ſhewed the King his end, &c. and likewiſe by the Witch of Endor's being much ſurprized at the Apparition of Samuel, the Ghoſt appearing before ſhe had gone through with her Conjuring Ceremonies, 1 Sam. ch. 28. Joſeph. l. 6. Antiq. Jud. Sulpicius Severus L.

SAULIUS, a King of the Scythians, who ſucceeded his Father Gnurus. He reigned in the time of Solon, and was the Brother of Anacharſis ſo famous for his Wiſdom, whom he kill'd with a Javelin, becauſe he had endeavoured to introduce the Athenian Laws amongſt the Scythians. He had another Brother named Calvida who reigned jointly with him, to whom he left the Kingdom after his Death. His Son Idathirſus ſucceeded his Uncle Suidas.

SAULT, in Latin Saltus, a Caſtle and County in France, on the Borders of Dauphiné and Vendoſmois, ſeven Leagues Eaſt of Carpentras, and four North from Apte in Provence.

SAULX, an illuſtrious Family of France, which hath taken the Sirname of Tavannes. Gaſpar de Saulx, Lord of Tavannes, Knight of the Order of France, and Governour of Provence, was one of the moſt famous Captains of his time. He was at firſt a Page of the Stable to Francis I. and was taken Priſoner at the Battle of Pavia. Charles Duke of Orleance, the King's ſecond Son, took him into his Service, and made him his Companion in all his mad Extravagancies. He was in Foſſan when it was beſieged by the Imperialiſts in 1536. He aſſiſted at the taking of Damvilliers, Yvoi and Luxemburg, and ſignalized his Courage at the Battle of Cerizoles in 1544, and at that of Renti. He cut off Eight hundred of the Garriſon of Calais, and took Four hundred Priſoners, and was preſent at the Siege of that Place in 1558. Whereupon the French King beſtowed upon

beſtowed upon him the Lieutenancy of Burgundy. Henry II. the Son of Francis I. made him Mareſchal de Camp. After the King's Death he joyned himſelf to the Party of the Duke of Guiſe. During the Civil Wars he gave many Inſtances of his Valour. He reſcued the Kings Army near to Pamprou in Poitou, and was at the Battels of Jarnac, Roche, Abeille, and Moncontour, and not long after the King beſtowed upon him a Marſhals Staff in 1570. He is ſaid to have had a great hand in the St. Bartholomew Maſſacre.

SAUMAISE (Claude) Claudius Salmaſius, a famous and learned Critick, born in Burgundy, and was the Son of Benigne, Lord of Saumaiſe le Duc, a Village of Auxois, and Counſellor or Member in the Parliament of Dijon; but his Mother being a Proteſtant, he was Educated in that Religion. When he was but 10 Years of Age, he made good Latin and Greek Verſes; afterwards he followed his Studies at Paris and Heidelberg, and then returning to his Fathers Houſe, he continued his Application to Critical Learning with great diligence; and ſome time after was called to Leyden to ſucceed Scaliger in the quality of Honorary Profeſſor. Having taken a Journey into France, Cardinal Richelieu ſent for him, and offered him a Penſion to oblige him to ſtay in that Kingdom, and to write his Life, but could not prevail with him to accept of it. The Queen of Sweden alſo ſent for him, at whoſe Deſire he went thither, and ſtaid a whole Summer at Stockholme; and being returned to Holland, he accompanied his Wife to the Spaw in Germany, where he died in two days after his Arrival, in 1652. The Reader may ſee his Life prefix'd to his Epiſtles, with a Catalogue of his Works. Laur. Craſſo.

SAUMUR, Salmuria, a City of France in Anjou upon the River Loyre, pleaſantly ſituated at the Foot of a Hill, with very delightful Walks and Pleaſure-Houſes round about it. It hath a Caſtle ſtanding on a Hill. The Proteſtants had an Univerſity here 'till it was put down in 1684, and the Perſecution of them about that time hath reduced this City to a Deſert, which before was very flouriſhing and populous, by the Numbers the Proteſtants drew thither.

SAUNOI, Lat. Salonenſis Ager, a Country between the Syle and Nied in the Dioceſe of Mets in France.

SAVOLAX, Lat. Savolaxia, a County of Sweden, in the Province of Finland, having no Town of note. It has Kakolm to the Eaſt, Tavaſtia to the Weſt, Carelia to the South, and Muſcovy to the North.

SAVONA, Savo, Sanna, a City of Liguria, ſituate in the State of Genoua, with a Biſhops See under the Archbiſhop of Milan, being very populous, and defended by two Caſtles. It is the ſecond City of the Republick, but the Genoueſe ruined the Haven of it, becauſe the French demanded it to make it a Magazine for Salt. This City ſtands 25 Miles from Genoua to the Weſt, and as many from Alberga to the Eaſt. Alſo an Iſland of the ſame Name (called Saona by the Spaniards who are Maſters of it) in South America, near to San Domingo, but of ſmall account, and but thinly Inhabited. The Italian Savona is noted as the Birth-place of the Popes Gregory VII. Julius II. and Sixtus IV. The Harbour, beſides Ships ſunk in it is made up with Maſons Work, to make it uſeleſs, and prevent the further Importunities of the French.

SAVONNIERS, an ancient Town within a League of Toul in Lorrain. An. 859 a Provincial Council, called Concilium ad Saponarias, was held here by Charles the Bald King of France, and Nicholas I.

SAVOY, Sabaudia, Sapaudia, a Sovereign Dukedom in Europe. It was of old a part of Gallia Narbonenſis, and the North part of the Country poſſeſſed by the Allobroges; and beſides them, was inhabited of old by the Centrones, Brannovices, Nantuates, Latobrigi, and Sabaudi; for the Latin Name Sabaudia is no new Name, Proſper Aquitanus having uſed it above a thouſand Years ago. This Dukedom is bounded on the North by the Lake of Geneva and the River Rhoſne, on the Weſt by the River Rhoſne, on the South by Dauphine, and on the Eaſt by Piedmont and Vallais or Walliſſerlandt. The whole Country is very mountainous, and generally barren, the Valleys excepted. It is divided into ſix Parts, viz. Savoy, properly ſo called, the Territory of Geneva, La Maurienne, La Tarantaiſe, Le Foſſigni, and Le Chablais. The chief City formerly was Geneva, but that being now a Free-State, the chiefeſt under the Duke of Savoy is Chamberri, the reſt are Jean de Maurienne, Annecy, Cluſe, Mouſtiere, Montmeillan, and Thonon. Savoy, upon the declining of the Roman Empire under Honorius, was left as a Prey to ſeveral barbarous Nations, but at laſt it came under the Dominion of the Princes that at preſent are poſſeſt of it, who derive their Pedigree from one Bertoldus or Beroldus, who in the XI. Century was the Riſe of this Family. The Learned are very much at difference about the Birth of this Prince and his Extraction: Some derive it from Ancharius Marqueſs of Turee, others from Hugo King of Italy and Duke of Provence; others ſay he was the Nephew of Hugh Capet, and others make him a Deſcendant of the Counts of Macon. Above fourſcore Hiſtorians of ſeveral Nations follow Guichenon, who derives his Genealogy from Wittekindus the Great Duke of Saxony and Angria, Grandfather of Hugo Marqueſs of Italy, who was Father of this Beroldus Earl of Savoy and Maurienne, and had for his Succeſſor Humbert ſirnamed White Hands. But ſome French Authors of late have endeavoured to make out, That there was never any ſuch Man as Beroldus of Saxony, and have found that this Humbert was Grandchild of the Emperor Lewis the Son of Boſon, the Son of Beuvil Count of Ardenna, and deſcended from Pharamond, or as others, from Charlemagne. Others derive the Name from one Sapandus, quaſi Sapaudia, and ſay the Country was given by Charlemagne to one of his Sons, adding, its Dominions were larger in 1322 than now. Monetus ſays, the Length from Lake Leman to Mount Ceniſſo is 40 Savoyard or 60 French Leagues, and from one of the Heads of Lake Leman to the other 20 French Leagues broad; but from the Eaſtern Bank of the Rhone to the Maritime Alps it is half as broad again. The Princes of this Country were formerly called Counts of Maurienne, and Savoy, but were dignified with the Title of Duke by the Emperor Sigiſmund, An. 1417. They now call themſelves Dukes of Savoy, Chablais, Aoſt, and the Canton of Geneva; Princes of Piedmont, Marquiſes of Saluce, Counts of Geneve, Romont, Nice, Aſte and Tende, Barons of Fauſigny, Lords of Verceilles, and Marqueſs of Italy. Hoffm. Schowart treats of their Genealogy thus, That it is certainly one of the ancienteſt Families in Europe; ſo that there is no certainty to be had concerning their Original; but this is out of all doubt, ſays he, That in the beginning of the Eleventh Age Beroldus was Marqueſs of Italy, Count of Savoy and Maurienne, and died An. 1023. His Son was Humbert I. called White Hands, died in 1048, ſucceeded by his Son Odo, who to the former Titles had the Addition of Lord of Chablais, Valois, Aoſt, Marqueſs of Suſa, and Duke of Turin: He died in 1091, ſucceeded by Amadeus II. and he by Humbert II. who had the Addition of Lord of Piedmont, &c. and died Nov. 18. 1103, leaving his Provinces to his eldeſt Son Amadeus III. who died in an Expedition into the Holy Land, at Nicoſia in 1149, ſucceed by his Son Humbert III, called the Saint, who died March 4. 1186, ſucceed by his Son Thomas I. who was made Vicar General of the Empire in Lombardy and Piedmont; he died May 20, 1233, leaving a numerous Iſſue. Amadeus IV. his Son, had Boniface ſirnamed Roland, who died Childleſs in 1263, ſucceed by his Uncle Philip, who died alſo without Iſſue, Nov. 17. 1285. ſucceeded by his Brother Thomas II. who died in 1259, leaving 3 Sons, viz. Thomas III. of Savoy, whoſe Son Philip ſucceeded his Grand-Uncle Philip in Piedmont, the Marquiſate of Suſa being excepted: but that Branch failed An. 1418, in Lewis of Savoy. Amadeus V. ſecond Son to Thomas II. for his gallant Atchievements was called Great, and in 1310 created a Prince of the Empire by the Emperor Henry VI, and died Oct. 16. An. 1323, ſucceeded by Edward who did in 1329 without Iſſue Male. His Brother Aimon the Pacifick ſucceeded, and died June 24. 1343, leaving a Son called Amadeus VI. and his Son Amadeus VII. ſirnamed the Red, was Father to Amadeus VIII. who Febr. 19. 1416. was created Duke of Savoy by the Emperor Sigiſmund. In 1418 he inherited the Land of his Kinſman Lewis in Italy. In 1434 he devolved the Government upon his Son Lewis, and betaking himſelf to a Religious Life, died An. 1451. His Son Lewis Marrying Anna Daughter to the King of Cyprus, died in 1465, ſucceeded by his Son Amadeus IX. who died in 1472, ſucceeded by his Son Car. II. who died in 1490, ſucceeded by Charles John Amadeus Duke of Savoy and King of Cyprus, who died without Iſſue, An. 1496. Philip without Land, ſecond Son to Amadeus VIII, ſucceeded in his old Age, and died Nov. 7. 1479, leaving for Heir his Son Philibert II. who died without Children, Sept. 10. 1504, and was ſucceeded by his Brother Car. III. and he dying in 1553, was ſucceeded by his Son Emanuel Philibert, who in his Youth applied himſelf to Military Affairs in the Camp of the Emperor Charles V. He Married Margaret Daughter to Francis I. King of France, died Aug. 30. 1580, leaving only one Son, Charles Emanuel, Duke of Savoy, and King of Cyprus, of a ſublime Wit, happy Memory, and very learned, eſpecially in the Mathematicks: He waged War with France, but unſucceſsfully: He Married Katharine Daughter to Philip II. of Spain, and died July 26. 1630. His Children were Philip Emanuel Prince of Piedmont, who died in 1605, Victor Amadeus who ſucceeded, Emanuel Philibert, who was one of the Knights of Jeruſalem, Prince of Oneglia, Viceroy of Sicily, and died at Pannoni in 1625. Margaret Married to Francis Gonzaga Duke of Mantua. Iſabella Married to the Duke of Modena. Maurice, first Cardinal, then Prince of Oneglia, who died without Iſſue; Mary and Frances both Nuns;

Thomas Franciſcus Prince of Carignan, and Joanna who died An. 1597. Victor Amadeus ſucceeded his Father, and was a great Lover of Peace; but a War breaking out betwixt the French and Spaniard, he ſided with the former, and died of a Fever, Oct. 7. 1637. He Married a Daughter of Henry IV. of France, by whom he had Aloiſia Maria Chriſtina Married to her Uncle Maurice Prince of Oneglia. Francis who died in 1632. and Charles Emanuel. Margaret Married to Rainutius Duke of Parma in 1660. Adelais Married to Ferdinand Elector of Bavaria in 1652, and Katharine who died in 1637. Charles Emanuel ſucceeded his Father, being a Prince of great Endowments both in Body and Mind, and extremely ſkilful in managing the Great Horſe, and all Warlike Exerciſes, for which he erected an Academy at Turin, and died much lamented June 12. 1675. In 1663 he Married Magdalen Daughter to the Duke of Orleans, and after her death his Kinſwoman Mary, Daughter to the Duke of Nemours, by whom he had Victor Amadeus Franciſcus II. the preſent Duke of Savoy, born May 17. 1666, and on April 9. 1684. he Married Anna Maria Daughter to the Duke of Orleans, by whom he has two Daughters, Mary born December 6. 1685, Married to the D. of Burgundy, and another, whoſe Name we know not, born Aug. 30, 1688, beſides a Son born ſince the Match with France. From Thomas Son to Charles Emanuel I. are deſcended by Mary of Bourbon Daughter to the Count of Soiſſons, Aloiſe Married to the Marq. of Baden, Emanuel Philibert who Married Mary Katharine of Eſt, Eugenius Mauritius who Married Olympia Niece to Cardinal Mazarin, by whom he had Lewis Thomas Count of Soiſſons, who Married Urania Daughter to the Lord of Beauvois, Decemb. 17. 1682. Philip born 1659, and Franciſcus Eugenius ſo much talked of in the late Wars, born in 1665. Schowart. Obſerv. Hiſt Geneal. In 1695, he in Conjunction with the Germans and Spaniards took Caſal, but the Year following made a ſeparate Peace with France; by virtue of which, all his Country, as alſo Pignerol Diſmantled, was reſtored to him, and a ſolemn Act of Surrendry made by the French King of it, and his Daughter Married to the Duke of Burgundy.

SAVOY (Renatus of) Count of Villers, was the Natural Son of Philip I. Duke of Savoy; Philibert Duke of Savoy his Uncle, made him Lieutenant General of his Dominions in 1500, but he kept not that place long, for the Duke having Married Margaret of Auſtria, ſhe conceived a great averſion againſt him, becauſe of the Eſteem he had for the French: For this Princeſs thinking her ſelf highly affronted by Charles VIII. who quitted her after that he had deſired her in Marriage, was reſolved to revenge her ſelf on all thoſe that favoured his Intereſt; whereupon Renatus retired to France in 1502, and betook himſelf to the Service of Lewis XII. whom he accompanied in his ſolemn Entrance into Genoua, and made him afterwards Governour and Seneſchal of Provence. After the Death of the King his Credit increaſed at Court, being favoured by Louiſa of Savoy Mother of Francis I. He ſignalized his Courage at the Battle of Marignan, where he commanded 700 Lances of the Kings Guards, and 7000 Germans. The King ſent him to Swiſſerland in 1521, to conclude a new Treaty with the Cantons, whereby to engage them in the Kings Service, who at that time intended a Conqueſt of the Dutchy of Milan; he raiſed 16000 Swiſſers for the King, and brought them to Milan, and was at the Battle of Bicoque in 1522, and 1523. At laſt the King being arrived in Italy to command his Army, he gave Battle to the Imperialiſts at Pavia in 1525, where Renatus of Savoy was wounded and taken Priſoner, and died of his Wounds there. Guichenon.

SAVOY (Thomas Francis of) Prince of Carignan, Grand Maſter of France, and General of the French King's Armies in Italy, was the Son of Charles Emanuel Duke of Savoy, and of Katharine Michaela of Auſtria; he was born December 21. in the Year 1596. At the Age of ſixteen he followed his Father to the Siege of Trin, fought couragiouſly at that of Aſt, and ſignalized himſelf at the taking of Meſſeran, Felizzan, and at the Fight of Corniento. In 1625, when the Duke of Savoy had proclaimed War againſt the Genoueſe, he by his Conduct prevented the routing of the French King's Army under Leſdiguieres, at the paſſage of the River Orba. He was with the Prince of Piedmont his Brother at the Retreat of Baſtagne, and forced the Spaniards to raiſe the Siege of Aſt. The War in Italy being ended by the Treaty of Moncon, he thought of ſetling himſelf in France, but Richelieu being his Enemy, he was forced to ſerve the King of Spain. In 1624 he had married the Count of Soiſſons Daughter at St. Germain. He went to the Low-Countries with the Cardinal Infant in 1634, ſurprized the City of Treves, and took the Archbiſhop Priſoner in 1635, he forced the Hollanders to raiſe the Siege of Breda. In 1636 he entred Picardy, took la Chapelle, ſtormed Bouchain, took Caſtelet, Corbie and other places. In 1637 he raiſed the Siege of St. Omer, hindred the taking of Heſdin, ſaved Gelders beſieged by the Prince of Orange. Some time after coming into the Dutchy of Milan, he proclaimed War againſt the Dutcheſs of Savoy his Siſter-in-Law, laying claim to the Regency of that State during the Minority of the Prince his Nephew, and took from her ſeveral places. Turin put a ſtop to his Victories, whereupon he made his Peace with the French King in 1640, but that Treaty being broke, he took part again with Spain, but was reconciled again to France in 1642. In 1643, being Commander of the French King's and the Dutcheſs of Savoys Forces, he retook ſeveral places from the Spaniards, but was unhappy in his Attempt on Final, whence he was fain to retreat becauſe the French Fleet came too late to ſecond his Enterprize. In 1645 he entred the Dutchy of Milan, and took Vigevano and Mortava important Places, but returning into Piedmont, the Spaniards defeated his Rear-guard. In 1646 he came into France, and from thence returning to Italy, was unſucceſsful in his Deſign on Orbitella, as the Year following in his undertaking againſt Cremona. In 1648 he was Commander of the French Navy, but without Succeſs. In 1655 he laid Siege to Pavia with the joint Forces of the Duke of Modena, but upon ſome Jealouſie ariſing between them, and the vigorous reſiſtance of the Beſieged, he was fain to raiſe the Siege. He died at Turin 1656, being Seventy Years of Age, and was interred in the Sepulchres of the Princes of Savoy.

SAVOYSY (Charles de) was Lord High Treaſurer of France in 1383, who for maintaining ſome of his Domeſticks in their Inſolence againſt the Univerſity of Paris, was excommunicated and baniſh'd the Kingdom, and had his Country Houſe pull'd down; and being abſolved from his Excommunication by the Pope, he equip'd four Gallies againſt the Saracens, of whom he took great Riches, with which he returned to France, and brought along with him many Saracens who he employed in the Building of the Caſtle of Segnelay, in Auxerrois. Guil. Paradin.

SAURA, Lat. Iſauria, a City of the Leſſer-Aſia, and Biſhops See, Suffragan of Iconium. It ſtands in South Galatia not far from Piſidia.

SAUROMATÆ, a Northern People of Europe, ſuppoſed to be the ſame with the Sarmatians, partly in Europe, partly in Aſia, being divided by the River Tanais. Hippocrates de aere, locis, &c. deſcribes them thus. In Europe, ſays he, there is a Scythian Nation aboutt he Lake Mœotis, which differs very much from all others; their Women fight on Horſe-back with Bows and Arrows ſo long as they are unmarried; neither do they marry till they have killed three Enemies, and perform the Sacred Rites of their Country; and as ſoon as married, they are freed from ſerving in the Wars, except the Defence of their Country require it. And while they are young, they burn their right Breaſt, that it may not grow, alledging, that their right Shoulder and Arm are thereby ſtrengthned. Hippocrates.

SAXE-LAWENBURG, a City and Dukedom of the Lower-Saxony upon the River Elbe. This Duke now profeſſes the Roman Catholick Religion. In the Year 1423, the Emperor Sigiſmond depoſed the Dukes of Saxe-Lawenburg from the Electoral Dignity, for Failure of demanding their Inveſtiture of him in due time, and made Frederick the Warlike, Duke and Elector of Saxony, who was of the ancient Family of Wittekindus the Great, and Father of Frederick the Peaceful, who had two Sons, Erneſtus and Albertus the Couragious, from whom the preſent Electors of Saxony derive their Pedigree. They who would know more of the Antiquities of Saxony, may conſult Meibomii ad Hiſtoriam Saxonia inferioris introductio. The Duke of this name keeps his Reſidence in the Caſtle of Lawenburg, and has another called Ertemberg on the other ſide the Elbe, and both form a very important Paſſage.

SAXENHAUSEN, a Town of the County of Waldeck, as alſo part of the City of Frankfort on the Main, which lying on the other ſide of the River, is joyn'd to it by a Bridge. Here is Bartholomew Church conſecrated to our Saviour by Pepin King of France, and ſplendidly endowed by his Son Charlemagne, but ſince the Reign of the Emperor Lewis IV. its Revenues are diminiſhed, becauſe the College holds rather of the Pope than the Emperor and Empire. Limn. Enuc.

SAXMUNDHAM, a Market Town of Plumſgate Hundred in the Eaſt parts of Suffolk.

SAXO GRAMMATICUS, the Famous Author of the Daniſh Hiſtory, was Provoſt of the Church of Roſchild, and flouriſhed in the Twelfth Century. His Hiſtory comprized in ſix Books, eſpecially at the beginning, contains many things that ſeem Fabulous, but the whole is very elegantly writ, and in a Stile which far tranſcends the Rudeneſs of the Age in which he lived. Eraſmus gives him this Elogy, Dania nobis dedit Saxonem Grammaticum, qui ſuæ Gentis Hiſtoriam ſplendidè, magnificéque contexuit, &c. Voſſius de Hiſtor. lat. lib. 2. c. 55.

SAXONS, the Inhabitants of Saxony, who in former times were great Pirates, and Sacrificed the Priſoners they took to their Gods. They made ſo great a Difference between thoſe that were Free-Born, and ſuch as were Slaves; and between thoſe who were Noble, and others that were of the common People, that they made it Capital for any to Marry out of their Rank and Condition. As to their Religion they were Idolaters, and dedicated to their Gods Groves of the talleſt Trees and thick Foreſts, and there worſhipped them without building them any Temples, or repreſenting them by any Figures or Images. They were extreamly addicted to Divinations, not only Superſtitiouſly obſerving the Flight and Chattering of Birds, but alſo the Neighing of Horſes; whence they took Conjectures concerning the Event of their moſt Important Affairs. They were of old very Strong and Luſty, and are ſo ſtill, by reaſon of the great quanity of Meat they are uſed to eat, as being accuſtomed to it from their very Infancy; for the Mothers feed their Children with Fleſh Meat, which they chew for them, and not with Milk or other kind of Pottage. They are very much inclin'd to Drunkenneſs, and were converted to the Faith in the Reign of Charlemagne, and in the laſt Century embraced the Doctrine of Luther. Some derive the Original of the Saxons from the Saci a People of Aſia: And others ſay they were ſo called from the word Saxum, as Barbarous and Hard-hearted: But Hoffman rejects both theſe as Fabulous, ſaying, it is unreaſonable to think that a German People ſhould aſſume a Latin Name. Wittichindus Corbeienſis, lib. 1. Annal. ſays, They had their Name from a great Knife or Dagger called Sahs, which they carried under their Garments when they came to Treat with the Thuringians, with whom they had been long in War: it being agreed that both of them ſhould come without Arms: And taking their Opportunity, they cut off the Thuringians in that ſame manner as their Succeſſors cut off the Britains here in England; and hence Gotfr. Viterb. Chron. ſays,

> Pax ubi congeritur ſub fraude Macedo veretur,
> Ne male fruſtretur ſi totus inermis habetur.
> Unde breves Gladios clam tulit arte ſecus,
> Ipſe brevis Gladius apud illos Saxo vocatur,
> His quoque cultellis vita redempta fuit.

Reineccius thinks that the Name comes from Sache Judges, becauſe of the Equity of their Laws. Munſter.

SAXONY, a large Country in Germany, in Latin, Saxonia, and by the Germans called Sachſen, which is either conſidered as an Electorate, or as a far larger Country, which contains two Circles of the German Empire, called the Upper and the Lower Circles of Saxony: The Lower Saxony contains the Dukedoms of Brunſwick, Lunenburg, Magdeburg, Bremen, Mechlenburg, Holſtein and Lawenburg; the Principalities of Ferden and Halberſtat, and the Biſhoprick of Hildeſheim: The Upper Circle of Saxony, contains the Marquiſate of Brandenburg, Pomerania, Thuringia, Miſnia, the Dutchy of Saxony, properly ſo called, and the Principality of Anhalt. The Electorate of Saxony is a Province of Germany, which is bounded on the Eaſt by Luſatia, on the North by the Marquiſate of Brandenburg, on the Weſt by the Principality of Anhalt, and on the South by Miſnia. The Capital City is Wittemberg. The Duke of Saxony has the eighth place amongſt the Electors, and beſides this Dutchy, he is Sovereign of Miſnia, of a great part of Thuringia and Luſatia, and of part of the County of Mansfeldt, &c. Saxony of old, beſides the two Circles already mentioned, contained Weſtphalia, and ſeveral other Territories. The ancient Saxons were a very Warlike People, that made themſelves Formidable to their Neighbours: After they were become very Powerful in Germany, part of them tranſported themſelves into Great Britain where they eſtabliſh'd their Heptarchy, being called by Vortigern to aſſiſt him againſt the Scots and Picts, and had Kent aſſigned them in 449, turning their Arms afterwards againſt the Britains, they were defeated by Aurelius Ambroſius in 456. but Oſca and Otha, Hengiſt's Sons, did afterwards Conquer him, and he died in 488. They were defeated again afterwards in the Reign of Uter Pendragon, a German Biſhop ſinging Alleluja during the Engagement; but Cretitius the Saxon, with his Son Henry, coming to their Aſſiſtance, about 518 he eſtabliſhed the Kingdom of the Weſt-Saxons, and about 580 many of them being converted by Auguſtin and Melitus, they became one Nation with the Britains. In the ſixth Century the Saxons of Germany began to make frequent Incurſions into the French Dominions; Charlemagne had War with them for thirty Years, and had always the Goodneſs to pardon them when ſubdued; who ſeeing they were not able to make Head againſt him, ſubmitted themſelves to be Baptized; but this being only a feigned Devotion, as ſoon as they found themſelves in eaſe, they maſſacred their Prieſts, and all the French-men that were in their Country. Wittekindus their Chief Commander all along gave great Proofs of his Courage, but notwithſtanding that, they were always beaten during the Life of Charlemagne, tho' ſoon after they ſhook off the French Yoke. This Wittekindus the laſt King of the Saxons, being Conquered by Charlemagne, was made the firſt Duke of Saxony upon his embracing of the Chriſtian Faith; and the Dukedom is ſtill in the ſame Family, though there was an Interruption of two hundred Years, beginning in the Year 1180, and ending in the Year 1423. To this Illuſtrious Houſe Germany in a great degree owes the Reformation of Luther; which if it had not been for John Frederick the thirtieth Duke, had been ſtifled in its Birth. The preſent Elector, (now King of Poland,) is the 38*th* Duke from Wittekindus, and the thirteenth ſince the reſtoring of the Line, and is the moſt ancient Prince in the Electoral College. He is by Birth-right Great Marſhal of the Empire.

The Genealogy of the Family of Saxony.

ALBERT III. Elector of Saxony, of the Family of Anhalt, dying without Iſſue by a ſudden Death, An. 1422. Frederick the Warlike, Son to Frederick the Stout, Marquis of Miſnia, and Landgrave of Thuringia, which Frederick, before he obtained the Electorate in 1409, Founded the Univerſity of Leipſick, had cruel Wars in Franconia againſt the Stellates, in Pruſſia againſt the Polanders, in Thuringia againſt the Counts of Schwartzeburg, Heldrung, Hoenſtein, and againſt the Elector of Brandenburg, and the Bohemian Huſſites, by whom he was defeated in a bloody Battle in 1426, and died in 1428. His Wife was Catharine Daughter to the Duke of Brunſwick, by whom he had Frederick the Good-natur'd his Succeſſor; two Daughters Married into the Families of Brandenburg and Heſſe. And William, who having Thuringia for his ſhare, made War at firſt with his Brother, to whom he was at laſt reconciled. He refuſed the Crown of Bohemia, Married the Emperor Albert the III*ds* Daughter, but having no Iſſue Male, adopted two of his Brother Frederick's Sons, and died in 1482. Frederick II. ſucceeded his Father, and ſuffered much from the Huſſites, he declined War with the Archbiſhop of Magdeburg; he Married Margaret of Auſtria, and died Sept. 7. 1464. leaving four Daughters, and two Sons. Amalia was Married to the Duke of Bavaria: Anna Married to the Elector of Brandenburg. Hedewig Abbeſs of Quedlinburg, who had ſome diſpute with the Townſmen, but quell'd them with the help of her Brother Albert: Margaret made Abbeſs of Senſelitz. Erneſt who ſucceeded his Father, and was Head of the Erneſtine Line, and Albert who was Firſt of the Albertine Line.

The Erneſtine Line.

ERNEST above-mentioned ſucceeded his Father in the Electorate, being very Prudent and Happy at compoſing Differences amongſt Neighbouring Princes, he purchaſed the Dutchy of Saga in Sileſia, Married Elizabeth of Bavaria, and died in 1484. His Daughter Chriſtina was Married to John King of Sweden and Denmark in 1478. Frederick III. born in 1463. ſucceeded his Father, and was called the Wiſe, he built the Caſtle of Witteberg, and founded an Univerſity there in 1501, he reconciled Philip Elector Palatine to the Emperor Maximilian, he pacified the People of Erford when mutinous againſt the Senate; he protected Luther in carrying on the Reformation, and kept him in the Caſtle of Wartburg after the Diet at Worms in 1521, he refuſed the Empire offered him after the Death of Maximilian I. and in 1525, during the tumultuous Inſurrection of the Boors, this Pious and Chaſte Prince never having been Married, died of the Stone, May 5. 1525. aged 63. His Brother Albert was Archbiſhop of Mentz, and died Young. Erneſt, another of his Brethren, was choſen Archbiſhop of Magdeburg, Adminiſtrator of Halberſtadt, and died in 1513. Margaret his Siſter was Married to the Duke of Cell. His Brother John ſucceeded, defeated the Boors near Frankenhuſen, having taken their General Thomas Muntzer. In 1529 he proteſted Solemnly with other Princes againſt Popery, whence came the name of Proteſtants. In 1530 he offered the Proteſtant or Augsburg Confeſſion to the Emperor Charles V. at the Diet of Augsburg, and ordered the Defence of it to be Printed: He was Author of the Smalcaldian League, and died Aug. 13. 1532. His firſt Wife was Sophia Daughter to the Duke of Mecklenburg; and his ſecond Margaret Daughter to the Prince of Anhalt: His Children were John Frederick his Succeſſor, Mary Married to the Duke of Pomerland, Margaret, and John Erneſt, who died without Iſſue. John Frederick ſucceeded his Father, and fell into a War with, and took Henry Duke of Brunſwick in 1545. and afterwards with the Emperor Charles V. but was defeated and taken in Lochan Foreſt not far from Milberg, April 24. 1546.

deprived of his Electoral Dignity, kept Priſoner till 1552, and died in 1554. His Wiſe was Sibylla Daughter to the Duke of Cleve, by whom he had John Frederick Duke of Saxony, who founded the Univerſity of Jena at his Father's command, an. 1548. He was impriſoned by the Emperor's order, for protecting Grumbachius, and his Caſtle of Grimmenſtein was raz'd; he died May 9. 1595. the twentieth year of his Impriſonment. His Wiſe was Elizabeth of the Palatinate, by whom he had Caſimir, John, and two others, who all died without Children. So that his Brother John William ſucceeded, and married Dorothy Suſanna Daughter to Frederick III. Elector Palatine, and died in 1573. His Son Frederick William I. ſucceeded, was Adminiſtrator of the Electorate of Saxony, and died July 7. 1602. He had two Wives, the firſt Sophia Daughter to the Duke of Wertemburg, the ſecond Anna Daughter to the Duke of Neuburg; he had ſeven Children, of whom there is nothing remarkable. John II. ſecond Son to Frederick William I. ſucceeded to the Principality of Winheim, married Dorothy Daughter to the Prince of Anhalt, and was Head of the Line of Winheim. His Children of whom there is any thing remarkable were John Erneſt, an Excellent, Prudent and Warlike Prince, who ſignalized himſelf on many occaſions; he died in Hungary, Decemb. 4. 1626. His third Son Frederick VII. died at a Battle in Brabant, aſſiſting the Duke of Brunſwick and Count Mansfield againſt the Count of Cordoua in 1622. His ninth Son Erneſt III. was the Founder of the Line of Gotha. His eleventh, Bernard, fill'd the World with his Fame, leaving behind a rare Example of a Prudent and Valiant General. The Victory of Lutzen, after the King of Sweden's death, was chiefly owing to his Valour. In 1632 he took Bamberg, Cronac and Hochſted, was created Duke of Franconia raiſed the Siege of Mentz, took Briſac in 1638, and died at Neuburg on the Rhine, July 8. 1639. His Corps were kept at Briſac till 1655, and then magnificently entomb'd in the Sepulchre of his Anceſtors.

The Line of Winheim.

William II. fifth Son of John II. begun this Branch, a Prince famous in Peace and War; he ſucceeded his elder Brother John Erneſt, and married Eleonor Dorothy Daughter to John George Prince of Anhalt: He died May 20. 1642. John Erneſt V. his ſecond Son ſucceeded, but of the reſt of his Children there is nothing remarkable. John married Chriſtina Daughter to the Duke of Holſtein Sunderburg, and died May 25. 1683. His Children are Anna Abbeſs of Quedlinburg, in 1685; Wilhelmina Chriſtina, married to the Count of Schwartsburg in 1684; Eleonora, married to the Prince of Mersburg; and William Erneſt the preſent Duke of Saxe-Winheim, married Anno 1683 to Charlotte Daughter to the Duke of Saxe-Jena.

The Branch of Sax-Gotha.

Erneſt III. Son to John II. was the firſt of this Family, and (ſays Schouart) excell'd all Princes that ever lived, in Probity, Religion, Prudence, Policy, Induſtry and Good-Husbandry, ſo that the Divine Promiſe was fulfilled in him, Seek firſt the Kingdom of God, and the Righteouſneſs thereof, and all other things ſhall be added. He was at the Battle of Lutzen in 1641. He received the Principality of Gotha in 1660. He acquired great part of the County of Henneberg, and in 1672 obtained by Right of Inheritance Altenburg: He repaired the Caſtle of Gotha, anciently called Grimmenſtein, and by him named Fridenſtein. He encourag'd the publiſhing of the Winheim Bible, and ſurrender'd his pious Soul, March 26. 1675. His Wiſe was Elizabeth Sophia Daughter to the Duke of Sax-Altenburg, by whom he had eighteen Children, the moſt noted of whom are Elizabeth Dorothy, married in 1666 to the Prince of Heſſe Darmſtadt; ſeveral other Children died without Iſſue. And Frederick IX. born July 15. 1646 the preſent Duke of Sax-Gotha, who married firſt in 1669 with Magdalen Daughter to Auguſtus Duke of Saxony and Adminiſtrator of Magdeburg, and afterwards to Chriſtina Widow to the Marquis of Brandenburg Anſpach, by which Marriage he has a numerous Iſſue. Albert his Brother was married to Elizabeth the Duke of Brunſwick's Widow. Bernard another of them married Mary Daughter to George Prince of d'Armſtad firſt, and then Elizabeth Widow to the Duke of Mecklenburg, by whom he has a numerous Off-ſpring. Henry another Brother married Mary a Daughter of Heſſe d'Armſtad. Chriſtianus married firſt Chriſtina of Sax-Mersberg, and then Sophia of Heſſe d'Armſtad. Erneſt married Sophia a Daughter of Prince Waldeck; and John Erneſt married a Daughter of Sax-Mersberg.

The Albertine Line.

Albert Son of Frederick II. Elector of Saxony, as beforementioned, was the firſt of this Line, he was born July 27. 1443, and for his Tallneſs call'd Roland. In 1468 he aſſiſted George King of Bohemia againſt Matthias King of Hung. In 1471 he went to receive the Crown of Bohemia which was offered to him, where his life was endanger'd, but he eſcaped. In 1475 he undertook a Pilgrimage into the Holy Land. In the year 1491 he was made Knight of the Golden Fleece. He reduced the Netherlands to the Obedience of the Emperor Maximilian I. and was put in hopes of the Reverſion of the Dutchy of Juliers and Montz. In 1459 he married Sidonia Daughter to the King of Bohemia, and died at the Siege of Groningen in 1500, aged 57. He had eight Children, Catharine married July 24. 1468. to Sigiſmund Arch-Duke of Auſtria, and after his death to Erick Duke of Brunſwick. George the Bearded, Auguſt the 27th. 1471, ſucceed his Father, married Barbara Daughter to Caſimir King of Poland, by whom he had two Daughters, one married to the Elector of Brandenburgh, and another to the Landtgrave of Heſſe: He died April the 17th, 1539. Henry the Pious, third Son to Albert, was choſen Maſter of the Teutonick Order, and ſucceeded his Brother George, turn'd Proteſtant, join'd in the Smalcaldian League, and died in 1541, leaving by his Wife, Daughter to the Duke of Mechlenburg, Maurice his Succeſſor, who ſerved the Emperor in Hungary againſt the Turks, and in the Netherlands againſt the French: He waged War afterwards with Frederick his Kinſman,, was made Elector in 1548, Leagu'd with the French and other Princes of Germany in 1551, march'd againſt the Imperialiſts, entred into the Treaty of Paſſaw in 1552, and fell in the Battle of Siverhus in the Dutchy of Lunenburg: He founded ſeveral great Schools, and his only Daughter was married to W. Prince of Orange in 1561. He was ſucceeded by Auguſtus his Brother, who renewed the Amity with the Families of Brandenburg and Heſſe: His Authority was ſo great, that neighbouring Princes choſe him to decide their Controverſies. He publiſh'd a Formula of Concord, in 1580, and died February the 11th, 1586. His Wives were Anne Daughter to Chriſtian III. of Denmark, and Agnes a Daughter of Anhalt; by the firſt Marriage he had fifteen Children three of his Daughters being married to the Families of Brandenburg, Saxony and Brunſwick. He was ſucceeded by Chriſtian I. his Son, who married Sophia the Elector of Brandenburg's Daughter, and died November the 3d, 1560. His Son Chriſtian II. ſucceeded. In 1610 he obtained from the Emperor Rodulphus the Inveſtiture of the Dutchies of Cleve, Juliers and Montz; but the following year he died of a Surfeit by a draught of cold Beer, after he had over-heated himſelf at a Tournament, leaving no Children by his Wife, Daughter to Frederick II. King of Denmark; and was ſucceed by John George II. his Brother, who having travell'd under a Counterſeit Name, was in 1612 made Vicar of the Empire, celebrated the Jubilee of the Reformation begun by Luther in 1617, of the Auguſtan Confeſſion in 1630, and of the Peace from the Religious War in 1655, in memory whereof he ſtampt a Medal: He held his Mother in great Honour; Elected Matthias, and Ferdinand II. III. and IV. Kings of the Romans; refuſed the Crown of Bohemia; entred into a League with the King of Sweden againſt the Emperor, with whom he made Peace again in 1634. After which he found the weight of the Swediſh Arms till the General Peace in 1648. He died in 1656, aged 72. His firſt Wife was Sibylla Daughter to the Duke of Wirtemberg, and his ſecond Magdalen Sibylla Daughter to the Elector of Brandenburg: He had three Daughters, married to the Prince of Heſſe d'Armſtadt, Duke of Holſtein, and the Prince of Denmark. His Son Auguſtus was Adminiſtrator of Magdeburg, Chriſtian Adminiſtrator of Mersburg, and Maurice Adminiſtrator of Naumburg; and he was ſucceeded by John George II. who was always faithful to the Empire, of which he was Vicar after Ferdinand IIId's death, and was at the Election of the King of the Romans in 1617. He entred into a Covenant of Confraternity or Mutual Succeſſion with Julius Franciſcus the Duke of Lower Saxony: He married Magdalen of Brandenburg in 1638, and died at Friburg the 22d of Auguſt 1680, and was ſucceeded by John George III. who govern'd with great Frugality and Moderation, and gave many Proofs of his Zeal for the Publick Good of the Empire, as going in Perſon to aſſiſt at the Relieving Vienna beſieged by the Turks in 1683, which was happily effected, and paſſing the Rhine with great Reſolution and Valour in ſight of the French, whom he forced to retire with conſiderable Diſadvantage, which was look'd upon as an Earneſt of greater things: But whilſt he was thus taken up againſt the French King, he was ſnatch'd away by Death, to the great Regret of the Confederates, September 1691. His Dutcheſs was Anna Sophia Daughter to Frederick IV. of Denmark, whom he married in 1666, and by her had John George II. born the 17th of October 1668, and Frederick Auguſtus the preſent Elector, now King of Poland, born the 12th of May 1670. This Family of Saxony hath alſo Pretenſions to the Dutchy of Juliers, Cleves, Montz and Sax-Lawenburg. Schouart Obſervat. Hiſtor. Geneal.

SAXONIA (Hercules de) a famous Phyſician born at Padua; the Emperor Maximilian ſent for him into Germany, to take his Advice concerning a dangerous Sickneſs into which he was fallen, and being recovered by his means, made him a Knight, and ſent him back again into his Country very liberally rewarded. He died in 1607, being Fifty ſeven years of age. He hath left behind him ſeveral Writings, and amongſt the reſt, De Phœnigmis, & de uſu Theriacæ in Febribus Peſtilentibus; De Peſte, de Pulſibus; beſides many other which Petrus Uffenbachius his Diſciple has inſerted in his Pantheum, ſive Templum Medicinæ Practicæ. Tomaſin. Illuſtr. vir. Elog.

SCÆVA was a Centurion in the Army of Julius Cæſar, who having given Inſtances of his Valour on many Occaſions, exhibited an extraordinary Proof of it, in defence of the Fort of Dyrrachium a Town of Macedonia, where he received on his Buckler Two hundred thirty ſeven Arrows. Cæſar having ſeen his Buckler thus pierced, beſtowed upon him Two thouſand Crowns, and from the eighth Centurion, advanced him to be the firſt.

SCÆVA MEMOR, a Latin Poet, who lived in the time of the Emperor Tacitus and Domitian: He was a Writer of Tragedies, and had a Brother called Turnus that compoſed Satyrs. Scaliger ſuppoſeth that this Memor was the Author of a Tragedy entitled Octavia, which is commonly attributed to Seneca.

SCALA, a City of the Kingdom of Naples, in the Hither Principate, is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Amalfi, but the Biſhoprick is united to that of Ravello, from which it is but one Mile diſtant, and two from Amalfi. It is but a very ſmall City, having not above an hundred and fifty Houſes, and ſtands at the foot of Mount Cama.

SCALA MARMOREA, a Port of Bithynia in the Leſſer Aſia, formerly call'd Amycli or Paſni; it lies in the Streights of Conſtantinople, North of Chalcedon, and is now called Lamia.

SCALIGER (Julius Cæſar) a moſt famous Critick, Poet, Phyſician and Philoſopher, who was much admir'd in the Sixteenth Century: He was born in Italy, brought up in Germany, and afterwards lived in France till his death. It is ſaid that he was born in the Caſtle of Ripa in the Territory of Verona, in 1484, and according to his own Teſtimony was deſcended from the Princes de la Scala, who were Lords of Verona and of divers other Places in Italy. Theſe Pretenſions of his are ſupported by a Patent of the French King, in which Joſeph Scaliger is acknowledg'd Rightful Heir to Julius, and Julius own'd as Prince of Verona. Hieronymus Cardanus was his irreconcilable Adverſary, becauſe he had writ againſt his Book de Subtilitate: Another of his Adverſaries was Gaſpar Scioppius, againſt whom Joſeph Scaliger writ. He died at Agen in Guienne in 1558, leaving two Sons behind him, Sylvius Medicus and Juſtus Joſeph. We have theſe following of his Writings, De Arte Poetica; his Letters, Orations and Poems, divers Commentaries upon Ariſtotle and Theophraſtus; ſeveral Treatiſes of Phyſick; De Cauſis Linguæ Latinæ; Teſtimonia de Gente Scaligera; Exercitationum exoticarum, Lib. XV.

SCALIGER (Juſtus Joſephus) the Son of Julius Cæſar Scaliger, was born at Agen the 4th of Auguſt 1540. He began his firſt Studies at Bourdeaux, and having continued them for ſome time after under the inſtruction and conduct of his Father, he came to Paris, and followed his Studies in that Univerſity: He learn'd the Greek Tongue under Adrianus Turnebus, and perfected himſelf in the Hebrew by his own Study. But above all, he excell'd in Critical Learning. The Curators of the Univerſity of Leyden invited him to be a Honorary Profeſſor in their Univerſity, where he lived ſixteen Years, and died January 21. 1609. He hath writ Notes upon Seneca, Varro, Auſonius, Pompeius Feſtus, and upon Virgil's Catalecta. He wrote likewiſe Poems; Emendatio Temporum; Notes upon Euſebius's Chronicon, Canones Iſagogici, &c. Spond. Lorenzo Craſ. Elog. Liter. Gaſſend. de Vit. Peirech. Lib. 2. Lipſius, Caſaubon, &c.

SCALINE, an Iſland which belongs to Pembrokeſhire in Wales, and is ſeated on the South-weſt Coaſt North of Stockholm Iſland.

SCALONA, or Aſcalon, a City in the Holy Land upon the Mediterranean, eighteeen Miles South of Gaza. It was one of the Royal Cities of the Philiſtines, and a Biſhop's See under the Patriarch of Jeruſalem, but now a poor Village. Leunclavius.

SCAMACHI, Sumachi, Samachi, Cyropolis, the Metropolis of Media, ſeated in a Valley, and not viſible till one be within Cannon-ſhot of it. It was formerly a Place of Strength, but diſmantled by the Perſians, leſt the Turks ſhould ſeize and make advantage of it. The Streets are narrow, the Buildings low and very mean, being made up with Planks and Twigs daub'd over with Clay; yet it hath a rich Market for Silks, Cottons, Furrs, Tapeſtry, and Cloth of Gold and Silver: They trade with the Ruſſians for Tin, Lead, Copper and Furrs. In 1578 it was taken by Amurath III. Emperor of the Turks; and that ſame Year the Perſians recover'd it, having defeated the Turks in a pitch'd Battle, and then burn'd it. Being rebuilt, it was deſtroyed by an Earthquake which laſted three Months, in 1667, but it was rebuilt again in 1670. Hackluit. Ducket.

SCAMANDRIA, a little Town of Troas not far from the Port of Troy, upon the Coaſt of the Ægean-Sea, now demoliſhed. Plin. 4. 30.

SCAMANDRO, Scamander, a little River of Troas in the Leſſer Aſia, mentioned by Homer and other Poets; it riſeth from Mount Ida, and falls into the Ægean-Sea, or the Archipelago near Cape Janiſary, at the very entrance of the Helleſpont. Herodotus reports that Xerxes his Army drank it up. Strabo, Ptol. Ferrarius, Lex Geograph. See CIMON.

SCANDERBEG, which in the Turkiſh Language ſignifies Lord Alexander, was the Name the Turks gave to George Caſtriot King of Albania. His Father's Name was John, who being reduced to Extremity by Amurath II. was forced to put five of his Sons into his hands, of whom this Scanderbeg was the youngeſt; he had the happineſs to pleaſe the Tyrant, who by a ſlow Poiſon killed his Brothers, but ſpared him, being charm'd with his Perſon and Behaviour; and finding him to be endowed with very extraordinary Qualities, cauſed him to be Circumciſed by force, and let him want nothing that might train him up, and make him fit for the War. His Care herein had better ſucceſs than he did deſire; for having given ſeveral Inſtances of his Courage in Amurath's Service, who was the Uſurper of his Dominions, he thought it was high time to think of making uſe of his Valour for himſelf againſt the Tyrant. In this Deſign he ſo dexterouſly deceived the Governour of Croya, the chief City of Albany, that he made himſelf Maſter of that and divers other Places; and in 1343 took Poſſeſſion of his Hereditary Dominion, to the great Joy of all his Subjects, and upon his being admitted to the Crown declared himſelf a Chriſtian. He forced the Turk to raiſe the Siege of Croya, and cut to pieces the Forces that were ſent againſt him. Amurath himſelf having laid a ſecond Siege to this Place, died before the Walls of it, in 1450, without being able to take it, though he had extremely deſired it, to be revenged on Scanderbeg. Under Mahomet II. he had no leſs than ſeven or eight Armies to conteſt with, but the Victory was ſtill on his ſide. It is reported of him, That though he had killed above 2000 Turks with his own Hand, yet he was never Wounded. Mahomet, compell'd by his Valour and Succeſs, made Peace with him. But in the mean time that Scanderbeg took a Journey to the Kingdom of Naples, at the Entreaty of Pope Pius II. and King Ferdinand of Arragon, the Turks ſeeing the Truce expired, laid Siege again to Croya, but to no purpoſe; for Scanderbeg was ſoon with them, and forced them to raiſe the Siege twice. This was the Chriſtian Alexander, who though he did not extend his Conqueſts ſo far as the Macedonian Alexander did, yet deſerved never a whit leſs Glory, if we conſider the Greatneſs of his Actions. He died at Liſſa, a City belonging to the Venetians, January 27. 1467, being 63 Years of Age. Marin. Barlett. Paul Jove.

SCANDERON, an old ruined Caſtle about four or five Miles from Tyre towards the South, which takes its Name from Alexander the Great, who cauſed it to be built at the time he was beſieging Tyre, as a retreat or Place of abode for himſelf during the Siege. Pompey deſtroy'd this Caſtle when he conquer'd Phœnicia, but it was rebuilt by Baldwin I. King of Jeruſalem, whilſt he laid Siege to the foreſaid City; and after that time it continued a ſure retreat for the Chriſtians, as long as they were in poſſeſſion of the Holy Land. This Fort ſtands ſo near the Sea, that the Flood in a high Tide comes into it. Doubdan Voyage de la Terre Sante.

SCANDIA, or Scandinavia, a large Peninſula or almoſt Iſland, which according to ſome was a part of old Germany, and contains the Kingdoms of Norway and Sweden, and part of Denmark. Some Geographers give the Name of Scandia only to the South part of this Peninſula, where are the Provinces of Scania, (Schonen) Bleckingia and Hallandia. Ariſtotle ſays that it was ſeparated from the Continent of Germany by a vaſt Inundation of the Ocean, which turned all the riſing Grounds that appear now in the Baltick into Iſlands; whereupon the Cimbrians being forced to ſeek new Habitations, wandred over a great part of Germany, and were at laſt entirely defeated by Marius in the paſſes of the Alps. Strabo, Horn. Introduc. ad Antiq. Geog.

SCANDINAVIA, the ſame as SCANDIA.

SCANIA, Schonen, a Province of South Gothland in the Kingdom of Sweden, the Capital City whereof is Lunden an Archbiſhops See. The Name of Scania is alſo given to all South Gothland, becauſe in former times it comprehended the Provinces of Bleking and Halland. This Country enjoys a very ſerene Air, and abounds with Mines of Silver, Copper and Lead. Baudrand.

SCARBOROUGH, a Market, Sea-Port and Borough-Town of Pickering Hundred in the North-Riding of Yorkſhire. It is a place ſo ſtrong by Nature, that one would think it impregnable, being ſeated on a ſteep Rock with craggy Cliffs about it, and waſh'd on all ſides with the Sea, but Weſtward, where the way into it is narrow and fenced with a ſtrong Wall. On the top of the Rock is a fine ſpot of Ground containing above ſixty Acres, with a freſh Water Spring iſſuing out of the Rock, on which formerly was a ſtately Tower which ſerved as a Land-mark for Ships, but ruined in the Civil Wars. At this time it is fortified with a Caſtle and Garriſon. The Town is not large, but is well built and as well inhabited; and as it has a commodious Key, ſo it enjoys a pretty good Trade. Several Veſſels belonging to it being imployed for Fiſhing of Herrings in their proper Seaſon, whereof this Sea-coaſt affords great Plenty. This place is alſo noted for its Famous Spaw which is much reſorted unto; but of late in a more particular manner for giving the Title of Earl to the Right Honourable Richard Lumley created Earl of Scarborough by his preſent Majeſty King William III. Between the Coaſts of Scarborough and Whitby to the North, lies the Bay of Robin Hood the Famous Robber in the Reign of King Richard I. Scarborough is a Corporation repreſented by two Burgeſſes in the Houſe of Commons. Scarborough Caſtle was built by William le Groſs Earl of Albemarle and Holderneſs, who reigned like a King in thoſe parts, until he was reduced by Henry II. In 1557. one Thomas Stafford an Engliſh Man, with ſome others who had fled into France in Queen Mary's Reign, aſſiſted with Ships and Money by that Crown, ſurpriz'd this Caſtle, publiſh'd a Manifeſto againſt the Queen, declaring that ſhe forfeited her Right by bringing in the Spaniards, and call'd himſelf Protector of the Kingdom: But the Earl of Weſtmorland retook the Caſtle in two days time. So that Stafford and one Sherneſe a French Gentleman were Beheaded that ſame Year. The Hollanders are obliged annually to demand leave of the Governour of this Caſtle to Fiſh for Herrings on theſe Coaſts.

SCARDAONI (Bernardin) Born at Padua in 1487. He enter'd into Orders, and was made Canon in the Cathedral of that Town: He made a conſiderable progreſs in Hiſtory, and wrote De Antiquitate Urbis Patavini, deque claris ejuſdem Civibus. He died in 1574, in the 96th Year of his Age. Philip Tomaſini in Elog. Illuſt. Viror. Voſſius, &c.

SCARDONA, a City of Dalmatia, with a Biſhops See under the Archbiſhop of Spalatro. This place is by the Sclavonians called Skardin; it is ſituate upon the River Ketka, in Latin Titius, which compaſſeth a great part of it, ſo as to make it a kind of Peninſula; it is about ſeven Miles from the Adriatick Sea. It was formerly a Famous City, and is yet conſiderable. In the Year 1683 the Morlacks of Croatia took it from the Turks, and General Valier put a good Garriſon into it for the Venetians, after that he had put the place into a condition of being a Bulwark againſt the incurſions of the Infidels. It is 35 Leagues Eaſt of Zana, and nine North of Sabenico. P. Cornelli Deſcript. of Morea.

SCARPANTO, the greateſt of that knot of twelve Iſlands, called by the ancient Geographers the Sporades, it being 200 Stadia's in Circuit, and giving the name of the Carpathian Sea to that part of the Mediterranean that waſheth it. By reaſon of its great highth it is ſeen at a vaſt diſtance. It lies about fifty Italian Miles from Rhodes to the Weſt, as Pliny ſaith. It had four Towns of old, Carpathos and Poſidium; the names of the other two are periſhed with them. It lies from the neareſt Shoar of Aſia fourteen German Miles to the South. Randal p. 29. ſaith it lies midway between Candia and Rhodes, is 80 Miles in Circumference, has no ſecure Harbour for Gallies, but for Ships there is a good Port to the Eaſt, where the Town ſtands on an high Hill, having alſo a ruin'd Caſtle: The Mountains are moſt of them nothing but Piles of natural Marble, which make a glorious ſhow when the Sun ſhines upon them: Not one quarter of the Iſland is inhabited, it having not above 3000 Souls, and they miſerably impoveriſhed by the Pyrates that haunt it. The Country produces great ſtore of Fruit and Wine, and Partridges are there very common, and of a delicious taſte. Pliny, Randal.

SCARPE, Scarpa, a River of the Spaniſh Netherlands, that riſeth in Artois three Leagues above Arras, and paſſing by it and Doway, it divides Flanders from Hainault; and being increaſed by the addition of ſeveral other Rivulets, falls into the Schelde near unto Mortagne, two Leagues above Tournay.

SCARREN, Lat. Scarra, a City of Weſtrogothia in Sweden, and a Biſhops See, Suffragan of Upſal, formerly the Royal Seat of the Kings of Gothland, but is now on the declenſion. It is ten Miles South from the Lake of Venner, and twenty North of Falcop.

He was of the ancient Family of the Scarrons of Paris, and being ſeized with a Palſie, loſt the uſe of his Limbs, in which condition he lived many Years. The Character he gives of himſelf is this,

Ille ego ſum vates rabido data Præda dolori,
Qui ſupero Sanos Luſibus atque Jocis.

He died October 14. 1660. Towards the end of his Life he Married Frances d'Aubigni, ſince called Madam Maintenon, Favourite to Lewis XIV.

SCARSDALE, a Diviſion or part of Derbyſhire, ſo called from the Saxon Scaire, a craggy Rock and Dale or Vally, Scarſdale being properly but a Vally amongſt Rocks, and yet it is dignified with the Title of an Earldom in the Perſon of the Right Honourable Robert Leake the preſent Earl of Scarſdale, derived to him from his Grandfather Francis Leake Lord Deyncourt of Sutton, created Earl of Scarſdale by King Charles I. An. 1645. The chief place of Scarſdale is Cheſterfield, of which in its proper place.

SCARZINO, a Captain of the Banditi of Milan, who being reſolved to drive the Torregians from that City, and to that end coming before it with a conſiderable number of his Banditi and other Foreign Soldiers, was forced to retire without doing any thing, after having loſt ſeveral of his Men before the City. Donatus Boſſius Bibl. Hiſt.

SCATONO, a little Town in Tuſcany, Famous for a ſort of Stones which no Fire can hurt or alter. It lies near a Lake, wherein there is a floating Iſland, which of old was noted for its good Wine. Plin. lib. 2. & lib. 32. c. 22.

SCAURUS (M. Æmilius) a Roman Conſul, who though he was born of an Illuſtrious Family, yet was reduced by Poverty to ſell Coals: but having recruited himſelf by his Induſtry ſome time after, he began to appear at the Barr; and going to the Wars of Spain, got a Command, and not long after by his Merit obtained the Higheſt Places in the Commonwealth, and was Conſul more than once. He Conquered the Ligurians, and Triumphed over them; and being Cenſor he built the Æmilian Bridge, and paved the Way which was from him called Via Æmiliana. He wrote the Hiſtory of his own Life, and ſeveral other Pieces, mentioned with great eſteem by ancient Writers. He left a Son of his own Name, who when he was Ædilis, built a moſt magnificent Theatre, capable of holding 80000 Perſons. It contained 360 marble Pillars: The firſt Story of this Theatre was all of Marble, the midſt was of Glaſs, and the higheſt was of Pillars, which ſupported a gilded Roof: The Pillars that were below were 38 Foot high, and in the Intervals were no leſs than 3000 Braſs Statues. The Decorations and Hangings of this Theatre, and likewiſe the Players Cloaths were of Cloth of Gold, beſides a vaſt number of curious Pictures. Plin. l. 36. c. 15.

SCAURUS (Aurelius) a Roman Conſul, who being ſent againſt the Cymbrians after the Defeat of Silanus in 646, was overcome and taken Priſoner by them; and going about to diſſuade them from attempting to invade Italy, by aſſuring them that the Romans were not to be overcome, Boirix their King, a Young-man, was ſo offended at it, that he cauſed him immediately to be put to death. Paterc. l. 2. Tit. liv. l. 67.

SCEAFUL, a Hill in the Iſle of Man, which yields one of the fineſt Proſpects in the World; for on a clear Day one may ſee from the top of it three Kingdoms, viz. England, Ireland, and Scotland; and when Man was a Kingdom there were four Kingdoms in view.

SCENE, Scena, is a Word derived from the Greek Σκήνη, which in its proper Senſe ſignifies a Bower made of the Branches of Trees in form of a Tent; and becauſe the firſt Plays were repreſented in ſuch Bowers, the Name came to be attributed to all Places where Comedies or Tragedies were acted. In proceſs of time, this Word was made uſe of by the Latins to ſignifie every part of an Act wherein there was ſome change of the Theatre and Actors: But the Greeks did not uſe it in this Senſe; for though we find this Word in Ariſtophanes his Comedies, yet that is only an Addition of the Interpreters. Tragedies and Comedies have always five Acts, but the number of Scenes is not limited, as depending on the Œconomy of the Play. An Act ought to be at leaſt of three Scenes, neither ought it to be extended beyond the number of ſeven or eight. Hedelin de Practique du Theatre.

SCENITÆ, a People of the Stony Arabia, ſo called becauſe they dwelt in Tents covered with Goat-Skins. Their Country lies near the River Euphrates, and is ſo great an Enemy to Swine, that it kills them as ſoon as they come there. Salmaſius upon Solin. cap. 33.

SCEPEAUX DE VIEILLEVILLE (Francis) Earl of Duretal, Knight of the Order of the Holy-Ghoſt, and Marſhal of France, was one of the great and famous Men of his time, having been very ſucceſsful in the Service of his Prince and Country both by Sea and Land. As a Reward of his many Services, the King made him Mareſhal of France in 1562. He died of Poiſon in his Caſtle of Duretal in Anjou the 30th of November 1571, having gain'd great Reputation as by his wa-like Atchievements, ſo by five Ambaſſages to Germany, England and Switzerland. Mezerai Hiſtor. of France.

SCHACA, a Goddeſs of the Babylonians, who was the ſame as Ops or Terra amongſt the Romans. Her Feſtival was Celebrated five days together, during which the Servants were Maſters, and the Maſters obeyed. Cteſias lib. 2. Perſ. Selden de Dijs Syris.

SCHACH, or Schah, or as we pronounce it Shah, in the Perſian Tongue ſignifies a King or Lord; and the Word Padſchach ſignifies the ſame, only the firſt is put before the Proper-Name as Schach Abas, the other after it, as Haſſan Padſchach. Schich Aidar Prince of Ardebil changed the Name Schich which ſignifies a Prophet, into that of Schach, a King: and his Son Iſhmael, who began his Reign about 1500, added thereto the Title of Sophy, calling himſelf Schach Iſhmael Sophy. Olearius's Perſian Travels.

SCHACH ABAS, King of Perſia, who in 1587 ſucceeded his two Brothers Emir Hemſe and Iſhmael III. who reigned but eight Months each. He was no ſooner come to the Throne, but he endeavoured to regain thoſe great Provinces which the Turks and Tartars had taken from the Perſians. He entred Corazan, and vanquiſh'd the Prince of the Usbeck Tartars, whom he cauſed to be beheaded. Afterwards he went to Iſpahan, which he made the Capital of his Dominions, and adorned it with many magnificent Buildings. Neither was he leſs ſucceſsful againſt the Turks, from whom he took the City of Tabris or Tauris, in the Province of Adirbeitzan; and afterwards entring the Province Kilan, he reduced the Inhabitants thereof, who had revolted under the Reign of Schach Tamas. He gained ſeveral Battles againſt the Turks, and retook the City of Ormus from the Portugueſe by the help of the Engliſh, who block'd it up by Sea whilſt he beſieged it by Land. Death put a ſtop to his Victories in 1629, after having Reigned about 44 Years. He gave an Inſtance of his Wiſdom, by the Order he gave a little before he died, that they ſhould conceal his Death till the Succeſſion ſhould be aſſured to his Grandchild Schach Sefi; and accordingly they expoſed his Body every day in the great Hall, where he was uſed to do Juſtice to his Subjects, in a Chair with his Eyes open; by which means his Death was hid above 6 Weeks. Olearius's Travels into Perſia. Pietro de la Valle.

SCHACH SEFI, King of Perſia, ſucceeded his Grandfather Schach Abas in 1629. It is ſaid of him that he came into the World with both his hands full of Blood, as a preſage of his Cruelty. He was no ſooner got into the Throne, but he put out the Eyes of his only Brother, and kill'd his Uncles and their Children, his chief Miniſter of State, his Chancellor, his High Steward, and his Mother. He gained ſeveral Victories over his Enemies, more by the Courage and Conduct of his Generals, and his good Fortune, than by any Prudence or Valour of his own. He died in 1642, after 12 Years Tyranny; and his Son Schach Abas being but 13 Years of Age ſucceeded him. Olearius.

SCHAFFHAUSEN, Probatopolis, Schafuſia, a City of Switzerland upon the Rhine, 4 Miles beneath Conſtance to the Weſt, 2 beneath the Lake of Zell, 6 from Baſil, and 4 from Zurich to the North, and is the Capital of one of the 13 Cantons. This City embraced the Reformation in 1529. This City took its riſe from an Abby of Benedictines built by Eberard Count of Nelemburg about 1052, in the Reign of the Emperor Henry III. In 1090 a Nunnery was alſo erected here. The Abbots diſagreeing with the City, it was made an Imperial Town, and ſold by Lewis Duke of Bavaria to Frederick Duke of Auſtria in 1330, and continued in that Family for 85 Years, until the time of the Council of Conſtance, when they had a Controverſie with Zurich; but in 1345, they entred into mutual League. Their Abbey was burnt in 1350. In 1351 they were compelled by the Counts of Hapsburg, whoſe Subjects they then were, to beſiege Zurich. In 1372 three parts of the Town were conſumed by Fire. The Citizens did the Houſe of Auſtria much Service in many famous Battels. An. 1401 Frederick of Auſtria being proſcrib'd becauſe he carried away Pope John XXII. from the Council of Conſtance, Shaffhauſen return'd to the Empire, and was endowed with many ample Privileges, for which they paid a vaſt Sum to the Emperor. The better to ſecure their Liberties, in 1424 they entred into a League with thoſe of Zurich and St. Gal. In 1454, when Sigiſmund Duke of Auſtria demanded that they ſhould ſwear Fealty to him, they entred into another with Zurich, Bern, Lucern, Suitz, and other Cantons. In 1468 they proved very uſeful Allies to the other Cantons proſcrib'd by the Emperor, and infeſted the Territories of the Houſe of Auſtria, and beſieging Waldhut, tired the Enemies out, ſo that they made Peace and took off the Proſcription. In 1479 Uri and Underwalds joyned in a League, and after very faithful Service both in the Burgundian and Swabian Wars, A. C. 1501 by the perpetual Helvetian League this Town was allowed the twelfth place in the ſame, and the Town of Baſil join'd with them the ſame Year. In 1524 the Abbot quitted his Juriſdiction to the City: Then followed the Reformation by means of James Riegius, Eraſmus Ritterus, and Nicholas Hoſmeiſter: And in 1529 an Idol, formerly called the great God of Schaffhauſen, was burnt. The Government of the Town is by a great Council of Eighty Six, and the leſſer of Twenty Six. Their great Revenue conſiſts in an Impoſt upon Salt. The Town is ſituate on the Banks of the Rhine on the German ſide, and joyn'd to Swiſſerland with a Bridge. It abounds with all Neceſſaries, eſpecially Fiſh: Three Miles below it are the Cataracts of the Rhine, a great Wonder of Nature. This City has for its Arms a Sheep, which is alſo ſtamp'd on its Coin, whence it is called Probatopolis. Hoffman. Long. 30. 25. Lat. 47. 25.

SCHALHOLT, Schalholtum, a City of Iſeland, which is a Biſhops See, and the Univerſity of that Iſland.

SCHAPLER (Chriſtopher) one of thoſe who in 1525 ſtirred up the Peſants of Germany to take Arms againſt their Princes, who killed above one hundred thouſand of them at divers times. He ſet down twelve Articles of Chriſtian Liberty, as he call'd it, whereof the firſt was, not to pay any Tribute to the Magiſtrate. Prateol.

SCHAT-ZADELER AGASI, which ſignifies Maſter or Guardian of the King's Children, and is the Title of the Black Eunuch, who has the Charge of the Grand Seignior's Children. Solyman the Son of Ibrahim, who had been under the keeping of the Black Eunuch with his two Brothers Bajazet and Orcan, was advanced to the Turkiſh Throne, after the Depoſing of Mahomet IV. in 1687.

SCHEDEL (Hartman) of Nuremburgh, lived towards the end of the XV. Century, and compoſed a Chronology from the Birth of our Saviour to 1492. This Work is known by the Name of the Nuremburg Chronicle, becauſe it was printed in that City in 1493. Voſſius.

SCHEDIUS (Elias) the Author of a Latin Treatiſe of the German Gods, Printed at Leyden.

SCHEDIUS (Paulus Meliſſus) a German Poet, who at the Age of twenty five Years was made Poet Laureat, and eſteemed one of the moſt Famous of his Age, and therefore called by ſome the Latin Pindar. Beſides many Latin Poems, he tranſlated the Pſalms into German Metre, and died at Heidelberg, 1602, being 63 Years of Age. Thuan. Hiſt.

SCHEGKIUS, (Jacobus) a Phyſician born at Schorndorff in the Dutchy of Wirtemberg in Germany, who after he had been Profeſſor of Philoſophy and Phyſick at Tubingen for thirty Years together, became blind, which notwithſtanding did not hinder him from following his Calling. He died at the Age of 76. Amongſt many other of his Writings, part of which he dictated after he became blind, theſe are the chief; Dialogus de Animæ principatu. Tractationes Phyſicæ & Medicæ. Commentaria in Ariſtotelis Phyſica & Ethica, Organum, Topica. De una Perſona & duabus naturis in Chriſto, adverſus Antitrinitarios. Melchior Adam. Caſaubon. Bibliogr. curioſa.

SCHEIC, an Arabick Word that ſignifies an Elder, or Lord; and is the Title the Mahometans give to their Preachers. Their way of Preaching is this: they read ſome Verſe out of the Alcoran, which they make the Subject of their Diſcourſe; they alledge the different Interpretations of their Doctors; and for Confirmation of their Doctrine often have recourſe to Fables and idle Stories. P. Simon.

SCHELLING, Schellinga, an Iſland upon the Coaſt of Holland and Friezland, about twelve Miles over, and about the ſame diſtance from Harlingen a City of Weſt Friezland. The principal Town of this Iſland is Brandaris, conſiſting of one thouſand Houſes, which was burnt by the Engliſh under Sir Robert Holmes the 7th of Auguſt, 1666, with 150 richly laden Ships.

SCHENCKEN-SCHANS, Arx Schenkia, a ſtrong Fort in the Dutchy of Cleves, on the Borders of Gelderland, in a place where the Rhine dividing it ſelf into two Channels, makes the River Wael, one League from Emmerick to the Weſt, and the ſame from Cleve to the North. It takes its Name from the Builder Martin Schenk. The Spaniards took it by ſurprize from the Hollanders in 1635, who retook it the next Year, after a Siege of eleven Months. In 1672 it was taken by the French in two days, and was by them reſtored to the Duke of Brandenburgh in 1674, and in 1679 Mortgaged by him to the Hollanders, who are now Maſters of it. Baud.

SCHETLAND, Lat. Hethlandia, the Name of ſome Iſlands which lie North of the Orcades, betwixt Scotland and Norway: They are about forty ſix in number, with forty Holms or leſſer Iſlands left for Paſturage, beſides thirty Rocks. The greateſt of thoſe Iſlands is by the Inhabitants called the Main-Land, being ſixty Miles long, in ſome Places ſixteen and in other nine broad, lying out into the Sea with ſeveral ſmall Capes, Æſtines running North, and Phedeland running Eaſt, being the moſt remarkable. Formerly the Sea-Coaſts only were inhabited, but now the innermoſt Parts are alſo inhabited and cultivated. The Mountains of this Iſland are very high, and covered with Heath, but the Valleys and other low Grounds are very fruitful. The greateſt part of their Riches is from the Sea: They have not much Oats, but abundance of Barley: They have ſtore of Cows and Oxen, moſt part white; and their Sheep bring forth two or three at a time: Their Horſes are ſmall, but very ſerviceable either for Plow or Riding, being ſo eaſie that they do not weary their Riders. The Wooll of their Sheep being very hairy, they make thereof courſe Cloth, Gloves and Stockings, which they barter with the Norvegians and Dutch for ſuch Commodities as they need. They have Fiſh plenty of all ſorts, great and ſmall, as Whales, Sea-Calves, Sturgeon, Cod, Haddocks, Herring, Mackrel, and Shellfiſh of all kinds. From the Entrails of the Fiſh they make an Oyl which they burn inſtead of Candle, and alſo a kind of Soap very good for waſhing Linen. Their Cattle, eſpecially the Sheep, are larger than in the Continent, and they make conſiderable profit of the Hides. They abound with Fowls of moſt ſorts, but the Heath-Cock immediately dies aſſoon as brought thither from Orkney, for which no natural Cauſe can be aſſigned. Their Firing is Peat and Heath, and their common Drink Whey, which they keep in Cellars under Ground, whence it becomes ſtrong and intoxicating: The better ſort have very good Ale. In the Summer for two Months the Day is of an extraordinary length, and the Air clear; and for as long time in the Winter the Days are extraordinary ſhort, the Air tempeſtuons, and the Sea ſo outrageous that it's terrible even to thoſe a-ſhore. They are apparell'd after the German manner, and their Language is a mixture of Gothick and Engliſh. They are ſomewhat Rude, but Sagacious enough, and capable of all Arts and Diſcipline, hate Blood, and Slaughter, and Swearing, and are of a pious Diſpoſition: They live in mighty Amity one with another, which they cheriſh with mutual Entertainments: They are of ſtrong Conſtitutions, and generally long-lived. They have a fam'd Inſtance of one Lawrence, who in the laſt Century Married at a hundred Years old. He would go out a Fiſhing alone in his Boat, and a Fowling with his Gun by Sea and Land; and arriving at the Age of 140, he ſeemed rather to be diſſolved by Age than any Diſtemper. They are ſo healthful, that they have neither Phyſician nor Apothecary, but are generally skilfull in curing Wounds. The firſt Inhabitants ſeem to have been Germans, becauſe of the mixture of that or the old Gothick Language, and their Conformity in Meaſure, Reckoning and Weights. They are generally Proteſtants, and their principal Town is Scalloway Banks, which is defended by a Caſtle, and honoured with the Courts of Juſtice. There are no Trees in the whole Country; which ſeems rather to be the Fault of the Inhabitants than the Soil. The Common People have but very mean Houſes; yet thoſe of the better ſort delight in neat Furniture. There are no Beggars nor Thieves in the Country. So much for Schetland in general: The particular Deſcriptions of the remarkable Iſlands, Zeal, Vuſtæ, Fara and Thule, which belong to Schetland, will be found in their proper places: Only it is to be noted, that the whole lies betwixt the Degrees of 60 and 61. lying from Weſt to Eaſt. *Buch. SCHIAIS, the Name of a Mahometan Sect in Perſia, which are Enemies and oppoſite to thoſe called Sunnis, that is, Turkiſh Mahometans. The Schiais reject the three firſt Succeſſors of Mahomet, viz. Abubeker, Omar and Oſman, and ſay that they uſurped the Succeſſion of their Prophet Mahomet, which was due to Haly his Nephew and Son-in-Law; and aſſert, that the true Succeſſion of Mahomet contains in all 12 High-Prieſts, the firſt of which was this Haly, and the laſt Mahomet-el-mohadi Saheb zaman, of whom the Perſians believe, that he is not dead, but will come into the World again; and accordingly ſome of them by their laſt Will leave him furniſh'd Houſes, and Stables full of Horſes, that he may not be to ſeek for any Neceſſaries when he returns to the World to maintain his Religion. This Sect of the Schiais Mahometans prevails in the Kingdom of Golconda in the Eaſt-Indies, and that of the Sunnis in the Empire of the Mogul, and in the Kingdom of Viſapour. The Schiais obſerve only the plain and direct Commandments of Mahomet; but the Turks beſides theſe do keep ſeveral things that are only matters of Counſel and Advice, and devotional Works mentioned in the ſame Law. Thevenot, Tavernier. See Schiites. Dherbelot. Biblioth. Oriental. in Schiah.

SCHIATTI, an Iſland of the Archipelago on the Coaſt of Europe. It is ſeparated from Cape Verlichi in Macedonia, formerly called Magneſia, by a Channel that is but a League over. It hath many ſafe Havens; the beſt and moſt frequented is that of St. George, near to which is a Mountain, and upon it a Town of the ſame Name. It is but thinly inhabited, becauſe of the frequent Deſcents the Pirates make upon it, and in a manner only by ſome Caloyers or Greek Monks. It abounds with Wood and Water, wild-Goats and Rabbets. Bolchini Archipel.

SCHICKARD (Wilhelmus) Hebrew Profeſſor in the Univerſity of Tubingen in Germany: He was very skilful in that Language, and well vers'd in Rabbinical Writings. Amongſt other Books of his, we have a Treatiſe intituled, Jus Regium Hebræorum è tenebris Rabbinicis erutum, Printed at Strasburg 1625. He has alſo publiſh'd another Piece called Bechinat Happeruſchim, Printed at Tubingen 1624, wherein he treats of the Hebrew Text of the Bible, of the Targums, of the Maſora, of the Cabbala, and their manner of interpreting the Scripture. He hath alſo made a ſhort Grammar, called Horologium Schickardi, which is writ in a very eaſie method, and therefore ought to be had in great eſteem by thoſe who would learn that Tongue. M Simon.

SCHIELD, Lat. Scaldis, L'eſcaut in French, a River of the Netherlands, which has its Source in Mount St. Martin, near Catelet in Picardy, paſſes by Cambray, and flowing through Hainault, waſhes Bouchain and Valenciennes, where it receives the Ronnelle, and begins to be navigable; a little after it forms a great Iſle, receives the Ham at Condé, enters Flanders, and being ſwell'd with the River Scarpe, near Mortaigne, waters Tournay, Audenarde and Ghent, where it receives the Lis, ſwell'd by the Tides; and then taking an irregular Courſe, runs again towards Dendermond, and near Ruplemont is joyn'd by the Dender, the Demer, the Senne, and Rupelle; ſeparates Flanders from Brabant, and running by Antwerp encompaſſes part of that Town, and forms a noble Haven 3 or 4 Leagues beneath this City. It parts into two Branches near the Caſtle of Saphiingbin, one is called Hunt, and falls into the Sea betwixt Bierulict in Flanders and Fluſſinge in Zeland; the other Branch retains the Name, runs Northward to Bergen-op-zoom, where it receives the Zoom, and taking its Courſe amongſt the Iſlands of Zealand, waters divers Cities, and empties it ſelf into the Sea by the Iſlands of Walcheren and Schonen.

SCHIITES, a Sect of Mahometans that follow the Doctrine of Haly. Schiah or Schiat, in the Arabick, ſignifies an Aſſembly or Meeting, and with the Article Al, Al-Schiat, denotes the Sect of Haly, that is to ſay, the Perſians and all others that are of their Opinion. The Turks look upon them as the very worſt of Hereticks, becauſe they prefer Haly before Mahomet. They expect the Return of their Prophet Haly into the World, as alſo that of Mahomet Mohadir, who they ſay is not dead, as was ſaid before. They therefore keep a fine Horſe ready ſadled, &c. for him in the Moſque of Cuſa: Others hold that he is in a Grotto near Cuſa, where he will remain until the Day of Judgment, and then come forth to Convert all People to the Alcoran: And there are ſome among 'em that expect the Return of Mahomet Son of Haniſe, who they ſay lives ſtill on the Mountain of Radua, whence he is to come to fill the Earth with Piety and Juſtice: And others expect the coming of a Mahomet who is to be their laſt King according to this Prediction of their Prophet, The World will laſt until there will be a King of my Family and Name over the Arabians. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

SCHILLING (Bernard) Native of Thorn in Pruſſia, having obtained leave of the great Maſter of the Teutonick Order to Coin, made Pieces that were ſince called Schillings from his Name, as Caſp. Schuz, and Henneberger affirm, tho' other Hiſtorians hold that there were Pieces of this Name before Bernard Schilling's time. Hartnoch de re numm. & Pruſſia diſſert. 16.

SCHIRAS, a great City of the Kingdom of Perſia in the Province of Farſi on the River Bendimir. This City ſprung out of the Ruins of Perſepolis, and is about 9 miles in compaſs. The Country about it produces excellent Wine. This City is largely deſcribed by Monſieur Thevenot in his Travels, Part II. p. 124. It has a College, in which Theology, Philoſophy, and Phyſick are taught, and has about 500 Students. It is the biggeſt City of Perſia, ſeated in a pleaſant Plain, which is from North to South 20 Miles, and broad well nigh ſo much, abounding with Cypreſs Trees, and Gardens, and encompaſs'd with great Hills, under one of which the City is plac'd, conſiſting of 100000 Houſes, but without any other Defence than a ſorry Dike. It's thought to be the Maradium of the Ancients. The adjacent Plains yield the beſt Wine and Pomegranates in Perſia. Not far from this City, is a Salt Lake 10 Miles in compaſs, and Salt River. Long. 78. 50. Lat. 29. 36. Tavernier.

SCHIRO, Scyros Iſola dis ciro, an Iſland of the Archipelago, on the Coaſt of Europe, formerly called Scyros. It lies on the North Eaſt of the Iſle of Negropont. The City and Haven of Scbiro is towards the South-Weſt, and is a Biſhops See under the Archbiſhop of Athens. The Iſland is about 80 Miles in circuit, being fruitful and populous, and is in Subjection to the Turks. This is the Place whither Thetis ſent her Son Achilles to be educated; and here alſo Theſeus died after that he had been driven out of Athens. The Iſland abounds with Cotton and Flax, and a vaſt number of Wild Goats, of whoſe Milk the Inhabitants make abundance of delicate Cheeſes. Plin. lib. 36. c. 17.

The SCHISM betwixt the Greek and Roman Church was occaſioned, I. By the Pride of the Popes, who would needs arrogate to themſelves the Title of Univerſal Biſhop, againſt the Canons, Patriarchal Rights and ancient Cuſtom; to which the Patriarch of Conſtantinople would not yield, being by the Synod of Chalcedon judged equal to the Pope, and both of them look'd upon themſelves as OEcumenical Patriarchs. II. By the Controverſie about the Proceſſion of the Holy Ghoſt, which was moderately debated at firſt, as appears by the 3d, 4th, 6th, 8th, 11th, 12th, and 13th Councils of Toledo, wherein it was added to the Conſtantinopolitan Creed, That the Holy Ghoſt proceeded both from the Father and the Son: But afterwards the Biſhops of Rome laying hold on this Controverſie, it begot innumerable Diſputes betwixt the Greek and Latin Church, which came to a great height in the 9th and 11th Ages. III. By the Canons of the Council of Quini-Sexta, which were contrary to the Practice and Conſtitution of the Roman Church in many things; ſo that they were condemned by Pope Sergius, who inveighed againſt the Councils of Conſtantinople, whence aroſe many Controverſies and Tumults betwixt the two Churches; but the Greeks, as appeared by the Second Council of Nice, did not much regard the Oppoſition of the Latins. Baronius in Annal 992 prevaricates, when he aſſerts that thoſe Canons were ſent to the Pope, that they might be confirmed by his Authority; for they were ſent to him no otherwiſe than to other abſent Biſhops of famous Sees, deſiring their Aſſent: And by Anaſtaſius the Library-Keeper it appears, that Pope John VII. conſented to them, and that on this account Pope Conſtantine was called to Conſtantinople. Nor have the Stories of thoſe Canons been abrogated by the Patriarchs of the Eaſt, and the Puniſhment inflicted upon Juſtinian for his Diſobedience to the Roman Church, any better foundation; for Anaſtaſius, in the Life of Sergius I. ſays, that thoſe Canons were ſigned by the Patriarchs of Alexandria, Conſtantinople and Antiochia, and confirmed with the Emperor's Subſcription. This was in the Seventh Century. In the Ninth the Controverſie roſe higher, and broke out into an open Schiſm, 1. about the Worſhip of Images, and the ſecond Council of Nice; 2. about Photius and Ignatius the Patriarchs of Conſtantinople, Pope Nicholas oppoſing the Depoſition of the latter, and the Greeks confirming it; 3. about the Bulgarians newly converted to the Pope, pretending they ought to be under his Juriſdiction, and the Patriarch of Conſtantinople claiming them as belonging to him; 4. about the Proceſſion of the Holy Ghoſt. The Greeks in their 8th Council having taken out of their Confeſſion, that he proceeded alſo from the Son; and in the 10th and 11th Ages there were new Controverſies about Unleavened Bread, Faſting on the Sabbath, Purgatory, the Univerſal Supremacy of the Pope, and Celibacy of the Clergy, and Liturgy: neither did the Greeks believe Tranſubſtantiation, and they Communicated in both kinds. Siſinnius the Patriarch did alſo confirm the Procedure of Photius againſt the Latins. They diſagreed alſo about Blood, and Things ſtrangled, and Lent: Hence followed mutual Excommunications betwixt the Greek and Roman Church; and Pope Gregory the Great declar'd againſt the Title of Univerſal Biſhop. In the 12th Age the Controverſie was more violent about the Cauſe of the Separation, and the Power of the Pope, &c. In the 13th Age the Greek Church oppoſed the Pope's Supremacy, and the Roman Church, calling her ſelf Apoſtolical, Catholick, and the Mother-Church, Tranſubſtantiation, Adoration, and carrying about of the Hoſt, accuſing the Church of Rome with Corruption of Doctrine, Novelty, Hereſy, and Separation from ancient Rome. In this Age an Union was attempted with the Greek Church, but in vain. In the 14th Age an Union was again deſigned, but without effect, though Baronius, Leo Allatius and Maimburg pervert the whole Hiſtory of this Affair. Spanheim Epitome Hiſt. Eccleſ. In ſhort, the Greeks did ſo much hate the Tyranny of the Church of Rome, that they choſe rather to be Tributaries to the Turks than to ſubmit to the Pope.

SCHISM of the Weſt. This Schiſm began after the death of Gregory XI. in 1378, by the Election of Clement VII. in the room of Urban VI. Thoſe that were of Urban's Party were called Urbaniſts; and thoſe that were for Clement, Clementines. At the firſt the greateſt part of the Weſt owned Urban for their lawful Pope, and upon that account alſo he and his Succeſſors are commonly put in the Liſt of the true Popes; though the Council of Conſtance was unwilling to decide the great Queſtion, viz. which of the two were the rightful Pope, or which of their Succeſſors were ſuch; but depoſed them both for Peace-ſake, and proceeded to the choice of a new one, who was then unanimouſly owned to be the true Pope; for before that time the Right of either Party was never fully cleared, ſeveral famous Lawyers and Divines having writ in defence of Urban, and others for Clement; and the Church of Rome hath Canonized Perſons of both Parties. The Riſe of this Grand Schiſm was thus: The Popes had for ſeventy years kept their Reſidence at Avignon, that is, from Clement V. who removed the Papal Seat thither, until Gregory XI. who reſtor'd it to Rome again in 1377, and died the 26th of March 1378. Rome at this time was govern'd by a kind of Ariſtocracy, compos'd of a ſupreme Magiſtrate call'd a Senator, with his Councellors, and 12 Captains of the ſeveral Wards of the City who were called Bannerets by reaſon of the different Banners by which they were diſtinguiſh'd. Theſe fearing leſt the Papal See ſhould be again removed to France, caballed together to find out ſome means to have ſuch a Pope choſen as might keep his Reſidence at Rome. To this purpoſe they took into their Society ſeveral Roman and Italian Prelates, and amongſt the reſt Bartholomew Prignano Archbiſhop of Bari, a Perſon of great Authority, and Chancellor of the Court of Rome; and it was unanimouſly concluded by them, That the only way to prevent their Fears, was, to chuſe ſuch a one to be Pope who was either a Roman, or at leaſt an Italian. The College of Cardinals at this time conſiſted only of 23 Perſons, whereof 18 were Frenchmen, 4 Italians, and 1 Spaniard, and of the French there were 7 abſent; ſo that there were but 16 Cardinals in all at Rome to elect the Pope. Whilſt theſe were buſie about the Election, the Bannerets ſent their Deputies to the College, to remonſtrate to them from the Senate and People of Rome, That ſince the Tranſlation of the Papal See to Avignon there had been nothing but Troubles, Seditions and Rebellions, which had well nigh ruin'd the Eccleſiaſtical State; That in order to the remedying of ſo great a Miſchief, it was abſolutely neceſſary to exclude all Ultramontanes, that is Frenchmen and Spaniards, from the Papal Dignity, and to chuſe one that was a Roman, or at leaſt an Italian. But not being ſatisfied with the Anſwer of the Conclave to this their Remonſtrance, they made uſe of Threats, and ſoon after took up Arms, and cried with all their might, We will have a Roman or Italian Pope; We will have one, otherwiſe we will take care to have Juſtice done us. Accordingly the 9th of April the Cardinals ſeeing the People flock together in a mutinous manner about the Conclave, were forced to ſatisfie them; but moſt of the Cardinals, eſpecially thoſe of the other ſide of the Mountains, proteſted that the Election they were going about, was not a free Election. However, Barthlomew Prignano, a Neapolitan, was choſen, though he was no Cardinal, becauſe the Ultramontanes would not give their Conſent to the Choice of any of the four Italian Cardinals. He was ſolemnly Crowned on Eaſter-Day the 18th of April, and took the Name of Urban VI. and with a magnificent Pomp was conducted to St. John of Lateran, there to take Poſſeſſion of his Church, according to Cuſtom, being owned of all as a true lawful Pope. However the French Cardinals having left the City, did at Anagni, by an authentick Act, the 2d of Auguſt the ſame Year, 1378, proteſt that they had not been at Liberty during the Election. But Baldus the famous Lawyer, who flouriſh'd under the Pontificate of Urban, did maintain that that Violence did not hinder the Election from being Canonical, as having been ratified by the Cardinals in their Enthroning and Crowning of him, and treating with him for almoſt three Months together no otherwiſe than with a true Pope. Not long after this Election of Urban VI. the Ultramontane Cardinals reſolved to make void the Election, as contrary to the Canons of the Church: Having taken this Reſolution, they got Caſtel Angelo into their hands, by means of a Frenchman that was Governour of it; and procured the Foreign Forces that were in the Church Service to revolt from Pope Urban, conſiſting of about 6000 Horſe and 4000 Foot, which Pope Gregory XI. had raiſed in Britany. The Cardinals having proceeded thus far with their Deſign, without Urban's diſcovering any part of it, ask'd his Leave to depart from Rome during the Heat of the Summer, and to continue at Anagni; and having obtain'd it, they met all of them at the ſaid Place in June. Peter de Croſs, Archbiſhop of Arles, and Chamberlain of the Church, was one of the firſt that came thither, without having ask'd the Pope's Leave, and brought along with him the Triple Crown, and other Pontifical Ornaments. The Pope being informed hereof, ſent the Italian Cardinals to thoſe at Anagni to exhort them to return, and deſiſt from their deſign: but they, by the ſame Cardinals, return'd this Remonſtrance to him, That he knew in his Conſcience that his Election had not been Canonical, and therefore conjured him not to be a Cauſe of a Schiſm in the Church. But before this they had ſent notice to Charles V. and the Univerſity of Paris, what they were reſolved to do. In the mean time whilſt ſome were endeavouring to reconcile and make up this Breach, Joan I. Queen of Naples, declared her ſelf for him whom the Cardinals ſhould make Pope; which encourag'd them the more to execute their Deſign: And having made the ſolemn Proteſt beforemention'd the 2d of Auguſt, before the Archbiſhop of Arles; on the 9th of the ſaid Month the Archbiſhop of Otranto, in the preſence of 13 Cardinals, with many Prelates and Lords, read a Declaration by which Chriſtian People were admoniſhed not to own Bartholomew Archbiſhop of Bari as Pope, foraſmuch as his Election had been carried by open Force. And having done this, they retired to Fondi in the Kingdom of Naples, under the Queen's Protection, where they ſo ordered the matter, as to bring over to their Party the remaining three Italian Cardinals, for one of them was ſince dead. Accordingly in the Month of September the 16 Cardinals made choice of Robert Cardinal of Geneva to be Pope, the 20th of the ſame Month, who took upon him the Name of Clement VII. and was Crowned before the great Church of Fondi, in the preſence of the Embaſſadors of Queen Joan, and moſt of the Nobility of that Kingdom. Immediately after this Election the Cardinals ſent Letters to the Princes of Europe, and to all Chriſtians, to inform them of what had paſt at Rome, Anagni and Fondi, proteſting that it was meer Force had made them chuſe Urban. But he having been acknowledg'd to be the true Pope for above four Months, conform to the firſt Letters they themſelves had writ concerning his Election, there was at firſt none but Joan Queen of Naples and her Kingdom, Provence with the City of Avignon, and the ſix Cardinals which Gregory XI. had left there, that were of Clement's Party. Italy and almoſt all Germany continued in their Obedience to Urban, as likewiſe the Kingdoms of the North, England and the Low Countries, except Hainault, which continued Neuter. Lewis King of Hungary embraced the Party of Urban, who was alſo owned by the Kings of Spain at the beginning of the Schiſm; but not long after the King of Arragon declared himſelf Neuter, as likewiſe did the King of Caſtile. Charles V. of France took part with Clement, whoſe Example was followed by the Kings of Scotland and Cyprus, the Earls of Savoy and Geneva, the Dukes of Lorrain and Bar. The Duke of Auſtria, and ſome Princes and Cities of Germany, were brought over to Clement's ſide by his Legate, whom the Emperor, being of the other Party, would not ſuffer to ſtay in his Dominions. It will not be amiſs here to take notice by what means Charles V. of France came to embrace the Party of Clement. The Biſhop of Famaguſta, and the Maſter of the Popes Palace, being arrived at Paris in Auguſt, the King conven'd an Aſſembly the next Month of 6 Archbiſhops, 30 Biſhops, and many Doctors of Divinity and the Canon Law; where it was concluded, to adviſe the King neither to declare for or againſt the Choice of Urban, 'till he were more fully informed of the Matter of Fact. According to this Advice, the King ſent to Rome ſome able Men of his Council, in company of the Biſhop of Famaguſta and the Maſter of the Pope's Palace; who arriving there ſoon after the Election of Clement, they ſhewed them Authentick Letters, which teſtified the Force that had been put upon the Conclave at the Election of Urban. And foraſmuch as both the Popes did their utmoſt Endeavours to aſſert their ſeveral Rights, in hopes each of them to get the King on their ſide, he conven'd a ſecond Aſſembly in November of the Prelates of France, and the moſt famous Doctors of ſeveral Univerſities. In this Aſſembly there was a Party that earneſtly preſſed for a Neutrality till the time that the Schiſm might be made up by a General Council, or by ſome other way as ſhould be thought moſt fit; but the Generality of them were for taking part with one ſide or other; and after having examined the Atteſtation of the Cardinals, and heard the Declaration of Pope Clement's Legate, they concluded that Pope Urban's Election was null and void, and that of Pope Clement Canonical. And for a farther Confirmation the King ſent to the Univerſity of Paris for their Judgment in this Caſe; who in a general Aſſembly agreed to this Determination, That the Univerſity did adhere, and would adhere for time to come to Pope Clement VII. as the true Pope, and ſovereign Prieſt of the Univerſal Church. Whereupon Charles V. publiſhed a Declaration concerning his Reſolution to adhere to Clement. In the mean time the two Popes were engaged in open War, the Clementines were defeated at the Battle of Marino; whereupon Pope Clement was fain to retire to Queen Joan in the City of Naples; but finding himſelf not ſecure there, came to Avignon. The 30 of May 1379, John I. King of Caſtile ſent his Ambaſſadors to Rome and Avignon, to be informed of the Right of each of the Popes, as well as of the truth of the Matter of Fact: After which he call'd a great Aſſembly at Medina del Campo in Preſence of the Nuntio's of them both, which began the 23d of November 1380, and ended the 24th of April 1381, with this Deciſion, That his Majeſty ought to look upon Urban VI. as an Intruder, and acknowledge Clement VII. for the true Pope: And thereupon the King publiſh'd his Declaration, requiring all his Subjects to be obedient to Pope Clement VII. Thus the greateſt Kingdom of Spain became obedient to him, the other Kingdoms (except Portugal, which was always for Urban) continuing in their Neutrality. After the Death of Charles Duras King of Naples, Pope Urban endeavoured to ſeize that Kingdom: but Lewis II. Duke of Anjou having made himſelf Maſter of it in 1387, Pope Clement was own'd there, and the Subjects of that Kingdom who of Urbaniſts were become Clementines under Q. Joan, and of Clementines, Urbaniſts under Charles de Duras, became Clementines again under Lewis II. Much about the ſame time Peter King of Arragon dying, who had kept himſelf in Neutrality, his Succeſſor John called a general Aſſembly of the Prelates and Nobles of his Kingdom, in the Preſence of Cardinal Peter de Luna in January 1387, where it was reſolved to embrace the Obedience of Pope Clement. In the ſame Month alſo the Kingdom of Navarre came to the ſame Reſolution; ſo that now all Spain, Portugal only excepted, had declared themſelves for Clement. Pope Urban VI. died in 1389, about the midſt of October; and the 2d of November, the 14 Cardinals that were at Rome proceeded to the choice of Perrino Thomacella Cardinal of S. Anaſtaſius, who called himſelf Boniface XI. The two Popes, Boniface XI. and Clement VII. having declared in 1393 that they were willing to liſten to any way ſhould be propounded to them for the extinguiſhing of the Schiſm, Charles VI. of France ordered the Univerſity of Paris to conſider what might be the beſt means to effect it; whereupon in a general Aſſembly of the four Faculties, they unanimouſly came to this Concluſion, That for the healing of the Schiſm, one of theſe three ways muſt be taken; either of the voluntary Ceſſion of both the Popes, in order to elect a third; or by referring their Right to the Arbitration of Perſons who ſhould be nam'd by themſelves or others for the terminating of this Difference, or by a General Council: Which three ways were accordingly offered by them to the King. But whilſt this work of Accommodation was thus promoting, Cardinal de Luna, who, after that he had engaged three Kingdoms of Spain to declare for Clement, was come to France with the Character of Legate, under the pretence of furthering a Treaty of Peace which was then negotiating between France and England, overthrew all theſe promiſing Deſigns of the Univerſity. He endeavoured at firſt to gain ſome of the chief Doctors to his mind; but finding himſelf fruſtrated here, he endeavoured to inſinuate himſelf with the great ones of the Court, and more eſpecially with the Duke of Berry, who with his Brother the Duke of Burgundy rul'd all in the French Court, whom he alſo got over to his ſide; whereupon the Univerſity addreſt themſelves to the Duke of Burgundy, who procur'd them Audience of the King; but the Party of the Duke of Berry being too powerful in the Kings Council, the Chancellor had order to forbid the Univerſity from medling any farther with that Matter; who ſeeing themſelves fruſtrated of the hopes they had entertained of quenching this Flame, ſuſpended their Lectures and Sermons as in a time of common Calamity, and in the mean time ſent the ſmall Treatiſe they had writ containing the three ways before mentioned, which they had propoſed for an Accommodation, to Pope Clement, who was extreamly offended at it, and died ſoon after in the Month of September. Whereupon the Univerſity petitioned the King, by his Authority to put a ſtop to any Proceedings to a new Election; which he promiſed to do, upon condition that they would reſtore their publick Lectures and Sermons. The Kings Courier arrived at Avignon at the ſame time as the Cardinals were entring into the Conclave; but they gueſſing at the Contents of the Letter, would not open it till after the Election: however they ſigned an Act, by which they promiſed, That the Pope who was to be elected ſhould with all his might endeavour an Union, even to the depoſing of himſelf from the Papacy, in caſe the Majority of the Cardinals ſhould think it fitting for the Peace of the Church. After this, the ſecond day the Choice fell upon Peter de Luna Cardinal of Arragon, who took upon him the Name of Benedict XIII. This new Pope writ to the King of France, and to all the Princes, that he was extreamly deſirous to put an end to this Schiſm, and to reſtore Peace to the Church, being ready to depoſe himſelf if that ſhould be thought neceſſary. Upon this Advice, the King in the Month of February 1395 called a numerous Aſſembly of the Prelates of his Kingdom, and the moſt famous Doctors, in which Simon Cramaud the Patriarch of Alexandria preſided in preſence of the Chancellor, where it was determined, That the way of Ceſſion was to be preferred before any other, in order to the creating of a new Pope, whoſe Election ſhould be referred to Electors choſen by both Parties, or to both the Colleges of Cardinals. The King who had not the leaſt thought but that the Pope would be as good as his word and voluntary offer, ſent a moſt magnificent Embaſſy to the Pope, conſiſting of 14 of his chief Councellors, with the Deputies of the Univerſity, and the Dukes of Berry and Burgundy, his Uncles at the head of them, and his own Brother Lewis Duke of Orleans, who arrived in May at Avignon: But Benedict would not ſtand to his Word, notwithſtanding that they confronted him with the Act which he himſelf had ſigned in the Conclave, and that all the Cardinals, beſides him of Pampeluna, had declared that it was their Judgment, That to put an end to the Schiſm, he ought to accept the way of Ceſſion. But after all they could get nothing from him but a Declaration in form of a Bull, wherein he aſſerted, That he neither ought nor could accept of the way of Ceſſion they propoſed, and offered three other means for an Accommodation; the firſt was, That he and his Competitor, together with their Colleges of Cardinals, ſhould meet in a ſure place, to agree upon an Expedient for Union: The ſecond, in caſe this did not ſucceed, was, That Arbitrators ſhould be choſen on each ſide; and in caſe that they ſhould not agree neither, he offer'd to propoſe upon the place a third Means, or to follow that which ſhould be offer'd to him, provided it were agreeable to Right and Reaſon. The Dukes being returned to Paris, the King ſent Ambaſſadors with the Deputies of the Univerſity into England, Germany, Hungary and Spain, to deſire the Kings and Princes to endeavour with him to procure the Peace of the Church by the way of Ceſſion, which was look'd upon as the beſt and moſt effectual for that purpoſe. The King of England reſolved to ſtand to it, contrary to the Judgment of the Univerſity of Oxford, who were for having the Caſe determined by a General Council. The Emperor, the Electors of the Empire, with the Dukes of Bavaria and Auſtria aſſembled at Frankfort, declared themſelves alſo for the way of Ceſſion. The King of Hungary, with the Kings of Navarre and Caſtile, joyned themſelves with Charles VI of France, notwithſtanding the Solicitations of Martin King of Arragon, who obſtinately held out for Benedict. The King of Portugal, and the other Princes who had always been for the Popes that were choſen at Rome, continued in their owning of Boniface. There were ſome alſo who being gained by the Cunning of Benedict returned to him again; and others, who though they were deſirous of Peace and Union, yet did not approve of the way of Ceſſion as the beſt means to bring it about. Wherefore King Charles upon the Advice of the Univerſity of Paris, reſolved to call an Aſſembly of the Prelates and Deputies of the Univerſities of France, to deliberate whether it were beſt to force Benedict to ſtand to his word, by a total Subſtraction of Obedience, or at leaſt by depriving him of the Right to which he pretended of beſtowing Benefices, and of levying Tithes from the Clergy of France. This Aſſembly (which began May 22. 1398) conſiſted (the King being indiſpoſed) of the Duke of Orleans his Brother, with the Dukes of Berry, Burgundy and Bourbon his Uncles, with the Chancellor of France, and all the Lords of the Council. The King of Navarre alſo aſſiſted at it, and the King of Caſtile ſent his Ambaſſadors thither. Of the Clergy, beſides the Patriarch of Alexandria, there were eleven Archbiſhops, threeſcore Biſhops, threeſcore and ten Abbots, threeſcore and eight Proctors, the Rector of the Univerſity of Paris, the Heads of the ſeveral Faculties, and the Deputies of the Univerſities of Orleans, Angers, Montpellier and Tholouſe, beſides a vaſt number of Doctors of Divinity and Law. The Patriarch of Alexandria having propoſed a Subſtraction of Obedience, as a means to make Benedict accept the way of Ceſſion, to which he was bound by his own promiſe, the whole Aſſembly, very few excepted, agreed to a total Subſtraction of all Obedience from Benedict, until he ſhould ſubmit to a Ceſſion. In purſuance whereof the King publiſhed his Letters Patents of July 27. forbidding all his Subjects to obey Benedict, or to pay any thing to his Officers, and that the Gallican Church ſhould in the mean time enjoy its ancient Liberties; and that the vacant Benefices ſhould be ſupplied according to the Common Law, or by Collation of the Ordinaries. The Example of France was followed by all Neighbouring Princes, and by the Duke of Bavaria, ordaining likewiſe in their reſpective Dominions a Subſtraction of Obedience in Spirituals and Temporals. And ſoon after eighteen Cardinals left Benedict, and retired to Villeneuve which belonged to the King of France, ſo that he had only two Cardinals left with him, viz. the Cardinal of Pampeluna, and another called Boniface. Whereupon order was given to beſiege him in his Palace of Avignon; but the King, in conſideration of his Character, ordered the Siege to be changed into a Blockade, and to permit all neceſſary Proviſions to enter. By which means Benedict thought fit, by an Authentick Act of April 20. 1399, to promiſe that he would renounce the Papacy, in caſe Boniface would agree to do the ſame likewiſe, or in caſe he ſhould die, or be driven from his See. In the mean time he was kept by the King's Soldiers in his Palace 'till he ſhould perform his promiſe. He continued under this Reſtraint five Years, till in 1403 the Duke of Orleans reſolved to ſet him at liberty, which he did by means of one Braquemont, who commanded a Company of French in a City near to Avignon, and having free Acceſs to the Pope's Palace, found an Opportunity to make him eſcape in a Diſguiſe, and conducted him to Chaſteau Rainaud with a Guard of 500 Men, who waited for him without the City. Benedict finding himſelf again at full Liberty, re-aſſum'd his Pontifical Habit, with a Reſolution to keep his Authority till Death. He was no ſooner by this means got at Liberty, but the Cardinals that had before left him, beg'd his Pardon, and returned to him, and he was ſolemnly received by the Citizens of Avignon, and the Magiſtrates took care to repair the Breaches made in his Palace during the Siege. He writ at the ſame time to the King of France, and to the Univerſity of Paris, and ſent the Cardinals of Poictiers and Saluces, to demand the Reſtitution of Obedience, proteſting that he was ready to make good what he had promiſed concerning his Ceſſion. The Duke of Orleans who had ſet the Pope at liberty, prevailed with the King for the Reſtitution of Obedience, which was ſolemnly publiſhed in the Church of our Lady at Paris, where the Univerſity were fain to be preſent. Almoſt at the ſame time the King of Caſtile reſtored him alſo the Obedience he had taken from him, and his Authority was ſo great there, that he beſtowed the Archbiſhoprick of Toledo upon his Nephew Peter de Luna. In the mean time Pope Boniface dying in Septemb. 1404. the Cardinals, before they proceeded to an Election, took an Oath, that whoſoever of them ſhould be choſen, ſhould ſubmit himſelf to the way of Ceſſion, and depoſe himſelf from the Papacy, provided Benedict did the ſame; which done, they made Choice of Coſmatus Melioratus, Cardinal of Bologna, who took the name of Innocent VII. and died the ſixth of November. After his Death the Choice fell upon Angelo Cozario Cardinal of St. Mark, who called himſelf Gregory XII. the Cardinals, before his Election, having paſs'd an Authentick Act, that the Party choſen ſhould renounce the Papal Dignity, in caſe Benedict would ſubmit himſelf to the ſame Law. Whilſt theſe things paſs'd, the King of France conven'd another General Aſſembly of his Prelates, who after having at divers Seſſions well examined the Matter, came to this final Reſolution: That the Calling of an Univerſal Council for the Reformation of the Church in its Head and Members, ought to be procured: That there ought to be a General Subſtraction of Obedience, without owning either Peter de Luna for Pope, or him who was at Rome*: And that in the mean time the* Gallican Church ſhould be governed in like manner as it was during the firſt Subſtraction. In the mean time Benedict XIII. came to this Agreement with the Ambaſſadors of Gregory XII. That the two Popes, with their Colleges, ſhould meet at Savona at Michaelmas, or at the furtheſt at All Saints in the Year 1407, to put an end to the Schiſm: The King of France alſo ſent his Ambaſſadors thither, to ſollicit them to perform their Promiſe. But after all the Conference was not held, notwithſtanding that Benedict was come as far as Porto Venero, and Gregory to Luca. This gave occaſion to almoſt all Gregory's Cardinals to leave him, and retiring to Piſa, they made a Solemn Act of Appeal from any thing Gregory might undertake againſt them, to the General Council, or to the future Pope Canonically choſen. And at the ſame time they ſent Circular Letters to all the Princes and Prelates of Chriſtendom, in which they declared that they were retired to Piſa with deſign to find out ſome means to put an end to the Schiſm, which had ſo long ruined the Peace of the Church. In France the King publiſhed his Letters Patents of January 12. 1408, in which he declared, purſuant to the Reſolution of the General Aſſembly of the Gallican Church, that he would proceed to an entire Subſtraction of Obedience, and acknowledge neither of the pretended Popes, except by the Feaſt of Aſcenſion next they did by their voluntary Ceſſion procure the Reunion of the Church. Benedict complained to the King of theſe his Proceedings, but his Envoys at the ſame time preſented him with a Bull dated a Year before, whereby he excommunicated all thoſe who ſhould oppoſe his good Deſigns, either by Appealing from his Tribunal, or by cauſing a Subſtraction, whether Emperor or Kings. But the King cauſed the Bull to be torn to pieces, and the day after Aſcenſion Thurſday the Subſtraction of Obedience and Neutrality was publiſh'd at Paris, and afterwards throughout the whole Kingdom; and ſoon after called a National Council at Paris, where care was taken for the Government of the Gallican Church; and by advice of the ſaid Aſſembly the King declared three Cardinals, one Archbiſhop and three Biſhops to have forfeited all their Dignities and Benefices in France, together with all others that maintained the Party of Peter de Luna. Benedict who at this time was ſtill at Porto Venero, not daring to go to Provence, nor to Avignon, betook himſelf to Perpignan in Rouſſillon, where he created twelve Cardinals to compoſe his Court. And on the other hand Pope Gregory returned to Sienna, where he created nine new Cardinals to make up a College, becauſe thoſe few of the old ones which had all along kept with him, had lately forſaken him, and joyned themſelves with thoſe at Piſa, from whence they all together went to Leghorne, whither alſo the greateſt part of Benedict's Cardinals, that had any concern for the Peace of the Church were arrived. Here they agreed to call a General Council, by the Authority of the two Colleges of Cardinals, and with the conſent of the greateſt part of the Princes, Prelates, &c. And accordingly the Council was fixed to meet at Piſa March 25. 1409, and both the Popes were deſired to honour the Council with their Preſence, or at leaſt to ſend their Proctors with full Power to make the Ceſſion required of them, and all the Princes and Prelates of Chriſtendom were likewiſe invited to it. The Reſult of this Aſſembly (which was one of the Greateſt that of a long time had been ſeen in the Church) after thirteen Seſſions was this, That they declared Benedict XIII. and Gregory XII. to be Schiſmaticks, and deprived them of the Papal Dignity June 5. 1409. The Fifteenth of the ſaid Month the Cardinals entred into the Conclave, and the 29th following made choice of Peter Philargi of Candia, Cardinal of Milan, who took the Name of Alexander V. Yet the Schiſm continued for all this, only with this difference, that whereas before there were but two Popes, there were now three; becauſe Benedict and Gregory ſtill continued to keep up their Authority in thoſe Dominions that own'd them. Benedict having ſtill the Kingdoms of Caſtile, Arragon and Scotland; and Gregory being owned by Ladiſlaus King of Naples, and ſome other Cities of Italy; all the reſt of the Chriſtian World having ſubmitted themſelves to Pope Alexander. In the mean time Gregory held a Council at Auſtria, a City near to Udino the Capital of Friuli, which began the ſixth of June; but becauſe there were but very few Prelates at it, he ſummon'd the Biſhops of the State of Venice to appear there, who refuſing to come, he notwithſtanding was pleaſed to beſtow the Name of General Council upon this inconſiderable Aſſembly, which excommunicated Peter de Luna and Peter of Candia, with all their Adherents, and publiſhed a Conſtitution, by which he offered to appear in a General Council, and there to renounce his Right, in caſe the two other Popes would depoſe themſelves from the Papacy. Alexander V. immediately after his Election confirmed the Cardinals and changed their Titles, but lived not long after, dying May 3. 1410. The French and Neapolitan Cardinals, who made the far greater part of the Seventeen whereof the Conclave did conſiſt, Elected on the 17*th* of May Balthazar Coſſa Cardinal, Legate of Bononia, who called himſelf John XXIII. This Pope called the Council of Conſtance, which began in November 1414, in the ſecond Seſſion whereof he ſolemnly promiſed to renounce the Papal Dignity, whenever Benedict XIII. and Gregory XII. ſhould agree to do the ſame, to reunite the Church by this Ceſſion, and to extirpate the Schiſm. But not long after ſome Difference ariſing between him and the Council, he fled to Schaffhauſe, from thence to Briſack, and ſo to Friburgh, where the Duke of Auſtria, who had declared himſelf his Protector, made him a Priſoner in his Caſtle, which he had promiſed to him for his place of Refuge. Here the Pope received two Deputies from the Council, who were ſent to cite him to appear before them the 13*th* of May; he told them he was ready to return to Conſtance; but inſtead of conveying him thither, the Emperor Sigiſmond made him to be conducted to Cell a ſtrong place two Leagues from that City; and notwithſtanding all his Remonſtrances the Council depoſed him May 29. 1415, declaring that it ſhould not be Lawful to elect neither Balthazar Coſſa heretofore Pope John XIII. nor Angelo Corario, nor Peter de Luna, called in places of their Obedience Gregory XII. and Benedict XIII. After this Depoſing, John XXIII. by an Authentick Act freely abdicated himſelf, and Gregory XII. made his Renunciation in open Council the 4*th* of July, by his Proctor Carlo Malateſta. And that he might yet further ratifie it, he in a Conſiſtory of his Cardinals, and the ſmall number of Prelates and Officers that compoſed his Court, being dreſs'd in his Pontifical Habit, laid down his Mitre or Triple Crown, and all the Ornaments and Marks of the Papal Dignity, proteſting that he would be contented for the future to be the firſt of Cardinals, and perpetual Legate of the Marquiſate of Ancona, according to the Decree paſs'd by the Council in his behalf. So that now there was none but Benedict XIII. that oppoſed the Peace of the Church, whereupon the Emperor Sigiſmond was fain to take a Journey to Perpignan, there to have a Conference with this Antipope and the King of Arragon, which they had before agreed upon. He was accompanied thither by the Archbiſhop of Tours, and with thirteen other Deputies of the Council, and arrived there September 18. 1415, but could not prevail with Benedict to ſubmit to Abdication, who therefore was depoſed by the Council of Conſtance July 26. 1417, in the ſame manner as he had been formerly by that of Piſa. And thereupon they proceeded to a new Election, which, that upon this occaſion it might be done with a more certain conſent of the whole Church, the Council ordered that for this time only ſix Eccleſiaſtical Deputies of every one of the five Nations ſhould be joyned with the Cardinals, and that he who ſhould be choſen by the two thirds of the Cardinals, and the two thirds of the Deputies of each Nation, ſhould be held for the true Succeſſor of St. Peter, and Head of the Church; which Deputies, with the 28 Cardinals of the three Obediencies, made up the number of 58 Electors, and entring into the Conclave the 8*th* of November, three days after made choice of Otho Colonna, who took the Name of Martin V. In 1419. John XXIII. who had been kept a Priſoner for near 4 Years, obtained his Liberty, and came to Florence, where he caſt himſelf at the Feet of Martin V. owning him to be the Head of the Church; who thereupon made him Cardinal Dean of the College, and order'd that in all publick Ceremonies he ſhould ſit next him, and in a Seat higher than the reſt of his Collegues; but he did not long enjoy this Honour, dying ſix Months after. So that now there was only the Peninſula of Paniſcola in a corner of the Kingdom of Arragon, which held out againſt all Chriſtendom beſides, by the invincible Obſtinacy of Peter de Luna, who always believed himſelf to be the only true Pope to his Death, which happened in September 1424. Before his Death he obliged the two Cardinals, upon pain of the Curſe of God, to chuſe another Pope in his place, which they did the rather to comply alſo with the Will of the King of Arragon, who was an Enemy to Pope Martin, and made choice of one Gilles Mugnmos Doctor of Canon Law, who took the Name of Clement VIII. But the King of Arragon ſome time after being reconciled to Martin V. in 1429, the pretended Pope alſo made his ſolemn Abdication the ſame Year, and the five Cardinals of his Creation depoſed themſelves on ſeveral days, the laſt Depoſition happening on Auguſt 24. 1429, which to ſpeak properly was the term of this great Weſtern Schiſm, which from Sept. 21. 1378 (when Clement VII. was Elected at Fondi) till then, had continued near upon 51 Years. Maimbourg Hiſtoire de Schiſm. The Learned Spanheim gives this account of that Schiſm, That its Riſe was from the French and Italian Factions, each of them deſiring a Pope of their own Nation; ſo that after Gregory's Death, An. 1378, the Archbiſhop of Bar in Italy was choſen by moſt Voices, and called himſelf Urban VI. The French Cardinals thinking he bore hard upon them, thirteen of them withdrew to Anagnia, declared Urban an Intruder, and excommunicated him; and at Fundi in the Kingdom of Naples, choſe Robert of Geneva aged 36, under the Name of Clement VII. Hence they Anathematiz'd and raiſed Armies againſt one another, Italy, moſt of Germany, Hungary and England, adhering to Urban; the Queen of Naples, France, Navarre, Caſtile and Arragon ſtood by Clement, ſo that the Church was miſerably diſtracted, what the one Pope called Holy the other called Profane, ſo that the People knew not which of them was Simon Peter, which Simon Magus, whether to look upon Rome or Avignon as the Holy See, both of them created Cardinals and publiſhed Decrees. Catharine of Sienna adhered to Urban, and Patronized his Cauſe by her pretended Extaſies, Viſions, Prophecies and Marks from Chriſt himſelf, ſo that ſhe was eſteemed a Saint, had much Reputation, and wrote a Letter againſt Clement, calling him Anti-Chriſt. On the other hand Peter of Luxemburg a Youth of ſeventeen Years old, Famous for his pretended Miracles, and alſo reputed a Saint, eſpouſed Clement's Cauſe: But both of them diſcovered themſelves Anti-chriſtian in their Actions; Urban being of a fierce and cruel Diſpoſition, raiſed a moſt cruel War, cut off Joan Queen of Naples, lanch'd an Anathema againſt the King of Caſtile, made War upon, and delivered up to Sathan Charles King of Sicily and his Queen, beſtowed the Principality of Capua upon his own Nephew Prignanus, put the ſuſpected Cardinals to the Rack, and after extorting Confeſſions from them, Hang'd, Drown'd or Beheaded them, uſurp'd the Government of Rome from the Senate, appointed a new Feſtival of the Viſitation, reduced the Jubilees to every 33 Years being Chriſt's Age, and did avowedly introduce the Sale of Benefices according to their yearly Value. The French Writers ſay he ſcarcely did any thing aright; but Bzovius on the contrary extols Urban to the Skies, and inveighs againſt Clement as Sacrilegious, Ambitious, a Traytor, Robber and Oppreſſor of the Church. Launois ſays, that neither of them were true Popes, but that the Matter was undetermined in the Church. After their Death aroſe Anti-Popes, Boniface IX. at Rome, a Neapolitan, of thirty Years, An. 1389. and Petrus de Luna by a precipitate Election, was choſen at Avignon under the Name of Bennet XIII. who at firſt plaid the Fox, but diſcover'd himſelf afterwards to be a Tyger. The Univerſity of Paris propoſed an Union, that both Popes ſhould demit and ſuffer a new Election, but they would not conſent unto it. Whereupon Charles VI. of France ſeeing his endeavours to aboliſh the Schiſm ineffectual, publiſh'd an Edict, proteſting that he would acknowledge neither of them, and forbidding his Subjects to go either to Rome or Avignon. This brought a Thunderbolt of Excommunication upon him from Bennet; but the King of Arragon, Republick of Liege, with ſeveral Dukes and Counts, joyn'd with the French King in diſowning both. Boniface had all the Marks of Anti-Chriſtian Tyranny, Simony and Idolatry; he haſtned the Jubilee, and ſold Plenary Indulgences, Benefices and Offices to thoſe who bid moſt: He Tyranniz'd over the City of Rome, impoſed Magiſtrates upon them, forfeited and put to Death thoſe who favoured Bennet: He excommunicated Lewis of Anjou, King Richard and King Edward of England, depriving them of the Power of conferring Benefices, Excommunicating all Princes who pretended to Juriſdiction in the Temporal Concerns of the Church: He confirm'd the Abrogation of the Emperor Wenceſlaus, and commanded all who were ſuſpected of Hereſie to be Hang'd or Burnt alive. Nor was Benedict XIII any better, Bzovius accuſing him of Pride, Ambition, Deceit, wicked Deſigns, cunning Knavery, and Stubborneſs: He was depoſed by the Council of Piſa, together with Gregory XII. Alexander V. being ſet up in his place, he was depoſed again by the Council of Conſtance, and by Martin V. An. 1417, but remained Pertinacious in his Schiſm, and retaining the Popedom till his Death, An. 1424. Boniface died An. 1403, and was ſucceeded by Innocent VII. and Gregory XII. Alexander V. was choſen by the Council of Piſa, ſo that there were three Popes together. Alexander being dead, John XXIII. ſucceeded, and Martin V. ſucceeded him. Bennet XIII's Faction, according to his Charge on his Death-bed, choſe Clement VIII. Anti-Pope, who abdicated An. 1429, and put an end to the Schiſm, which laſted 51 Years and 56 Days, and diſtracted all Europe with Wars and Diſcord; while one Pope called another Apoſtate, Heretick, Robber, Anti-Chriſt and the Son of Perdition; ſo that the moſt Learned and Conſcientious could not tell which of them to adhere to.

SCHMIDELIN, (Jacobus Andreas) a Lutheran of Germany, who lived about the latter end of the laſt Century, and was one of the Heads of that Party, who were commonly called Concordiſts, becauſe they endeavoured to unite the Lutherans and Calviniſts; for which end he writ a Book, wherein he ſhewed the Inconſiderableneſs of the Difference that was between the Opinions of both Parties, and made thoſe that were of his Mind to write their Names in the ſaid Book, to ſhew their owning of his Deſign. *Spond. SCHOENOBATES, a Greek Word which ſignifies a Rope-dancer. Amongſt the Ancients there were four ſorts of Rope-dancers; the firſt were thoſe that did ſwing themſelves about a Rope, and would hang themſelves on it by the Feet and Neck: The ſecond was of thoſe who lying flat on their Stomach on a Rope, whereof the one End was tied to ſome high Place, and from thence went ſloping to the Ground, did ſlide down from the Top to the Bottom of it: The third ſort was of thoſe that run upon a Rope ſtretched out in a ſtraight Line; or from the Top to the Bottom of a Rope ſtretched out ſhelvingly: The laſt ſort were of thoſe who not only walked upon a Rope, but alſo leap'd and danc'd upon it. The Art of Rope-dancers is very ancient, as being mention'd in the Prologue of Terence his Play, called, Hecyra. Suetonius relates that in the Time of the Emperor Galba, Elephants were ſeen to walk upon Ropes, and that a Roman Knight in Nero's Preſence ſate upon an Elephant that walk'd upon a Rope. The curious Enquirers into the Original of Things, are ſatisfied that this way of Dancing upon Ropes was invented ſoon after the Comick Plays, inſtituted in Honour of Bacchus about the Year 1345, before the Birth of Chriſt, that theſe Paſtimes were never comprehended amongſt the publick Spectacles, nor look'd upon as any Ways belonging to the Theatre; though ſometimes made uſe of as Interludes in publick Plays. Bulenger in his Theatre. *Spon. SCHOLARIUS (Georg.) a Judge in Conſtantinople, who lived in the XV Century: He aſſiſted at the Council of Florence, which was called for the Union of the Greeks and Latins, and pronounced ſeveral Orations to that Purpoſe. He wrote an Apology for the five Chapters contain'd in the Decree of Union. After the taking of Conſtantinople by the Turks in 1453, Mahomet II. being deſirous to draw the Chriſtians to that City, gave them Leave to elect a new Patriarch in the room of Gregorius, who had quitted the See, and the Choice fell upon this George, though he was but a Laick, who took to himſelf the Name of Gennadius. And foraſmuch as it was an ancient Cuſtom, on ſuch like Occaſions, for the Emperor to deliver the Croſier to the Patriarch, uttering theſe Words, Sancta Trinitas quæ mihi Imperium donavit, te in Patriarcham Novæ Romæ delegit; and to beſtow upon him a white Horſe richly capariſon'd, upon which the Patriarch being mounted, was led in State to his Palace; Mahomet would have all theſe Ceremonies exactly obſerved; and afterwards had ſeveral Conferences with Gennadius, who being elected in 1453, governed the Church of Conſtantinople five Years and ſome Months, and then retired into a Monaſtery, where he died, according to ſome Authors in 1460, though others ſay ſooner. We have of his, beſides the Treatiſes already mention'd, his Conference with Mahomet, a Book Concerning the Articles of the Faith to Mahomet; A Treatiſe of Predeſtination, and ſome others; not to mention thoſe which are kept in the Libraries of curious Perſons, and have not yet been publiſhed.

SCHOLARIUS (George) a Monk that was Contemporary to the Patriarch of his Name, called himſelf Gennadius in the Greek Monaſtery, wherein he became Religious. He was an irreconcilable Enemy of the Latins, and wrote a Treatiſe againſt the Council of Florence. Father Simon mentions two Volumes of this Author written againſt the Latin Church, which are now in Manuſcript in the French King's Library.

SCHOLASTICI, Scholaſticus, this Name in the Reign of Auguſtus was given to Rhetoricians, who exerciſed themſelves and their Scholars in making of Declamations; but from Nero's Time this Name was appropriated to thoſe who exerciſed themſelves in pleading in the Law Schools, and afterwards was given to Barreſters that pleaded at the Bar. And we find that this Word continued a long time in this Signification amongſt the Greeks. There was alſo a Time wherein this Word was applied to all Lawyers in general. But ſince the Erecting of the Eccleſiaſtical Schools by the Kings of France of the firſt Race, and reſtored again by Charlemagne, this Name was given to the Maſters of theſe Schools, that is to ſay, to thoſe who were appointed to govern and teach the Clerks of each Church, and were called the Maſters or Heads of the Schools. Some pretend that he who was the Scholaſticus of a Church, was only to teach the Tongues and Humanity, or the Belles Lettres, and that there was a Divine beſides who taught Divinity: But ſuppoſing this to be true, yet certain it is, that theſe Functions became afterwards united, and were the Charge of one and the ſame Perſon, ſo that he who was called Scholaſticus, was in ſome Places called Primicerius, in French le Ecolatre or le Theologal. Thus Alger, who writ againſt Berengarius, had the Name of Scholaſticus, becauſe he had read Divinity at Liege; and Olivarius Scholaſticus, who lived at the Beginning of the thirteenth Century, acquired this Title becauſe he had been Divinity Reader at Cologne. And it ſeems probable, that all the Eccleſiaſtical Writers of the Weſt, that have had the Name of Scholaſtici ſince the ninth Century have been ſo called, to intimate the Employment or Office they had in the Church; and that from that Time this Title was no longer uſed to ſignifie the Learning or Eloquence of the Authors to whom it was given. And yet it muſt be own'd, that we find ſome Examples that ſeem to lead us to this latter Senſe, as that of Anſelmus, Dean and Canon of Laon, who died in 1117, and who was ſurnam'd Scholaſticus & Doctor Doctorum. Genebrardus tells us, that amongſt the Greeks alſo the Word Scholaſticus was the Name of an Office or Eccleſiaſtical Dignity, which was much the ſame with the Theologals, or with the Office of Apoſtolical Notary of the Weſtern Chriſtians. *Voſſius Etymol. SCHOMBERG (Charles) Duke of Alluin, Peer and Mareſchal of France, Marquis of Eſpinay, &c. was a Perſon highly eſteem'd by Lewis XIII. for his many important Services done to the Crown of France, which he continued alſo during the Minority of the preſent French King, He firſt ſignaliz'd himſelf at the Siege of Sommerives in Languedoc, ſhewed great Conduct at the Attack of Pas de Suze, and taking of Privas in 1629, accompanied the King in his Voyage to Savoy in 1630, was dangerouſly wounded at the Battle of Rouvroi in 1632, but afterwards worſted the Spaniards in Rouſſillon, forced them to raiſe the Siege of Leucate, overthrew them at Canet and Sigean in 1639, relieved Ilhes in Catalonia in 1640, took Perpignan and Salces in 1642, and Tortoſe in 1648. He died of a Retention of Urin in 1656, in the 56th Year of his Age, and was buried in the Church of the Priory of Nanteuil near his Father.

SCHOMBERG (Henry) Earl of Nanteuil and Duretal, Marquis of Eſpinay, Knight of the Royal Orders of France, and Lieutenant General of their Armies, was the Son of Gaſpar Schomberg a German, ſucceeded his Father in the Command of Marſhal de Camp General of the German Troops in the French King's Service. He was ſent Ambaſſador Extraordinary into England in 1615, at his Return he had a Command in the Army of Piedmont under the Marſhal Leſdiguieres, and contributed to the Taking of ſeveral Places in 1620. He aſſiſted at the Reduction of the Cities of Rouen, Caen, la Fleche, Pont de Ce and Navarreins, as well as at the Sieges of St. Jean d'Angely and Montauban. He alſo ſhared in the Honour of taking of Roianne, Negrepeliſſe, Marſillargues, and other Places in Languedoc; in 1627 he was preſent at the Action of the Iſle of Re, where the Engliſh were defeated. In 1630 he took Pignerol, and relieved Cazal, and gain'd the Day at the Battle of Caſtelnaudary. He died at Bourdeaux of an Apoplexy in 1632, in the 49th Year of his Age: He was buried in the Church of the Priory of Nanteuil under a Marble Tomb. He was a Man of Honour and Judgment, Couragious, Faithful, and experienc'd in Buſineſs. Godefroy Hiſt. de France.

SCHOMBERG (Frederick) Mareſchal of France, Duke and Peer of Portugal, Governour of Pruſſia, Miniſter of State, and Generaliſſimo to his Electoral Highneſs of Brandenburgh, Duke and Peer of England, General of the Army in Ireland, Maſter of the Ordnance, and Knight of the Garter. All theſe different Dignities and Employs in ſo different and far diſtant Dominions, are ſufficient Teſtimonies of the great Worth of this Famous Commander. The firſt Proof he gave of himſelf was in the Service of the United Provinces under Frederick Henry, Prince of Orange, after whoſe Death he engaged himſelf in the Service of his Son William; and ſome time after betook himſelf to the Service of France, where he had ſecret Order given him to go to Portugal; which Kingdom ſince the Year 1640 had withdrawn it ſelf from its Subjection to Spain. He commanded the Portugal Army with ſo much Succeſs, that Spain was forced to make Peace with them in 1668, and to own the Houſe of Braganza lawful Heirs of the Crown of Portugal. After this he commanded the French Armies in Catalonia in 1672, and notwithſtanding his being a Proteſtant, had the Batoon of Marſhal of France conferred on him July 30. 1675. He commanded in the Low-Countries and raiſed the Siege of Maeſtricht. And in 1685, when the Proteſtant Religion was ſuppreſs'd in France, having no Inclination to change his Religion, he was ſuffered to depart that Kingdom, upon condition of his going to Portugal; but not long after he got Liberty to go to Germany, where the Elector of Brandenburgh beſtowed upon him the Employments before mentioned. In 1688 he came over into England with the Prince of Orange, now King William III. He went to Ireland in 1689, where he hindred King James from making himſelf Maſter of that Kingdom. The next Year His Majeſty arriving there in Perſon with a conſiderable Recruit, join'd the General, and the twelfth of July ſet upon King James his Army, which was very advantagiouſly poſted on the other Side of the River Boyne, and entirely defeated and routed it, whereby His Majeſty became Maſter of the greateſt Part of that Kingdom; but the Valiant General being without his Coat of Armour was killed by a Piſtol-ſhot, and the Thruſt of a Sword, in the Rear of a Regiment of Foot which he was advancing againſt the Enemy. He was twice married, the firſt time to his Couſin-German, of whom he had three Sons, Frederick, Menard now Duke of Schomberg, and Charles Duke of Lemſter, who march in the Steps of their illuſtrious Father: His ſecond Marriage was with Suſanna Domel of an ancient Family in Picardy, by whom he had no Children.

SCHONEN, Sconia, Scania, a Province of Scandia, which ſome call Scandinavia (though indeed, Scandia be only the Southern part of Scandinavia) upon the Baltick Sea, over-againſt Zealand, whence it is divided towards the Weſt with the Sound, on the South and South-Eaſt it has the Baltick Sea and the Province of Bleking, and on the North is bounded by Halland and Weſtrogothia, and is a principal Part of South-Gothland. It was formerly in the Poſſeſſion of the Kings of Denmark, but in the Year 1658 it was left to the Swedes by the Treaty of Roſchild. This Province was mortgaged by Chriſtopher II. of Denmark to the Dukes of Holſtein, and by them ſold in 1330 to Magnus, King of Sweden, for 70000 Marks, and Waldemarus redeemed it from the Swedes in 1341. This Country was converted by Biſhop Othinger, An. 980. Its principal Towns are Lunden, where they have an Univerſity, Landſcroon, Malmog, Helſinburg and Olſtet on the Baltick Sea. Hoffman.

SCHONERUS (Johannes) a German, born at Carelſtat in Franconia, who taught the Mathematicks at Nuremburgh. He is very famous for his Aſtronomical Tables, which he publiſhed after thoſe of Regiomontanus. He had alſo great Skill in Judicial Aſtrology, which he hath greatly improved by his Obſervations. He gives his Aſtronomical Tables the Name of Reſoluta, becauſe of their Clearneſs, as Voſſius hath noted. He died at Nuremburg 1547, being ſixty two Years of Age. His chief Works that are printed are, *Iſagoge Aſtrologiæ Judiciariæ. De uſu Globuli Cœleſtis. Horarii cylindri Canones. Equatorium Aſtronomicum. SCHOONHOVEN, a Town of South-Holland, upon the River Leck, over-againſt Newport, three German Miles above Rotterdam towards the Eaſt: It hath a commodious Haven capable to receive a great Number of Ships; great Quantities of Salmon are taken here. This Town is famous for the Birth of Joannes Dignus a worthy Prelate, whom Trithemius mentions amongſt his Eccleſiaſtical Authors, who from a Frier of the Order of St. Dominick, was raiſed to the Biſhoprick of St. Aſaph in England.

SCHOOREL (John) a Famous Painter, who took his Name from the Village Schoorel, near the City of Alcmaer, where he was born towards the End of the XV Century. He went to the Holy Land, and in his Voyage drew all the Promontories and Straights that lay in his Way, amongſt the reſt the Coaſts of Cyprus and Candia; took a View of all the Rarities at Jeruſalem; and upon the Banks of the Jordan drew that Landſkip, which he made uſe of afterwards in Flanders in the fine Piece wherein he repreſents Joſhua leading the Children of Iſrael dry-foot over it. He alſo drew the Plan of Jeruſalem, and took a Draught of the Holy Sepulchre. Moſt of his Pieces were bought by Philip II. of Spain for their Excellency. He died in 1562, in the 67th Year of his Age. Felibian. Hiſt. des Peintres.

SCHORNDORF, a ſmall Town of the Dutchy of Witemberg in Germany, well fortified: It ſtands in the Valley of Remms, on a River of the ſame Name where Salt is made. It is four Miles Eaſt from Studgart, and ſix South-Eaſt of Hailbron; was taken by the French in 1647, but reſtored. It is defended by a Caſtle, and obtained the Privileges of a City from the Emperor Frederick II. in 1230. Baudr.

SCHOUWEN, Scaldia, one of the Iſlands of Zealand in the united Provinces, near the Eaſt-mouth of the Schelde. It was formerly much greater than now it is, the Sea having waſh'd away great part of it. The principal Town is Zirickſee, beſides which there is alſo Browers Haven and Bommene. It is ſix Leagues in Length and two in Breadth, and was formerly ſo near to North-Biveland, another Iſland, that the Inhabitants could diſcourſe one another, but now the Paſſage is much widened by Tides and Tempeſts.

SCHUD (Giles) was of Glaris, one of the Swiſſe-Cantons. He writ in his own Language the Hiſtory of the Griſons, which Sebaſtian Munſter preſs'd him to publiſh in Latin: After which he undertook to write the General Hiſtory of Switzerland in his Mother-Tongue, but did not finiſh it, being prevented by Death in 1571, at 67 Years of Age. After whoſe Death the Work was commended to Joſias Simlerus, who tranſlated what Schud had begun, and continued it in Latin, but dying not long after, he alſo left it imperfect. Thuan. Hiſt.

SCHUERMAN (Anna Maria) a Maiden-Gentlewoman of Utrecht in the Low-Countries, very famous for her Parts and Learning; ſhe has left ſome of her Writings in ſix or ſeven ſeveral Languages; for beſides the French, German, Spaniſh, Italian and Low-Dutch, which was her Mother-Tongue, ſhe underſtood Hebrew, Syriac and Chaldee. She had ſtudied Philoſophy and Divinity to good purpoſe, and had made ſome Progreſs in the Mathematicks: Beſides all which, ſhe was ſkilful in the Art of Painting in Oil and Water-Colours, as well as of Engraving on Copper and Glaſs. We have ſeveral Pieces of her's in Proſe and Verſe, and amongſt others that intituled Diſſertatio Logica de ingenii Muliebris ad Doctrinam, & meliores literas aptitudine, with many of her Letters writ to ſeveral Perſons, the laſt of which addreſs'd to Jacobus Lydius, is well worth the reading, which is in Anſwer to a Queſtion he put to her, about what was the Meaning of the Paſſage of St. Paul in the fifteenth Chapter of the firſt of the Corinthians, concerning thoſe who are Baptized for the Dead. Several great Men have writ in Commendation of her, and amongſt the reſt Voſſius, Salmaſius, &c. She became a Labadiſt, and died about 1660.

SCHUT, Inſula Cituorum, a great Iſland in the Lower-Hungary made by the River Danube; it is divided into two, whereof the one is called the greater Schut, the other the leſs. The greater is about twenty Leagues in Circuit, nine long, and four broad. The Capital of the greater is Komorra, the leſſer is of an Oval Figure, being about two Leagues broad. Both theſe are wonderful Fruitful and well Peopled, containing about 300 Villages, and are beautified with Gardens, Warrens, Pools and pleaſant Paſtures. It contributed as one of the Cauſes of the preſent War between the Emperor and the Turks; the latter demanding it about 82, and the Emperor refuſing, as he had good Reaſon to do, becauſe that it kept the Turks from coming up the Danube; whereupon the Turks beſieged Vienna. Fournier.

SCHWABEN, Lat. Suevia, by the French called Souabe, a Province of Germany, bounded with Bavaria on the Eaſt, Swiſſerland on the South, Franconia on the North, and the Rhine on the Weſt, which ſeparates it from Alſatia. It contains the Dutchy of Wittemberg, the Black Foreſt, and the Marquiſates of Baden, Burgaw and Ortnaw; the Principalities of Fuſtenberg and Zealand, the Counties Ettengen and Hochenburgh, the Territories of Kempten and Algow, the Biſhopricks of Ausburgh and Conſtance. The Capital of this Circle is Ulm, its other Towns of Note are Ausburgh, Kempen, Conſtance, Hailbron, Hall, Lindaw, Meninghen, Norlingen, Stugard, Tubingen and Uberlingen. The ancient Suabians, according to Cluvier and ſome other Authors, extended their Territories as far as Poland and Pomerania, and were divided into ſeven ſeveral ſorts. They anciently had very powerful Dukes who commanded the whole, but now it is divided among many. Cluvier. deſcript. Germanic. Briet.

SCHWART (Bertholdus) otherwiſe called Conſtantine Angklitzen, born at Friburgh in Germany, and a Monk by Profeſſion. He was the firſt inventer of Gun-powder, and of Fire-arms, having lighted upon it by Chance amongſt his Chymical Experiments. It's ſaid, that being on a time beating ſome Materials in a Mortar, he was aſtoniſh'd to ſee them all take Fire together, and prying into the Reaſon of it, he was led to the Invention of this Fatal Compoſition. In a

Treatiſe that is found amongſt the Works of Albertus Magnus, this Bertholdus Schwart owns himſelf to be a Cordelier, and that he invented the making of Gun-powder in Priſon. The Uſe whereof began to grow common about the Year 1380, and the Venetians made uſe of it againſt the Genoueſe at the Siege of Chioza. Though Berthold is generally thought the firſt Inventer of Gun-powder, yet ſome will have it known before his time, for Petrarque and ſome others ſeem to mention it in their Works: Scaliger, Forcatulus, Argolus, with ſeveral others, have left us very ingenious Epigrams againſt the Inventer of ſo pernicious a Thing; and Chytræus makes mention in his Itinerary of theſe following Verſes, which he found at Venice:

Cerberus evomuit triplici de gutture flammas,
Sulphura, Sal, nitrum, ſulmina, bella, globos.

And Pamphilius Saxus makes a Canon ſpeak thus:

Vis, Sonitus, Rabies, Metus, Furor, Impetus, Ardor,
Sunt mecum. Mars hæc ferreus Arma timet.

SCHWARTZENBURGH, an Earldom of Germany, in Thuringia. There is alſo a City and Ballywick in Switzerland of the ſame Name, which belongs to the Cantons of Bern and Friburgh.

SCHWEINFURT, Lat. Schvinfurtum, an Imperial and Free City of Germany in Franconia, upon the Mayn, within the Dominions of the Biſhoprick of Wurtzburgh, almoſt ſeven German Miles from Bamberg to the Weſt, and five from Wurtzburgh to the South-Eaſt. It was taken by the Swedes in the German War. This City, in the Year 1553, was ſeiz'd by Albert, the Turbulent Marqueſs of Brandenburgh, who deſtroy'd all its Suburbs to preſerve it from the confederate Forces that endeavour'd to recover it out of his Hands: They came before it in Dec. that ſame Year, but were forced to leave it; in the Spring 1554 they came before it again, but could not preſently take it: But Albert coming up to relieve it, and finding it could not long hold out, he plundered and deſerted it. The Soldiers from the Camp entred it in the Morning, and plundered it the ſecond time, and to get them out, the General was forced to ſet Fire to the City in ſeveral Places. See Sleidan's Hiſtory, Lib. 25.

SCHWERIN, the capital Town of Mechlenburgh, in Lower-Saxony, ſtands upon a Lake Eighteen Miles from Hamburgh to the Eaſt, and five from the Baltick Sea to the South, and is the uſual Reſidence of one of the Dukes of Mechlenburgh.

SCHWIDNITZ, Lat. Suvidnia, a Town of Sileſia, Capital of the Province of its own Name. It is well fortified, but was often taken and retaken in the German Civil Wars, being ſometimes ſubject to the Poles, ſometimes to the Bohemians: It ſtands on the River Weſtritz, thirty Miles Weſt from Wratiſlaw, 25 South of Lignitz, and twelve from the Borders of Bohemia. Near to this Place the Swedes defeated Albert, Duke of Brandenburg, in 1642, by which they carried this Town and the greateſt Part of Sileſia. The Dutchy of this Name was yielded in 86 by the Emperor to the Duke of Brandenburgh by Treaty. Hoffm.

SCIAPODES, called alſo Monoſceles, a ſort of monſtrous People in the Indies, or as others, in Libya, who have but one Leg, and yet run very ſwiftly. They are called Sciapodes, becauſe their Foot, as 'tis ſaid, is ſo large, that in the Summer-time lying upon their Backs they can ſhade their Body with it. Plin. Lib. 7. C. 2. St. Auſt. 16 Lib. de Civit. Dei.

SCIGLIO, Scyllæum, a Promontory and Town of the ſame Name, on the Coaſt of the Further-Calabria, in the Kingdom of Naples, near to the City Reggio. The famous Rock called Scilla or Scylla, is near to this Cape in the Channel that parts Italy from Sicily at the Weſt-End of it.

SCILITZE (John) call'd Curopalates upon the Account of his Office at the Emperor of Conſtantinople's Court: He was a Greek Hiſtorian, and wrote an Abridgment from the Year 811, where Theophanes ended, to 1078: 'Tis likewiſe ſuppoſed by ſeveral, that the Hiſtory of Cedrenus, as far as Iſaac Comnenus, was written by him. This Matter is ſufficiently clear'd by Voſſius in his ſecond Book de Hiſtoricis Græcis, Cap. 26. where he affirms, that Curopalates ſignifies no more than a particular Officer of the Emperor's Court: Voſſius likewiſe obſerves, that this Author's Name was Johannes Scyliza Thraceſius, and that Cedrenus tranſcrib'd him. Baron. A. C. 811 & 830.

SCILLY ISLANDS, or the Iſles of Scilly, by the Dutch called Sorlings, and in French Sorlingues, are a Cluſtre of ſmall Iſlands, 145 in Number, which lie about 25 Miles from Cornwal to the Weſtward, moſt of 'em very fruitful in Corn and Paſturage, and plentifully ſtor'd with Conies, Cranes, Swans, Herons, and other wild Fowl. Scilly, which communicates its Name to the reſt, was formerly counted the Chief of theſe Iſlands; but now St. Maries has got the Precedency, being about eight Miles in Circuit, the biggeſt and moſt fertile of all; having beſides, the Conveniency of a large and commodious Harbour defended by a ſtrong Caſtle, built in Q. Elizabeth's Reign. Theſe Iſlands, after the Romans had forſaken Britain, return'd again into the Power and Poſſeſſion of the Natives, and remain'd in their Hands till the Reign of Athelſtan the 8th, Saxon Monarch of England, by whom they were ſubdued and annexed to this Crown. From which time they have been govern'd as a Part of Cornwal Cambd.

SCIN, a Strong-hold in Dalmatia, with a Territory of three Miles in length, reaching from Cliſſa to the River Ceſtina. General Cornaro, accompanied with the Prince of Parma and Count of St. Paul, attack'd this Place in 1686; and having batter'd it a conſiderable time, ſtorm'd it, and were vigorouſly oppoſed by the Turks; but after three Hours Reſiſtance were overcome, and cut in Pieces by the Chriſtians, who ſpared none but the Women, and ſome old and decrepid Men unable to bear Arms. They found eight Pieces of Cannon in the Fort. Coronelli's Deſcription de la Moree.

SCINIS, or Schinis, a famous Robber, who had his Abode near the City of Corinth, was uſed to tie the Arms of thoſe he had a mind to deſtroy to the Branches of two Pines, which by his great Strength he had bowed down, and then letting them go again, they were miſerably torn to Pieces. But Theſeus coming that Way, ſerved him in like manner. Plutark.

SCIO, or Chio, an Iſland of the Archipelago, which lies over-againſt Smyrna, not above twelve Leagues from the neareſt Coaſt of Aſia. The Turks call it Saquezada, i. e. the Iſle of Maſtick. The capital City from whence the Iſland takes its Name, is very Populous, and the Inhabitans of it are all Chriſtians, Greek or Latin; for the Turks and Jews live in the Caſtle, which is of a large Compaſs. About four Miles from the City, near the Sea-ſhore, is a Rock, in which are cut out the Figures of ſeveral Seats, round about a Chair hew'd out in the ſame Rock, which the Inhabitants call Homer's School, and ſay that he taught his Scholars there. About three Leagues from Scio, upon a Mountain towards the South, there grows abundance of Maſtick Trees, called in Latin Lentiſci, which are a low ſort of Tree, the Leaf whereof much reſembles that of Myrtle, and ſhoots out its Branches ſo far that they reach down to the Earth: But that which is more wonderful, is, that they no ſooner touch the Ground, but they riſe upwards again by little and little. They ſplit the Branches of theſe Trees in the Months of May and June, and from them drops a kind of Gum which we call Maſtick, and the Turks Sakes. The Great Turk ſends every Year ſome of his Boſtangi's or Gardeners, who gather all the Maſtick for the Proviſion of the Seraglio; and when there is a greater abundance than ordinary, they ſell part of it. All the Women of the Seraglio do chew it continually, to whiten their Teeth and ſweeten their Breath. Tavernier's Journey into Perſia.

SCIOPPIUS (Gaſpar) a German and an Eminent Author in the XVII Century: He ſtudied at Amberg, and afterward at Heidleburgh and Altdorf, being maintain'd by the Elector Palatine: Here he publiſh'd ſome Critical Treatiſes, which did his Modeſty, as Monſ. Bayle relates, ſome Diſſervice, not being able, when he was ſo young, to reflect upon his Performances in Print, without a Tincture of Conceit. He travelled into Italy, and after having made ſome Stay at Verona, he return'd back to Germany, from whence he travelled again into Italy, and being at Ferrara, he publiſh'd a Panegyrick upon the King of Spain and another upon Pope Clement VIII. He endeavour'd to prefer himſelf at the Court of Rome, in which, though he was not defective in Conduct and Induſtry, yet his Fortune proved but indifferent, under which he was not very eaſie, notwithſtanding his pompous Pretentions of Birth and Quality. He turn'd Roman Catholick in the Year 1599, but was a great Enemy to the Jeſuits, whom he maul'd ſufficiently in ſeveral Pamphlets publiſh'd with counterfeit Titles: On the other hand, he was no leſs violent againſt the Proteſtant Party, carrying his Invectives and Paſſion to that Exceſs, as to excite the Roman Catholick Princes to extirpate 'em by the moſt Sanguinary Expedients; being not ſatisfied to fall foul upon Scaliger, Caſaubon and Mornay du Pleſſis, he was ſo hardy as to attack even King James I. and that without any manner of Regard to his Quality: This outragious Preſumption put the Engliſh Ambaſſador at Madrid upon a ſort of rugged Revenge, ordering ſome of his Train to ſet upon Scioppius in the Streets at Madrid, who wounded him in ſeveral Places. In 1607 Scioppius travelled through Venice, where he had ſeveral Meetings with Father Paul, whom he endeavour'd, both by Promiſes and Threatnings, to bring over to the Pope's Intereſt. He died about 1649; as to his Character, one of the things upon which he valued himſelf, was his Latin, and here his Cenſures ran very high againſt others, pretending to find Barbariſms, not only in the moſt celebrated Moderns, but finding Fault even with Tully himſelf: He was counted as troubleſome and diſobliging a Grammarian as Diogenes was a Philoſopher, and had made himſelf ſo many Enemies by his Cynical Humour, that at laſt there was ſcarce any Body willing to entertain him: However, it cannot be deny'd, but that he was a Man of great Capacity and Genius; and if his Modeſty and Temper had been equal to his Parts and Learning, he might juſtly have challeng'd a Place amongſt Men of Letters of the firſt Quality; his indefatigable Induſtry, his Memory, the Number of his Treatiſes, the Force and Spirit of his Elocution, and his Aſcendent over his Enemies, are all ſurprizing Circumſtances; but he uſually pay'd dear for his Victories, and having raiſed himſelf ſo many Enemies, and been ſo often roughly handled, at laſt his Courage ſeem'd to flag, and he began to think himſelf not invincible: He wrote, Vereſimilium Libri 4. Suſpectarum Lectionum Libri 5. *Commentarius de Arte Critica. Notationes Critici in Phædrum cum Ritterſhuſii, in eundem Scriptorem Commentario. Libellus de ſua ad Catholicos migratione, deque Auctoritate Eccleſiæ in ſacra ſcriptura interpretanda. Gaſp. SCIPIO. The Illuſtrious Family that bore this Name in Rome was a Branch of that of the Cornelii, and got the Name of Scipio, becauſe Scipio Cornelius was wont to guide his blind Father, and ſupport him as he walk'd along the Streets; whence this Name was given him, which ſignifies a Walking-ſtaff or Crutch, intimating that he perform'd this pious Office to his Father. L. Cornelius Scipio was Conſul in 456 of Rome, with Cn. Fulvius Maximus: He defeated the Tuſcans near Volaterra. Liv. Lib. 10. Cn. Cornelius Scipio, ſurnam'd Aſina, was Conſul with C. Ovilius Nepos in 494, and A. Attilius Calatinus, and was defeated and taken with Seventeen of his Ships in his firſt Conſulſhip; but the next Year he took Aleria in the Iſle of Corſica, and ſeveral other Places: And from thence ſailing over to Sardinia, he took Olbia, and defeated Hanno the General of the Carthaginians. In his latter Conſulſhip, he diſcomfited 200 of their Ships, and took Palermo. He was the Father of Cn. Cornelius Scipio, who in 533 was Conſul with M. Manutius Rufus who conquered the Iſtrians, and of P. Cornelius Scipio who was Conſul with Tib. Sempronius Longus in the Year 536, when the ſecond Punick War begun. Being gone over to Spain to oppoſe Hannibal's Progreſs, having underſtood that he was already got among the Gauls, and had paſt the River Rhone, he reſolv'd, if poſſible, to ſtop his March, whereupon having left part of his Forces with his Brother, to purſue Aſdrubal in Spain, he haſted to the Army which was near the Po. It was by the River Teſin that both Armies met, and the firſt Battle was fought, the Event of which was the routing of the Roman Army, where Scipio himſelf being wounded, had been taken by the Enemy, if Publius his Son, who ſome time after deſerved the Surname of Africanus, had not defended him with more Vigour and Reſolution than could well have been expected from his Youth, as being but about ſeventeen Years of Age. After this, in the Year 542, he and his Brother obtain'd many Victories in Spain, ſo as to conquer the greateſt part of that Kingdom from the Carthaginians, and recover'd Saguntum. But in the End being engag'd in a Fight againſt the Enemy commanded by Aſdrubal and Mago, as he came to ſupport part of his Army that ſeem'd in great Danger, he was kill'd by the Cunning of the Carthaginians and the Treachery of his own Soldiers. His Brother Cneus, whoſe Army was likewiſe routed by the united Forces of the Carthaginians, fled to a Tower, which, upon his Refuſal to ſurrender himſelf, they ſet on Fire, and burnt him in it. Tit. Liv. 21. Polyb. L. 4. Florus, &c.

SCIPIO (Pub. Cornelius) ſurnam'd Africanus, was the Son of Pub. Cornelius before mentioned. When he was but a Boy he uſed at certain Hours of the Day to be private in the Capitol, where the common People reported he diſcours'd with Jupiter. He was not eighteen Years of Age when he reſcued his Father in the Defeat at Teſin, and perſuaded the Nobility of Rome to ſtay, who would have left the Town at the Defeat of Cannæ. After the Death of his Father and Uncle he was ſent into Spain, being but 24 Years of Age, and in leſs than four Years he conquered that vaſt Country from the Carthaginians. In one and the ſame Day he beat the Army of the Carthaginians, and took New-Carthage. The Wife of Mardonius and the Children of Indibilis, who were ſome of the firſt Quality of the Country, being found amongſt the Priſoners, he cauſed them to be honourably conducted to their Parents, and would not ſo much as once look upon a young Lady of extraordinary Beauty that was amongſt them; and not only ſo, but when a great Ranſom was offer'd him for her, he freely beſtowed it upon her as an Addition to her Fortune. And ſoon after having put an End to the War by a pitch'd Battle he fought in Andaluſia, where he defeated above 50000 Foot and 4000 Horſe and deliver'd Spain, he paſt the Sea into Africa, where he twice defeated the Carthaginians commanded by Aſdrubal and by Syphax, King of Numidia: In the firſt of theſe Fights there were no leſs than 40000 of the Enemies kill'd and burnt, and 6000 taken: In the ſecond their Forces were entirely routed, and Lælius and Maſſiniſſa purſued Syphax, whom they took in Cyrtha, with his Wife Sophoniuba: This was done in the Year of Rome 551. The next Year he beat Hannibal at the Battle of Zama, kill'd 20000 of his Men, and took as many Priſoners, and eleven Elephants, without the Loſs of above 1500 Men; whereupon the City Carthage ſubmitted to the Conqueror, into which he entred in 553; and triumphing over Syphax, had from that time the Surname of Africanus beſtowed upon him, and was made Conſul a ſecond time, and raiſed to the higheſt Places of Truſt and Command in the Commonwealth. In the Year 553 he followed his Brother into Aſia, and upon his Return being accuſed by the two Petilian Brothers, who were Tribunes of the People, for having defrauded the Common-Treaſury, and keeping Correſpondence with King Antioobus, becauſe he had ſent him his Son Scipio, who was his Priſoner of War, without Ranſom. The only Defence he made for himſelf was, that calling to mind that that was the very Day wherein he had defeated Hannibal, it was but juſt that he ſhould go to the Capitol, there to pay his Thanks to the Gods: Whereupon going out from the Tribunal, all the People followed him, as if they had forgot that ever he had been accuſed: Whereupon the Indictment preferred againſt him was dropt. Afterwards this Great Man retired to Linternum in the Neighbourhood of Rome, where he ſpent the reſt of his Life in Study and Entertaining Men of Letters. He was the Father of P. Cornelius Scipio, who accompanying his Father into Aſia, was taken Priſoner there, as has been already mention'd. Cicero gives him a great Commendation for his Eloquence, in his Dialogues of famous Orators, intituled Brutus. It was he that adopted the Son of Paulus, who afterwards had the Title of Africanus Junior beſtowed upon him. *Tit. SCIPIO (L. Cornelius) ſurnam'd Aſiaticus, was the Son of Pub. Scipio, and Brother of Scip. Africanus, whoſe Companion he was in the Wars of Spain and Africa. He was of a very ſickly Conſtitution, which made him leſs fit for great Actions. He was Conſul in 564, and at the ſame time was ſent General of the Roman Army againſt Antiochus, his Brother Publius being his Lieutenant; and having defeated Antichus in the Magneſian Fields near to Sardes, had the Title of Aſiaticus conferr'd upon him. The Army of Antiochus conſiſted of 70000 Foot and 12000 Horſe, beſides a great Number of Chariots, armed with Sythes, and many Elephants, the Roman Army being not above 30000 in all: In this Fight the Enemy loſt near 50000 Foot and 4000 Horſe, beſides 1400 that were taken, with fifteen Elephants. Being afterwards accuſed by Cato of Embezeling the Publick Treaſury, and condemn'd, as they were leading him to Priſon he was ſet at Liberty by Gracchus, the Son-in-law of Scipio Africanus; but his Goods were all confiſcated, though it appear'd afterwards that he had been falſly accuſed. Liv. Lib. 38. *Aurel. SCIPIO (Pub. Æmilianus) called Africanus Minor. He was the Son of L. Æmilius Paulus, and adopted by the Son of Africanus Major. He was every way a Great Man, as poſſeſſing all the Qualities that might recommend a Man either in War or Peace. He made his firſt Campaigns under his Father Paulus Æmilius. He went to Spain in 603, when all Men refuſed that Service; he there obtain'd the Reward of a Mural Crown, for having been the firſt that ſcaled the Walls of a City beſieged by the Romans, and fought a ſingle Combat with a Spaniard of a prodigious Stature, wherein he came off Victor. The next Year he paſt over into Africa, where he got an Obſidional Crown, for having reliev'd a beſieg'd Roman Garriſon. In 607 the Laws were diſpenſed with in his Regard, and he was made Conſul at an under Age, and the next Year after he took and burnt Carthage; and in the Year 620 took and deſtroy'd Numantia. He was a very Learned Man himſelf, and a great Lover of it in others, and therefore had always Polybius and Panætius to be his Companions, as well in the City as abroad in his Expeditions. He was found dead in his Bed in 625, not without Suſpicion of his having been murthered by the Gracchi. Tit. Liv. Lib. 48. & 52. Velleius Paterc. Lib. 1. & 2. *Aurel. SCIPIO (Naſica) was the Son of Cn. Cornelius Scipio who was kill'd with his Brother in Spain, and Couſin of Pub. Scip. Africanus. He was a Man eminent for Eloquence, of extraordinary Skill in the Laws, and beſides a very wiſe Man, couragious and expert in Warlike Affairs; but his ſingular Piety and Virtue outvied all his other great Accompliſhments to that Degree, that the Senate by Vote declared him the beſt Man of the Commonwealth, and lodg'd with him the Image of the Mother of the Gods, which according to the Oracles Command was to be lodg'd with a Perſon ſo qualified. He was called Corculum, by reaſon of his extraordinary Prudence and Wiſdom. Aurel. Vict. de vir. illuſt. Cap. 44. Florus. Livy, &c.

SCIPIO (Pub.) ſurnam'd Naſica, was the Grand-child of Scipio Naſica, and the Son of him who was Conſul; and being afterwards Cenſor, built ſeveral Portico's to the Capitol. He liv'd a private Man all his Life-time, and was one of thoſe that oppoſed Tiberius Gracchus, who was the Author of the Lex Agraria. Paterc.

SCLAVONIA, a Country of Europe, under which Name the Ancients comprehended Hungary, Sclavonia Propria, Croatia, Dalmatia, Boſnia, Servia and Bulgaria, reaching from the River Drave to the Gulf of Venice. But by Sclavonia at preſent is only meant that part of the ancient Pannonia bounded by the Save and Drave: From Capranitz in the Weſt to the Mouth of the Drave in the Eaſt, it is fifty German Miles in length, and twelve in breadth. It is ſaid to have had its Name from the Slavi, an ancient People who came from Scythia in the Time of the Emperor Juſtinian; and having ſeiz'd Iſtria and all Grecia, founded the Kingdoms of Poland under Lechus, and Moravia under Zechus. An. 550 they were beat out of Greece by Conſtantine; An. 783 they were kept under by Lewis the Pious; An. 807 they embraced Chriſtianity by the Preaching of one Methodus. The Emperor Lewis II. had War with them about 858, as alſo the Emperor Otho in 960. They infeſted Canute and Sueno Kings of the Danes in 960, but Walduner overcame them in 1161. An. 1200 Canute the Dane overcame the Marqueſs of Brandenburgh, who had poſſeſt himſelf of Sclavonia; and after this the Sclavonians became Tributaries to the Hungarians. They were moſt of them of the Roman Church, but performed their Worſhip in their own Language, which was formerly very extenſive, and ſpoke in more Places than any other living Tongue in Europe, but now almoſt confin'd to their own Country; and is yet, though in different Dialects, ſpoken from the Adriatick Gulf to the Northern Ocean, by the Iſtrians, Dalmatians, Boſnians, Moravians, Bohemians, Luſatians, Sileſians, Poles, Lithuanians, Pruſſians, Scandinavians and Ruſſians, almoſt as far as Conſtantinople, and much uſed among the Turks. In 1544 that Country was ſubdued by Solymon the Magnificent: In 1687, after the Turks were defeated at Mohatz their Army mutiny'd againſt the Grand Viſier, and the Turks deſerting it, the whole Country except Gradiſca, ſubmitted to the Emperor. The Country is very fruitful, and hath many Mines; the People are ſo enamour'd with War, that they often pray they may die with their Swords in their Hands. The principal Towns are Grandiſca, Eſſeck and Poſſega the Capital. Hoff. Baud.

SCONE, a Place within a Mile of Perth or St. Johnſton, formerly renown'd for a Monaſtery, but more as being the Place where the Kings of Scotland were Crown'd ever ſince the time that King Kennethus defeated the Picts near this Place, and fixed the Marble Chair here, encloſed in another of Wood, all his Predeceſſors having been inaugurated upon that Stone, which was tranſported from Ireland with Fergus the firſt King of Scotland. But Edward I. of England brought it to Weſtminſter, which ſome pretend to have occaſion'd the Succeſſion of the Scots to the Engliſh Crown, according to the rhyming Prophecy ſo much talk'd of concerning this Chair,

> Ni fallat fatum, Scoti quocunque locatum
> Inveniunt Lapidem, regnare tenentur ibidem.

Which may be Engliſhed;

> If Fate don't fail, where'er you find this Stone,
> That Country muſt a Scot for Monarch own.

This Place giveth alſo the Title of Lord to one of the Family of Murray, who is now Viſcount Stormont. Cambd.

SCOPAS, an excellent Statuary and Sculptor, who made the Mauſoleum for Artemiſia, Queen of Caria, and wrought at the Temple of Diana in Epheſus, and in ſeveral other Places. Plin. Lib. 36. Cap. 5. Horat. Lib. 4. Od. 8.

SCOPELINUS, the Father of Pindar, the Prince of Lyrick Poets.

SCOPIA. Doctor Browne in his Travels, Pag. 32. ſaith, It is a City of great Trade, and the largeſt in theſe Parts, and ſtands in Moeſia, but on the Borders of Macedonia, at the Foot of Mount Orbelus, upon the River Vardar Axius, partly on Hills and partly on Plains, in a pleaſant Country: It was at firſt a Biſhop's See, but is now an Archbiſhop's, it being a pleaſant and a populous Town. There are in it 700 Tanners, many fair Houſes, and ſome handſome Sepulchral Monuments. The beſt Houſes are richly furniſhed with Carpets to tread on, finely painted. The Bezeſtan is covered with Lead, and the Avenues to the Town ſet off with Trees and pleaſant Hills and Dales; and in it there are many fine Moſchs. This City in the Year 1689 was taken by Picolomini for the Germans, it being deſerted by the Baſſa and its Inhabitants. The Germans ſaid it was as big as Prague in Bohemia, and had 60000 Inhabitants and 400 Jews; but being open and only wall'd, and taken late in the Year, the Germans plundered and burnt it down to the Ground. It is ſeated thirty German Miles from Niſſa to the South, and from Theſſalonica to the North. The Inhabitants were moſtly Aſiaticks, planted here by Mahomet I.

SCORILO, a Prince of the Dacians, who diſſuaded his People from declaring War againſt the Romans, who at that time were engag'd in a Civil War amongſt themſelves, by this Example; He cauſed two Dogs to be brought before them, and having provoked them to fight, when they were in the Heat of it he let a Wolf looſe upon them, who upon the Sight of their common Enemy left their Fighting, and turn'd their Fury againſt the Wolf: By which he taught his People, that if they ſhould be ſo fooliſh as to attack the Romans, they would ſoon unite and be in a Condition to ~~deſtroy them~~.

SCORPION, one of the twelve Signs of the Zodiack, under which the Sun paſſeth in the Month of October, which riſeth at the ſame time that Orion ſets; of which the Poets give us this Account; That Orion having preſumptuouſly defied all the Beaſts of the Field, a Scorpion ſtung him, whereof he died; which Scorpion was afterwards fix'd among the Stars, upon the Appearance of which, Orion by Antipathy abſconds himſelf. Hygin.

SCOT (John) or Joannes Dunſcotus, a very Learned Man, who liv'd about the End of the thirteenth and Beginning of the fourteenth Century. The Scots and Engliſh ſtrive which of them ſhall have the Honour of his Birth, the latter alledging that he was born at Eniſdon in Northumberland, and for Proof cite a Manuſcript of his own in Merton College at Oxford; but at the ſame time Cambden ſays, he was deſcended of Scottiſh Blood. The Scots alledge, that he was born at Duns in the Mers, the neighbouring County to Northumberland, and hence was called Dunſcotus. Moreri, Buchanan and other Scotch Hiſtorians are of this Opinion, and for Proof cite his Epitaph;

> Scotia me genuit, Anglia ſuſcepit,
> Gallia edocuit, Germania tenet.

Perhaps the Difference may be reconcilable thus, that his Mother might remove from Duns to the neighbouring County of Northumberland when big with him, and bring him forth there: But however that is, all agree that he was a great Schoolman, and Founder of the Sect called Scotiſts. He is ſaid to have been a very acute Logician, and therefore called Doctor Subtilis; but blamed for calling the greateſt of Truths into Doubt, and obſcuring them with his Niceties. He wrote a great many Books, and was a ſtout Oppoſer of Thomas Aquinas's Doctrine, and a mighty Champion for the Virgin's immaculate Conception: He read the Sentences thrice over in his ſolemn Lectures, once at Oxford, again at Paris, and laſt at Cologne on the Rhine, where he died after a ſtrange manner; for during an Apoplectick Fit he was interred, but reviving in his Grave, daſh'd out his Brains againſt the Grave-ſtone, as appear'd afterwards; which makes this Epigram, writ upon him by an Italian, obſervable, though it ſmells of Rancor, and probably becauſe he differ'd from the Church of Rome in ſome things:

> Quæcunque humani fuerant, Juriſque Sacrati
> In dubium veniunt cuncta vocante Scoto:
> Quid quod & in dubium illius ſit vita vocata
> Morte illum ſimili ludificante Stropha.
> Quum non ante virum vita jugularit adempta,
> Quum vivas tumulo conditus ille foret.

Which may be Engliſhed thus:

> What Heav'n declar'd, and all Men did aſſert,
> Scot rendred doubtful, and would controvert:
> Death doubting how he ſhould requite his Pains,
> Interr'd him quick, and then daſh'd out his Brains.

But this is by ſome ſaid to be a meer Calumny of his Enemies Paulus Jovius, Latomus and Bzovius. His Works were publiſh'd at Lions in twelve Volumes An. 1639, with an Account of his Life. He died at Cologne Nov. 8. 1308. There are others who ſay he was an Iriſh Man, born in the County of Down and Province of Ulſter; but this never obtain'd. In the Supplement to Cave's Hiſt. Literaria, he is ſaid to have been extraordinary learned in Phyſicks, Metaphyſicks, Mathematicks, and Aſtronomy; that his Fame was ſo great when at Oxford, that 30000 Scholars came thither to hear his Lectures; that when at Paris his Arguments and Authority carried it for the immaculate Conception of the Virgin; ſo that they appointed a Feſtival on that Account, and would admit no Scholars to Degrees but ſuch as were of his Mind. Being commanded by the General of the Minorites to go for Cologne, he was received by the Citizens with extraordinary Pomp. Such as have a mind to ſee a Catalogue of his Works may ſee them in Dr. Cave's Hiſt. Liter. Fuller. Eng. Worth. Cambd. Buchan. Knox.

SCOTLAND, is an ancient Kingdom, divided from England by the River Tweed, Mountains of Cheviot, a Wall or Trench Weſt of thoſe Mountains, and the Rivers Esk and Solway. It has the German Ocean on the Eaſt, the Iriſh Sea and the Weſtern Iſles on the Weſt, and the Deucaledonian Sea with the Orcades on the North. The Scots did anciently poſſeſs the Northern Counties of England, viz. Northumberland, Weſtmerland and Cumberland, doing Homage for them to the Crown of England: But in Malcolm III. and William the Conqueror's Time the Boundary was fix'd in Stanmore in Cumberland, where a Croſs was erected called Recroſs or Kings Croſs, having the Engliſh Kings Arms and Statue on the South Side, and the Scottiſh Kings Arms and Statue on the North: But in latter Times the Boundaries came to be ſettled, as above deſcribed. The length of this Kingdom is variouſly reported; Polidore Virgil, Heylin, and moſt Geographers ſay, it is 480 Miles long, but of an unequal breadth, there being no Place above ſixty Miles diſtant from the Sea. Latter Geographers ſay, it is but 315 Miles long and 190 broad.

Ancient Authors write, that this Country was divided into ſeven Parts, under as many particular Princes; but that Diviſion is long ſince become obſolete: The Modern Diviſion is into High-lands and Low-lands, the Inhabitants of the former uſing the ancient Language and Habit very little different from that of the Native Iriſh; but thoſe of the latter, do in Habit, Cuſtoms and Language agree with the Engliſh. Another Diviſion which doth now obtain, is into North and South, the laſt on this Side, and the firſt beyond the River Tay.

As for the Dimenſions of the Kingdom in general, comprehending the Iſlands, of which there are in the Weſtern Sea above 300. It is not much leſs than England; and though not generally ſo fruitful, yet abounds with Corn, Cattle, Fowl, Fiſh, Wood, Coals, Salt, Rivers, Fountains, and all things not only neceſſary for the Uſe of its Inhabitants, but ſufficient for driving a conſiderable Trade with other Nations, there being exported yearly vaſt Quantities of Fiſh, Corn and Coal, Hides, Tallow and coarſe Cloth. Nor are there wanting Mines of Gold and Silver, as ſome affirm, but Lead and Iron in abundance; ſtore of Marble, and ſome Ambergreaſe and Pearl: As the Air is ſharper, it is alſo purer than that of England, and the Sky not ſo ſubject to Clouds.

For the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, the Kingdom is divided into Sheriffdoms, Stewartries and Bailywicks.

The Counties or Sheriffdoms are Edinburgh, Berwick, Roxburgh, Selkirk, Peebles, Dumfries, Air, Renfrew, Clackmanan, Kinros, Perth, Cromarty, Fife, Forfar, Kinkardin, Aberdeen, Innerneſs, Narin, Orkney, Bamf, Wigton, Tarbet, Bute, Lithgow, Sterlin, Lanerk, Argyle, Dumbarton, Elgin and Forres. Stewartries Menteith, Strathern, Kirkubright, Annandale. Bailywicks, Kyle, Carrick, Cunningham and Lauderdale, and Conſtablewick of Haddington.

To the North are reckoned the Countries of Lockaber, Braidalbin, Perth, Athol, Angus, Merns, Marr, Buchan, Murray, Roſs, Sutherland, Cathnes and Strathnavern, beſides Orkney. To the South are reckoned Tividale, March or Mers, Lothian, Liddeſdale, Eskdale, Annandale, Niddeſdale, Galloway, Carrick, Kyle, Cunningham, Arran, Clydſdale, Lennox, Sterlin, Fife, Strathern, Menteith, Argyle, Cantire, Lorn. This Diviſion formerly obtain'd in Courts of Judicature till the Time of K. James IV. when the Seſſion or Courts of Juſtice ſat at Edinburgh in the Winter and at Aberdeen in the Summer. The Seſſion was then compoſed of twelve Judges, four choſen out of the Nobility, four of the Clergy, and four of the Gentry, called Barons or Knights of Shires, which continued till the Time of James V. who brought in that Cuſtom of Lords of the Seſſion, which now obtains in Imitation of that which the French call a Parliament. This by the Way.

Concerning the ANTIQUITY of SCOTLAND.

This Nation has as great Pretenſions to Antiquity as any in Europe, having, according to their Hiſtorians, poſſeſſed that Kingdom for above 2000 Years without ever being Conquered, i. e. having their Crown on the Head or their Laws from the Hand of a Foreigner, though they have been at times ſubdued by the Romans and Engliſh, and in a great meaſure over-run by the Danes. They plead alſo, as their particular Glory, a Line of 112 Kings, who can all of them deduce their Pedigree from Fergus I. who was ſent for by the People from Ireland, and came into Scotland about the Time that Alexander the Great took Babylon, viz. 330 Years before Chriſt. As to the Original of the Scots there are various Sentiments, the ancient vulgar Opinion was, that they took their Name from Scota (the Daughter of Pharaoh, K. of Egypt, Contemporary with Moſes) who was married to Gathelus, is exploded by Buchanan and all the learned Scotch Hiſtorians, the Relation being not only inconſiſtent with Truth, but with it ſelf. Buchanan's Opinion is, that they came firſt from Spain into Ireland, to flee from the Oppreſſion of their Grandees, Inteſtine Seditions and Foreign Invaſions; and finding that Country fruitful and healthful, were quickly followed by Multitudes of their Country-men: So that Ireland being too little, they removed gradually into the Weſtern Iſlands of Scotland, and then into the Country it ſelf; which he affirms to be the conſtant Report, and confirmed by many Evidences. He will have them to be known then by the Name of Scots, and that while they were planting the Weſtern Iſlands, the Picts, being Scythians or Germans, were driven upon that Coaſt, and ſought leave to inhabit among them, which the Scots refuſed, as being ſtraightned in room for themſelves; but pitying them becauſe of ſome Affinity which they perceived in their Language and Cuſtoms, adviſed and aſſiſted them to ſettle in Britain, and gave them Wives becauſe they had no Women amongſt them. Cambden and ſome Scotch Hiſtorians, particularly the Prefacer to Knox's Hiſtory, think the Scots derive both Name and Pedigree from the Scithians, and endeavour to prove it by a Likeneſs of Cuſtoms, which may be reconciled with Buchanan, if we imagine that either the Spaniards were originally Scythians, or that a Colony of that People, not being ſettled to their Liking in Spain, tranſported themſelves into Ireland. There are other Engliſh Hiſtorians who think that the Scots are only a Remainder of the Brittons, who fled Northward from the Roman Servitude; and this Opinion they ſupport from the Agreement that is ſtill to be found in Language betwixt the Welch and the Highlanders. Nor is it unlikely that there might be a good meaſure of Agreement in Language betwixt the Brittons and the Scots, ſeeing the latter came from Spain, and according to Bede, the Brittons came hither from Armorica or Brittany, which lies on the Bay of Biſcay, the North of Spain, being alſo planted with Gaulick Colonies. What the Scots ſay concerning their Antiquity hath been oppoſed by ſome Engliſh Writers of no ſmall Reputation, as Humphry Lloyd, whom Buchanan confutes at large, Cambden, whom Gordon in his Theatrum Scotiæ takes to taſk, and two very learned Authors now living, viz. Dr. Stillingfleet, Biſhop of Worceſter, and the Biſhop of St. Aſaph, who are learnedly anſwered by Sir George Mack-Kenzie, late Advocate to K. Charles II. and K. James VII. of Scotland. The famous Archbiſhop Uſher did alſo write on that Head againſt the Scots; and his Arguments are alſo taken notice of by Sir George. In ſhort, the Scots complain that their Antiquity is only attack'd becauſe of the ancient Enmity betwixt the two Nations, and that their Records being deſtroy'd firſt by Edward I. of England, and aferward by Oliver, they are at a Diſadvantage, and therefore have Recourſe to Foreign Authors to prove their Antiquity, as, Marcellinus, Tacitus, Seneca, and Mamertin in his Panegyrick to Maximinian, where he ſays, that the Britains had War with the Scots and Picts before Julius Cæſar entred the Iſland: And Claudian the Poet writes thus;

> Venit & extremis Legio, prætenta Britannis,
> Quæ Scoto dat fræna Truci. ———

It's true that the Paſſages of thoſe Authors relating to this Subject are controverted, but the Scots have Scaliger, Lipſius, Eraſmus, and other learned Foreign Criticks, and Farnaby and ſome other Engliſh Criticks on their Side; as alſo, the famous Chronologer Chr. Helvicus, Cluverius, and other Foreign Authors. They farther obſerve, that the Engliſh Hiſtorians do not agree among themſelves on that Head, as Bede, an ancient and venerable Author, and the firſt Native who wrote with any Certainty of our Antiquity, is contradicted by H. Lloyd; and Heylin, who inveighs againſt the Scots Antiquity, contradicts himſelf in alledging the Spurcitious Laws of their King Evenus to the Reproach of their Nation, when he does not allow that they had any ſuch King. Neither does Dr. Stillingfleet agree with Cambden and St. Aſaph: Beſides the Teſtimony of thoſe Foreign Authors, the Scots inſiſt upon the Laws yet in Force, made by thoſe Kings who are denied ever to have had a Being; and on the League made betwixt Charlemagne, the Great Emperor of the Weſt in 791, and Achaius, King of Scots, which they reckon a Demonſtration of their having been a more conſiderable People at that time than their Antagoniſts repreſent them, viz. confin'd to Argyle, a Corner of the Kingdom, and that but in a vagrant Condition. As for the Efforts of this Nature made by Offlaharty an Iriſh Hiſtorian, Sir George Mack-Kenzie ridicules them, as being a groundleſs Piece of Vanity; for though the Iriſh and Scots be originally the ſame, ſo as Ireland at firſt was called Scotia Major, and that part of Scotland which the Scots then poſſeſſed Scotia Minor, it will not follow, nor does it any where appear, that ever the Kings of Scotland were Tributaries to thoſe of Ireland, or that the great Things ſaid to be done in Britain by the Scots, were really acted by the Iriſh. The principal Reaſon which they have for alledging that they were Iriſh, is becauſe they were called Tranſmarini; but Bede explains that Saying, Tranſmarinas autem dicimus has gentes non quod eſſent extra Britanniam poſitæ, ſed quia à parte Britonum erant remotæ duobus ſinibus maris interjacentibus. Thoſe who are curious, may conſult the above-cited Authors on this Subject. That which will be a farther Proof of the Scots Antiquity, is what they alledge as to their early Converſion to Chriſtianity, viz. An. Chr. 203, in the fourth Year of Donald I. when he and his Nobles were baptized, and the Chriſtian Religion publickly eſtabliſh'd, which had been profeſſed by many private Perſons in the Kingdom long before. As to the firſt Preacher Authors vary, ſome alledging it was St. Paul, others, as Nicephorus, ſay it was Simon Zelotes, and a third ſort aſcribe it to Joſeph of Arimathea, or the Diſciples of St. John; but however that is, the Ancients give ſufficient Teſtimony of their having been early Chriſtians. Origen reckons them Inter primitias.

Tertullian adverſus Judæos ſays, Britannorum inacceſſa Romanis loca Chriſto ſubdita; and Baronius himſelf confeſſeth, that the Opinion of thoſe who will have Scotland to be firſt converted by Palladius, ſent thither by Pope Celeſtine, diſagreeth with the beſt Antiquity: And their Agreement with the Eaſtern Churches as to the Celebration of Eaſter, is urged as another Proof of their not having received the Faith from Rome, which ſome Foreign Proteſtants, particularly the Learned Lomeierus, makes uſe of againſt the Pope's Pretenſions to be Catholick Biſhop. De Bibliothecis, Pag. 149. and in that ſame Place he acknowledges their other Antiquities. As the Scots did early and univerſally embrace Chriſtianity, they were no leſs zealous in propagating that Doctrine amongſt others. What was done by Aidanus, &c. in converting the Saxons in the North of England, is own'd by all; and how uſeful their Labours were in that reſpect in divers Places of Germany, appears by the following Inſtances.

The Bavarians own for their Apoſtle Rupert, Son to a King of Scotland, who coming into Germany in the ſixth Century, baptized Theodore, Duke of Bavaria, with all his Nobility at Ratisbone; and preaching the Goſpel in the neighbouring Countries, founded the City of Saltzburg, and was firſt Biſhop there, as appears by the Monuments of Saltzburg. Hen. Caniſ. tom. 4. Antiq. Lection. About that ſame time Columbanus and Gallus preached the Goſpel in the Confines of Suabia, converting Multitudes. Columbanus went to Rome, but Gallus ſtaid in Suiſſerland, and laid the Foundation of the Monaſtery of St. Gall, which took its Name from him. This is own'd by Bede, Theodor. Campedonenſis, and others. Tom. 4. Antiq. Lection.

Franconia owes their Converſion to Kilianus, Colonatus and Totuanus: They baptized the Duke of Franconia with his Family, and gain'd a large Harveſt of Souls, and Kilianus was made the firſt Biſhop of Wirtzburgh, of which he is ſtill reckon'd the Patron, and his Image is impreſſed upon their Coin to this Day. At laſt he and his Fellows were murthered at the Inſtigation of Geilana, Siſter-in-law and Concubine to Gosbert, Duke of Franconia, becauſe Keilan had adviſed him to put her away. Hen. Can. tom. 5. Antiq. Lect. St. Bonifacius a Scotch Man having in Charlemain's Time converted many People in Frizeland, Thuringia, Saxony, Heſſe and Weſtphalia, was created Archbiſhop of Mentz. He founded many new Biſhopricks in Germany, and amongſt others Aichſtad, over which he ſet Willibald his Country-man. He alſo founded many Monaſteries, and particularly that of Fuld, into which Scots and Germans are receiv'd by turns. At laſt having incenſed the Friſons by throwing down their Idols, they murdered him: Whence he is own'd as the German Apoſtle. Caniſ. ut ſupra, Nicol. Sarrar. In that ſame Age St. Patto a Scotch Man converted many of the Saxons, was made Biſhop of Werden, and afterwards Martyr, ſeveral of his Country-men ſucceeding both to his Mitre and Martyrdom. Crantz. A little after John Scot coming into Saxony, was made Biſhop of Meklenburg, but afterwards murdered. About An. 1000. Colomannus, Son to Malcolm I. King of Scotland, having been twice in the Holy Land, in his Way thither a third time converted a great Number of the Auſtrians from Paganiſm: He was at length taken and crucified. Stadius, Hiſtoriographer to the Emperor Maximilian I. writes his Life in Saphick Verſe, extant in Surius's Life of the Saints, which begins thus,

Auſtriæ Sanctus canitur Patronus
Fulgidum ſidus, radians ab Arcto
Scotiæ Gentis Colomannus acer
Regia Proles.

This Colomannus is alſo mentioned by Dr. Brown in his Deſcription of Vienna, where there is a Scotch Church dedicated to him. The ancienteſt Monaſtery which the Scots had in Germany, was that at Strasburg, founded by Florentius a Scotch Biſhop in 665; but before that time Arbogaſtus a Scotch Man was Biſhop there. William, Brother to Achaius, King of Scots, having got great Riches by ſerving Charlemain in the Wars, and having no Children, founded many Monaſteries in Germany for his Country-men, viz. at Ratisbon, Norimberg, Cologne and Aix la Chapelle; but all thoſe, except that of Ratisbon, were in other Hands in 1650. They had alſo Monaſteries at Wurtzburgh, Erford, Vienna, Conſtance, Memmingen, Aichſtadt, Kelham, Paderborn, and other Places, which Robert Strachan, who ſent all this Relation from Vienna to my Lord Scots Tarbut in 1641, promiſed an Account of at large in his Germania Chriſtiana ſive de Plantata & propagata Chriſtiana fide in Germania per Scotos. Some Authors are of Opinion, that the Low-land Scots are of the ſame Original with the Engliſh, becauſe of their Agreement in Language and Cuſtoms; and this, though not poſitively granted, is in a manner own'd by Scottiſh Authors themſelves: The Prefacer to Knox's Hiſtory grants that the Lowlanders are compoſed of divers Nations, many of them being of the ancient Scots who ſucceeded to the Dominions of the Picts, after they were expelled; ſome of them Brittons, who fled from the Tyranny of the Saxons, Danes and Normans; and ſome of them French, Germans, Netherlanders, &c. who coming thither on Occaſions ſettled there. The principal Cauſes of the obtaining of the Engliſh Tongue, which may be thought ſomewhat ſtrange, ſeeing the Engliſh never made an abſolute Conqueſt nor ſettled long in that Kingdom, are, 1. The Friendſhip contracted betwixt the Lowlanders and Saxons after they became Chriſtians. 2. The great Number of Engliſh whom Malcolm III. brought to aſſiſt him againſt Mackbeth the Tyrant, to many of whom he gave Lands for their good Service. 3. The kind Entertainment which Edgar, the lawful Heir of the Kingdom of England, with his Kindred and Attendants found in Scotland during their Exile; and the Number of Engliſh who came with Edgar's Siſter married to Malcolm. But 4. and chiefly, (as alledged by Gordon in his Theatrum Scotiæ) from the Saxons over running moſt part of the Low-lands; but their Strength being broken by the Danes, the Scots recovered the ſame again; and uſing the People kindly, the Saxon Commonalty remain'd ſtill as Farmers, Tenants, &c. and ſo their Language obtain'd.

As for the Manners and Cuſtoms of the ancient Scots, Authors ſpeak variouſly of them. The Roman Hiſtorians, as Tacitus, Cæſar, &c. call them Barbari, but ſpeak advantageouſly enough of their Valour; and the Scottiſh Hiſtorians inſiſt upon it as a ſufficient Proof of the Falſhood of what Cambden and others charge them with from St. Jerom, as having formerly been Canibals; that thoſe Roman Hiſtorians, though very particular in the Deſcription of the Iſland of Britain and the Manners of the Inhabitants, are wholly ſilent on that Head, which if true, they would not fail to have taken notice of, ſeeing they would never ſubmit to them. And St. Jerom himſelf does afterwards clear the Scots, and ſay, it was the Attacotti; which Gordon thinks alſo falſe, and reflects upon the Father as a peeviſh and revengeful Man. As for their Government, their Hiſtorians aſſert that it was originally by Clans or Tribes, without any fix'd Laws or Head; but after their ſettling in Albion, under Fergus, it was by King and Parliament, or to uſe their own Terms Comitia Regni, which ſettled the Succeſſion on Fergus and his Line, out of which, till the Time of Kennethus III. the fitteſt of the Race was choſen; but he obtain'd of the States to make it Hereditary from Father to Son. The Kings themſelves uſed to go from County to County to adminiſter Juſtice, and had Officers under them called Abthanes and Thanes, ſomewhat like Sheriffs, which are the firſt Names of ſubordinate Civil Dignity found in the Scotch Hiſtories; after that Committees of Parliament were appointed, for Adminiſtration of Juſtice betwixt one Seſſion and another, being accountable to the Parliaments at Meeting; and the Chiefs of Clans, as alſo Barons, had many Royalties and proper Juriſdictions of their own, within which many had Power of Life and Death, as ſome few have ſtill, and more had, as appears by their Charters: And if it be conſidered that the Heads of Clans were ſo many petty Kings enjoying many Royalties, either by Grant of their Monarchs for ſome eminent Services, or by Cuſtom from the firſt Government of the Scots, which was by Tribes, thoſe Feuds with which they are upbraided by ſome Hiſtorians will neither be found ſo barbarous nor unreaſonable, ſeeing they were a ſort of Civil War amongſt thoſe petty Princes about Meum and Tuum; however, thoſe are now for the moſt part ſwallowed up by the Crown; and the Enjoyment of them was none of the leaſt Cauſes why the Family of the Douglaſſes of old, and the Earls of Argile of late, have been ſuch Eye-ſores to their Kings. While the Kingdom was Heathen, they had a ſort of Prieſts called Druides, which were common to them with the ancient Gauls and Brittons, and together with their Way of Living and Manner of Fighting, deſcrib'd by Cæſar, is another Proof, that if they were not originally the ſame People, they were near Neighbours. For their Church-Government after they were Chriſtians, it was by the Miniſters of thoſe Times called Monks and Culdees, who, according to their Hiſtorians, govern'd the Church till Palladius was ſent by Pope Celeſtine againſt the Pelagian Hereſie; at which Time he eſtabliſhed Biſhops in Scotland, which was many Years after their publick Reception of Chriſtianity: And according to Buchanan and Cambden, they had no Dioceſans till the Time of Malcolm III. An. Ch. 1070. It was yet much longer before they had any Archbiſhops; ſo that the Archbiſhop of York, in the twelfth Age, obtain'd of the Pope that he ſhould be their Metropolitan; but the Scotch Biſhops oppoſing it, the Pope freed them from that pretended Juriſdiction. So that the firſt who brought the Title of Primate and Metropolitan into Scotland, was one Patrick Graham, who obtain'd it by Bull of Pope Sextus IV. in the XV. Century. But the Biſhops grudging to be under any other Superiour than the Pope, did at laſt out him of his Dignity. They never had but one Cardinal, which was in that ſame Age. The Prefacer to Knox's Hiſtory ſays, that the Order of Culdees did plead a Power of chuſing Biſhops till the Time of Robert the Bruce, which was in the Beginning of the thirteenth Age, but Cumin, Prefect of the Culdees, being worſted in that Attempt by Lamberton, Biſhop of St. Andrews, that Order was quite extinguiſhed, and the Biſhops eſtabliſh'd their own Chapters. So much for Diſcipline. As to Religion it ſelf; though it quickly began to decline there, as well as in other Churches, yet from the Time of Palladius to that of the Coming of Auſtin the Monk in the ſixth Age, there were many godly and learned Men. And in this Age there was a mighty Controverſie about the keeping of Eaſter; the Scots obſerving it on the fourteenth Day of the Moon, according to the Practice of the Eaſtern Churches, were called Quartadecimani, and approv'd by the Church of Rome, which, however, did at laſt prevail in that Point, not without much Oppoſition from the famous Colman. About the End of the ſeventh Age the Scotch Eccleſiaſticks went frequently to Rome for Preferments in the Church, which was mightily oppoſed by Clemens and Samſon, two Culdees, who complained of the Withdrawing the Church from the Obedience of Chriſt, and ſubjecting it to the Pope, whoſe Supremacy they oppoſed, as alſo Celibacy of Prieſts, Clerical Tonſure, Prayers for the Dead, Images in Churches, &c. for which they and their Adherents were excommunicated by the Church of Rome, as appears by the third Volume of Councils, though the Reaſons be there concealed. In the ninth Age Joannes Scotus, Ærigena and Bertram impugned the Doctrine of Tranſubſtantiation. In the tenth Bernet, a Scotch Biſhop, defended Prieſts Marriage in a National Council. From thence to the fourteenth we have no Account of any Church-Matters, but ſome Struggles betwixt the Culdees and Biſhops about Diſcipline, as above mention'd. In this Age flouriſhed the great School-man Joannes Dunſcotus. In 1431, in the Reign of King James I. Paul Craw and James Resby ſuffered for adhering to the Doctrine of Wickliff and Hus; and in 1494 about thirty Perſons were ſummoned from the Weſt before the King and his Council on that Account, amongſt whom were ſeveral Perſons of Quality, as, Campbell of Ceſnock and the Lady Stairs. In King James V. his Time the Proteſtant Religion came on apace: As for the Methods by which it was promoted, ſee Mary of Guiſe, Queen Regent of Scotland, and Mary Stewart, Queen of Scots.

The Church of Scotland is govern'd by two Archbiſhops, viz. the Archbiſhop of St. Andrews, Primate and Metropolitan of all Scotland, and the Archbiſhop of Glaſgow, who is alſo Metropolitan; under the former there are eight Suffragans, viz. Dunkel, Aberdeen, Murray, Dumblane, Brechin, Roſſe, Caithneſſe and Orkney; under the latter are four, viz. the Biſhops of Whitehorn, Liſmore, the Iſles, and Edinburgh. Under this Conſtitution the Church Government ſtands thus: 1. In every Pariſh the Cognizance of ſome Scandals belong to the Seſſion (a Judicature compoſed of the moſt conſiderable Perſons in each Pariſh) where the Miniſter preſides by vertue of his Office. 2. If the Caſe be too intricate, 'tis referr'd to the Presbytery, a ſuperior Judicature conſiſting of a certain Number of Miniſters, between twelve and twenty, who meet almoſt every Fourtnight. The Moderator of every Presbytery is nam'd by the Biſhop: Theſe Presbyteries, beſides the Cenſures they have Power to inflict, examine thoſe who enter into Holy Orders. 3. The next ſuperior Aſſembly, is the Provincial Synod, which meets twice a Year in every Dioceſs, and has the Examination of ſuch Caſes as are referr'd to them from the Presbyteries: Here the Biſhop preſides ex Officio. 4. The Convocation in which the higheſt Church-Authority is lodg'd: This is aſſembled at the King's Pleaſure, and here the Archbiſhop of St. Andrews preſides. Beſides theſe, every Biſhop in Teſtamentary Caſes, &c. has his Official or Commiſſary who is Judge of that Court within the Dioceſs. But when Presbyterianiſm prevails, the Kirk Model is as follows: 1. They alſo have their Parochial Seſſions, but with this Difference, that though the Miniſter preſides, yet a Layman (a Baily) ordinarily aſſiſts. 2. The Moderator of their Presbyteries is choſen by themſelves. 3. They have their Synod or Provincial Aſſembly, but without a conſtant Head, for every time they meet they make Choice of a new Moderator. 4. They have their General Aſſembly, which conſiſts of two Members from every Presbytery, and one Commiſſioner from each Univerſity. The King likewiſe has his Commiſſioner there, who has a Negative upon their Debates. And laſtly, Their Acts, to give them a Legal Force, muſt be ratify'd by the King. Gibſon's Additions to Cambden's Britan.

It is alſo controverted by the Engliſh and Scotch Hiſtorians, Whether that Kingdom was originally a Free-State, or depended on the King of England as Superior; the Engliſh aſſert it, and the Scots deny it, alledging that their Kings did only pay Homage to the Crown of England for the Northern Counties when they poſſeſſed them, but that the Right of Superiority over Scotland was never claim'd till the Time of Edward I. who took the Advantage of the diſtracted Condition of the Kingdom, when he was choſen Umpire to decide whether Bruce or Baliol had the beſt Title to the Crown of Scotland; not that he was their Superior, but becauſe of the great Amity which had been between him and their laſt King Alexander, and that the Factions were both ſo powerful, that it could not be determined at Home. And though, it's true, Baliol did actually make ſuch a Surrender, that by his means he might be ſet on the Throne, and moſt of the Nobility who were preſent at Berwick were compell'd to aſſent, yet the Parliament of Scotland did immediately revoke it, and that Action of Baliol excluded him and his Poſterity from the Crown, and laid the Foundation of a bloody War betwixt the Nations. For the Arguments uſed by Dr. Heylin and others to prove this Point, they are not ſo concludent as a Matter of that Importance would require, though doubtleſs there are Records in the Tower that ſuch Homage has been paid by the Scots; but if it were obtain'd by Fraud or Force, as the Scottiſh Hiſtorians do all aſſert, the Foundation is too weak for the Superſtructure; and what they alledge, that their Kings and Nobles, when taken in Battle, were always treated as Priſoners of War, and not as Rebels, as they muſt needs have been if they had been Vaſſals to the Crown of England, has much more Force to prove that the Engliſh Kings did not think their Claim good, than Heylin's Argument has to evince that the Scottiſh Kings did tacitly own that Claim by calling themſelves only Scotorum Reges and not Scotiæ Reges, ſeeing Imperator Romanorum, Rex Francorum, Gothorum, &c. are the uſual way by which Independent Soveraigns entitle themſelves in Latin.

So that according to this Catalogue, from Fergus I. who began his Reign 330 Years before Chriſt, the Scotch Monarchy has to this Year 1693 laſted 2023 Years in a continued Succeſſion.

The Government of Scotland is as that of England, by King and Parliament, and the Prerogatives of their Kings much alike, only His preſent Majeſty K. William II. hath conſented to the aboliſhing of his Supremacy in Eccleſiaſtical Affairs in Scotland. Their Parliament conſiſts of three States, the Nobility, Barons or Knights of Shires, and Burgeſſes. The Nobility are Conſiliarii nati, and all of them have right of Suffrage in Parliament; and anciently all the leſſer Barons, that is, ſuch as hold Lands of the Crown with privilege of keeping a Court, were obliged to appear perſonally in Parliament, Proxies never being allowed in Scotland, which thoſe of ſmall Eſtates finding heavy, they excuſed themſelves, and their Attendance was diſpenſed with in K. James I. his Reign, but they might by that Act have ſent two or three, or more, from every Shire to repreſent them, which yet they neglected for about 150 Years, till K. James VI. to ballance the Power of the Nobility, got them reſtored to that Right: And ſince that time every Shire ſends two Commiſſioners. The Parliament is ſummon'd by Proclamation at the head Borough of every Shire 40 Days before they meet, and every one who holds Lands of the Crown, and are taxed at 40 s. Scottiſh Money to the King, which will be in real Value about 10 l. Sterling per An. is capable of giving a Voice or being choſen. The Electors ſubſcribe the Commiſſions which they give, and the Parliament determine double Elections before they proceed to act. The Burgeſſes are choſen by the Common-Council of the Boroughs. When they are conven'd, and the Cauſes of their Meeting declared by the King and the Chancellor, the Lords Spiritual retire apart, and chuſe eight of the Lords Temporal; the Lords Temporal likewiſe chuſing as many out of the Lords Spiritual: Then all theſe together nominate eight of the Knights of the Shires and as many of the Burgeſſes, which altogether make 32, and are call'd Lords of the Articles; and with the Chancellor, Treaſurer, Privy Seal, the King's Secretary, &c. admit or reject all Matters that are propoſed to the States, after they have been firſt communicated to the King: After they are approv'd by the whole Aſſembly of the States, they are throughly examin'd, and ſuch as paſs by a Majority of Votes are preſented to the King, who, by touching them with the Scepter, gives them the Force of Law, but if the King diſlikes any thing, 'tis raz'd out of the Bill. Cambden. Britan.

When the Parliament firſt ſits down there is a mighty ſolemn and ſtately Cavalcade, which they call, the Riding of the Parliament; in this Manner: The Crown, Scepter and Sword of State are brought down from the Caſtle of Edinburgh where they are kept, to the King's Palace in a Coach well guarded, to which every one muſt uncover as they paſs: When they are arrived at the Palace, the Cavalcade begins thus; All the Members of Parliament being in the great Court before the Palace, mount their Horſes, which are capariſon'd in a rich and ſtately manner. The Burgeſſes ride firſt, with one Lackey apiece, two Trumpeters and two Purſevants in their Coats, uſhering the Way bare-headed: Next come the Commiſſioners of Shires two by two, each having two Lackeys: Then follow ſuch of the Officers of State as are not Noblemen; then the Lords, all of them two and two: Next come four Trumpeters bare-headed two and two, four Purſevants in their Coats, bare-headed, two and two, ſix Heralds in that ſame manner, the Gentleman-Uſher bare headed, Lion King at Arms with his Coat and Robes and Foot-Mantle, and his Batoon in his Hand, bare-headed; the Sword of State, the Scepter and the Crown carried by three of the ancienteſt of the Nobility bare-headed; on each Side the Honours are three Mace-bearers bare-headed; and after them comes a Nobleman bare-headed, with a Purſe containing the Lord High Commiſſioner's Commiſſion: Laſt of all comes the Lord High Commiſſioner, with the Dukes and Marqueſſes on his Right and Left Hand. When the King is preſent the Maſter of Horſe rides near, but a little aſide. Every Duke hath eight Lackeys, every Marqueſs ſix, every Earl four, every Viſcount three and every Lord three, and every Nobleman has a Gentleman to hold up his Train, beſides his Pages. The two Archbiſhops have the Priviledge of Dukes and the reſt of Lords. The Nobility have Scarlet Robes fac'd with Ermin, with Diſtinctions according to their Degree. The Noblemens Lackeys have over their Liveries ſhort Velvet Coats with their Badges, Creſts and Motto's either in Plate or Embroidery on their Backs and Breaſts. The Great Officers of State ride up to the Parliament Houſe Half an Hour before in their Robes, attended by their Friends on Horſe-back, and wait in the Parliament Houſe. The Guards follow the King or Commiſſioner, and on each Side the Street the Train'd-Bands of the City of Edinburgh are drawn up. When the King rides in Perſon, the Marqueſſes and Dukes come before him, and the Lord Chancellor rides bearing the Great Seal, but not before the Commiſſioner. The Lord Chancellor receives the King or Commiſſioner when he comes into the Houſe, and uſhers him up to the Throne, which is raiſed ſix Steps high, with a Canopy of State, and with other Officers of State ſits on each Hand on a Step under him; and next under them ſit the Judges: On the Right and Left Hand of the Throne ſit the Nobility, and in the Right-ſide of the Room ſit the Commiſſioners of Shires, and on the other thoſe for Boroughs. When the King is preſent, he ſpeaks to them in his Robes, with the Crown on his Head, all ſtanding up bare-headed; but the Commiſſioner is in an ordinary Suit, and ſtands and ſpeaks alſo bare-headed. The Scotch Parliament ſits all in one Houſe, and every one anſwers diſtinctly to his Name, and gives his Vote, which is in theſe Terms, I approve or not approve, only thoſe who are not ſatisfied ſay, Non liquet. No Diſſents or Proteſts are allowed in publick Acts, thoſe being accounted Treaſonable; but in private Acts they are admitted. The Parliament of Scotland is never prorogued, but only adjourned; and when their Buſineſs is done then they are diſſolved; quickly after which their Acts are proclaimed at the publick Market-Croſs of Edinburgh by the Lion King at Arms with a great deal of State and Ceremony. Sometimes Conventions of States are called, which have no Power to enact Laws, but only to raiſe Taxes. Beſides the Parliament, which is the ſupreme Court, there is a Secret Council, of which my Lord Chancellor is Preſident. Thoſe Privy Councellors have for the moſt part been choſen by the Kings, but ſometimes the Parliament have pretended a Right in their Choice: Their Buſineſs is, to treat of the publick Affairs of the Kingdom, and preſerve the Peace. There is alſo a College of Juſtice, called vulgarly the Seſſion, inſtituted by King James V. in 1532, according to the Form of the Parliament of Paris. It conſiſts of a Preſident and fourteen Senators, ſeven of the Clergy and as many of the Laity, to whom was afterwards added the Chancellor and five other Senators, three principal Clerks, and as many Advocates as the Senators ſhall think convenient; theſe are called, Lords of the Seſſion, and before them all things concerning the Property of the Subject are handled. They have two Terms of Sitting in the Year, viz. From the firſt of June to the laſt of July, and from the firſt of November till the laſt of February. This Court is divided into an inner and an outer Houſe. In the outer the Senators ſit each their Week by Turns, where Cauſes are ſpeedily diſpatch'd; but there lies an Appeal to the reſt of the Judges, who are the inner Houſe, before whom the Advocates plead; which being done, the Parties withdraw, and the Lords give Sentence according to Majority of Votes, from which there is no Appeal but to the Parliament. There is alſo a Criminal Court which tries Criminals upon Life and Death. The Judges are a Lord Juſtice General and a Lord Juſtice Clerk, his Aſſiſtant, with four of the other Judges. Here Peers are tried as well as Commons, only with this Difference, that the Majority of a Nobleman's Jury are Peers: The Jury is made up of fifteen, and the Majority carries it. In the Exchequer the Lord Treaſurer and Lord Treaſure-Deputy have the chief Power. The Seat of theſe Courts are all at Edinburgh, and on extraordinary Occaſions there are Circuits, but it is reckon'd leſs Charge to the Subjects to bring their Cauſes to Edinburgh. Beſides theſe, every Sheriff has a Court for leſſer Cauſes, and trying Thieves and Murtherers, &c. and moſt of thoſe Sheriffs were formerly Hereditary, which made them ſo potent, that of late the Kings have agreed with many of them for their Rights. There are alſo Courts of Regality, where the Lords of the Regality has a Royal Juriſdiction and Power of Life and Death within his Bounds; and this was anciently common to all Barons (that is, every one who held a Mannor of the King,) but now they can only judge in ſmall Matters amongſt their own Tenants, and Fine and Diſtrain.

As for the Orders and Degrees of Honour in Scotland, they are the ſame as in England, but their Knights are created with more Solemnity than any where in Europe, as having an Oath adminiſtred to them, and being proclaim'd publickly by an Herald, for the Knights of St. Andrew. See St. Andrew.

As concerning the People in general, whatever may have been ſaid againſt them by ſome neighbouring Hiſtorians, their Valour has been ſufficiently known in the World, particularly by the great Honour and Priviledges which they acquired by it in France, ſome of them having been Conſtable of that Kingdom, which is next to the King in Honour; others Dukes and Peers of France; and for many Years they had the Guard of the King's Perſon. Sam. Daniel ſays, That never People behaved themſelves better in Struggling for their Liberties. Speed ſays, That few great Things have been done in Europe, where they have not been with the firſt and laſt in the Field: And Cluverius writes of them, That they are Marte & Ingenio Felices. But there is no reaſonable Scotch Man who will refuſe to own, that there is in that, as well as other Nations, a Mixture of Good and Bad, and it muſt be granted them, that they have had many famous Men for Arts, Arms and Learning in all Faculties. Cambd. Buch. Knox, Calderwood, Leſly, Spotſwood, Gordon, Theat. Scotiæ, Preſent State of Scotland, &c.

The Nobility and Gentry of Scotland are great Lovers of Learning, on which Account they not only frequent their own Univerſities, but thoſe of England, France and Germany. They are alſo much addicted to Travelling, eſpecially to France, where moſt of their fam'd Lawyers ſtudy the Civil Law, which is much uſed in that Kingdom; ſo that their Gentry are generally Men of Exquiſite Breeding. The Univerſities of this Country are four, viz. St. Andrews, Glaſgow, Aberdeen and Edinburgh. The principal Rivers of Scotland are, the Forth, Clyde and Tay, all of them Navigable, beſides many Lakes, innumerable Creeks and Bays which indent the Kingdom and afford many ſafe Harbours, with great Conveniency for Trade and Fiſhing. It is not the Cuſtom of this Country to Wall their Towns, according to their Hiſtorian and Poet Buchanan. Non foſſa & muris patriam ſed Marte tueri; but for ſtrong and impregnable Caſtles, as Edinburgh, Sterlin, Dumbarton, &c. it comes ſhort of no Nation in Europe. The Rarities of Nature boaſted of by their Hiſtorians, are the Caledonian White Bulls, with Manes curled like Lions, naturally ſo fierce and implacable againſt Men, that they abhorred whatever they touched or breathed on; but Time hath deſtroy'd both them and their Wood in which they bred. 2. The Barnacles or Cleek-Geeſe bred in Logs of Wood floating on the Sea, according to the common Opinion, though ſome Authors think that they are bred of Eggs like other Fowls, but that the Eggs are faſten'd to the Logs by ſome glutinous Matter which comes from the Gooſe. Thoſe who have eat of them ſay, they taſte perfectly of Fir, and are certainly bred in that ſort of Wood. 3. The Solan-Geeſe which hatch their Eggs with one Foot, and have a fiſhy Taſte, but are very profitable to the Inhabitants by their Feathers and Oyl. 4. Lake-Lowmond, in which are Fiſh without Fins very pleaſant to eat. The Water of this Lake turns Timber into Stones. It is alſo remarkable for 24 Iſlands, one of them, according to ſome, being a floating Iſland; and that which is ſtrange, it is obſerv'd, that the Waves are continually raging in this Lake, though the Air be calm. 5. On the Shore of Ratra in the County of Buchan is a Cave, from the Roof of which there drops Water which is turned into Pyramids of Stone, of a middle Nature betwixt Stone and Ice. 6. That there are no Rats to be found in the Country of Southerland, and if any be brought thither, they immediately die, though they abound in the neighbouring County of Caithnes. 7. Scottiſh Dogs called Sluth-hounds, were anciently much prized for their excellent Scent, inſomuch that on the Borders they were made uſe of to diſcover thoſe who had ſtole Cattle, for being once entred in their Tract, they would purſue it till they found them out; ſo that it was reckon'd Cauſe enough to ſuſpect any Man, if they ſtop'd the Courſe of thoſe Sluth-hounds.

SCOTUSA, or Scotuſſa, a ſmall City of Theſſaly, being a Biſhop's See, and Suffragan of Lariſſa, near which it ſtands. There is alſo a Town of Macedonia of this Name.

SCRIBONIA, the third Wife of Caſar Auguſtus, ſhe was the Daughter of Scribonius Libo, and Siſter of another of the ſame Name, who was Pompey's Father-in-law. Auguſtus had by her his Daughter Julia. Suet. in Octav. Cap. 62. Dion. Hiſt. Rom. Lib. 38. Liv. Hulſius de Vxor XII. Prim. Caſar.

SCRIBONIUS (Cornelius) called alſo Grapheus, but his Name in the Language of his own Country was Schryver, was born at Aloſt in Flanders in 1482. His Book, called Manuale Principis & Magiſtratus Chriſtiani, contains many gallant Inſtructions for the uniting of Religion with the State Government. He alſo made an Abridgment of the Hiſtory of Olaus Magnus of the Northern Nations. He had alſo good Skill in Muſick, and had great Knowledge in Antiquities and Foreign Languages. He died at Antwerp 1558, being 74 Years of Age, and was buried in our Ladies Church there. Valer. Andr.

SCRIBONIUS (Largus) a Phyſician living in the Time of Auguſtus or Tiberius. He wrote ſeveral Works which were publiſh'd in the XVII Century, the beſt Edition of which is that of Johannes Rhodius. Caſtellan. de vit. illuſt. Medic.

SCRITOFINNI, or Scrictofinni, a People near the Iſland of Scandinavia, whoſe Country is continually cover'd with Snow: They feed upon raw Fleſh, and are cloathed with the Skins of Beaſts. Some call theſe People Scrikfinner.

SCRIPTURES, or the Word of God, written by Divinely inſpired Pen-Men for Inſtruction of the Church of God, himſelf having writ the Law in two Tables: Moſes was the firſt Man who wrote, and the laſt was John the Evangeliſt: The ordinary Diviſions of the Old Teſtament in Moſes, the Prophets and the Pſalms, and that of the New Teſtament into Hiſtorical, Dogmatical and Prophetical Books, being well enough known, we ſhall only mention their Subdiviſions into Chapters and Verſes; the firſt Author of which, is ſaid to have been a certain Monk nam'd Hugo de Sancto Caro, a Dominican, afterwards made a Cardinal: He was a Burgundian, and at the ſame time that he performed this Work, which was about 1240 or 1250, he alſo wrote a Concordance. This Diviſion into Chapters and Verſes hath been ſince imitated by the Greeks, and even by the Jews themſelves, but in a different Manner. Hoffm.

SCROOPE of Bolton, an ancient and noble Family of Glouceſterſhire, of which there have been many Lords conſiderable for their Parts and Places of Truſt, under their ſeveral ſucceſſive Princes, who have alſo employ'd them in Foreign Expeditions and Embaſſies. Henry, Father of Lord Thomas and Grandfather of Emanuel, created Earl of Sunderland, 19 Junii 3 Car. I. who died without lawful Iſſue, in the fifth of Henry VIII. upon the Invaſion of the Scots, he marched againſt them with Thomas, Earl of Surrey, the Lords Clifford, Coniers, and others of the Northern Nobility, and ſignaliz'd himſelf at the Battle of Floddon, where King James IV. loſt his Life. In 22 Hen. VIII. he was one of the Peers who ſubſcribed that notable Letter to the Pope, wherein they repreſented to him, That if he did not comply with the King in his Divorce from the Queen, he muſt not expect that his Supremacy would be long own'd in England. Dugd.

SCROOPE of Maſham, a noble and ancient Family of Lincolnſhire, noted for its Great and Martial Men, much imploy'd by their Princes in the Affairs of greateſt Moment. The laſt Lord of this Family was Geofrey, Lord Scroope of Vpſall, who died without Iſſue in the ninth of Henry VII. William, a younger Son of Henry, Lord Scroope of Maſham, gain'd ſo much upon the Affections of King Richard, that he made him Vice-Chamberlain of his Houſhold. In the twentieth of his Reign he made him Governour of Queensborough Caſtle, and ſoon after advanced him to the Dignity of Earl of Wiltſhire; and honour'd him with many other Marks of his Favour: But his haſty Advancement had a ſudden and unexpected Fall, for before the Revolution of one Year, hearing that the Duke of Lancaſter was at Sea, and ready to land, he adviſed King Richard II. to remove from London to St. Albans, and there raiſe Forces to reſiſt the Duke; but finding that thoſe that met bore the Duke great Reſpect, he fled with ſome others to the Caſtle of Briſtol. In the mean time the Duke landing at Ravenſpur in Yorkſhire, carried all before him, and purſuing thoſe Fugitives, took them at Briſtol, where, though ſome eſcaped Death, the Earl had no Favour, being there beheaded the next Day after, and attainted in Parliament, 1 Hen. 4. Dugd.

SCROOPE (Richard) Brother to William, Lord Treaſurer of England, was Doctor of Civil and Canon Law, Biſhop of Litchfield, and afterwards Archbiſhop of York: He was beheaded by Henry IV. for joining with the Forces of the Percies, Earls of Northumberland and Worceſter, the Earl of Stafford and ſome others: There were other Reaſons likewiſe, according to Clements Maidſtone, which occaſion'd his being put to Death; as firſt, Becauſe he admoniſh'd King Henry to repent and make Satisfaction for the Perjury he was guilty of at Cheſter, where he ſwore upon the Holy Sacrament, that he would never rebel nor conſent to the Depoſing of King Richard, the Contrary of which was done by him in confining King Richard in the Tower, and forcing him to reſign his Crown, notwithſtanding the ſaid Henry had taken the Oath of Allegiance to King Richard before Thomas Arundel, Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and ſeveral others of the Nobility. 2. Becauſe the ſaid Archbiſhop Scroope deſired the Crown might be reſtor'd to the Right Line, and that the Church of England might enjoy all her Liberties and Priviledges, according to ancient Cuſtom and Law. 3. Becauſe he mov'd, that the Lords and Great Men might be tried by their Peers: That the Clergy and Commonalty of the Kingdom might not be oppreſſed, as they had been lately with Tenths, Fifteenths and Subſidies: That the Sheriffs in every County might be freely choſen, without having the Election over-rul'd by the King or the Barons. Theſe and ſeveral other Remonſtrances of this kind, together with his appearing in Arms, were the Reaſons of his being beheaded in the Year 1405. Anglia Sacra Pars ſecunda. Pag. 369.

SCULPTURE, or the Art of making Figures in Stone, Wood or Metal. It is very hard to know who was the Inventer of this Art, it is of ſo long ſtanding, as appears by the Idols of Laban, carried away by Rachel, and by the Golden Calf formed by the Iſraelites in the Deſart. Some of the Prophane Authors that have written upon this Subject ſay, it was a Potter of Sicyone, a Town of Peloponneſus, called Dibutade, that laid the firſt Grounds of this Art, and that his Daughter began Portraiture in drawing her Lover's Image by his Shadow upon a Wall. Others hold it had its Original in the Iſle Samos, and that Ideocus and Theodorus, the firſt Inventers, had work'd there before Dibutade's Time, that Demaratus, Tarquinius Priſcus his Father, brought it into Italy: Adding, that Tarquin, King of Rome, ſent for Taurianus, a very able Artiſt, to make the Statue of Jupiter, and four Horſes of Brick to be plac'd in the Frontiſpiece of that pretended God's Temple; and it is probable that the Images of moſt of the falſe Deities were of this Matter. Praxiteles is of Opinion, that the Art of working on Clay was the Mother of carving in Marble, Metals, &c. which began to appear in its Perfection about 300 Years after the Foundation of Rome. Phidias, an Athenian, ſurpaſſed all his Predeceſſors. Polycletus, one of his Scholars, proved the Admiration of the World; Myron after him; after this Liſippus flouriſhed, who was the only Man privileged to caſt Alexander's Statue in Copper: After him Praxiteles and Scopas were admirable Statuaries, ſome Horſes done by them are ſtill to be ſeen at Rome before the Pope's Palace at Monte Kavallo: Theſe famous Artiſts left ſo many Statues in Greece and Italy, that there were once almoſt as many at Rome as there were Inhabitants, for when Marcus Scaurus was Edile, he adorn'd the Theatre, he built there, with 3000 Braſs Statues, and notwithſtanding L. Mummius and Lucullus had brought a great Number of Statues out of Aſia and Greece, yet there were ſtill 3000 remaining at Rhodes, as many at Athens, and more at Delphi; nor was the Number ſo ſurprizing as the Highth and Bulk, there being ſome amongſt thoſe brought by Lucullus to Rome thirty Cubits high. The Coloſſus of Rhodes was ſeventy. Nero's Statue by Zenodorus was a 110 Foot high. It muſt be obſerv'd, that after Phidias's Time, which was about the 320th of Rome, this Art flouriſhed but 150 Years, and then began to decay inſenſibly: And it is farther obſervable, that the Statues made in Greece were the moſt valued for Workmanſhip, and were diſtinguiſhed from the Roman in this, that they were naked and undreſſed, after the manner of ſuch as exerciſed themſelves in Wreſtling, Running, &c. the others, that is, the Roman, having their ſeveral Ornaments and Dreſſes. Felibien Principes des Arts.

SCUTARI, Scodra, a City of Dalmatia formerly, and the Seat of the Kings of Illyricum. It is now the Capital of Albania, and a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Antivari, and ſtands upon the River Boiano, 24 Miles from the Adriatick Sea, and 80 from Raguſa to the North-Eaſt. It was twice beſieged by Mahomet II. without Succeſs, and in 1478 reſign'd by the Venetians for a Peace. The Inhabitants call this City Scadar, the Turks Iſcodar, and the Italians Scutari. Long. 44. 20. Lat. 42. 24. There is alſo another Place called Scutari in Aſia, over-againſt Conſtantinople, and is the Chryſopolis and Dianæ Fanum of the Ancients.

SCYLAR, a famous Mathematician of the Iſle of Caryanda in Caria, who flouriſhed in the Reign of Darius, the Son of Hyſtaſpes. Ger. Voſſius de Hiſt. Latinis ſaith, there were three Men of the ſame Name, and all of them Natives of that Iſland.

SCYLLA, a Rock in the Straits of Meſſina near to Cape Sciglio in Italy. It is a very dangerous Rock, againſt which many Ships are loſt; and the Waters that diſgorge themſelves through the Caverns of it make a dreadful Noiſe, ſomething reſembling the Barking of Dogs, which has given occaſion to the Fable of Scylla being changed into a Monſter, whoſe lower Parts were Dogs. This Scylla was the Daughter of Phorcus, with whom Glaucus fell in Love, and not being able to gain her good Will, deſired Circe, by her Charms, to engage her to love him; but Circe her ſelf falling in Love with Glaucus, would do no ſuch thing; but inſtead thereof, poiſoned a Fountain where Scylla was uſed to bath her ſelf, to which ſhe no ſooner entred, but was chang'd from the Navel downwards into a Company of barking Dogs, at the Horror whereof ſhe caſt her ſelf head-long into the Sea of Scicily, and was chang'd into the Rock. Ovid. Metam. Lib. 13. & 14.

SCILLA, the Daughter of Niſus, King of the Megarenſians in Achaia, being fallen in Love with Minos, King of Crete, betray'd to him the City of Megara, which he then beſieg'd, by cutting of her Father's Fatal Purple Lock of Hair, on which the Deſtiny of his Kingdom did depend. Minos did ſo much abhor this her Treachery, that he deſpiſed her; whereupon by the Rage of Love ſhe was turned into a Lark, and her Father Niſus dying for Grief, was turned to an Hobby. Ovid Metam. Lib. 8.

SCILLIAS, a Lacedemonian Diver, who made himſelf Famous in the Time of Artaxerxes Mnemon, by taking up from the Bottom of the Sea great Quantities of Gold and Silver, which the Perſians loſt in their Shipwrack near to Pylæ. Upon another occaſion he paſſed under Sea the diſtance of Eighty Furlongs or Ten Italian Miles, from the Coaſt of Magneſia to the Iſle of Eubœa, to carry the News to the Grecians of the Shipwrack of their Veſſels. Herodot.

SCYLLURUS, or Scylurus, a Prince of Scythia that had Eighty Sons, who when he was upon his Death, commanded a Bundle of Arrows to be brought unto him, and bid his Sons break it, which when all of them, one after another, had tried in vain, he took out one ſingle Arrow, which he broke with eaſe, and ſo all the reſt; hereby teaching his Children, that if they liv'd in Brotherly Love and Unity, their Enemies would not be able to overcome them, whereas if they ſhould fall out and be at Diſcord, they might eaſily be vanquiſh'd. Plutarch.

SCYMNUS of Chyos, a Geographer: He wrote a Deſcription of the whole Earth in Verſe, whereof a few Fragments only are remaining, publiſh'd at the End of Lucus Holſtenius his Notes upon Stephanus Byſantius.

SCYRON, a Famous Robber in the Country of Attica; he was caſt head-long into the Sea by Theſeus, as he was uſed to ſerve thoſe he had robb'd. They fable, that his Bones were turned into Rocks, which are called Saxa Scyronia. Plutarch in Theſeo.

SCYTHIA, a vaſt Country extending it ſelf through a great part of Aſia and Europe. The Aſiatick Scythia was divided into two parts, whereof the one was on this ſide of the Mountain Imaus [a Part of Mount Taurus] and the other on the farther ſide: The firſt of theſe being extended towards the Weſt, was bounded by the Hyperborean Scythians towards the North, by Scythia, beyond Mount Imaus towards the Eaſt, the Perſian Empire towards the South, and the Aſiatick Sarmatia towards the Weſt. The chief Inhabitants whereof were the Scythians called Alani, the Jaxartæ, Orgaſi and Sacæ, and was the ſame Country where now is the Deſart Tartary, and the Chazalgite Tartars, and the Countries of Olgar, Buchar and Calmuc in the Great Tartary. Scythia beyond Mount Imaus lay more towards the Eaſt, having the Hyperborean Scythians on the North, the Country of Sarica on the Eaſt, Scythia on this ſide of Mount Imaus on the Weſt, and India to the South; and contained divers Nations and Countries with the City Iſſedon, and is the ſame Tract where now is the Kingdom of Thibet, Siſian, and the greateſt part of Great Tartary. Some add a third part, which they call the Northern Scythia, where formerly dwelt the Hyperborean Scythians, where now are the Countries of Bargu, Jeka Moal, Su Moal and Tartar. The European Scythia, which was alſo called Scythia the Leſs, and Cymmeria, was the Southern Part of the European Sarmatia, towards the Euxine Sea and the Lake of Mæotis; one Part whereof was in the Taurica Cherſoneſus, the Inhabitants whereof were the Scythæ Tauri, the other was beyond or without it, between the Lake of Buges (now Seſſeban) and that of Mæotis to the Eaſt, and the River Boryſthenes to the Weſt, where dwelt the Scythæ Nomades, the Baſilidæ and Georgians, and is now the Leſſer Tartary, called Precopenſis. There was beſides thoſe another Part of Scythia called Pontica, lying between Dacia, Myſia or Mæſia, Thraſia and the Danube; where at preſent is the Eaſtern Part of Bulgaria, and the Dobrucian, Budziack and Bialogrod Tartars.

SCYTHIANS, a famous and very ancient People, ſtrong of Body, and tall of Stature, hardned to Labour and Warlike Exerciſes, but having little Inclination either to Humanity or Civil Society; they did not Till the Ground, nor had any certain Abodes, but went wandering up and down with their Wives, Children and Relations, driving their Beaſts before them. They made uſe neither of Gold nor Silver; their Food was Milk and Hony, their Cloathing the Skins of wild Beaſts. They very ſeverely puniſh Theft. When they took any of their Enemies Priſoners in War, they drank his Blood, flea'd him, and wrapt his Skin about them, and faſten'd his Head on the top of their Huts or Tents, or made Cups or Bowls of their Skulls. When their King condemned any Man to Death, all his Male-Children were expoſed to the ſame Puniſhment. At their King's Death they put the Concubine he had moſt loved into the Coffin with him, being conducted by the Officers in ordinary of the King's Houſhold, who were all of them ſtrangled at his Tomb, and a Horſe with every one of them, that they might be in a Readineſs to ſerve him in the other World. Their chief Deities were Veſta, Jupiter, Venus, Hercules and Mars, to whom they ſacrificed the hundredth Perſon of all thoſe they took in War; to the other Gods they ſacrificed Beaſts, and moſtly Horſes. Herodot. Lib. 4. Munſter. Lib. 5. Coſmog.

SCYTHOPOLIS, a City of Paleſtina upon the Bank of the Lake of Genezareth. Its Name of old was Bethſan; ſome ſay, that it was built by Bacchus, and took its Name from the Scythians that were his Companions; others that the Scythians invading Paleſtina, took this City, and put their Name upon it. It is ſeated on the Lake of Genezareth or Sea of Tiberias, where the River Jordan floweth out of it, and belonged to the half Tribe of Manaſſeth on this ſide Jordan, being then called Bethſan, after it was a Part of Samaria: Judas Maccabeus marched to this City to take it, but returned upon hearing the Inhabitants treated his Country-men well. Mac. 2. 12. On the Walls of this Place the Philiſtians hung the Bodies of Saul and his Sons. Joſephus in his own Life gives a memorable Inſtance of the Cruelty of theſe People in the Roman War. In the Times of Chriſtianity it was a Biſhop's See under the Patriarch of Jeruſalem, and was then the principal City of Decapolis, but the See being removed to Nazareth in Honour of our Saviour, it fell into Decay, yet its Ruins ſhew its ancient Splendor, though it is now a poor Village in an unhealthy Marſh, and thinly inhabited, if at all, yet there are found ſtately Marble Fragments, which teſtifie what it once was.

SDRIN, Lat. Sdringa or Stridonium, a City of Dalmatia, famous for giving Birth to St. Jerom, the learnedeſt of the Latin Fathers. It was ruin'd by the Goths, but afterwards rebuilt: It is ſuppoſed to be the Sidrona of Ptolomy, and was formerly built where the Mure falls into the Danube. It's now in Styria, fifteen Miles below Rakelsburg. Hoffm.

SEBA, or rather Sheba, the Son of Bichri a Benjamite, who endeavour'd to engage the ten Tribes to revolt from David, but periſh'd in the Attempt. 2 Sam. Cap. 20.

SEBASTE, one of the Names of Samaria; alſo a City of Armenia on the Confines of Cilicia, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Tarſus. Alſo a City and Metropolis of Cappadocia.

St. SEBASTIAN, was born at Narbon, and had his Education at Milan, which was his Mother's Country. The Emperors Diocleſian and Maximinian had ſo great an Eſteem for him, that they truſted him with the Command of their choiceſt Troops, wherein he did them great Service, and at the ſame Time he encouraged and protected the Chriſtians, without declaring himſelf to be one of them. Having heard that Marcellianus and Marcus, two Twin-Brothers, and Perſons of great Quality, had been caſt into Priſon for having embraced Chriſtianity, he betook himſelf to Nicoſtratus, to whom they were committed, and made him a Convert, and afterwards brought along with him St. Polycarp into the Priſon to baptize a great Number of Heathens, amongſt whom was Tranquillinus, the Father of Marcellianus and Marcus. Some time after he converted alſo Chromacius, the Præfect of Rome, by whoſe Order the ſaid Brothers had been put into Priſon, and Tiburcius his Son; whereupon Chromacius retired into the Country, taking many Chriſtians along with him; the reſt who remain'd at Rome hiding themſelves to avoid the Perſecution. The Pope ordained Tranquillinus Prieſt, and his two Sons Deacons, and ordered St. Sebaſtian to diſguiſe himſelf under his Soldiers Garb, to the end he might do the more Service to the Chriſtians. Not long after St. Sebaſtian was diſcovered to be a Chriſtian, and ſeized; but becauſe he was habited like a Soldier, the Præfect gave notice of it to Diocleſian, who having ſent for him, endeavoured by Promiſes and Threats to draw him to the Worſhip of his falſe Gods, but not prevailing, commanded him to be ſhot to Death with Arrows; ſo he was ty'd to a Stake, and having ſhot abundance of Arrows into his Body, they left him for dead; but Irene, a Chriſtian Woman, being come in the Night to bury his Body, found him alive, and leading him to her Houſe, he was cur'd of his Wounds in a few Days, and went and preſented himſelf before Diocleſian and Maximinian, repreſenting unto them the Injuſtice they were guilty of in perſecuting of the Chriſtians: Whereupon Diocleſian being enraged, commanded him to be led to the Circus, and there to be beaten to Death with Clubs, which was executed in the Year 287. His Body was caſt into the Common-ſhore, whence the Chriſtians took it. Bollandus.

SEBASTIAN of VENICE, or Fra Baſtiano del Piombo, an excellent Italian Painter, who got his Surname becauſe the Pope had beſtowed upon him the Office of Fratel del Piombo. After that he had got a good Name for Painting at Venice, he went to Rome, where he joyned himſelf with Michael Angelo, who every where publiſh'd his Worth; and upon the Death of Raphael, he was looked upon by many as the chief Painter in Italy. He has left many of his Works imperfect, which is attributed to his Idleneſs and Negligence; for when he ſaw he could live handſomly by the Incomes of his Place, he did not care to trouble himſelf with Painting. He died at Rome in the 62 Year of his Age A. C. 1547. He was the firſt that invented to paint upon Stones of divers Colours, the Ground whereof he made to ſerve in the compoſing and adorning of his Pictures. He found out alſo a Way to preſerve Oyl Colours from changing, that were uſed upon Stone on Walls, by dawbing over the Walls before with a Compoſition of Pirel and Maſtick. Felibian Entretien ſur le vie des peint.

SEBASTIAN, King of Portugal, the poſthumous Son of John II. was born in 1554. of Jane, Daughter of the Emperor Charles V. He was Succeſſor to his Grandfather John III and was a Man of great Zeal for Religion, and of extraordinary Courage, which inſpir'd him with the Deſign of making an Expedition into Africa againſt the Moors, in 1574. and the rather for that Mahomet had deſired his Aſſiſtance againſt his Uncle Abdemeleck, King of Fez and Morocco; which he promiſed he would: And taking along with him the Flower of the Nobility and Gentry of Portugal, he landed at Tangier the ninth of July, 1578. and gave Battle to Abdemelech at Alcacer the fourth of Auguſt the ſame Year, where his Army was defeated: Abdemelech, who was ſick, died in a Litter, Mahomet periſhed in a Bog, and the Report was, that Sebaſtian himſelf was killed there in the 25th Year of his Age. But for all this, in the Year 1598 there was a Man at Venice who declared himſelf to be King Sebaſtian; he reſembled him ſo exactly in his Face, Stature and Voice, that the Portugueſe that were in that City, and amongſt them one of his Domeſticks, own'd him for their King. Some Days after he was ſeized, and was fain to anſwer before Judges that had been named to decide this tender Point, to whom he always maintained himſelf to be King Sebaſtian: He told them, that the Moors, who took him Priſoner, did not know him to be the King; that the Sorrow and Repentance which ſeized him for having ſo raſhly undertaken that Expedition, had like to have been his Death; and that now after having ſuffered a long time in a ſtrange Country, he came to re-demand the Crown, which God and his Birth had given him: Neither was this all, but ſhewed upon his Body the ſame Marks which ſeveral had ſeen formerly on the Body of the King of Portugal, and diſcovered to the Venetians ſome Secrets they had formerly propoſed to him by their Ambaſſadors, not forgetting any Particulars that might fully evidence him to be indeed King Sebaſtian. The Spaniards, who had upon the Report of his Death invaded the Crown of Portugal, gave him no better Name than that of a Mad-Man and Impoſtor, and obliged the Venetians to forbid him to ſtay in their Dominions; whereupon he was ſeized again in Tuſcany, and brought to Naples, where they ſet him upon an Aſs, and led him through all the Streets of the City, expoſing him to the Flouts and Abuſes of the inſolent Rabble. But the Tragedy did not end here, for ſome time after they ſhav'd his Head, and put him to row like a Slave in a Galley; and afterwards being brought to Spain, he ended his Days in a Priſon, at the ſame time when the Portugueſe, abhorring and deteſting theſe barbarous Dealings of the Spaniards, did with great Earneſtneſs deſire to have him, whom they knew to be their King, reſtored to them. *Vaſconcellos Hiſt. SEBASTOPOLIS. There be two Cities of this Name: The one of them is an Inland City of Cappadocia, now called Suvas, and is the Reſidence of the Turkiſh Baſſa, Governour of that Country, and was taken by Solyman A.C. 1308. The other is the Dioſcurias of Ptolomy, now Savatopoli, being a maritime Town of Colchis upon the Euxine Sea, a Place of great Trade under the Dominion of the Prince of Mingrelia.

SEBATH, the Name of the XI. Month of the Hebrews of 29 Days, anſwering to the latter Part of our January and the Beginning of February.

SEBBA, or Sebbii, King of the Eaſt-Saxons, ſucceeded to Siger in the VII Century, and reigned 30 Years; but weary of his Crown, he laid it down not long before his Death, and became Monk, and perſuaded his Wife at length to follow the ſame Courſe.

SEBENICO, Sebenicum Sicum, a City of Dalmatia upon the Adriatick Sea, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Spalato. It has been under the Venetians ſince the Year 1412. before which Time it was a Sea-Port Town of Croatia. It has a Caſtle and Fort built upon a Rock, which has four times baffled the Ottoman Forces, and is ſituate at the Mouth of the River Kerka, 38 Miles Eaſt of Zara, and 300 from Venice. It was made a Biſhop's See by Pope Boniface VIII. It ſtands near the Ruins of the Sicum of Ptolomy.

SEBERT, the firſt Chriſtian King of the Eaſt-Saxons, was the Son of Sleda, their firſt Monarch, and Nephew to Ethelbert, the firſt Chriſtian King of Kent, by his Siſter Ricula; he was converted with his People by Mellitus, one of Auſtin's Aſſiſtants, then ordained Biſhop by him. The Time of his Reign was in the Beginning of the VII Century.

SEBOURG, a Territory and Caſtle in the County of Hainault, near to Bavay, and three Leagues from Valenciennes. Formerly it was in the Poſſeſſion of the Earls of Flanders and Hainault, but belongs now to the Family of Witthem.

SEBUCIANS, a Sect among the Samaritans, who chang'd the Times appointed by God for the three principal Feſtivals of the Jews, celebrating Eaſter at the Beginning of Autumn, the Feaſt of Pentecoſt towards the End of it, and that of Tabernacles in the Month of March. See Samaritans.

SECCIA, a River of Italy, which Riſes in the Apennine, divides the Dutchy of Modena from Reggio, and falls into the Po, five Leagues North-Weſt of Mirandula in the Dutchy of Mantua.

SECKAW, Lat. Secovia, a ſmall Epiſcopal Town of Styria on the River Gayl, four Miles from the Borders of Upper Auſtria to the South, and twenty German Miles Eaſt of Salzburg, to whoſe Archbiſhop it is ſubject, their Biſhop being conſecrated and inveſted by him, and ſwears Fealty to him as his Subject. He has no Vote in the German Diet. Hoffm.

SECULARES, Roman Plays inſtituted by Valerius Poplicola in Honour of Apollo and Diana. They had their Name becauſe they were only celebrated every hundred Year; wherefore at the Opening of them, an Herald was wont to make this Proclamation, Come to ſee the Plays which none of you ever ſaw, or ſhall ſee hereafter. Yet the Ambition of Princes occaſion'd their being oftner repeated, to ſhew their Magnificence; as did the Emperor Philip I. who in 247 cauſed them to be celebrated with extraordinary Pomp and Splendor. Monſ. Raiſſant has publiſh'd the Ceremonies and Manner of theſe Shews upon Medals in 1685. at Paris.

SECUNDUS (Johannes) was born at the Hague in Holland in 1511. He was a very famous Poet, who though he died when he was but 25 Years of Age, yet left behind him three Books of Latin Elegies, which are valued; and beſides was a Limner and Engraver.

SECUNDUS, one of Lombardy, who in the VII Century writ the Hiſtory of his own Nation. There was alſo another Secundus, the Diſciple of Valentine the Heretick, and Ringleader of the Secundians. He held the Community of Wives, and other Impieties. St. Auſt. de Hær. St. Epiph.

SEDAN, Sedanum, a City of Campaigne in France, upon the Borders of Luxemburg. It is ſituated on the Meuſe with a ſtrong Caſtle. This City was formerly ſubject to Princes of its own, but now belongs to the Crown of France by a Treaty made in 1642 with Frederick Maurice de la Tour d'Auvergne, Duke of Bouillon, and Lord of Sedan. While this City was in the Hands of the Proteſtants it had a famous Univerſity. The Poſterity of Frederick Maurice de la Tour d'Auvergne enjoy'd the Title and Prerogative of Sovereign Princes of Sedan by Compact. It is ſixteen Leagues South from Namur, about four Miles Eaſt of Charlevil, and ſixteen North of Verdun.

SEDER OLAM, that is to ſay, The Order of the World: The Jews give this Title to two Books of Chronology, whereof the one is called Seder Olam Rabba, or the Great Chronicle, and the other Seder Olam Zuta, or the Leſſer Chronicle. The former of theſe is the moſt ancient Hiſtory they have amongſt them, reaching from the Creation of Adam to the Reign of the Emperor Adrian, who defeated a falſe Meſſiah, called Bar Cozba, which happened about fifty Years after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem. The Author of this Chronology, as the Jews tell us, was Rabbi Joſe, the Son of Chilpheta, who lived about the Year 130 after the Birth of Chriſt, though there be many Reaſons that ſeem to evince that the Book is not ſo antient as they believe it to be. Genebrardus hath tranſlated theſe two Books into Latin. P. Simon.

SEDULIUS (Cælius) a Scotch Prieſt, who lived in the Time of Theodoſius the younger, A. C. 430. He has left an Explication of the Epiſtles of St. Paul, which he collected from the Writings of Origen, St. Jerom, St. Ambroſe and St. Auſtin; and five Books of Verſes, intituled, Concerning the wonderful Works of God, that is to ſay, of the wonderful Events that happened in the Time of the Patriarchs under the old Law, and the Miracles wrought by our Saviour and his Apoſtles. He is the Author alſo of the Hymn ſung at Chriſtmas in the Roman Church, which begins thus, A ſolis ortu, &c. and of that other which is ſung at the Epiphany, Hoſtis Herodes, &c. His Works are in the Bibliotheca Patrum, Tom. 8. of the ſecond Edition, and Tom. 9. of the Edition of 1624.

SEE (Holy) ſo the See of Rome is commonly called. And here it will not be improper to remark the Practice and Government during the Vacancy, i. e. from the Death of one Pope till the Chuſing of another. As ſoon as the Pope is dead there is Notice given of it by the Bell in the Capitol, which is never rung but upon this Occaſion; at the ſame time there are Couriers diſpatch'd to all the Princes of Italy, France, Spain, &c. The Cardinal Chamberlain removes into the Palace, ſeizes the Fiſhers Ring, which is the Pope's Seal, and breaks it to prevent the Diſpatches of any Bulls during the Vacancy. After this Ceremony paſſed in the Preſence of three Cardinals. The Chamberlain gives neceſſary Orders for every thing relating both to the Pope's Palace, and likewiſe for the Entertainment of the Deceaſed, whoſe Body is embalm'd and dreſs'd in the Pontifical Robes. In the Evening the Corps is carried in a Litter to St. Peters, being attended with Flambeaux, ſome Horſe, and the Penitentiaries of St. Peter, but without the Ceremony of Singing or appearing in Mourning. The Corps lies expoſed in a Chappel upon a raiſed Bed of State, being ſo placed, that the Feet may be kiſſed through an Iron-Grate: After having lain in State thus three Days, the Body is buried; the Funerals laſt nine Days; the Ceremony being perform'd by the Sacred College, who appear every Day at Matins in the Gregorian Chappel at St. Peter's, where, in the middle of the Church, there is a ſtately Repreſentation or Mauſolæum erected, called Chapelle Ardente by Morery, richly ornamented with Figures, together with Panegyrical Sentences and the Arms of the Deceaſed. This Expence is furniſh'd out by the Apoſtolick Chamber, and managed by the Chamberlain. Upon ſome of the laſt Days of this Solemnity the Ambaſſadors of crown'd Heads harangue, the Cardinals met together at St. Peter's, concerning the Election of another Pope, exhorting them in their Maſters Name to chuſe ſuch a One as they ſhall find beſt qualified to fill the Holy See. And thus the Ceremony of the Funerals being over, the Sacred College meets in the ſame Chappel upon the tenth Day, where a Biſhop or Abbot makes them a Latin Oration de Eligendo Pontifice. After the Maſs of the Holy Ghoſt, the Cardinals go two and two in Proceſſion to the Conclave.

As to the Method of the Government during the Vacancy of the See: The three Heads of the College, i. e. the Dean or firſt Cardinal Biſhop, the firſt Cardinal Prieſt, and firſt Cardinal Deacon have the Management of the whole State; they give all neceſſary Orders to Officers, regulate the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, and whatever relates both to the Exchequer and the Soldiery: They either confirm or reform Officers put in by the late Pope, excepting in ſome Caſes; and return Anſwers to all Memorials and Remonſtrances; and for Security and keeping up good Order in the Town, they double the Corps de Gard; the other Cardinals, Princes and Ambaſſadors likewiſe ſecuring their Palace Gates with Chains: Theſe three Cardinals likewiſe ſend their Orders to all Governours of Forts and Towns in the Eccleſiaſtical State, to put them in mind to be upon their Guard, and take care of the preſent Juncture. In the mean time, the Cardinal Chamberlain coins Money, with the Device or Emblem of the Vacancy, which is two Keys in Saltire, and the Gonfanon or Standard of Holy Church. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

SEEZ, Sajorum Civitas, Sagium, a City of Normandy, with a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Roan. It ſtands upon the River Orne, 36 Leagues from Paris to the Weſt, eleven from Liſieux to the South, and five from Alenzon to the Eaſt.

SEGEDIN or Seged, Lat. Segedunum, a City of Upper Hungary on the Tibiſcus, near the Mouth of the River Meriſh, 26 German Miles South Eaſt of Buda, and 15 from Coloxa. It was taken by the Turks in 1552, and retaken by the Imperialiſts in 1685, without much Reſiſtance, after the taking of Buda. Baud. Hoff.

SEGERIC, or Sigeric, King of the Goths, elected after the Death of Ataulphus in the Year 417, and the tenth Year of the Empire of Theodoſius the younger. He did not reign long, for about a Year after he was killed by his Subjects, when he was deſigning to conclude a Peace with the Romans. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

SEGERS (Daniel) a famous Painter born at Antwerp, where he lived in 1646, and was received Lay-Brother into the Convent of the Jeſuits there. Many excellent Pieces of his Hand are to be ſeen in the Church of Antwerp, as well as in the Cabinets of the Emperor and the Kings of Spain. He made for the Prince of Orange an oval Piece, repreſenting a Flower-pot; with which he was ſo well pleaſed, that he preſented the Jeſuits with a Bead-row, or Pater-noſter, of fine Gold, whoſe Beads were very large, in the Form of Oranges richly enamel'd; and gave to Segers himſelf a Palet all of fine Gold, and ſome Sticks for his Pencils of the ſame Metal. He preſented the Princeſs of Orange alſo with a Flower-pot of his own Drawing, for which ſhe beſtowed upon the Jeſuits a Golden Croſs enamel'd, weighing above a Pound weight. There was another Segers (Gerard) who was alſo born at Antwerp, towards the End of the XVI Century. His Picture of St. Peter crucified with his Head downwards is extreamly commended, as alſo a Piece of his over the High Altar of the Jeſuits Church, which repreſents an Elevation of the Croſs. There be alſo ſome extraordinary ingenious Night-pieces of his Work. He died in 1651. Wermander.

SEGESWAR, Lat. Segethuſa, a City of Tranſilvania, called Schezburg by the Germans, ſeated on the ſide of a Hill upon the River Cochel, ten German Miles North of Hermenſtadt, and fourteen Weſt of Cronſtad, at the Foot of the Carpathian Mountains, ſubject to the Prince of Tranſylvania. Baud.

SEGETIA or Segeſta, a Goddeſs worſhipped by the Romans, whom they ſuppoſed to take care of the Corn and all other Fruits of the Earth. Her Statue was placed in the Cirque, and ſhe was one of thoſe Deities they called Salutares. Varro. Macrob.

SEGEWOLT, Lat. Segevoldia, a Town of Sweden, in the Province of Livonia, on the River Teyder. It is alſo called Sewold, and ſtands ſeven Miles South Eaſt of Riga.

SEGNA. This ſtrong City is ſeated on the Bay anciently called Flanaticum, now Quarnaro or Carnaro from the Mountain de Carnia, and has over-againſt it the Iſland Veglia. It is ſtrong both by Art and Nature, having vaſt Woods and Mountains behind it to the Landward, ſo that an Army can hardly get to it; and the Port is not capable of a great Fleet. About the Year 1539 it was in the Poſſeſſion of the Count de Frangipani, and was claim'd by Solyman, the Grand Signior, as a Part of Hungary, which he had then conquered in great part. This forced Ferdinand the Emperor to take it into his own hands; after which he entertained the Uſcochi, a Sett of Robbers, like our Buccaneers, who had like to have kindled a War between the Turks and the Venetians. The Coaſt about this Bay is full of ſmall Iſlands, Rocks and Creeks, ſo that it has ever been a Receptacle for Pyrates: Thoſe Pyrates in time became 500 or 600 Men, and did great Damage to the Turks and to the Chriſtian Merchants, and laid waſte ſome whole Provinces by their Depredations, eſpecially Lica and Corbavia. The Turks provoked by the Injuries of theſe Buccaneers, in the Year 1592 began a War againſt the Auſtrian Dominions under Aſſan, Baſſa of Boſnia, which laſted till the Year 1602, and longer. In the Year 1613 Padre Paole, in his Continuation of the Hiſtory of the Uſcochi, tells us, this City conſiſted in three ſorts of Men, the Stipendiari or Liſted Men, which were 200 Men under four Captains, the Caſalini or Citizens, which were then about 100 Families, and the Venturini, who were Fugitives from Turkey, Dalmatia and Apuglia, who had no fix'd Dwelling in this City, and were ſometimes more and at other leſs numerous, as they found Encouragement, their whole Number, when at the higheſt, not above 2000; yet this handful of Men plagued the State of Venice from 1537 to 1616, and how much longer I know not. The War I laſt mention'd loſt the Empire Agria in 1596, and Caniſa in 1602. In the Year 1615 the Arch-Duke of Auſtria declared a War againſt the Venetians on the ſcore of theſe Pyrates, which drew the Dutch to aſſiſt them; and this forced the Arch-Duke the next Year to ſuppreſs this Neſt of Pyrates, ſo that they were never after heard of.

SEGNI, Signia, a City of the Eccleſiaſtical State, 32 Miles from Rome towards the Eaſt, ſituate upon Mount Segni, with a Biſhop's See and Dukedom. Organs were firſt invented in this Place. The Wine about it is very rough, and of a binding Quality. It was formerly an Earldom, and from the Family of the Counts of Segni deſcended the Popes Innocent III. Gregory IX. and Alexander IV. Now it gives the Title of Duke to one of the Family of Sfortia. Silv. Italick.

SEGORVE, Segorbia, Segobriga, a City of the Kingdom of Valentia in Spain, with a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Valentia. It ſtands upon the River Morvedre, which a little lower falls into the Mediterranean. It is eight Miles from Valentia to the North-Weſt, and twelve from Tervel to the South Eaſt. It's but ſmall and thinly peopled.

SEGOVESUS, an ancient Captain of the Gauls, Nephew to Ambigat. About the Year of Rome 164 he paſſed the Rhine and the Hircynian Foreſt, and left ſome of his Forces in Bohemia, others upon the Banks of the Danube, and another part of them in Friſia and Weſtphalia; from which Country the ancient Franks proceeded, who many Ages after, under Pharamond and Clodion, paſſed the Rhine and conquered a part of the Gauls, which had been the Abode and Inheritance of their Forefathers. Tit. Liv. Dupleix Mem. des Gal. & de France.

SEGOVIA, Urbs Arevacorum, Segubia, a City of Old Caſtile in Spain, with a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Toledo. It is ſituate at the Foot of a very high Mountain in a pleaſant Plain, near the Bank of a ſmall River called Eroſnia, and is very rich and populous by reaſon of the great Quantity of Cloth that is made and vended there. It is adorned with a large Market-place, a ſtrong Caſtle and a Mint, and a noble Aquæduct ſupported by 177 Arches in double Rows, which reach from one Hill to another, built by Trajan, and is twenty Spaniſh Leagues from Toledo to the North. Long. 16. 30. Lat. 41. 15.

SEGOVIA la NUEVA, a City of Venezuela in South America, built by the Spaniards about the Year 1552, near Mount St. Pedro, and afterwards for the unhealthful ſite of it removed to the River Bariquicemeti, which falls into the Oronoque. It ſtands eighty Leagues from Coro to the South-Eaſt, Lat. 7. 40. About it live many Indian Nations of different Languages. The Soil about it is barren, but feeds vaſt Quantities of wild Beaſts, and the Rivers equal plenty of Fiſh. The Mountains near it have plenty of Gold, which occaſion'd the Building of this City; but they want Servants to work in the Mines. The Cattle the Spaniards brought hither have encreaſed wonderfully; but the Indians that were numerous then, are ſince waſted to nothing. Laet. Pag. 683.

SEGRAVE, an ancient Family in Warwickſhire, of whom Stephen was Lord Chief Juſtice of England; and from his Time they were Barons of England, and had their Reſidence at Caledon: The laſt of them married Margaret, Dutcheſs of Norfolk, Daughter of Thomas Brotherton, and had a Daughter called Elizabeth, who brought into the Family of the Mowbrays the Title of Duke of Norfolk, and the Dignity of Marſhal of England. Cambd. Brit. Of this Stephen above mentioned, Cambden writes, that he was of mean Parentage, yet by his Induſtry from a Clerk became a Knight, and afterwards ſo rich that he was rank'd among the Peers of the Realm, and made Lord Chief Juſtice; but loſing the King's Favour, he became ſhaven again, and return'd to the Cloiſter. Cambd Brit.

SEGRE, Lat. Sicoris, a River which riſes in Catalonia, in the County of Cardagné, at the Foot of the Pirenees on the Borders of France, waters Livia Cardagné and Urgel, &c. and after being ſwell'd with ſeveral other Rivers, falls into the Ebro or Iber, nine Miles Weſt of Garcia.

SEGUIER, a noble and ancient Family, Native of Quercy in France, whereof there are ſome Branches at Cahors, Tolouſe and Paris; one of which call'd Nicholas Seguier was a great Lawyer and Orator, and in the Year 1550 was made the King's Advocate or Conſul in one of his Parliaments. He wrote an excellent Treatiſe de Cognitione Dei & ſui.

SEGURA, a River which riſes in New Caſtile in Spain, runs through the Kingdom of Murcia, and falls into the Bay of Alicant, having watered Caravacca, Murcia and Orihvela.

SEIA, a Goddeſs worſhipped by the Romans, as having care of the ſowen Seed. Her Statue, according to Pliny, ſtood in the Cirque. She was one of thoſe Deities the Latins call'd Salutares, invok'd by them in their Troubles and Afflictions. Plin. Lib. 18.

SEJANUS (Ælius) Favourite and Miniſter of State to the Emperor Tiberius, was born at Vulſinum, a City of Tuſcany, his Father was Sejus Strabo, a Roman Gentleman. This Ælius in his Youth followed the Fortune of Caius Cæſar, Grandchild of Auguſtus, and afterwards inſinuated himſelf into the Favour of Auguſtus. He was crafty, baſe and proud; to outward Appearance modeſt and humble, but inwardly full of an inſatiable Deſire of the Imperial Purple. Partly by his Luxury and Prodigality, and partly by his Vigilance and Induſtry, he arrived to the higheſt top of Power. He was made Commander of the Emperor's Guards, and enjoy'd an equal Power with Tiberius himſelf, who delighted in his Company, called him the Companion of his Cares and Buſineſs, and ſuffered his Statue to be venerated in the publick Places, and to be ſet up in the Theatres and Enſigns. Druſus, the Emperor's Son, who deſpiſed him, having on a time given him a Box on the Ear, Sejanus to be revenged of him, debauched his Wife Livia, by promiſing her a Share in the Empire, and engag'd her to poiſon him; Agrippina alſo, and Germanicus with his Son being diſpatch'd in like manner, he whould have married Livia, but Tiberius did not think it fit. His Inſolence at laſt grew to that Degree as to make him inſupportable to all Men; he imprudently boaſted himſelf to be Emperor of Rome, and that Tiberius was only the Emperor of Caprea, whither he had retired himſelf, and proceeded to that Impudence as to ridicule Tiberius his Baldneſs in a publick Play. Tiberius being at laſt provoked by his Inſolence, ſent Orders to the Senate, and had him ſeized and ſtrangled in Priſon the ſame Day, involving all his Family to the like Deſtruction; and not only ſo, but all thoſe of whom he was jealous, or bore a Grudge to. Sejanus was executed 18 Octob. A.C. 31. Tacit. Annal. Lib. 3, 4, & 5. Sueton. in Tiber. &c.

SEJANUS. The Name of a Horſe belonging to Sejus, a Roman Captain, which proved fatal to all that were the Owners of it; for this Sejus was condemned by Anthony to die a cruel Death; and Dolabella, who bought the Horſe for 2330 Crowns, being beſieged in Laodicea by Caſſius killed himſelf; by this means Caſſius became Maſter of this Horſe, and after him Antonius, who both killed themſelves. Whence came that Proverb, He has got the Horſe Sejanus, to denote an unfortunate Man. Gellius. Lib. 3. Cap. 9.

SEID-BATAL, a Mahometan Hero, whoſe Sepulchre is had in great Veneration by the Turks; the Word in the Arabick ſignifying a Valiant Prince. The Derviſes honour him in a particular manner, becauſe, as they ſay, he conquered the greateſt part of Aſia. His Sepulchre is in a Monaſtery of Natolia, where the Derviſes hold their Chapter General, which is ſometimes compoſed of above 8000 Mahometan Monks, where they celebrate a great Feſtival in Honour of him. Ricaut.

SEIFAGA, a famous Impoſtor at Paris in 1657, called himſelf one of the chief Kans or Lords of the Court of Perſia, pretending that he had been Governour of Candahar, a Place in the Indies won by the King of Perſia from the Great Mogul, and afterwards of Bagdat or Babylon before that Place was taken by Amurat IV. adding, that though he had well defended the Town, yet he durſt not return to his Country. He was likewiſe heard to ſay, that Amurat had honour'd him with his Eſteem. Theſe plauſible Stories deceiv'd ſome French Lords and Prelates, amongſt the reſt the Duke of St. Agnan and the Archbiſhop of Sens, until he was diſcover'd to be no other than a Cuſtom-Houſe Officer at Bagdat. He was of a Stature well proportion'd, and kept three Lackeys in Perſian Habits. De Rocoles des Impoſtures inſignes.

SEINE, or La Seine, Sequana, a great River of France, which riſeth in Burgundy, in a mountainous Place near the Caſtle of Chanceaux, two Leagues from a Town called St. Seine, and ſix from Dijon to the North. It watereth Chatillon and Bar ſur Seine, and entring Campagne, paſſeth by Troyes and Pont ſur Seine, above which the Aube comes in, and beneath it the Yonne and the Loing; and being got into the Iſle of France, it waters Melun and Corbeil, takes in the Marne at Charenton, and runs through Paris, where it forms an Iſle; and beneath that City, above Poiſſy, it receives the Oiſe, and paſſing into Normandy it receives the Eure and Andelle above Roan, through which it paſſeth, and from thence by Caudebeck, Honfleur and Harfleur, and runs into the Sea near Havre de Grace. At Caudebeck it forms a great Arm of the Sea, which admits the Tides thirty Leagues into the Land, and gives Paſſage to a Ship of great Burthen as high as Roan, and ſmaller Veſſels as high as Paris.

SELANDT, or Seelandt, Selandia, Codanonia, a great Iſland in the Baltick belonging to Denmark, ſeparated by the Eaſt from Scania or Schonen by that part of the Sound called Oreſund, and to the Weſt from Funen by the Beltſund. It is ſixteen German Miles in length, and twelve in breadth, and is very fruitful and pleaſant, only it bears no Wheat. The Capital of it is Copenhagen, the reſt are Roſchild, Elſeneur, Cronenburgh and Fredericksburgh, and 340 Pariſhes beſides. Selandt is parted from the main Land of Scandia by the Strieght about a Dutch Mile in breadth commonly called the Sundt, through which all Ships trading to or from the Baltick muſt paſs, all other Paſſages being barr'd up with Rocks, or prohibited by the Kings of Denmark, who lay a Tribute upon all Ships according to their Bills of Lading.

SELDEN (John) called by Grotius the Glory of the Engliſh Nation, waas born Dec. 16. 1584. at Salvington in Suſſex, near Terring. His Father was a ſubſtantial Yeoman, and his Mother Daughter to Thomas Baker of Ruſhington, deſcended of the Worſhipful Family of the Bakers in Kent. Their Son John having paſt his Trivial Studies at Chicheſter Free-School, went to Hart-Hall in Oxford at Michaelmas, 1600. and having ſtudied Philoſophy about three Years, he came to the Inner Temple and ſtudied Law, where he made ſuch Proficiency, not only in that but moſt other parts of Learning, that he grew famous, not only at home but abroad, ſo that he was uſually ſtiled The great Dictator of Learning of the Engliſh Nation. He was a great Linguiſt, Philologiſt, Divine, Lawyer, Antiquary, Stateſman, and what not. He alſo writ ſeveral things of Oratory and Poetry. He ſeldom appeared at the Bar, but gave Chamber Counſel, and was a good Conveyancer. In 1618 he publiſhed the Hiſtory of Tithes, his Preface to which was ſtuff'd with Calumny and ill Language: For the Manner and Argument of this Book he was afterwards oblig'd to make a Submiſſion, and acknowledge his Offence before the High Commiſſion Court, Decemb. 1618. This Book of Tithes was anſwered by Sir James Temple, Dr. Tilſley, Mr. Montague, &c. and has been ſince reprinted in 1680, Lond. 4°. The firſt time he ſerved in Parliament was for Lancaſter in 1623, next for Bedmis in Wilts in 1625, and afterwards in moſt of King Charles's Parliaments, where he gave great Proofs of his profound Learning and Judgment in all Debates, but was moſtly oppoſite to the Court, and impriſon'd for Freedom of Speech in the Parliament 1628, which his Fellow-Members reſented. He was alſo a Member of the Parliament which began Nov. 1640, adhered to them, accepted a Commiſſion from them, took the Covenant, ſat in the Aſſembly of Divines, where he ſignaliz'd himſelf for his Learning. In Nov. 1643 the Parliament made him chief Keeper of the Records of the Tower, and in 1645 a Commiſſioner of the Admiralty. In 1646 they voted him 5000 l. to compenſate what he had loſt by his Freedom in the Parliament 1628. He had a choice Collection of Books and Manuſcripts, moſt of which he wrote on the Title-Page περὶ παντὸς τὴν ἐλευθερίαν, Liberty above all things, to ſhew that he would take nothing upon Truſt. The moſt conſiderable of his Works are, Original of a Duel. Jani Anglorum facies altera, Engliſhed with Notes in 1683. Fol. Titles of Honour, reprinted 1671, much eſteem'd by Gentlemen. Analecton Anglo-Britannicon, at Frankf. 4°. Notes on Forteſcue de Laudibus Legum-Angliæ, 8°. Notes on the Sums of Sir R. Hengham, L. Ch. Juſt. to Edw. I. De Diis Syris, reprinted at Amſterd. 8°. 1680. Hiſt. of Tithes, before mentioned. Spicilegium in Edmeari 6 libros Hiſt. Lond. 1623. Fol. much valued by Antiquaries and Criticks. Marmora Arundeliana, &c. 1628. 4° Mare Clauſum, Lib. 2. 1635. Fol. in Anſwer to Grotius's Mare Liberum, wherein Selden aſſerts the Sovereignty of the Crown of England over the Britiſh Seas, which created ſuch an Eſteem of him at Court, that Archbiſhop Laud endeavoured to gain him; and it was thought, he might have choſen his own Preferment; but he deſpiſed all for love of Study. He publiſh'd alſo a Book called Eutychius, alledging that Biſhops differed from Presbyters only in Degree, and not in Order. An Anſwer to the King's Declaration about the Commiſſion of Array. *De Succeſſionibus in bona defuncti ſecundum Leges Hebræorum. SELEMNUS, a River of Achaia, which is a Province of the Peloponneſus, paſſing near to the City Patras.

SELESTAD, Schleſtad, a Town of the Lower Alſace in Germany, ſituate on the River Ill, formerly free and imperial, and of the Government of Haguenaw, but now belongs to the Crown of France, left to it by the Peace of Weſtphalia. Seleſtad is four Leagues from Briſac, and but a little leſs from Colmar towards Strasbourg. Its Fortifications were demoliſhed in 1673, but new built two Years after, ſo that it's now a Place of conſiderable Strength. Baud.

SELEUCIA, or Seleſchia, an ancient City of Cilicia, now of Caramania, ſurnamed Aſpera becauſe of its mountainous Situation, upon the River Calycadmus, of old called Olbia, and Hiera. It was anciently an Archbiſhop's See under the Patriarch of Antioch. St. Gregory of Nazianzen calls it the Seleucia of St. Thecla, becauſe it was famous by reaſon of the Tomb of that Martyr.

SELEUCIA and TIGRIM, a City in Meſopotamia upon the River Tigris, built by King Seleucus Nicanor, and is the ſame, as moſt ſuppoſes, which now is called Bagdad or Bagadet. There is alſo another Seleucia ſurnamed Pieria, and now called by the Turks Seleuche-lelber, near the Mouth of the River Orontes, with an Archbiſhop's See under the Patriarch of Antioch. Beſides theſe, there is yet another Seleucia, a City of Piſidia, upon the Borders of Pamphylia, ſituate between Antiochia on the North and the City of Pamphylia on the South. The Turks call it Caraſazar, others Celeſtria. Alſo another City called Seleucia, or rather Seleucos, ſituated in Syria, upon the River Belus, near to Apamea, built by the ſame King Seleucus, with a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Apamea. The Arians, very powerful at the Court of Conſtantius, perſuaded him to order a General Council at Nicomedia; but this Town being ruin'd by an Earth-quake, they pitch'd upon Nice to no purpoſe. The Emperor at their Inſtigation appointed two Councils at the ſame time, one at Seleucia for the Eaſt, and another at Rimini for the Weſtern Prelates. The Eaſtern Biſhops, to the Number of 160, moſt Arians, met at Seleucia in 359. St. Hilarius of Poitiers baniſh'd into Phrygia, came alſo thither, and ſtoutly defended the Orthodox Faith, though he had none to ſecond him but a few Egyptian Biſhops. This Council at the very Beginning was divided, ſome being for taking the Controverſies of Faith under Conſideration, others for treating of the Accuſations and Depoſitions of Biſhops. The Semi-Arians, who admitted a Likeneſs of Subſtance in Jeſus Chriſt, were againſt a new Confeſſion of Faith. On the other ſide, Acacius of Cæſarea condemned the Council of Nice, and defamed its Creed, preſented one wherein he ſaid that the Reſemblance of the Son and Father was a Conformity of Will and not of Subſtance; which Doctrine he learned from Ætius: The Semi-Arians abominated this new Confeſſion of Faith, and declared that the Form ſettled at the Council of Antioch in 341 ought to ſtand, and upon this Declaration got it confirm'd: Theſe Differences increaſing daily, Leonas was ſent by the Emperor, with Lauricus, to keep Peace and Order, to diſſolve the Council the fourth Day. Yet after this the Semi-Arians meeting in the Church, depoſed Acacius with ſeveral other Prelates, removed Eudoxus, and put Anien, a Prieſt of Antioch, in his Place, who being ſeiz'd by the other Party, he was baniſh'd by Lauritius and Leonas, whereupon the Semi-Arians deputed ten of their Number to the Emperor, and acquainted the other Biſhops of what paſſed by a Synodical Letter. SELEUCIA PISIDÆ, an ancient City of Piſidia in Aſia Minor, upon the Borders of Pamphylia. Chriſtianity was eſtabliſh'd here by St. Paul. It's now a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Antioch, and ſubject to the Turks.

SELEUCIANI, Hereticks who had their Riſe from Seleucus and Hermias in the IV Century: They held God to be Corporeal, Matter to be eternal, and ſtigmatiz'd thoſe they baptized with a red-hot Iron in the Forehead, &c. St. Aug. Niceph.

SELEUCUS I. ſurnamed Nicanor, King of Syria, was the Son of Antiochus and Laodicea. It is ſaid, that he was born with the Mark of an Anchor upon his Thigh, conform to a Dream his Mother had of him. See Laodicea. He was one of Alexander's chief Commanders, after whoſe Death he took the City of Babylon, paſſed through Perſia, and defeated Androcotus, King of the Gangandes, a People of India, of whom he receiv'd a Reinforcement of 500 Elephants and 6000 Infantry. At his Return he entred into a League with Ptolomy, Caſſander and Lyſimachus, againſt Antigonus, King of the Leſſer Aſia, whom he killed in the Battle of Ipſus, and ſhared with them the Provinces of that Country. Afterward he took into his Protection the Eunuch Phileterus, who came to him with 9000 Talents, which he had rak'd together in his Government of Pergamus, and went to meet Lyſimachus, who purſued Philoterus, gave him Battle, and kill'd him. After this Victory he deſign'd the Conqueſt of Thrace and Macedonia, but was treacherouſly murdered in the City of Argos by Ptolomy Ceraunus. He was a Prince very courageous, but withal of an eaſie and ſweet Temper: His Son Antiochus Soter being fallen ſick of Love for his Step-Mother Stratonice, and the Phyſician having diſcovered the Cauſe of his Diſeaſe, and told his Father of it, he freely gave his Son leave to marry her. He reſtored to the Athenians their Library which Xerxes had taken from them and carried with him into Perſia. He built the City Antioch in memory of his Father, five Laodicea's in Honour of his Mother, and three Apamia's in that of his Wife, and more than one Seleucia to immortalize his own Name. He planted many Colonies, as at Pella and at Beroe, whither he ſent the Jews, and beſtowed great Privileges upon them. He endeavour'd to joyn the Lake of Mæotis to the Caſpian Sea by a Channel, but without Succeſs. Joſephus mentions a Prodigy that happened to him as he was ſacrificing, viz. That the Wood appointed for the Sacrifice kindled of its own accord. Plutarch.

The Æra or Epocha of the Seleucides began a dozen Years after the Death of Alexander the Great, 312 Years before Jeſus Chriſt, A. M. 3742, from the Building of Rome 442 or 443, 4402 of the Julian Period, in the CXVII Olympiad, and about 872 after the Burning of Troy. It was at the ſame time that Seleucus took from Antigonus Babylon, all Media, and ſeveral other Provinces. The Authors of the two Books of the Maccabees make uſe of this Epocha, though with ſome difference, which it is good to take notice of to reconcile the Chronological Contrarieties one meets with in thoſe Books. The Jews began their Year in the Spring, in the Month of Niſan, correſponding to part of our March and April, and the Chaldæans began their Year in Autumn, that is to ſay, in the Month Tiſri, which correſponds to our September; now the Author of the firſt Book of the Maccabees follows the Jewiſh Account, and the Author of the ſecond the Chaldæan. Scalig. Lib. 2. & 5. de emend. tempor, Petav. Lib. 2. *de Doctr. SELEUCUS II. Son of Antiochus, ſurnamed Θεὸς, who by way of Irony was called Callinicus, as much as to ſay, the Happy Conqueror, becauſe he had the worſe in all his Undertakings. He ſucceeded to his Father the 507 Year of Rome. Ptolomy Evergetes took away his Dominions, and beat him in ſeveral Battels. He died of a Fall from his Horſe in the 527 of Rome, having reign'd Twenty Years. Strabo, Lib. 16. Juſtin. Lib. 27. Appian. de Bello Syr. &c.

SELEUCUS III. ſurnamed Κέραυνος, that is, Thunder, was proclaimed King after the Death of his Father in 527 of Rome, and died two or three Years after of Poiſon, leaving the Crown to his Brother Antiochus the Great.

SELEUCUS IV. ſurnamed Philopater, ſucceeded to his Father Antiochus the Great, but with a great Diminution of Power and Glory, by reaſon of the numerous Loſſes the Syrians had ſuſtain'd from the Romans. He was very favourable to the Jews, and afforded them a yearly Allowance towards their Sacrifices. It was in his Time the Things happened that are ſet down in the ſecond Book of the Maccabees. Simeon, Prefect of the Temple, informed Seleucus of the Treaſures that were hid in the Holy Place, who thereupon ſent Heliodorus to take them away; but he in the Attempt was laſh'd by Angels, and was healed at the Prayer of Onias, the High Prieſt. In the mean time, Seleucus, who had ſent his Son Demetrius in Hoſtage to Rome, was poiſon'd by Heliodorus in 678 of Rome, and the twelfth of his Reign. 2 Maccabees. Strab. Lib. 16. Juſtin. 32. Appian. Cap. 3. Sulpic. Severus.

SELEUCUS V. the Son of Demetrius Nicanor, was ſet upon the Throne in 629 of Rome; but Cleopatra his Mother, who had newly killed Demetrius her Husband, ſhot him to Death with an Arrow, a little after his Coronation. Appian in Syriac. Juſtin Lib. 39. Euſeb. in Chron.

SELEUCUS VI. ſucceeded his Father Antiochus Grypus in the Year of Rome 658. At his firſt coming to the Throne he oppoſed himſelf to his Uncle Antiochus Cyzicenus, who affected the Syrian Empire, and killed him in Battle; and was afterwards by his ſaid Uncle's Son Antiochus Pius driven from his Kingdom; and by betaking himſelf to Mopſueſtia in Cilicia, he was there burnt in his Palace by the Citizens in the Year of Rome 660.

SELEUCUS, a Soldier of Cappadocia, one of the moſt valiant of all the Roman Army, who brought Pamphilus the Martyr Tidings of the kind of Death the Emperor had pronounced againſt him, and upon this Occaſion turned Chriſtian himſelf; whereupon the Command he had in the Army was taken from him, at which he was not in the leaſt concerned; and wholly giving up himſelf to the Practice of true Chriſtianity, he became the Father of Orphans, the Protector of Widows, and the Benefactor of the Poor. He was burnt to Death with a ſlow Fire by Diocleſian. Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccl.

SELEUCUS, a famous Mathematician, whom the Emperor Veſpaſian often conſulted about the Succeſs of his Affairs. Tacit.

SELIM, or Selimus I. Emperor of the Turks, was the ſecond Son of Bajazet II. He took up Arms againſt his Father, but coming to an Engagement he loſt the Battle; and yet, by the Favour of the Janiſaries, he was raiſed to the Throne before his elder Brother Achmet. His Father Bajazet reſigned his Crown to him, and he, like a Wretch, poiſon'd him ſoon after, from whom he had receiv'd his Life. He ſucceeded in the Empire in 1512, and began his Reign with extraordinary Liberalities he beſtowed upon the Janiſaries and upon all his great Officers. In the mean time, his Brother Achmet, who had betaken himſelf to the Protection of the Sultan of Ægypt, loſt the Day; and being taken Priſoner, was put to Death by his Brother's Order: Neither did the Tyrant ſtop here, but ordered his Brother Corchur, who was of a peaceable Temper, and a Lover of his Study, and to whom he had been obliged during the Time of his Diſgrace, to be murdered likewiſe, together with eight of his Nephews, and ſtain'd himſelf with the Blood of as many of his Baſſa's, who had ſignaliz'd themſelves in his Service. But though he was thus cruel, yet was he withal Courageous, indefatigable in Labour, Temperate, Liberal, a Lover of Juſtice, and one that greatly delighted in the reading of Hiſtories, and was no contemtible Poet in his own Language. Amurat, one of the Sons of his elder Brother Achmet, fled into Perſia for Protection, which was the Cauſe of a War which Selim undertook againſt Sophi Iſhmael. Selim at the firſt was worſted, but afterwards won the Battle of Zalderane the 15th of Auguſt, 1514. but the Victory coſt him above 50000 Men, and in his Return he loſt many of his Soldiers, and all his Artillery, in paſſing the River Euphrates: But notwithſtanding this Miſhap, he took ſeveral Cities in Perſia, and ſubdued divers petty Kings in the Neighbourhood. Immediately after theſe Succeſſes in Perſia, he turned his Arms againſt Campſon Gauri, Sultan of Egypt, whom he defeated and killed near to Aleppo in Syria, the 25th of Auguſt, 1516, whereupon the Cities of Aleppo and Damaſcus with the reſt of that Province were ſurrendred to him; and Paleſtina at the ſame time was ſubdued by Sinan Baſſa. In the mean time the Mammelucs returning into Egypt, created Tomumpay their Sultan, and put themſelves in a Poſture to make Head againſt the Ottomans; but Selim entring into their Country, took the City of Grand Cairo towards the End of January, 1517, beat the new Sultan upon a Tueſday, being the 27 Day of the ſame Month; and this unfortunate Prince being found in a Bog, where the Arabians had hid him, was crucified by Order of Selim; who upon his Return to Conſtantinople had a Peſtilential Boil broke out upon his Back-bone, and ſuppoſing that the Air of Adrianople might be conducive to his Recovery; he died upon the Way thither at Ciuri in Thracia, in the very ſame Place where he had fought and poiſon'd his Father, the 22d of Sept. 1520, in the 46th Year of his Age, and the eighth of his Reign. Leunclav. Lib. 7.

SELIM II. Son of Solyman II. who was the Son of Selim I. ſucceeded his Father in 1566, at the Age of 42 Years. The Death of his Brothers Muſapha and Bajazet, who had been diſpatch'd during the Life of Solyman, gave him a free and open Entrance to the Throne, of which he ſhewed himſelf unworthy by his Vices; he was puſillanimous and without Courage, and wholly addicted to Wine and Women. Only the Valour of his Generals procured him ſome Victories: Piala and Muſtapha conquer'd the Iſle of Cyprus for him in 1571; and Occhiali had no leſs Succeſs in Barbary, and againſt the Gallies of Malta. But after the Loſs of Cyprus the Chriſtians won the Battle at Lepanto, on the ſeventh of Octob. in which Haly Baſſa was ſlain: This was the greateſt Wound the Ottoman Empire had of a long time receiv'd; and had the Chriſtians made good uſe of their Victory, they might eaſily have made themſelves Maſters of Conſtantinople, the whole City having been put into an extream Conſternation by the Loſs of that Fight, inſomuch that Selim himſelf left it, and fled to Adrianople. Soon after he made Peace with the Venetians, and died of the Apoplexy the thirteenth of Decemb. 1575. Mezeray.

SELKIRK, the principal Town of the Sheriffdom of the Forreſt in the South of Scotland, ſtanding upon the River Ettrick. Juſtice is adminiſtred here for the County; the hereditary Sheriff of which is Murray of Philiphaugh, a very ancient Family. The preſent Repreſentative was made one of the Lords of the Seſſion by King William and Queen Mary. This Town is alſo remarkable for the total Rout given to the Marqueſs of Montroſs in the Time of King Charles I. by the Parliament's Forces under Sir David Leſly, in the Valley on the other ſide of that River called Philiphaugh, whence the Family abovemention'd take their Title. Cambd. Brit. &c.

SELO, or Silaro, Silurus, a River of the Kingdom of Naples, in the hither Principality, whoſe Fountains are in the Mount Apenine, and diſchargeth it ſelf into the Bay of Salernum.

SELOMBRIA, or Selivree, Selybria and Selymbria, a City of Thrace now called Romania, which formerly was a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Heraclea; it is ſituate upon the Propontis, now Mar di Marmora, 35 Italian Miles to the Weſt from Conſtantinople. It is great and populous, and has a good Harbour.

SELSEY ISLE, a Peninſula near Chicheſter, in the County of Suſſex, aſſign'd about the Year 711 by Elidwach, King of the South-Saxons to Wilfride, Archbiſhop of York, for his Seat; when baniſh'd his Country by the King of Northumberland, he came to preach to the South-Saxons: Godwal, King of the Weſt-Saxons, having conquered the Kindom of the Saxons, built a Monaſtery here and made it a Biſhop's See, which continued in the ſame Place above 300 Years, till Biſhop Stigand in 1070 removed the See to Chicheſter. It is noted now for excellent Cockles and Lobſters.

SEMELE, the Daughter of Cadmus, King of Thebes, whom Jupiter deflouréd; ſhe was the Mother of Bacchus. The Poets tell us, that jealous Juno, in the Form of an old Woman, came and perſuaded her to deſire her Lover that he would give her a Viſit in all his Majeſty, whereupon having obtain'd her Deſire, ſhe was burnt by Jupiter's Lightning, together with the Houſe wherein ſhe was. Ovid. Lib. 3. Metam.

SEMIAMIRA, Mother of the Emperor Heliogabalus, in complaiſance to whom, he inſtituted a Senate of Women; but ſhe and her Son being killed, that Female Juriſdiction was extinguiſh'd with them. Lamprid.

SEMI-ARIANS. The Arian Sect was divided into two principal Parties, the one whereof ſticking more cloſely to the Opinion of their Maſter, maintaining that the Son of God was unlike the Father Ἀνόμοιος, and of this Party was Eunomius: The other Party were of thoſe who refuſed to receive the Word Conſubſtantial, yet acknowledged the Son to be Ὁμοιούσιος, of a like Subſtance or Eſſence with the Father, and therefore were called Semi-Arians, i. e. Half Arians. This Party made the Majority in the Councils of Rimini and *Seleucia. SEMIGALLEN, Semigallia, a Province of Livonia in the Kingdom of Poland, which is bounded on the North by Livonia, properly ſo called, on the South by Samogitia, on the Weſt by Curland, and on the Eaſt by the Palatinate of Ploczko, the principal Town is Mittaw, the Reſidence of the Duke of Curland.

SEMIRAMIS, Queen of the Aſſyrians, ſucceeded to her Husband Ninus as Queen-Regent during the Minority of her Son Ninus, or as others Ninyas. She enlarged her Husband's Conqueſt, on the one Hand as far as Ethiopia, and on the other as far as India, having firſt ſubdued Media, Lybia and Egypt. She built a Magnificent Tomb to the Memory of her Husband Ninus, and made a Statue of the Mountain of Bagiſtona, and made others to be levell'd to make an High-way; and having finiſh'd the City Babylon, ſhe ſurrounded it with thoſe Walls, and cauſed thoſe Gardens to be made on the Top of her Palaces, which paſſed for one of the Wonders of the World. But this Great and Magnificent Queen ſtain'd the Glory of her Actions by her abominable Impurity. It is ſaid, ſhe tempted the handſomeſt of her Soldiers to lie with her, and having ſatisfied her Luſt, ſhe cauſed them to be murthered, and to make them amends raiſed ſtately Tombs over their Graves. But being fallen in Love with her Son Ninyas, ſolliciting him to commit Inceſt with her, was ſlain by him, after that ſhe had reigned 42 Years, Some refer her Death to *A. C. SEMPRONIUS TUDITIANUS, a Roman Conſul, who writ Hiſtorical Commentaries, which are much quoted by the Ancients, though that Work has been loſt to theſe latter Ages.

SEMUR ANAUXOIS, Lat. Semurium, a ſmall City in the Dutchy of Burgundy upon the River Armanſon, eleven L. North of Autun, eleven Weſt of Dyon, and 22 South of Troy.

SENACULUM, the Place where the Senates of Rome aſſembled; and there were three ſuch in that City, viz, The Temple of Concord, between the Capital and the Forum Romanum; the ſecond near the Porta Capena; and the third in the Temple of Bellona. Roſin. Antiq. Rom Lib. 1. Cap 14.

SENATORS, Senatores, Roman Magiſtrates created by Romulus to be his Counſellors, and to determine and judge the Differences happening between the People. Their Number was 100, and they were choſen out of the moſt noble Families of Rome, and ſuch as were moſt conſiderable for their Worth and Vertue. They were called Senatores, becauſe uſually none were admitted but ſuch as were well advanced in Age; or becauſe of their Prudence, which is the Vertue peculiar to old Age. They were alſo called Patres (Fathers) either to denote the Reſpect that was due to them, or to put them in mind that they were to be Fathers to the People. Some time after the Sabins having been receiv'd into the City, Romulus and Tatius created 100 new Senators taken out of the moſt Illuſtrious Roman Families. Tarquinius, ſurnamed Priſcus, added to this Nnmber 100 more of the moſt vertuous and conſiderable Perſons amongſt the Commons, to whom he gave the Title of Patricii, which mounted the Number of the Senators to 300. From which Time their Number ſtill increaſing during the Dictatorſhip of Julius Cæſar, they were got up to 900, and after his Death, under the Triumvirate, were above 1000. At firſt the Place of a Senator was not conferred upon any but ſuch as were either Patricians or Noble, but afterwards others alſo of the Commons were admitted to the Senate, by beſtowing the Title of Patricians upon them. The received Cuſtom was, to chuſe out of the Order of Gentlemen, ſuch as excell'd in Nobleneſs and Worth, to fill up the vacant Places of the Senate. Every Senator was to be worth at leaſt 800000 Seſterces, that is, about 5000 Pounds Sterling; and if, during his Enjoyment of that Dignity, his Eſtate were conſiderably diminiſh'd, he loſt his Place and Rank. There was a Prince of the Senate, which Preheminence belong'd to him, whom the Cenſor had firſt nam'd in reading over the Liſt of the Senators, and it was commonly a Perſon who had been Conſul or Cenſor, and enjoy'd the Place during Life. *Roſin. SENAULT (John Franzois) a Prieſt of the Oratory, was born at Paris 1601. He hath left ſeveral Books of Piety and Morality, viz. A Paraphraſe upon the Book of Job; The uſe of the Paſſions; The Chriſtian Man; The Vicious Man; The Panegyricks of the Saints; Le Monargue, or, The Office of a Prince, with ſeveral other Works: He was ſuperior General of his Order ten Years, and died at Paris the third of Auguſt, 1672. He was a Man of great Probity and Elocution, and one of the moſt celebrated Preachers of his Time.

SENDEROU, Zonderoud, Zonderu, a River of Perſia, which ariſing from the Mountain of Dimavend, and dividing the City of Iſpahan into two Parts, about ten or twelve Leagues beneath it; it ends in a few Marſhes, the Water being all ſpent in the thirſty Lands it paſſeth through. In Winter it overflows ſometimes, but in Summer is very low and eaſily fordable. Sha-Abas, King of Perſia, endeavoured to unite with it the River of Abkuren, which runneth South of Zulpha, and comes within five Miles of this River, but found ſuch Difficulty, that he died before it was effected, and his Poſterity never thought more on it. Tavern. Pag. 156. This is a reaſonable great River, ſaith Struis, Pag. 315. but he ſaw it in the Winter in 1672.

SENDOMIRE, Lat. Sendomira. a City of Poland, and Capital of the Palatinate of its own Name. It is built upon a Hill by the River Weſel, 28 Poliſh Miles Eaſt of Cracow, and 30 ſouth of Warſaw. This Town was ſack'd, and the Inhabitants barbarouſly uſed by the Tartars, An 1240. In the laſt Age a Synod was held here againſt the Hereſie of Stancarus, An. 1570. Another was held, wherein the Confeſſions of Bohemia, Ausburg and Swiſſerland, were agreed to, and many Conſtitutions made for regulating the Church; the Daughter of George Memenczanſcius, Palatine of this Place, by the King's Conſent, married the Counterfeit Demetrius, whom the Muſcovites choſe for their Great Duke, but afterwards murther'd for entertaining German Guards; ſo that ſhe was ſent Home ſpoil'd of all ſhe had, An. 1616. This Town was taken by the Swedes in 1655, and retaken by the Poles the next Year. Cromer. Laſicius. Thuan.

SENEFF, a Village of Brabant, in the Spaniſh Netherlands, upon the Borders of Hainault, and the County of Namur, famous for the Battle fought there in 1674, between the French, commanded by the Prince of Conde, and the Spaniards and Hollanders under the Conduct of the Prince of Orange. The Prince of Conde routed the Rear-guard of the Dutch Army, and took part of the Enemies Baggage; but ſetting upon the main Body of their Army, notwithſtanding the Diſadvantage they had of the Ground, he loſt abundance of Men, and had only the Glory of paſſing the Night over in the Place where the Battle was fought. Memoires du temps. See alſo the Memoirs of Sir Will. Temple.

SENECA (Lucius Annæus) a Stoick Philoſopher, who was born at Corduba in Spain, a little before the Death of Auguſtus; he had the ſame Name with his Father, which hath deceived ſome Authors, and made them attribute to the Son the Declamations which the Father had collected. His Father was famous for his Eloquence, and married a Spaniſh Gentlewoman, of whom he had three Sons, viz. Seneca, of whom we are now ſpeaking, Annæus Novatus, afterwards called Julius Gallio by Adoption, and Annæus Mela, Father of the Poet Lucan. Seneca wholly addicted himſelf to the Study of Philoſophy: Novatus, beſides his Learning, was raiſed to ſeveral publick Employments in the City of Rome, and Mela contented himſelf with enjoying of his Father's Eſtate. But Seneca, beſides that, was inſtructed by his Father in Eloquence, had ſeveral other Maſters to teach him the Art of Rhetorick and Oratory, viz Hyginus, Ceſtius and Aſinius Gallus, and learn'd Philoſophy of Socion of Alexandria, and Photinus, who were both of them Stoicks. From the Beginning of Caligula's Reign, he gave ſeveral Inſtances of his Learning and Eloquence in Pleadings at the Bar. But ſeeing that Caligula affected the Glory of being the moſt Eloquent Perſon in the World, he did no more plead in Publick, for fear of awakening the Jealouſie of that ambitious and furious Prince. Some time after, being ſuſpected of having been too familiar with the Widow of his Benefactor Domitius, he was baniſh'd to the Iſle of Corſica, where he abode almoſt two Years, and there writ his Books of Conſolation, which he addreſs'd to his Mother and to Polybius. Beſides ſome other Pieces. But Agrippina having married the Emperor Claudius, recalled Seneca from his Exile, and recommended to him the Conduct and Inſtruction of her Son Nero, whom ſhe deſign'd for the Empire. This Prince at firſt following the Advice and Inſtruction of his Maſter, was highly eſteem'd by all; and the firſt five Years of his Empire might ſerve for a Pattern to the beſt of Princes, But after that Poppæa and Tigellinus had got the Command of his Humour, he laſh'd out into thoſe abominable Crimes, that have made him the Shame and Reproach of Mankind. The Vertue of his Maſter Seneca was a continual Rebuke to his Vices, which made him deſire to be rid of him, and accordingly made uſe of one of his Freemen, called Cleonice, to poiſon him, but without Succeſs, either becauſe he repented of his Undertaking, or by Seneca's Diſtruſt, who altogether lived upon Fruits, and drank nothing but Water. Some time after Nero being inform'd that his Maſter was conſcious to Piſo's Conſpiracy againſt his Perſon, was very glad to have this Occaſion fairly to be rid of him. He left the Choice of what kind of Death he would die to himſelf; and being then in the midſt of his Friends, cauſed himſelf to be let Blood; and as they were weeping round about him, he by his grave Diſcourſe endeavoured to ſtop their Tears, ſometimes gentlely perſuading, and at other times ſharply rebuking them. His Wife Paulina cauſed her ſelf to be let Blood at the ſame time, as deſigning to die with her Husband. Seneca at laſt tired with the tedious Lingring of Death, deſired Statius Annæus, his Phyſician, to give him a Doſe of Poyſon, which he had of a long time kept for him to uſe upon Occaſion; but his Blood being gone, and his Limbs cold, the Poyſon could not have its uſual Effect, and he was therefore forced to ſtifle him with the Steams of an hot Bath. He died in the 65th of Chriſt, and in the twelfth of Nero's Reign. Seneca had born the Offices of Prætor and Quæſtor; and ſome ſay of Conſul too. Some Criticks take him to have been the Author of the Tragedies publiſh'd under his Name, excepting that of Octavia, Hercules Furens and Thebais. However, it is plain that Hercules Oetæus by the Slender Oecouomy of it is none of his: As for his other Works they are ſo well known that a Catalogue of them is needleſs. There are ſome that take Seneca to have been a Chriſtian, and that he had Converſe with St. Paul by Letters; it ſeems not altogether improbable, but that he might have had the Curioſity to inform himſelf about the Chriſtian Doctrine, which appeared ſo ſtrange and extraordinary; but as for the Letters publiſh'd under their Names, they are unworthy of either of them. To know whether Seneca were a Chriſtian or no, we need only obſerve what Tacitus relates ſpeaking of his Death: As he entred the Bath, ſaith he, he took of the Water and ſprinkled his Friends that ſtood about him with it, ſaying, That he offered theſe Libations to Jupiter his Redeemer. Tacit. Lib. 12, 14 & 15. *in Annal. SENEGA, a great River of Africa, has its Source in Ethiopia, not far from the Nile. The Weſtern Ocean runs up it ſixty Leagues; it is peſtered with Banks of Sand and Gravel, ſo that it cannot be ſailed on about 150 Leagues from its Mouth; it has a Cataract or great Fall from the Rocks, ſo that a Man may walk dry under the Stream of it. On the South of this River the People are Black, and the Soil very fruitful; on the North they are Brown and the Earth is barren. From the fifteenth of June this and the Gamba overflow for forty Days, as the Nile doth, and are the ſame time in decreaſing, which makes the Land between them wonderfully fruitful, even like to Egypt, yet it will not ripen Wheat, Rye, Barly or Grapes, but wants not Pulſe or Millet, and Guiny Wheat, a wonderful Grain: Between the latter end of October and July it rains here every Day at Noon, with frequent Thunder and Lightning. This River is the moſt Northern Bounds of the Negroes. Pory makes it the ſame with the Niger. Hackl. T. 2. Part 2. Pag. 17.

SENESCHAL, Seneſcalcus or Seneſcallus, the Name of an ancient Officer of the French Crown, that had the Care of the King's Houſhold, and regulated the Expences thereof both in time of War and Peace: He had alſo the chief Command of the King's Forces, and carried the Royal Standard. Under King Philip I. it was accounted the higheſt Place of Truſt belonging to the French Crown, and ſeems to be much the ſame as our Lord High Steward.

SENEZ, Sanitium Civitas Sanitienſium, a ſmall City of France, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Ambrun, from which it ſtands fourteen Leagues to the South, and eight from Seſteron to the North-Eaſt. It is now little better than a Village, and the See is removed to Ceſtellane, two Miles South from Senez; and the Chapter of the Cathedral of St. Auſtin's Order, was made Secular by Pope Innocent X. in 1647.

SENFRED, King of the Eaſt-Saxons, and younger Son of Sebbi, ſucceeded his Brother Sigeard, but reign'd in all but ſeven Years.

SENGLE, (Claude de la) was the 47th Great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, and in 1553 he ſucceeded to John d'Homodes. He died in 1557, and had for his Succeſſor John de Valette.

SENIGAGLIA, Sena & Senogallia, a City of Italy, in the Dutchy of Urbin, upon the Adriatick Sea, and is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Urbin. It was built by the Galli Senones from whom it took its Name. The City is but ſmall, yet neat and ſtrong, and hath a good Haven at the Mouth of the River Nigola, and belongs to the Eccleſiaſtical State. Near this Place Aſdrubal was defeated, the Memory of which is ſtill preſerved on a neighbouring Hill which bears his Name.

SENKAN, a ſmall City, one Day's Journey from Sultania to the Weſt, in the Kingdom of Perſia, in the Road between Derbent and Iſpahan. It is the beſt refreſhing Place on that Road, having Plenty of Oranges, Limmons, Pomegranats, and vaſt Grapes; Veal and Mutton very cheap. It is ſituate in a Plain, very dry and barren; before Tamerlane the Great it had a flouriſhing Trade, but he ruined it to that degree, that there is no Hopes of its Recovery. Struis. Pag. 301.

SENLIS ſur Nonnette, Auguſtomagus, Sylvanectum, Sylviacum, a ſmall City in the Iſle of France, appertaining to the Dutchy of Valois, and a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Reims. It is ſituate in a very pleaſant Place, near to the Foreſt of Rets, whence it took its Latin Name Sylvanectum. St. Proculus founded the Church of Senlis, and was the firſt Biſhop of it. It contains ſeven Pariſhes and two Collegiate Churches. It was beſieged by the Leaguers, who were fought before it by the Duke of Longoville. Several Synods have been held here, particularly one in 873, ſummoned by Charles the Bald, againſt his Son Carloman, who being Deacon, had revolted againſt him, where that unfortunate Prince was condemn'd, had his Eyes put out, and was ſhut up in the Abby of Corby, whence he eſcaped to his Uncle Lewis le Germanic, where he died ſoon after. Another was held in 990, where Charles, Duke of Lorrain, was excommunicated for impriſoning the Biſhop of Laon, and waſting all the neighbouring Country. In 1310 another was held about the Templers. In 1317 Robert de Conterai, Archbiſhop of Reims, was Precedent of a Council held there, againſt thoſe that encroach'd upon the Property and Eſtates of the Church; and in 1326 and 1402 others were held about the Schiſm of Boniface IX. and Benet XIII. The County and Bailywick of this Name lies betwixt the Iſle of France, la Valois, the Oiſe, and the Eyſne. Du Cheſne. Recherch. des Antiq. des Villes. St. Marth. Gall. Chriſt.

SENNACHERIB, King of the Aſſyrians; he ſucceeded Salmanaſſer, about A. M. 3319, and having laid Seige to Jeruſalem, and defied the True God, he ſent an Angel into his Camp, who ſlew 185000 of his Men; whereupon the next Morning he broke up the Siege, and retired with great Horror and Precipitation, leaving all his Baggage for a Prey to the Beſieged; and ſoon after as he was worſhipping in the Temple of Niſroch in Ninive, he was killed by his two Sons Adrammelech and Sharezer. The Tradition of the Jews reported by St. Jerom, relating to this Matter, is this, That his Sons having been informed, that to procure the Favour of his Idol Miſroch, he was reſolved to ſacrifice them to him; they reſolved to prevent it by murthering him as he was going about theſe abominable Devotions; and having done ſo, fled into Armenia, and Eſarhaddon his youngeſt Son ſucceeded in his Throne. Torniellus fixeth the Beginning of Sennacherib's Reign to A. M. 3319, the Defeat of his Army by an Angel to 3324, and his Death to 3325. 2 Kings, Chap. 18, & 19. 2 Chron. Chap. 32. Iſaiah 37. Job, Ch. 1. Joſeph, Lib. 10. Ant. Jud. Ch. 10, & 11. SENNERTUS, (Daniel) born at Breſlaw, in Sileſia, Anno 1572; in 1593, he was ſent to the Univerſity of Wittemburgh, where he made a conſiderable Progreſs, both in Philoſophy and Phyſick: He travell'd to ſeveral other Univerſities in Germany, and particularly to Berlin in 1601 to learn the Practice of Phyſick, but making a ſhort Stay there, he return'd to Wittemburgh, where he was made Doctor, and afterwards Profeſſor of Phyſick; he was the firſt that brought the Study of Chymiſtry into this Univerſity, and was very famous both for his Writings and Practice, in which latter he was extreamly generous and charitable, always returning Fees back again to poor People; The Plague was ſix or ſeven times at Wittemburgh while he was there, during all which Mortalities he neither retired nor refuſed to viſit any Patients: The Liberty he took in contradicting the Ancients raiſed him a great many Enemies; but nothing gave more Offence than this Sentiment concerning the Original of Souls, his Opinion being, that the Seed of all Animals was animated, and that the Soul of this Seed was the Plaſtick Power which ſtruck out and formed the Organs. This Hypotheſis was looked upon as very bold and prejudicial to Religion, becauſe it makes the Souls of Beaſts immaterial, and by conſequence as immortal as thoſe of Men: However, Sennertus denied this Conſequence, being not ſo hardy as to ſay, the Soul of Brutes ſubſiſted after the Death of the Body which had been firſt animated by it. He had likewiſe a very ſingular Phanſie about the Production of Metals and Minerals, attributing the Formation of them to Spirits who dwelt in Mines and Quarries for this Purpoſe. Sennertus died of the Plague at Wittenberg in 1637. The laſt Edition of his Works were printed at Lions in 1676. 6 Vol. Fol. *Mercklinus in Lindenio Renovato. Bucknerus in Orat. Funeb. Sennert. Fernelius de Abdit. Rerum Cauſis. Bayle Diction. SENNESERTÆUS, an Egyptian King, who is taken to be the third King of the 26th Dynaſty, whom Manetho calls Pſammus, and Cteſias, Amyrtes. Moſt Authors fix his Reign about the Beginning of the Olympiads, or the Foundation of Rome. It was he who cauſed a magnificent Obeliſk to be made 125 Foot high, adorn'd with Hieroglyphicks, and placed it in the City Heliopolis, whence Auguſtus got it tranſported to Rome, where it was expoſed in the Great Cirque. Pope Sixtus V. got it dug up out of the Earth, where it had been hid during the Invaſion of the Goths, and placed it in the Forum Flaminium in 1589. Kircher. Oedip. Ægyptiacus.

SENS, Agendicum, Senonum, Senones, a great and beautiful City of France, upon the Confluent of the Venne and Yonne, and is an Archbiſhop's See. It was formerly compriz'd in the Government of Burgundy, but at preſent belongs to Champagne. It is one of the moſt ancient Cities of all France, and by ſome thought more ancient than Rome, and it is the Capital of a ſmall Territory called le Senonois. This is a large and fair City, watered by ſeveral ſmall Rivers, and adorn'd with a fine Metropolis, dedicated to St. Stephen; the Front of this magnificent Building is embelliſh'd with divers Figures, and two great Towers; nor are its Quire, Chappels, Tombs or Altars leſs conſiderable; the chief conſiſts of a Table of Gold enriched with precious Stones, and the Figures of the four Evangeliſts, with St. Stephen kneeling in the middle, done in Bas. Relievo. The Dioceſs of Sens has 900 Pariſhes, beſides 25 Abbeys, whereof there are ſix in the Town, with a great Number of Religious Houſes. In 1140, Learned Peter Abailard was condemned here in a Council, from which he appeal'd to the Pope, Another was held in 1198, to oblige King Philip Auguſtus to retake his Wife Ingeburga, and to leave Agnes de Meiranie. There were ſeveral other Councils of leſſer Note. The Galli Senones were famous before the Birth of Chriſt, extending their Conqueſt as far as Italy and Greece. They took Rome under the Conduct of ther Captain Brennus, and it is thought that they built Sienna Senigaglia, and ſome other Cities, which ſtill bear their Name, and were famous till Cæſar's Time. Under the ſecond Race of the Kings of France, this Country enjoy'd its own Earls till King Robert, who took this City in 1005. The Archbiſhops of Sens have the Titles of Primates of the Gauls and Germany, but do not enjoy the Advantages thereto belonging, for Lions was ſince made the Metropolis, and Primate's See of France. Formerly the Archbiſhop of Sens had under him the Biſhops of Paris, Chartres, Meaux, Orleans, Troies, Auxerre and Nevers, but ſince the Church of Paris was made a Metropolitan See, the three laſt are only under it. Cæſar, Ptolomy, Florus, Du Cheſne, Sancte Marthe.

SENTINUS, the Name of a Heathen God, ſo called becauſe he was believed by them to be Giver of the Faculty of Feeling to Children in their Mother's Womb. Aug. de Civit. Dei. Lib. 7.

SEPHARITES, the Name of a Mahometan Sect. They believe that God hath a viſible Figure, and Senſes like Men, but that this Figure is Spiritual as well as Corporal, and that the Organs of his Body are not ſubject to Corruption or Alteration; and ſeem much to agree with the Opinion of the Anthropomorphites. The Moatazalites, another Mahometan Sect, are thoſe who are moſt oppoſite to them. Ricaut.

SEPHIROTH, an Hebrew Word that ſignifies Numerations or Numberings, which Name they give to the Ten Names or Attributes of God mentioned in the Scripture, of which they have writ ſeveral Treatiſes. Reuclin hath treated of theſe at large in his Books of the Cabbala. The Names of theſe Sephiroth are Crown, Wiſdom, Underſtanding, Mercy, Power, Beauty, Victory, Praiſe, Glory, Foundation, Kingdom. And above all theſe, they place that which they call Enſoph, that is, Infinity. P. Simon.

SEPHORIS, Sephorim, an ancient City of Galilee in Paleſtina, four Miles from Nazareth near Mount Carmel, famous for the Birth of Joachim and St. Anna, the Parents of the Bleſſed Virgin. It was formerly a very ſtrong and conſiderable Place. Herod for the ſecuring of his Tetrarchy, having made it the ſtrongeſt Hold of all Galilee. At preſent this City is little elſe but an Heap of Ruines, and on the top of the Hill are ſeen the Remainders of a Church, which was built in the Place where St. Joachim's Houſe formerly ſtood. Near this Place is a very large Fountain, called the Fountain of Sephoris, near which the Chriſtian Armies uſed to rendezvous when they were Maſters of Jeruſalem. Daubdan. Voyage de la Terre ſante.

SEPION, an ancient Painter, famous for his Skill in Painting the Scenes of Theatres. Plin. Lib. 35. Cap. 10.

SEPTIMIUS, an Author that writ the Life of Alexander Severus, as Lamprid. tells in Alex. Sever. There was another of that Name who tranſlated Dicty's Cretenſis of the Trojan War.

SEPTUAGINT, a Name commonly given to the 72 Tranſlators of the Old Teſtament into Greek, at the Command of Ptolomy Philadelphus, the Son of Lagus, King of Egypt, about 300 Years before the Birth of Chriſt; which Interpreters were ſent to the King by the High Prieſt Eleazar, who choſe out of every Tribe ſix of the moſt Learned in Greek and Hebrew. St. Jerom aſſures us, that the Seventy tranſlated only the five Books of Moſes; becauſe Ariſtæus, Ariſtobulus and Philo ſay, they only tranſlated the Law, which in the common Acceptation, only ſignifies the Pentateuch; and if any one take it to ſignifie all the Books of the Old Teſtament, they will find Joſephus of another Opinion, that the Word Law only imports the Writings of the Jewiſh Legiſlator, which is applicable only to Moſes. The Thalmudiſts are of the ſame mind. Yet Juſtin and moſt of the ancient Fathers were of opinion, that the Seventy tranſlated the whole Bible. St. Juſtin Martyr, or the Author of the Diſcourſe againſt the Greeks, St. Ireneus and St. Clement affirm, that the King ſhut theſe Interpreters up in different Chambers, to ſee how much their Tranſlations differ'd, which upon Examination were all found to agree: And St. Juſtin adds, that he himſelf did ſee at Alexandria the Ruins of the Building that contain'd all theſe little Apartments. But St. Auguſtin doubts the Truth of it, nor does St. Jerom credit it, becauſe neither Ariſtæus, Joſephus nor Philo, who firſt wrote the Hiſtory of the Septuagint, make mention thereof, but on the contrary, that the Interpreters conferred frequently together. This Tranſlation contributed much to the Converſion of the Gentiles, which Euſebius of Cæſarea obſerves as a ſingular Providence, alledging that the Jews would not have ſuffer'd any Tranſlation after the coming of Chriſt, or at beſt would have impoſed corrupt Tranſlations on the World. But they could ſay nothing againſt this of the Septuagint, as being done by Hebrews choſen by their High Prieſt; ſo that this Verſion has always been highly eſteem'd by the Church, as being cited by Chriſt himſelf, and made uſe of by the Fathers of the ſix firſt Ages againſt the Jews and Gentiles: And many Authors have preferred it to the Hebrew Text. Monſ. Du Pin is of Opinion, that Ariſtæus, the Author of the Hiſtory of the Septuagint, was an Heleniſtical Jew, that he lived after the Time of Ptolomæus Philadelphus, but within the Compaſs of 200 Years; that his Narrative of this Verſion is in a great meaſure a Romance, as appears both by the Stile, Circumſtances and Miſtakes in Chronology: That ſome of the Jews foreſeeing theſe Difficulties, have rejected the Number of 72, and affirmed that this Verſion was the Work of the five Elders, which Du Pin thinks more probable, had it been ſupported by any ſufficient Teſtimony: Some pretend this Verſion was ſo called, becauſe it was approv'd by the Sanhedrim conſiſting of 72 Perſons; but this, as he goes on, is ſpoken without Proof, has no Foundation in Hiſtory, nor is ſupported by the Authority of any of the Ancients. 'Tis much more likely, ſays he, that this Verſion was not called by that Name at firſt, for this Name of the Verſion of the Septuagint is not found in any Author who is not much later than the Time of the ſuppoſed Ariſtæus; it is not found either in the Writings of the Evangeliſts or the Apoſtles, though they make uſe of the Verſion; and it is no where but in Juſtin Martyr, and the Fathers that follow'd him: That the ancient Greek Verſion of the ſacred Books has been ſo call'd, to diſtinguiſh it from other latter Verſions, becauſe Authors were of Opinion, it was made by 72 Interpreters. However, Du Pin believes, the five Books of Moſes, at leaſt, were tranſlated in the Reign of Ptolomæus Philadelphus, and that this Hiſtory of Ariſtæus, how fabulous ſoever in its Circumſtances, has a true Foundation. Du Pin's Compleat Hiſtory of the Canon, and Writers of the Old and New Teſtament, &c. Pezron Antiq. des Temps. Du Pin, Nouvelle Bibli. des Autheurs Eccleſiaſt. P. Sim. The Learned Dr. Stillingfleet mentions the Opinion of ſome, that there was a Tranſlation of the Scriptures into Greek before this, but does not think it probable, neither is he poſitive, whether this Tranſlation was made by Jews ſent on purpoſe from Judea, or others of that Nation reſiding at Alexandria: But he affirms that it was prior to the Caldean Dynaſties of Beroſus, or the Egyptian Dynaſties of Manetho. As to the Time of this Tranſlation, he owns that Tradition varies, but all agree it was about the Time of Ptolomy Philadelphus, but are not certain which Year of his Reign; Scaliger places it in the 33d. but Euſebius and Jerom in the Beginning, which the Doctor thinks moſt probable, and in the Time which Ptolomy Philadelphus reign'd, with his Father Ptolomy Lagi, and ſo the Difference amongſt the Fathers, ſome of whom place it in Ptolomy Lagi's Time, and ſome in the other Ptolomy's, are reconciled, which is confirm'd by the Words of Anatolius in Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccle. Lib. 7. Cap. 26. viz. That Ariſtobulus was one of the Seventy who interpreted the Scripture to Ptolomy Father and Son, and dedicated his Commentaries upon the Law to both. He goes on to prove that Ptolomy Philadelphus having ſeen the Scripture Hiſtory concerning the Creation of the World and Propagation of Man, commanded Manetho, the High Prieſt of Heliopolis, to publiſh the Antiquities which the Egyptian Prieſts did ſo much boaſt of, but had till that Time kept in their Cloiſters to confront with the Scriptures, but it had no Succeſs, for even Heathen Authors themſelves, and particularly Strabo ſays, Geography, Lib. 11. That the Antiquities of the Perſians, Medes and Syrians obtain'd no great Credit in the World, becauſe of the Simplicity and Fabulouſneſs of their Hiſtorians. Origines Sacræ, Lib. 1. Cap. 3.

St. SEPULCRE, an Order of Knights in Paleſtina: The Saracens being Maſters of Jeruſalem, had committed the keeping of the Lord's Sepulchre to the Regular Canons of St. Auſtin; and when the City was afterwards taken by the Chriſtians, Godfrey of Bouillon beſtowed great Gifts upon theſe Canons, and choſe their Church for the Place of his own and Succeſſors Burial. Baldwin, the Brother and Succeſſor of Godfrey, dub'd theſe Keepers of the Holy Sepulchre Knights, ordering them to wear about their Necks a Croſs Potencee, between four Croſlets of the ſame, and conſtituted the Patriarch of Jeruſalem Head of the Order; with Power of making Knights, which were all to live in a Community without poſſeſſing ought in Propriety. But the Saracens afterward having retaken Jeruſalem, theſe Knights retired firſt to Ptolemais, and then to Perouſa in Italy. In 1484 Pope Innocent VIII. united this Order to that of St. John at Jeruſalem, but this Union did not continue long. Alexander VI. transferred the Power of conferring this Order to the See of Rome, and his Succeſſors have imparted the ſame to the Keepers of the Holy Sepulchre, to confer this Order upon the Pilgrims that come to viſit that Holy Land. Le Mire, Favien. Theat. d'Honeur.

SEPULVEDA (Joannes Ægidius de) was born at Corduba in Spain, and was Hiſtoriographer to Charles V. He had a great Conteſt with Bartholomew de las Caſas, the Confeſſor of this Emperor; whereof take this ſhort Account: De las Caſas had often complain'd to the Emperor of the Avarice, Cruelty and Luſt of the Spaniards in the Weſt-Indies, and earneſtly ſolicited him in a Council held at Valladolid, to put a ſtop to that cruel Licentiouſneſs: But there were many Perſons who excuſed their Diſordinateneſs and abominable Cruelty, becauſe it was profitable to them: And this Sepulveda undertook to defend their Cauſe, and writ a Book on that Subject, which he would have printed, but that De la Caſas and the Biſhop of Segovia oppoſed it. At laſt it was reſolved to have this Point examined by Divines, which was done in 1547, when the Divines of Alcala, Hennares and Salamanca gave their Judgment, that it was the Intereſt of the Church to ſuppreſs Sepulveda's Book, as being full of corrupt and wicked Doctrine. Whereupon Sepulveda ſent his Book to Rome to be printed, notwithſtanding that the Emperor had again forbid the Publication of it in any of his Dominions, and given Order to ſuppreſs all the Copies of it. Three Years after there was at Sepulveda's Requeſt, a publick Diſpute held between him and De la Caſas, and the Biſhop of Segovia, but the Emperor being ingag'd in many Wars and much Buſineſs, did not decide the Caſe. He died in 1572, being 81 Years of Age. He writ the Hiſtory of Charles V. and a Latin Paraphraſe upon the Ethicks of Ariſtotle, which were never publiſhed. *Thuan. Hiſtor. SERAIO, Lat. Seraium, a great and ſtrong City of Boſnia, the Capital of the Kingdom, not far from the Borders of Servia, thirty Miles South of the River Save, and ninety South-Weſt of Belgrade. It was anciently called Biſtus Nova.

SERAM, a River of Valromey, one of the three Parts of Bugey, which under the Bridge de Say, from a terrible Precipice, caſts it ſelf into the Serverine, and from thence runs into the Rhoſne near to Rochefort; it abounds with excellent Trouts and Pikes.

SERAPIES, Houſhold Gods of the ancient Egyptians. They placed ſome of theſe Idols in their famous Pyramids, their Office being, according to them, to preſerve the Corps depoſited there, and tranſport the Souls to Heaven: Their Images were ingraven from top to bottom with Hieroglyphicks, which the Egyptians accounted Sacred. Daper. Deſcript. of Africa.

SERAPHINS, Angels of the firſt Order of the firſt Hierarchy, the Word in the Hebrew ſignifies Burning or Flaming, to ſhew the Zeal of theſe bleſſed Spirits. Alſo an Order of Knights in Sweden. See Cherubim.

SERAPION, Biſhop of Antioch, and Succeſſor of Maximinus, towards the end of the ſecond Century. Euſebius commends him for an excellent Writer. He died in 213, according to the Account of Baronius, and Aſclepiades ſucceeded him. He writ againſt a Book which in his Time went under the Name of St. Peter, refuting the dangerous Errors contained in it. Euſeb. in Chron. & Lib. 6. Hiſt Eccleſ.

SERAPION, Biſhop of Heraclea, he was Deacon to St. Chryſoſtom in the Church of Conſtantinople, under the Empire of Honorius and Arcadius. He accidentally ſet all the Clergy againſt Chryſoſtom, who was reſolved to reform the Diſcipline of the Church, having told him in their Preſence, that he would never be able to bring about the Reformation he intended, if he did not chaſtiſe them all alike: For which Cauſe many of the Clergy endeavoured to provoke the People againſt Chryſoſtom and Serapion, but this holy Prelate rid his Church of theſe Libertines, and ordained Serapion Biſhop of Heraclea in Thrace. Euſeb. de Hiſt. Eccleſ.

SERAPION, Biſhop of Thmuis in Egypt, lived in the IV Century: He was an intimate Friend of St. Anthony, and had been his Maſter in the Solitary Life. Some take him to be the ſame whom Rufinus mentions, who was the Superior of many Monaſteries, and had under his Conduct about 10000 Hermites. St. Athanaſius judging he might be ſerviceable to to the Church, called him out of his Solitude, and ordained him Biſhop. He eſteem'd ſo highly of his Judgment, that he ſubmitted all his Works to his Cenſure, and engaged him to take a Journey in his Behalf to the Emperor Conſtans, to endeavour to appeaſe his Anger, as not daring to go himſelf, for fear of falling into the Snares the Arians had laid for him. Serapion performed his Deſire, but was perſecuted and baniſhed for maintaining the Conſubſtantiality of the Son of God. He was called Scholaſticus by reaſon of his great Wit and Learning: He flouriſhed in 340. St. Jerom. de Script. Eccleſ. Cap. 99. & Epiſt. 84. *Rufin. in vit. Pp Trithem. & Bellarm. de Script. SERAPION, ſurnamed Sindonites, becauſe he profeſſed ſuch ſtrict Poverty, that he would poſſeſs nothing of his own but a Shirt or Frock of Linnen to cover his Nakedneſs. He was an Egyptian, and neither confin'd himſelf to a Cloyſter or Hermitage, but travelled up and down from one Country to another. Having on a time met with a Widow reduced to extream Poverty, for to relieve her, he ſold himſelf to ſome Comedians, and gave her the Price of the Bargain. But this was not all, the Fruit of his exemplary and aſtoniſhing Charity, for the Comedians, overcome by this convincing Act, embraced the Faith of Chriſt, were baptized and quitted their Profeſſion. He alſo ſold himſelf to a Manichæan, whom by this means he recalled from his Hereſie. After many Journies he returned to the Deſart, where he died at the Age of ſixty, about the Beginning of the V Century. Boland Pallad. Lauſ.

SERAPION, a celebrated Abbot who had 10000 Monks under his Conduct, and liv'd in a very exemplary manner under the Empire of Valentinian and Valence. He dwelt in Egypt near the Town Arſinoe, now called Suez or Arizut, bordering upon the Red-Sea: Theſe Monks lived upon their Labour, and in Harveſt time they uſed to reap and mow, and gain'd by their Wages a ſufficient Proviſion for themſelves, with an Overplus for Charity. Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccleſ.

SERAPIS, the Name of an Idol worſhipped by the Egyptians. The Romans had forbid the Ceremonies of Serapis as filthy and abominable, to be celebrated in their City. The Image of Serapis, whereof the Emperor Adrian, and Julian after him, deſired to have a Copy, was made up of ſeveral ſorts of Metals, precious Stones and Wood. The Temple and Statue of this Serapis were demoliſhed at Alexandria under the Reign of Theodoſius the Great, in 389, after an Uproar cauſed by the Heathens there, who were enrag'd becauſe Theophilus of Alexandria having beg'd an old Temple of the Emperor, they found under it Subterranean Caves, which diſcover'd the abominable Myſteries of their Religion. The Word ſeems to be derived from the Hebrew Words Sar abir, which ſignifies a Valiant Prince; or as others from Sar Apis Prince or Lord Apis. Some will have it to ſignifie Saviour of the People, and ſay, that by Serapis is intended Joſeph, who by his Foreſight and Wiſdom ſaved Egypt during ſeven Years Famine. See Spencer de Leg. Ritual Hebr. Lib. 3. Diſ. 5. Cap. 3. Voſſ de Theol. Genſ. Lib. 1. Cap. 91.

SERARIUS (Nicolaus) a Jeſuit of Lorrain. He was well ſkilled in Hebrew and Latin, and Rabinical Learning. A Proof of his Judgment and Ability may be taken from his Prefatory Diſcourſe to his Commentaries upon a conſiderable Part of the Old Teſtament. His Book of the three Jewiſh Sects, viz. The Pariſees, Sadducees and Eſſenians is much commended; Scaliger who wrote againſt him, yet affords him the Title of Jeſuita Doctiſſimus, a moſt Learned Jeſuit. R. Simon.

SERASKIER, in the Turkiſh Language ſignifies the General of an Army, for Ker or Kier ſignifies with them a Chief or Commander; thus Cadilesker imports the Chief of the Cadis. 'Beſpier ſaith, that Ser in the Perſian Tongue imports a Captain or Commander, and Asker in Arabick is to ſay an Army, of which the Word Seraskier is compoſed. It ſeems formerly to have been the Title of the General of an Army, whereas now it is given to much inferior Commanders; as we have ſeen of late that the Seraskier of Morea had not above 4000 Men under his Command. Hiſtory of the Troubles of Hungary. Beſpier Notes upon Ricaut.

SERBELLON (Gabriel) eldeſt Son of John Peter, a Milaneſe of an ancient Family, was a Military Man of great Reputation in the XVI Century: He was Knight of Maltha and Grand-Prior of Hungary: He gave conſiderable Proof of his Bravery in defending Gran againſt the Turks, and ſignaliz'd himſelf at a Paſs of the Elbe, where Charles V. got a great Victory over the Duke of Saxony in the Year 1547. He was Lieutenant General of the Emperor's Army, which Command he likewiſe enjoy'd in that of the Marqueſs of Marignan his Couſin at the Seige of Siena, which Place ſurrendred to him. He likewiſe conquered the Marquiſate of Saluzzes in Piedmont for the Emperor Charles V. After the taking of Siena, he made himſelf Maſter of ſeveral other Places in Tuſcany, which refuſed to ſubmit to the Houſe of Medecis, and being declared General of the Church Forces both by Sea and Land under Pope Pius IV. he recover'd Aſcholi, and built a great many Forts in the Eccleſiaſtical State, fortified the Caſtle of St. Angelo, rebuilt Civita Vecchia, and work'd upon ſeveral things of this nature, being a conſiderable Ingeneer, upon which Account he was ſent for by the King of Spain, and going occaſionally into the Iſle of Maltha, he drew the Plan and laid the Foundation of the new Town: He likewiſe did great Service againſt the Turks at Tunis, built the Cittadel of Namur in 1578; and had a conſiderable Share in the taking of Maſtreickt: He died ſoon after in 1580. Bayle Diction. Hiſt.

SERDAR, a Name which the Turks and Perſians gave to the General of an Army, whom they alſo call Ser-asker. Beſpier ſup.

SERENA, the firſt Town in the Chili, ſeated upon the Shoars of the South-Sea, thirty Degrees from the Line. It was built by Valdiva the Conqueror of this Country in the Year 1544, in the Valley of Coquimbo, by which Name it is ſometimes called. It lies from St. Jago ſixty Leagues to the North, and has a large and convenient Haven two Leagues from it to the Weſt. The Fields belonging to it are watered by a ſmall River, which makes them exceeding fruitful, though it ſeldom rains above three or four times in a Year; ſeven Leagues Weſt it has Mines of Gold, and a Mine of excellent Braſs nearer. Sir Francis Drake entered this Port when he went round the World (but he calls it Coquimbo) when 300 Horſe and 200 Foot from the Town forced his Men to Sea again. The Native Indians are almoſt all deſtroy'd by the Cruelty of the Spaniards, Laet. Pag. 485, 86. Lib. 29, 30. Pag. 496. This is the beſt Port in Chili, both on the account of the Capacity, and the Security of it, being defended from all the Violences of the Ocean and Winds.

SERENA, Wife of the Emperor Diocleſian, and a Chriſtian. The ancient Church-Writers ſpeak highly in Praiſe of her Piety, but profane Authors make no mention of her. Alſo another of that Name, who was Daughter to the Brother of Theodoſius the Great, and the Wife of Stilicon, who was afterwards ſtrangled with her Husband, being accuſed of being engaged in his Deſigns againſt the Emperor Honorius. See Stilicon.

SERENUS, Biſhop of Marſeilles about the Year 590, who cauſed the Images that were in the Churches of his Dioceſs to be taken down, to prevent ſome new Chriſtians converted from Idolary, from worſhipping them as Idols. Upon this Subject Gregory the Great wrote a Letter to him, commending his Zeal againſt Idolatry on one ſide, and blaming the Exceſs of his Scrupuloſity on the other: He told him, the true Medium had been neither to worſhip Images nor to break them; the ſtanding of them in Churches being uſeful to imprint the Hiſtory of Religion in the Minds of the Laity, eſpecially thoſe who could not read. St. Gregor. Lib. 7. Epiſt. 111. Maimb. Hiſt. Icon.

SERENUS SAMMONICUS, a Phyſician who lived in the Time of the Emperor Severus and Caracalla his Son, he writ ſeveral Pieces of Hiſtory and of Natural Things, of which we have no more at preſent but a Poem of the Art of Healing and Remedies. He gathered a Library of threeſcore and two two thouſand Volumes. Caracalla put him to Death at a Feaſt. He left a Son called Q. Serenus Sammonicus, who was the Inheritor of his Library, whom ſome Authors have confounded with his Father. He was Preceptor to the Emperor Gordianus, to whom he left his Books, and was well eſteem'd by the Learned Men of his Time. *Spartian in Get. & Caracal. Jul. Capitol. in Gord. SERES, the Inhabitants of a large Country in Aſia, between Mount Imaus and China; ſome comprize it within the Bounds of the ancient Scythia, others diſtinguiſh it therefrom. Its chief Cities of old were Iſſedon, Serica, Aſmira, Damna, Ottorecora, Piada and Thagura. This Country is now contain'd in the farther and eaſtern part of the Great Tartary, where are the Kingdoms of Tangut and Niuche, which is alſo called Tenduc and Charchir. Some alſo joyn Cathay to this Country, and take Iſſedon Serica to be the Modern Suchur, and Thagura to be Campion or Tangut. Theſe People are famous for their Manufactures of Silk. Strab. Lib. 15. Cluver. Lib. 5. Introd. Geogr. Sanſon Geogr.

SERFINO, or Serphino (in Latin Seriphus) an Iſle of the Archipelago towards the Coaſt of Europe, full of Rocks, and about thirty Miles in compaſs, between the Iſles of Thermia or Fermenia and Siſano. The Poets tell us, that Perſeus was educated here, and that having on a time ſhewed the frightful Head of Meduſa to the Inhabitants, he changed them into Stones. They report alſo that Frogs do not croak in this Iſland, whence came the Proverb of Rana Seriphia, to denote a Man that cannot expreſs himſelf. Formerly Criminals were baniſhed to this Place. Plin. Lib. 8. Cap. 58. Juven. Sat. 10.

SERGIUS I. of that Name Pope of Rome, originally of Antioch in Syria, and born at Palermo in Sicily, was the Succeſſor of Conon; after whoſe Death Theodorus, Arch-Prieſt, and Paſchal, Arch-Deacon, ſharing alike the Votes of the People, were the Occaſion of a Schiſm, which did not laſt long, becauſe the Clergy and People, to prevent Tumults, made choice of Sergius in December 26, 687, He died December 9, 701. having kept the Chair thirteen Years, eight Months and fourteen Days. We have an Epiſtle of his Writ to Ceolfridus, an Engliſh Abbot, and ſome Decrees. His Epitaph mentions his being chaſed from Rome by one John, whom ſome will have to be an Uſurper of the Chair, but others John the Exarch of Ravenna, who was commanded by the Emperor Juſtinian the Young, to invade the Pope, becauſe he condemned the Canons of the Greek Council made in the Synodus Quini-Sexta or Council in Trullo about Prieſts Marriage, &c. He is ſaid to have ordered the Singing of Agnus Dei at Maſs, to have put an end to the Schiſm of Aquilea, ſent for Venerable Bede to Rome, and to have been acquitted from an Accuſation of Debauchery, if you will believe the Authors, by a Child of nine Days old.

*It is noted of this Sergius, that he receiv'd Lewis, Son to the Emperor Lotharius, at Rome in a very haughty manner, and with bluſtering Words, becauſe he was ſent by his Father to forbid the Romans to ordain the Pope elect till ſuch time as he had the Emperor's Approbation. The Pope anointed him however King of Italy, and was forced to cajole and give him good Words to prevent Blows. Spanheim. Epit. Hiſt. Eccleſ. Cave. Hiſt. Liter. Platina ſays, that being aſhamed of his Name Borco di Porco, i. e. Swines-Snout, he changed it into that of Sergius, whence came the Cuſtom of the Popes changing their Names after. But Moreri ſays, it was Sergus IV. Anaſtaſ. in vit. Pontif. Baron. in Annal. Ciaconius in Serg. Coccius, Poſſevin.

SERGIUS II. a Roman, the Succeſſor of Gregory IV. was choſen the tenth of Febr. 844. Being loth to be called by his own Name Peter, for the Reſpect he bore to St. Peter, he changed his Name to Sergius. He died the twelfth of April, 847, having been Pope three Years, two Months and two Days.

SERGIUS III. a Roman, who diſhonour'd his Character by his Vices and Ambition. When he was but Deacon of the Church of Rome he endeavour'd to raiſe himſelf by Force into the Papal Chair, having procured a very ſtrong Faction; but the Clergy notwithſtanding made choice of Formoſus in 890 or 891. Sergius having afterwards got over Adelbert, Marqueſs of Toſcana, his Kinſman to his Party, he drove away Pope Chriſtopher, and thruſt himſelf into his Place in 906. Stephen VI. had cauſed the dead Body of Formoſus to be taken up out of his Grave, and to be ſhamefully abuſed; which Action of his was condemned in a Coucil held at Rome in 901, under John IX. Stephen's Succeſſor: But Sergius highly commended the Action, and abrogating all the Acts of Formoſus, endeavoured wholly to obliterate his Memory. He was of a very ſcandalous Life, and lived in Uncleanneſs with a Woman of Quality called Marozia, by whom he had a Son, who was afterwards called Pope John XI. He died in 910. Sigebert in Chron. Baron. in Annal. Ciacon. Onuphrius. * Platina ſays, that it was Sergius who cauſed Pope Formoſus's Corps to be taken up out of his Grave, beheaded, and thrown into the Tiber; and that ſome Fiſhermen finding it, brought and interred it in St. Peter's Church, and that during the Funeral Rites all the Images bowed in Veneration of his Body; but though a Roman Catholick, yet he queſtions this Miracle, and argues rationally, that Sergius would never have ſuffered him to be re-interred, who hated him ſo much, that he would ſuffer no Clergy-man who had been ordain'd by Formoſus to officiate till re-ordained: The Cauſe he gives of this Hatred was, that Formoſus hindred Sergius from being made Pope before, and that he was alſo incenſed againſt him by Lotharius, the French King, becauſe Formoſus had contributed to the Tranſlation of the Empire from the French to the Lombards. And here it is that Platina complains of the Degeneracy of the Popes, and that they ſought the Papacy with Ambition and Bribery; and when obtain'd, ſlighted the Worſhip of God and purſued their Animoſities, like the fierceſt of Tyrants. He adds, that a little before Sergius's Death ſeveral fiery Apparitions and blazing Stars, with unuſual Motions, were ſeen in the Heavens. His Son by Marozia his Concubine ſucceeded him under the Name of John XI.

SERGIUS IV. whoſe Name, before he changed it, was Pierre Bucca-Porci, or Swines-Snout, Biſhop of Alba; he was choſen after John XIX. the 21ſt of Aug. 1009, and continued in the Chair till the 13th of May, 1012. Baron. in Annal. Poſſevin. in App. Sacr. Coccius in Theſ. Cath.

SERGIUS, the firſt of that Name, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, was a Syrian by Nation, and had given ſuch Proofs of his Modeſty and Piety, that he was raiſed to that See after Thomas in 608. He ſo well diſguiſed ſome of his Heretical Opinions, that they were not diſcovered till about 629, at which Time he declared himſelf Ringleader of the Monothelites, and perſuaded the Emperor Heraclius to declare by Edict that there was but one Will and Operation in Jeſus Chriſt; and ſome after Sergius called a Synod at Conſtantinople of the Biſhops of his Party, who approved the ſaid Edict, and cauſed it to be affixed to the Doors of the Great Church; by which means this Error was ſpread in ſeveral Dioceſes. Sophronius wrote againſt this Error to Sergius, who being concern'd at the Oppoſition, acquainted Honorius with it, but with ſo much Art, and Submiſſion, and pretended Orthodoxy, that the Pope, either believing him real, or being willing to put an end to that Controverſie, return'd him a very favourable Anſwer: This Advantage made the Heretical Prelate grow bolder and more violent, and all the reſt of the Monothelites gave out, that now they had the Pope's Authority to countenance their Doctrine. Sergius died in 639, and his Memory was condemned in ſeveral Synods, and in the fourth General Council held in 681. This Prelate is different from Sergius the Monk, and an Armenian by Nation, who lived at the ſame time; who being got out of his Monaſtery to engage himſelf in the Errors of the Arians and Neſtorians, travelled into Arabia, where he became acquainted with Mahomet, who made uſe of his Skill in compoſing of the Alcoran. There was alſo at the ſame time a third Sergius, Biſhop of Joppa, who invaded the See of the Church of Jeruſalem in 636, after the Death of St. Sophronius. Baron. A. C. 636. Johannes Damaſ. Nicephor. Lib. 18.

SERGIUS II. Patriarch of Conſtantinople, the Succeſſor of Siſinnius in 998. He was of Photius the Patriarch's Family, had a mighty Reſpect for his Name, and was a great Enemy to the Church of Rome. We have an Epiſtle of his againſt the Weſtern Chriſtians. Having gain'd a great Number of Biſhops to his Party, he called a Synod at Conſtantinople, accuſed the Church of Rome of all thoſe things wherewith Photius reproached it, renewed the Schiſm openly, and ſtruck the Pope's Name out of his Dypticks, i. e. the Books in which the Names of thoſe were inſerted that they pray'd for at ſolemn Worſhip. He govern'd twenty Years. Cardinal Baronius and Sponde are miſtaken in placing John betwixt him and Siſinnius the Patriarch. He died in 1019. Curopalates. Maimbourg Hiſt. du Schiſme des Grecs, SERINI (Nicholas Count of) died in his valiant Defence of the Cittadel of Ziget, a City of the Lower-Hungary, beſieged by the Army of Solyman, Emperor of the Turks, which was taken the very ſame Day, being the ſeventh of September, 1566. He was 49 Years of Age.

SERINI (Peter Count of) Viceroy of Croatia for the Emperor, was one of the principal Heads of the Hungarian Rebellion in 1665. The Hungarians complain'd that the Emperor had violated their Privileges, and ruined their Country by the numerous Garriſons of German Soldiers he kept there. Count Serini, whom the Emperor had ordered to take care to fortifie the Frontier Places, was ſo far from executing the Emperor's Orders, that he endeavoured to thwart and oppoſe them. He raiſed ſome Forces in 1666, together with Nadaſti, Peſident of the ſovereign Council of Hungary, under Pretence of oppoſing the Turks, who deſign'd to ſeize a Paſs to enter Dalmatia; by which Artifice they covered the Deſign they had of ſurpriſing the Emperor's Perſon in his Journey to Surmena, whither he was to go to meet the Empreſs his Wife in her Way from Spain. To this purpoſe they had poſted 500 well-armed Men about Puttendorf, a Place belonging to Count Nadaſti, the Commander of which Troops had promiſed to ſtab the Emperor as he ſhould paſs by on Horſe-back, accompanied only with Prince Lobkowitz and twelve Gentlemen that Way, where this Officer was to lie in Ambuſcade; but the Conſpirators it ſeems were not diligent enough, for the Emperor got to the Empreſs before ever they came to the Rendezvouz. In 1668 Count Serini had another Occaſion of Diſcontent offer'd him, becauſe the Emperor had denied him the Government of Carelſtat, which would have made him Maſter of all Croatia. Being highly incenſed at this Refuſal, he formed a Deſign of betraying his Sovereign, and to engage the Kingdom of Hungary in a Revolt. He drew into this dangerous Enterprize his Brother in-law Count Frangipani, his Son-in-law Prince Ragotzki, and Count Nadaſti, and in 1669 engaged Count Tattemback in the ſaid Conſpiracy, who repreſented many Difficulties they were like to meet with in that Deſign; whereupon Serini thought fit to procure the Turks Aſſiſtance, and that to treat with them about it without Suſpicion, they ſhould make uſe of ſome Tranſilvanians, who being under the Grand Signior's Protection, might ſend their Deputies to the Port without giving any Jealouſie to the Emperor.

In the mean time, the Heads of this League, willing to give Intimation to the whole Kingdom of the Union they were entred in, cauſed a Standard to be made, wherein was repreſented an Arm holding two bloody Cimeters with a Creſcent over them, intimating thereby, that they intended to maintain their League under the Turkiſh Protection. Their Propoſitions having been examined by the Miniſters of the Port, the Grand Signior declared that he would lend them no Aſſiſtance till they ſhould deliver up to him ſome ſtrong Places of the Kingdom for the Safety of his Troops. Whereupon Count Serini and the other Heads reſolved to attack ſome ſtrong Places belonging to the Emperor, and to put them into the Turks Hands. In the mean time, the Treaſon was diſcovered to the Emperor, though by what means is not certain; wherefore in 1670 the Emperor ſent Major General Spankau with 6000 Men and ſeveral Pieces of Cannon to oppoſe Serini's Deſigns; who finding himſelf in no Condition to make any Reſiſtance, reſolv'd to implore his Pardon, and ſent his Son to the Court for a Pledge of his Loyalty. However, Spankau laid Seige to Sacketorn, where Serini and Frangipani his Brother-in-law were, and attack'd it ſo briſkly, that they were forced to quit the Town; and the Imperialiſts being entred, ſeized the Counteſs of Serini, and all the Effects of both the Counts, who by a Poſtern had made their Eſcape with thirty Troopers only, and retired to the Caſtle of Count Keri, whom they took to be their Friend; but contrary to their Expectations, he ſent them under a Guard to Vienna, where they were ſeparately committed to Priſon. Here Frangipani, in hopes to get his Brother-in-law's Places, laid open the Guilt, not conſidering that he was involved in the ſame Crime; and Prince Ragotzki, his Son-in-law, ſent to the Emperor all the Letters Serini had writ to him. Before this they had intercepted a Letter of Count Serini to Frangipani; and Capt. Tcholnitz, who was privy to the Conſpiracy, changing his Mind, deliver'd the Letter Frangipani had ſent him, to the Emperor. Upon the Impriſonment of the two Counts, they ſeiz'd Negiferentz, who was the Secretary of the League, and kept all the Writings relating to the Conſpiracy, and the Treaties made with neighbouring Princes. They found in his Chamber five Boxes full of Letters and other Writings, which were ſent to Vienna, and amongſt the reſt the Letters of Count Serini and Frangipani. After the Diſcovery of theſe Writings Count Nadaſti was ſeiz'd at Vienna, and Serini and Frangipani were ſent to Neuſtat into ſeveral Priſons, and Commiſſaries named to draw an Indictment againſt them. The Judges appointed to ſit upon them were all Perſons of the higheſt Quality, and that had the chiefeſt Places in the Imperial Court; and by them in 1671 the Counts Serini, Frangipani and Nadaſti were condemn'd to have their Right-Hands cut off, and afterwards beheaded, and their Eſtates confiſcated, and their Families degraded from being noble. The Heads of Serini's Indictment were, That he had kept Correſpondence with the Enemies of the State; That he had perſuaded the Hungarians to take up Arms againſt their Sovereign; That he and Frangipani had deſign'd to make themſelves Maſters of the Kingdom of Hungary; and, That he had ſent to Conſtantinople for a Supply of Money and Men. Accordingly on the thirtieth of April, 1671, the Execution was publickly performed at Neuſtat upon Count Serini and Frangipani, the Emperor having remitted that part of the Sentence by which their Right-Hands were to be cut off. Serini died with great Reſolution, and their Bodies were interr'd in the Church-yard of the Cathedral with great Ceremony by the Clergy, who deſired the People to pray for their Souls. Serini's Son was condemned to quit for ever the Name and Arms of his Family, and was afterwards called Gade. Hiſt. of the Troubles of Hungary.

SERIPANDO (Jerom) a Cardinal eminent for his Learning in the XVI Century: He was born in Apulia, and became a Monk of the Order of St. Auguſtine; his Merit acquir'd him a Cardinal's Cap, and Pius IV. ſent him Legate to the Council of Trent, where he died in 1563. He wrote Commentaries upon St. Paul's Epiſtles, three Books concerning Juſtification, &c. Victorel. ad Civcon. Spond. in Annal. Father Paul's Hiſt. Council of Trent.

SERONGE, a great City in the Empire of the Mogul in the Eaſt-Indies, 100 Leagues from Brampore towards Agra. The greateſt part of the Inhabitants are Banian Merchants and Handycrafts Men; and there are ſome Brick and Stone Houſes in it, and a vaſt Trade for painted Callicoes, which are generally worn in the Mogul's Court. The Country about is very fruitful in Corn and Rice, and a lovely Campagne. Tavern. Pag. 2. Pag. 33.

SERRANA, an Iſland of the North-Sea in America, between Jamaica and the Coaſt of Nicarague, which took its Name from one Serrano, who ſailed with the Spaniſh Fleet from Spain in the Time of Charles V. and was ſhipwrack'd upon the Rocks of this Iſland, but having gain'd the Shore by ſwimming, he found there neither Herbs, Trees nor Water, and ran over all the Iſland, which is about two Leagues compaſs, without finding any thing to ſatisfie his Hunger or quench his Thirſt. But at laſt being preſt with Hunger, he caught ſome Crabs on the Shore, which were his Food for ſome Days; and then ſeeing great Tortoiſes, which at times came out of the Sea to the Shore, he made a ſhift to kill ſome of them. Having lived three Years in this manner on Crabs and Tortoiſes, and drank nothing but Water that came down from the Clouds, which he gathered in Tortoiſe-ſhells, he diſcovered another Man coming towards him, that had alſo ſaved himſelf from Shipwrack: This Companion was ſome Comfort to him, and they lived four Years together, at the End of which, a Veſſel paſſing near that Iſland, carried them to Spain. The laſt of theſe died in his Way thither; but Serrano was brought to Germany, and preſented to Charles V. as a kind of Prodigy, for all his Body was over-grown with Hair like a Bear, and his Beard came below his Waſte. The Emperor beſtowed upon him 4800 Ducats, to be paid him at Peru; but he died on his Way to Panama, as he was going to receive them. Hiſt. des Incas du Perou.

SERRES, or Seres, a City of Macedonia, dignified with an Archbiſhop's See, is very conſiderable, and well inhabited. It is built on a Hill 34 Miles South-Eaſt of Amphipolis, 60 North-Eaſt of Theſſalonica, and 30 North-Weſt from Conteſſe.

SERRES (John de) Author of The Inventory of the Hiſtory of France, who wrote that Work ſuccinctly enough with regard to the two firſt Lines of the French Kings. In the third Race he is more large, and from Lewis XI. his ſtile is too diffuſive, too figurative and full of inſignificant Reflections, the whole of his Hiſtory reaching only to Charles VII. incluſively. Dupleix has made an Inventory of the Miſtakes and Miſrepreſentations of the Inventory of John de Serres. Monliard, a Proteſtant Miniſter, has continued this Hiſtory from Lewis XI. to Henry IV.

SERRONI (Hyacinthus) the firſt Archbiſhop of Alby, was born at Rome, 30 Aug. 1617. The King of France made him Biſhop of Orange in 1646, and Superintendant of the Sea Affairs, and afterwards ſent him into Catalonia, as Intendant of his Army there. He was preſent at the Conference of St. Jean de Luz, to adjuſt the Limits between France and Spain, which Affair he manag'd to the King of France his Satisfaction: Not long after he was nominated to the Biſhoprick of Mende; and laſtly, was made firſt Archbiſhop of Alby in 1676. He died at Paris the ſeventh of Jan. 1686, being ſeventy Years of Age. The Harangues which he made at ſeveral Aſſemblies of the Clergy and of the Eſtates of Languedock were very much eſteem'd. Memoirs du Temps.

SERTORIUS, a Roman Captain, Native of Nurſia in the Country of the Sabins. He was one that took part with Marius and Cinna, and with them took Rome in 667; but upon Sylla's Return from the War againſt Mithridates, and entring the City, he made his Eſcape into Spain, where by his Valour he ſoon got a great Reputation: For, beſides his great Skill in Warlike Affairs, he was very chaſte and temperate, and accounted very religious; for he had always a Hind with him in his Expeditions, which he pretended to be Diana, that adviſed him in all his Undertakings. Being choſen Commander by the Luſitanians, with a ſmall Number of Men he took divers Cities, and at ſeveral Times defeated four Generals ſent againſt him from Rome; for he beat Cotta in a Sea-Fight, killed Phidias, who was Prætor of Spain, with 2000 Romans, routed Domitius the Proconſul, and laſt of all fought Trajan, ſent by Metellus, and deſtroyed him with his whole Army. But in the End, after that he had ſeveral times valiantly reſiſted Pompey, he was treacherouſly murdered at Supper by Perpenna, one of his own Party at Hueſca in Arragon. *Vellei. Paterc. SERVAN, or Schirwan, Servatia, Atropatia. A Province in the North-Weſt of the Kingdom of Perſia, towards the Borders of Georgia and the Turkiſh Empire. It is a Part of the ancient Media lying along the Caſpian Sea, and one of the moſt fruitful and populous Provinces under the Perſian Kings. It hath ſuffered much of late by the wars with the Turks. The chief Cities are Tauris, Bachu, Servan, Ardebil and Schamachie.

SERVANTS at ARMS. The Name of thoſe of the third Rank in the Order of Malta: They wear Swords, but are not noble by four Deſcents, as the Knights are; for though they be Gentlemen they cannot be admitted as Knights, except they can make Proof of their Nobility up to their Great Grand-Father incluſively both by Father and Mother ſide, and above 100 Years. Thoſe of the firſt Rank are called Knights, the ſecond Chaplains or Prieſts, and the third Servants at Arms.

St. SERVASIUS, the tenth Biſhop of Tongres, a City in the Biſhoprick of Leige: He was a Friend of St. Athanaſius, and one of thoſe that aſſiſted at the Council of Sardis againſt the Arians in 347, and at that of Cologne in 349, where Euphrates, Biſhop of that City, was condemned. He oppoſed the Arians alſo at Rimini in 359. He was deputed with St. Maximinus, Biſhop of Treves, to the Emperor Conſtantius, who favoured the Arians, to deſire him to reſtore the Peace of the Church. He had a Foreſight of the barbarous Nations invading of the Gauls, and thereupon retired to Maeſtricht, where his Succeſſors continued until St. Hubert, who tranſlated the Epiſcopal See to Leige about 713. He died in 403, in a very old Age. Socrat. Sozom.

SERVETUS (Michael) a Spaniard, that wrote ſeveral Books againſt the Myſtery of the Holy Trinity; but moſt of thoſe Books, as Grotius has obſerved in his Votum pro pace Eccleſiaſtica, were burnt not only at Geneva, but in other places, by Calvin's means, which has made them extremely ſcarce to come by. In 1531 he printed his Book in Latin, with this Title, De Trinitatis Erroribus Libri ſeptem; and to the ſame Volume were added theſe other Treatiſes, Dialogorum de Trinitate Libri 2, de Juſtitia Regni Chriſti Capitula quatuor. In the Advertiſement to the Reader prefixed to his Dialogues, he retracts what he had writ in his ſeven Books of the Trinity in theſe Words, Quæ nuper contra receptam de Trinitate Sententiam, ſeptem libris ſcripſi, omnia nunc, candide Lector, retracto: Not that he had changed his Opinion, for he aſſerts it in his Dialogues, but becauſe they were ill writ, and full of Barbariſms. Whereas Lubieniski, a Poliſh Knight, who hath writ the Hiſtory of the Anti-Trinitarians, aſſerts Servetus to have been a very learned Man, and of great Knowledge in the Scripture; M. Simon on the other ſide maintains, that he had much ado to expreſs himſelf in Latin, and that his Hebrew and Greek Quotations are ſo few and inconſiderable, that his Skill in thoſe Languages cannot be concluded from thence. His other Book, intituled, De Juſtitia Regni Chriſti ad Juſtitiam Legis collata, contains four Chapters, the firſt of Juſtification, the ſecond of the Kingdom of Chriſt, the third a Comparing of the Law with the Goſpel, and the fourth of Charity. He was burnt at Geneva for an Heretick the 27th of Octob. 1553, at Calvin's Inſtance, who juſtified the Proceedings againſt him in a Book publiſhed by him at that Time, to ſhew that Princes and Magiſtrates might lawfully inflict Capital Puniſhments upon Hereticks. Though his Book be very ſcarce, yet his Opinion may eaſily be learned by conſulting the Theological Treatiſes of Calvin, printed at Geneva 1597, where may be ſeen the whole Proceedings at his Tryal, and the Anſwers he made in Juſtification of his Doctrine, with Calvin's Refutation of them. Some part of his Works have been tranſlated into Dutch. M. Simon*'s Anſwer to ſome* Holland Divines, printed at Rotterdam 1686.

SERVIA, a Province of the Turkiſh Empire, which by the Romans was called Mœſia Superior, and then eſteemed a part of Thrace. It is of great Extent, being bounded on the the Weſt by Croatia, or rather by Boſnia and Dalmatia, and in part by Sclavonia, on the North by the Danube, which parts it from Upper Hungary and Moldavia, on the Eaſt by Bulgaria, and on the South by Macedonia, Albania and Dalmatia. Its chief Places are Belgrade, Priſren, Noribazar, Procupy, Samander and Scopia. In the Year 1350 Ubſan or Duſan reigned, and was the firſt King of Servia, and called himſelf alſo Emperor of Greece. He conquered Bulgaria, Boſnia, and all other Nations of the Slavia in thoſe Parts; but this Family ended in Stephen in the Year 1371. They firſt ſubmitted to Amurath I. after the taking of Niſſa, but being provoked by his Cruelty, revolted in 1376, aud joyned with the Deſpote of Boſnia. In 1388 Lazarus, Deſpote of Servia, fought Amurath I. in the Plains of Caſſovia, in which Battle fell 50000 Men, and Amurath was ſlain after the Fight, as he was viewing the Field by a wounded Servian, who roſe from the dead Bodies and ſtab'd him, to revenge the Death of Lazarus his Maſter, who was ſlain here too. In 1420 Amurath, Sultan of the Turks, made an Invaſion on George, Deſpote of Servia, called the Raſcian, took Nevomento, Scopia and Sinderovia, with two of the Deſpote's Sons, put out their Eyes, and married their Siſter for her great Beauty. In 1427 they were reduced by the ſame Prince. In 1454 they were again reduced. The Chriſtian Religion was firſt ſettled here by Cyril and Methodius in 860, at which Time they had the Bible in the Sclavonian Tongue. The Country is very fruitful and rich, having ſeveral Mines of Gold and Silver.

SERVIEN (Abel) Marqueſs of Sable, Miniſter of State and Superintendent of the Finances of France, was the Son of Anthony Servien, a Judge in the Parliament of Dauphiné. He was firſt made Attorney General in that Parliament, afterwards Counſellor, and then Secretary of State. He was ſent Ambaſſador Extraordinary with the Marſhal de Thoiras, to negotiate a Peace in Italy, the Valtoline, and the Country of the Griſons. He had ſo good Succeſs in this Employment, that the King ſent him to treat a Peace between His Majeſty and the Duke of Savoy, which was executed by the Treaty of Queraſque in 1631. Returning to Court, where he continued till 1636, he found that Richelieu bore him no good Will, which made him reſign his Places to the King, who to recompence his Services beſtowed upon him 100000 Crowns, and ſo he retired to Anjou; from whence the Queen Regent recall'd him in 1643, and ſent him Plenipotentiary with the Duke of Longueville and the Count of Avaux, to the Treaty at Munſter. During this illuſtrious Employment he received full Power of the French King in 1647 to treat with the States General about the Guaranty of the Treaties of Munſter. Being return'd again to that City, he found the Deputies of Holland ſo chang'd, that they talked of Treating ſeparately with Spain, and to quit the Intereſts of France, whereupon the Duke of Longueville and the Count d'Avaux deſired to be recalled; but M. Servien ſtaying behind them, was not out of hopes of renewing the Treaties, and finding it impoſſible to ſucceed in that with Spain, he concluded a Peace with the Empire upon honourable Conditions for the King his Maſter. Upon his Return to the Court the King made him Miniſter of State in 1648, and in 1653 he was declared Superintendent of the Finances, and the Year following Chancellor of the Royal Orders of France, and ſoon after was made Seneſchal of Anjou. After ſo many Services done to his Prince, he died in his Caſtle of Meudon the 17th of Jan. 1659, aged 66 Years.

Q. SERVILIUS (Cepio) a Roman Conſul who was ſent unto the Gauls with a powerful Army, and commanded there during the Cymbrian and German Wars. His inſatiable Avarice having inſtigated him to rob the Temples of Tholouſe whence he took a vaſt Sum of Gold and Silver (Oroſius, Lib. 5. Cap. 15. tells us, there was in all 100000 Pounds of Gold and 110000 of Silver) which had been conſecrated to the Gods of the Country. He was puniſh'd with the intire Defeat of his whole Army, and being return'd to Rome was condemn'd, and died in Priſon, or as others ſay, in Exile. Hence came the Proverb of Aurum Tholoſanum, to ſignifie hurtful and fatal Riches. Strab. Lib. 4. Aul. Gell. Lib. 3. Cap. 9. Juſtin. Lib. 32. Valer. Maximus. Eraſm. Adag. tit. Infortunii vel Exitii.

SERVILIUS, a Latin Hiſtorian, quoted by Tacitus, Lib. 14. Annal. of the Servilian Family, which was very famous at Rome. Alſo a Roman Conſul of the ſame Name that died of the Plague, with his Collegue Æbutius in 290 of Rome.

SERVILIUS (Hala or Ahala) General of the Roman Cavalry, being Dictator he conquered the Labicani and Æqui, and in 315 he killed Spurius Melius, who was ſuſpected to deſign a Change of the Government, and at laſt was baniſh'd. Val. Max.

SERVILIUS (Iſauricus) made himſelf famous for his Victories. Livy.

SERVILIUS (Priſcus) Dictator, took and deſtroy'd the City of the Fidenates, and took ſeveral Places from the Æqui in the 319 of Rome. Livy, Lib. 4.

SERVITÆ, or Servants of the Bleſſed Virgin, a Religious Order inſtituted at Florence about the Year 1232. See Annunciada and St. Philip Benizi. There was alſo a Congregation of Servants of the Bleſſed Virgin at Marſeilles in 1257; they followed the Rule of St. Auſtin. Benedict, Biſhop of that City, approved the Inſtitution, which hath ſince been confirmed by a Bull of Clement VI. in 1266. This Congregation of the Order of St. Auſtin is different from another called the Order of Penance, which is of that of St. Francis, and was confirm'd by Pope Honorius IV. in 1285. The Congregation of Servitæ at Venice is the ſame with the firſt here mention'd, and hath produced excellent Men into the World, amongſt whom Father Paul, who wrote the Council of Trent, was one of the moſt illuſtrious; whom ſee.

SERVIUS HONORATUS, ſurnamed Maurus. A famous Grammarian that lived in the ſecond Century, and according to others about 410. He writ Commentaries upon Virgil, and divers other Pieces. Macrob. Lib. 1, & 6. Saturn. Geſner. in Bibl. Poſſevin in Appar.

SERVIUS (Pictor) the Son of Fabius Pictor. Conſult Geſner. Voſſius.

SERVIUS (Sulpitius Rufus) was not only an Orator, but the greateſt Lawyer of his Time. He was the Diſciple of Fucilius Balbus, and of C. Aquilius Gallus, and an Imitator of C. Mucius Scævola, who ſpurr'd him on to the Study of the Law with this friendly Reproof, Turpe eſt Patritio & Cauſas Oranti, Jus in quo verſatur ignorare. He was Conſul at Rome in 703 with Marcus Marcellus, and upon all Occaſions gave ſignal Inſtances that his Prudence was not a whit inferior to his Learning. He left divers Tracts of Law, and had ſeveral Diſciples that were a Credit to him, the moſt famous of them were P. Alphenus Varus, C. Aulus Aſilius, Aufidius, &c. The Conſequences of the War began by M. Antonius, being much dreaded by the Romans, Sulpitius was deſired to go to him whilſt he was beſieging Modena, and endeavour to perſuade him to hearken to an Accomodation: He accepted of the Employment, and died on his Way thither, in 710 of Rome. See Cicero, Aul. Gellius, Pomponius, and others quoted by Forſter, Lib. 2. Hiſt. Jur. Civil.

SERVIUS (Tullius) the Name of the ſixth King of the Romans. He was the Son of Ocriſia, a Woman-Slave, yet deſcended of a noble Family of Corniculum. When yet a Boy, being aſleep his Head was ſeen all on fire, which when Tanaquil, the Wife of Tarquinius Priſcus, had ſeen, ſhe reſolved to educate him amongſt her own Children, for ſhe interpreted the Flaming of his Head to be an Omen of his coming to the Crown; and having married one of Tarquinius Priſcus his Daughters, was after his Death choſen King. He made an exact Account to be taken of all the Romans, whoſe Number amounted in his Time to 84000, and diſtributed them into Tribes, that knowing the Number of his Subjects he might make the better uſe of them for the Good of the Commonwealth. Tarquinius, ſurnamed Superbus, had married Tullia the Daughter of Servius, who had promiſed to make him his Succeſſor; but he impatient of Delays, and inſtigated by his Wife, cauſed his Father-in-law to be murthered after that he had reigned 44 Years. His Daughter Tullia was ſo well pleaſed with his Death, that ſhe cauſed her Chariot to be driven over the bloody dead Body of her Father as it lay in the Streets. Tit. Liv. Lib. 2. Florus, Lib. 1. Cap. 6. Dion. Halic.

SERVUS-DEI, a certain Biſhop, who flouriſhed about 467; but where his See was is uncertain, becauſe that at the ſame time there were ſeveral of this Name in Sicily and Italy. He wrote againſt thoſe who aſſerted that Chriſt whilſt on Earth did not ſee the Father with his corporeal Eyes before the Reſurrection; and endeavoured to prove that from the very time of his Birth, by vertue of Hypoſtatical Union, he did actually ſee the Father and Holy Ghoſt by his bodily Eyes. Gennadius de Script. Eccl. Trithemius. Hoffm. Cave's Hiſt. Lit.

SESONCHIS. See Shiſhack.

SESONCHOSIS, King of Egypt, who firſt invented the way of managing and riding Horſes. Being curious to know which was the original and natural Language, he cauſed a Nurſe's Tongue to be cut out, and then committed to her Charge a new-born Child, and ſhut her up in a Place where none could come at her; which Child, as ſoon as it got the Uſe of its Tongue, pronounced the Word Bec, which in the Language of the Paphlagonians, a People of the Leſſer Aſia, ſignifies Bread: Whence he concluded that People to be the moſt ancient of any other of the World, and that their Language was firſt of all others. Ariſtoph. Scholiaſt. Herodotus relates this Story with ſome difference; he ſaith, this Experiment was made by Pſammetichus, and that Bec is a Phrygian Word. Some are of Opinion, that the Child pronounced this Word in Imitation of the Goats which were in the neighbouring Mountains.

SESOSTRIS, King of Egypt, otherwiſe called Sethoſis or Sethos. He began his Reign at Dioſpolis in the 1537 Year before Chriſt, and was Head of the nineteenth Dynaſty of the Egyptians. He made an Expedition into Aſia the eighteenth Year of his Reign, and in the mean time left his Brother Armais, otherwiſe Danaus, Regent of Egypt. The Greeks tell us, that Seſoſtris waged War ſucceſsfully againſt the Aſſyrians, Medes and Scythians, that he ſubdued Phœnicia and Syria, and all the Provinces of the Leſſer Aſia, with Thrace and Colchis: But underſtanding that his Brother Armais affected the Sovereignty, he broke of the courſe of his Victories, and haſted away to Egypt, having been nine Years abſent, and reigned there thirty three Years after his Return. Marſham, though he owns that the King of Egypt called by the Egyptians Sethoſis, is the ſame the Greeks call Seſoſtris, yet will have him to be the ſame with Shiſhak mentioned 1 Kings Chap. 14. But the moſt able Chronologiſts are of another Opinion, alledging that Seſoſtris was ſome Ages before the Burning of Troy, yea before the Time of Minos, whereas Shiſhak did not begin to reign till 200 Years after the taking of that City. That Seſoſtris was King at Dioſpolis, and Seſonchis at Bubaſtis; that Seſoſtris was Head of the Nineteenth Dynaſty, and Seſonchis of the twenty ſecond; laſtly, that Seſoſtris reigned fifty Years, and Seſonchis only twenty one; ſo that Seſoſtris cannot be the ſame with Shiſhak who reigned 500 Years after him. Herod. Lib. 2. Ariſtot. Polit. Lib. 7. Dicæarchus, Diodorus Siculus, Joſephus, Euſebius, and many others relate, that Seſoſtris lived a long time before the Trojan War. And Strabo tells us, that this Great King did endeavour to join the Red-Sea with the River Nile, by means of a Channel before the Trojan War. Troy was taken 1209 Years before the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt, whereas Shiſhak reigned only 995 Years before the ſaid Birth.

As to the Conqueſts of Seſoſtris, Herodotus, who gives us an ample Relation of them, tells us, that he left every where Inſcriptions upon Pillars, to be the laſting Monument of his Victories. The ſame Author aſſures us, that himſelf had ſeen of them in Paleſtina and in Ionia; and Strabo witneſſeth, that ſome of them were yet ſtanding in his Time. This great Conqueror cauſed magnificent Temples to be built in all his Cities, which he adorn'd with the rich Spoils he had taken in the Wars. He erected two Obelisks of Marble, each of them being 120 Cubits high: And all Hiſtorians unanimouſly agree, that next to Oſiris, Egypt never had a greater King than this Seſoſtris. Indeed he was great every way, for his Stature was of four Cubits, three Palms and two Fingers breadth.

SESSA, Sueſſa, and of old called Aurunca, an ancient City of Italy in the Terra di Lavoro, in the Kingdom of Naples, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Capna, from which it ſtands ſixteen Miles to the Weſt, and twenty from Gaeta to the Eaſt, in a very fruitful Soil, eſpecially of Corn and Wine. Plin. Lib. 3. Cap. 5.

SESSANNE, a ſmall City of La Brie in France, on the Frontiers of Campagne, thirteen Miles North of Troies, and 24 Eaſt of Paris. It ſuffered much lately by Fire, but is now rebuilding.

SESTERCIUM, a Place four Miles from Rome without the Gate Eſquilina, where Gibbets and other Inſtruments of Death were erected, and whither the Heads of thoſe executed by the Emperor's Command were brought. Tacitus.

SESTO, Seſtos, otherwiſe call'd the Caſtle of Romelia. It is a Town on the Shoar of the Streights of Gallipoli, on the ſide of Romania, in Europe, over-againſt Avido, or the Caſtle of Natolia, formerly call'd Abydos; which two Caſtles or Fortreſſes are call'd the Dardanelles, and ſecure the Paſſage from the Archipelago to the Mer de Marmora. The two Cities that ſtood there of old, were famous for the Amours of Leander and Hero. Strabo, Lib. 13.

SESTOLA, a City of Italy, which is the Capital of Frignan, a Territory of the State of Modena.

SESTRI, a City of Italy, to the Weſt of Genoua, and another call'd Seſtri de Levant, on the Eaſt-ſide of Genoua.

SETH, the third Son of Adam, was born A. M. 131. He was an Imitator of his Father's Piety, and his Children followed his holy Example; wherefore alſo the Scripture calls them the Children of God, with Contradiſtinction to thoſe of Cain, who are call'd the Children of Men. He was the Father of Enos, and died A. M. 1042, at the Age of 912 Years.

Joſephus ſpeaks thus of Seth, That he was bred with his Father, and did imitate his Vertue, and his Children followed his Example, living in perfect Union, and very happily in their own Country. He adds, That the World was oblig'd to their Induſtry and Underſtanding, for the Aſtrological Science; and that having learn'd from Adam, that the World ſhould be deſtroy'd by Water and Fire, and fearing this Art ſhould be loſt before Men were inſtructed in it, they built two Columns, one of Brick and the other of Stone, on which they engraved their Obſervations, that in caſe the Deluge ſhould ruine the Column of Brick, that of Stone might tranſmit 'em to after Ages; which had the deſign'd Succeſs. And he ſaith this Column was to be ſeen in his time, with the Inſcription in Syriac; but ſome explodes this, and not without Cauſe, it being much more probable that they would have communicated the Principles of Religion to Poſterity by thoſe Monuments. Joſephus, Torniel, Salian.

SETHIANS, or Sethinians, Hereticks, a Branch of the Valentinians. They held that Cain and Abel were created by two Angels, and that the latter being kill'd, the Supreme Power would have Seth made as a pure Original; and that the Angels by their mutual Impurities drew on the Flood, which deſtroy'd their wicked Off-ſpring, but ſome of them having crept into the Ark, gave a new Original to wicked Men. They wrote many Books, intituled, Seth, and ſome bearing the Names of the other Patriarchs. They gave out that Jeſus Chriſt was either Seth, or his Repreſentative. Tertul. de Præſcrip. Iræn. Epiph.

SETHON, King of Egypt, began to reign at Memphis in the Year 717 before Jeſus Chriſt. He gathered ſo vaſt a Quantity of Gold and Silver, that after his Death he left beind him 400000 Talents, that is, 240000000 of French Livres, if an Egyptian Talent is the ſame with an Atticone. Herodotus aſſures us, that in his Time there was ſtill to be ſeen a Statue of Sethon with a Rat in his Hand, becauſe when Senacherib came to invade his Country, the Rats eat the Harneſs of his Horſes, and the Thongs of his Soldiers Shields at Peluſium, and that thereupon he was forced to retire with his Army. Joſephus relates this with ſome Difference; he tells us, that Senacherib having ſpent much Time before Peluſium, had prepared all things for a Storm; but being informed that Tharſices, King of Ethiopia, was on his March to relieve that City, he raiſed his Siege: Others ſay, that Sethon having by ſome Artifice drawn together a great Number of Field-Rats, ſent them amongſt the Enemy, frightened them, and by this means put them to Flight. Herod. Joſeph.

SETIA, a Biſhop's See in the Iſle of Candia, of ſmall Circuit. It ſtands in a Peninſula on the Eaſt-ſide of the Iſland.

SETON, a Village of Mid-Lothian in Scotland, near to which is a noble Palace called Seton Houſe, whence the Earls of Winton, a very ancient Family, and ſeveral other Noblemen take their Surname. Cambd. Brit. &c.

SETON (John) an Engliſh Man, and one of the moſt Philoſophical Genius's of his Time, he ſtudy'd at the Univerſity of Oxford, and ſpent almoſt all his Time upon Ariſtotle's Works, upon whoſe Metaphyſicks he wrote Commentaries in twelve Books very much eſteemed. Pits. de Illuſt. Script. Angl. Leland, &c.

SETTLE, a Market-Town of Staincliff Wapentake, on the River Ribble, in the Weſt Riding of Yorkſhire, about 165 Miles from London.

SETTALA, (Lewis de) born at Milan in 1550, was an eminent Phyſician, commencing Doctor of that Faculty at 21 Years of Age, and Profeſſor of the Univerſity of Pavia at 23. He died in 1633, and left ſeveral conſiderable Treatiſes, as, Comment. in Ariſt. Prob. Comment. in Hippoc. de Aere, Aquis & Locis. Cautiones ad Vulnera Curanda. De Navis, &c. Salvator Vitali Theat. Mediol. Lorenzo Craſſo Elog. de Huom. Letter. Vander. Lindm. de Script. Med.

SEVARAMBES, an imaginary People, ſuch as the Utopians of Sir Thomas More, and the Inhabitants of the New Atlantis of my Lord Bacon.

SEVENOKE, a Market-Town of Godſheath Hundred in the South-Weſt Parts of Kent; ſo called from William Sevenoke, a Foundling in this Town, who became Lord Mayor of London An. 1418. and by whom the Free-School and Hoſpital of this Town was founded. It is ſixteen Miles from London.

SEVERIANS, certain Hereticks whoſe firſt Patron was Tatianus, and were afterwards defended by Severus, from whom they took their Name. They were altogether againſt Marriage Hieronimus. Sophronius.

SEVERIANUS, the Emperor Adrian's Siſter's Son, who being ninety Years of Age, and ordered to be put to Death together with his Nephew Fuſcus by the ſaid Emperor, he wiſh'd that Adrian might not be able to depart this Life when he deſired it, which fell out accordingly. L. Ælius Spart. in vit. Adrian.

SEVERIANUS, Biſhop of Gabala, in Syria, famous for his Learning and Eloquence, being left in Charge by St. Chryſoſtom with his Flock, was by him reproved for his Neglect and Miſconduct; whereupon he accus'd Chryſoſtom of calling the Empreſs Eudoxia Jezebel, and got him baniſh'd; but the People abhorring this Wickedneſs, prevail'd to have him recall'd, and Severianus expell'd; and though an Agreement was made betwixt them by the Empreſs's Means, yet Severianus perſiſted in his Enmity againſt Chryſoſtom. There are Six Greek Homilies printed in England under his Name, in 1612. and an Expoſition upon the Galatians, publiſh'd with Chryſoſtom's Works. Theodoret. Damaſcenus. Sozomene.

SEVERIEN, a vaſt Country or Dukedom, ſubject to the Ruſs, extending from the Niper (Boryſthenes) on the Weſt and North to the Ocean on the Eaſt, having Ruſſia on the North, and Crim Tartary on the South. It was at firſt a Sovereign Dukedom, but was afterwards conquer'd by the Dukes of Lithuania, and fell with it under Caſſimir, King of Poland, Son of Jagelon. And in the time of John Baſilowitz revolted from the Poles, and ſubmitted to the Ruſs. The Capital of it is Novogrodeck, Thirty ſix Miles South of Smolenſko. The Prince of Severien was after this murther'd by the Tyrant he ſubmitted to, though derived from the Royal Blood of Ruſſia, being deſcended of Demetrius, Great Duke of Ruſſia. Golnitz.

SEVERINO, Lat. Acmonia, a City built by the Emperor Severus on the Danube, near Trajan's Bridge; is twelve German Miles North-Eaſt from Temeſwaer.

SEVERINUS, Pope and a Roman, who was choſen after Pope Honorius I. in 638, though Anaſtaſius, the Bibliothecarius ſaith, that he was not elected till the 29th of May the Year following. He couragiouſly reſiſted the earneſt Solicitations of the Emperor Heraclius, who would have engaged him to ſubſcribe an Edict call'd Ectheſis, being a kind of Expoſition of the Faith in favour of the Hereſie of the Monothelites, and condemn'd the ſame as impious and heretical. He died June 2. A.C. 639. His Election was confirm'd by Iſacius the Emperor's Exarch, without which that Title was reckon'd void. Platina.

SEVERN, Lat. Sabrina, the ſecond River of England for note, has its Source near Plinlymon Hill, in the County of Montgomery, in Wales, and flows at firſt as far Eaſt as Slandois; then winding North-Eaſt it waters New-Town, and leaving Montgomery to the Eaſt, paſſes by Welſh-Pool to the Borders of Shropſhire, taking in the Thanet before it entreth that County; ſo paſſeth South-Weſt to Shrewsbury and Worceſter, beneath which it receives the Temde, and at Tewksbury the Avon, paſſing to Glouceſter, it becomes very great; in Glouceſterſhire it takes in the Leden and Stroud, beſides the Wye that parts this County from Monmouthſhire, and another Avon that parts Glouceſterſhire from Somerſetſhire. In Montgomeryſhire, it waters New-Town and Welſh-Pool; in Shropſhire, Shrewsbury, Bridgenorth; in Worceſterſhire, Bewdley, Worceſter, Upton. There are two Things remarkable in this River: Firſt, That it affords abundance of Lampreys: Secondly, That the Mouth is ſo wide, that it has got the Name of the Severn Sea, it being here fifteen Miles over between Naſh-Point in Glamorganſhire, and Linton in Devonſhire.

SEVERUS (Septimius) a Roman Emperor, was born at Leptis, a Roman Colony in Africa; his Father's Name was Geta, and his Mother's Fulvia Pia; his Merit raiſed him to the higheſt Poſts in the Empire; and at laſt, under Pretence of revenging the Death of the Emperor Pertinax, he ſtept into his room in 193 or 194. He was then in Pannonia; and being come to Rome, the Soldiers put the Imperial Purple upon him, having firſt kill'd Didius Julianus. Hearing that Peſcenninus Niger was declared Emperor by the Legions of Syria, he raiſed an Army, and march'd againſt him; and having after a three Years Siege taken Byzantium, which had favour'd Peſcenninus, he reduced it to a Village. After this he conquer'd the Parthians, Medes, Arabians, and ſeveral other Nations. He ſeverely puniſh'd the rebelling Jews, for which the Senate decreed him and his Son the Honours of a Triumph. Having finiſh'd his Wars in the Eaſt, he turn'd his Arms againſt Albinus, whom he defeated near Lyons, but ſtained his Victory with extreme Cruelty, cauſing Albinus's Wife, Children and Friends, with a great Number of Perſons of Quality, to be butcher'd, by which means he got the Name Punicus Sylla. The Chriſtians about Lyons were involved in the ſame Maſſacre, as ſo many Abettors of the Rebellion. And having in a manner wholly deſtroyed that and many other Cities, he began the fifth Perſecution againſt the Chriſtians. At the beginning of his Empire he carried himſelf very favourably towards the Chriſtians, having been reſtored to his Health by one of them called Proculus. Afterwards he quelled the Britains rebelling againſt him, and built the Wall that bears his Name, the Ruines whereof are ſtill to be ſeen to this day. But he was not ſo happy in his Family as he was in his Government, for he had two Sons Antoninus Caracalla and Geta, whom he had declared Cæſars and his Aſſociates in the Empire; but the Elder of theſe being not content with the Empire in Reverſion, reſolv'd by the Murther of his Father, to put himſelf in actual Poſſeſſion thereof; and accordingly one Day as he was marching on Horſe-back behind his Father, he drew his Sword to that Intent, and had effected it, but that he was hinder'd by ſome that were near him. Severus himſelf took notice of it, though he diſſembled his Knowledge of it; but the Horror of ſo unnatural Attempt caſt him into a deep Melancholy, of which he died about a Year after in the City of York the 4th of February 211. having reign'd ſeventeen Years, eight Months and three Days. He was a Man of Wit, Underſtanding and Ability. He was a Lover of Learning and learned Men, and underſtood the Mathematicks and Hiſtory, and had writ that of his own Life. *Spartian in Sept. Severo. SEVERUS, (Fl. Valerius) the Son of a Siſter of the Emperor Maximianus Armentarius, who created him Cæſar in 304, with Maximinus, and committed to him the Affairs of Italy and Africa; but he did not long enjoy this Dignity; for Maxentius having procured himſelf to be declared Emperor at Rome, Severus with all Diligence haſten'd thither to ſtifle this Rebellion in the Birth; but being overcome, he retired to Ravenna; and ſoon after Maximianus Hercules having drawn him out of that City, under the Pretext of Peace, he was Strangled on his way to Rome 307. Zozim, Lib. 2. Eutrop. Lib. 9. &c.

SEVERUS (Libius) was ſaluted Emperor of the Weſt at Ravenna, after the Death of Majorianus in 461, and the Senate confirm'd his Election, without expecting the Conſent of Leo, Emperor of the Eaſt: He was afterwards Poiſon'd by Ricimerus Auguſt 15. 465. Marcellin. & Caſſiodor. in Chron.

SEVERUS ALEXANDRINUS, Biſhop of the Aſmoneans, he lived at the ſame time with Eutychius, Patriarch of Alexandria, who writ Annals in the Arabian Tongue, and was of the Sect of the Melchitæ; whereas this Severus was of the Sect of Copti or Jacobitæ. He writ Annals in three Tomes, containing the Lives of the Patriarchs of Alexandria; and therein gives an Account of the Original of the Biſhops of that Country. Abraham Echellenſis alledges the Teſtimonies of this Hiſtorian againſt Selden, in his Eutychius Vindicatus. Severus tells us in his Preface, that he had compiled his Hiſtory from ſeveral publick Acts and Records which he found in the Libraries of Egypt, which were writ in the Greek or elſe in the Coptick Language, whence they have been tranſlated into Arabick. This Hiſtory is now in the French King's Library.

SEVERUS, a Hereſiarch, and Head of the Severians, being infected by the Writing of Tatianus: He held that there was no Reſurrection, that the uſe of Wine was not lawful, that the Old Teſtament, Acts of the Apoſtles, and St. Paul's Epiſtles deſerve no Credit: Adding moreover, That Woman was the Workmanſhip of the Devil, and therefore Marriage was damnable; dividing Man into two Parts, aſcribing the upper Part to God, and under Part to the Devil: He was refuted by Clemens Alexandrinus and Origines. He lived about 174. Auguſtin. Her. Euſebius, Baronius.

SEVERUS SOSOPOLITANUS, born of Heathen Parents, was accuſed of Luxury and Magick, but coming to Tripoli in Syria, was there baptized; ſome time after he turn'd Monk, and lived in a Monaſtery between Gaza and Majuma; but being taken notice of to be of the Opinion of thoſe who rejected the Council of Chalcedon, and were called Acephali, he was expell'd a Monaſtery which he had entred; whereupon making Complaint to Anaſtaſius the Emperor, he prevail'd ſo far as to have Flavian Biſhop of Antioch diſplaced, and himſelf ſettled in his See, An. 512. He publickly taught the Hereſie of Eutyches, Anathematiz'd the Council of Chalcedon, and endeavoured by Flattery and Force to bring all the Biſhops of his own Juriſdiction to his Sentiments, treating barbarouſly thoſe who refuſed; and amongſt others, expoſed 300 Orthodox Monks to the Fury of Maſtives, abandoning himſelf to all manner of Luxury at the ſame time. At length, about An. 519, when the Emperor Juſtin had ordered his Tongue to be cut out, he eſcaped to Alexandria, and there continued his horrible Villanies. Nicephorus.

SEVERUS, Biſhop of Milevum, and an Eccleſiaſtical Writer about the Year, 420.

SEVERUS (Cornelius) a Latin Poet, who lived in Auguſtus's Time, about the Year of Rome, 740. He was the Author of a Poem upon Mount Ætna, commonly attributed to Virgil. Quintilian ſaith, That he wrote the War of Sicily in Verſe; but Joſeph Scaliger conjectures in his Animadverſions upon Euſebius, that the Subject of that Poem was not the Sicilian War Bellum Siculum, but the Civil War Bellum Civile. Seneca makes mention of this Poet in his Controverſies, where he quotes ſome Verſes of his upon the Death of Cicero, and ſpeaks of him alſo in his 69th Epiſtle. [The Poem of Cornelius Severus upon Ætna, is found amongſt Virgil's Remains, with the Notes of Joſeph Scaliger, who is the firſt that diſcover'd the true Author of it.]

SEVI (Sabathai) a famous Impoſtor, who had the Impudence to declare himſelf to be the Jewiſh Meſſiah, in 1666. He was born at Smirna under the Reign of Amurath IV. in 1626, and was the Son of one Mordecai a Jew. After having made a conſiderable Progreſs in his Studies, he came to Conſtantinople, but the Rabbins drive him thence, whereupon he was fain to return to Smirna. In the Year 1662, he took a Journey to Jeruſalem, and was there received with great Honour, becauſe of his Learning, and lived there three Years, being well eſteemed of thoſe of his Nation. It is the Cuſtom of the Jews at Jeruſalem, to ſend every three Years a certain Number of Rabbins to Conſtantinople, into Egypt and other Countries, to gather Alms. Sevi was choſen to go to Egypt, and paſſing through the City Gaza, two Days Journey from Jeruſalem, he met with one Nathan, a German Jew, who having finiſh'd his Studies at Jeruſalem, had betaken himſelf to Gaza, where he had married the Daughter of a very rich Merchant; this Nathan being extremely taken with Sabathai Sevi's Learning, entred into cloſe Friendſhip with him, and propoſed the Deſign of making him paſs for the Meſſiah, to which Sevi conſented, ſeeing himſelf aſſiſted by one who was able to bear the Charges of this Enterprize. As ſoon therefore as Sabathai Sevi was come back from Egypt, Nathan writ to the Jews of Jeruſalem, that they ſhould not look upon Sevi as an ordinary Perſon, but as their Meſſiah, and that they ſhould receive him as their King, who would ſoon give them extraordinary Proofs of his Power and Holineſs. The People, who are Lovers of Novelty, went out to meet him with Shouts of Joy, that were heard every-where through the City, which made the Turks run together to prevent any Tumult or Diſorder; whom when the Rabbins had appeaſed with the Sum of 5000 Crowns, they baniſh'd this Impoſtor out of Jeruſalem, from whence he retired to Smirna. In January, 1666. he returned to Conſtantinople, with a deſign to make his publick Entry there, as the Meſſiah of the Jews. But being come near to the Dardanelles, he was ſeized by the Chiaoux, or Serjeants of the Grand Signior, who having fetter'd his Feet, ſet him on a Horſe, and conducted him by Land to Conſtantinople, where the Jews, who had been informed of his Arrival, received him as their Deliverer, notwithſtanding that they ſaw him in Chains. From thence he was carried back to one of the Caſtles of the Dardanelles, and not long after by order of the Grand Signior was ſent to Adrianople. Sabathai Sevi arrived there Sept. 14. 1666. and had a Conference with the Sultan's chief Phyſician, who was a Renegado Jew ſent to him by the Sultan, ſuppoſing that this Pretended Meſſiah would diſcover himſelf more freely to him, than to a natural Turk. The Reſult of which Conference was, that there was no other way for him to avoid the ignominious Death appointed for him, but by turning Turk, to which he conſented. The Grand Signior being informed of Sevi's Reſolution, ordered him to be brought to his Preſence: At the Entry of the Hall this falſe Meſſiah threw down his Jewiſh Cap, and trampled it under his Feet, and at the ſame time one of the Sultan's Pages put a Turban upon his Head, and taking away his Jewiſh Gown of black Cloth, put a Veſt upon him, which the Grand Signior beſtowed upon him. In this Garb he appeared before the Grand Signior, who gave him the Title of Agi Mehemet Effendi, that is, The Eſteemed Doctor Mehemet, and made him Capigi Bachi, allowing him a Penſion of fifty Crowns per Month. This Renegado endeavoured to cloak this Action amongſt his Country men, by pretending it a neceſſary piece of Diſſimulation; but it was not long after that he began openly to aſſert Mahometaniſm, and for five Years together was a means of perſwading many Jews, who received the Turban as well as he. At laſt the Grand Signior being informed, that for all this he did not ceaſe in ſecret to celebrate certain Feſtivals with the Jews, commanded him to be conducted to the Caſtle of Dulcigno in the Morea, where he died with his Wife the tenth of September, 1676, being fifty Years of Age. De la Croix in his Memoirs, Part 2.

SEVILLA DEL ORO, a Town in the North part of the Iſland of Jamaica with a good Harbour upon the Bay of Mexico, but little frequented by the Engliſh. There is alſo another Place in Spain called Sevilla la Vieja, a ruined City of Andaluſia near Sevil, which was the Birth-place of Silius and three Emperors, Trajan, Adrian and Theodoſius the Elder, and called by the Romans Italica.

SEVILLE HISPALIS, a City of Spain, and the Capital of Andaluſia, upon the River Guadalquivir, and an Archbiſhop's See. It is a very ancient City, and the greateſt of Spain next to Madrid, and one of the richeſt and moſt famous for Commerce of all Europe. The Moors made themſelves Maſters of it and the reſt of the Country in the Year 713, and kept it 534, until December 22. 1248, when Ferdinand III. King of Leon and Caſtile, took it from them after a Siege of ſixteen Months. The Form of this City is almoſt round, and contains divers ſtately Palaces, fair Churches, and large Squares and Market-places, which are all adorn'd with Fountains, whoſe Waters are conveyed thither by an Aqueduct five or ſix Leagues from the City. The Metropolitan Church is the greateſt of all Spain, extending ſixty Paces in length, and an hundred in breadth, with Chappels built quite round it, a beautiful Quire, a ſumptuous Veſtry, and a very high Steeple, in which are no leſs than twenty four great Bells. Beſides there is an Univerſity in this City, a Seat of Inquiſition and a Mint. Travellers do much admire the Neatneſs of the Exchange, where the Merchants meet and diſcourſe about their Commerce: There are alſo a great Number of Colleges and Religious Houſes, and ſeven Gates; whereof that of Triana opens upon a great Bridge of Boats, which leads to a very fair Suburb of the ſame Name, where the Curious meet with a hundred Specialties well worth their taking notice of; as indeed throughout the whole City, which gave occaſion to that Spaniſh Proverb, Qui no ha viſto Sevilla, no ha viſto Moravilla. Here is a brave Aqueduct of Brick ſix Leagues long, and reacheth up to Carmona. It hath of late decay'd very much, and is ſtill waſting, the Trade being removed to Cales, becauſe Men pay 27 per cent at Sevil, and but four or five at Cales: There are in it twelve Buildings worth the ſeeing, amongſt which are the Monuments of Ferdinand the Wiſe, who recovered this City from the Moors, and that of Ferdinand and Chriſtopher Columbus, the Diſcoverer of the Weſt-Indies or America. He died in this City in the Year 1532, when he had lived fifty Years, ten Months and fourteen Days. There has been two Provincial Councils held at Seville, one in the Year 590; and the other 619; we have three Canons remaining of the firſt, and thirteen of the ſecond.

SEVO, a Mountain of Germany inhabited by the Ingævoni, according to Solinus, but Baudrand ſays, that it is the longeſt Mountain of Scandinavia, which runs in from off a Bow from the White Sea and furthermoſt Parts of Lapland, through that Country Botnia, Finland and acroſs betwixt Sweden and to the Baltick Sea 300 Miles in length, being diſtinguiſhed by ſeveral Names according to the Countries it runs though. Hoffm. Baud.

SEULPHUS, Archbiſhop of Rheims and Legate of the See of Rome; was a Miniſter of State, in the Reign of King Charles the Simple, and King Robert and Raoul; the latter of which Princes gave this Prelate and Herbert, Earl of Varmandois, the Command of his Army againſt the Normans, whom Seulphus oblig'd to treat in 923, and renew their old League with the King; the ſame Year, Pope John the Tenth ſent him the Pall, which was then the higheſt Mark of Favour, (for at that time, the Honour of a Cardinaſate was not in uſe) from whence we may obſerve that when the Pope gave the Arch-biſhop of Rheims the Pallium, he made him Apoſtolical Legate at the ſame time; ſo that from this time, the Prelates of this See, have ſtiled themſelves, Legati Nati. This eminent Prelate died in 925. Le Coumpt d'Auteuil, des Miniſtres d'Etat.

SEURE, (la) Separa, a River of France in Poitou, which divides it ſelf in two Streams, the one called Seure Nantoiſe, which watereth Mortagne in Poitou, and Nantes in Bretagne, the other Seure Niortoiſe, which ariſeth about St. Maixant, and watering Niorts, Mallezais and Marans, falls into the Bay of Aquitain.

SEWER, Surius, a River which ariſeth in the County of Tipperary in the Borders of Leinſter in Ireland, and watering Caſhal, Carryck and Waterford, falls into the Boyne on the South of Ireland, and with it into the Ocean.

SEXTUS, a Phyſician of the Emperical Sect, who lived in the ſecond Century under the Empire of Antoninus Pius: He writ ten Books againſt the Mathematicians and Aſtrologers, and three of the Pyrrhonian Opinions; which hath made many Authors believe that he was the ſame with Sextus of Chæronæa, a Pyrrhonian Philoſopher, Plutarch's Grandſon, and one of the Maſters of the Emperor Antoninus the Philoſopher, which if ſo, we cannot ſuppoſe him the Author of a Treatiſe De Medicina Animalium, which is commonly attributed to him, foraſmuch as that appears to be the Work of a Platoniſt. Voſſius de Philoſoph. Cap. 12.

SEXTUS, a Pythagorean Philoſopher, the Author of a Treatiſe called Enchyridium Sententiarum, tranſlated out of Greek into Latin by Rufinus, whom ſome have ridiculouſly confounded with St. Sixtus a Pope and Martyr. Geſner. in Bibl. This Collection of Sentences hath been ſeveral times printed, the laſt Edition is that of Amſterdam in 1688, with an Adition of ſome other Treatiſes, Mythological, Phyſical and Moral.

SEXTUS POMPEJUS FESTUS, the Author of a Book de Verborum ſignificatione, which he abridg'd from a great Work of Valerius Flaccus, as one Paulus afterwards alſo contracted his Book. Antonius Auguſtinus publiſhed all theſe ſeveral Pieces in Octavo at Venice in 1560. But the Editions of Joſeph Scaliger and Andreas Dacier are better, the laſt whereof was printed at Paris in Quarto in 1681, In uſum Delphini.

SEXTUS, Rufus, lived in the IVth Century to the Year 54. He had born the Office of Conſul, and wrote an Abridgment of the Hiſtory of the Romans, which he dedicated to the Emperor Valentinian I. This Book intituled, Breviarium Hiſtoriæ Romanæ, having been very much corrupted in the Tranſcribing, was corrected from ſeveral Manuſcripts by John Cuſpinian: Raphael Valateran affirms, that the true Name of this Author is Feſtus Rufus, which it true, he may be the ſame with Feſtus Rufus Avienus. Blondus, Marlianus, and ſome others are of opinion, that Sextus Rufus wrote a Deſcription of Rome, and lived in the Time of Diocleſian; if this Obſervation of theirs will hold, then this Rufus cannot be the Author of the Breviarium. See Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Cap. 8.

SEYDE, a City of Phœnicia in Syria, formerly called Sidon, ſituate upon the Sea to the North of the City Tyrus, very much ruin'd. There are ſtill to be ſeen two Caſtles or Forts, which are not tenable now. The Houſes of the Sangiac, or Governour, and of the Cady or Judge are fair Buildings. There are alſo three Camps, ſo called, for the French Merchants, which are well built and commodious, eſpecially that called the Great Camp, where the French Conſul hath his Dwelling, as have alſo the Franciſcans, the Capuchines, the Jeſuits and Merchants, who drive a great Trade here with Cotton and Silk. The Houſes of the City are but ill built, yet are inhabited by a great Number of Merchants, and Artiſans of all Nations. The Haven which formerly could admit great Ships, receives none but ſmall Veſſels and Boats, the Ships riding in the Road ſome Miles from the City. The Turks have ſeven or eight Moſques in Seyde, the Jews have a Synagogue, and the Chriſtian Monks and Jeſuits have each of them a Chappel. There are alſo ſome Maronites of Mount Libanus, who ſome time ſince have ſubmitted themſelves to the Church of Rome; and ſome Armenian Greeks. Without the City are many fine Gardens planted with Orange, Citron, Palm and Tamarind Trees, which are ever Green, and Adam's Fig-Trees, ſo called, which bear a Fruit reſembling a ſmall Cucumber of a Golden Colour, the Taſte whereof is admirable, and whoſe Leaves are ſix Foot long and two broad; whereupon they ſay Adam made uſe of them to hide his Nakedneſs. There is alſo a great Abundance of white Mulberry-Trees; the Leaves whereof feed a vaſt Quantity of Silk-worms, which the Inhabitants keep in little Huts made on purpoſe, near theſe Woods of Mulberry-Trees. About a League from this Place are to be ſeen the Ruines of the ancient Sidon, at the Foot of a high Mountain, which is ſome part of Mount Antilibanus, on the Top of which there is a Chriſtian Church-yard, and a little round place, covered with a Tamarind, which the Maronites make uſe of inſtead of a Chappel. Doubdan's Travels to the Holy Land.

SEYLIARD (Sir Thomas, Bar.) of Delaware, in the Pariſh of Edinbridge, in the County of Kent, married Frances Wiat, ſole Heireſs of the Wiats of Boxley Abby in the ſaid County; by which the ſaid Mannor of Boxley, and other Remains of that, ſome time vaſt Eſtate, were added to his own Patrimony. He had by her Thomas his only Son and Heir, and four Daughters, viz. Frances, Mary, Elizabeth and Ellenora. He married a ſecond time to the honourable Margaret Dunche, Relict of Major Dunche of Paſey, in the County of Berks, Eſq; ſecond Daughter of the Right Honourable Philip Lord Wharton, by whom he had Philadelphia, an only Daughter. He was of a very ancient Family, as the Pedegree thereof in his Cuſtody ſhewed, deſcending from Ralph de Seyliard of good Note in King Stephen's Reign (Phill. Vill. Cant.) This Sir Thomas was a Gentleman of great Vertues and Uſefulneſs, lived much Eſteemed, and died no leſs Lamented by good Men, May 2. 1692. leaving his Son Sir Thomas Seyliard to inherit his Eſtate and Title.

SEYMOUR (Sir John) of Wulf-hall, in the County of Wilts, Knight, in the Ninth of Henry the Eighth, being then one of the Knights for the Body to that King, obtain'd a Grant for the Conſtablewick of Briſtol Caſtle to himſelf; and Edward his Son by his Wife Elizabeth, the Daughter of Sir Henry Wentworth of Nettleſted, in the County of Suffolk, Knight, had Edward, Thomas and Henry, and Three Daughters, Jane, whom Henry the Eighth made his Wife, &c. Edward her Brother upon the Wedding-Day in the Twenty eighth of Henry the Eighth, had the Title of Viſcount Beauchamp conferred upon him, and the Heirs Male of his Body, by reaſon of his Deſcent from an Heir Female of that Houſe; and the next Year after was created Earl of Hertford. In the Thirty fourth of Henry the Eighth, he was made Lord Great Chamberlain of England for Life, and imploy'd in moſt Places of Truſt and Profit during the Remainder of that Reign, which held in all Thirty eight Years. He was choſen Governour to King Edward the Sixth, and on the Tenth of February conſtituted Lord Treaſurer of England, and advanced to the Dignity of Duke of Somerſet; and upon the Seventeenth of the ſame February, created Earl-Marſhal of England for Liſe; and upon the Twelfth of March following received his Patent of Protector and Governour of the King and Realms: And upon the Third of November next enſuing, had a ſpecial Grant, that he ſhould ſit alone, and be placed at all times, as well in the King's Preſence in Parliament, as in his Abſence, upon the middle of the Bench or Stool ſtanding next on the Right Hand the King's Seat-Royal in his Parliament-Chamber. Soon after he was ſent at the Head of a ſtrong Army into Scotland, where he fought Muſckeborough Battle. In the Second of Edward the Sixth, by another Patent bearing Date December the Twenty fourth; he was again conſtituted Protector both of the King's Perſon and the whole Realm during his Minority. Thus he roſe, and before we ſpeak of his Fall, take this his Character and Account of his Actions from the eminent Hiſtorian Sir John Hayward. He was a Man, ſaith he, little eſteemed either for Wiſdom, Perſonage, or Courage in Arms, but being in Favour with King Henry, and by him much imploy'd, was always obſerved to be both Faithful and Fortunate, as well in giving Advice as in managing a Charge. The Invaſion of James the Fifth of Scotland was fruſtrated, and Solom Moſſe Battle won by his Direction. The next Year after he and the Earl of Warwick burnt Leith and Edinburgh, waſted Tividale and the Mers: Being ſent to view the Fortifications upon the Marches of Calais, he not only did that, but with the hardy Approach of Seven Thouſand Men, beat up an Army of One and Twenty Thouſand French, encamp'd beyond the River before Bulloine, and took their Baggage and Cannon, with the Loſs of one Man; and returning thence by Land to Guiſnes, he won in his way, within ſhot and reſcue of Arde, the Caſtle of Outing, commonly called Red Pile. The next Year he invaded and ſpoil'd Picardy, began the Forts of Newhaven, Blackneſſe and Bullingberge; upon theſe and other like Succeſſes his ſucceeding Fortunes were eſteemed always rather new than ſtrange; and his only Preſence was reputed a ſufficient Surety for an Army; and yet did he never riſe hereby, either to Haughtineſs in himſelf, or Contempt of others, but remain'd Courteous and Affable, chuſing a Converſe leaſt ſubject to Envy, betwixt ſtiff Stubbornneſs and filthy Flattery, never aſpiring higher than to be the ſecond Perſon in State, yet fell at laſt through the Pride and revengeful Humour of Anne Stanhope his Wife, who poſſeſſed him, that his Brother Lord Thomas Seymour of Sudley, High-Admiral of England, ſtudied his Ruine; the ambitious Earl of Warwick gave way to the Woman's violent Deſires, willing ſhe ſhould have her Mind; ſo the Duke incurr'd Infamy and Hate. Hereupon the Lord Sudley was Arreſted, ſent to the Tower, and in a very ſhort time after condemned by Act of Parliament, and a Warrant was ſent under his Brother's Hand, whereby his Head was delivered to the Axe. The Act of Parliament expreſſeth the Cauſe of the Attainder to be the Attempting to get the Perſon of the King into his Cuſtody, and govern the Realm; alſo making much Proviſion of Money and Victuals; and endeavouring to Marry the Lady Elizabeth the King's Siſter; likewiſe for perſuading the King in his tender Age to take upon him the Rule and Order of himſelf; but he was never called to anſwer, ſo that the Proteſtations which he made at the Point of his Death, and the open Carriage of his Life, did clear him in the Opinion of many. His Death created great Hatred in the People againſt the Protector, many of the Nobility calling him Blood-ſucker and Murtherer, a ravenous Wolf, unfit to be the King's Protector; his pulling down a Church and two Biſhops Houſes in the Strand, to make way for Sommerſet-Houſe, and ruining the Steeple, and moſt part of the Church of St. John of Jeruſalem, near Smithfield, with a Cloyſter and Charnel-houſe belonging to St. Paul, to carry on his new Building, confirm'd the publick Hatred. The Earl of Warwick ſpying this Opportunity, form'd a Party in the Privy-Council againſt the Protector, who thereupon removed the King from Hampton-Court to Windſor, with a Company more reſembling an Army than a Train, and raiſed Men by Letters and Proclamation to aid him. Hereupon the Lords at London took Poſſeſſion of the Tower, ſent for the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City to Ely-houſe, where the Earl of Warwick lodg'd, and the Lord Rich, then Chancellor, made a Speech, wherein he charged the Protector with ſeveral Miſcarriages and Crimes, adding to the reſt, his unnatural Endeavours for the Death of his Brother, and his Practices to diſpatch ſuch of the Nobility as were like to oppoſe his Deſigns, &c. Urging the Citizens upon all theſe Conſiderations, to joyn with the Lords of the Council to take him away. Next Day they diſpatch'd a Letter to the Lords at Windſor, requiring he would diſperſe the Forces he had raiſed, and withdraw himſelf from the King. Hereupon all were diſcharged, except Guards, and the Protector ſent Secretary Petre to the Lords at London, to perſuade them, that for the publick Good all private Grudges and Unkindneſſes might be laid aſide: But neither did he return, nor was there any Anſwer ſent, but a Proclamation publiſh'd and ſign'd by ſeventeen of the Lords; wherein he was charged as the Cauſe of all the Calamities that had befallen the Nation; and the Subjects deſired and prohibited in the King's Name, from giving Obedience to any of his Precepts. They alſo ſent Sir Robert Wingfield, Captain of the Guard, to ſatisfie the King of their Loyal Affection, and of their moderate Deſires againſt the Protector, who thereupon was removed from the King's Perſon, and a Guard ſet upon him until the next Day, when the Lords at London were appointed to be there, who all came accordingly, beſides the Earl of Warwick, and repeating their Complaints, the Protector was put into their Hands, and committed to Cuſtody in Beaucamp's Tower, and the next Day brought to London on Horſe-back betwixt the Earls of Southampton and Huntington, followed by a great Number of Lords and Gentlemen, and being receiv'd by the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, &c. was conveyed to the Tower, where being preſented with 28 Articles from the Privy Council, and a preſent Anſwer deſired, whither he would acknowledge them true, or ſtand upon his Juſtification: He acknowledged his Offences, and humbly, on his Knees, ſubmitted himſelf to the King's Mercy, intreating the Lords to aſſure the King, that what he did, proceeded rather from Negligence, Raſhneſs, or other Indiſcretion, than any malicious Thought tending to Treaſon. This and his Submiſſion to the Lords, wrought the King to ſo much Compaſſion, that he releaſed him from Impriſonment, remitted his Fines, and returned all his Goods and Lands that were not diſpoſed of; and ſoon after ſwore him again of his Privy Council: After which his Daughter was married to my Lord L'Iſle, Son and Heir to the Earl of Warwick, and the Earl himſelf made Admiral of England, and ſoon after Duke of Northumberland. Then having ſufficient Authority, he charged the Duke of Somerſet anew with ſeveral wicked Deſigns, as to murther himſelf with many more of the Nobility, &c. Upon which being put into the Tower, and brought to his Tryal, he pleaded not Guilty, and made pertinent Anſwers to the Accuſation, yet he was found guilty of Felony, and by vertue of a Statute then in Force, condemned to be hang'd for conſpiring the Death of a Privy Counſellor: And two Months after, the Violence of his Enemies, notwithſtanding the King's Deſire to ſave him, drew him to the Scaffold on Tower-hill, Jan. 24. An. 1552. (6 Edw. 6.) where after a Speech which he thus concluded, I beſeech God that thu Church in this Realm, now Reformed according to the Inſtitution of the ancient Primitive Church, the Members thereof may conform their Lives to the Purity of its received Doctrine. He ſuffer'd with great Conſtancy, ſo that he was very much lamented, People dipping their Handkerchiefs in his Blood, and laying them up as Sacred Relicks. His Eldeſt Son Edward being diſpoſſeſſed of all by the Attainder of his Father, was by Queen Elizabeth, in the firſt of her Reign, advanced to the Degree of Baron of this Realm by the Title of Lord Beauchamp, as alſo to the Title of Earl of Hereford, married the Lady Katherine Grey, Daughter to Henry Duke of Suffolk, of near Alliance to the Queen, formerly Wedded to Henry, eldeſt Son to William Earl of Pembrook, but lawfully repudiated; and ſhe being diſcern'd to be great with Child, was committed Priſoner to the Tower, and the Earl ſent for out of France, and alſo confined; the Arch-biſhop of Canterbury, and others being made choice of to examine the Buſineſs, no Witneſs of the Marriage being produced within the limited time, they gave Sentence that it was Unlawful. In the mean time ſhe was delivered of a Son, after that of another; having corrupted her Keeper, whereupon Edward Warner, Lieutenaut of the Tower, was impriſoned, and the Earl cenſured in the Star-Chamber; firſt, That he had vitiated a Maid of the Royal Blood; next, That he broke Priſon; laſtly, That he had lain with her again. And though he anſwered ſhe was his lawful Wife, and that he found the Priſon Doors open, he was fined 5000 l. and kept Priſoner for the ſpace of nine Years; and ſhe was kept Priſoner all her Life-time, tho' the Validity of the Marriage was again brought to a Tryal at the Common-Law, the Miniſter who married them being preſent, and other Circumſtances agreeing, the Jury found it a lawful Marriage. His ſecond Son William Seymour was conſtituted Governour to King Charles I. who afterwards made him Lieutenant General of his Forces in the Counties of Wilts, Southampton, Dorſet, Somerſet, Devon and Cornwall, and Groom of his Stool, and by Charles II. after his Reſtauration, reſtored him to the Title of the Duke of Somerſet, by a Repeal of the Attainder of his Great-Grandfather, which has ever ſince continued in this noble Family, now enjoy'd by His Grace Francis, Duke of Sommerſet, born Jan. 17. Anno 1657.

SEYMOUR (Thomas) Lord Sudley, Brother to the Protector, married Katharine Parr, Widow of Henry VIII. See his End, and the Occaſions of it, in the Foregoing Article.

SEYSSEL, (Claudius) Archbiſhop of Turin, was born at Aix in Savoy, and died in 1520. He writ a Book againſt the Waldenſes, A Treatiſe of Providence; Of the Monarchy of France; Of the Royal Dignity: Of the three States of Travellers, dedicated to Pope Leo X. Commentaries upon the Goſpel of St. Luke, as alſo upon the Civil Law. He tranſlated into Erench the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory of Euſebius; as alſo Thucidides, Appianus Alexandrinus, Trogus Pompejus, Diodorus Siculus, Xenophon, and the Works of Seneca. *Sanmarthan. SEZZA, Setia, a City of Italy in the Territy of Rome, which formerly was an Epiſcopal See.

SFORZA, (Katharine) the Wife of Jeronimo Riario, Prince of Forli, being put in Priſon with her Children after the Death of her Husband, who had been murthered by Franciſcus Urſus, the Head of the Rebels of that Country, was not at all daunted at this her Misfortune; but by her Wit and Conſtancy found a Way both to revenge the Death of her Husband, and to preſerve the Sovereignty he had made himſelf Maſter of. The Caſtle of the City, in which there was a good Garriſon, holding out for her, and being reſolved not to ſurrender but by her Leave and Order, ſhe told the Rebels in an ambiguous Expreſſion, that the way to put an end to the Diſpute would be to give her leave to ſpeak to the Commander in Chief of her Garriſon and the Soldiers, to perſuade them to ſurrender, and that in the mean time ſhe would leave her Children as Pledges in Urſus his Hands. They had no ſooner agreed to give her this Liberty, and ſhe got into the Caſtle, but finding her ſelf in a Place of Strength, ſhe ſent a Command to the Rebels to lay down their Arms, threatning them with the higheſt Puniſhments in caſe of Diſobedience. The Conſpirators ſeeing themſelves thus fruſtrated of their Hopes, threatned to kill her Children before her Face: To which ſhe anſwered, That that Loſs might be repaired, but that they by this means would bring upon them unavoidable Deſtruction, which gave a Check to their Fury. In the mean time having received a conſiderable Succour, ſent her by Lewis Sforza, her Uncle, Prince of Milan, ſhe by her Prudence and Courage recovered the Sovereign Power, which the Rebels had a mind to deprive her of, by murthering of her Husband. Brut. Lib. 8. Hiſtory of Florence.

SFORZA (Francis) I. of that Name, Duke of Milan, was the Natural Son of Jacomuzio, called Muzio Artendulo de Cotignola, and ſurnamed Sforza, who was one of the moſt renown'd Commanders of his Time. He anſwered very well the Repute his Father had gain'd in the Wars, wherein he was Commander for the Queen of Naples, and the Commonwealth of Venice. Thoſe of Milan firſt beſtowed upon him the Name of Captain, and afterwards by the Favour of the People he was made Duke in 1450, contrary to the Right of the Duke of Orleans, who pretended to that Dutchy, as being the Son of Valentina, the Daughter of John Galeas, Duke of Milan and Count of Vertus. Lewis XI. of France, who did not love the Duke of Orleans, in 1464 transferred all the Right France had to Genoua, to Francis Sforza, and beſtowed upon him Savona, which he was yet in Poſſeſſion of. And by this powerful Aſſiſtance Sforza made himſelf Maſter of Genoua. Boſio Hiſt. Med. Paul. Jovius.

SFORZA (Francis) II. of that Name, Duke of Milan, was the Succeſſor of his Father Maximilian, who parted with his Eſtate to King Francis I. in 1515, he was the Son of Lodovicus, and was reſtored to the Dukedom of Milan in 1522, whence he was driven a ſecond time, and reſtored in 1529 by the Emperor Charles V. who made his Complaints to him for treating with Francis I. who had ſent Merveille to him in the Quality of his Secret Ambaſſador; whereupon Sforza being deſirous to ſatisfie him to the Contrary, cut off Merveille's Head. This Sforza died in 1535 or 6, without leaving any Children by his Wife, who was the Daughter of Chriſtiern II. King of Denmark, and Elizabeth, Siſter to the Emperor Charles V. Paulus Jovius. Thuan.

SHAFTSBURY, or Shafton, Lat. Septonia, a Market and Borough Town of Upper Wimborn Hundred in the North of Dorſetſhire, ſituate upon a lofty Hill near the Borders of Wiltſhire, has a fine Proſpect and ſerene Air, but ſtands ſomewhat in want of the Conveniency of Water. In the time of the Norman Conqueſt it had ten Pariſh-Churches, now reduced to eight, with above 500 Houſes built of the Free-ſtone of the Hill. Some write, that King Canute the Dane died here: That the Town was built by King Alfred in 880. Here was buried King Edward, ſurnamed the Martyr, King Edgar's Son and Succeſſor, who was baſely muthered at the Gate of Corſe-Caſtle. In 1672 Charles II. created Sir Anthony Aſhley Cooper, then Lord Chancellor of England, Earl of Shaftsbury, who died in Holland, and is ſucceeded by his Son in the Honour.

SHAKESPEAR, (William) born in Stratford on Avon in Warwickſhire, a fam'd Poet, but of no great Learning, which made him ſo much the more admired, his Genius was jocular, but when diſpoſed he could be very ſerious; and did ſo excel both in Tragedies and Comedies, that he was able to make Heraclitus laugh and Democritus weep: He had many wity Combats with Ben. Johnſon, without any conſiderable Advantage on either ſide. Fuller.

SHALLUM, the Son of Jabeſh, who conſpired againſt Zachariah, King of Iſrael, and having ſlain him, reigned in his ſtead; but a Month after Menahem, the Son of Godi, defeated his Army, and cauſed him to be put to Death, and after that reigned over the Ten Tribes, in the Year of the World 3264. 2 Kings 15. from Verſe 10 to 15.

SHANON, Shennyn or Shannonon, Lat. Senus or Sineus, one of the greateſt Rivers in Ireland. It hath its Source in Mount Slewnera in the County of Roſcomon and Province of Connaught. It runs Southward through the County of Letrim, makes a vaſt Lake called Myne Esk or Ree; on the North end of this Lake ſtands Letrim, on the middle Longford, towards the South Ardah, on the Weſtern ſide Elphin and Roſcomon, and a little South of the Lake Athlone; beneath which it receives another great River called the Lough; on the Eaſt it receives the Annay, and watering Banough and Glanfert, falls into the Lake of Perg, which it quits at Quiltow, and paſſeth to Limerick, where it runs Weſtward and falls into the Vergivian Ocean, betwixt Munſter to the South and Connaught to the North. It is five Miles wide at the Mouth between Cape Lean and Cape Shannon, having in its Courſe ſeparated Lenſter and Munſter from Connaught.

SHAP, a great Pariſh of Weſtward in Weſtmorland, wherein ſtood the only Abbey in this County, founded by Thomas, Son of Goſpatrick, in the Reign of Henry I. Here is alſo a Fountain, which Euripus like, ebbs and flows many times a Day. And another thing obſervable about this Place, is the huge Pyramidal Stones ranged for a Mile in length directly in a Row, and at an equal diſtance, ſome whereof are nine Foot high and fourteen thick, a Monument doubtleſs of ſome great Achievement performed in this Place. This is now made a Market Town.

SHEALE, a Town in the Biſhoprick of Durham in Cheſter Ward, upon the Mouth of the River Tine, where the New-Caſtle Coal-Fleet take in their Cargo.

SHEERNESS, a Point of Land in Kent at the Influx of the Medway into the Sea, well Fortified and Garriſon'd to prevent all Surpriſes.

SHEFFIELD (Robert) deſcended of a noble and ancient Family of Hemmeſwell in Com. Linc. was one of King Henry VII. Commanders againſt John, Earl of Lincoln, and his Adherents in the Battle of Stoke near Newark, and ſhared in the Honour of that Victory. His Grand-child Edmond was in the firſt of Edward VI. advanced to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm by the Title of Lord Sheffield of Butterwick; but upon the Inſurrection of the Commons of Suffolk the next Year after, being one of the Nobles that accompanied the Marqueſs of Northampton for the ſupreſſing thereof, loſt his Life, for his Horſe falling into a Ditch at Norwich, and he thereupon pulled off his Helmet, a Butcher ſlew him with his Club. He left Iſſue John, whoſe Succeſſor Edmund was one of the Engliſh Lords, that, by the Command of Queen Elizabeth, attended the Duke of Anjou (who had ſtaid three Months in England as Suitor to her) into Antwerp, and was in the Sea-Fight in 1588. After which he was made Governour of the Bril, then a Cautionary Town for Monies lent againſt the Spaniards; in 14 Jac. conſtitued Preſident of the Council for the Northern Parts of this Realm: In the firſt of Charles I. he was created Earl of Mulgrave, and died in 1646, being then eighty Years of Age, and was ſucceeded by Edmund, Son to Sir John Sheffield, Kt. his ſecond Son. This Edmund died in 1658, leaving Iſſue John his Son and Heir, who was inſtall'd Knight of the Garter in 1674, and was one of the Gentlemen of the Bed-Chamber to King Charles II. Dugdale.

SHEFFIELD, a Market-Town of Strafford Wapentake in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, ſituate on the River Dun, near the Borders of Derbyſhire, and famous of old for its Trade in Iron Wares and Edge-Tools, eſpecially Knives and Blades. Here is ſtill to be ſeen the Ruins of a Caſtle, one of five which ſtood upon this River at ten Miles diſtance from each other.

SHEFFORD, a Market-Town in Bedfordſhire in Clifton Hundred.

SHEKEL, a Coin in uſe among the Iſraelites from the the Time of Abraham. Some Authors make two ſorts of them, one called the Shekel of the Sanctuary, and the other the Royal or Lay Shekel: They ſay, the firſt weigh'd four Drachms, and the other but two, that the Shekel of the Sanctuary was uſed in things relating to the Sacrifices and Divine Service, and that the Royal Shekel ſerved for common Trade and Commerce; but this Miſtake was occaſioned by thoſe who were ignorant of the Proportion there was betwixt the Hebrew and Athenian Weights; for, in reality, there was but one ſort of Shekel as to the Weight, the Silver and and Gold Shekel always weighing two Hebrew Drachms, which made four of them at Athens; from hence ſome Authors affirm, that the Jews had Shekels which weighed four Drachms. The Septuagint always tranſlate the Word Shekel by Didrachmon. which ſignifies two Drachms, but this way of expreſſing themſelves happened becauſe they made their Verſion in the Town of Alexandria, where the Weights were the ſame with thoſe of India; from whence it appears that the Shekel was no leſs than the Tetradrachmon uſed at Athens and in other Parts of Greece, i. e. four Attick Drachms: As for the Particularity of the Name of Shekel of the Sanctuary, it was ſo called becauſe it was kept in the Sanctuary as a Standard for the Regulation of the Weights of the Kingdom. *Godwin. de Ritib. SHELDON (Gilbert) of an ancient Family at Stanton in Staffordſhire, where he was born on the 19th of July, 1598. In 1613 he was admitted Commoner in Trinity College in Oxford, and after other Degrees, commenced Doctor of Divinity in 1634, made Chaplain in Ordinary to King Charles I. and Clerk of the Cloſet, being likewiſe elected Warden of his own College about the ſame time: During the Rebellion he continued loyal to the King, and was upon that Score, turned out of his Wardenſhip: At the Reſtauration, he was made Dean of the King's Chappel, and promoted to the See of London in 1660, and upon the Death of Arch-biſhop Juxon, was tranſlated to the See of Canterbury, Auguſt 31, 1663. In 1667 he was elected Chancellor of the Univerſity of Oxford, but never inſtalled. He died November 9. 1677. and was buried at Croyden in Surrey, where his Heir Sir Joſeph Sheldon, ſometime Lord Mayor of London, erected a ſtately Monument over his Grave, with a large Inſcription, part of which runs thus:

Fortiter & Suaviter

Hic jacet Gilbertus Sheldon Antiqua Sheldoniorum in Agro Staffordienſi Familia natus, &c. Vir omnibus Negotiis par; omnibus Titulis ſuperior; in omnibus, magnus, in Propriis, bonus; utriuſque Fortunæ Dominus; Pauperum, Parens; Literatorum, Patronus, Eccleſiæ Stator, de tanto Viro pauca dicere non expedit, multa non opus eſt: Norunt Preſentes, Poſteri vix credent.

There is nothing of the Arch-biſhop's extant, but a Sermon before the King at Whitehall, June the 28th, 1660, being a Day of ſolemn Thankſgiving for the Reſtauration. His Works of Piety and Charity in his Life-time were many; as firſt, The Building of the Theatre of Oxford, which coſt him above 16000 l. beſides the Gift of 2000 l. to buy Lands to keep it in repair. Secondly, The fair Library at Lambeth-Houſe, built at his own Charge. Thirdly, Two Thouſand Pounds towards the Rebuilding of St. Paul's Cathedral. Fourthly, Conſiderable Sums of Money, both to Trinity College in Oxford, and Trinity College in Cambridge; beſides Legacies at his Death to pious and charitable Uſes: In ſhort, his Nephew Sir Joſeph Sheldon declared, it appeared from his Book of Accounts, That the Arch-biſhop had expended about Threeſcore and Six Thouſand Pounds in publick Benefactions to Learning, and upon the Uſes above-mentioned. Athen. Oxon.

SHEM, one of Noah's Sons, born in the Year of the World 1559; ſome Modern Authors are of opinion, as well as the Jews, that Japheth, and not he, was Noah's eldeſt Son; however, St. Auguſtin's Opinion ſeems to be the moſt elegible, who, according to the vulgar Tranſlation, makes Shem the Eldeſt upon this Score; it is ſuppoſed, that his Father gave him the Privilege of Birth Right in his Bleſſing, which Advantage among other things, by the Law of Nature, comprehended the Prieſthood; and thus Shem's being a Prieſt, gave Occaſion to ſeveral Authors to believe him to be the ſame with Malchiſedeck. He died A. M. 2156, being 600 Years of Age, ſo that probably he lived to ſee no leſs than fifteen Generations of his own Poſterity. Gen. 10. Ver. 1, 21. Chap. 11. Ver. 10, 11.

SHEPEY, a Kentiſh Iſland about Ten Miles long and ſix broad, is ſeated at the Fall of the Medway into the Sea, where that River divides it ſelf into two Branches, one running Northward, the other South, and then Eaſt, betwixt Shepey Iſland and the Kentiſh Land. The firſt Branch is called the Weſt Swale, and the other the Wells, but near the furtheſt Eaſt Point of the Iſle it is called the Eaſt Swale: Some think the Iſland took its Name of Shepey from the great Flocks of Sheep that feed here: However certain it is, that this is a very fruitful Iſland, and well watered with Rivers, eſpecially the South parts of it. The Soil has a peculiar Quality in not breeding of Moles: Beſides Queensborough, the chief Town of the Iſle, here are ſeveral others, as Minſter, Eaſt-Church, Warden, Leyſden, Elmſley. The Danes, Earl Goodwin, his Sons and Adherents much haraſſed this Iſland, which has been honoured with the Title of Earldom in the Lady Dacres, Counteſs of Shepey.

SHEPHOLM, a craggy Iſland in the Severn Sea, oppoſite to Devonſhire.

SHERBORN, a Market-Town of Berkſton Wapentake in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, well inhabited, ſeated upon a ſmall Stream that falls into the Warf and Ouſe, at the Place of their Conjunction. This Town has a Free-School, but is of chief note for the Quarries near it, the Stones whereof are dug ſoft, but being ſeaſon'd with Wind and Weather become hard and durable.

SHERBURN, Aqua Limpida, the Surname of a moſt noble and ſpreading Family in Lancaſhire, (the Heir Male whereof is Sir Nicholas Sherburn of Stonikurſt, Bar.) and Lineally deſcends from Galfridus Balliſtrarius, to whom John, Earl of Morton (afterwards King of England) gave the two Lordſhips of Hacconſa, Hacconſhaw or Hacconſall and Priſa, as Henry III. did that of Hamilton; and were anciently honoured with Equeſtrial Dignity, and flouriſhed in Martial Proweſs in the Time of Edward III. Sir Robert Sherburn the Father, Sir John Sherburn the Son, and Sir Richard Sherburn the Grandſon, being all Knights at the ſame time; Sir John particularly aſſiſting with one Knight, three Eſquires, and the like Number of Archers on Horſe-back at the Seige of Calais under that King (20° Regni ſui.) Nor were they of leſs Eſtimation in latter Ages, Sir Richard Sherburn being a Knight under Edward IV. and Henry VII. &c. And his Great Grandſon Sir Richard Sherburn, for his ſignal Military Service againſt the Scots, was made Knight (being then but 21 Years old) under the Banner Royal of England at Leith by Edward Seymour, Earl of Hartford (afterwards Duke of Somerſet and Lord Protector to Edward VI.) General of the Engliſh in that Expedition, May 11. Anno 1544. 36 Henry VIII. and was of equal Eminence in Court and Camp till his Death, which was the 36th of Queen Elizabeth. [Vide more in Stoniburſt.]

SHERWOOD FOREST, one of the four principal Foreſts in England; It lies in the Weſt parts of Nottinghamſhire, and is chiefly noted for Robin Hood and his Companions.

SHIMEI, one of the Family of Saul, who curſed David as he fled from his Son Abſalom, yet was generouſly pardon'd by him; but Solomon afterwards cauſed him to be put to Death, for tranſgreſſing his expreſs Command, 2 Sam. 16. 5--14. and Chap. 19. 18. 1 Kings 2. 36 to the End.

SHINAR, a Campaign Country about Babylon, where Nimrod began to build the Town of Babel, Gen. 10. Ver. 1--11. concerning this Word conſult Bochart's Phaleg.

SHIPTON, a Market-Town of Oſwalderſtow Hundred in Worceſterſhire: It ſtands upon the Stoure in a Slip of the County taken off from Warwickſhire.

SHIPTON-MALLET, a large Market-Town in Whiſton Hundred in Somerſetſhire.

SHIREBURNE, Lat. Clarus Fons, a Town and Caſtle in the North-Weſt of Dorſetſhire, on the Borders of Somerſetſhire, on a River of its own Name, which empties it ſelf into the Parret. This Town, Capital of its Hundred, is built on the ſide of a Hill in a pleaſant and fruitful Country, much increaſed both for Inhabitants and Wealth by its Cloathing Trade. It was erected into a Biſhop's See in 704, which See was afterwards tranſlated to Sunning, and thence to Salisbury: It now gives Title of Barons to the noble Family of Digbys, Earls of Briſtol.

SHIRELY (Sir Anthony) Son to Sir Thomas Shirely, ſet out from Plimouth May 21. 1596. in a Ship called the Bevis of Southampton, attended with leſſer ones, deſigning for St. Thomas's Iſland, but was diverted by a Contagion upon the South Coaſt of Africa, where the Rain ſtunk and turned into Magots as it fell; ſo he ſteer'd for America, where he took St. Jago with 280 Men, and kept it two Days and two Nights againſt 3000 Portugeſe, eighty of his Men being wounded. Hence he ſail'd for the Iſle Suego, where he could do nothing but take in Water, the Wind driving a Shower of Aſhes upon them from a burning Mountain. Hence he made for the Iſle Margarita, but made no Profit neither there nor by taking the Towns of St. Martha and the Iſlands of Jamaica, whence he ſailed above thirty Leagues up the River Reo Dolei, enduring great Hardſhips; at laſt being diſeaſed, famiſh'd and deſerted by all his Ships, he made home by New-found-land, and arrived June 15. 1597. He had two Brothers Sir Robert and Sir Thomas, both fam'd for their Travels and Atchievements.

SHISHAK, otherwiſe called Seſonchis, King of Egypt, was the firſt of the XXII Dynaſty, whoſe Seat was at Bubaſtis: He began his Reign in the 995th Year before the Birth of our Saviour. He was an Enemy of the People of God the Jews, and jealous of the great Power of Solomon: He favourably receiv'd and entertain'd Jeroboam, whom Solomon ſought to deſtroy; and ſome Years after gave him his Siſter-in-law in Marriage. Jeroboam being choſen King of the Ten Tribes, and waging War againſt Rehoboam, called Shiſhak to his Aſſiſtance, who in the fifth Year of Rehoboam's Reign came into the Field with a powerful Army, and took Jeruſalem; and having ſeiz'd all the Treaſure that was in that City, returned again into Egypt. Authors obſerve that this Shiſhak or Seſonchis reigned at Bubaſtis above 200 Years after the taking of Troy; and that he conquered the Empire of the Lower-Egypt, and took it from the Princes of Tanis, who of a long time had been poſſeſſed of it, 1 Kings Chap. 11. 40. and 25, 26. 2 Chron. Chap. 12. 2. to 10.

SHOREHAM, a Market Sea-Port and Borough-Town of Bramber Rape in the South of Suſſex.

SHREWSBURY, Lat. Salopia, the chief Town of Shropſhire, lies North-Weſt by Weſt 124 Miles from London, ſituate on the top of a Hill of red Earth, in the very midſt of the Center of the Country, where ſtood Vriconium of old, out of whoſe Ruins this is ſaid to have been raiſed: The Severn runs on the South ſide, and almoſt encompaſſeth it round, which, with the Neatneſs of its Buildings both publick and private, Extent and Populouſneſs, renders it inferior to few Cities in England. It conſiſts of five Pariſhes, whoſe Inhabitants drive a great Trade both in Cloth and Friezes, two ſtaple Commodities, which makes it ſo well frequented by the Engliſh and Welſh, that it is become the common Empory between England and Wales. Beſides the natural Strength of the Place, it is fenced about with a ſtrong Wall, and defended by an old Caſtle built by Roger Mortimer, who alſo founded an Abby here, whereof ſome Remains are ſtill to be ſeen. On the Eaſt and Weſt are Entrances into it by two fair Stone Bridges, with Towers, Gates and Iron Bars; and on the North ſide by another Bridge, no leſs ſtrong than the former. Amongſt its Churches are two of principal Note, viz St. Maries, Alchmond's, ſet out with lofty Spires, Near this City in 1463, was fought a ſharp Battle between Henry IV. and Henry Piercy, Earl of Northumberland, on the Behalf of Edward Mortimer, Earl of March, as the right Heir of the Crown of England after Richard II. In 1067 Roger of Montgomery, Earl of Arundel, was by the Conqueror created Earl of Shrewsbury, whoſe Poſterity after three Deſcents were diveſted of it in 1102, in the Perſon of Robert of Montgomery by King Henry I. from which time the Title lay dormant until the Reign of Henry VI. that the Valiant Commander John Talbot, Mareſchal of France, was created Earl of Shrewsbury, An. 1412, in which Line it has continued ever ſince, Charles the preſent Earl being the twelfth thereof. Shrewsbury is encompaſſed with a ſtrong Wall and Bulwark, that ranges from the Caſtle to the Severn, and ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament.

SHROPSHIRE, or Salop, from the Latin Salopia, is an Inland County of England, bordering upon Wales, bounded on the North with Cheſhire, on the South with Herefordſhire, Eaſtward with Staffordſhire, and Weſtward with the Welſh Counties of Denbigh and Montgomery. Its length from North to South is 34 Miles; its breadth from Eaſt to Weſt 25, the whole is divided into fifteen Hundreds, wherein are 170 Pariſhes and ſixteen Market-Towns, whoſe Inhabitants amongſt the Romans went by the Name of Cornavii; the Country making part of the Kingdom of Mercia during the Saxon Heptarchy, and now divided betwixt the Dioceſſes of Hereford and Litchfield. A Country generally fair and fruitful, yielding Plenty of Corn and Paſturage, for Fewel, abundance of Wood and Pit-Coal, and for ſeveral Uſes great Quantity of Iron. In the South and Weſt Parts it is ſomewhat hilly, but in all Parts finely watered, for beſides the Severn, which in its crooked and winding Courſe cuts it as it were in the Middle, here are the Dee, which divides it from Denbighſhire, the Terne which runs into the Severn, and the Temi which waters the South Parts, and receives the Bradfield, Onke, Omey, Quenny, Stradbrook, Corve, Ledwith and Ren: As for Towns and Caſtles no County can ſhow more for the Bigneſs of it. At Pickford is a Spring conſtantly ſupplied with an oily unctuous Matter that ſwims upon the Water; and at another Place are Allum Springs, which the Dyers of Shrewsbury make uſe of inſtead of Allum. In the time of Popery here were many fair Monaſteries well indow'd at Shrewsbury, Coulmere, Stow, Dudley, Bromfield, Hamond, Weymore, Liſles hill, Bildas, Biſhops Caſtle, and Wenlock: The Great Men born in this Country, and its Market-Towns, ſee under their proper Names.

SIAM, a great Kingdom in the Peninſula or almoſt Iſle of India, beyond the Gulph of Bengala: It is bounded on the North by the Kingdoms of Pegu and Ava, on the Eaſt by thoſe of Camboja, Laos, Jangoma and Tango; on the South by the Gulph of Siam; and on the Weſt by the Gulph of Bengala, lying in the Form of a Half Circle, and is about 450 Leagues in Compaſs. Some affirm, that the Kingdom of Siam extends it ſelf from the Point of Malacca to the Kingdom of Pegu and Laos, which are its Bounds towards the North; that it has the Sea of China for its Eaſtern Boundary, and the Indian Sea on the Weſt, ſo that it conſtitutes a great Peninſula: And add, That our common Maps do not give us a true Deſcription of the Provinces and Limits of that Kingdom, and that therefore ſome in that Country are employ'd to make a more exact Map. Siam is commonly divided into eleven Provinces, which formerly had each of them the Name of Kingdoms, viz. Siam, Martavan, Siara, Tanaſſerin, Keda, Pera, Ibor, Juncalaon, Paarn, Patana and Ligor, ſome of them ſtill retain the Name of Principalities, but they who poſſeſs them pay Tribute to the King of Siam, whoſe Subjects they are. There are alſo other Countries which have the Name of Kingdoms, and are Tributary to the King of Siam, as the Kingdoms of Camboja, Gehor, Patane, Queda, Singora, &c. the moſt part of which do every Year preſent a Noſegay of Golden Flowers as Tribute. The Air of this Country is good and healthful, and Strangers eaſily accuſtom themſelves to it. The Sea Coaſt is extremely well Peopled, as lying convenient for the Arrival of Shipping from Japan, China, the Philippine Iſlands, Tonquin, Cochinchina, Sciampaa, Camboja, the Iſle of Sonda, and all the Parts of India on this ſide Ganges, and the Gulph of Bengala from Perſia and Arabia, yea and the Kingdoms of Europe too. The Country is very fruitful and abounding with Corn, eſpecially Rice, and Fruits of all ſorts. It hath Mines of Lead, Pewter, Silver and Gold, but it is not fine. The Elephants yield abundance of Ivory; and Trade furniſheth it with all the moſt rich Commodities of Aſia, as Silks and Linnen, China Wood, China Ware, Muſk, Silver, Gold, all manner of Goldſmiths Work, Pearls and Precious Stones. The French have a Factory in Siam the Capital of the Kingdom, and the Portugueſe dwell here in great Numbers, and yet there are not above nine or ten Families that are true Portugueſe, though there be above a thouſand of thoſe they call Metys, that are born of Portugueſe Fathers and Siam Mothers. There are above a hundred Families of the Inhabitants of Cochinchina, who are moſt of them Chriſtians; and of the Inhabitants of Tonquin that are ſettled in Siam, there are about ſeven or eight Chriſtian Families. The Engliſh alſo and Hollanders have each of them a Factory here. The Armenians, conſiſting of about fifteen or ſixteen Families, live by themſelves, being all Roman Catholicks, The whole Country generally abounds with Turks, and the Peguans are almoſt as numerous as the Natives. The Houſes are moſtly of Wood, built upon Poſts or Piles, becauſe of the Inundations that happen there every Year; but the Chineſe and Moors have built ſeveral of Stone, which are fair Buildings. The Riches of the Country appears by their Pagodes or Temples, whoſe Ornaments are generally of wrought Gold, by their Structure, which is magnificent, and by their great Numbers. The Country abounds with great and pleaſant Rivers, whereof the moſt part do overflow the Banks, whilſt the Sun is in the Northern Signs, that is, from the Month of March to September, which contributes much to the Fruitfulneſs of the Country: And it is obſerved as a wonderful Effect of Providence, that the Ears of Rice riſe higher by the ſame degrees as the Waters riſe. In Siam are Serpents of about twenty Foot long, which have two Heads; but that which is at the place where the Tail ſhould be, does never open, nor hath any Motion at all. There are alſo a ſort of Animals very venomous, about a Foot long, with a forked Tail, its Shape being much like that which our Painters give to Salamanders.

Of the King of SIAM.

The King of Siam is a moſt abſolute Monarch, and the Honour his Subjects render to him is no leſs than Adoration, as appears by their Poſture while in his Preſence, even in his Privy-Council, which continues ſometimes for four Hours together, and all the while his Miniſters of State lie proſtrate before him. Whenever he goes abroad, all muſt withdraw, neither dares any Perſon be found in his Way, without an expreſs Order from him; and all the Doors and Windows muſt be ſhut up whereſoever he paſſeth, except only at thoſe ſolemn Times, wherein for a great Favour he is pleaſed to ſhew himſelf to his People. In the laſt Embaſſie the French King ſent thither in 1685, the French themſelves had Orders not to ſtir out of their Lodgings when the King went abroad. Neither is any one ſuffered to come near the Palace whilſt he is there. When he goes into the City, he is carried on the Shoulders of twelve Servants in a Chair or Sedan of Gold; and if it be a Day of extraordinary Solemnity, he rides on an Elephant, ſeated on a Throne of Gold. When he has a Mind to take his Pleaſure upon the River, he goes into a moſt magnificent Barge, and takes his Place under a State of Brocade Gold, accompanied with ſome of his Lords called Mandarins, and all the reſt of them follow him, every one of them in his Barge, ſometimes to the Number of a Thouſand. On Feſtival-days the Mandarins are all dreſs'd in Stuff of the ſame colour, ſuch as the King himſelf names; who ſhews himſelf in publick to his People twice in a Year with extraordinary Pomp and Magnificence: At theſe times he is always accompanied by his whole Court, and makes a Show of all his Riches and State. At the firſt time of his appearance in publick, two hundred Elephants are led before him in State, amongſt which there is one white Elephant, which the King has ſo high a Value for, that amongſt the reſt of his Titles, he eſteems it his Glory to be called, The King of the White Elephant. This Elephant eats in Gold Plate always, and at his Death his Funerals are celebrated with the ſame Pomp and Solemnity, as is uſual at the Interment of the greateſt Princes of the Kingdom. The ſecond time the Kings ſhews himſelf upon the River, accompanied with 200 Gallies, whereof each hath 400 Oars. And foraſmuch as this ſecond ſhewing of himſelf is in the Month of November, at which time the River begins to fall, the Prieſts take this Occaſion to make the People believe, that it is the King only who hath the Power to put a Stop to the Inundation of the River; and the ſilly People accordingly perſuade themſelves that the King at that time goes to ſlaſh the Waters with his Cymeter, and by this means forces them to return to the Sea. The King at both theſe times of his appearing in publick, goes to viſit two Temples, whereof the one is in the City of Siam, the other about ſix Leagues from the City up the River. There is alſo another time wherein he goes abroad out of his Palace, but without any Show, to pay a Viſit to a Pagode or Temple, which is in an Iſle where the Hollanders live. All theſe three Pagodes are very richly adorned, and the Building is very fair and ſumptuous, and all the Altars are loaden with Idols of Gold and Silver. The Temple the King viſits in the City, hath near 4000 Idols all gilt, beſides the three chiefeſt which are of Maſſie Gold. That which is ſix Leagues from the City is never opened but to the King, and the Prieſts; the People lying proſtrate without Doors, with their Faces on the Ground. The Pagode which is in the Hollanders Iſle, hath a kind of Cloiſter belonging to it, that is very pleaſant. The great Idol that is here, is ſurrounded with 300 others of different bigneſs, and in ſeveral Poſtures. The King ſends every Year five or ſix great Veſſels, which they call Sommes, to China, laden with thoſe Things the Chineſe ſtand in need of, and two or three to Japan. And he drives a like Trade to Camboja, Cochinchina, Tonquin, and all the Coaſts of India and Perſia, and eſpecially to Suratte, from which Places he fetches all manner of rich Merchandizes, which he ſells at the Price he ſets himſelf.

The King hath but one Wife that is called Queen; but he hath a great Number of Concubines. He fares very deliciouſly, yet drinks no Wine, but only Water, becauſe their Religion forbids the drinking of Wine to all Perſons of Quality, and their Talapoins or Prieſts. The Kingdom is Hereditary, but ſo as that the Brothers come to the Throne before the Children, who do not enjoy the Succeſſion till after the Death of their Uncles.

Of the Princes and Great Officers of the Kingdom.

There are three ſorts of Princes at the Court of Siam; the firſt are the Princes of the Royal Blood, the Kings of Camboja, Gehor, and the other Kingdoms Tributary to the King of Siam. The ſecond are the Princes of Laos, Chiamay and Banca, which have been taken in War, and ſome others that have voluntarily put themſelves under the King's Protection. The third are thoſe whom the King has been pleaſed to raiſe to the Degree of Princes. Theſe at ſolemn Days hold great Cups of Gold and Silver in their Hands, which are the Enſigns of their Dignity. There are ſeven great Officers in the Kingdom of Siam. The firſt in Dignity next to the King, and who hath the Honour to ſit in his Preſence, is called Mahaomma-rat; the Chacri hath the Superintendence of all Affairs, whether of War or Juſtice: Theſe two great Offices are at preſent vacant, and 'tis believ'd, the King has a Mind to put them down, becauſe they give the Subject too great a Share of Power. The Aaboum is the Generaliſſimo of the King's Armies by Sea and Land; the Ok-ia-Vang takes care of the Affairs of the King's Palace; the Ok-ia-Praklang hath the Care of all Foreign Buſineſs, and of the King's Magazines; the Ok-ia-Pollatep hath the Charge of the King's Revenues; the Ok-ia-Jombarat is the Sovereign Judge in all Criminal Caſes. Beſides theſe Great Officers, the King hath a Treaſurer called Ok-ia-Pagdi. Thoſe who are in theſe Poſts of the firſt Rank, do with the King's Conſent diſpoſe of all the other inferior Offices in the Kingdom, and are reſponſible for the Faults any of the Subordinates may commit in their ſeveral Stations. Next to theſe Seven Great Officers, the moſt conſiderable are the Ok-ia, the Ok pra, the Ok-louang, the Ok-uun, and the Ok-mun. The principal Ambaſſador ſent from Siam to the King of France in 1686, was the Ok-pra, the ſecond the Ok-loüang, and the third the Ok-uun. The Council of State, or Privy-Council, is compoſed of many Mandarins, who give the King their Advice by way of Remonſtrance, but can reſolve nothing, the King reſerving to himſelf the Power of approving or rejecting their Advice. The King beſtows the Title and Quality of Mandarin on whomſoever he pleaſeth, without having any regard to the Birth of the Party, foraſmuch as all his Subjects are his Slaves, whom he raiſeth and depreſſes according to his own good liking. In Matters of great Importance the King himſelf gives Sentence; the Mandarins, indeed, do firſt examine the Caſe to be tried, and then make their Report to the King; who being ſeated upon an high Throne, after that he hath taken full Cognizance of the Matter, pronounces the Sentence, which is writ down in his Preſence. For the Determination of ordinary Caſes there are Courts of Judicature eſtabliſhed in the ſeveral Cities, but ſo as to admit of an Appeal from them to the Council of Siam, the Capital of the Kingdom, whoſe Judgment is final and deciſive. This Council is compoſed of a Preſident and Twelve Counſellors. In Criminal Caſes, the Methods of Juſtice are much like thoſe in France, only the Puniſhments are much more ſevere.

MANNERS and CUSTOMS of the Inhabitants of SIAM.

Thoſe of Siam commonly affect no Coſtlineſs in their Clothing; the Men and Women of the common People are dreſs'd much alike; they have a Piece of Stuff which they call a Longuis, of about two Ells and a Half long, and three Quarters of an Ell broad, which they wrap about their Body, in the manner of a Petticoat, reaching from the Waſte below the Knee, but that of the Women reaches to their Ancles: When it is cold and rainy Weather, or that the Sun is extraordinary hot, the Men make uſe of another kind of Longuis, wherewith they cover all the reſt of their Bodies; and the Women inſtead thereof wear a kind of white Scarf: Both Men and Women cut their Heir. The Clothing of the Mandarins does not differ from that of the common People whilſt at home, ſave only that they wear finer Stuffs; but when they go abroad they wear a Longuis of Silk, or of painted Linnen, of about ſix or ſeven Ells, but ſo well fitted to them, that it hangs no lower than their Knees. The more conſiderable Mandarins have under their Longuis a ſtraight Pair of Drawers edg'd with Gold and Silver: They alſo wear Veſts that are wide in the Body and Sleeves. They wear Indian Shoes without either Shoetyes or Buckles, that they may with the more Eaſe put them off when they enter the King's Apartment. Upon ſolemn Days and Feſtivals, when they appear before the King, they have Caps on their Heads of a Pyramidal Figure, which are tied under their Chins. The King beſtows upon ſome Mandarins Coronets of Gold or Silver, much like thoſe of our Dukes, which they wear about their Caps, as a ſpecial Mark of Diſtinction and great Honour. The Siameſe are very kind and civil, and do not want Affection to Strangers, but the moſt part of them are Diſſemblers and Diſtruſtful. Neither doth Juſtice take leſs place amongſt them than Friendſhip and good Correſpondence. When any Veſſel is Shipwrack'd on the Coaſt, they are bound by Law to bring to the capital City all that can be recovered of the Cargoe, to the end it may be reſtored to the Owners, which is obſerved alſo with Reſpect to Foreigners and Strangers. They do not love Labour, but leave that Drudgery to their Slaves and Women, who are fain to till the Ground, and to take care of their Houſhold-Affairs, whilſt the Men are otherwiſe employ'd. They are no expert Seamen, no more than other Eaſtern People, the Command of the King's Ships being left to Europeans. As for their Jonkos, which is a ſort of Veſſel uſed by the Chineſe, they are commonly managed by thoſe of that Nation, who though they boaſt of having had Knowledge of the Mariners Compaſs for above two thouſand Years, yet for all that are not very expert in the Art of Navigation. The Siameſe have three and thirty Letters in their Alphabet; and they write as we do from the Left to the Right, whereas the Inhabitants of Japan, China, Cochinchina and Tonquin write from the Right to the Left, and from the Top of the Page to the Bottom. The Money of the Country is of Silver, in the Form of a Musket-bullet a little flatted: The baſeſt Money they have, is a ſort of Shells brought from the Maldive Iſlands.

They fancy that it is miſbecoming a Man to have white Teeth like the Beaſts, and therefore they blacken them with a Varniſh made on purpoſe, and to give time for the Colour to ſtick, they abſtain from eating for a Day or two. They are much addicted to the taking of Betel, Areque and Thea. The Betel is the Leaf of a Tree that bears the ſame Name; Areque is a Fruit much about the Bigneſs and Figure of one of our Acorns, which they cut into four Pieces and then mix with a Lime made of Sea-Shells, and wrap it in a Leaf of Betel; which ſtrange Mixture is ſo pleaſing to their Taſte, that all of them chew it continually whereſoever they are. And it is a great Piece of Civility amongſt them, to preſent thoſe that come to viſit them with Betel and Thea. Their own Country furniſheth them with Betel and Areque, but they have their Thea from Japan and China. All the People of this Kingdom are Slaves either to the King or the Great Lords. Nobility are not Hereditary amongſt them, the Places of Truſt and Honour which the King beſtows make Noble-men, which are only diſtinguiſh'd from the common People by theſe Offices. Though their Religion allows Polygamy, yet there are but few amongſt them that have above one or two Wives. As to the Women of Quality, the greateſt Reſpect that can be ſhewed to them, is to turn ones Back upon them when they paſs by. They are generally much addicted to their Superſtitions, and the Worſhipping of their Idols, which appears from the Multiplicity and Magnificence of their Pagodes, and by their Liberality to the Talapoins. They ſay, there are above 14000 Temples in the Kingdom, and 50000 Talapoins, which are their Prieſts or Doctors. They greatly affect Magnificence in their Funerals, the Talapoins telling them, that the greater Expences are made at any ones Obſequies, the more advantageous Lodging it procures to the Soul of the Deceaſed in the Body of ſome Prince; or at leaſt ſome conſiderable Animal; for they believe Tranſmigration.

The Funerals of Great Men are celebrated in this manner: They erect a Funeral Pile or Mauſolaum of Bamboos or great Canes, covered over with Paper of different Colours; on which they lay as much ſweet Wood as the dead Body weighs: and after that the Prieſts have repeated ſome Prayers, they light the Pile, and burn the Body to Aſhes, which are gathered up, and reſerved in Urns of Gold or Silver. They do not burn the Bodies of Malefactors that have died a ſhameful Death, but bury them.

The Religion of the Siameſe.

Their Religion cannot be known but from their Books writ in the Balic Language, which with them is the Tongue of the Learned, and very few amongſt them do underſtand; and beſides neither do theſe Books always agree together, which makes the Search into thoſe Points the more difficult. The Sum of what hath been gathered from them is to this purpoſe. They believe a God, but their Notion of him is very different from ours, for by this Word they underſtood a Supreme Being conſiſting of Spirit and Body, whoſe Property it is to help and relieve Men; that is, to give them a Law, to teach them the true Religion, with other Arts and Sciences needful to them. The Perfections they attribute to him, are the Union of all Moral Vertues, and that in the higheſt Degree. They believe his Agility to be ſuch, that in a Moment he can remove to what Diſtance he pleaſes; that he can either Appear or make himſelf Inviſible when he will; that he knows all things, and is the Teacher of all Men; that his Body is infinitely more ſhining and glorious than the Sun; that he was brought forth in Time, and doth not continue for ever; that he is become a God, after having obtain'd an abſolutely perfect Virtue in the ſeveral Bodies, through which his Soul hath paſſed from time to time, and diſengaged him from all Humane Paſſions and Motions by a great Number of Tranſmigrations. That he arrives at his higheſt Felicity when he dies never to be born again, and that he appears no more in the World. This Death is to be underſtood of the Eternal Repoſe which this God enjoys in Heaven, after a certain Number of Ages, during which he hath filled up the Number of his Elect, whom he was to bring up to the State of Saints. And then, ſay they, another takes his Place and governs the Univerſe, that is to ſay, teaches Men the true Religion. And this other God is a perfect Man, who hath merited to become a God by his good Actions, and is arrived to the higheſt Degree of Holineſs. Thoſe who have lived well here become Saints, after that they have attained abundance of Virtues, and paſs'd through many Bodies, where they have been purified from all manner of Vices; but for to become God, an incomparable Sanctity is required, and ſuch as is free from the leaſt Defect whatſoever.

They believe a Paradice and Hell, but they ſuppoſe neither the Pleaſures of the one, nor the Torments of the other to be Eternal, and that the longer or ſhorter Stay in the one or other is determined, according as one hath done more good Works, or committed more Sins. Hell, according to them, is divided into eight Manſions, which are ſo many Degrees of Puniſhment; they believe alſo, there is a Fire that burns the Damned. They diſtinguiſh alſo eight Degrees of Bliſs in Heaven; and in the three firſt of theſe Manſions they ſuppoſe there are Kings, Princes and People, and that in them the Saints do Marry. The Souls of Men that are born again into the World, according to their Opinion, come from three different Places, viz. from Heaven, Hell, or the Bodies of Animals: The Souls that come from Heaven, have always ſome advantagious Marks to diſtinguiſh them from others; they are adorned with Virtue, Beauty, Health and Riches, and are born Princes, Lords, are handſome and well-ſhap'd. This is the Ground of that Reſpect theſe People have for Perſons raiſed above others, or that are of an Illuſtrious Birth, becauſe they look upon them as Men that e'er long will become Gods or Saints at leaſt, as having deſerved that elevated State of Glory by their good Actions. They that come out of the Bodies of Beaſts, are much leſs Perfect than the former; but thoſe that come from Hell are the worſt of all, and are expoſed to all manner of Diſaſters. The Talapoins alſo teach, that there is no good Action which is not rewarded in Heaven; nor wicked which is not puniſh'd in Hell; that therefore when a vertuous Perſon dies he goes to Heaven, there to receive the Reward of his good Works; and if he be guilty of any conſiderable Sin, he dies in Heaven, to be born again in Hell, there to ſuffer the Puniſhment due to his Sin: But if he be only guilty of ſome leſſer Sins, he enters the World again, and animates the Body of ſome Beaſt; and having in that Condition ſatisfied the Demand of Juſtice, he becomes a Man again as before; and ſo a Man paſſeth from one Tranſmigration to another, until he either become a Saint or a God. They believe Angels, but ſuppoſe them to have Bodies, and of both Sexes: They diſtribute them into ſeven Ranks or Orders, allowing each Order a different Heaven; and that their Office is to watch for the Preſervation of Man, and to take care of the Government of the Univerſe. Each Part of the World hath one of theſe Intelligences to preſide over it. Stars, Earth, Cities, Mountains, Foreſts, Wind, Rain, &c. are part of the Care and Adminiſtration of Angels. They own no other Devils but the Souls of wicked Men, who being got out of Hell, wander for a time up and down the World, and do all the Miſchief to Men they can. The God whom the Siameſe worſhip at preſent is called Sommon-ok bodom, and the Talapoins ſay, that his Brother Thevathat became jealous of him, and waged War againſt him; but being unable to deprive him of his Dignity, he ſet up a new Religion, whence a Multiplicity of other Sects proceeded; and ſay, the Chriſtians have their Religion from this Thevathat, who, as they ſay, is puniſh'd in Hell for Perſecuting his Brother, and by this means endeavour to deter the People from the Chriſtian Religion. Their Doctors ſay, that Sommon-ok-hodom having taught the true Religion to Men, died never to be born again, and aſcended to the eighth Heaven, there to enjoy the moſt perfect Bliſs. His Body, ſay they, was burnt, but his Bones are preſerved till now, which are of a wonderful Vertue, and caſt a wonderful Brightneſs, that dazles the Eyes of Spectators, as a certain Mark of his Divinity. But here we are to obſerve, that the King of Siam is not carried away with this general Miſtake, neither is he led by the Talapoins in almoſt any of their ſuperſtitious Opinions, but believe an Eternal Being, whoſe Providence is continually ſuperintending the Government of the World.

The Talapoins, who are the Prieſts, Religious and Teachers of the Siameſe, are look'd upon as thoſe who live up to the Pattern their God has ſet them; they have little or no Commerce with the World; they never ſalute any Lay-man, no not the King himſelf. Their Monaſteries are ſo many Colleges for the Training up of Youth, and all the Children of Perſons of Quality are ſent thither, as ſoon as they are capable of Inſtruction. They live very auſterely and abſtemiouſly, they obey one Head, who is the Prieſt of the Great Pagode of Siam, the Capital of the Kingdom, They are cloathed in yellow Linnen, and have their Heads ſhorn; they are under a Vow of Chaſtity as long as they are Prieſts, but they may quit their Prieſthood and then marry. There are alſo a ſort of Female Religious or Nuns, but they make no Vow, nor have any peculiar Rule to obſerve. They have no particular Day in the Week ſet apart for their Devotions, beſides the Days of the four Quarters of the Moon. They obſerve a kind of Lent which laſts three Months, during which they abſtain from ſeveral ſorts of Food. They pray for the Dead, and bury them with abundance of Ceremony, for beſides Muſick, without which no conſiderable Perſons are ever buried, their Funerals are often accompanied with Stage-Repreſentations and Fire-works. They eaſily agree with thoſe that are of a different Religion, becauſe they believe that all Men may be ſaved in their own Religion, ſo they do but exerciſe themſelves in Vertue and Charity. The Common People here worſhip Dæmons or Devils, for fear they ſhould do them a Miſchief, though the Talapoins do all they can to deſtroy this Cuſtom: The Portugueſe have made ſome Endeavours to bring in Chriſtianity, but miſcarry'd in that good Deſign, as the Mahometans likewiſe have done, who try'd to bring them over to the Alchoran; but the King has ſince given the French leave to ſettle a Seminary of Miſſionaries, and 'tis to be hoped that by this means the King of Siam himſelf may be converted, and the Chriſtian Religion be ſpread through the whole Kingdom.

They give us this Syſteme of the World: They ſuppoſe the Heaven and Earth to be Uncreated and Eternal, and cannot conceive, that the World ever had a Beginning, or will have any End: The Earth, according to them, is not round, but a flat Superficies, which they divide into four ſquare Parts ſeparated from each other by Water; the whole Earth is encompaſſed with a very ſtrong and prodigious high Wall, on which Wall are ingraven in great Characters all the Secrets of Nature. In the midſt of theſe four Parts of the World, there is a very high Mountain, about which the Sun and Moon circulate continually; and by the daily Revolutions of theſe Stars, Day and Night is made. The Earth hath under it a vaſt Depth of Waters, which ſupports it, as the Water doth a Ship, and a violent Wind which blows continually keeps the Waters that ſupport the Earth from falling down. Chaumont Embaſſy of Siam, Abbot of Choiſy and Fa. Tachard Travels to Siam, la Lubere.

SIAM, the capital City of the Kingdom of Siam: The Portugueſe gave it this Name, for the Inhabitants call it Crungſi ayu tha-ya; Crungſi ſignifies Excellent City. Their Hiſtorians call it alſo Crung teppa Ppra ma hà nà Kon, i. e. The Angelical, Wonderful and Extraordinary City. They call it Angelical, becauſe they ſuppoſe it Impregnable: It is built in an Iſland, made by the River Menam (i. e. Mother of Waters) which thereabouts is very broad and deep; ſome Authors ſuppoſe it to be an Arm of the River Ganges, but they are miſtaken, for it hath its Riſe towards the Borders of Laos, from a great Mountain, it overflows every Year, and drowns all the Country about the City. The Water of it is very healthful, but it abounds with Crocodils of a monſtrous Bigneſs, which devour Men when they find them alone and unarmed. The Figure of the City is almoſt round, and is about two Leagues in Compaſs. The Suburbs which are on each ſide of the River are as large and as well built as the City. It hath many fair Streets, and Channels all along them drawn very regularly, on which one may go by Water almoſt to every Houſe in the City. The Buildings of it are of admirable Structure, and the Riches of the Temples outvy any thing that is to be ſeen elſewhere throughout all India. All their Steeples are gilt, which make a glorious Show at a diſtance. The King's Palace is upon the Bank of the River, and of ſo great a Compaſs, that one would take it for a City, and all the Towers and Pyramids of it are likewiſe gilt, and the King's and Queen's Apartments are inconceivably rich, Gold and Precious Stones dazle the Spectators Eyes whereſoever he turns them; neither is the like to be ſeen in all the Eaſt, except only in China. In the Year 1634 the Hollanders built a Houſe here, which is one of the faireſt their Eaſt-India Company have in the Eaſt. Trade hath drawn to this City many Nations, who are ſettled here; but there are none beſides the Engliſh, the Hollanders, the Portugueſe, the French, the Moors, that is to ſay, the Turks and Mahometans, and the Chineſe, that dwell in the City; other Nations are lodg'd about the City in Camps, that is to ſay, each Nation by themſelves.

Amongſt the Pagodes, or Temples of Siam, the moſt ſumptuous and magnificent is that which is in the King's Palace; at the Gate of it there is a Cow on one Side, and on the other a moſt hideous Monſter, the Inſide glitters with Gold; the Walls, the Cieling, the Pillars, and all the Figures, are ſo well gilt, that they ſeem to be covered with Plates of Gold. After one is entred ſome Paces into this Temple, there ſtands a kind of Altar, on which there are four Figures all of Maſſy Gold, much about the highth of a Man, that ſits croſs-leg'd, as is the Cuſtom of thoſe of Siam. A little farther is a kind of Quire, where is ſeen the richeſt Pagode or Idol in the Kingdom, (for this Name is given indifferently to the Temple and Idol) this Statue is ſtanding, and with his Head touching the Roof of the Temple; it is about 45 Foot high, and ſeven or eight broad, and the Wonder is, that though of this Bigneſs, yet it is all of Gold: According to the Proportion of it, it cannot take up leſs than 100 Foot ſquare, that is, 12500 Pounds of this Metal (for one Foot ſquare of Gold weighs 125 Pound) and accordingly muſt be worth at leaſt above 12500000 French Livres. They ſay, that this prodigious Coloſſus was caſt in the very Place where it ſtands, and that afterwards the Temple was built over it. At the Sides of this Coloſſus there are ſeveral other Statues of a leſs Size, which are likewiſe of Gold, and adorned with Precious Stones. About 100 Paces from the King's Palace, towards the South, is another Temple, which is not ſo ſumptuous as the former, but its Structure more fair and regular. It is built in the Form of a Croſs like our Churches, and hath five Domes at the top of it, that which ſtands in the midſt being the greateſt of all the reſt; the Roof is covered with Calin or Pewter Gilt. This Temple is adorned with 44 great Piramids very well wrought, placed round it in exact Proportion, on three Stories one above another; of theſe Pyramids ſome end in a Point, others are round at top in Form of a Dome: The whole Building, together with the Pyramids, is encloſed in a kind of ſquare Cloiſter, where along the Galleries on one Side ſtand above four hundred Statues of Brick gilt, placed in a very fine Order; the other Side next the Temple is open. Fa. Tachard's Travels to Siam, &c.

SIANGYANG, a City of China in the Province of Hunquang; it is a very conſiderable Place, and the Capital of a Country that contains ſix other Cities.

SIARA, a City and Province of South-America in Brazil. The Portugueſe have been Maſters of it of late, and have ſettled a Government there, which they call the Captainſhip of Siara. The City ſtands upon the North Sea, with a Haven and Cittadel. Two or three Ships come yearly hither to load with Cotton, Criſtal, ſome Jewels, and Brazil Wood.

SIBA, a Kingdom of India, properly ſo called, or Indoſtan, towards the Springs of Ganges and Mount Caucaſus, between Naugracut and Pitan.

SIBERIA, a great Province of Muſcovy in the Deſart Tartary, between the Provinces of Candora, Lucomoria and Permski, the Capital whereof is Siber upon the River Obb or Oby, and the ſecond is Tobol or Tobolska, which two Cities are both Sees of one and the ſame Archbiſhop; for in Muſcovia the Archbiſhops and Biſhops have two Sees. This Province is of a very large Extent, ſo that in ſome Parts thereof the Winter is not ſo violent, but in others again the Cold is ſo exceſſive, that the Ground bears neither Graſs nor Fruit. It is into theſe barren frozen Parts the Great Duke baniſheth thoſe he has a mind to be rid of. The Great Duke keeps in this City a Vice-Duke, to whom all the Governours of Siberia and Samoyeda are ſubject. A great part of this Country is Marſhy, affords little but excellent Furs, with which they trade to Archangel, and pay Tribute to the Czar. The Inhabitants ſpeak the Hungarian Language, which makes many think that the ancient Huns came hence. Their King Czar Siberski, with moſt of his Nobility, were taken Priſoners by Theodor. Ivanowick, Great Czar of Muſcovy, in 1584. Towards the Eaſt of this Country are the Tingoes and Lucomorian Tartars, who the moſt part of them are obedient to a Tartarian Prince. Olearius's Travels into Muſcovy.

SIBRANDUS, an Abbot of an Order of St. Auſtin, which in France is called the Order of Premontre: He was a very holy Perſon, and of great Eſteem in the XIII Century. He was a Friezlander by Nation, he writ the Life of St. Siard and St. Frederick. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Latin.

SIBRANDUS LUBBERT, was Profeſſor of Divinity at Franeker in Friezland, in the Beginning of the XVII Century; and very zealous for Abſolute Predeſtination: He writ againſt Grotius, and publiſh'd a Book of Socinus de Servatore, with a Refutation. Grot. Theol. Oper. Tom. IV.

SIBYLLA, the Siſter of Baldwin IV. King of Jeruſalem, and Wife to Guy of Luzignan, was at firſt married to William Longſword, Marquis of Montferrat, by whom ſhe had a Son called Baldwin, whom his Uncle made to be crowned King, by the Name of Baldwin V. but he dying a Year after he came to the Crown, Sibylla was placed on the Throne in 1186, but Heraclius, Patriarch of Jeruſalem, being put on by the Templars and Hoſpitallers, obliged her before to repudiate Guy of Luzignan, which ſhe did appearingly; but afterwards, when all had engaged themſelves by Oath to acknowledge him for their King whom ſhe ſhould chuſe for her Husband, ſhe ſet the Crown upon the Head of Guy, and openly declared, that he being her true Husband, ſhe ſhould not make Choice of any other to be King: Whereupon all the Aſſiſtants, being bound by their Oath, ſubmitted themſelves to her Choice, ſave only the Earl of Tripoli, who was in hopes of poſſeſſing her, together with the Crown. Hiſtory of St. Lewis, 1688.

SIBYLLS. This Name is given to ſome Heathen Virgins that propheſied concerning the Son of God, and ſignifies in Greek, The Council of God: Of theſe they commonly count Ten, though the Painters have made them up a Dozen. The firſt and moſt ancient of them all is Sibylla Delphica, whom ſome call Artemis; ſhe prophecied long before the Trojan War, and ſome think, that Homer inſerted ſeveral of her Verſes in his Iliads; and is the ſame whom Diodorus Siculus call'd Daphne, the Daughter of Tireſias. The ſecond is Sibylla Erythræa. The third Sibylla Cimmeria, ſo named from a Province of Italy near to Cuma. The fourth is Cumana. The fifth was Sibylla Samoſatena, whoſe proper Name was Eriphila, according to Euſebius, and Erythræa according to Solinus. The ſixth was Helleſpontiaca, born at Marpeſſus in the Helleſpont. The ſeventh was Sibylla Libyca; and the eighth Perſica; St. Juſtin Martyr ſuppoſes her to have been the Daughter of Beroſus the Hiſtorian; and others affirm, ſhe was a Jeweſs called Sambethia, and that ſhe left behind her 24 Books, in which ſhe ſpoke of the coming of the Meſſiah. The ninth was Sibylla Phrygia, who publiſh'd her Prophecies at Ancyra. The tenth is Sibylla Tiburtina call'd Albunæa, who was worſhipped as a Goddeſs. The Roman Hiſtory makes mention of nine Books which Sibylla Cumana preſented to Tarquinius Superbus, for which ſhe demanded 300 Crowns, and when he derided her, ſhe caſt three of them into the Fire, and preſented the ſix that were left; but he continuing to ſlight the Profer, ſhe burnt yet other three of them, which did ſo ſurprize the King, that he gave her the 300 Crowns ſhe had demanded, for the three that were left; and cauſed them to be ſhut up in a Stone-Cheſt, and to be ſet in the Capitol as Things Sacred, committing the Care of them to two Patricii called Duumviri; and it was to theſe the Romans had Recourſe in Caſes of great Difficulty and Neceſſity. But theſe Books having been loſt when the Capitol was burnt in Sylla's Time, 83 Years before the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt, the Conſuls propounded to the Senate to ſend Ambaſſadors into Greece and Aſia, to make a Collection of the Oracles of theſe famous Propheteſſes. Octacilius Craſſus and L. Valerius Flaccus were ſent to Attalus, King of Pergamus, and brought from thence about a thouſand Verſes attributed to the Sibylls, which private Perſons had brought to them. Fifteen Perſons were deputed by the Senate to take a Review of them, becauſe many of them ſeem'd falſe or ſuperfluous; and ſo they were put again into the Capitol, which they had rebuilt, inſtead of thoſe Books that had been burnt. In Auguſtus's Time there were burnt 2000 Verſes attributed to the Sibylls, and thoſe which were ſuppoſed true, were ſhut up in two Golden Boxes, and kept in the Temple of Apollo. Some ſay that theſe Books alſo were burnt, when Nero cauſed the City to be ſet on fire, but they alledge no convincing Proofs for it. Thus much is certain, that as long as the Heathen Emperors continued at Rome, theſe Sibylline Oracles were carefully kept, and had recourſe to for Advice on preſſing Occaſions; wherefore alſo Julian the Apoſtate, being reſolved to reſtore all the Heathen Superſtitions, cauſed theſe Books to be look'd for, and conſulted with. We have at preſent many Greek Verſes, divided into eight Books, that bear the Name of Sibylline Oracles, but many learned Men ſuppoſe they were foiſted in about the Second Century. Voſſius gives us this Diſtinction of them, he ſaith, That the ancient Books of the Sibylls, which were preſerved till the Burning of the Capitol, were altogether prophane, but that thoſe brought from Greece by Octacilius Craſſus contained ſome Prophecies that had been given by certain Jews for Sibylline Oracles, which is the reaſon of thoſe Prophecies of the Coming of the Meſſiah that are found amongſt them. And adds, That it is the laſt Book which the Fathers alledge in their Writings againſt the Heathens.

One Petit a Phyſician of Paris, hath, not long ſince, writ a Diſcourſe, wherein he endeavours to prove, that there never was any more than one Sibyll that was a Propheteſs; which he proves by ſhewing that the Authors that writ of them, do nothing elſe but claſh and contradict one another about their Number. He obſerves, that the Cauſe of this Variety of Opinions, proceeds from theſe Authors drawing wrong Conſequences from certain Paſſages of Varro, Pauſanius, Lactantius, and other ancient Writers, and likewiſe from theſe Moderns; confounding the true Sibyll with other Women pretending to Divination, He proves alſo, that the true Sibyll was a Grecian, becauſe all the Oracles aſcribed to her are in Greek Verſes, and that it is not probable that Women born at Chaldæa, Phrygia and Italy, ſhould write in Greek; and concludes, that if it ſhould be ſuppoſed, that there had been more than one, they muſt have been all of them Greeks. But Plato, Plutarch, and Dion Chryſoſtom diſtinguiſh Sibyll from others pretending to Divination, and always mention her as a ſingle Perſon: He likewiſe obſerves, That Tully never ſpeaks of Sibyll, but in the ſingular Number, and that Pliny does not affirm (as ſome would have it) that there were the Statues of three Sibylls at Rome, but three Statues of Sibyll. Then he refutes their Opinion, who ſuppoſe that all Women that pretended to the Spirit of Prophecy were called Sibylls, from the Teſtimonies of Pauſanias, Hyginus, Plutarch, Plato, Arrian, Herodotus and Xenophon. And then proceeds to prove, that the Name of this Sibyll was Herophile, and that her Native Place was the City of Erythræa in the Leſſer Aſia; and that the Diverſity of Names Authors have beſtowed upon her, was occaſioned either by her Travels, or for that the Spirit that inſpired her, tranſported her from one Place to another, and that ſhe died at Cuma in Italy. P. Petit de Sibylla. David Blondel de Sibyllis, and Iſaacus Voſſius.

SICAMBRI, a People of Ancient Germany, whom Strabo calls Sugambri, and Ptolomy, Syngambri. Some Authors ſay they inhabited between the Rhine and the Maes, where now the Country of Gelderland is; but others tell us, they dwelt along the River Main, as far as the Sea, and that in After-times they were called Franks. The Uſipeti, Teucteri and Bructeri, were Branches of this People.

SICAMBRIA, a City of Pannonia. An Inſcription found in Old Buda in Hungary, informs us it is the ſame which the Inhabitants call Alt Offen. Cluverius, Rhenanus, Ferrarius, Ortel.

SICCIUS DENTATUS, a Tribune of the People, and a Perſon of extraordinary Valour, who lived a little after the Expulſion of the Kings from Rome: He was engaged in no leſs than 120 Battles and Skirmiſhes, beſides eight ſingle Combats, wherein he always came off Conqueror. The Senate beſtowed upon him, as a Reward of his Valour, Chains, Bracelets and Crowns, with ſeveral other Marks of Honour. He had ſerved under nine Generals, who every one of them arrived to the Glory of a Triumph by his means. In theſe ſeveral Battles and Encounters he received no leſs than 45 Wounds in the Forepart of his Body, and not ſo much as one in his Back, upon which Account alſo he was honour'd with the Name of the Roman Achilles.

SICHEM, called alſo Sichima and Salem, a City in the Tribe of Ephraim, and is the ſame St. John calls Sichar. Some Authors ſuppoſe, it took its Name from Sichem, the Son of Hamor, King of that Country; but we find in Scripture that it had that Name long before his Time. It was once deſtroy'd by Jocob's Sons, and being rebuilt, was a ſecond time ruined by Abimelech, but Jeroboam built it again, and made it the Capital of his Kingdom. And it is ſtill in being to this Day under the Name of Naplouſe or New-Samaria. There were ſeveral extraordinary Things happened in this City, as we may learn from the Scripture; for, not to mention Dinah, this was Joſeph's Inheritance, and the Place where he was buried: Here likewiſe was the Well which Jacob his Father gave him; and where our Saviour converted the Samaritan Woman; here alſo, a little before the Death of Joſhua, God renewed the Covenant with the Iſraelites; and here, after the Death of Solomon, that Nation met to chuſe Rehoboam King, who, by his indiſcreet Anſwer, miſcarried at the Election. Bochard Pag. 1. SICILY, the greateſt Iſland in the Mediterranean, ancient Writers ſay, it was of old joyn'd to Italy, but was ſeparated by an Earthquake, or the beating of the Sea; it lies at the South-Weſt Point of Italy, having three great Capes, Pelorum, now Faro, to the North-Eaſt towards Italy, Pachynum, now Paſſaro, towards the Morea and the South-Eaſt, and Lilybæum, now Cape Goco, to the Weſt. Poets tell us, it was of old inhabited by Giants and Cyclopſes: It had formerly the Name of Sicania from Sicanus, a King of the Iberians, who ſettled himſelf in this Iſland, and afterwards Sicily, from the Sicilians, who at firſt inhabited the Country called Latium, from whence they were driven by the Aborigenes, and remaining ſtill in Poſſeſſion of ſome Land along the Tiber, on the Confines of Tuſcany, the Pelaſgi and Aborigenes chaſed them from thence alſo. Being thus forced to wander up and down, Morges, the Son of Italus, gave them leave to dwell in Oenotria: But their Leader, whom ſome call Siculus, having given Morges Cauſe to ſuſpect him of ſome bad Deſign, he was forced again to go ſeek a new Habitation for his People, who being driven from the Continent, had no other way but to croſs the Sea, which they did, and landed in Trinacria, and ſhared it with the Sicanians, who were ſettled there before them. No Prince was ever Sovereign of the whole Iſle till the Romans maſtered it. Dionyſius was King of Syracuſe, and ſo were likewiſe Agathocles and Hiero; and, ſince that, Sicily was for a great While the Theatre of the War between the Carthaginians and the Romans, but the latter at length remain'd the Peaceful Poſſeſſors of it. We muſt not forget that the Greeks having ſent frequent Colonies to this Iſland, became Poſſeſſors of a Part of it, and of the Kingdom of Naples, which they called Magna Græcia. In the Declining of the Roman Empire, Sicily was ravaged and uſurped by Genſeric, King of the Vandals in 439 and 440, but Beliſarius took it from them in 535. After this the Saracens got Footing here, and their Governours who were called Emirs, maintained themſelves at Palermo from about the Year 827 to 1070, when they were driven thence by the Normans, under the Conduct of Robert Guichard and Roger, the laſt of which erected a Monarchy there, and was the Father of William I. ſurnamed the Bad: His Daughter Conſtance tranſferred it to the Emperor Henry VI. her Husband, Father of Frederick II. whoſe Son was Conradus. Manfrede, Frederick's Baſtard, uſurped the Government, but was conquered by Charles of France, Duke of Anjou. This Charles I. of that Name, the Son of Lewis VIII. King of France, and Brother of St. Lewis, was inveſted with the Kingdom of Naples and Sicily. His Succeſſors that reign'd there were almoſt engaged in continual Wars with the Arragonians, who pretended a Claim to it in the Right of Conſtance, the Daughter of the Baſtard Manfrede, who was married to Peter III. King of Arragon. In his Time the Sicilians maſſacred all the French Men that were in the Iſle, at the Hour of Even-Song, on Eaſter-Eve in 1282, which they call the Sicilian Veſpers. Since which Time Sicily came into the Power of the Spaniards, who have a Vice-roy there. Sicily is divided into three Provinces, Val di Demona, Val di Noto, and Val di Mazara: Its Capital is Palermo, being the Reſidence of the Vice-roy and an Archbiſhop's See, as well as Meſſina and Mont-real; Girgenti, Lipari, Cefalu, Patti, Saragoſe, Mazara and Catanea are Biſhops Sees, and the laſt of theſe is alſo an Univerſity. The other Cities are Trepano, Termini, Caronia, Naro, Lo, Tindaro, Xacca, Melazzo, Alciata, Caſtro, Joanni, &c. Sicily is extremely fruitful in Corn and all manner of Fruits, and therefore of old was called the Granary of Rome. Mount Ætna, now Gibello, is famous for the Flames it caſts. In this Iſland are three Archbiſhops Sees, ſeven Biſhopricks, and one Univerſity. In 1647 the Inhabitants forced the Spaniards to recall their Taxes. Sicily lies 380 Miles from the Morea, 100 from Africa, 170 from Sardinia, from Italy a Mile and a half. Cluverius ſaith, that the length of the North Side is 250 Miles, the Southern 190, and the Weſtern 155. It had anciently 73 free Cities. *Cluver. deſc. Sicil. Antiq. Leand. Albert. deſc. Sicil. Thomas Fazel. Hiſt. de Sicil. & reb. Sicul. Rerum Sicular. Scriptores Wilhelm. Hiſt. Norman in Sicil. Goltz. SICYON, a City of the Peloponneſus, formerly very conſiderable, which is now ruined; the Place which has been built upon the Ruins belongs to the Turks, and is called Vaſilica. The Kingdom of the Sicyonians in Europe is the moſt ancient Kingdom whereof we have any Records. Ægialeus was the firſt King, A. M. 1890, this Kingdom laſted 964 Years, and the laſt King Zeuzippus died after a Reign of 33 Years in 2854, and after him the Government was transferred during 35 Years to the Prieſts of Apollo, until the Year 2887, when the Kings of Mycenæ, and other neighbouring People wholly ſubdued it. This City was taken by Alexander the Great. In the Year of the Seleucidæ 115, it was beſieged by Antiochus Magnus, being then in the hands of Ptolomy, King of Egypt, and was taken by Hunger, Anno Chriſti 636. The Saracens made themſelves Maſters of it, but were diſpoſſeſſed by Baldwin, King of Jeruſalem, in 1103. St. Lewis of France fortified it in 1250. See *Seyde. Diod. Sicul. Thucidyd. Plin. SIDA, or Side, a Sea Town of Pamphylia in the Leſſer Aſia, called alſo by ſome Authors Scandalor, Candelobora and Chiriſonda. It lies upon the Mediterranean, at the farther End of Iſauria: It was formerly an Archbiſhop's See, but is now almoſt ruined. Amphilochius, Biſhop of Iconium, celebrated a Council here in this City againſt the Maſalians in 385. Some Authors think, that the Council of the Eaſt, conven'd in 427 againſt the ſame Hereticks, was alſo kept at Sida.

SIDEROCAPSA, a City of Macedonia, where Philip, the Father of Alexander the Great, cauſed a Gold-Cain, call'd Golden Philips, to be coin'd, after that Crenidas had diſcover'd the Gold Mines there, and wrought them; which Mines afforded King Philip a thouſand Talents of Gold a Year, and do ſtill yield the Grand Signior nine or ten thouſand Ducats a Month. There are no leſs than five or ſix hundred Furnaces for the melting of Gold in the Mountains near this City. Diodor.

SIDITES (Marcellus) lived in the Time of Marcus Antonius. He writ ſome Books of Medicine in Verſe, and A Treatiſe of Fiſhes. Caſſiodorus makes mention of him.

SIDNACESTER, a Biſhop's See in the County of Lincoln, which continued ſo from Eadhedus, inſtalled Biſhop thereof, An. 678, till the Death of Eadulphus II. about the latter end of the next Century.

SIDNEY. This Family had their Original from Sir William Sidney, who came from Anjou with King Henry II. whoſe Chamberlain he was; from him deſcended another William, who accompanied the Lord d'Arcy into Spain againſt the Moors in the Third of Henry VIII. by whom he was employ'd againſt the French by Sea, and againſt the Scots at Floddon Field: He ſignaliz'd his Valour at ſeveral Turnaments in France, was Chamberlain and Steward to King Henry VIII. in the fifteenth of his Reign, and accompanied the Duke of Suffolk in his Expedition againſt France, where he aſſiſted at the taking of ſeveral Places of Strength. He died the ſeventh of May, 26 Edw. VI. aged ſeventy, and was ſucceeded by his Son Henry, who was Knighted by Edward VI. and made his chief Cupbearer for Life; and ſent Embaſſador into France at 22 Years of Age, afterwards made Vice-Treaſurer, Governour of the Revenues, and Juſtice of Ireland in the Reign of Philip and Mary: He was ſent Embaſſador by Queen Elizabeth into France and Scotland, made Knight of the Garter, and Deputy of Ireland, where he ſuppreſſed the Rebellion of Shan O Neale, and ſet his Head on Dublin Caſtle: He quelled alſo the Inſurrection of the Butlers and Clanrickerds: He divided the Country into Shires, and built the Bridge of Athlone, fortified that Town, as alſo Caricfergus, Athenry, &c. He built Rooms in Dublin Caſtle to preſerve the Records of that Kingdom, the Statutes of which he ordered to be printed. He died at the Biſhop of Worceſter's Palace, An. 1586, aged 57. His Corps was buried at Penſhurſt in Kent, and his Heart, in the Town of his Daughter Ambroſia, at Ludlow, the Caſtle of which he repaired when Preſident of Wales. His Wife was Mary, eldeſt Daughter to John, Duke of Northumberland, by whom he had three Sons, Sir Philip, Sir Robert and Sir Thomas. Sir Philip dying of his Wounds before Zutphen, his Brother Robert ſucceeded, and was made Governour of Fluſhing and Ramkeyns, two cautionary Towns in Queen Elizabeth's hands in the Netherlands; and in 1597, being joyn'd in Command of the Engliſh Auxiliaries with Sir Francis Vere, ſhar'd in the Honour of the Victory over the Spaniards at Turnholt. In the firſt of King James he was created Lord Sidney of Penſhurſt in Kent, made Lord Chamberlain to the Queen, and on the fourth of May, 3 Jacob. advanced to the Honour of Viſcount L'Iſle, 14. Jac. made Knight of the Garter, and 16 Jac. Earl of Leiceſter. His firſt Wife was Daughter to John Gamage, Eſq; by whom he had three Sons and eight Daughters. His ſecond

Wiſe was Daughter of Sir Thomas Smith; he died at Penſhurſt 1626, and was ſucceeded by his Son Robert, who married the Lady Dorothy, Daughter to Henry, late Earl of Northumberland, by whom he had four Sons, Philip, the preſent Earl, Robert, Algernon and Henry; eight Daughters, Dorothy married to Henry, Earl of Sunderland, Lucy to Sir John Pelham of Laughton, Com. Suſſ. Baronet, Anne to a late Divine, Elizabeth to . . . . . Cart in Ireland, Mary and Diana both died young, Francis and Iſabella of whom we have no Account. Philip, the . . . Viſcount Strangford, married Catharine, Daughter to William, Earl of Saliſbury, by whom he hath a Son called Robert, the preſent Earl of Leiceſter, who married Elizabeth, Daughter to John, Earl of Bridgewater, and two Daughters Dorothy married to Thomas, Son to Sir Thomas Cheek, Com. Eſſex Knight, and Elizabeth who died young. Dugdale.

SIDNEY (Sir Philip) one of the greateſt Worthies ever born in England, was Son to Sir Henry Sidney, Lord Deputy of Ireland, as aforeſaid, by Mary, Daughter to Sir John Dudley, Duke of Northumberland, in his very Childhood he appeared to have extraordinary Endowments of Nature, and having made remarkable Proficiency at School, he was ſent to Oxford, where he became a Mirror of Learning: He was invited to Court by his Uncle, the Earl of Leiceſter, and became a great Favourite of the Queen's: He was of comely Preſence, and had a natural Propenſion to Arms: Queen Elizabeth ſent him Embaſſador to the Emperor, in which Station he behaved himſelf to Her Majeſty's Glory and his own Honour: His Fame was ſo great, that the Polanders propoſed him for their King; but the Queen would not allow of it, unwilling to loſe ſuch a Subject. Whilſt he was at Court he compoſed his Arcadia, which ſome ſay, he ordered to be burnt at his Death. He tranſlated part of that excellent Treatiſe of Philip Mornay, Of the Truth of Religion; and ſeveral other Pieces. He is univerſally applauded, and hath large Elogies given him by all our Hiſtorians ſince his Time, and particularly by Sir Richard Baker, who ſays, he had ſo many excellent Parts of Art and Nature, Valour and Learning, Wit and Magnanimity, that as he equal'd all thoſe of former Ages, ſo the future will ſcarce match him; nor have Poets been wanting to offer Hecatombs of Verſes in his Praiſe, particularly the Royal Poet King James I. who wrote of him thus:

When Venus ſaw the Noble Sidney dying,
She thought it her Beloved Mars had been;
And with the Thought thereof ſhe fell a crying,
And caſt away her Rings and Carkneſs clean,
He that in Death a Goddeſs mock'd and griev'd,
What had he done (trow you) if he had liv'd.

He went over into Flanders with the Forces ſent by the Queen to aſſiſt the States, and was made Governour of Fluſhing and Ramekins: He aſſumed this Motto, Vix ea noſtra voco; gave great Proof of his Valour at the taking of Axel, where he animated his Soldiers by a noble Speech, and took the ſtrong Town of Dorp; but in the Career of his Victories encountering with the Spaniards near Zutphen, he was unfortunately ſhot in the Thigh whereof he died, behaving himſelf during his Sickneſs in a very Chriſtian and Religious manner: His extraordinary Qualities made him to be courted by all the Potentates of Europe. His Death, ſays one, was lamented by the Queen, mourn'd for by the Court, bemoan'd by Europe, and wept over by Religion and Learning. Queen Elizabeth called him her Philip, the Prince of Orange his Maſter; my Lord Brook was ſo proud of his Friendſhip, that he would have no other Epitaph on his Grave than this, Here lies Sir Philip Sidney*'s Friend*. His laſt Words were, Govern your Will and Affection by the Will and Word of your Creator: In me behold the End of this World, and all its Vanities.

SIDON, a Sea-Port Town of Phœnicia in Syria, which is ſuppoſed to have been built by Sidon, the Son of Canaan, and is mentioned in the Book of Joſhua as one of the greateſt Cities at that time; and was alſo very famous, as well by its extraordinary Trade and Riches of its Inhabitants, as by the great Skill and Dexterity of its Artificers: It was here that Glaſs was firſt made. In the time that the Chriſtians were Poſſeſſors of the Holy Land, it was an Epiſcopal See under the Archbiſhop of Tyre. After that the Chriſtians had taken Jeruſalem, Euſtache Garnier, Lord of Cæſarea, had the City of Sidon beſtowed upon him, then called Seyde, and had divers Succeſſors who were Lords of it. Guiboba, a Tartarian Captain, took it in 1260, and in proceſs of time it came into the Hands of the Turks, who at preſent are Maſters of it, and have been for above 150 Years. Sidon to this Day is ſtill much frequented by Merchants. It is two Days Journey from Damaſcus, and about the ſame diſtance from Bairut. Concerning the Name and Antiquity of Sidon, ſee Bochart's Phaleg. Lib. 4. SIDONIUS APOLLINARIS (Caius Sollius) Biſhop of Clermont in Auvergne in France, was one of the moſt famous Prelates of the Fifth Century. His Birth, Wit, Learning, Worth and Piety, made him highly reccommendable. His Father had been Præfectus Prætorio, that is, Lord-Lieutenant, under the Emperor Honorius: He was born at Lions, and bred to Learning under Euſebius and Hoenius; the firſt taught him Philoſophy, and the other Rhetorick and Poetry, and attained to that Reputation for Learning, as to be eſteem'd the greateſt Man of his time. The Emperor Anthemius ſent for him to Rome, and was at the Marriage-Feaſt of Ricimer, that married Anthemius his Daughter. He pronounced a Panegyrick in Verſe, in Praiſe of that Prince, and for a Reward was made Governour of the City, and afterwards a Patrician. Avitus his Father-in-Law erected his Statue in the Library that was in the Market-place of Trajan; and Majorianus, when he celebrated the Circenſian Games at Arles, made him ſit down at Table with him, where he pronounced Panegyricks to them both. He had by Papinilla the Daughter of Avitus, a Son called Apollinaris, and two Daughters Roſcia and Severiana. He was employ'd in Embaſſies of great Importance, which he diſcharged with a great deal of Prudence and Addreſs. His Father-in-Law having been forced to quit the Empire, and Majorianus proſecuting thoſe of his Party among the Gauls, Sidonius was taken at Lions, and put in Priſon for ſome time; but the Emperor perceiving his Worth, not only reſtored him to his Liberty and all his Places, but heap'd new Honour upon him, and made uſe of him to treat a League with Theodorick. Afterwards upon the Death of Eparchius, Biſhop of Clermont in 472, Sidonius was put into his Place, notwithſtanding all his Reſiſtance, and immediately thereupon renounced all his Secular Dignities, which he left to his Son, and wholly applied himſelf to the Study of Divinity. His Charity to the Poor was very extraordinary; for it is recorded of him, that at a time when the Famine raged in Burgundy, he fed 4000 of the Inhabitants. He ſuffered much at the Siege of Clermont by the Goths, and by the Perſecution of Hereticks. He died on a Saturday, Auguſt 23. 482, being about Fifty two Years of Age. We have Nine Books of his Epiſtles, and about Twenty Pieces of his in Verſe, Peter Colvius, John Savaron, and Father Sirmond have publiſh'd his Works with their learned Obſervations, to which is prefixed the Life of this Prelate. *Gennad. de vir. SIENNE, or Siena, Sena, a City of Hetruria in Italy, with an Arch-biſhops See and Univerſity; it is of great Antiquity and a Roman Colony, it is ſeated in the Borders of the Dukedom of Florence in the midſt of Mountains, which makes its Situation very ſtrong: It is one of the greateſt Cities of Italy, and very conſiderable for its Cittadel, its Palace and Churches. The Cathedral is in a manner wholly built of black and white Marble. The Pavement of the Church is of Moſaick Work, adorn'd with rich Figures, which repreſent divers Hiſtories of the Old Teſtament: The Roof of its Azure, ſpangled with Golden Stars. The great Hoſpital, the Convents of the Dominicans and Cordeliers, the Palaces and the Streets are very Sumptuous and Magnificent. It is alſo accommodated and beautified with ſeveral curious Fountains, of which that of Branda in the great Square is the chief. But two Things eſpecially are moſt remarkable in this City, whereof the firſt is, that all the Houſes are of the ſame Architecture, or manner of Building, ſupported with Arches that make it of a round Figure: The other is, that it is made in the manner of a Shell, hollow in the midſt. But that which is yet more curious, is, that it may be fill'd with the Fountain Water, and ſo make a kind of great Lake, on which a Sea-fight may be repreſented in Imitation of the Romans of Old. Sienna was built by the Galli Senones after the Taking of Rome by Brennus. Upon the declining of the Empire under Honorius, it became ſubject to great Viciſſitudes, and was under divers Maſters, till it was made a Republick; but now at laſt is under the Dominion of the Great Dukes of Tuſcany, who bought it from the Spaniards in 1558. The Inhabitants are ingenious and courteous, and ſpeak Italian more politely than in any other part of Italy. The Inhabitants purchaſed their Freedom of Rodolphus the German Emperor, and ſupported themſelves with various Succeſs, till the Year 1555, that it was taken the 21ſt of April by the Emperor's Forces, after a Siege of eight Months, Coſmus, Duke of Florence, being reduced to extreme Want, and having no proſpect of Relief. This Town is famed for being the Birthplace of Alexander III. Pius II. Pius III. and Alexander VII. and alſo for St. Catherine of Sienna, of whom in their proper places. In the 4th Seſſion of the Council of Conſtance held in 1418, there was another general Council appointed to convene at Pavia in 1421, and to this purpoſe; Pope Martin the 5th ſent his Legates thither, who were met there by ſeveral French and German Biſhops, but the Plague making a terrible Ravage in the Town, the Council was adjourn'd to Sienna, where it began the 8th of November, and ended in February in the Year following: In this Council, the farther Proſecution of the Huſſites was reſolv'd on: Here likewiſe the Depoſition of the Anti-Pope Bennet XIII. was confirm'd: Here alſo the Fathers made ſome Propoſals concerning the Union of the Greek and Latin Churches: And laſtly, here it was that they pitch'd upon the Town of Baſil, for the Holding of a General Council, which was to meet 1431.

ſus, King of Arragon, who ſupported the pretended Pope, ſent Ambaſſadors to Sienna, where the Prelates being not perfectly unanimous, made the Pope make uſe of the Rumours of a Plague being there, to diſſolve the Council. *Malavolti Hiſt. SIERRA LIONA, that is, The Mountain of the Lioneſs, a Kingdom upon the the Frontiers of Nigritia or Nigritarum Terra, and Guinea in Africa, which takes its Name from a Chain of Mountains that reach to the Sea-Shore, becauſe the Waves of the Sea beating againſt a Rock joining to the End of them, makes a Noiſe reſembling the Roaring of a Lioneſs; as alſo, becauſe on the top of theſe Mountains are formed Lightnings and Thunders, which may be heard twenty or thirty Leagues off at Sea. This Kingdom begins at Cape de Verga, and ends at Cape Tagrin. The Ground is ſo fertil, that Oranges, Citrons, Figs and Raiſins, do grow there in abundance, and almoſt without any Culture. They make excellent Wine here, and Oyl of Dates; and of the Dregs of this Wine mixed with Oyl they make a kind of Soap, that far outvies any that is made in Europe. Sugar-Canes alſo grow here in abundance, eſpecially in the Iſles called de las Sombreras. There is alſo great Store of Cotton, and a ſort of Red-Wood, much better than that which is brought from Brazil, becauſe it will ſerve to Dye ſeven ſeveral times, beſides Wax, Ivory, Ambergreaſe, and round and long Pepper, which is more eſteem'd than that which comes from the Indies; for which Reaſon the King of Spain will not ſuffer it to be imported into his Kingdoms; but the Engliſh, Hollanders and French, who trade on this Coaſt, bring it into Europe. There have been alſo of late diſcovered ſome Mines of Gold and Iron. In the Mountain of Machamala there is a great Rock of Cryſtal, where are ſeen divers Pyramids of the ſame Matter turned upſide down, and as it were hanging in the Air, which being ſtruck at the Bottom with ones Finger, reſound like a Bell. There are three ſorts of Apes found in this Country, whereof thoſe called Baris are taken when they are young, to tame them and make them gentle, for they are very teachable, and after a little Uſe and Inſtruction they do their Owners almoſt as much Service as a Slave can; for they commonly walk upright like Men, they can pound Millet in a Morter, fetch Water from the Well or River, turn the Spit, and play a thouſand Tricks beſides to make their Maſters merry. The Engliſh had built a Fort here in a little Iſland in the River Sierra Liona; but the Hollanders took it in 1664, under the Conduct of De Ruiter.

The Inhabitants of Sierra Liona are rather Tawny than Black; they mark their Faces and other Parts of their Bodies with an hot Iron, and pierce their Ears and Noſe to hang Jewels in them; they go almoſt ſtark naked, wearing only a Piece of Linnen about their Waſte. There be two ſorts of Negroes in this Kingdom: The ancient Inhabitants of it are called Capez, and are the moſt ingenious of all Guinea; but living in a plentiful Country, they love their Eaſe, and hate Labour and War. The other ſort are called Cumbas or Manes, that is to ſay, Men-Eaters, becauſe Canibals and very brutal beſides. In the Year 1515 they made an Irruption into the Country of the Capez; and ſeeing the Fruitfulneſs thereof, reſolved to ſettle themſelves in thoſe Parts of it they liked beſt, after they had driven away ſome of the Capez, ſold others of them to the Portugueſe, and eaten the reſt; inſomuch, that theſe miſerable Wretches were fain to caſt themſelves into the Arms of the Portugueſe, deſiring them to make them their Slaves, that they might be ſafe from the Hands of thoſe barbarous People. In every Town or Village they have a great Houſe where the Young-Women are inſtructed a whole Year, at the End of which the whole Company of them, with the Sound of Muſical Inſtruments, are led in Pomp to a Place where they dance in preſence of their Fathers, and of a great Number of Young Men, and when the Ball is ended, the Young-Men chuſe whom they like beſt to be their Wives, after having given a Preſent to their Fathers.

They are govern'd by a King, who does Juſtice to his Subjects himſelf, accompanied with a certain Number of Counſellors. Thoſe that plead before him have a Vizard on their Faces, that they may not be known, and to the end they may ſpeak with the greater Boldneſs and Freedom. The Enſign of the Royal Dignity is a kind of Ax or Hatchet, with which they cut off the Heads of Malefactors. Fa Barreira the Jeſuit in 1607 preached Chriſtianity here, and had ſo good Succeſs, that he baptized the King, his Family, and ſeveral other Perſons. The Portugueſe gave this Prince the Name of Dom Philip de Lion, alluding to his Kingdom of Sierra Liona. But though the preſent King be baptiz'd, yet he tolerates Idolatry, for fear of making his Subjects revolt. Dapper. Deſcription of Africa.

SIERRAS NEVADAS, that is to ſay, The Snowy Mountains, is a Mountain of Caſtillo del oro in South America: It is about forty Leagues long, and the higheſt, or at leaſt one of the higheſt in the World, as being two Leagues in height, which makes the Top of it to be always covered with Snow in the greateſt Heat of Summer, though very exceſſive in that Country, as lying near the Line. A Part of theſe Mountains, and the Plains that are at the Foot of 'em, are inhabited by a ſort of Pygmies, who always abide within the Limits of their Territory, without ever coming out of it: They entertain no Commerce or Converſe with other Men, but flee from them, and hide themſelves in the Holes and Caves of the Earth, when they ſee any of our Stature. They live upon Bread made of Millet, and make themſelves a kind of Drink with the Berries or Roots of a certain Shrub called Magure. Memoires du Temps.

SIFANO, or Siſanto, formerly called Siphnos or Siphanos, an Iſle in the Archipelago, on the Coaſt of Europe. It was famous of Old by reaſon of its Gold and Silver Mines, the Tythe whereof they ſent to the Temple of Apollo at Delphos. It hath a Town called Sckinuſa, ſtanding upon an high Hill. The Inhabitants are divided in their Religion, ſome of them being of the Romiſh, other of the Eaſtern or Greek Church. They pretend they have ſtill a Gold Mine in the Iſland, but that they conceal it for fear of the Turks. Herodot. Lib. 3.

SIFRIDE, a Prieſt of Meiſſen in Saxony, liv'd in the XIV Century, to the Year 1308. He wrote a Chronicle or Hiſtorical Abridgment from the Beginning of the World to 1307: Fabricius, who publiſh'd this Work, begins at the Year 458, omitting the reſt, poſſibly becauſe he believ'd it to be writ by other Authors: This Work is inſerted in the Collection of the Authors of the Hiſtory of Germany. *Voſſius de Hiſt. SIGA, a City of Africa, in the Province of Tremiſen, belonging to the Kingdom of Algiers, with a Haven on the Mediterranean. It was formerly called the Court of Syphax. It is now called Hareſgol, and the River Siga, which runs by it into the Sea, Teſnet. Marmol. deſcriptio Africæ.

SIGALEON, the Name of an Idol of the Ægyptians, worſhipped in their Temples of Iſis and Serapis, in the Form of a Young-Man keeping his Mouth ſhut with his Finger, as an Emblem of Silence, and accordingly was taken for the God of Secrecy or Silence. Authors generally agree, that Sigaleon was the ſame with Harpocrates, and that the Egyptians uſed both theſe Names indifferently to ſignifie the God of Silence.

SIGAN, a City of China, being the Capital of 35 other Cities in the Province of Xenſi. Martin. Martini Atl. Sinic.

SIGBRITTA, a poor Woman of the Low Countries, who being come to Norwey with her Daughter, it happened that the Chancellor of the Kingdom highly praiſed her Beauty to Chriſtierne, the Son of John I. King of Denmark, who being paſſionately enamour'd on her, ſo that he lodg'd her, together with her Mother, in his Palace; and being come to the Crown in 1513, he made her the Miſtreſs of all his Actions: The greateſt Men of the Kingdom were fain to expect her Orders at the Palace-Gate, and the Queen was forced to ſuffer her to be preſent at her Labour; ſhe alſo took one of the Queen's Sons, called John, home with her, to take care of his Education. The Pride of Sigbritta, and the Effeminacy of Chriſtiern, at laſt awakened the Indignation of both Nobles and People, who placed his Uncle Frederick, the firſt Duke of Holſtein, upon the Throne in 1523: Whereupon Chriſtiern fled with his Treaſure and his Sigbritta into Holland, where he ended his Life in Obſcurity and Effeminacy. Spener.

SIGE, a Promontory and City of Troas, which formerly was a Biſhop's See. It is now ruined, and the Promontory is known by the Name of Capo Janizari.

SIGEBERT, the firſt of that Name King of Auſtraſia, was the Son of Lotharius I. and Ingonda. He kept his Court at Mets and not at Reims, and married Brunehaud, the Daughter of Athanagildus, King of the Wiſigoths. In 567 the Lombards being joined with the Huns, the Avari and Eruli, invaded his Country, but he defeated them: In a ſecond Battle he fought with them, he had not the ſame Succeſs; for the French Men being affrighted with the Spectres which theſe Barbarians by Magick Art made to appear, betook themſelves to Flight; whereupon the King was fain by a Sum of Money to ranſom himſelf and his People from inevitable Ruin. Whilſt he was engaged in this War, his Brother Chilperic took Reims, and ſome other Cities in Champagne; but Sigebert revenged this Affront by taking Soiſſons, defeated his Brother's Army, and kept his Son Theodebert a Priſoner at Pontion; but ſoon after made Peace with him. Afterwards he took the City of Arles from his other Brother Gontran, but loſt it again in a ſhort time. He defeated the Lombards that ravaged his Country. In 573 he was again attack'd and defeated by his Brother; whereupon he raiſed an Army chiefly compoſed of barbarous Nations, and came againſt him; Chilperic ſeeing him ready to fall into his Country with thoſe Foreigners, deſired Peace, which he generouſly granted: But having been forced to this Peace, he ſoon after took up Arms again; and Sigebert engaging him, he kill'd Theodebert his Son by one of his Generals called Boſon, took away his Dominions, and forced him to ſhut up himſelf at Tournay. Sigebert going to lay Seige to that City, Fredegonda, Chilperic's Wife, cauſed him to be murthered in 575 at Vitri, by two Men whom ſhe had furniſh'd with poiſon'd Knives. Sigebert was forty Years of Age when he died, of which he had reigned fourteen. He was a liberal and generous Prince, witty, and of great Sweetneſs and Affability. Fortunatus of Poitiers ſaith, that he was rather the Father than the King of his People. *Gregor. SIGEBERT, who ſome ſay was the ſecond of that Name, was born in 601 or 602 to Thierri II. King of Burgundy and Auſtraſia, by one of his Concubines. Queen Brunehaud placed him in his Father's Throne, in hope of Reigning under his Name; but Clotharius II. to whom he was delivered by his own Subjects, cauſed him to be put to Death in 613 or 614. *St. Marthan Hiſt. de France. SIGEBERT II. (or as others III.) ſurnamed the Young, was the Son of Dagobert I. King of France, and of Ragnetaude: He was born in 630 or 636. His Father being at Muiz made him King of Auſtraſia, and appointed him for Counſellors. Cunibert, Biſhop of Cologne and Adaſgiſus. He died the firſt of February 650.

SIGEBERT, Monk of the Abby of Gemblours, in the Dioceſe of Namur in Brabant, was an Author of Character towards the End of the XIth and Beginning of the XIIth Century. He taught for ſome time in the Monaſtery of St. Vincent of Metz; but afterwards retiring to his own Abby, he there publiſh'd divers Works, the moſt conſiderable of them is a Chronicle, which he begins with the Year 379, and continues it till 1112, the Year before Sigebert died. He left alſo a Treatiſe of famous Men, publiſh'd by Albert le Mire, the Life of Sigebert III. King of Auſtraſia, and that of St. Maclovius, &c. He alſo writ an Apology for the Married Prieſts, which is loſt; the Title of it was, Apologia ad Henricum Imperat. contra eos qui calumniabantur Miſſas Conjugatorum Presbyterorum. Baron. in Annal. Bellarm. de ſcript. Eccleſ. Sextus Senenſis, Poſſevin. Voſſius.

SIGEE (Louiſe, called Aloiſia Sigea) was born at Toledo in Spain, but the Daughter of Diego Sigea originally of France. Being a very learned Man, and finding his Daughter capable, he inſtructed her in the Tongues and Philoſophy: She underſtood Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Syriack and Arabick, and writ a Letter in theſe five ſeveral Languages to Pope Paul. Her Father was afterwards called to the Court of John III. of Portugal, and was Maſter to Theodoſius of Portugal, Duke of Braganza, and ſome other young Lords; and it is ſaid, that he was the firſt that intruduced the Love of Learning into that Court, whither he brought with him his Louiſe and plac'd her with the Infanta Maria of Portugal, who alſo wos a Lover of Learning. She writ a Latin Poem called Sintra, which was the Name of a City in Portugal, which ſhe dedicated to the Infanta, and a Dialogue De differentia vitæ Ruſticæ & Urbanæ; beſides which there are ſeveral Pieces in Verſe and Epiſtles attributed to her. But the Book which paſſeth under her Name, De Arcanis Amoris & Veneris, is more modern, neither doth the Matter comport with her Modeſty and Vercue. She died young the thirteenth of October, 1560. Vaſee Chron. Hiſp. Cap. 9. Alphonſ. de Madrit. Hiſt. Palent. Eccl.

SIGERIC, King of the Goths in Spain, was ſet upon the Throne by his Army, after the Death of Ataulphus in 415. But appearing inclin'd to make Peace with the Romans, thoſe who had ſet the Crown upon his Head took away his Life, ſix or ſeven Months after his Election. Proſper & Iſidor. in Chron.

SIGETH, or Zigeth, Sigetu, Salinæ, a ſtrong Town in the Lower-Hungary, ſeated in a Moraſs or Mooriſh Ground near the River Alme, two Hungarian Miles from the Drave, ſeven from Alba Regalis to the South, and five from Quinque Eccleſiæ Funfkirchen to the Weſt. It has a very ſtrong Caſtle, and is fortified with three Ditches and as many Walls. Solyman II. Emperor of the Turks, died at the Siege of it the fourth of September, which was the ſecond Month of the Siege, and the Place was taken three Days after in 1566, Nicolas Eſdrin, Count of Serini, who was Governour of it, being ſlain in a Sally he made at the Head of his remaining Forces. It was again ſurrendred to the Emperor January 15. 1688, at which time the Imperialiſts found therein 85 Pieces of Cannon. There is another Town of the ſame Name in Tranſylvania, near the Fountains of the Tibiſcus. Thuan. Hiſt. Lib. 39.

SIGISMUND, Emperor, King of Hungary and Bohemia, was of the Houſe of Luxemburk, and the Son of Charles IV. and Brother of Wenceſlaus, Emperors. He married Mary, the Daughter of Lewis I. King of Hungary, and appeaſed the Troubles that then ſhook the Government. And to the end he might ſtrengthen himſelf the more, he got himſelf Crown'd in 1392, at twenty Years of Age. His Enemies called Bajazet, Emperor of the Turks, into Hungary, where Sigiſmund received a conſiderable Succour of French Men, under the Command of John of Burgundy; but the Chriſtians were worſted by the Turks in 1386. Upon this Diſaſter the King durſt not return to his own Dominions, but wandred a long time in Miſery, and unknown at Conſtantinople and Rhodes: At laſt he was taken Priſoner by his own Subjects, and was not reſtored to his Kingdom till 1401. In the mean time, the Emperor Wenceſlans having made himſelf contemptible by his Vices, Robert, Prince Palatine of the Rhine, and Duke of Bavaria, was put into his Place; who dying in 1410, Sigiſmund was choſen Emperor, who being one of the Electors named himſelf. He contributed very much to the convening of the Councils of Conſtance and Baſil, and for three Years together travelled over all Europe, came to France, paſſed over into England, went to Italy, and neglected nothing that he thought might conduce to that Work. His Brother Wenceſlaus had left the Kingdom of Bohemia to him, but he had much ado to obtain the quiet Poſſeſſion of it, being oppoſed by the Huſſites, who ſeveral times defeated his Forces; but, however, at laſt he got to be Crown'd King of that Kingdom: He alſo receiv'd the Crown of Iron at Milan, and that of Gold at Rome by the Hands of Pope Eugenius IV. on Whitſunday, and died at Znaim in Moravia the eighth of Decemb. 1437, being ſeventy Years of Age. Sigiſmund was a handſom Prince, liberal, generous, and a Lover of Learning; he ſpoke ſeveral Languages, and was a great Prince in time of Peace, but unhappy in War. Spondanus & Rainaldi in Annal. Eccl.

SIGISMUND, the firſt of that Name, King of Poland, for his extraordinary Atchievements ſurnamed the Great, was the Son of Caſimire II. and Brother of John Albert and Alexander, all of them Kings, the former dying in 1501, and the latter in 1506. He had upon many Occaſions given moſt ſignal Marks of his Valour and Prudence; wherefore on the Death of his Brother, he was without any Diſpute advanced to the Throne, being forty Years of Age; the Commonwealth at that time ſtanding in great need of ſuch a Prince to reſtore it to its ancient Luſtre and Glory, from whence it had much declined: Sigiſmund ſet himſelf to this Work, and ſucceeded in his Deſign. He beat the Muſcovites, and drove them out of Lithuania in 1519; He extended the Borders of his Dominions, govern'd his Subjects wiſely and happily, and was highly eſteem'd of by the Princes of his Time. He died on Eaſter-Day, 1548, being above eighty Years of Age, of which he had reigned 42. Cromer Hiſt. of Poland. Salomon Neugebaver. Hiſt. Polon. Bernard Vapovius in Sigiſm.

SIGISMUND II. ſurnamed Auguſtus, the Son of Sigiſmund I. King of Poland, ſucceeded his Father in 1548, and was the laſt King of the Jagellon Race. His Wife Iſabella of Auſtria, one of the two Daughters of Ferdinand, King of the Romans, being deceaſed, he caſt his Eyes upon Barbe Radzivil, the Daughter of a Caſtelan, and the Widow of a Palatin of Lithuania, and was ſo taken with her Beauty, that he would needs marry her, notwithſtanding the Diſſuaſions of his Mother, the Princeſſes his Siſters, the Nobility and Senate of Poland; and at laſt obliged the Gentlemen and Senators of the Kingdom to acknowledge her his lawful Wife, and Queen of Poland. The Poliſh Nobility having thus far complied with their King, beg'd a Favour of him alſo, which was, That they might have Leave to ſend their Children to the Proteſtant Univerſities of Germany, repreſenting to him, as the Ground of their Petition, that the Profeſſors of thoſe Univerſities were better provided with learned Profeſſors than others, which the King granted them; though it afterwards prov'd a means to bring the Reformation into Poland. Thoſe of the Church of Rome petition'd the King to the contrary; but he being at that Time engag'd in a War againſt the Tartars, did not think fit to claſh with his Nobility upon the Account of Religion, and therefore anſwered the Petitions of the Romaniſts only by Delays and Put-offs; which made them give him the Nick-Name of King Gioiron, which in Poliſh ſignifies King of To-morrow, He defeated the Swedes and Muſcovites, and died the ſeventh of July, 1572.

SIGISMUND III. Son of John III. King of Sweden, and of Katharin, Daughter of Sigiſmund I. who was born in 1566. The Polanders offer'd him the Crown the 9th of Aug. 1587, and he was admitted, to the excluding of Maximilian of Auſtria, who had been choſen by a Party of the Lords; and being fully ſettled in that Throne, upon the News of his Father's Death, he went and took Poſſeſſion of that of Sweden the nineteenth of February, 1594. This King was a zealous Romaniſt, upon which Account the Swedes had no great Love for him, as having already eſpouſed Proteſtantiſm. Charles, Duke of Sudermania, the King's Uncle, making good uſe of the People's Diſſatisfaction, got himſelf Crowned: This Uſurpation afterwards prov'd the Occaſion of a long and grievous War, and unſucceſsful to Sigiſmuud. He had alſo great Conteſts with the Tartars and Muſcovites, from whom he took Smolensko, after two Years Seige. He died in 1632, after a Reign of 45 Years. He had married two Siſters, Anne and Conſtance of Auſtria, whereof the former bare him Ladiſlaus-Sigiſmund, and the latter John Caſimire, who were both of them Kings of Poland, and Husbands of the ſame Wife Maria de Gorſague of Nevers. This Family is now extinguiſh'd.

SIGISMUND, King of Burgundy, was the Son of Gombault, and his Succeſſor about the Year 516. He was reclaim'd from the Arian Hereſie by Alcimus Avitus, Biſhop of Vienne, married Oſtrogotha, the Daughter of Theodoric, King of the Goths in Italy, and by her had a Son called Segeric, after whoſe Death he married another, who hating the young Prince for ſome reflecting Words he had given her, made his Father ſuſpicious of him to that degree, as to cauſe him to be put to Death; but immedately after Sigiſmund being rack'd with Sorrow and Repentance for what he had done, retired to the Monaſtery of St. Maurice, where he ſpent ſeveral Days in Faſting and Tears, begging Pardon of God for that horrid Offence. Some time after Clodomir, the Son of Clodoveus the Great, ſucceeded his Father in the Kingdom of Orleans, pretended alſo to that of Burgundy, in the Right of his Mother Clotilda; and his Brothers having joyn'd themſelves with him, they defeated Sigiſmund, took him Priſoner, and ſent him to Orleans, where they caſt him into a Well with his Wife and Children the firſt of May, 523. Some ſay, it was done at St. Pere-Avi near to that City. The Church of Rome honours him for a Saint. Gregor. Turonenſ. Vjuard Life of St. Sigiſmund.

SIGMOUTH, a Sea-Town of Eaſt Budleigh, in the County of Devon, once a good Port-Town before it came to be choak'd up with Sand.

SIGN, a Garriſon in Dalmatia, belonging to the Venetians, which the Turks beſieged 24 Days in 1687, but General Cornaro reliev'd it with the Army of the Republick.

SIGNET (William) a French Gentleman; famous in Hiſtory for the Honour he receiv'd from the Hands of the Emperor Charles V. upon an extraordinary Occaſion. This Emperor paſſing through France in 1540 on his Way to Flanders, made ſome Stay at Paris; and during that Time went out of Curioſity one Day to ſee the Court of Parliament, and to hear the Pleadings there; and having ſeated himſelf above the firſt Preſident, in the Place appointed for the French King when he comes thither, at which many murmur'd: He heard a Cauſe pleaded concerning the Seneſchalſhip or Stewardſhip of Beaucaire or Carcaſſonne, about the Poſſeſſion of which this William Signet and a certain Knight were in Conteſt, both of them pretending a Right to it. One of the chief Reaſons alledged againſt Signet was, that he wanted the Qualification which the Place required, foraſmuch as the Office had been always exerciſed by a Knight; whereupon the Emperor demanded a Sword of one of his Officers, and called Signet, whom, as he was kneeling before him, he dub'd Knight, and then ſaid to his Adverſary, The Reaſon you alledge againſt him is taken away now, for he is a Knight. Some were aſtoniſh'd at this Action, becauſe the King of France is Emperor in his own Kingdom. Hiſtor. Char. VI.

SIGONIUS (Carolus) born at Modena in Italy, he was Profeſſor of the Greek Tongue in that City, when he was but twenty two Years of Age; afterwards he taught Philoſophy at Padua, and had a Penſion of the Commonwealth of Venice. He hath writ excellent Annotations upon Titus Livius, and ſome excellent Treatiſes upon Jus Romanum, or the Roman Law; and hath better illuſtrated the Antiquities of Rome, than all the Writers that were before him. It is obſerved of him, that though he was ſo Learned, and writ ſo well in Latin, yet he could not ſpeak it well and readily. He publiſh'd a Book intituled De Conſolatione, Of Conſolation, whereof he endeavour'd to prove Cicero to be the Author, but Antonius Riccobonus, Lipſius and Joannes Gulielmius proved it to be a Modern Piece, the Concern of which caſt him into a Sickneſs that ended his Days. He died at Modena 1585, being ſixty Years of Age. He was Author alſo of theſe Books following, Faſti Conſulares & Triumphi. De nominibus Romanorum Liber. De Conſulibus Dictatoribus & Cenſoribus Romanis. De Republica Hebræorum. Hiſtoria de Regno Italiæ, with ſeveral others, Thuan. Hiſtor. Lorenzo Craſſo.

SIGUENZA, Siguntia or Segontia, a City of Spain in New-Caſtile, with a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Toledo; it is ſituate upon the River Hanares, at the Foot of the Mountain Atienza, having a College, a Cittadel and an Arſenal.

SILANUS (Junius Lucius) a Roman Senator contracted to Octavia, Daughter of the Emperor Claudius. He was already raiſed to the Dignity of the Emperor's Son-in-Law, and had been honoured with the Ornaments of Triumph, and a Show of Gladiators had been preſented in his Name, to procure him the Love of the People. But Agrippina broke all theſe Meaſures, to make up the Match between her Son Nero and Octavia. She got Silanus to be accuſed of Inceſt with his Siſter Junia Calvina, who was one of the moſt beautiful Ladies of Rome, but ſomething too free in her Behaviour, as well as her Brother was in his Words; whereupon being baniſh'd the Senate, he killed himſelf. Tacit. Lib. 12. Cap. 1. Suet. in Neron. Dion. &c.

SILARO, or Selo, a River of the Kingdom of Naples in the Hither Principato, which has this ſecret Vertue, that it turns not only Wood, but the Leaves that fall into it into Stone, and yet notwithſtanding the Waters of it is good to drink. It has its Riſe in the Apennine, and empties it ſelf into the Gulph of Salernum. Plin. Lib. 2. Cap. 103.

SILAS, a Favourite of Agrippa, King of the Jews, and General of his Armies, who became ſo proud by the Honour to which he was raiſed, that he made himſelf too familiar with his Prince, and boaſted to his Face of the Services he had done him; at which Agrippa being offended, took away his Command, and ſent him to his own Country, there to remain a Priſoner: But about a Year after, at a Feaſt the King made on his Birth-day, he gave Order for him to be ſet at Liberty and to be brought before him: But he, when the Meſſage was brought him, proudly anſwer'd, That he would not ſtir out of Priſon. Joſeph. Lib 19. Cap. 6. Antiq. Jud.

SILAS, one of the firſt Chriſtians of Jeruſalem who had the Gift of Propheſie; he is likewiſe called Silvanus, which is a Roman Name, the like Changes in Names being common among the Jews who dwelt among the Romans. Acts 15. Grotius on 13. Chap. Acts.

SILENUS, the Foſter-father and Companion of Bacchus, whom the Poets repreſent ſitting upon an Aſs, and always drunk. Concerning the Original of the Fable of Silenus, ſee Bochart. Lib. 1. Cap. 18.

SILESIA, a large Province of Germany, which is bounded on the Eaſt by Poland, on the North by the Marquiſate of Brandenburgh, on the Weſt with Luſatia and Bohemia, and on the South with Moravia and the Upper-Hungary. It is divided into the Upper and Lower Sileſia; the Upper contains nine Dukedoms, viz. That of Schweidnitz, Brieg, Monſterberg, Grotkaw, Lagerndorf, Tropaw, Oppelen, Ratibor and Teſchen: The Lower hath eight of them, Croſſen, Glogaw, Sagan, Cignitz, Javer, Volaw, Ols and Breſlaw, This Country is well watered with Rivers, very fruitful and well Peopled, it abounds alſo with ſeveral Mines. It was for 860 Years a Part of Poland, and revolted from that Crown under Ladiſlaus Loch, King of Poland, but hath now for above 300 Years been united to the Kingdom of Bohemia, and is entirely in the Poſſeſſion of the Emperor as King of Bohemia. The Capital City is Breſlaw, the reſt are Glogaw, &c. that give their Names to the Dukedoms above mentioned. This Country is above four Days Journey in length and three in breadth. It was haraſſed with a Bloody War by Sobieſlaus, Prince of Bohemia, in 1140. In 1242 it was cruelly ravaged by the Tartars, in 1327 it was ſeiz'd by John, King of Bohemia, who took Advantage of the Animoſities of its Princes. In 1618 the Elector of Saxony ſubdued it for the Emperor Ferdinand II. In 1621 it ſhared in the War of Germany. It received the Doctrine of Hus in the XV Century. Joachim Curauſo in Annal. Sileſ. Melchior. Goldaſt. de Regn. Bohem. Nicol. Helenius Sileſgraph. Hoff.

SILIUS ITALICUS, a Latin Poet, who was Conſul of Rome when Nero died: The common Opinion is, that he was born at Old Sevil, called Italica, and that from thence he was ſurnamed Italicus; but others affirm, that he was born in a City of Italy bearing the ſame Name. He was pretty well advanced in Years when he writ his Poem of the ſecond Punick War, in ſeventeen Books, and accordingly we do not find in them that Fire and Vivacity which is the Character of Youth; or to ſpeak the ſame in Pliny's Language, there is more of Pains, in his Verſes than Wit, Scribebat carmina majore curâ quam ingenio. Petrarcha writ a Poem on the ſame Subject, which, 'tis probable, he would never have done, had he ſeen this of Silius which was not found till long after his Death, in the time of the Council of Baſil. He was a rich Man, and had a Country-houſe which formerly was Cicero's, and another which contain'd Virgil's Tomb. To this Martial alludes, Lib. 11. Epig. 49. Plin. Lib. 3. Ep. 6. Aul Gel. Lib. 16. Cap. 13. Tacitus, Crinitus Lilius Gyrald. Voſſius.

SILO, a Saracen Prince, who was King of Leon and Aſturia in the VIII Century. Aurelias, who had murthered his Brother Froila, gave his Siſter in Marriage to this Silo, and dying in 775, this Infidel was Governour over Alphonſus, the Son of Froila, eight or ten Years. Marian. Hiſt. Hiſpan.

SILOAM, a Fountain in Jeruſalem, which riſeth at the Foot of Mount Sion, and by the Weſt Side of the Valley of Jehoſhaphat, runs into the Brook Kidron; near to it is a Pool or Bathing-place, where the Blind-Man (mentioned John 9.7.) upon waſhing his Eyes with the Water, after our Saviour's Application, received his Sight. King Hezekiah repaired this Fountain, and added ſeveral Conveniences to it for the Uſe of the City, as being very conſiderable for the Clearneſs and Abundance of its Water: Though Joſephus obſerves, that before the coming of Titus to beſiege Jeruſalem, it was wholly dried up, as well as all the reſt of the Springs and Fountains about that City, and that it did not begin to run again till after the Siege was formed. The Saracens commonly bath'd themſelves in this Pool or Fountain to take away the ſtrong Smell of their Bodies, and the Turks uſe it to this Day to clear their Sight, and to cure ſore Eyes. Nicephorus tells us, that the Empreſs Helena cauſed many fair Pieces of Architecture to be made for embelliſhing of this Fountain. Euſeb. Nieremb. I. de Terr. Promiſſ. Cap. 48.

SILVEIRA (Gonſalvus) a Portuguiſe Jeſuit of great Birth, who being ſent into Africa, had great Succeſs in Preaching, and baptized the King of Monomtapa and his Mother, with 300 Lords of his Court, but that Prince being again perverted by his Pagan Prieſts, ordered Silveira to be ſtrangled, and his Corps thrown into the Water, which was done accordingly, March 15. 1561, there being alſo fifty others, whom he had converted, that ſame Day executed with him. Alegamb. Bibl. Patr. Soc. Jeſu.

SIMANCA (James) Biſhop of Bajadox, was a Spaniard, and profeſs'd the Civil and Canon Law in the Univerſity of Salamanca: He was one of the King's Council at Valadolid, and afterwards for his Merit preferred to the Biſhoprick of Bajadox.

He was a very good Divine and Lawyer, and wrote a great deal in both Faculties: The moſt conſiderable of his Works are, De Republica Adminiſtrand. De Dignitate Epiſcopali. De Catholicis Inſtitutionibus. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

SIMEON, the ſecond Son of Jacob and Leah, was born A. M. 2284. He was engaged in the Slaughter of the Sichemites, whoſe King had raviſhed his Siſter Dinah. He died at the Age of 120 in 2403. Gen. 29. 33. & Chap. 34 25. Torniel. in Annal. Val. Teſt.

SIMEON, called the Brother of the Lord, was the Son of Cleophas, and Biſhop of Jeruſalem after St. James, and ſuffer'd Martyrdom by being crucified in the 120th Year of his Age, and in the Year of our Lord 109, according to Baronius and Euſebius in Chron. Lib. 3. Hiſt. but according to the Chronology of Mr. Henry Dodwell, Simeon ſuffered Martyrdom under Trajan in 116 after the Birth of Chriſt, and was the laſt Biſhop of Jeruſalem of the Family of David. Dodwel Diſſert. de Jur. Laicor. Sacerd. Cap. 3. There was another Simeon who was Patriarch of Jeruſalem towards the End of the XI Century, when that City was taken by Godfrey of Bouillon.

SIMEON, the Name of that holy Man and Prophet, mentioned Luke 2. 25. to whom it was revealed by the Holy Ghoſt, that he ſhould not die till he had ſeen the Lord's Chriſt, who coming into the Temple, by the Spirit, when Jeſus was brought in by his Parents, he took him into his Arms, and ſung that Hymn which bears his Name.

SIMEON, Biſhop of Seleucia in Meſopotamia, lived under the Emperor Diocleſian: He was falſely accuſed by the Jews to Sapor, King of Perſia, for having betrayed the Religion of the State: Sapor giving ear to them, laid heavy Taxes upon the Chriſtians, to conſtrain them to quit their Religion, if they deſired to rid themſelves of that miſerable Oppreſſion. He put all their Prieſts to Death, demoliſhed their Churches, and took away all their Eſtates. This done he commanded Simeon to be brought before him, bidding him to worſhip him, and to adore the Sun, which this holy Biſhop refuſing, he was put into Priſon, and ſome time after was executed with 99 other Martyrs, who all ſuffered before him, and whom he exhorted to die chearfully and couragiouſly for the Faith of Chriſt; and laſt of all ſuffered Martyrdom himſelf, giving Praiſe to God. Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccleſ.

SIMEON METAPHRASTES, ſo called becauſe he writ the Lives of the Saints, flouriſhed in the X Century. He relates many things which are a Sign that he was too credulous; or to uſe the Expreſſion of Cardinal Bellarmin, he related them not as indeed they were, but ſuch as they ought to have been. We are to take notice here, to the end we may not fall into the Miſtake of Father Gretſer and ſome others, that this Simeon Metaphraſtes was different from Simeon ſurnamed the Young Divine, in Contradiſtinction to St. Gregory Nazianzen, who by way of Excellence was called The Divine. This is he that writ 33 Homilies of the Faith, and of Chriſtian and Religious Vertues, which Pontanus the Jeſuit hath tranſlated into Latin, and publiſhed with ſeveral other Aſcetick Writings. This Author is vaſtly different from Simeon Metaphraſte, who was a Lay-man; whereas this latter was a Prieſt and Superior of the Monaſtery of St. Mamant in Conſtantinople. It is ſuppoſed, that he lived about the Year 1150, which was a long time after the former, who alſo is another from Simeon Magiſter or Logotheta, who is made the Author of a Chronicle, and 24 Orations taken out of the Works of St. Baſilius of Cæſarea, which Simeon de Maille, Archbiſhop of Tours, tranſlated into Latin in the XVI Century. And beſides theſe there is alſo another Simeon, Archbiſhop of Theſſalonica, whom Authors place about the Year 1140. Theoph. Rainaud. in Erotem. Voſſius, Poſſevin.

SIMEON of Durham, an Engliſh Man of the Congregation of Cluniack, and Doctor of the Univerſity of Oxford, well ſkill'd in moſt of the Liberal Sciences, eſpecially Mathematicks and Hiſtory; that of England being very confuſed, from the Death of Venerable Bede he continued that Author's Work to 1130, giving an Account of the four preceding Centuries in two Books, entituled, De Geſtis Regum Anglorum. He alſo wrote the Hiſtory of the Church of Durham, that of the Biſhops of York, and ſome others: He flouriſhed about 1160. Lelande Pitſeus de Script. Magn. Britan. Voſſius, &c.

SIMEON HADDARSON, i. e. Simeon the Preacher, a famous Rabbin, wrote a Commentary upon the whole Bible, under the Title of Jalcut Hattora, which, P. Simon ſays, is a Collection of the Jewiſh Doctors, Moral and Allegorick Explications of the whole Bible, briefly ſhewing the different ways that the ancient Jews explained the Scripture in their Talmud, Books of the Siphrinites, Tanhuma, Megilla, in a Word in the ancient Medraſcim, or Allegorical Commentaries: But adds withal, that this ſort of Work is ſcarce ſerviceable to any but Jewiſh Preachers, being altogether uſeleſs for the Literal Senſe of Scripture. Buxtorf makes mention of this Rabbi's Book in his Bibliotheca Rabinica.

SIMEON Bas Tſemah, a Rabbin who wrote a Commentary upon the Book of Job, called Sepher Beth Miſpat, i. e. a Book of the Houſe of Judgment, printed at Venice. Father Simon obſerves, that in the Beginning of this Commentary there is a long Preface, where the Author relates moſt of the Jews Opinions concerning the Book of Job.

SIMEON ſurnamed Stylites, or of the Pillar, was an Anchorete that lived in the V Century, and took that Name from his Abode upon a Pillar 36 Cubits high, where he liv'd from the eightieth Year of his Age in wonderful Exerciſes of Penitence, ſpending whole Nights in Prayer, and the Day either in pious Diſcourſes, curing Diſeaſes, or Genuflexions, in which he did ſo abound, that, as they fabulouſly aſſert, a certain Man reſolving to count the Number of them in one Day, reckoned till he came to 2000, and then gave over, becauſe wearied with counting; and thus they render the Truth it ſelf ſuſpected. However, his Fame was ſoon diffuſed into all Parts, and his Judgment ſo highly valued, that the Emperor Leo ſent to him for his Opinion concerning the Council of Chalcedon; to which Simeon anſwered, that he embraced the Deciſion of thoſe 600 Fathers there aſſembled; but this Letter of his is loſt, neither have we any of his now, ſave that which he ſent to Baſilius, Archbiſhop of Antioch, wherein he calls himſelf a Vile and Abject Worm, and an Abortive Monk, when indeed he was their great Pattern and Exemplar. He paſt many Lents without eating almoſt any thing at all, and yet, notwithſtanding all theſe Auſterities, he lived above a hundred Years, and died in 460. His Body was brought to Conſtantinople, and the Emperor Leo built a Church in Honour of him. Beſides the Letter of his above mentioned, there is another that goes under his Name in the Bibliotheca Patrum, the Subject of it is Death, or, *Sermo breviſſimus de mente complectante ſuum deceſſum. SIMLERUS (Joſias) a Miniſter of Zurick, and Succeſſor of Peter Martyr: He was a Perſon of great Learning, and writ divers Works of Divinity, Mathematicks and Hiſtory, of which himſelf hath given us a Catalogue in the Abridgment of the Library of Conradus Geſnerus, whoſe Life he writ, as his was committed to Poſterity by Gulielmus Stukkius, whom thoſe that are curious may conſult. He died at Zurick, July 2. 1576, at the Age of 45. Thuan. Lib 62. Hiſtor.

SIMMEREN, a Province of Germany in the Lower Palatinate, bearing the Title of an Earldom, and hath a ſmall City of the ſame Name, which is the Capital of it, ſtrengthned and adorned with a very conſiderable Caſtle, eight German Miles from Mentz, four from Bingen, and five South of Coblentz, it belongs to the Elector Palatine.

SIMMIAS of Rhodes, was born at Samos, and lived about the firſt Olympiad; he was a noted Poet, and hath left ſome Pieces, viz. his Ovum, Alæ and Securis, which Salmaſius hath wrote Notes upon. They alſo attribute to him, a Treatiſe of the Antiquity of Samos. Suidas in Lex. Tzetzes Chil. 7. Hiſt. 144. Parthenius Hiſt. 33. There was alſo a Grammarian of the ſame Name mentioned by Strabo.

SIMNEL (Lambert) a famous Impoſtor who appeared in England about 1485, in the Reign of Henry VII. of the Houſe of Lancaſter, endeavoured to paſs for Edward Plantagenet, Nephew of King Edward IV. of the Houſe of York, then a Priſoner at London. He was a Baker's Son, but had the Mien of a great Lord, and Richard Simon, an Oxford Prieſt, gave him all neceſſary Inſtructions to carry on his Cheat. He carried him into Ireland, where the Houſe of York was in great Veneration, and managed his Buſineſs ſo cunningly, that the Earl of Kildare, then Lord Lieutenant, received him, as did moſt of the Gentry after his Exemple; the common People being tranſported with Joy for their pretended King, this Simnel was carried to Dublin Caſtle and proclaim'd King with much Solemnity. Henry VII. having an Account of theſe Proceedings, to undeceive the People, ordered the true Plantagenet to be carried through the City to Paul's, which was ſo far from moving the Iriſh, that they believed the King himſelf raiſed an Impoſtor to delude the People. Margaret, Dutcheſs of Burgundy, Siſter to Edward IV. having an Account by ſome Engliſh Lords of what paſſed in Ireland, though ſhe knew very well that Simnel was a perfect Cheat, ſent him 2000 well diſciplin'd Soldiers to ſupport his Quality. The Iriſh had no ſooner receiv'd this Succour, but having crowned this falſe Plantagenet, they accompanied him into England with a great Army, which landed at Foudriey in Lancaſhire, where they were joyn'd by Sir Thomas Broughton with a ſmall Number of Engliſh; from thence they marched towards York without ſpoiling the Country or committing any Act of Hoſtility, however, the Country did not come in to them, it being an odious thing to the People of England to have a King brought in to them upon the Shoulders of Iriſh and Dutch, of which their Army chiefly conſiſted; notwithſtanding, the Earl of Linroln came to their Aſſiſtance; The King gave them Battle at Stoke near Newarke, where, after they had kept the Field for three Hours with great Obſtinacy and Reſolution, they were entirely defeated, the chief Commanders killed, and Simnel taken Priſoner, but pardon'd, the King believing that he was governed by the ill Inſtructions of his Tutor. So having imploy'd him firſt as his Turn ſpit, he afterwards made him a Falconer; as to the Prieſt, he was committed cloſe Priſoner, and heard of no more. Lord Bacon's Hen. VII. Salmonet Hiſtory of the Troubles of Great Britain.

SIMOIS, now called Chiſime, a River of Troas, or the Leſſer Phrygia in Natolia, which has its Riſe from Mount Ida, and croſſing the Territory of Old Troy, runs into the River Scamander, and with it empties it ſelf into the Helleſpont at the Streights of Gallipoli, near to Cape Janizari. At preſent both theſe Rivers are in a manner dried up, being no more than ſmall Rivulets, whoſe Waters fail in Summer time, and in the Winter are not a Foot deep. Strab. Lib. 15.

St. SIMON the Canaanite, Apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, ſurnamed Zelotes, he preached the Goſpel in Meſopotamia, as alſo in Egypt and Perſia, where he received the Crown of Martyrdom. Nicephorus and Dorotheus farther add, that he preached the Faith in Britany and Africa alſo, but without the Authority of other Ancients. Euſeb. Lib. 1. *Hiſtor. SIMON I. of that Name, High Prieſt of the Jews, was the Succeſſor of his Father Onias about A. M. 3744. he was ſurnamed The Juſt, by reaſon of his extraordinary Piety towards God, and Kindneſs towards Men. He repaired the Temple of Jeruſalem, which began to decay, and cauſed it to be ſurrounded with a double Wall, and conveyed Water thither by great Pipes, for the waſhing of the Sacrifices and other Uſes. He was High Prieſt twelve Years, and his Brother Eleazar was put into his Place, becauſe of the Under-age of his Son Onias II. Eccluſ. Chap. 50 Ver. 1. Joſeph. Lib. 12. Antiq. Cap. 2. Genebrard. Lib. 2. *Chron. SIMON II. diſcharged the High Prieſts Office in 3822. In his Time Ptolomy, ſurnamed Philopater, King of Egypt, came to Jeruſalem, and would have entred into the Sanctuary of the Temple, but Simon oppoſed him, and God ſeconded his Oppoſition, by a Fainting and Trembling that ſeiz'd the King at the ſame Inſtant. He died about the Year 3847. Joſeph. Lib. 2. Cap. 5. Euſeb. in Chron. Salian. A. M. 3822. & ſeq.

SIMON the Magician, Chief of the Simoniacks and Gnoſticks, was of Samaria, where he was baptiz'd by Philip, one of Deacons; but obſerving that the Apoſtles ſpoke Languages which they had never learned, and performed many Miracles, he would fain purchaſe that Power; and being rebuked by St. Peter for this wicked Thought, he broach'd his new Errors, and pretending he was the High Power or Vertue of God, endeavoured to cheat the Jews, whom he found much bent againſt the Faithful, into a Belief that he was the Son of God ſent to them, and the Holy Ghoſt to the Gentiles. Then he ſet forth for Rome, to undermine the true Miracles with his Falſe and Magical Illuſions, which were ſo very ſurprizing, that the Romans erected him a Statue, as to a God, and gave him the Title of Holy, as appears in St. Juſtin Martyr and Tertullian's Apologeticks. It is true, ſome learned Men, as St. Ireneus and Euſebius, think they have miſtaken the Name of Semo Sangus or Sancus, a Deity adored by the Romans, and mentioned by Dionyſius Halicarnaſſus, and Titus Livius, for Simon Santus. But, be it how it will, his Magick was ſo ſtrong and perſuaſive, that ſome People found it a hard Matter to diſtinguiſh between Truth and Impoſture. To theſe Follies he added abominable Errors, teaching that all Impurities were lawful, even thoſe condemned by Nature it ſelf, That Women might be Common, that there would be no Reſurrection, that God did not create the World, but other Celeſtial Perſons, which left it defective; that an evil Spirit dictated the ancient Law, which therefore could not be received without incurring Death. Nor did he ſtop here, but would fain perſuade, that his Concubine, called Helene or Selene, was the Holy Ghoſt. He invented odd Titles for Angels, which he placed in the new Celeſtial Globes, and adding, That the only means to be ſaved, was to practice his ſecret Myſteries, where he mix'd ſuch Abomination and Indecencies, that it would be a Shame to render them in common Language. His Magick rendred him very acceptable to Nero, who was much taken with the Illuſions of the Black Art: Thus Simon paſs'd with him as a God, until his Death diſcovered him the worſt of Men. He told the Emperor, that he would aſcend into Heaven on a certain Day, which drew a great Concourſe of Spectators; and indeed he lifted himſelf, by the Aſſiſtance of the Devils, into the Air, but, upon St. Peter's praying that the Cheat might be diſcovered, he fell down and broke his Legs, and died of the Pain of his Fall, and his Concern for ſo publick an Affront. This happened An. Chr. 66 or 67. His Folly in offering the Apoſtles Money to receive the Holy Ghoſt, occaſioned the Commerce and Sale of Holy Things, being called Simony. St. Ireneus, Epiphanius, Arnobius, Auguſtin, Euſeb. Baronius in Annal. Godeau Hiſt. Eccleſ.

SIMON MACHABÆUS, Captain of the Jews, was of the Tribe of Levi, the Son of Matathias, and the Brother of Judas Macabæus, and of Jonathan, whom he ſucceeded as General of the Jews, and by his Courage and Prudence reſtored his Country-men to their Liberty, who had almoſt continually been Tributaries to the Perſians or Greeks, ever ſince their Return from the Babyloniſh Captivity. He took the Cittadel of Sion, which did a great deal of Miſchief to the City of Jeruſalem whilſt it was in the Enemies Hand, and afterwards fortified the Mount whereon the Temple was built, and made his Abode there. Under his Government Judea enjoy'd great Reſt and Tranquility; and the Fame of Simon ſpreading it ſelf far and near, the Lacedæmonians ſent Embaſſadors to him to renew their ancient Alliance with the Jews. Antiochus VII. ſurnamed Soter, King of the Syrians, deſired his Aſſiſtance to drive Tryphon out of his Dominions, which he had uſurped, and engaged him thereto by ratifying ſeveral Privileges which his Father Demetrius had granted the Jews. But ſoon after, finding himſelf at the Head of a great Army, he made a Mock of Simon and the Succours he brought along with him, and demanded the Cities of Joppa, Gazara and the Cittadel of Sion, or inſtead of them a thouſand Talents of Gold. But Simon having refuſed to anſwer his unjuſt Demands, he ſent an Army into Judea, under the Command of Cendebæus, which was defeated by the Sons of Simon: But Simon lived not long after this Advantage, for Ptolomy, his Son-in-law, traiterouſly murthered him at a Feaſt, with two of his Sons, A. M. 3219, after that he had govern'd the Jews eight or nine Years. 1 Maccab. Chap. 14. & ſeq. Joſeph. Lib. 14. Antiq. & 1. de Bello. Torniel. & Salian. in Annal. Vet. Teſtam.

SIMON, King of the Bulgarians, was very famous in the X Century: He took the City of Adrianople in 924, but quitted it ſome time after.

SIMON, the firſt Duke of Lorrain, was married to Adelaida, Daughter of the Emperor Lotharius II. and was the Father of Matthew I. of Baldwin and Adelberon, &c. He died in 1141.

SIMON, a Philoſopher of Athens, the Diſciple of Socrates: He was at firſt a Tanner by his Trade; but Socrates frequenting his Houſe now and then, his Diſcourſe kindled in him a Love to Philoſophy. He writ 33 Dialogues. Diog. Laert. Lib. 2. de vit. Philoſoph.

SIMON, Iſlip, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, was a good Scholar for his Time and a Pattern of Learning: He wrote ſeveral Volumes of Sermons; Pro Ordine Sacerdotali Conſtitutiones, &c. He died in the Reign of Edward III. Anno 1366. Leland, Pits. &c.

SIMON MAJOLUS, born at Aſt in Piedmont in the XVI Century: He wrote a conſiderable Treatiſe, intituled, Dies Caniculares. Poſſevin. in Appar. Sacr.

SIMON MAPHAM, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, was a learned Divine in the XIV Century: He wrote ſeveral Treatiſes: De Juſtitiis. De Feriis. De Appellationibus. De Teſtamentis. De Decimis. De Eccleſiis Edificandis. De Clandeſtina Deſponſatione, He held a Provincial Council at London, and died in the Reign of King Edward III. in 1333.

SIMONETA (Bonifacius) of Milan, Abbot of Cornu, a Ciſtercian Monaſtery in the Dioceſe of Cremona. He lived towards the End of the XV Century, about the Year 1490, and was Nephew to John Simoneta, who writ the Hiſtory of Francis Sforza, Duke of Milan. His Works have gained him a great Reputation, eſpecially that which bears the Title of Chriſtianarum Perſecutionum & Pontificum Hiſtoria. This Work is divided into ſix Books, and contains in it 279 Letters, all that paſt in the Church from St. Peter to Innocent VIII. who was the Succeſſor of Sixtus IV. in 1484. Which I obſerve the rather to prevent the ſpreading of a Miſtake whereby ſome have attributed this Work to Pope Boniface VIII. This Book of the Abbot was printed at Milan in 1499, at Baſil in 1509, and elſewhere; and at the ſame time Octavian of St. Gelais, Biſhop of Angouleſme, tranſlated it into French. Charles de Viſch. Bibl. Ciſterc. Albertus le Mire in Auct. de Script. Eccleſ. Caramuel Lib. 1. Theol. Regul. Diſt. 34. Num. 340. Spondan. A. C. 1303. Num. 14. Voſſius Lib. 3. de Hiſtor. Latin.

SIMONETA, the borrow'd Name of a famous Robber, who being very like Cardinal Lewis Simoneta, took upon him his Name, together with the Habit of a Cardinal, and the Quality of Legat, with a magnificent Train, and a great Number of Domeſticks, which were all of them of his own Trade and Gang, who every where in publick gave him the Title of Eminence: By this means he deceived the People; giving Diſpenſations, admitting the Reſignation of Benefices, and taking off Excommunications, doing more than a true Legat could have done. By which means he got a vaſt Sum of Money, which put him into a Condition of appearing every where like a Prince. But at laſt, the Cheat was detected, and Petrus Donatus de Ceſia, Vice-Legat of Bononia, and afterwards Cardinal, being informed that he was entred into his Diſtrict, ſent away ſome Soldiers to ſeize him, which they did; and being brought to his Tryal, made a Confeſſion of the moſt horrid Impieties he had committed, and thereupon was condemned to be hang'd: The Execution was performed in an uncommon Manner; for he was ſtrangled with a Golden Twiſt, and an empty Purſe hang'd about his Neck, with an Inſcription importing that he was not Cardinal Legat Simoneta, but a Robber ſine Moneta. Auberius Hiſt. of the Cardinals.

SIMONIDES, a Lyrick Poet, born in the Iſland Ceus in the Ægean Sea, now called Zea, different from Cos or Coos, the Native Place of Hippocrates. He flouriſhed in the 65th Olympiad, and died the 88th, being 89 Years of Age. He was known and belov'd by the greateſt Princes of Greece and Sicily, and eſpecially by Pauſanias and Hiero. Some ſay, that he added four Letters to the Greek Alphabet, but it is more likely that this was done by another Simonides, more ancient than he. He writ ſeveral Odes, Elegies, and other Works, amongſt which is a Deſcription of the Battle of Marathon and Salamina, alſo Epigrams; and a Book of Threni or Lamentations. Suidas in Lexic.

SIMONIDES of Ceus, ſurnamed the Younger, was the Son of the Poet Simonides his Siſter: He writ about the 82d Olympiad, a Book of Genealogies, of Poetry, and a Treatiſe of Things newly invented. Suidas in Lexic.

SIMON SUDBURY, firſt Biſhop of London, and afterwards Archbiſhop of Canterbury, liv'd in the Reign of King Richard II. This Prelate, endeavouring to quell the Inſurrection of Jack Straw and Watt Tyler, having formerly convented John Ball (the Army Chaplain to the Rebellion) for his ſeditious and levelling Doctrines: This neceſſary Diſcipline upon Ball (who was one of Wicliff's Scholars) enraged the Rebels to that degree, that Tyler, with ſome of his Gang, entering the Tower Gates, after he had rifled the King's Apartments, outrag'd the Queen-Mother both with Language and Blows; after theſe Preliminaries of Duty and good Manners, they ſeiz'd this Archbiſhop of Canterbury as he was performing Divine Service, and immediately murther'd him. This Prelate publiſh'd ſome Synodal Conſtitutions, and wrote, De Celebratione Miſſarum. De Pœnitentiis & Remiſſionibus, &c. Polidore Virgil, Lib. 20. Pits. de Script. Angl. Truſſell's Life of Richard II.

SIMPLICIANUS, a Prieſt of Milan of great Learning and Piety, who inſtructed St. Ambroſe in ingenuous Literature, and the Epiſcopal Functions. He took much Pains for the Converſion of St. Auſtin, and writ ſeveral Letters to him. He afterwards was St. Ambroſe's Succeſſor in the Biſhop's See of Milan in 397, and died three Years after. Gennad. in Catal. illuſtr. viror. Baronius, &c.

SIMPLICIUS (Pope) born at Tivoli, was elected ten Days after the Death of St. Hilarius, the twentieth of Septemb. 467. He writ eighteen Letters, that are yet remaining; the moſt important of which are thoſe ſent into the Eaſt to the Emperor Zeno, and the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, againſt Peter Mongus, who had been preferred to the See of Alexandria; but his Sollicitations took no Effect. Amongſt his Epiſtles there are ſeveral addreſs'd to Biſhops, containing Inſtructions for the regulating of Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline, of which Number was that which he writ to Florentius, Equitius and Severus, concerning Gaudentius of Auſinium, who had made unlawful Ordinations and undue Diſtributions of the Church-Revenue, whom he therefore deprived of the Power of Ordaining, and ordered the Revenues of the Church to be divided into four Parts, whereof two ſhould be for the Maintenance of the Prelate and Clerk, and two for the Relief of the Poor, and Repairing of the Church Buildings. He himſelf was at the Charges of ſeveral ſtately Structures, and gave great Gifts to the Church of St. Peter, and ſettled there, as alſo in the Churches of St. Paul and St. Lawrence, weekly Penitentiaries to ſatisfie the Peoples Devotion. He died the ſecond of March, 483, having held the See fifteen Years, five Months and ten Days. Liberat. in Breviar. Anaſtaſ. Genebrard. Ciaconius. Baron. in Annal. He divided the City into five Regions or Precincts, and ordained that no Clergy-man ſhould hold a Benefice of a Lay-man. Platina. Ciaconius Du Cheſne. Baron. in Annal.

SIMPLICIUS, a Perepatetick Philoſopher, was a Phrygian by Nation, and lived in the V Century. He wrote Commentaries upon Ariſtotle and Epictetus's Enchiridion. Suidas in Damaſcio. Geſner in Bibl.

SIN, a City of China in the Province of Xanxi, at the Foot of a Mountain, near the River Chocquang, and the Capital of two other Cities.

SIN, a Deſart of Arabia, between Elim and Sinai, which was the eighth Station of the Children of Iſrael after their coming out of Egypt. Here it was that the Iſraelites, having conſumed their Proviſions they had brought along with them, began to murmur, whereupon the Lord ſent them a vaſt Number of Quails, and the next Morning rain'd down Manna round about the Camp. We are to obſerve here, that this Wilderneſs differs from another Sin, or rather Zin, near which there was a Place called Cades, and was the 33d Manſion of the Children of Iſrael, where Miriam, the Siſter of Moſes, died, and where Moſes brought forth Water out of the Rock, as he had before done in Rephidim, which I take notice of, not to confound thoſe two Miracles. Exod. 16. 1. Num. 20. 1. & 10, 11. and Chap. 33. 14. & 37. Joſeph. Lib. 2. Antiq. St. Jerom. ad Fabiel. Torniel. A. M. 2544. 2583.

SINAI, a Mountain of the Rocky or Stony Arabia, upon the Shore of the Red-Sea, of which Mount Horeb is a Part. This was the twelfth Station of the Iſraelites in their Paſſage to the Holy Land; about which Mountain they wandered near upon a Year, that is, during that time wherein all thoſe Things happened which are mentioned in Exodus from the 19th Chapter to the End, in the whole Book of Leviticus, and in Numbers from the Beginning to Chapter 10, the chiefeſt of all which was the giving of the Law. The Turks call this Mountain Gibel Mouſa, i. e. the Mountain of Moſes. This Mount is formed of the Union of three Mountains, as it were one heaped upon the top of the other: There were formerly ſeveral Chappels upon it, which were ſerved by 14000 Hermites: The Greeks had alſo ſeveral Religious here, who celebrated Divine Service. There are ſeveral of theſe Chappels ſtill remaining in divers Parts of the Mountain; and amongſt the reſt, there are three, where two Sons of a King of Æthiopia led a retired Life for above forty Years. Every one of the Chappels have a Garden belonging to them. The Convent is at the Bottom of the Mountain, from whence formerly they went up to the Top of it by 1400 Steps, cut out in the Rock by the Order and at the Charge of St. Helen, and whereof the Marks are yet to be ſeen. At ſome Diſtance from the Foot of the Mountain, going upwards, there is a Spring, the Water whereof is moſt excellent; and when one is got up one third part of the Way, there are two Gates that ſhut up the Way, and are not open'd to the Pilgrims, till they have made their Confeſſion. Somewhat higher than this, is a Stone, which an Angel laid there, as 'tis ſaid, to hinder Elias his Paſſage. Upon the Top of the Mountain, and under a great hollow Rock, open towards the Weſt, is the Place where Moſes abode during the forty Days he was upon the Mount. A little beyond this Rock, going upwards towards the Right-ſide, there is a Greek Church, and not far off a French Church, which is dedicated to the Aſcenſion of our Lord. Five or ſix Paces farther, and over-againſt this Church, there is another Cave or Grotto open to the Eaſt, into which they go down by eleven Steps, where Moſes received the Tables of the Law, and deſired to ſee the Face of God. The Arabians have built a Moſque upon it, and about it are abundance of Fruit Trees, Olive Trees and Poplars, with two or three fine Springs. Travellers obſerve, that it is much more troubleſome for them to come down this Mountain, than it was for them to get up to it. The Bottom of this Mountain is ſeparated from that of St. Catharine by a great Valley, where is the Grotto of St. Onuphrius, cut by Nature out of the Rock. In the ſame Valley is the Monaſtery of the Forty Martyrs, with a very fair Church and a large Garden, in which are abundance of Fruit-Trees, as Apple-Trees, Pear-Trees, Nut-Trees and Orange-Trees. Torniel. Salian. in Annal. Vet. Teſtam. Monconis Travels, Pag. 1. Thevenot Travels of the Eaſt, Tom. 1.

SINGARA, a City of Meſopotamia, near to a Mountain of the ſame Name, which is now called Acalip, in the Province of Diarbeck in Aſia, between the Rivers Tigris and Euphrates. Near to this City a terrible Battle was fought between the Emperor Conſtantius and Sapor II. King of the Perſians. Ammian. Marcellin.

SINGEN, a Village of the Dutchy of Wirtemberg, near the Caſtle of Hohenwal, ſituate upon a Rock in a great Plain. There is another of the ſame Name not far off this, equally ſtrong by its Situation.

SINON, the Son of Siſyphus, and Grand-child of the Robber Autolycus. He being a very cunning Fellow, was look'd upon as the fitteſt Man amongſt the Greeks to deceive the Trojans; and having ſuffered himſelf dexterouſly to be taken by them, he deceitfully acquainted Priamus with the Departure of the Greeks, and invited him to receive the Wooden Horſe into the City, in which the Greek Commanders were ſhut up. Pliny ſaith, That he was the firſt Inventer of Sentinels and Fires to give notice of an approaching Enemy. Virgil. Lib. 2. Æneid. Plin. Lib. 7. Cap. 57.

SINOPE, a City of Paphlagonia in the Leſſer Aſia, with a Haven upon the Euxine Sea. It is ſuppoſed to have been built by the Mileſians, about the Year of Rome 125, ſince which it was ſubject to divers Princes, till the Romans made themſelves Maſters of it. Whilſt it belong'd to the Chriſtians it was a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Amaſia, and had its own Princes, but is now fallen into the Hands of the Turks, who call it Sinabe or Pordapas. In this City Diogenes the Cynick was born, as likewiſe Diphilus the Comedian, and ſome other Learned Men. Long. 60. 00. Lat. 45. 00. Pliny Lib. 35. takes notice, that Cinabar was gotten here.

SINORIX, Tetrarch of Galatia, about 236 Years before Jeſus Chriſt, who being overcome with the Beauty of Camma, the Wife of Sinatus, his Kinſman, murthered her Husband, that he might have her for his Wife; and having acquainted her with his Death, earneſtly preſſed her to conſent to his Deſire, which, ſeeing there was no other way, ſhe did, and ſet the Day wherein ſhe would be married to him. In the mean time ſhe prepar'd a poiſoned Cup againſt the Solemnity (for it was the Cuſtom there, for the Bride to drink to the Bridegroom, and for him to pledge her, in token of their Conjugal Love and Union) and being come into the Temple before the Altar, ſhe drunk firſt of it, and preſented the reſt to Sinorix, who joyfully pledg'd her. The Poiſon ſoon after diſplaying its Force, and finding her ſelf near Death, ſhe cry'd, How happily have I revenged the Death of my dear Husband, by giving him this ſignal Inſtance of my Fidelity? O ye Gods! the Monſter I here offer you, is the beſt and moſt acceptable Sacrifice that ever I preſented you with. Andreas Brunnerus Annales Virtutis & Fortunæ Bojorum.

SINUESSA, a City of Italy in Terra di Lavoro, which formerly was a Roman Colony. Ptolomy calls it Soeſſa, but Pliny and Livy, Sinope. It hath been ſince a Biſhop's See, but is now ruined, and in the Place of it is Rocca di Mandragone, which hath the Title of a Dukedom. It is much ſpoke of in the ancient Authors.

SION, or Zion, a Mountain or Cittadel of Jeruſalem, which David took from the Jebuſites; and long after that it was taken by Antiochus, and retaken by Simon. The Knights of the Teutonick Order were formerly called Knights of our Lady of Mount Sion. 1 Maccab. 13. 50. Joſeph. Lib. 13. Antiq.

SION, Sedunum, upon the Rhone, the Capital of Valais, with a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Moutiers en Tarantaiſe; the Germans call it Sitten. It is ſeated in a pleaſant Plain, having only one Hill on the Eaſt-ſide, on which ſtand three Caſtles, in one of which the Biſhop reſides. The Biſhop is Sovereign of the City, Count of Valais, and Prince of the Empire: He coins Money, placeth Officers, with other conſiderable Privileges, which St. Charlemagne granted to Theodulus about 802. The Dukes of Savoy pretended to the Lordſhip of this Country, which was the Cauſe of long and grievous Wars; but the Biſhop now, for his Security, is Leagued with the Roman Catholick Cantons. It's fifteen Miles South of Bern, and 55 Eaſt of Geneva. Ranutius Scotus. Helvet. ſacra & profana. St. Marth. Gal. Chriſt.

SIOR, Lat. Siorium, a City of Aſia, the Metropolis of the Kingdom of Corea, which is Tributary to the Kingdom of China, and lies in the great Peninſula towards Japan. It is ſeated ſixty Miles from the Southern Borders of the Kingdom, upon a pleaſant River. Hamet's Travels.

SIPONTO, Sipontum, Sypus, Sepius, a ruined City in the Kingdom of Naples, which was formerly very conſiderable. Strabo tells us, it was built by Diomedes. The Invaſion of the Saracens in the VIII Century, great Earthquakes, and the Diſcord of its Inhabitants, have contributed to its Ruin. It was formerly an Archbiſhop's See, which is now removed to Manfredonia. Alſo a Gulph or Bay in the Adriatick Sea, near to the Ruins of the City now mention'd.

SIRAD, Sirach, Lat. Siradia, Capital of a Palatinate of the ſame Name in the greater Poland. It ſtands ſix Miles North of Vie-Lim, two Eaſt of Breſlow, and 45 Weſt from Warſaw. Hoffman.

SIRENS, Sirenes, according to the Poets, the Name of three Sea-Monſters, who were Half Women and Half Fiſh, viz. Parthenope, Ligea and Leucoſia: Their Haunt was upon the Coaſt of Sicily, where, by the charming Sweetneſs of their Singing, they ſtop'd Travellers; but Ulyſſes by his Prudence made a ſhift to eſcape their Snares. By this Fable Poets give us an ingenious Deſcription of the Charms of Voluptuouſneſs, which Men of Spirit avoid by the Force of their Courage. The Word Siren ſignifies a Songſter in the Phœnician Language. See Bochart. Canaan. Lib. 1. Cap. 27.

SIRICIUS (Pope) he was a Roman, ad ſucceeded Damaſus, the twelfth of January, 385. Urciſinus, who had ſet himſelf againſt his Predeceſſor, cauſed ſome Diſturbance at his Election, but the Emperor Valentinian confirm'd him in the Chair. He ſoon after writ an Epiſtle to Himerius, Biſhop of Tarragon, in Anſwer to one he had ſent to Damaſus, wherein he deſired to be reſolved, how he ought to behave himſelf towards thoſe Penitents who did frequently return to their Vomit. We have ſtill ſome of his Letters, whereof that which is writ to the Biſhops of Africa contains nine Canons of a Synod of eighty Prelates which he conven'd at Rome in 386, beſides which he celebrated two others at Capua and Milan. This Pope did not treat St. Jerom ſo favourably as his Predeceſſor Damaſus. He died the 22d of February, 398, after having govern'd the Church thirteen Years, one Month and fourteen Days. He Excommunicated the Manichees, but with this Proviſo, That upon their Repentance and turning Monks, they might have the Sacrament as a Viaticum at their Death. He ordain'd, that Whoſoever married a Widow or ſecond Wife, ſhould be degraded from their Office in the Church; that None but a Biſhop ſhould have Power to ordain a Preſbyter; and that Hereticks ſhould be received with Impoſition of Hands. Platina.

SIRLET (William) a Cardinal, born at Stili or Squitiaco in Calabria: He learn'd Hebrew, Greek and Latin, and then went to Rome Cardinal Macello Cervino, and afterwards Pope Marcellus II. took him into his Family; and Pius IV. at the Inſtance of his Nephew Charles Boromea, Archbiſhop of Milan, made him Cardinal and Library-Keeper of the Vatican: Pope Pius V. made uſe of him to reform the Roman Miſſal and Breviary, and to draw up the Catechiſmus ad Parachos according to the Order of the Council of Trent: Sixtus Quintus likewiſe nominated him to overſee the Edition of the Bible, publiſh'd by that Pope, but Death prevented him in this laſt Performance, for he died in 1585, in the 71ſt Year of his Age. Spondanus and ſeveral other learned Men give him a great Character. Spondan. A. C. 1585. N. 33.

SIRMISCH, or Zirmach, Sirmium, which the Hungarians call Szreim, a City of Hungary, near the River Save, about the Place where it enters the Danube. It was formerly a City of Pannonia, had a Biſhop's See, and was very conſiderable under the Roman Emperors, but is now by the Turks reduced to a meer Village. After the Depoſition of Photinus, Biſhop of this Town, who renewed the Errors of Sabellius, the Arian Biſhops met here in 351, and in 357, when they publiſh'd a Confeſſion of Faith, wherein they omitted both the Word Conſubſtantial and ὁμοιούσιος, becauſe neither of theſe Terms were mentioned in Scripture, and beſides, were too big for Human Underſtanding: But in the next Year 358 they met here again, where they drew up another Creed, partly made out of the former Sirmian Creed againſt Photinus, and partly extracted from the Council of Antioch in 341. To this Creed Pope Liberius, after three Years Baniſhment, ſubſcrib'd and communicated with the Arians, being upon this Compliance reſtored to his See: This appears from three Epiſtles of Liberius now extant in Fragm. Hilar. Coll. 426. vid. Athan. ad Solit. Pag. 631. Soz. Lib 4. Cap 15. Pag 557. This Town is fourteen German Miles Weſt from Belgrade. two North of the Save, and two of Eſſeck. Long. 43. 5. Lat. 45. 24.

SIRMONDUS (Jacobus) a Jeſuit, Confeſſor of Lewis the Thirteenth of France, he was born at Riom in Auvergne, 1557. He was a Perſon of great Learning, as appears by his Works, whereof ſome are all his own, and the reſt conſiſting in Notes and Corrections of ſeveral Authors. There are counted above forty Eccleſiaſtical Authors which he hath publiſhed with Notes and Explications. He hath alſo made Notes upon the Councils of France, upon the Capitulars of Charles the Bald, and upon the Codex of Theodoſius, which ſhew him to have had extraordinary Knowledge in Eccleſiaſtical Antiquities, and both Laws. He died of the Jaundice in 1651, being ninety three Years of Age. His chief Works are theſe following, viz.

All the Works of this Author were printed at Paris, in four Volumes, Folio, in 1696, with his Life.

SIRMONDUS (John) a Member of the French Accademy, and Hiſtoriographer of France, was the famous James Sirmondus's Nephew: He had a great Genius for Oratory, and was by Cardinal Richlieu look'd upon as one of the beſt Writers of his Time, who, upon that Opinion, employ'd him to write againſt the Abbot of St. Germain, as we are inform'd by Monſ. Pelliſſon, Maſter of Requeſts, in his excellent Hiſtory of the French Accademy.

SIRMPANUS, was a Captain born in Tranſilvania, who ſignaliz'd himſelf by his extraordinary Valour, at a Time when one Palæologus commanded the Forces of Andronicus the Younger. This General betraying his Maſter to ſerve the Intereſts of Andronicus the Elder, Emperor of Conſtantinople, affronted and degraded Sirmpanus, becauſe he continued conſtantly to refuſe to comply with his Falſeneſs. But the Captain at laſt having made a ſhift to eſcape out of Priſon, to which he had been confin'd, put himſelf at the Head of a Company of Country People, whom, after he had exerciſed at Arms, he went and joyned Andronicus the Younger, and defeated Palæologus's Army, and took him Priſoner; and for a Reward of this gallant Action, he beg'd Andronicus the Younger to pardon Palæologus, which he granted; For, ſaith the Emperor, it would not have been ſeemly for him to entertain the Deſire of Revenge in a Royal Soul, ſeeing that Sirmpanus, who was but a ſimple Captain, had a Soul raiſed enough to undervalue the unjuſt Treatment he had received from Palæologus. Neither did this generous Tranſilvanian ſtop here, but deſired Andronicus alſo to crown his Clemency by reſtoring Palæologus to his Eſtate and Places, which the Emperor likewiſe granted him by a publick Act. Cantacuzenus Hiſt. Lib. 1. Cap. 3.

SIROES, King of Perſia, was the eldeſt Son of Choſroes II. who having declared his younger Son his Succeſſor, did thereby ſo enrage Siroes, that he caſt his Father into a Priſon, and fifteen Days after cauſed him to be put to Death and all his Children, in 628. After this, Siroes concluded a Peace with the Emperor Heraclius, and ſent him back the Holy Croſs, with the Patriarch of Jeruſalem, and other Chriſtians which his Father had made Slaves. He died in 620, having reign'd but one Year; and Adeſer or Adheſor his Son ſucceeded him. See Choſroes II. and Heraclius.

SIRUS, or Sidrocapſa, a Sea-Town and Biſhop's See of Macedonia, Suffragant of Theſſalonica, from which it ſtands 55 Miles. It is famous for its Silver Mines. Leunclavius.

SISAMNES, a Judge whom Cambyſes, King of Perſia, for perverting Judgment, cauſed to be flead alive, ordering the Skin to be laid on the Chair where his Son, to whom he gave his Place, was to ſit, that the Marks of that juſt Severity might be always preſent to him. Herod. L. 5. Valer. Max. l. 6.

SISEBUT, or Siſebode, King of the Wiſigoths in Spain, was the Succeſſor of Gondemar in 612. He is much praiſed by Authors for his ſweet Temper, Valour and Courage: He retook Biſcay from the Romans, and ſome other Provinces: He chaſed the Moors out of Spain: He made the Jews either to quit the Country, or to turn Chriſtians; as appears from the 55th Canon of the fourth Council of Toledo, &c. He died in 621. Fredegarius in Contin. Greg. Turon. St. Iſidor. in Chron.

SISENALDUS, made himſelf Maſter of the Kingdom of the Wiſigoths in Spain in 631, with the Aſſiſtance of Dagobert, Suintilus being depoſed. Siſenaldus conven'd the fourth Council of Toledo, and died after a Reign of five Years in 636. Fredegarius in Contin. Gregor. Turon. &c.

SISERA, General of the Army of Jabin, King of Canaan, who fleeing after the Defeat of his Forces by Barak, Judge of Iſrael, was received by Jael, the Wife of Heber, the Kenite, who, whilſt he was aſleep, ſtruck a Nail through his Temples. Judges 4.

SISIGAMBIS, Mother of Darius, the laſt King of Perſia, gave an Inſtance at the Death of Alexander the Great, how much the Force of Vertue exceeds that of Nature; ſhe bore up under the Death of Darius her Son, but ſhe could not bear the Loſs of that great Monarch, who had ſo highly obliged her by his Vertues; for ſhe died of Grief ſoon after him.

SISIGAMBIS, the Wife of Darius, who though ſhe was very beautiful, yet Alexander the Great, after the Defeat of her Huſband, would never touch her, but on the contrary took care to have her Chaſtity preſerved, and after her Death beſtowed upon her a moſt magnificent Funeral. Plutarch. in Alex. Magn. Quin. Curtius.

SISINIUS (Pope) was a Syrian by Birth, and choſen after John VII. the eighteenth of Jan. 708. Anaſtaſius, the Library-Keeper, tells us, he was extremely troubled with the Gout, ſo that he could not reach his Hand to his Mouth, and died ſuddenly twenty Days after his Election. Anaſtaſ. in Vit. Pontificum.

SISINIUS I. Biſhop of Conſtantinople, was elected after Atticus in 425 or 426; before this Time he had been a very exemplary Prieſt in the Suburbs of that City. This celebrated Piety of his was the Reaſon of his being preferred to Philip and Proclus, who had each of them a conſiderable Party: 'Tis ſaid, that another Prieſt, born at Side, not being able to bear the Promotion of Siſinius, treated him very ill in a Book called The Chriſtian Hiſtory: This Invective, as Socrates relates it, was of a monſtrous Compoſition, where the Author out of a vain Oſtentation of Learning, brings in Diſputes about Geography, Mathematicks and Philoſophy, though perfectly foreign to the Argument. Siſinius held the See of Conſtantinople but two Years, and then died with the Reputation of a Prudent, Charitable and Generous Prelate. Socrat. Lib. 7. Cap. 25. & ſeq. Baron. in Annal. Gadeau. Hiſt. Eccleſ.

SISINIUS II. Patriarch of Conſtantinople, ſucceeded Nicolas Chryſoberges in 995, and died in 999. This Patriarch, who was a great Enemy to the Church of Rome, endeavour'd to confirm and execute whatſoever Photius had decreed againſt the Latins; and to this end ſent Photius's Circular Letter which he had writ to three other Patriarchs of his Time, containing thoſe Points of Doctrine and Diſcipline which are condemned by the Greek Church, and without changing any thing therein beſides the Inſcription, and putting his own Name to it: He ſent it to the Patriarchs of Alexandria, Antioch and Jeruſalem, to oblige them to unite with him againſt Rome. There is a Tract of his extant De Nuptiis Conſobrinorum in Leunclavii Jure, Gr. Rom. Lib. 3. Pag. 197. Maimbourg Hiſt. of the Greek Schiſm.

SISNANDUS, the 27th King of the Goths about the Year 631, in the Time of the Emperor Heraclius: He uſurped the Kingdom; yet reigned very peaceably, and enacted ſeveral Laws, that are ſet down in the Book called Forum Judicum: He died at Toledo, after having reigned three Years and two Months. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

SISSEG, Lat. Siſſia, an ancient City of Panonia, and a Biſhop's See, Suffragant of Colaza.

SISTERON, Seguſtero, Segeſteriororum Urbs, an ancient City of Provence with a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Aix: It is great and populous, and built upon the River Durance, where it receives the River Buech in the Borders of Dauphiné, 24 Leagues from Orange to the Eaſt, 26 from Grenoble to the South, and as many from Marſeilles to the North-Eaſt. It is ſecured by a Fortreſs, and is the Reſidence of the Seneſchal of the Province. This Town ſuſtained a ſharp Siege in 1562, and at laſt preſerv'd it ſelf from the Guiſes; but being again attack'd, was taken after a vigorous Reſiſtance, and 200 of the unarm'd Inhabitants ſlain, many Proteſtants, Women and Children alſo kill'd. Sainte Marthe Gall. Chriſt.

SISYPHUS, the firſt King of Corinth: He was the Founder of that Kingdom, and built, or as Euſebius ſaith, peopled Ephyra, A. M. 2643, where his Deſcendents reigned about 308 Years, till they were overcome by the Heraclides in 2951. The Poets ſpeak very differently of this Prince, who was a very dexterous and cunning Man. Euſeb. Chron.

SIVAGY, Raja, or Illuſtrious Prince in the Indies, was the Son of a Captain of the King of Viſapour, and born in 1629. He Rebelled when he was yet very young; and having put himſelf at the Head of ſome Outlaws and diſſolute Youth, he made good his Retreat in the Mountains of Viſapour againſt thoſe that attack'd him: The King ſuſpecting that the Father of Sivagy kept Intelligence with his Son, caſt him into Priſon, where he died; at which Sivagy conceived a mortal Hatred againſt the King, and reſolved to revenge his Father's Death: Accordingly he ravag'd and plunder'd a Part of the Kingdom of Viſapour, and with the Booty he took, fortified himſelf ſo well in ſome Cities he had taken, that he formed a little Dominion, in ſpite of the King, who died about that Time. The Queen, who was Regent, did her utmoſt Endeavours to reduce Sivagy to his Duty, and was forc'd at laſt to make Peace with him. Afterwards he fell a pillaging ſome Places belonging to the Great Mogul, and forced that Emperor to ſend an Army againſt him, which Sivagy put to Flight; and then with 4000 Men went and ſurpriz'd Suratte, and plunder'd it four Days together in 1664; 'tis ſaid, he took away in Gold and Silver and precious Stones, above thirty Millions. He did not attack the Caſtle, becauſe he had no great Guns, nor ſufficient Forces for that Enterprize, but plunder'd all the reſt of the City, except the European Chriſtians Quarters, who defended themſelves couragiouſly, and the Convent of the Capucins, which Sivagy forbid his Men to touch. In 1666 the Great Mogul drew him to his Court, having promiſed that he would do him no Hurt, but receive him as a Friend; yet, ſome time after perceiving a Coldneſs in the King's Carriage towards him, he found out a Way to eſcape from his Court; for having got a Paſſport for his Troops that were left in the Kingdom of Viſapour, under pretext of making uſe of them for the Service of the Great Mogul, he made his Eſcape by Night, and by means of the ſaid Paſſport, got away with his Men, and join'd the reſt of his Army. Thevenot Travels of India.

SIXENNE, a Village on the Frontiers of Arragon in Spain, where there is a famous Monaſtery of Ladies, of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, which was founded by Queen Sancha of Caſtile, the Wife of Alphonſus II. King of Arragon, about the Year 1188. The Lady Prioreſs is choſen by the Nuns, who before their Admiſſion to the Order, muſt give Proof of their noble Birth. At Divine Service they wear a Mantle of Point, with the great Croſs of white Linnen upon their Breaſts, and a Ribband, which being faſtened to their Necks, hangs down to their Left-Arm, and they have alſo a Scepter of Silver in their Hands. The Prioreſs diſpoſeth of the Benefices and Cures that belong to the Lands of her Juriſdiction; ſhe beſtows the Habit of Obedience to the Prieſts of the Order, and hath a Place and Vote in the Provincial Chapter of Arragon. They are alſo called the Ladies of Maltha, as being ſubject to the great Maſter of Maltha, from under whoſe Juriſdiction they revolted about 1470, to put themſelves immediately under the Pope, but returned again in 1569, for fear of being ſubjected to the Biſhop of Lerida. Boſio Hiſtory of St. John at Jeruſalem, Book 6. Chap. 6.

SIXTEEN (The) the Name of a Faction begun at Paris towards the latter end of the XVI Century, in the Time of the League. This Party were Forty in Number, but becauſe they had divided themſelves, and aſſign'd to Six of their Number the Sixteen Quarters or Wards of Paris, they were call'd The Sixteen, not from the Number of the Perſons, but from that of the Wards where they were planted. A Citizen of Paris, call'd Rocheblond, began this private League, to break the Meaſures of King Henry III. (who, as they pretended, favoured the Hugonots) and to hinder the King of Navarre from ſucceeding to the Crown of France. This Rocheblond had at firſt a private Conſult with the two famous Doctors and Curates of St. Severin and St. Bennet, and with a Canon of Soiſſons, who preached at Paris. Some few Days after, theſe four drew in eight more to their Party, which were like twelve falſe Apoſtles, Authors of the Pariſian League, ſoon after ſtrengthened with a numerous Aſſociation of Church-men, Courtiers and Citizens. And to throw this Conſpiracy into a proper Method, they choſe Six out of their Number, and poſted them in the ſixteen Wards of the Town, that they might make their Obſervations of what paſs'd, and execute the Orders of the Junto in their reſpective Stations. This Faction, tho' it joyn'd the great League formed at Peronne, yet had particular Views and Intereſts of its own, which made it not always fall in either with the Meaſures of the Dukes of Guiſe or Maine, to which latter the Intereſts of the King of Spain were preferr'd. Maimbourg's Hiſtory of the League.

SIXTUS, the firſt of that Name, Pope, was a Roman by Birth, and ſucceeded Alexander I. the 23d of May, 130 or 131, and died a Martyr the ſixth of April, 140, or 142 according to others. He was Contemporary with the Emperor Adrian, and held the See until the Conſulſhips of Verus and Aniculus. He is ſaid to have ordained, that the Elements and Veſſels belonging to the Altar ſhould be touch'd by none but Miniſters, eſpecially not by Women; that the Corporal ſhould be of the fineſt ſort of Linnen; that no Biſhop cited before the Apoſtolick See ſhould be receiv'd again by his Flock unleſs he brought back Letters commendatory to the People: He inſtituted the Hymn called Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Sabaoth, and is alſo ſuppoſed to be the Author of Lent. A Pope was choſen two Days after his Death. Rufinus, by Miſtake, publiſhed the Sentences of Sixtus the Pythagorean for a Work of this Pope or Sixtus II. This Pythagorean Philoſopher was called Q. Sextius. Cicero, Seneca, Plutarch, Origen, and many others, ſpeak of him with great Praiſe and Commendation. See Gale's Preface to his Opuſcula Mythica Phyſica, &c. printed at Amſterdam 1688. Anaſtaſ. in Vit. Pontiff.

SIXTUS II. of Athens, was choſen after Stephen I. the 24th of Aug. 257, or 260 according to others: He held the Chair of Rome a Year within eighteen Days, or, as Platina ſays, two Years and ten Months, being beheaded for the Defence of the Faith, three Days before his faithful Diſciple St. Laurence, who following him to the Place of Martyrdom, deſired the Favour of being ſacrificed with him. This Paſſage is enlarged on by St. Ambroſe with a great deal of Elocution in his firſt Book de Offic. Cap. 41. Dion. Alex. Epiſt. 11. Euſeb. Lib. 7. Cap. 7, 8. Du Cheſne, &c.

SIXTUS III. a Prieſt of the Church of Rome, was choſen after Celeſtine I. the 26th of April, 432. He condemned Pelagius and Neſtorius, and writ to John of Antioch to withdraw his Protection from the latter of theſe Hereticks, and at laſt had the Satisfaction of ſeeing John and St. Cyril of Alexandria reciled together with the reſt of the Eaſtern Prelates. Anicius Baſſus, who had been Conſul, accuſed him for having debauch'd a Nun; for clearing of the Truth whereof, a Council of 56 Biſhops was called at Rome, where Sixtus was found innocent as to the Crime whereof he was accuſed. He died the 28th of March, 440, having govern'd that Church eight Years, wanting thirty Days. Auguſt. Ep. 104, 105. St. Cyril, Ep. 29 and 38. Gennad. in Catal. Cap. 54. Baron. &c.

SIXTUS IV. called Francis de la Rouvere, was born at Savona, or a Village near to that City, and ſucceeded Paul II. the ninth of Aug. 1471: He was a Cordelier, and advanced to be their General. He endeavoured to unite the Chriſtian Princes againſt the Turk, but without Succeſs. He was liberal and magnificent, eſpecially in Buildings. He Canoniz'd St. Bonaventure, and heaped great Privileges upon his own and other religious Orders. He is accuſed of an exceſſive Deſire of making his Relations rich and powerful; neither can his Paſſion againſt the Houſe of Medicis and the Venetians be excuſed, becauſe it engaged him in unjuſt Wars, the ill Succeſs of which was the Cauſe of his Death the thirteenth of Aug. 1484, after thirteen Years and five Days of his Pontificate, in the 70th Year of his Age. This Pope, before his Promotion to the See, wrote ſeveral Treatiſes: De Sanguine Chriſti. De Futuris Contingentibus. De Potentia Dei. De Conceptione B. Virginis, &c. He was ſo exorbitant in his Expences, that in two Years time he ſpent 2000000 Crowns of Gold, and left a Debt of 70000 Crowns, beſides 300 Pound Weight of wrought Plate. He was ſo free and liberal in his Donations, that he often granted the ſame Thing to three or four ſeveral Perſons, which occaſioned ſo many Diſputes, that he was forced afterwards to keep a Regiſter of his Gifts. He is ſuppoſed to have reduced the Year of Jubile to 25, but it is certain, that in 1475 he held a Jubile at Rome, which brought a great many Kings and Princes thither, that they might enjoy the Benefit of the Indulgences and other Privileges which he then granted at the Inſtigation of his Legat Balthaſar. In his Time the Knights of the Teutonick Order made War with the King of Poland, and he Excommunicated Uladiſlaus, the new King of Bohemia, and his Father Caſimir, as Favourers of the Huſſites. He determined the Difference between the Secular Prieſts and Mendicant Fryers, which had laſted for 200 Years, thus, That Seculars ſhould not tax the Mendicants as the Authors of Hereſie, but reſpect them as Preachers of the Goſpel; that all Communicants ſhould hear their Pariſh Prieſts ſay Maſs every Sunday and ſolemn Feſtival, without which the Mendicants were not ſuffered to preach; that the Mendicants were ſtill to hear Confeſſions and enjoyn Penance, but were not to declare the People diſengaged from Confeſſing to their Pariſh Prieſt at leaſt every Eaſter. There aroſe a mortal Quarrel betwixt this Pope and the Houſe of Medicis, for refuſing Julius de Medicis a Cardinal's Cap: Laurence de Medicis aſſiſted the Count of Tiferno in his War againſt the Pope, whom he alſo diſappointed in his Purchaſe of Imola from the ſaid Count; whereupon the Pope conſpired with Francis de Pazzi to murder both the Princes of Medicis, and engaged ſeveral others in the Deſign, ſtirring up the King of Naples to compel the Florentines to expel the Family of Medicis; and to put the better Face upon the Plot, Raphael Riario, Cardinal of St. George, being but a Youth, was ſent to ſtudy at Piſa, that he might protect the Aſſaſſins after the Perpetration of the Murder, which was appointed on Sunday the 26th of April: Accordingly they murder'd Julius at Church at Maſs, but Laurence de Medicis, being ſlightly wounded, eſcap'd to the Veſtry: In the mean time the Archbiſhop of Piſa and James Poggio being of the Conſpirators, endeavoured to poſſeſs the Palace; but the Party of Medicis taking Arms, ſeiz'd 'em with their Companions, whom, together with a Prieſt that aſſaulted Laurence, they hang'd immediately out at the Window. The young Cardinal above mentioned fled to the Altar during the Tumult, but was ſcarcely ſav'd, though Laurence interceded for him. The Pope hereupon excommunicated and made War againſt Florence, under the Conduct of Frederick, Duke of Urbin, and Alphonſo, Son to the King of Naples. Lewis XI. of France aſſiſted the Florentines, and ordered his Biſhops to make a Decree, that no more Money ſhould be carried from France to Rome for vacant Benefices. The Venetians and other Italian Princes leaguing againſt the Pope, forced him to ſuppreſs his Reſentments until another Time. This happen'd An. 1479, and ſo much the rather becauſe the Turks then invaded Italy. The Pope enjoined the Florentines by way of Penance, to maintain fifteen Gallies againſt the Infidels, whoſe Progreſs was ſtop'd by the Death of Mahomet the Great. The Turks being retired, the Pope renewed his Deſigns, and favouring the Venetians, who made War upon the Duke of Ferrara, kindled a new Flame. The Pope, Venetians, Genoeſes, and ſome Cities, leagued together againſt the King of Naples, the Florentines and Milannois. The Pope excommunicated all his Enemies, and all who favour'd or took their Part, and ſtir'd up Rene, Duke of Lorrain and Anjou, to recover Naples; which ſo inraged Ferdinand, the King thereof, that he over-ran the Pope's Dominions to the very Gates of Rome; whereupon Sixtus ſent an Army againſt him, under the Conduct of Robert Malateſta, and routed Ferdinand at Campo Mortuo, a great Number of his Army being kill'd and taken, and himſelf eſcaping narrowly; and not long after a Peace was concluded. This War being thus finiſhed, the Pope joyns the Duke of Ferrara againſt the Venetians, leſt they ſhould grow too powerful for him, and lanced a thundering Excommunication againſt them and all their Subjects, and had certainly ruined them, had not the Duke of Milan made a ſeparate Peace with them, contrary to the Mind of his other Allies. The Pope's Treaſure being exhauſted, he contrived new Ways of raiſing Money, by ſelling Offices, impoſing unheard of Taxes, tithing the Prelates, and ſqueezing the Clergy. In ſhort, never was any Pope more generous nor magnificent in their Treatment of Princes whoſe Devotions or Diſaſters brought them to Rome. He remitted to Ferdinand of Aragon, King of Naples, the yearly Tribute due for that Kingdom, taking in lieu thereof a white Hackney with its Furniture. He erected ſeveral Hoſpitals, Churches and Buildings, and repair'd others. He cleared all the Common-Shores of Rome, making Conveyances into the Tiber; and it was he who render'd the Vatican Library ſo famous to the World, bringing Books thither from all Parts of Europe, and leaving certain Revenues for the Increaſe of it, with Penſions to its Keepers. He was very zealous for the Glory and Ornament of the City and Privileges of the Church, and was ſo enraged at the Venetians making a ſeparate Peace with the Duke of Ferrara, that it brought a Sickneſs upon him, whereof he died; which occaſioned this Diſtich;

SIXTUS V. was choſen after Gregory XIII. the 24th of April, 1585. He was born of poor Parents in a Village of the Marquiſate of Ancona, called The Grottes, near to the Caſtle of Montalto: His Father's Name was Peretti, and his Mother's Marianna, who both got their Living with Tilling of the Ground. Their Son was born the thirteenth of December, 1521, and was a Swineherd; and 'tis ſaid, that a Cordelier having found him at that Employ, took him for his Guide, and making an Eſtimate of his Wit, by his Anſwers, brought him to his Convent, and procured him the Habit of his Order; where he was called Fa. Felix Peretti. His Parts raiſed him to the Papacy, after having given ſignal Marks of them in the ſeveral Employments and Stages of his Life, being firſt a Preacher, next Vicar-General of his Order, then a Biſhop and Cardinal. He took the Name of Cardinal of Montalto, and after his Election that of Sixtus. He was crown'd on a Wedneſday, which all along had been a fortunate Day to him; for being born on a Wedneſday, he received the Habit of a Cordelier, was made Vicar-General of his Order, and afterwards Biſhop, Cardinal and Pope, on the ſame Day of the Week. Never was any Man more exact and ſevere than he in the Concerns of Juſtice; his Rigour in this Regard, producing the good Effect of Security in the Country, and abundance in the City. To draw a Sword, or to make the leaſt Reſiſtance againſt the Officers of Juſtice, was an unpardonable Crime at Rome in his

Time. He was an Enemy of Vice, and a Protector of Vertue, Judicious, Magnificent, a Lover of Learning, and one that ſpent always ſome part of the Night at his Study, after having employ'd the Day in giving Audience. He was at incredible Expences to adorn and embelliſh, not only the City of Rome, but alſo all others of the Eccleſiaſtical State; and it is own'd, that never any Pope finiſhed ſuch great and admirable Works. He procured that prodigious Obelisk to be dug out of the Ground, which was 72 Foot high, and cauſed it to be erected in the Piazza of the Vatican, where he made that noble Library, which is one of the Maſter-pieces of all his Works. And yet, notwithſtanding all theſe Expences, he left at his Death ſeven Millions of Gold, which he deſigned to be employ'd for relieving the preſſing Neceſſities of the Church. He died the 27th of Auguſt, at the Age of 69, having been Pope five Years, four Months and three Days. Sixtus had taken Pains on a new Edition of the Works of St. Ambroſe, and before he was promoted to the Papacy had printed ſome Sermons in Italian, and ſome other Pieces. Sir Paul Ricaut, in his Continuation of Platina, ſays, That during the Scrutiny for his Election, when he found that it was ſure, he threw off the Diſguiſe of his Humility with which he had covered his Ambition for fifteen Years: Before the Scrutiny was wholly finiſh'd he roſe up, placed himſelf in the middle of the Hall, threw away his Staff, on which he had uſed to lean as a Support of his Age; and ſtanding upright, ſeem'd a Foot higher than before, to the Amazement of the Conclave. The Cardinals diſcovering their Error, the Deacon cried aloud, Hold, Softly, here is an Error in the Votes, the Scrutiny is not good; to which Montalto boldly replied, That it was good; and begun to ſing Te Deum ſo as the Hall rung again, though an Hour or two before he cough'd and ſpit at every Word he ſpoke. Then placing himſelf before the Altar, the Maſter of the Ceremonies aſked him, whether he would accept the Papal Office, he anſwered, That he was capable of receiving another Popedom, and governing two Worlds, with as much Facility as one Papacy. He put on his Robes with ſo much Agility and Haſte, that Cardinal Ruſticucci ſaid to him, The Papal Dignity is a moſt admirable Medicine, that makes old Cardinals young Men, and ſick Men ſound and ſtrong; to which the Pope anſwered, He knew it by Experience. As he was carried to St. Peter's Church, the People were amazed to ſee the Cardinal, who formerly walk'd crooked and ſtooping, with one Shoulder awry, become ſuch a briſk and vigorous Pope. And to his Phyſicians, who wonder'd at the Change, he ſaid, That when he was a Cardinal he ſtoop'd and pored to ſee for St. Peter's Keys; but ſeeing he had found them, there was now no Occaſion for looking ſo low. Being carried to the Palace after the Ceremonies were over, he was left alone, and faſted all Day; his Servants obſerving him to walk with a nimble Motion, whereas before he never uſed to move from his Chair, his Steward came to know what he would have for Supper, he anſwered, with a ſtern and majeſtick Countenance, It is not cuſtomary to demand of great Princes what they will eat, but prepare us a Royal Supper, and leave us to chuſe what we pleaſe. Having invited the Cardinals to Supper, his whole Diſcourſe was, That the Government of the Church was devolved upon the Pope alone by theſe Words, To thee will I give the Keys of Heaven; by which the Cardinals underſtood that they were to have no Share. Next Day he commanded the Governour of Rome and all the Judges, in a menacing Manner, to adminiſter ſevere and impartial Juſtice; diſmiſſing 'em in theſe Words, I come not to ſend Peace but a Sword. He received Embaſſadors and Princes with a chearful Aſpect, but ſhort Audience, but was very obliging to thoſe of Japan, to whom he took care to ſhow the Glory of his Coronation, that they might carry the Fame of his Grandure to the Ends of the Earth. Being ſettled in the Chair, he ſent for his Siſter Camilla, and her Sons, warning them to come in ſuch a manner as ſuited the Meanneſs of their Birth, and the Gravity of thoſe allied to the Papal Chair; but, on News of her Approach, ſome of the Cardinals, thinking to oblige his Holineſs, met and dreſs'd her like a Princeſs, in which Habit the Pope would not own her; but when ſhe return'd in her Country Habit he acknowledg'd her, ſaying, None ſhould make her a Princeſs but himſelf. The firſt Proof of his Juſtice was, cauſing four Men to be hang'd for carrying prohibited Arms. He caſhier'd all moderate Magiſtrates Judges, chuſing others of rigid Tempers. He had his Spies upon every Cardinal, Prelate, Prince and Baron at Rome, as alſo in the very Shops of the City, Monaſteries and all publick Meetings, manag'd all with ſuch Secrecy, that none knew anothers Buſineſs or Walk. His chief Commiſſion to all his Nuncio's was, to penetrate into the Cabinets of Princes, for which end he ſpared no Money. He reviewed all Criminal Proceſſes that were formed ten Years before his Time, reverſed many of the Sentences, ſeizing the Eſtates of thoſe that were dead, and remanding thoſe that were alive to Priſon, if the Rigour of the Law had been any way moderated. He charged the People on pain of Excommunication to inform againſt any of the Judges whom they knew guilty of Bribery or any other Miſbehaviour; by which means ſome were daily drag'd to Priſon, and the reſt made very cautious in giving Sentences. He was ſo ſtrict in enquiring after all diſſolute Perſons, that he commanded all Governours, Magiſtrates, &c. to return a Liſt of all ſuch as had been accuſed of capital Crimes or ſcandalous Deportment in their Time, and did himſelf paſs Sentence on the Syndic of Albano, that he ſhould undergo the Strapado in the publick Market-place, for leaving his Nephew out of the Liſt; nor could the Spaniſh Embaſſador prevail to have him pardon'd. He was ſo well pleaſed when he received full Liſts, that he would often ſay, O happy Gallies which I intend to build! O happy I, who firſt found Men for my Gallies before I found Gallies for my Men. By theſe Methods it came to paſs, that nothing of Incivility in Word or Behaviour was then to be found publickly at Rome. He ſet a conſiderable Price upon each of the Banditti, whom he totally ſuppreſſed, and would not ſo much as grant a Pardon on his Coronation-Day. The Citizens were ſo ſenſible of his Kindneſs in this, that they erected him a Statue of Braſs, with a ſuitable Inſcription. A certain Youth being condemned for oppoſing Bailiffs who diſtrain'd his Aſs by miſtake, the Arguments of the Embaſſador of Tuſcany, who pleaded his Pardon becauſe of his Non-age, were anſwered thus by the Pope, If he wants Years I will lend him ten of mine. Nor was his Carriage leſs haughty towards the greateſt Monarchs; for in two Months after his Coronation he quarrel'd with the Kings of France, Spain and Navarre: His Quarrel with the King of Spain was about the Hackney, ſaying, he made him exchange a Kingdom for a Beaſt; that with the French King, was becauſe he deſired that the Biſhop of Bergamo might continue Nuncio at his Court, and ſent to ſtop the Archbiſhop of Nazareth, who was come as far as Lions in that Quality; upon the Notice of which, the Pope bluſtered out againſt the French King, threatning him with Excommunication, and ſent his Embaſſador immediately out of his Dominions, which the French King highly reſented; but the Matter was at length accomodated, the Archbiſhop of Nazareth receiv'd at Paris, and the French Embaſſador recalled to Rome. His Difference with Henry, King of Navarre, was on the ſcore of his being a Proteſtant, for which he excommunicated him, abſolving his Subjects from their Allegiance, and declared him and his Heirs uncapable of ſucceeding to the Crown of France: Yet this Prince carried himſelf with ſo much Courage and Generoſity, that the Pope admiring his Heroick Spirit, he uſed to ſay, That it was only he and Queen Elizabeth, of all the crown'd Heads in the World, whoſe Friendſhip and Correſpondence he would court if they were not Hereticks; and in ordinary Diſcourſe he would often intimate, that to make Things go well in the World, there was need only of three Perſons, viz. Queen Elizabeth, Henry and himſelf; on the other Hand, Queen Elizabeth is ſaid to have ſo much admired his excellent Qualities for Government, that when they diſcourſed to her of Marriage, ſhe would often ſay, that if ever ſhe married, it ſhould be to Pope Sixtus; who hearing of it, replied, that if they two were married, they ſhould have another Alexander the Great for their Son. He would never endure any Counſellor to adviſe him, but affected to manage all by his own Conduct. He lov'd his Relations, and labour'd to enrich them, but forbid any of them to aſk him for any thing either for themſelves or others. He kept a Diary of his Life, which he delighted to read; and finding therein that he had bought a Pair of Shoes at Macerata, when he was a young Fryar, on Condition to pay Six-pence more for them when he ſhould become Pope, which the Shoe-maker laughing at, deſired him to keep his Word. Hereupon he ſent for the Shoe-maker, who being much ſurprized, was highly concern'd to know for what Fault it ſhould be. When he was brought before the Pope, aſk'd whether he knew or remembred that he ſold him any Shoes, he anſwerad faintly, No. The Pope putting him in mind of the Paſſage, ſent for the Steward of his Houſhold, order'd him the Six-pence, and two more for Intereſt, and bid him go away in Peace. The Fellow murmuring at the Charges of his Journey for ſuch a Trifle, the Pope made him a Compenſation by creating his Son a Biſhop. He could never be brought to a good Opinion of the Jeſuits; and upon their offering him a Confeſſor of their Order, he replied, It was fitter they ſhould confeſs to him, than he to them: However, he valued them as being uſeful Spies. He deſign'd to confine all the Courtizans of Rome to one Place of the City; but miſſing his Aim, and finding that it encreaſed Sodomy, he revoked his Sentence. He was nothing ſhort of any of his Predeceſſors for publick Buildings, particularly for a magnificent Chappel dedicated to the Manger of Chriſt, and two Aqueducts, which he brought from far to Rome, but chiefly for the Vatican Library, which is 380 Foot long, and 69 broad. See Vatican. He ſo formed the Militia of the Church, that in one Month's time he could bring 20000 fighting Men into the Field. He fortified the Eccleſiaſtical State on the Borders of Naples, which, together with his building ten new Gallies, made the Spaniards jealous. About this Time the Catholick Cantons of Switzerland ſent to him for a Nuncio to ſtrengthen his declining Cauſe in that Country on whoſe Arrival they entred into a League to maintain the Papal Authority, and gave the Nuncio abſolute Power over all Eccleſiaſticks in all Cauſes; upon which the Nuncio having ordered a Conſtable to take a ſcandalous Prieſt, he fled into the Proteſtant Cantons, but was taken thence by Force; they by way of Repriſal ſeiz'd the firſt Prieſt they met in the Popiſh Cantons, which had like to have occaſion'd a War, had not the Pope prevented it, as dreading the Conſequence of it to his Party; ſo that the Nuncio prudently diſmiſs'd the Prieſt, but gave out that he made his Eſcape. He granted Leave to Henry III. of France to raiſe 120000 Crowns from the Clergy, to keep him firm to the Catholick Intereſt. He was ſo zealous to ſupport the Papal Grandure, that he purchaſed Palaces for the Nuncio's in all the capital Cities of Europe. He was ſo much afraid of being poiſon'd, that he confin'd his Cook to the Kitchen, under a conſtant Guard. He wrote a Letter to Henry III. of France, whom he underſtood to be offended at his preſenting the Duke of Guiſe, the Head of the League, with a Sword, exhorting him by way of Apology to maintain his Prerogatives againſt the Rebellions of his Subjects; adding, that a Canker in the Bowels of the State was curable only by cauterizing by Fire and Sword, and that it was neceſſary to vent ſome of that Blood which was too redundant in the Veins of the Subjects. The King expoſing this Letter in Parliament, it ſtruck both Proteſtants and Papiſts with Horror, whereat the Pope was ſo diſguſted, that he never wrote him a Letter more. He incited Philip II. of Spain to make War againſt Queen Elizabeth, promiſing a Million of Crowns for that Deſign, as ſoon as any Part of his Army were landed in England. In this he had other Motives than Zeal for Religion, viz. the Hopes of an Opportunity to ſeize the Kingdom of Naples, whoſe Nobility and Soldiery he ſuppoſed would be made uſe of in that Expedition. On the News of the Miſcarrying of this Deſign, he wrote condoling Letters to Philip, caſting the Fault upon the ill Conduct of his Officers. The King being jealous of the Pope's Deſigns on Naples, return'd him an Anſwer, diſſembling his Grief for the Loſs, and withal inſinuating, that he was ſtill ſtrong enough to maintain his own Dominions; and ſeeing he had loſt a Fleet in the Service of Chriſt, the next Attempt belonging to the Church, which he promiſed to follow, but not to precede any more. He fell out again with the King of France for cauſing the Cardinal de Guiſe to be murther'd, and the Cardinal of Bourbon and Archbiſhop of Lions to be impriſon'd; and though that King ſent two Embaſſadors to excuſe thoſe Proceedings from invincible Neceſſity, the Pope was ſo touch'd at his medling with Eccleſiaſticks, that he declared, If he had not an Expreſs under the King's own Hand and Signet of their being releaſed in ſixty Days, that the King remain'd actually Excommunicated, charging him farther, to appear at Rome either in Perſon or Proxy, within ſixty Days after being acquainted with the Summons, on the ſame Penalties, from which he was not to be abſolved by any but himſelf, unleſs at the Point of Death, nor then neither, but upon ſolemn Vows to obſerve all the Injunctions of the Church; and about two Months and ſome Days after, the King was ſtabb'd in the Belly at the Head of a great Army near St. Clou, about two Leagues from Paris, by a Dominican Fryar of 23 Years of Age, the firſt of Auguſt, 1589. Henry III. having fallen thus, the Spaniards gave out at Rome, that the King of Navarre was reduced to a deſperate Condition, the whole Kingdom having declared for the Cardinal de Bourbon by the Name of Charles XI. on which the Pope was about diſpatching Cardinal Cajetan, as Legat, to France, with a numerous Train of Prelates fam'd for Learning and Wiſdom, with 100000 Piſtoles to defray their Charges: But in the mean time he received Advice from the Duke of Luxemburg, that the King of Navarre, after many great Victories, was acknowledg'd by all the Nobility as lawful King; and that they had ſent him as Embaſſador to acquaint his Holineſs with the Reaſons, and to demand his Council, as a common Father, how to ſettle a well-grounded Peace. The Pope finding himſelf trick'd by the Leaguers, diſpatch'd a civil Letter to the Duke, aſſuring him, that he ſhould be welcome. After this he alter'd his Legat's Inſtructions, giving him this Caution, to incline always to the Side of the Church, but not to declare himſelf an Enemy to the King of Navarre till he was paſt hopes of Recovery; to be Neuter ſo long as he found him wavering; but, if he ſhould declare himſelf a true Convert, to declare for his Perſon and Intereſt. But the Legat not obſerving thoſe Directions, enclined too much to the League, and diſobliged the Pope, whoſe Conduct toward Henry IV. contributed much to his Eſtabliſhment. Sixtus at laſt made ſevere Laws againſt Exceſs in Apparel, which he reformed. While he was a private Man, he was abſtemious and ſparing in his Diet, but when burthened with great Affairs, he did eat and drink much to keep up his Spirits, and would ſit two or three Hours at Meals, diſcourſing of Theology and Policy. He was frugal however in his Diet and Cloathing, clamorous among his Servants, yet loved and preferred thoſe who were faithful and diligent, but was implacable towards thoſe who behaved themſelves otherwiſe, having condemned his Cupbearer to the Gallies for affixing his Seal to a certain Writing which he himſelf refuſed to paſs. He was extremely affectionate to his Kindred, advanced his Siſter Camilla's Grandſon to be Cardinal, though very young, in the firſt Month of his Pontificate, who became ſo dextrous in Affairs, and ſerviceable to the Pope, that he allowed him 100000 Crowns Yearly. The Palace of Montalto is to this Day one of the beſt furniſhed in Rome. For raiſing of Money, he contrived ſuch Taxes as were never known before, and advanced the Papal Revenue 600000 Crowns per An. At his Death there were five Millions found in the Caſtle of St. Angelo, one of which was never to be employed but in Recovery of the Holy Land, and another not to be employed except in a War for Defence of the Church againſt Infidels and Hereticks; and for the improving it to this End, he would have all Popes to be obliged by Oath: And beſides all this, and what he expended in publick Structures, he employed 200000 Crowns as a Stock to maintain Plenty in Rome, whilſt there was Scarcity in other Parts of Italy. He created 33 Cardinals, and ordain'd that their Number ſhould not exceed 70, four of them to be Doctors of Divinity, choſen out of the ſeveral Orders of Friars. He erected a Court of Conſcience, compoſed of Perſons of Vertue and Principle, for the more ſpeedy deciding of the Law Suits, enacted that Adultery ſhould be puniſh'd with Death, and prohibited Judicial Aſtrology. Four Months before his Death he complain'd of an Illneſs in his Head, and though he underſtood Galen and Hippocrates, yet during his Illneſs his Meat and Drink were ſuch as are uſual to healthful Men, having the Saying of Veſpaſian the Emperor often in his Mouth, That a Prince ought to die on his Feet and in Action. He died of a Malignant Fever Aug. 30. 1590, and was buried in a Princely Manner in a Chappel of his own building, by his Nephew Cardinal Montalto. Ricaut. Contin. Platina.

SIXTUS (Franciſcus) ſurnamed Senenſis from the Place of his Birth Siena, was a Perſon of great Learning. He publiſh'd his Bibliotheca Sancta in 1566, being 46 Years of Age, and died at Genoua in 1569, at the Age of 49. This Work is highly eſteem'd both by Roman Catholicks and Proteſtants; and above all by Hottinger, who declares, that it was writ with abundance of Judgment, and that it ought to be preferr'd before all others writ on that Subject. The moſt conſiderable of his other Works are, In varios Scripturæ locos queſtiones Aſtronomicæ, Geographicæ, Problematicæ, &c. Homiliæ in Evangelia, &c. Poſſevin. in Appar. Hottinger. Biblioth. The Elogy and Cenſure of this Work may be ſeen in R. Simon's Critical Hiſtory of the Old Teſtament.

SKENINGRAVE, a ſmall Sea-Port in Yorkſhire, which lies Weſt of Mulgrave Caſtle. It is noted for the great Shoals of Seal-Fiſh which appear about the Rocks.

SKIPTON, a Market-Town of Yorkſhire, in the Weſt-Riding, Hundred of Stamclife, and Tract of Craven.

SKY, a large Iſland, one of the Scotch Hebrides or Weſtern Iſles. It is above fifty Engliſh Miles in length, in ſome Places twelve and in others eight in breadth. It abounds with Mountains, Woods, Paſturage, Corn and Cattel, eſpecially Horſes, there being in it a great Breed of Mares. It hath five great Rivers, and many leſſer ones, all full of Salmon. The Sea penetrating on every Side, makes ſixteen Bays, which abound with Herring. It hath alſo a Lake of freſh Water, and five Caſtles. In the ancient Scotch Dialect it was called Skianacha, i. e. Winged, becauſe of the many Promontories running out into the Sea, reſembling Wings; and at preſent Sky, which ſignifies a Wing. Buchan.

SLAKOW, Lat. Slacovia, a City of Moravia, five Miles South of Olmitz, and two Weſt of Brun. The Germans call it Auſterlitz.

SLEAFORD, a large Market-Town in Lincolnſhire, of Flaxwell Hundred. It is well inhabited, and has the Ruines of an ancient Caſtle ſtill to be ſeen. It gives Name to a ſmall Stream, near the Head of which it ſtands. Ninety Miles from London.

The SLEEVE, called by the French la Manche; the Streights between Calice and Dover.

SLEGOE, a Sea-Port Town and County of Ireland, in the Province of Connaught.

SLEIDANUS (Joannes) was born at Sleida, in the Neighbourhood of Cologne: He ſpent the greateſt part of his Youth in France, with the Cardinal of Bellai, whoſe Domeſtick he was. He aſſiſted at the Council of Trent, and diſcharged ſeveral Embaſſies to his Honour; but that which gained him the greateſt Reputation, is, his Hiſtory, which he hath writ with a great deal of Politeneſs. He died in 1556. He Tranſlated into Latin Claudius Seiſſel of the Commonwealth of the French, and of the Duties of Kings, and Philip de Commines. He hath alſo Abridg'd and Tranſlated into Latin, the Hiſtory of Froiſſard, and Plato's Book de Republica and de Legibus. Thuan. Hiſt. Pontanus, Bodinus.

SLESWICK, Sleſvicenſis Ducatus, a Province of the Kingdom of Denmark, having the Title of a Dukedom; and is alſo called South Jutland. On the Eaſt it is bounded by the Baltick Sea, on the South by Holſtein, on the Weſt by the German Ocean, and on the North by Jutland. The Capital City is Sleſwick, Sleſvicum, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Lunden; the other are, Ripen, Haderſleben, and Flensburg. One part of this Country is under the King of Denmark, and another under the Duke of Holſtein. The Year 1686 or 87, being moſt ſpent in a Treaty for the Reſtitution of this Dukedom, in the Year 1688, the French King began a War upon Germany by the Taking Philipsburg; and that forced all Europe to unite againſt him. The King of Denmark was ſo far prevailed upon by the general Good, and the Preſſures of his Affairs, that the 30th of June, 1689, he reſtored the Duke of Holſtein and Sleſwick to all his Lands and Goods, with the Sovereignty, Regalities, Right of raiſing Moneys, making Alliances, building Fortifications, and Garriſoning the ſame, &c. as he enjoyed it according to the Weſtphalian and Northern Treaties in 1675, together with what appertains to him by the Treaty of Fountainbleau, which is thereby confirmed; upon the zealous Mediation of the Emperor and the Electors of Saxony and Brandenburg, with ſeveral other Princes.

SLONIM, Slonima, a ſmall City of Lithuania, in the Palatinate of Novogrod, upon the River Sezura, eight Poliſh Miles to the South from Novogrod.

SLUCZK, Slucum, a Town in Lithuania, honoured with the Title of a Dukedom. It is great and populous, and ſtands upon a River of the ſame Name, and in a Country that is all covered with thick Woods. It is famous for the Defeat of three Armies of Tartars by Conſtantine, Duke of Oſtrog, in the Reign of Sigiſmund I. King of Poland.

SLUYS, Lat. Sluſa or Cluſa, a Town and Sea-port of Flanders, under the Hollanders. It formerly belong'd to the Counts of Nemours deſcended from the Counts of Flanders, and then fell into the Poſſeſſion of the French. Philip the Bald of France kept a ſtrong Garriſon here to curb thoſe of Bruges, and Charles VI. built a Fleet here againſt England. The Emperor Maximilian I. took it afterward, in whoſe Family it remain'd ſome time. During the Wars of the Netherlands, the Prince of Parma took it for the King of Spain; and the Dutch retook it An. 1604, under the Conduct of Prince Maurice, which they look'd upon as a ſufficient Compenſation for the Loſs of Oſtend, and thereupon coin'd a Medal with this Motto, Jehova plus dederat quam amiſimus, God gave us more than we loſt. The Defence of the Beſieged was very memorable, for they held it out for three Months till ſuch time that they were out of all Hopes of Relief, and had eat up all the Leather, Mice, Rats, &c. which they could find. The Dutch fortified the Haven and Town, which they re-peopled with the Inhabitants of Oſtend, who came thither after the Surrender of that Place: But on a Treaty of Peace it was afterwards diſmantled, but now very ſtrong. It is ten Miles North-Eaſt of Bruges, fourteen South-Weſt of Middleburgh, and 22 North-Weſt of Ghent, Long. 22. 34. Lat. 22. 34.

SMAHORS, (Procopius) a famous Captain of the Bohemians or Huſſites, after Zisca. There is a Letter of his and of Conrad Samimelick, another Captain of the Huſſites, dated in 1430, wherein he exclaims againſt the Corruptions of the Church of Rome, and offers his Aſſiſtance to all the States of Europe to drive away the incorrigible Prieſts. See Suplement. Faſcicul. rerum Expetendarum, printed at London 1690.

SMALAND, Smalandia, a County of Oſtro Gothland under the Swedes. Its chief Cities are Calmar, Jonekoping and Wexſio. It hath Weſtro-Gothia on the Weſt, Blecking to the South, the Baltick on the Eaſt, and Oſtro-Gothia on the North.

SMALCALDE, Smalcalda, a City of Franconia in Germany, in the County of Hennenberg, under the Landgrave of Heſſe-Caſſel, four Miles from Eiſenach, and ſix from Erfurt to the North Weſt. This Place is particularly conſiderable on the account of ſeveral Conventions of Proteſtant Princes that have been held here, to treat together about their common Intereſt. The Proteſtant Princes met here the 22d of December, 1530, from the Apprehenſion they had that the Emperor deſign'd their utter Ruin, upon Occaſion of the Aſſembly which the Archbiſhop of Mentz had conven'd at Collen, there to chuſe a King of the Romans: The Elector of Saxony, inſtead of going to that City, ſent his Son thither, and was himſelf preſent at the Convention of Smalcalde, to conclude a League againſt the Emperor and the Roman Catholicks. Accordingly the Proteſtant Princes engaged themſelves in a ſtrict Union to aſſiſt one another againſt all thoſe that ſhould endeavour to trouble the Exerciſe of their Religion; and ſent to all the Proteſtant Cities of Germany to enter into the League. And in a ſecond Meeting at Smalcalde in 1531, the Quota that every Member of the League was to contribute in Men and Mony for carrying on the War againſt the Emperor, was agreed on. And at the ſame time they ſent a large Manifeſto to the Kings of France and England, to juſtifie their Doctrine and Proceedings, and to demand their Aſſiſtance. The King of England gave them for Anſwer, That he would do all that could be expected of him, to procure a ſpeedy calling of the Free-Council they deſired. But Francis I. of France proceeded farther, and ſent an Embaſſador to them, to agree upon Conditions upon which he was willing to lend them his Aſſiſtance, for the Preſervation of the Rights of the Empire, which they declared to have been violated by the Election of the King of the Romans. The Confederate Princes aſſembled again at Smalcalde in 1535. where were preſent fifteen Princes, beſides the Deputies of thirty Cities, which had embraced the Augsburg Confeſſion, and renewed for ten Years the League the Proteſtants had made for their own Defence, at which were preſent the Ambaſſadors of England and France, who propoſed to enter into the ſame League under certain Conditions. In 1537 the Proteſtant Princes and Deputies of the Lutheran Cities met here again, and called to their Convention Luther, Melancthon, and other Proteſtant Doctors: Here they examined the Bull of Indicton agreed on in the Council of Mantua; and being ſtrengthen'd by the Conjunction of the Kings of Denmark and Sweden, and other Princes of the Empire, they declared that they would never conſent to the holding of a Council out of Germany: Whereupon Charles V. betook himſelf to Force of Arms, and in one Years time much weakened the Army of the Confederates, and in 1547 took the Elector of Saxony and the Landgrave of Heſſe Priſoners. But in 1552 the Confedertes forced Charles V. to conclude the Peace of Paſſau, by which the Proteſtant Religion was eſtabliſhed in Germany. Hoffman gives it thus; The League at Smalcalde was occaſion'd by the Emperor Charles V. his detaining the Embaſſadors ſent to him from the Proteſtant Princes, and giving them a very harſh Anſwer. At the firſt Aſſembly were preſent the Elector of Saxony, with his Son John Frederick, the two Princes of Lunenburg Erneſt and Francis, William, Landgrave of Heſſe, the Deputies of the Elector of Brandenburg, Cities of Straſburgh, Ulm, Nuremberg, Hailbron, Conſtance, Reutling, Memming, Kempten, Lindaw, An. 1529. In Decemb. 1530 the Form of the League was drawn up, renewed for ten Years in 1535, at which time the Princes of Pomerania, Wirtemberg, Robert of Bavaria, the Duke of Twobriggs, the Cities of Ausburg, Franckford, Hanover and Hamburgh were receiv'd into it. In 1546 the Emperor being ſucceſsful in War, proſcrib'd the Elector of Saxony and Landgrave of Heſſe, who thereupon took Arms, and fought ſeveral Batles gallantly; but at Mulberg An. 1547 the Elector of Saxony was defeated and taken, as was the Landgrave of Heſſe afterwards by a fraudulent Trick of the Emperor; at which time the Proteſtants ſeem'd to be utterly ruin'd. But Prince Maurice of Saxony, Son-in-law to the Landgrave of Heſſe, having put the Emperor to Flight, the Council of Trent was diſſolv'd, the Captive Princes ſet at Liberty in 1553, and Peace, together with the Proteſtant Religion, was eſtabliſhed by the Treaty of Paſſau in 1554. *Sleidan. SMARAGDUS, Abbot of the Monaſtery of St. Michael in Lorrain, belonging to the Dioceſe of Verdun, lived in the Ninth Century. Some Authors, as Trithemius, Sixtus Senenſis and Poſſevinus, confound him with another that lived in the ſame Century, and was Monk of the Abby of St. Saviour of Aniane in the Dioceſe of Montpelier. This latter died in 843. He writ the Life of St. Bennet, firſt Abbot of Aniane: the former made Commentaries upon the Rule of St. Bennet, and a Treatiſe of Vertues and Vices, called the Diadem of Monks, and ſome other Tracts upon the Scripture. He writ a Book alſo of the Duty of a Prince, under the Title of The Royal Way, and dedicated it to Lewis the Meek, whom his Father Charlemagne had made King of Aquitain, being yet very young. He compoſed alſo a Courſe of Sermons fo the whole Year. Charlemagne made uſe of his Pen to write to Pope Leo concerning the Proceſſion of the Spirit; and he writ alſo the Acts of the Conferences that were held at Rome in 816 on that Subject.

SMERDIS, or Tanyoxares, was the Brother of Cambyſes, of whom when Cambyſes on a time had dream'd that he ſaw him ſitting on his Throne, he commanded him to be ſlain, and ſoon after died himſelf. Alſo a Perſian Magus of the ſame Name, who, becauſe he was very like Smerdis, the Brother of Cambyſes, gave himſelf out to be the ſame, and uſurped the Throne ſeven Months upon the Death of Cambyſes; but the Cheat being diſcovered, he was ſlain by ſome Perſian Lords. Herodot. Lib. 2. *Euſeb in Chron. SMITH (Sir Thomas) born at Saffron-Walden in Eſſex, and educated at Queen's College in Cambridge: He afterwards travelled at King Henry the Eighth's Charge, and upon his Return to Cambridge was made Orator of the Univerſity, Greek Profeſſor, and afterwards Profeſſor of the Civil Law, in which Faculty he commenced Doctor. In the Reign of Edward VI. he was, by the Recommendation of the Duke of Sommerſet, made Secretary of State, Knighted, and promoted to the Deanry of Carliſle: About the ſame time alſo he was made Provoſt of Eaton College. In Queen Mary's Reign he was deprived of theſe Dignities, having only an Aſſignment of 100 l. per An. from the Crown; but in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth he was reſtored to his Preferment, and afterward performed ſeveral Embaſſies to great Satisfaction: As to his Character, to ſay nothing more, he was an eminent Orator, and very conſiderable for his Skill in the Greek Language and the Civil Law: He wrote The Commonwealth of England, and the Manner and Government thereof, in three Books, printed in Engliſh at London in 1583, and at other times. This Book was afterwards tranſlated into Latin by Dr. Budden; Derecta & Emendata Grecæ Linguæ pronunciatione, ad Gardinorum Epiſc. Winton. Epiſtola. Derecta & Emendata Linguæ Anglicæ Scriptione. De Re Nummaria. The Authority of the Form and Manner of holding Parliaments, publiſh'd in 1685; but it is queſtioned whether Sir Tho. was the Author of this Book or not: He has alſo ſeveral Letters extant in the Complete Ambaſſador, &c. collected by Sir Dudley Diggs. He gave all his Latin and Greek Books to Queen's College in Cambridge, and died in the 63d Year of his Age, in the Year 1577. Athen. Oxon.

SMITH, Lord Carrington. This Family derive themſelves from Sir Michael Carrington, Knight and Standard-Bearer to King Richard I. in the Holy Land; from whom deſcended John Car-

Carrington, who about the Beginning of Henry IV's Reign was for his Loyalty to King Richard II. forc'd to quit the Realm for ſome time, and ſerve in Italy under John Galeazzo, Duke of Milan, againſt the Emperor Rupert, and after his Return, for his better Concealment, chang'd his Name to Smith: He was well received by William Curſon, a younger Son of Sir John Curſon, who was his Couſin German, and Abbot of St. Oſithes in Eſſex, for by this Abbot the ſaid John Carrington was advanced in Marriage to Milicent, Daughter and Heir of Robert Laynam by Alice, Daughter and Heir to John Hend, Mayor of London: From this John deſcended John Smith, Eſq; who, being the Lord Treaſurer's Remembrancer in the Exchequer, was in 31 Hen. VIII. conſtituted the ſecond Baron of that Court, and by the Marriage of Ann, Daughter and Heir to John Harwell of Wotton, in Com. War. Eſq; much encreaſed his Eſtate, from whom, by Lineal Succeſſion, Sir Charles Smith was deſcended, who for his Fidelity and conſiderable Aſſiſtances given to King Charles I. was, by Letters Patent, bearing Date the 31ſt of October, in the 19th Year of his Reign, advanced to the Degree of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Carrington of Wotton; and in November following, was made Viſcount Carrington of Barfore within the Province of Conaught in Ireland. This Charles Lord Carrington married Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir John Caril of South-barting, in Com. Suſſ. Knight, and by her had Iſſue four Sons, Francis, Carril, John and Charles, and five Daughters, Mary married to Sir George Wintour of Huddington in Com. Wigorn, Knight; Margaret, the Wife of Sir. Francis Hungate of Hudlaſton in Com. Ebor. Barr. the other three Lucy, Ann and another Mary, died unmarry'd. This Lord was barbarouſly murthered by one of his Servants at Pontoiſe in France, to whom ſucceeded Francis his Son and Heir, who enjoys the Honour at preſent; John Smith, Eſq; Uncle to this Lord Francis, was a Captain in King Charles the Firſt's Service at Edghill, where he recovered the Royal Standard from the Rebels, and was made Knight Banneret under it. His Lordſhip's Arms are, Pearl, a croſs Ruby between four Peacocks cloſe, Saphire. Ex Stemate. Pat. 31. Hen. VIII. Dugdale Baron. Hiſt. of Warwickſhire. Short View of the Troubles of England, &c.

SMOLENSKO, Smolenſcium, a City of Lithuania upon the River Boryſthenes or Nieper, being the Capital of a great Province of the ſame Name, with the Title of a Dukedom, near the Borders of Muſcovy. It is a great and ſtrong City, being ſurrounded with a Wall eight Cubits broad at the top, and ſtrengthen'd by 52 great Towers, and a very ſtrong Caſtle. It was formerly much greater than it is at preſent, though it contains ſtill about 8000 Houſes. The City and Dukedom of Smolensko at firſt belong'd to a Ruſſian Duke, but was conquer'd by Vitondus, Duke of Lithuania in 1403, Caſimire, King of Poland, ſubjected it to that Crown in 1452; the Moſcovites took it in 1514, and kept it till 1611. when Sigiſmund III. took it from them after a Siege of near two Years. The Moſcovites after this attempted it again in 1616 and 1633, and this laſt time, after a Years Siege, were defeated by Ladiſlaus IV. But it was taken by them the thirteenth of October, 1654, and by a Treaty in 1656 was yielded to them. It lies 150 Poliſh Miles from Vilna to the Eaſt, and the ſame Diſtance from Kiovia to the North, and 80 Miles Weſt of Muſcow.

SMYRNA, a City of Ionia in the Leſſer Aſia, with a large and ſecure Haven upon the Archipelago, belonging to the Turks, who call it Iſmyr. It is a Place of great Antiquity: Some affirm that it was built by the Amazones, others by Theſeus; that which ſeems moſt probable is, that it was a Colony of the Epheſians. The Country about it is ſo fruitful, that it needs not ſeem ſtrange, that it hath been ſo often the Occaſion of War between the Greeks and Perſians. It is one of the ſeven Cities that pretend to have been the Birth-place of Homer, and is an Archbiſhop's See. At preſent it is built in the Form of an Amphitheatre, upon the Deſcent of a Hill that looks towards the North-Weſt, and is very great, notwithſtanding ſome part of it hath been ruined, as appears from the Remains of ancient Buildings. Dolabella ſlew Trebonius, one of Julius Cæſar's Murderers here. The Venetians made themſelves Maſters of it in 1344, and kept it until 1428, that it was retaken by Amurath II. It is now extremely populous, being inhabited by about 60000 Turks, 15000 Greeks, 8000 Armenians, and 6000 or 7000 Jews. As for the Chriſtians of Europe, who are the Cauſe of the great Trade there, their Number is not very conſiderable; they have all of them the free Exerciſe of their Religion. The Turks, Greeks, Armenians and Jews, have their Habitations upon the Hill, along the Sea-Shore is inhabited by the Franks, or Chriſtians of Europe, viz. the Engliſh, Hollanders, French and Italians, and each Nation hath his Conſul. The Franks Street is a ſingle long Street upon the Sea-Shore, for the Conveniency of unlading Goods and Proſpect. The adjacent Part of the Country is very fruitful eſpecially in Oyl and Wine, and has Salt-pits to the North; ſo that there is great Plenty of Proviſions at Smyrna, and very cheap; but the Heat in Summer is very great, and would be intolerable, but for a Brieze coming from the Sea, which riſeth about ten in the Morning, and continues till Evening. The City is governed by a Cadi, who commonly is civil enough to the Chriſtians.

Smyrna is the greateſt Place of Trade in the Levant, eſpecially for Perſian Silks, Cottons, Camlets, Turkey Carpets, Turkey Leather, &c. They drive alſo a Trade with Tabacco, Scammony, which latter is the Juyce of a Plant that grows about Smyrna. The Cuſtoms upon Commodities are of three, four, five or eight per Cent. for they are not equally impoſed on all Nations, the Engliſh, as to Cuſtoms, being moſt favoured, and the Armenians charged higheſt. At Smyrna, as well as in other Places of Turkey, if a Man be diſcovered ſtealing the Cuſtoms, his Goods is not confiſcated, but he is only condemn'd to pay double Cuſtom. Tavernier's Travels of Perſia.

The tenth of July, 1688. there happen'd a terrible Earthquake in this City, by means of which the greateſt part of it was deſtroy'd, which was the Cauſe of a great Loſs to the Merchants; for beſides that a great many Houſes were overthrown, the Stores of Gunpowder belonging to the Engliſh, Hollanders and French, took Fire, and cauſed a greater Deſtruction than the Earthquake; the Loſs of Merchandiſes only, being valued at five Millions of Crowns; the Loſs of our Engliſh Merchants a-part having been computed by ſome to amount to no leſs than 80000 l. Sterling.

SNATH, a Market in Yorkſhire Weſt Riding, in Oſgodcroſs Hundred, adjoyning to Mars Land, 136 Miles from London.

SNETHAM, or Snetſham, a ſmall Market-Town in Norfolk, in Smethden Hundred, not far from the Sea; 82 Miles from London.

SOANA, Suana, a ſmall City of Tuſcany in the Territory of Sienna, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Siena. It ſtands upon a very high Hill, near the River la Flore, in the Borders of the States of the Church, 48 Miles from Siena to the North-Eaſt. Pope Gregory VII. was born in this City.

SOBESLAUS I. was the ſixth that govern'd the Kingdom of Bohemia during the Intervals between the Death of one King and the Election of another. He no ſooner was inform'd of the Death of his Brother Uladiſlaus I. who had baniſh'd him, but he came and took upon him the Government of the Kingdom. He obtain'd a remarkable Victory over the Emperor Lotharius II. and Otho, Marqueſs of Moravia, who was killed in the Battle. The Emperor afterwards joyned Friendſhip with Sobeſlaus, who aſſiſted him againſt Conrad and Frederick, whom he defeated. Miroſlaus and Streſemire envying the King's Happineſs, conſpired againſt him, but being diſcover'd, were puniſh'd according to their Deſert. The King, in Acknowledgment of this Mercy, viſited all the Churches of Prague bare-foot and bare-headed, to give Thanks for his Deliverance. He reigned with abundance of Glory. He rebuilt Glatz, which the Polanders had ruined, and Gorlitz, which had been burnt; as likewiſe the Towns of Mies and Butiſma, which began to be ruinous. He died of a Pain in the Head, the fourteenth Year of his Reign. Julius Solimanus de Elogiis Ducum, Regum & Interregum Bohemia.

SOBESLAUS II. was the eighth Perſon that govern'd Bohemia during the Interregnums. He was no ſooner got into the Throne but he ſtab'd the Governour of Prinda, in Revenge of the ill Uſage he had receiv'd of him when a Priſoner; but ſoon after ſeem'd to repent for what he had done. Not long after he gave freſh Inſtances of his Cruelty and Perfidiouſneſs. Andrew conteſting with his Brother Emerick, King of Hungary, for that Kingdom, Emerick betook himſelf to Sobeſlaus, ſuppoſing that by his means he might come ſafely to the Emperor, and get him to terminate the Difference between him and his Brother; Sobeſlaus receiv'd him, but baſely ſent him back to his Brother: The Emperor incenſed at this his Treachery, ſent for him to anſwer this Action; which he delaying, the Emperor deprived him of the Kingdom, and put in his Place Frederick, the Son of Uladiſlaus II. But Sobeſlaus, unwilling tamely to ſurrender the Kingdom, gave Battle to his Enemy near Prague, where, being wounded by Frederick's own Hand, and carried out of the Battle, he died of his Wound ſoon after. Julius Solimanus de Elegiis, &c.

SOBRARBE, a Country of Spain in Arragon, near Ainſa; it had formerly the Title of a Kingdom: This Country is on the Side of Catalonia and borders upon the Pyrenæan Hills.

SOCHIS, King of Egypt, who erected fourteen Obelisks of Marble in Honour of the Sun at Heliopolis, the Capital of his Kingdom, every one of the ſaid Obelisks being 48 Cubits high. Plin. Lib. 36. Cap. 8.

SOCINUS (Fauſtus) Head of the Socinians, was born of one of the moſt noble Families of Siena. His Life may be ſeen at the Beginning of his Works, printed in Holland in the Fratres Paloni; by which it appears that he had never ſtudied Philoſophy or Scholaſtical Divinity, that he had only ſpent ſome time in the Study of Logick, and that very late too, having ſpent the greateſt Part of his Life, and that alſo which was the moſt proper for Study, at the Duke of Florence his Court. He began to ſtudy Divinity at 35 Years of Age, being already wholly prepoſſeſt with the Notions of his Uncle Lælius, whoſe Writings he had by him, and by which he formed his Syſtem. This Lælius Socinus was a much more able Man than he, as having ſtudied the Greek and Hebrew, and beſides converſed with the moſt learned Proteſtants of his Time, yet writ very little, for fear of diſcovering himſelf; neither is it certain that moſt of the Books attributed to him are his indeed, as Sandius obſerves in his Bibliotheca or Library of the Anti-Trinitarian Writers. As for Fauſtus Socinus, who was the Poſſeſſor of his Uncle's Papers, (who died at Zurich in 1562, and the 37th Year of his Age) after he had for ſeveral Years meditated upon them, whilſt he was at the Court of Florence, and having no other Knowledge of Divinity, but what he had pick'd thence, he thought fit to ſet up himſelf as the Head of a new Sect. Neither were there wanting ſome of his own Company that diſlik'd his Proceedings, calling him a turbulent, paſſionate and abuſive Perſon, they reproach'd him for writing with too much Precipitancy and Raſhneſs, and that he had too good Thoughts of himſelf, as appears from the Letter which Squarcia Lupus writ to him in 1581, and is printed amongſt Socinus's Works: He himſelf owns in his Anſwer to Squarcia Lupus, that he never ſtudied under any Maſter, and that he never had any other Help in his Studies, beſides the Writings of his Uncle: Yea, ſome of his Aſſociates oppoſed themſelves to his new Paradoxes, which they look'd upon as ſtrange and horrible Opinions, and contrary to the Word of God. See what Niemojevius reproaches him for, in a Letter writ to him in 1587. I did not, ſaith he, without Sorrow (that I may not ſay worſe) as I was reading your Book, meet with a certain Paradox, that was contrary to Holy Scripture, and altogether horrible, whilſt you deny Chriſt by his Death upon the Croſs to have offered up any Sacrifice. Before the Publiſhing of that Collection intituled Bibliotheca Fratrum Polonorum, it was a very difficult thing to get all the Works of Socinus, which are printed at the Front of that Library in two Tomes; the firſt whereof contains his Explications of ſome Places of Scripture, and his Doctrinal Pieces; the Titles whereof are as follow: Explicatio concionis Chriſti quæ habetur Cap. 5, 6 & 7. apud Matth. Explicatio primæ partis 1 Cap. Evang. Joan. Explicatio de loco Pauli in Epiſt. ad Rom. Cap 7. in qua id præcipuè quæritur utrum Apoſtolus, illic ſub ſua ipſius perſona de ſeipſo jam per Chriſti Perſonam Regenerato, nec ne loquatur. Explicatio variorum Scripturæ locorum. Commentarius in Epiſt. Joan. The Titles of his Doctrinal Pieces are, De Autoritate Script. ſacræ. Prælectiones ſacræ. De Eccleſia varii tractatus. Epiſtolæ ad Amicos. Elenchi Sophiſtici. Inſtitutio Relig. Chriſtianæ. Alſo a Book wherein he endeavours to perſuade the Proteſtants of Poland and Lithuania to joyn themſelves with the Socinians. The ſecond Tome contains his Polemical Treatiſes, whoſe Titles are, Contra Palæologum de Magiſtratu. De Chriſto ſervatore contra Covetum. De ſtatu primi Hominis ante Lapſum. De Natura Chriſti contra Aſſertiones Theologicas Collegii Poſnanienſis. Miſcellanea ſacra contra Eraſmum Joannis. Contra Wiekum. Breves Tractatus Contra Eutropium. Contra Chriſtianum Franken. Contra Franciſcum Davidis. In all which Works there appears a great deal more of Subtilty and Accuteneſs, than ſolid Judgment. M. Simon. Fauſtus Socinus held, That the Arians had given too much to Jeſus Chriſt, aſſerting that he was meer Man, had no Exiſtence before Mary, denied openly the Pre-exiſtence of the Word, denied that the Holy Ghoſt was a diſtinct Perſon, and maintain'd, that the Father alone was truly and properly God, excluſive of the Son and Holy Ghoſt, alledging, that the Name of God given to Jeſus Chriſt in the Scriptures ſignifies no more than that God the Father has given him a Sovereign Power over all Creatures, and that in Conſequence of this Privilege, Men and Angels ought to adore him: And to maintain his Deluſions, and to avoid the Force of that Text, That no Man hath aſcended up to Heaven but he that came down from Heaven, Joh. 3. 13. he feign'd, that Chriſt took a Journey to Heaven after his Baptiſm, and came down again; he denies the Redemption of Chriſt, ſaying, That what he did for Men, was only to give them a Pattern of Heroick Vertue, and to ſeal his Doctrine by his Death. Original Sin, Grace and Predeſtination, paſſed with him for Chimera's. The Sacraments he eſteem'd inefficacious Ceremonies; he denied the Immenſity of God, aſcribing him a particular Corner of Heaven, and alledging, that he knew only neceſſary Effects. It is alſo charged on the Socinians, That they believe the Death and Reſurrection of the Soul to be judged with the Body, with this Difference, That the Righteous ſhall be raiſed to Eternal Happineſs, and the Wicked condemn'd to Fire, which ſhall be Eternal, but conſumes the Soul and Body of the Wicked in a certain time proportion'd to their Merits; but moſt of theſe they do not pretend abſolutely neceſſary to be believ'd. Socinus died in 1604, aged 65, at a Town three Leagues from Cracovia in Poland. Spond. Florimond. de Rimond. Hornbeck Sum. Controv. de Socinian.

Mareſii Hydram Socinian. Spanheim*'s Syntagm Diſput. Lætus in Compend. Hiſt. univerſ. calls Servetus the Patriarch of Socinianiſm. Valentinus Smalcius diſturb'd the Church of Poland with this Hereſie till baniſh'd by Act of the Diet in 1636, being at that time the grand Champion of that Error. Calvin taxes Servetus, their Patriarch, with denying that God was ever reveal'd to Abraham and the other Patriarchs, but that they worſhipped an Angel in his ſtead; with denying the Trinity, and calling all ſuch as believed it Athieſts; with reviving the Error of the Manichees, in holding, That Man's Soul was a Portion of the Divine Subſtance; with maintaining, That by the Coming of Chriſt all the Promiſes were entirely fulfilled and aboliſhed; That the Jews had no hope of Eternal Life by the Mediator; that he denied the Deity of the Son and the Truth of his two diſtinct Natures, holding, That he was compoſed of the Eſſence of God, Spirit, Fleſh, and three uncreated Elements, and that his Filiation begun from the Time of his Conception; and laſt of all, he charges him to be the grand Patron of Anabaptiſm in that Age. Calv. Inſtit.

In the Writings of Socinus himſelf, Lubbertus, Crellius, Volkellius Oſtorodius and the Racovian Catechiſm, theſe Principles are to be found: That Man, before his Fall, was naturally Mortal, and had no Original Righteouſneſs; That no Man by the Light of Nature can have any Knowledge of God; That there is no Original Sin in us, as it imports Concupiſcence or Deformity of Nature; That we have a free Will to do good, and may here fulfil the Law; That God hath no Fore-knowledge of Contingencies but alternatively; That the Cauſes of Predeſtination are not in God, but in us; That he predeſtinates no particular Perſon to Salvation; That God could juſtly pardon our Sins without Satisfaction; That Chriſt died for himſelf, that is, not for his Sins (for he was without Sin) but for the Mortality and Infirmities of our Nature which he aſſumed; That Chriſt became not our High Prieſt, nor immortal, nor impaſſible, before he aſcended into Heaven; That Death Eternal is nothing but a perpetual Continuance in Death, or Annihilation; That everlaſting Fire is ſo called from its Effect, which is the eternal Extinction or Annihilation of the Wicked who ſhall be found alive at the laſt Day; That Chriſt's Incarnation is againſt Reaſon, and cannot be proved by Scripture; That Chriſt and the Holy Ghoſt are not God; That there is no Trinity of Perſons, and that the Old Teſtament is needleſs for a Chriſtian.

SOCINIANS. Since thoſe of this Sect were baniſhed out of Poland, by a publick Act of the General Diet in 1660, they are retired into Pruſſia, and the Marquiſate of Brandenburgh, where they are ſtill, but in no great Numbers. In Holland, thoſe who are called Collegianten (Collegiants) ſeem to have embraced the Socinian Opinions: In their Aſſemblies, all that are preſent have leave to ſpeak their Thoughts: They commonly begin their Meetings with the reading ſome Place of Scripture, which furniſhes them with matter of Diſcourſe. Their outward Converſation is ſtrict and without Reproach. Hartnaccius, a German Hiſtorian, has couch'd the Doctrine of the Socinians in 229 Propoſitions. *Hartnac. in Continuatione Jo. SOCONUSCO, a ſmall Province of South-America in New Spain, along the Mare Pacificum; bounded to the Eaſt by Guatimalu, to the North by Vera Pax, and to the Weſt by the Mar del Zur. It's about 35 Leagues ſquare, fruitful in many things, but has no Wheat, nor any other Town but Guetlen, and this but thinly inhabited, yet rich.

SOCRATES, a Philoſopher, the Son of Sophroniſcus, a Stone-Cutter, and Panagerete, a Midwife, was an Athenian of the Tribe of the Alopecidæ. He ſtudied under Anaxagoras and Archelaus; and though greatly addicted to Study, yet was not wanting upon divers Occaſions to give ſignal Marks of his Valour, in fighting for the Safety of his Country; but afterwards wholly betook himſelf to the Study of Philoſophy, eſpecially the Moral Part of it. It is reported of him, that he was ſo eloquent, and had ſuch an Art to convince his Hearers, that he could perſuade whatſoever he would; wherefore alſo the Thirty Tyrants, who then govern'd Athens, forbad him to inſtruct Youth. He was moderate, ſober, chaſte, compoſed in his Actions and Behaviour, very patient, and in a Word poſſeſt all Vertues; which he had ſo habituated himſelf to, as to make them natural. He valued Reſt and Tranquility as the choiceſt of all Poſſeſſions; and aſſerted, Knowledge only to be a true Good, and Ignorance an Evil. According to his Philoſophy, Riches and Honour have nothing in them of true Worth; but that on the contrary, they are the Source of various Evils and Miſchiefs. His common Saying was, that he only knew this, that he knew nothing; with Reference to which Perſuaſion of his, the Oracle pronounced him the wiſeſt of all Men. He ſaid of a Prince who had been at vaſt Charges to build for himſelf a ſtately Palace, but had taken no Pains at all to make himſelf Vertuous, that the People run from all Parts to ſee his Houſe, but that none were preſſing to ſee him. He recommended three Things eſpecially to his Diſciples, Wiſdom, Modeſty and Silence. Seeing the Maſſacre cauſed by the Thirty Tyrants, he ſaid to a Philoſopher, What a Comfort is it for us that we are not like theſe great Ones, the Subject of Tragedies. He was uſed to ſay, That there was no better Inheritance than that of a good Friend. A Man who pretended to Skill in Phyſiognomy, having judg'd of him, according to his Art, that he was brutiſh, luſtful, and a Drunkard; he own'd himſelf to be naturally inclined to all theſe Vices, but that Reaſon had corrected thoſe corrupt Inclinations. It was a common Saying of his, that Men were ſo much concerned to have a Portraiture reſemble the Original, and yet took no care to be like God, whoſe Image they were; and that they dreſt themſelves by a Looking-glaſs, but did not take the ſame Care to adorn their Minds by Vertue. He ſaid alſo, That it is with a bad Wife as with a bad Horſe, to which after that a Man is once accuſtomed, all others ſeem good. The Thoughts he had of God were moſt awful and rational; he derided the Plurality of the Heathen Gods, and upon that Account was indicted of Impiety by Anytus and Melitus, and condemn'd to drink the Juyce of Hemlock. When they brought him the News that he was condemned to Death by the Athenians, and ſo are they, ſaid he, by Nature; but, replied his Wife, Alas, they have condemned you unjuſtly; What, ſaid he, would you then have had me juſtly condemn'd? The Day that he was to drink the fatal Draught, one of his Friends ſent him a fine new Gown, Why, ſaid he, will not that which hath ſerved me alive, ſerve me to die in? He died at the Age of ſeventy, in the 95th Olympiad, Laches being Prætor of Athens. The Vertues and End of this wiſe Philoſopher have procured him the Commendations of St. Juſtin Martyr, and many other holy Fathers of the Church, who do not deſpair of his Salvation. Eraſmus very pleaſantly ſays in one of his Dialogues, That as oft as he read the gallant and religious End of Socrates, he could ſcarce keep himſelf from ſaying, O holy Socrates, pray for us. Plato, Xenophon, Diogenes Laert. Lib. 2. Vit. Phil. Diodorus, Lib. 14. Ariſtides, Plutarch. Euſeb. Eraſm. Conviv. Relig. Naudæus Apology for great Men.

SOCRATES, ſurnamed Scholaſticus, becauſe he was a Lawyer and pleaded at the Bar, lived in the V Century. He learned Grammar under Ammonius and Helladius of Alexandria. He afterwards compoſed a Hiſtory in ſeven Books, which begins where Euſebius ends his, and continues to the Reign of the Emperor Theodoſius the Younger, which contains 140 Years. Photius blames him for being too careleſs in his Stile, and yet more in his Expoſition of the Doctrines of the Church. Some accuſe him alſo of being tainted with the Errors of the Novatians, and it is but too apparant that he was inclined that way; for he exceſſively commends the Biſhops of that Party, and ſharply taxeth the Orthodox for oppoſing their Dogma's. As to his being a Novatian, the learned Valeſius clears him of this Charge, and makes it a wrong Conſequence to conclude him a Novatian, from his making a favourable Mention of ſome of that Party, which appears from the Author's ranging the Novatians amongſt Hereticks in ſeveral Places, viz. Lib. 6. Cap. 19, 20, 23. Socrates flouriſhed in the Year 440, in which he began to write, carrying on his Hiſtory to the Year 439. In this Work, as Valeſius obſerves, the Author has taken a great deal of Pains and ſhown great Judgment: The latter appears from the Significancy of Obſervations he frequently makes upon Matters; and as for his Diligence, the Niceneſs of his Chronology, the Authenticneſs of his Records, conſiſting of the beſt Church-Hiſtorians, Letters of Biſhops, and Acts of Councils are ſufficient Inſtances. As to Photius's ſaying that he was not exact in reporting Tenents and Opinions; this Cenſure means only, that he was ſomewhat partial to the Novatians, to which we have ſpoken already: The beſt Edition of his Works, is that printed at Paris in 1668, with the learned Notes of Valeſius. *Cave Hiſtor. SOCRATES (Rhodius) He liv'd, as 'tis ſuppoſed, under the Empire of Auguſtus, and writ three Books concerning the Civil Wars, the laſt whereof is quoted by Athenæus Lib. 4. Voſſius takes him to be the ſame whom Athenæus alledgeth as being the Author of two other Treatiſes. *Voſſius de Hiſtor. SOCZOW, Sucidava, upon the River Strech, the Capital City of Moldavia.

SODOM, a City of Judea, which, according to Strabo, was the Capital of thirteen Cities that were drowned or ſunk in a Lake cauſed by an Earthquake, which alſo had enkindled ſome ſubterranean Brimſtone and Jewſlime; which Lake ever ſince retained the Name of Aſphaltites, or the Dead Sea, becauſe no Fiſh can live in it. But the Holy Scriptures give us a different Account of its Deſtruction; for it mentions only five Cities, which for their abominable Uncleanneſs and other Vices, were deſtroy'd by Fire from Heaven, and afterwards ſwallowed up of that Lake. It ſtood fifty Miles Eaſt of Jeruſalem, in the Tribe of Dan, and is noted for Apples of a very fair Aſpect, but when touch'd are found to be uſeleſs, and to emit nauſeous, ſulphureous Steams. Tert. See Gomorrha and Aſphaltites.

SODORE, Sodora. Once a City, now a Village in the Iſland of Icolmkil in the Weſt of Scotland, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Glaſgow, in which Place there are interr'd 48 Kings of Scotland, four of Ireland and eight Kings of Norway. The Abby here was built by St Columbus, the Apoſtle of the Northern Nations. And from this Place the Biſhop of the Iſle of Man is ſtiled Sidorenſis.

SOEST, Lat. Suſatum, a City of Germany in the Circle of Weſtphalia and County of Mark, ſeven German Miles Weſt of Paderborn, ſeven South of Munſter, and four Eaſt of Ham. It was given by Frederick I. to the Archbiſhops of Cologn, who oppreſſing it too much, it ſubjected it ſelf to the Count of Mark. It was anciently an Imperial City, but is now under the Elector of Brandenburgh, enjoying ſeveral of its ancient Privileges. It was taken by the French in 1673, and afterwards deſerted by them.

SOFALA, Zofala, a ſmall Kingdom in the Lower Ethiopia in Africa, in the Country of Cafraria, towards the Ethiopick Ocean, in an Iſland, at the Mouth of the River Zambez, in the Borders of Zanguebaria, which takes its Name from Sofala, a ſtrong City under the Portugueſe, 150 Miles from Zanguebar, and 340 from Mozambique. Fifty Miles Weſt of this City there are rich Mines of Gold, whence the Portugueſe call the King of this Country, the Emperor of Gold. The Inhabitants are Nigroes or Blacks, and have many Savages amongſt them that eat Man's Fleſh, and let their Beaſts Blood, to drink it. They believe one God only, whom they call Mozimo or Guiguimo, and have no Idols; whereas all the other Nigroes of Africa are great Idolaters: They are great Haters of Sorcery, and puniſh it ſeverely, as likewiſe ſuch as are guilty of Stealing and Adultery. There is no Show of any Religious Worſhip amongſt them, only they obſerve ſome Days, and keep Feaſts in Memory of the Dead. When the Body is conſumed they take the Bones of their Fathers, their Sons or their Wife, to keep them, and every ſeventh Day ſpread a Cloth upon which they lay the Bones, and ſet Meat before them; and after having ſaid ſome Prayers, themſelves eat it. They ſerve the King on their Knees, and inſtead of a Taſter, ſome of his Officers eat the Remains of his Meat in his Preſence: Whenever he drinks, all that are preſent ſhout for Joy, uttering ſome Words in Honour of him, and as far as the ſame is heard they do the ſame; ſo that he never drinks, but it rings through the whole City; and the ſame is obſerved when he Sneezes or Coughs, all that come into his Preſence muſt ſit down, except the Arabians, the Portugueſe, and ſome of his Favourites; which Cuſtom probably came from hence, becauſe thoſe that ſit are not in a ready Poſture to attempt any thing againſt the King's Perſon, and 'tis for this reaſon the Perſians put their Hands in their Sleeves when they walk before the Sophi. None but ſome of their Grandees are allowed to have Doors or Gates to their Houſes; for the King would perſuade his Subjects, that his Protection is a ſufficient Safeguard to them. There are no Horſes in this Country, and therefore the Inhabitants fight only on Foot, with Bows and Arrows, Javelins, Poniards and ſmall Hatchets. Beſides his Guards, the King hath 200 Maſtiffs, which accompany him whenever he goes a Hunting, or to Battle. In Seed-time and Harveſt the Queen, accompanied with all her Ladies, comes into the Fields, and looks upon it as an honourable Thing to give Order for the getting in of the Corn. Marmol's Africa.

Some take this Country to be the Ophir, whither Solomon every three Years ſent his Ships from Ezion Geber (which is the modern Zuez, a Haven on the Red-Sea) to fetch Gold. Many Structures that ſeem to have been built by Strangers, and ſome Inſcriptions in unknown Characters, ſeem to ſtrengthen this Conjecture. But beſides all this, the Inhabitants of Sofala boaſt themſelves to have Books, which prove that in Solomon's Time, the Iſraelites every three Years frequented their Coaſts, to buy Gold. Which Opinion may yet be farther confirm'd by the Authority of the Septuagint, who tranſlate the Word Ophir Zωφειρὰ; and ſeeing it is well known that nothing is more obvious and uſual than the change of r into l, we cannot think ſtrange that Sophira ſhould be changed to Sofala. Dapper's Deſcription of Africa. Moquet. Lib. 4. Thomas Lopez Travels into the Indies.

SOFFA, in the Turkiſh Language is a Bench of Wood, raiſed from the Ground about a Foot high, and placed round about a Hall or Chamber for People to ſit down upon, or to lie along, and in that Poſture to take a View of what paſſeth in the Street, for theſe Benches are ſurrounded with Windows; they are covered with fine Turky Carpets, and upon them Cuſhions of Satin flower'd with Gold, or ſome other rich Stuff. Ricaut.

SOFTAS. Amongſt the Turks are a kind of Beneficiaries or Canons, which have a good yearly Allowance for ſaying ſo many times a Day, a kind of Office for the Dead at the Tombs of the Sultans. Grelot Journey to Conſtantinople.

SOGDIANA, a great Country of Aſia, ſituate between both the Scythia's, Margiana, Bactriana, and the Caſpian Sea. Authors ſuppoſe it to be the ſame which at preſent is called Zagatay or Usbeck, and that the Kingdom of Maweralnhar is a Part of it. Thus much is certain, that it is a Part of the Aſiatick Tartary, and that the Capital of it is Sarmachand, the Place where Tamerlane was born. Hoffm. Baud.

SOGDIANUS, King of Perſia, he was the ſecond Son of Artaxerxes Longimanus, and Brother of Xerxes II. whom he ſucceeded, but reign'd not above ſeven or eight Months. Euſeb. in Chron.

SOHEMUS II. Son of Sohemus I. and Brother of Ptolomy, King of Iturea, had his Education at the Court of Herod, King of the Jews, whoſe chief Favourite he was. Herod going to Rome to make his Peace with Auguſtus, committed to him the Charge of keeping his Wife Mariamne in the Caſtle of Alexandria, whereof he had made him Governour, and commanded him to kill her in caſe he were put to Death at Rome, that ſhe might not fall into any other Hands. Sohemus, who had a ſecret Paſſion for the Queen, diſcover'd to her the Orders the King had given him: Mariamne return'd him Thanks for his Advice; but being deſirous to prevent the Miſchief ſhe fear'd, and which happened ſoon after, ſhe deſired Herod, at his Return, to beſtow ſome remote Government upon Sobemus. Herod, who was already poſſeſt with ſome Suſpicion, reſolved to make a farther Diſcovery of this Matter, and kept Sobemus by him. Not long after, Mariamne reproach'd her Huſband for the Cruelty he had reſolved to execute upon her, by which means being inform'd of Sobemus his Faithleſſneſs, he cauſed him to be put to Death, and the Queen not long after, notwithſtanding that he paſſionately loved her. Joſeph. Antiq. Lib. 15.

SOISSONS, Auguſta Sueſſionum, an ancient City and Colony of the Romans in the Iſle of France, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Reims, and the Capital of a County called Soiſſonnois. It is a great, fair and ſtrong City, ſeated upon the River Aiſne, by which great Boats come up to it, and make it a conſiderable Place of Trade. This Town was the laſt that held out for the Romans in the Fall of their Empire in Gaul, and was taken by Clovis, the fifth King of the French. During the firſt Race of the Kings of France, Soiſſons was the Capital of a Kingdom. Beſides the ſix Abbeys that are in this City, there are ſeventeen more in the Dioceſe. St. Sixtus was the firſt Biſhop of this Dioceſe. The Biſhop of Soiſſons is the firſt Biſhop in Dignity under the Archbiſhop of Reims, and has Right to crown the French King in Abſence of his Metropolitan. Plin. Lib. 4. COUNCILS of Soiſſons.

In 743 or 744 twenty three Prelates met at Soiſſons for ſeveral important Affairs, expreſt in the ten Canons ſtill remaining of that Council. The ſecond Council was held in 853, in the Preſence of Charles the Bald, where they had before them the Buſineſs of the Clerks that had been conſecrated by Ebba of Reims, who were depoſed by Hincmarus that was his Succeſſor, which Decree produc'd many troubleſome Conſequences, and occaſion'd another Council to be call'd in 866. In 941 ſome Biſhops celebrated a Council in the Abby of St. Criſpins of Soiſſons, to decide the Queſtion between Hugo and Artauldus, both Pretenders to the Biſhoprick of Reims, whereof the former was confirm'd, and conſecrated in that Council. The Metropolitans of Reims and Sens aſſembled a Council in this Town in 1155, to provide an Expedient againſt certain Temporal Lords, who ravag'd the Eſtates of the Church, and of ſome of the Laity. Rigord affirms, that in the Year 1201 or 1202 there was a Council conven'd at Soiſſon, about the Caſe of Philip the Auguſt, who after he had put away his Queen Ingerburge, reſolv'd to take her again.

SOLARES, called alſo Chamſi. A People of Meſopotamia and the adjoyning Countries; ſo called becauſe they are ſuppoſed to worſhip the Sun. There are counted about nine or ten thouſand of that Sect: They have no Churches, but meet in Under-ground Places, and far from any City, where they ſo ſecretly perform their Religious Worſhip, that it could never yet be diſcovered, no not by thoſe of them who have been converted to the Chriſtian Faith, for fear of being murther'd by theſe Chamſi, according to the Reſolution they have taken in their Meettings, of murthering thoſe that ſhould dare to divulge the Secrets of their Religion. The Baſſa's of the Grand Signior ſeeing that theſe Solares did not perform any Act of Religious Worſhip, did ſome Years ſince order them to declare themſelves, to know whether their Sect were ſuch as might be tolerated in the Turkiſh Empire; by which means they found themſelves oblig'd to joyn with the Surians or Jacobites, yet without ſubmitting themſelves to the Practices of Chriſtianity, and continuing ſtill to keep their clandeſtine Aſſemblies, Michel Fevre Theater of Turkey.

SOLDUNII, was the Name of 600 Men in Aquitain, who had ſworn Friendſhip on this Condition, that they ſhould enjoy all the Commodities of Life together with thoſe to whoſe Friendſhip they had devoted themſelves, and partake alſo of the ſame Miſchances, even to Death it ſelf; nor was there found in the Memory of Man any of thoſe who would refuſe to die if his Friend had been kill'd. Cæſar's Commentaries. Some think the Name of Soldier was derived from this Society. Spelman.

SOLEURRE, Salodurum, a City and Canton of Switzerland, by the Germans called Soluthurn. It ſtands upon the River Arola, ſeven Miles from Baſil to the South, and from Friburg to the North, aud five from Berne to the ſame. The City of Soleurre is very ancient, and mention'd by Antoninus. The old Inſcriptions to be ſeen to this Day denote its Antiquity, with ſo much evidence that Rome and Treves call her Siſter. It was fifty Years under the Romans, and the Seat of a Governour. It ſuffer'd much by the Alemans, Huns and Franks, but was repair'd by the latter, who were poſſeſt of it until Hugh Capet's Time. It fell under the Emperors in 921, but enjoy'd peculiar Privileges. It was in League with Bern in 1291, and was Excommunicated by the Pope for taking part with Lewis of Bavaria. In 1441, after twenty Years War with the Houſe of Auſtria, wherein Leopold was kill'd, they made Peace on the ſame Terms that the other Confederates did. In 1481 it was taken into the Number of the leagu'd Cantons, and has been famous for Diets held by Kings and Emperors. It's the uſual Reſidence of the French Embaſſadors to the Swiſs. It is very well fortify'd, and the adjacent Country is very fruitful, but bears no Vines. Here is excellent Yeugh for Bows, and here is a Church, which was dedicated by Bertrada, Mother of Charles the Great, to Urſus, who with Victor, another of the Thebean Legion, is ſaid to have ſuffer'd Martyrdom. This City embraced the Reformation in 1531; but a Tumult having riſen among the Citizens in 1533, Maſs was reſtored. Hoffm. This Canton is the eleventh in Number, and Roman Catholick.

SOLI, or Soloe, now Paleſoli, an Epiſcopal See in Cilicia or Caramania, under the Metropolis of Seleucia. Some ſay, it was built by Solon, and that from him it took its Name. Pompey, after that he had reſtor'd it to its former Luſtre, call'd it after his own Name, Pompeiopolis. Near this City is a Fountain, whoſe Waters take Fire like Oyl, if we may believe Pliny, who aſſerts it Lib. 3. Cap. 2. and the ſame is confirm'd by Dionyſius Africanus.

SOLIMAN, the firſt of that Name, Emperor of the Turks, was the Son of Orchan: He made a League with the Emperor of Greece, and defeated the Forces of Ungleſes and Crates, Princes of the Bulgarians; and with the ſame Succeſs made himſelf Maſter of Adrianople, Gallipoli, and divers other Places: And as he was preparing to advance his Conqueſts farther, he died by a Fall from his Horſe, as he was Hunting, in 1352 or 1358, (for Authors do not agree neither in the Manner nor Time of his Death) after having reigned two or three Years *Chalcondil. SOLIMAN II. ſucceeded his Father Selim I. in 1520. Never had the Ottoman Empire a more illuſtrious Prince than this, who was always employ'd about ſome great Undertaking or other, which his Courage and Prudence commonly rendred ſucceſsful. He was endued with moſt admirable Qualities, being as fit to manage the Concerns of Peace, as thoſe of War. Amongſt other things, 'tis very obſervable, that having reigned no leſs than 46 Years, he ſcarcely paſt one of them without rendring it memorable by ſome glorious Action or other. Beſides all this, he was very religious in keeping of his Word, a juſt Magiſtrate, little inclin'd to Vice, and indefatigable in the Exerciſe of Arms. Gazelles, Governour of Syria, rebelling after the Death of Selim, and having made himſelf Maſter of a Part of Egypt, was defeated by Soliman's Generals, who himſelf reſolv'd to turn his Arms againſt the Chriſtians. Accordingly in 1521 he took Belgrade, and the next Year Rhodes: This Victory was followed with the Revolt of the Egyptians and ſome other Nations, which were defeated by Ibrahim Baſſa; and Solyman in the mean time being advanced with his Army into Hungary, won the Battle of Mohacs in 1526, where Lewis II. King of Hungary, loſt his Life in a Bog or Moraſs. He made ſeveral other Expeditions into this Kingdom, where he took Buda, Peſt, Gran, and ſome other Places, and died there himſelf at the Siege of Zigeth or Sigeth the fourth of September, 1566, being 72 Years of Age. In 1529 he beſieged Vienna, but without Succeſs; and in 1535, he took and plunder'd Tauris, and his Generals ſubdued ſeveral Cities and Provinces in Europe, Aſia and Africa. Paul. Jov. in Solim. Thomas Artus Contin. of Chalcondil.

SOLIMAN (Haſcein) the Ninth Caliph or Succeſſor of Mahomet, reigned after his Brother Gualid, who died in 718. Having prepared a great Navy to execute the Deſign his Brother had formed of beſieging the City of Conſtantinople; he ordered Marvan the Son of Mahomet, to enter Thracia with a puiſſant Army, and inveſt Conſtantinople by Land, whilſt he attack'd it by Sea. Marvan having accordingly beſieged the City, Soliman came before it with 1500 Veſſels, but a moſt violent Storm ariſing, he was forced to retire with his Navy to the Coaſts of Thrace; and becauſe their great Veſſels could not ſo ſuddenly ſecure themſelves in any ſafe Harbour, the Emperor ſent ſome Ships provided with Fire-works, who burnt or ſunk the greateſt part of them, and the reſt were Shipwreck'd near the Walls of Conſtantinople, which Loſs broke Soliman's Heart, who died ſoon after in 721. Marmol. of Africa, Lib. 2.

SOLINUS (C. Julius) a Latin Grammarian, the Author of a Book, called Polyhiſtor, being a Collection of the memorable Things that are to be ſeen in divers Countries. We have ſeveral Editions of this Work, which is divided into Seventy Chapters; but the laſt of Salmaſius is the beſt. He lived after Pliny, and does little more than tranſcribe him; and for that reaſon is commonly called Pliny's Ape. Scaliger undervalues him as a Writer of little worth. In Euſeb. Animad. p. 228. Salmaſ. in Prolegom. Geſner in Bibl. Voſſ. in Hiſt. Latin.

SOLIS (Roderick de) a Spaniſh Monk of the Order of St. Auſtin; he was a Perſon of great Learning, and choſen by Pope Pius V. for Viſitor of the Religious Houſes, in the Kingdoms of Valencia, Arragon and Catalonia. He wrote a Book, entituled, Ars bene Moriendi. Bibliotheca Hiſpanica.

SOLITAURILIA, Feaſts inſtituted by Servius Tullus, King of Rome, to the Honour of Mars, to whom, at the Feſtival, was offered a Bull, a Ram, and a Boar, in Mars his Field, after that theſe Victims had been thrice led round the whole Army, ranged in Battel Array, in order to their Luſtration or Purification by this Sacrifice. Others call this Feaſt Suovetaurilia, which Word is compounded of the Names of Three Beaſts that were ſacrificed, Sus, Ovis and Taurus, a Boar, a Weather, and a Bull; though others ſay, the Sacrifice conſiſted of a Bull, a Ram, and an He-goat. Cato makes mention of theſe Suovetaurilia as a Sacrifice, which the Maſters of Families were uſed to offer after having led the Victims round their Grounds to divert the Miſchief of Storms, Hail, and Tempeſts, and all other Misfortunes from their Land and Houſes, and for obtaining a plentiful Harveſt. *Dionyſ. SOLMS, Lat. Solmia, a County in Germany, in Weteravia, with a little Town of that Name ſituate on a Hill. It has Heſſe to the Eaſt, Treves to the Weſt, and the Town of Solms ſtands three Miles Weſt of Marpurg. It is ſubject to a Count of its own, whoſe Reſidence is at the Caſtle of Bransfeld. Count Solms came over with the Prince of Orange into England 1688, and ſerv'd him, when King of England, with very much Honour in Ireland, &c.

SOLOGNE, Solonia, Secalonia, or Sabulonia, a ſmall Territory of France, between that of Orleans, Blois and Bourges; the Capital of it is Remorantin: The other Towns are Gorgeau, Sully, Aubigny, &c. The Country is watered with divers Rivers, and is very fruitful in Rye, and the Ground generally ſandy.

SOLOMONS ISLANDS, a Knot of great Iſles ſo called, which lie in the Pacifick Sea, towards New Zeland, firſt diſcovered by Alvarez Mendoza in 1567, but are not much frequented by the Europeans. The Names of ſome of them are, St. George, St. Mark, St. Nicholas, St. Anne, St. Catherine, the three Maries, St. James, St. Chriſtopher, St. Jeremy, &c.

SOLON, one of the ſeven Wiſe-Men of Greece, was the Son of Execeſtides, and was born at Athens in the 35th Olympiad. He was from his Birth endued with a great Courage, and a wonderful Underſtanding, which Advantages procured him the Government of his Country. Draco his Predeceſſor having enacted very ſevere Laws, he abrogated them, and publiſhed others that were mild and equitable. He reſtrain'd the Luxury of his Country-men, aboliſhed many of their ſuperſtitious Ceremonies, gave them leave to declare whom they pleaſed to be their Heirs, provided they had no Children of their own. He made no Law againſt the Murtherers of Parents, as ſuppoſing it a thing ſo unnatural, as to be in a manner impoſſible. The Iſland Salamina, where was the Original of his Family, lying conveniently for the Athenians, who upon pain of Death had forbid the mentioning the Recovery of it from the Megarenſians, that were Maſters of it, becauſe of the great Loſſes they had ſuſtain'd in attempting that Enterprize: Solon found no better way to put them ſafely upon that Work, than by repeating ſome Verſes unto them of his own making in a drolling way; which had ſuch Effect with the Athenians, that they ſet upon the Iſland, and took it with greater Succeſs than they could have imagined. Some time after, Piſiſtratus the Tyrant invading the Government of Athens, Solon oppoſed him as far as he was able: But ſeeing he had made himſelf Maſter of the City, he retir'd; and took a Voyage to Egypt and Lydia, where he met with Crœſus, who on a time having made a Show of himſelf to Solon in all his State and Magnificence, aſked of him, whether ever he had ſeen any thing more fine and gay? Yes, ſaid Solon, Peacocks, Pheaſants and Cocks, for their Beauty and Bravery is natural, whereas yours is only borrow'd: And again demanding of him, whether he did not think him happy? anſwer'd, That none could be accounted ſo before their laſt Breath. He ſaid, the Laws were like Spiders Webs, which only catch ſilly Flies, but let Hornets and other boiſterous Inſects eſcape. He died at the Age of fourſcore. He writ a Book of Laws, of Speeches, of Elogies and Iambicks; and 'tis ſaid, he was either the Inſtitutor or the Enlarger of the Areopagus of Athens. Herod. Lib. 1. Diod. Laert. vit. Philoſ. Plutarch. in Solon. Euſeb. in Chron.

SOLOWKI, an Iſland in the White Sea, between the Province of Corella and the River Dwina; ſeated eight Miles into the Sea. It is under the Great Duke of Ruſſia, and has in it a famous Monaſtery of the Rioſs Order, which prohibits the Entry of any Woman upon very ſevere Penalties. It lies from Moſcow 300 Poliſh Miles. In this Iſland great Quantities of Salt are made, and in the Summer Solſtice the Sun never ſets above two Hours. Guagninus. Lat. 65. 00.

SOLSONA, an Epiſcopal City of Catalonia in Spain, Suffragant of Teragona, about three Leagues North of Cordona, thinly Peopled, but pretty ſtrong, and now under the French.

SOLTWEDEL, Lat. Heliopolis or Salvedelia, a City of Brandenburg, on the River Jeiz, eight German Miles Eaſt of Vulcan, and eight from Havelburg. It took its Name from a Statue of the Sun worſhipped here, but deſtroy'd by Charles the Great when he founded this City.

SOLWEY FRITH, Lat. Ituna, an Arm of the Iriſh Sea, which is the Weſtern Boundary between England and Scotland, takes its Name from the River Solwey that falls into it.

SOMME, Somona, Phrudis, a River of France, in Picardy, which ariſeth in a Place called Font Somme in Vermandois, two Leagues from St. Quintin to the Weſt, and paſſing by Han. Peronne, Corbie, Amiens and Abbeville, runs into the Britiſh Sea at St. Valery, twelve French Leagues South of Boulogne, over-againſt Rye in Suſſex, having divided Picardy into two Parts.

SOMMERSET (Henry) Duke of Beaufort. See Beaufort.

SOMMERSETSHIRE, Lat. Somerſetia, is a large Maritime County in the Weſt of England, ſo called from Somerton, once the chief Town of the whole County, but now decay'd into a ſmall and inconſiderable Market-Town. On the North-ſide it is bounded with the Severn Sea, and North-Eaſtward with the River Avon, which parts it from Gloceſterſhire, on the South with Dorſet and Devonſhire, Eaſtward with Wiltſhire, and Weſtward with Devonſhire; ſo that from Eaſt to Weſt it ſtretches 55 Miles, and from North to South 42, the whole divided into 42 Hundreds, wherein are 385 Pariſhes, and 36 Market-Towns; whoſe ancient Inhabitants, with thoſe of Hampſhire and Wiltſhire, went among the Romans under the Name of Belgæ, the Country making part of the Kingdom of the Weſt-Saxons in the Time of the Heptarchy, being now the full Extent of the Biſhoprick of Bath and Wells. In Summer time there is no pleaſanter Country than this is, being garniſhed with rich Paſtures and delightful Meadows, beſides its plentiful Corn Fields: But in the Winter Seaſon it is very deep and dirty. Out of Mendip Hills, Northward, is dig'd great Plenty of Lead, which is not indeed ſo ſoft, pliant and fuſile as that in Derbyſhire, but being of a harder Nature is excellent for Shot and Bullet. In the ſame Hills is alſo found Plenty of the Stone call'd Lapis Calaminaris, much uſed in Phyſick, but moſt of all by Metallicks, to improve Copper into Braſs, by making that harder with this Stone, and therefore the more ſerviceable. See Wockey-Hole. Another Thing this Country excels in, is the Medicinal Waters of Bath, for which ſee the Word Bath, and St. Vincent's Well near Briſtol, for which ſee Briſtol. The Herb called Woad, the Stock, whereon Dyers graft their other Colours, and wherewith the ancient Britains painted themſelves, giving a deep black Tincture grows here, eſpecially about Glaſtenbury, which is thought to have derived its Name from Glaſtum the Latin for Woad. Chedder by Mendip Hills is a Pariſh of great Note for the beſt and bigeſt Cheeſe that is made in England; which Cheeſes being made by the joint Dairies of the whole Pariſh putting their Milk together, and each receiving his Share according to their Proportions, may be called Corporation Cheeſe. This County is alſo noted for breeding excellent Maſtiffs, Briſtol for its Diamonds, which St. Vincent's Rock near this City does produce, and whoſe Value would be greater if they were few, and far-fetch'd. For Manufactures Taunton is famous for its Serges, and Briſtol for its gray Soap. At the ſame time, as the Severn brake on the Weſt-ſide into Monmouthſhire, and much indamag'd that Country, An. 1607, it alſo overflow'd this almoſt twenty Miles in length, and four in breadth, and then it was obſerv'd, that Creatures of contrary Natures, as Dogs, Hares, Foxes, Conies, Cats and Mice, having got to the Tops of ſome Hills, remained peaceably together without ſign of Fear or Violence one towards another, a Leſſon to Men in publick Dangers to lay aſide private Differences, and prefer their Safety before their Revenge. The Market-Towns of this Country you will find in their due Places, amongſt which Briſtol, Bath, Wells, Taunton, Bridgewater, Minchead, Ilcheſtern and Milburn Port on the Confines of Dorſetſhire, have the Privilege of ſending Burgeſſes to Parliament. The firſt Earl of this County was William of Mohun, created in 1138; the ſecond, William Long-Eſpee, baſe Son to Henry II. in 1197; the third, Reginald de Mohun, in 1297; the fourth, John of Beauford, in 1396, in whoſe Family it continued till 1471, in ſix Deſcents; the tenth was Edmond III. Son of Henry VI. in 1496; the eleventh, Henry Fitz-Roy, a baſe Son of Henry VIII. the twelfth, Edward Seymor, Lord Protector of Edward VI. created Duke in 1546, beheaded in 1552; the thirteenth was William Carre, in 1614; the fourteenth, William Seymor, Marqueſs of Hertford; reſtor'd to his Great Grandfather's Titles of Duke of Somerſet, by Charles II. in 1660; ſince which time there have been five Deſcents in this Family.

SOMMERTON, a Market-Town in Sommerſetſhire, the Capital of its Hundred, formerly of great Note, and gave Denomination to the County. It is ſtill large and well built: It lies 105 Miles from London.

SOMMONOKHODOM. So the Siameſe call the God they worſhip at preſent. Their Talapoins or Prieſts ſuppoſe, that this Sommonokhodom was born a God, after many Tranſmigrations of his Soul; and that from the time of this his Divine Birth he had a perfect Knowledge of all the Myſteries and Secrets both of Heaven and Earth, and retain'd a perfect Remembrance of whatſoever he had done in the ſeveral Lives he had led; and that after he had taught the People the great Concerns of their Happineſs, committed them to Writing, that Poſterity might make uſe of them. In this Book he relates of himſelf, that being deſirous to manifeſt his Divinity to Men by ſome extraordinary Miracles, he found himſelf carried up into the Air, in a Throne all ſhining with Gold and precious Stones, and that the Angels came down from Heaven to tender him their Adorations; but that his Brother Thevathat, and his Followers, envying this his Glory, conſpired his Deſtruction; but the Female-Angel, Guardian of the Earth, (for the Siameſe ſuppoſe Angels of both Sexes) exhorted theſe Rebels to acknowledge his Divinity, which they refuſing, ſhe ſqueez'd out of her moiſt Locks an immenſe Ocean, in which they were all drown'd. 'Tis farther written in theſe Books, that from the time that Sommonokhodom endeavour'd to become a God by the Holineſs of his Life, he had entred the Stage of this World in different Bodies 550 times, and ſome of thoſe in the Bodies of Beaſts; and that when he was in the Body of an Ape he delivered a City from a Monſter that deſtroy'd the Inhabitants of it. That as ſoon as he was become God, he run over the whole World with an incredible Agility, being carried in a Moment at what Diſtance he pleaſed, teaching Men the true Religion by which they might come to be Saints. After he had lived 82 Years, and foretold his Death to his Diſciples, he was ſeiz'd with a violent Fit of theCholick, whereof he died; and his Soul mounted, as they ſay, to the eighth Heaven, where it enjoys an eternal Reſt and Happineſs, and ſhall never again be born into this World. This is that which the Talapoins call the Annihilation of the God that govern'd the World, foraſmuch as being aſcended up into Heaven, he appears no more on the Earth. As for his Body, it was burnt, and his Bones are ſtill kept, ſome of them in the Kingdom of Pegu, and others in that of Siam. They attribute to them a miraculous Vertue, and ſay, that they ſhine with a Divine Glory. Before his Death he ordered his Picture to be drawn, to keep his Perſon in Memory, and to pay him the Honour due to him. They ſay he left the Mark of one of his Feet impreſt in three different Places, viz. in the Kingdom of Siam, that of Pegu, and in the Iſle of Ceylon; to which Places the People flock in Pilgrimage, and honour the ſaid Footſteps, with an extraordinary Devotion. This is the God whom thoſe of Siam worſhip, according to the teaching of their Talapoins. Fa. Tachard Jeſuit Journey to Siam. See Thevathat.

SOMNUS, or Sleep, was eſteem'd a God by the ancient Heathens, born of Erebus and Night, and the Brother of Death. Orpheus calls him the happy King of Gods and Men, and the great Foreteller of Things to come, becauſe God often reveals Things to come to Men whilſt they are aſleep. Ovid hath taken the Pains to deſcribe his Habitation very particularly and poetically; for Inſtance, he gives Sleep an Apartment in a deep Cave in the Country of the Cimmerians, where the Sun never ſhines. This Place is deſcrib'd remote from all Noiſe, except the ſoft Murmurs of a Brook: In the Anti-Rooms there was a great many Poppies and other ſoporiferous Plants ſtrew'd; juſt upon the Verge of theſe this pretended Deity lies upon an Ebony Bed, ornamented and trim'd with Plumes of Feathers and black Curtains, having a World of Dreams tumbling one upon another by him: His Iſſue is numerous, but the three moſt conſiderable of them are Morpheus, Phobeter and Phantaſia; the firſt repreſented the Figures of Men; the ſecond, that of Beaſts, and the third, Things Inanimate; which may be ſeen Metamorph. Lib. 11. Orph. in Hymn. The Ancients painted Sleep with a Horn and Elephant's Tooth in his Hand; and Virgil tells us, there are two Gates by which Dreams enter, one of Horn, the other of Ivory. The Altars dedicated to this imaginary Deity, were uſed to be placed near to thoſe of the Muſes.

The Ancients made Sleep a Deity, to expreſs the great Benefits of it, by its calming the Troubles of the Mind, and curing Diſeaſes of the Body; they made him the Son of the Night, which is the proper Seaſon for it, and made Death his Siſter, becauſe of the great Reſemblance between them. As to what Virgil tells us, that true Dreams enter by the Gate of Horn, and the falſe ones by that of Ivory, it is thus explain'd by ſome, that the Gate of Horn ſignifies the Eyes, and that of Ivory the Mouth, foraſmuch as that is always true which we ſee, but not always that which we hear reported by others. Though others with more Reaſon ſay, that the Ancients attributed true Dreams to Horns, becauſe they are lifted upwards towards Heaven, to ſhew that true Dreams are ſent from Heaven; and falſe ones to Ivory, becauſe Elephants Teeth do not tend upwards, but are bent down towards the Ground, by which they thought fit to repreſent thoſe Dreams which proceed from the Earth, that is, from the Fumes and Temperature of the Body, which are falſe and deluſory. Their placing his Altar near to that of the Muſes, ſeems to import, that Quiet of Mind and Bodily Reſt are very neceſſary to Perſons of Learning and Study.

SONDA, or Sunda, a Haven in the Iſle of Java Major, whence the Streight of the Indian Sea, between the Iſlands of Sumatra and Java, has its Name. The Hollanders call it, De Straet van Sunda, in Latin Sundæ Fretum. The Portugueſe from this Streight denominate all the Iſles of the Indies, which lie beyond the Peninſula of Malacca; which becauſe of their great Number are commonly divided into the Iſles of the Sonda towards the Eaſt, and thoſe towards the Weſt. The chief of thoſe towards the Eaſt are Gilolo and the Iſles of Banda, famous for the vaſt Quantities of Nutmegs they produce; Flores, ſo called from the Flowers it abounds with, exhaling a Smell like to that of Muſk; Celebes or Macaſſar, which is very fruitful in Rice, and hath a City of the ſame Name, whoſe Inhabitants are ſuch ſtrict Obſervers of the Alcoran, that they refuſe to drink the Wine of the Palm-Tree, which is no way inferior to any of our Wines made of Grapes; the Molucca Iſlands, which produce Cloves and Nutmegs in abundance. Amongſt the Iſles of the Sonda towards the Weſt, the chief are Borneo, Sumatra and Java, in which laſt is the City of Batavia, built by the Hollanders, and ſo called from their Anceſtors the Batavi. All theſe Iſles have a very unwholſome Air, and pernicious to Strangers: The length of the Days and Nights is in a manner equal, as lying near the Equinoctial. The Inhabitants are Negroes, and go naked, hiding only their Privities. They are very Warlike, eſpecially thoſe of Sumatra, who devour thoſe they take in Battle. There are many Kings belonging to theſe Iſlands; but the King of Borneo is only Titular, all Power and Authority being in the Hands of the Queen; and the Sons of the Queen are only own'd as Heirs of the Crown, and not as they are the Sons of the King, becauſe they cannot be certain that the King was their Father, but may be ſo that the Queen was their Mother. Tavernier of the Indies.

SONDERBURG, a ſtrong Town of Holſtein, where Chriſtern II. was impriſon'd by his Uncle in the laſt Age. It is ſubject to a Prince of its own. Spener.

SONDES (Sir George) of Lees Court in the County of Kent, in Conſideration of his faithful Services to King Charles I. and II. was by Letters Patents, bearing Date at Weſtminſter upon the eighth Day of April in the eighth Year of his Reign, advanced to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Baron of Throwley, as alſo of Viſcount Sondes of Lees Court, and Earl of Feverſham, to enjoy for term of his natural Life, the Remainder to Lewes, Lord Duras of Holdenby, and the Heirs Male of his Body, which Lewes wedded the Lady Mary, eldeſt of his two Daughters, by Mary his Wife, Daughter to Sir William Villers, late of Brokesby in the County of Leiceſter Baronet. Dugdale.

SONDRIA, Lat. Sondrium, a Caſtle of Lombardy beyond the Po, the ſtrongeſt of all the Valtoline, and has the Precedence of all the other Governments. Its Governour takes upon him the Defence of the whole Country, and acts as General in time of War. He hath alſo a Vicar conjoint with him, who determines all Caſes civil and criminal; but there lies an Appeal from his Deciſions to the Griſons. Hoffm.

SONGO, a City of Africa, in Nigritia, in the Kingdom of Madingua.

SONNEBERG (Joannes) a German Earl, of the illuſtrious Family of the Lords of Walburg, Standard-bearers of the Empire, is famous in Hiſtory for a Duel he fought in 1460, againſt Antonio Maria, an Italian, which happened when Sigiſmund, Archduke of Auſtria, laid Seige to the City of Rouvere in Tirol, and the Venetians ſent an Army to relieve it under the Command of Rupertus Maria, whoſe Son Antonio challeng'd any of the Germans to fight with him; which being accepted by the German Count, he beat the Challenger: The Condition of the Combat was, that the Victor was to have 100 Florens, beſides the Arms and Horſe of the conquered Party.

SONNEBURG, a Town of Sweden, in the Iſle of Oeſal, in the Baltick Sea.

SONNEMBERG, a City of Germany, in the Marquiſate of Brandenburg, near Poland.

SOPATER of Apamea, a Sophiſt and Philoſopher of Alexandria, lived in the IV Century. He was the Diſciple of Jamblichus, and the chiefeſt of the Platonick Philoſopers of his Time. He was put to Death by Conſtantine the Great. He was the Author of a Treatiſe concerning Providence, and made ſome Abridgments of Hiſtory and other Pieces, as we find by Suidas and Photius, Mem. 141. Eunapius alſo makes mention of him in vita Ædeſii, and Soz. Lib. 1. Hiſt. Eccleſ. Cap. 5. Suidas mentions alſo two Poets of this Name.

SOPHI, or Sophy, a King of Perſia, who from a Shepherd, by his Courage and good Fortune, was raiſed to the Throne. He began to make himſelf known in the World about the Year 1370, and profeſſing himſelf to be one of the Race of Haly, who was one of the Interpreters of the Law of Mahomet, he raiſed the Authority of his Sect beyond that of Omar, and began to wear a Turban of Red Cloth, to diſtinguiſh himſelf from his Followers, who wore one of White Linnen. Some think, that he was called Sophy from his Woollen Turban, and ſay, that Sofi is derived from the Arabian Word Suf, which ſignifies Wool; but others ſay, that Sofi in the Arabick ſignifies Pure and Sincere, eſpecially with reſpect to Religion; Whence the Name of Sophy hath been given to all the Kings of Perſia ever ſince. Scaliger. de Emend. tempor. Lib. 5. Anſel. Soler de Pileo.

SOPHI, the Name at preſent of the Kings of Perſia: But here we are to obſerve, that this Name is not ſuperadded, as the Name of Pharoah was to the Kings of Egypt, or that of Cæſar to the Roman Emperors; but is the Name of the Family, or rather of the Religion of Hali; for the Deſcendants of Hali, and Fatima, the Daughter of Mahomet, took the Name of Sophi: They founded a Sect called Imenie, to explain the Alcoran, which has been follow'd by the Perſian Mahometans, and ſeveral other Nations of the Eaſt Indies; and that they might have ſome ſecret Mark to diſcover thoſe of their own Perſuaſion, they never wear any Silken Tuft upon their Turbans, nor any thing wrought in Gold and Silver, their Turban being only Woollen, and of a Colour call'd Sophy in Arabick: Theſe Sophi's having expell'd the Vſumcaſſans, (of a Turkiſh Family and Sect) and poſſeſs'd themſelves of Perſia, there was one of them call'd Iſhmael, Son of Keck-aidar or Secaidar of the Family of Hali, who by his extraordinary Zeal for his own Perſuaſion, gain'd ſo much upon the Affections of the People, and improv'd his Intereſt to that Degree, that from the Diſadvantage of a poor Exile, he made ſuch conſiderable Conqueſts both in Perſia and Turkey, that he became one of the greateſt Princes of Aſia, and for this Reaſon took the Title of Sophi, as being the principal Head of that Sect, which Name has been continued ever ſince upon the ſucceeding Kings of Perſia. Belle-Foreſt, Lib. 2. Hiſt. Univerſ. Thevet. Lib. 9. Cap. 12, 13, 14, 15 & 16. Coſmogr. Univerſ. Paulus Jovius, Lib. 37. Hiſt.

SOPHIA, or Sofia, the capital City of Bulgaria, belonging to the Turks, who call it Triadizza, and is an Archbiſhop's See. It was of old called Sardica, and belonged then to the Lower Mœſia. It is ſeated upon the River Boiana, at an equal Diſtance from the Borders of Thrace Eaſt, Servia Weſt, and Macedonia South, being now a great and populous City, and the Seat of the Turkiſh Governour. This City ſtands 300 Miles from Conſtantinople to the Weſt, 100 from Theſſalonica to the North, and 250 from Belgrade to the South, in the Road to Conſtantinople. This City has no Fortifications. It is noted for one of the greateſt General Councils in 307 that ever was held; wherein, by the Artifice of Conſtantius, the Council of Nice was condemned. It is ſuppoſed to have been built by the Emperor Juſtinian in Honour of his Wife Sophia. Long. 51. 00. Lat. 42. 43.

SOPHIA, Wife of the Emperor Juſtinus II. who carried a great Stroke in the Government by reaſon of her Huſband's Weakneſs; after whoſe Death ſhe help'd to raiſe Tiberius to the Throne, in hopes of marrying him; but aſſoon as ſhe underſtood that he had given his Wife the Title of Auguſta, ſhe was ſo enraged to ſee her ſelf put by her Hopes, that ſhe conſpir'd againſt him in Favour of Juſtinian, the Nephew of Juſtin. Evagr. Lib. 5. Procop. Nicephor.

SOPHISTA. This Name was at the firſt given to Philoſophers, and afterwards to Rhetoricians and Declaimers, who made Profeſſion of Eloquence and Philoſophy; afterwards this Title was beſtowed upon all thoſe that excell'd in any Art or Science whatſoever: This we find, that Lawyers, Phyſicians, Poets, Orators and Divines themſelves, have by way of Honour been called Sophiſts; as alſo ſuch who were famous for their Wiſdom, upon which account Solon had this Title beſtowed upon him. From all which it appears, that it was an honourable Name at firſt amongſt the Greeks as well as Latins; inſomuch as the Chriſtians themſelves have not been wanting to attribute it to ſome of their Eccleſiaſtical Writers, as a Mark of the Eſteem they had for their Learning; upon this account Claudianus Mamertus ſeems to call St. Auſtin a Sophiſt; and Tertullian calls Miltiades, a famous Church-Writer under the Emperor Commodus, The Sophiſt of the Church, becauſe he had writ very learnedly in Defence of it. This Title continued to be honourable in the Weſt amongſt the Latins till the 12th Century, when it was ſtill uſed as a Title of Honour and Eſteem due to learned Men, as appears by the Hiſtory of Ordovicus Vitalis, who was contemporary with St. Bernard. But in Greece this Name was become contemptible before the Time of Plato and Philip of Macedonia; for after that Protagoras, Hippias, Prodicus and Gorgias began to drive a ſordid Trade with their Scholars, and had ſet Wiſdom and Eloquence at a Price, this Name began to be odious and contemptible: Accordingly Cicero tells us, that thoſe were called Sophiſts, that profeſſed Philoſophy with a vain Oſtentation of Words, and for ſordid Lucre; and Seneca gives them the Name of Circumforaneous or Mountebank Sophiſts, who did run from one City to another to make Sale of their Knowledge and Eloquence. 'Tis againſt theſe ſort of Sophiſts that Iſocrates hath made an Oration, who profeſſed themſelves to be Logicians and Orators, but ſpent their Time in frivolous Diſputes and verbal Niceties. And in this Senſe a Sophiſt is nothing elſe but a Declamator that makes an empty Noiſe with Words, or a Logician that ſpends his Time in vain Subtilties. There is nothing has ſo much contributed to the multiplying of this ſort of Cattle, as the introducing of contentious Diſputings into the Schools of Philoſophy and Divinity, which are ſo much in Vogue in moſt of the Univerſities of Chriſtendom. Suidas in voce Sophiſt.

SOPHOCLES, a Greek Tragical Poet, whom ſome, becauſe of the Sweetneſs of his Verſes, have called the Bee, and others the Mermaid or Syren of Attica. He was born in the 71ſt Olympiad, fourteen or fifteen Years before Xerxes his Invaſion of Greece, and was a Perſon of extraordinary Wit and Valour, which he ſignaliz'd upon ſeveral Occaſions, having been General of the Athenian Army with Pericles. He compoſed 120 Tragedies, with ſome Elegies and Hymns to Apollo, of which great Number we have only ſeven Tragedies left at preſent. He added much to the Perfection of Tragedy, and was incomparably more exact and judicious than all that went before him. He lived to the Age of 85; which great Age gave one of his Sons occaſion to ſummon him to appear before the Judges, that they might appoint him a Guardian, as being one that was come to Dotage, and no longer able to take care of his Domeſtick Affairs: But appearing before the Areopagites, without being in the leaſt concern'd, he began to read a Part of his Oedipus, which he was then a compoſing, and aſked them whether they perceived in that Work any Signs of ſuch a Weakneſs of Mind as he was accuſed of: Whereupon his ungrateful Son was ſent back with Shame and Reproach. He died in the 92d Olympiad, and 'tis ſaid for Joy of having gain'd the Prize by one of his Tragedies made in his old Age, which Honour he had received no leſs than 23 times before. Cicero de Divin. Suidas in Lex. Lil. Gyrald. Dial. de Poet. There was alſo another Sophocles called the Younger, who was likewiſe a Greek Poet, and the Grandchild or Nephew of the former, and the Author of ſeveral Tragedies.

SOPHONISBA, of Cremona, was the Daughter of Amilcar of Anguſcrivola. She liv'd about the Beginning of the XVI Century, and was famous for her extraordinary Skill in Painting. King Philip II. of Spain having ſeen ſome of her Pieces, ſent for her to Madrid, and made her one of the Queen's Maids of Honour. Vaſari.

SOPHRONIA, a Name given to a Roman Lady, commended by Euſebius for her Vertue and Fortitude: Why they call her Sophronia, is not clear, for Euſebius calls her by no Name, neither in the 14th Chapter of the eighth Book of his Hiſtory, nor in the 34th Chapter of the firſt Book of his Life of Conſtantine: He only ſays, that this Lady was marry'd to the Governour of Rome, and that having underſtood that Maxentius's Archers, whom he made uſe of to bring the Women he deſigned to abuſe, having underſtood that this Guard were coming to her Houſe, ſhe deſired a little Time of them to dreſs her ſelf, which being granted, and having the Liberty of being alone in her Chamber, ſhe ſtabb'd her ſelf to the Heart, and by this Action gave the World to underſtand, that nothing but Chriſtianity makes People invincible, and Proof againſt the Fear of Death: This is Euſebius's Relation of the Matter; but then he does not ſay (as ſome have ſince miſtaken) that ſhe aſk'd either God or her Husband Pardon for what ſhe was going to do, or that the Church approv'd the Fact, and own'd her for a Martyr. Bayle Diction. Hiſtor.

SOPHRONIUS, Biſhop of Jeruſalem, born at Damaſcus in Syria, was a great Enemy of the Monothelites, and upon this Score writ to Pope Honorius, and Sergius of Conſtantinople, who were the Abettors of thoſe Hereticks, that own'd but one Will in Jeſus Chriſt. He died the eleventh of March, 636. His Death was extremely regretted by the whole Catholick Church, becauſe, as Baronius affirms, he was the only conſiderable Perſon that appear'd againſt the Monothelite Hereſie, having endeavour'd to ſuppreſs it both by his Preaching and Writings. Baron. Bellarmin.

SOPHRONIUS, a famous Author, who lived in the Time of St. Jerom. Whilſt he was yet very young he writ a Panegyrick of Bethlehem, and a Treatiſe of the Deſtruction of the Statue of Serapis. He tranſlated alſo the Life of Hilarion, a Book of Virginity to Euſtochium, and ſeveral Works of St. Jerom out of Latin into Greek.

SOPHRONISTÆ, certain Magiſtrates among the Athenians, ſomewhat reſembling the Cenſors of Rome, but were more in Number, and had not ſo much Power; their chief Buſineſs was, to inſpect the Carriage and Manners of the Youth of that City. Sigonius.

SORA, a City and Dukedom of the Kingdom of Naples in Terra di Lavoro, with a Biſhop's See that is under no Archbiſhop. It is ſituate upon the River Liris, now Garigliano, and was of old a City of Latium. It has a ſplendid Caſtle belonging to the Family of Boncompagno, who are Dukes of Sora. It ſtands 55 Miles from Rome to the Eaſt, ſix from Arpina, and ten from the Lake di Celano (Fucinus) to the South.

SORA, a ſmall City of Denmark, in the Iſle of Zeland, with an Univerſity founded by Frederick II. and reſtored by Chriſtian IV. Golnitz. Geogr.

SORACTE, a Mountain of Tuſcany, at preſent called Mount St. Sylveſtre. It was formerly conſecrated to Apollo, whoſe Prieſts were of the Family of the Hirpii, who, when they celebrated the Ceremonies of their Sacrifices, walk'd with their bare Feet over the hot Coals, without being burnt, that had conſumed their Sacrifices. Plin. Lib. 7. Cap. 2.

SORANZO, or Superantius (Lazaro) a noble Venetian, who wrote a very judicious Book concerning the State of Turkey: He lived to the Beginning of the XVII Century. Quenst. de Patr. illuſt. vir.

SORAVA, the Metropolis of the Lower Luſatia, under the Elector of Saxony, ſtands two German Miles Weſt of Sagan, five South of Craſſen, and was often taken and retaken in the Swediſh Wars. Hoffman.

SORBON, the firſt and moſt conſiderable College of the Univerſity of Paris, founded in the Reign of St. Lewis, by Robert Sorbon, which Name is ſometimes given to the whole Univerſity of Paris, which was founded by Charlemagne, at the Perſuaſion of the learned Alcuinus, who was one of the firſt Profeſſors there: Since which time it hath been very famous, particularly for maintaining the Rights of the Crown and the Privileges of the Gallican Church againſt the Enchroachments of the Court of Rome. The Univerſity of Paris conſiſts of four Faculties, viz. that of Divinity, the Canon Law, Phyſick and the Liberal Arts, comprehending Humanity, Languages and Philoſophy. It contains 63 Colleges, the chief whereof is the Sorbon, as before ſaid; and hath been rebuilt with an extraordinary Magnificence, at the Charge of the Cardinal Richelieu, and contains Lodgings for 36 Doctors, who are called the Society of Sorbon: Thoſe who are received amongſt them before they have received their Doctors Degree, are only ſaid to be of the Hoſpitality of Sorbon. Claud. Hemeræus de Acad. Pariſ. Spondan. in Annal. Mezeray Hiſt. de France.

SORLINGUES. See Scilly Iſlands.

SORRENTO, Sorriento, Surrentum, a City in the Kingdom of Naples, and an Archbiſhop's See in the Terra di Lavoro, on the Bay of Naples, in the Borders of the Hither Principato, 24 Miles from Naples to the South. It is ſeated in a fruitful Plain; and though very ancient, is ſtill in a good and flouriſhing Condition. Long. 38. 20. Lat. 40. 33.

SOSICLES of Syracuſe, a Tragical Poet, who was famous in the Time of Philip, King of Macedonia, and Alexander the Great. He compoſed 73 Pieces, and was ſeven times Victorious. Suidas in Soſicle.

SOSIGENES, an Egyptian Mathematician, who was in Repute in the Time of Julius Cæſar, who made uſe of him in reforming of the Kalendar. It was he that formed the Julian Period, which begins 45 Years before the Birth of our Saviour. Plin. Lib. 18. Cap. 25. Suetonius. Dion. &c.

SOSIPOLIS, the Name of a God whom the Elecenſes worſhipped, from the time that they obtain'd a ſignal Victory againſt the Arabians, after a miraculous manner; for they tell us, That as both Parties were ready to engage, a Woman appear'd in the midſt of the Camp of the Eleans, promiſing them a ſure and powerful Aſſiſtance: She had a little Child in her Arms, which ſhe laid down on the Ground as ſoon as the Arcadians began to draw near to Battle, who preſſing in upon the Eleans, ſaw a prodigious Serpent fighting for their Enemies, in the ſame Place where the Woman had laid down her Child: The Arcadians, affrighted at this horrid Sight, betook themſelves to Flight, and were purſued by the Eleans and cut to Pieces. From this time forwards the Eleans received this Woman and her Child into the Number of their Gods, calling the Woman Ilithia, and her Son Soſipolis, that is, Keeper of the City, and built a Temple to them, wherein were two Altars for the Mother and Son. The Statues of Soſipolis repreſented a young Child, dreſt in a Robe ſpangled with Stars, and holding in his Hand a Cornu-Copia or Horn of Plenty. One She-Prieſt only, habited in White, was permitted to enter into the moſt private Room, called Penetrale, of the Temple of Soſipolis, where his Statue ſtood, when ſhe went to conſult and receive his Oracles. Puſan. in Eliac. This Name is alſo frequently given to Jupiter in thoſe Places of which he was more particularly accounted to be the Preſerver or Tutelar Deity.

SOSTEROPOLIS, or Soteropolis, a City of Bithynia not far from Nicomedia, where Conſtantine the Great was poiſon'd by his Brothers. Hoffm.

SOSTHENES, King of Macedonia, he reigned after Antipatris. He had given ſuch high Marks of his Valour in fighting againſt the Gauls, that in Conſideration thereof he was raiſed to the Throne, which he poſſeſſed for two Years, and was kill'd in the Irruption the Gauls made into Macedonia under Brennus, their General, about the 476th Year of Rome. Pauſan. Juſtin, &c.

SOSTHENES, the chief Ruler of the Synagogue mention'd Acts 18. 17. He was one of the 72 Diſciples of our Lord, and ſuffer'd much for the Goſpel in the Preſence of Gallio the Proconſul. The Apoſtle St. Paul makes mention of him in 1 Cor. 1. 1.

SOSTRATUS of Gnidus, a City of Caria in Aſia minor, a famous Architect and Engineer, in great Eſteem with Ptolomy Philadelphus; wherefore Strabo calls him the Friend or Favourite of Kings, Φίλος τῶν βασιλέων. Amongſt the Structures built by this Architect, the Terraſs Walks ſupported by Arches in the City of Gnidus, were look'd upon as an extraordinary Piece of Workmanſhip; but the moſt magnificent of all was the Watch-Tower or Light-Houſe in the Iſland Phares, near to Alexandria. Ptolomy committed to him the whole Care and Contrivance of that magnificent Structure which was look'd upon as one of the Wonders of the World. Strabo tells us, this Inſcription was ſeen engraven upon it in his Time.

> Σώστρατος Κνίδιος Δεξιφάνους, Θεοῖς Σωτῆρσιν
> ὑπὲρ τῶν πλωιζομένων.

That is to ſay,

> Soſtrates of Cnidus the Son of Dexiphanes, to the Tutelar
> Gods, for the Uſe of Sea-faring Men.

SOTADES, an ancient Greek Poet, born in Maronea, a City of Thrace, who writ ſome filthy and laſcivious Poems, as likewiſe ſcurrilous and abuſive; of which ſort having had the Inſolence to write ſome againſt Ptolomy Philadelphus, they coſt him his Life, for he commanded him to be ſhut up in a Cheſt of Lead, and to be caſt into the Sea. Athenæus, Lib. 14. Suidas, Strabo.

SOTER (Pope) was born in the City of Fundi, in the Territory of Rome. He ſucceeded Anicetus the fourteenth of May, 173, and died a Martyr in the Perſecution of Marcus Antoninus, the Philoſopher, the 22d of April, 177. Anaſtaſ. in Vit. Pont. Baron. in Annales.

SOTION, a Philoſopher that lived in the Time of Tiberius, and was Seneca's Præceptor, as he declares himſelf, Epiſt. 49. & 58. There was another of the ſame Name who was in Eſteem in the Time of the Ptolomies, and is the Author of a Book entituled The Succeſſion of Philoſophers, cited by Diog. Laertius, and of many other Tracts. Voſſ. Lib. 2. de Hiſt. Græc. Photius ſpeaks of one Sotion, who had writ of Fountains, Rivers and Lakes. Cod. 189.

SOTO (Dominicus) a Spaniard of the Order of St. Dominick, was Native of Segovia in the Year 1494, where he publiſh'd his two Books de Natura & Gratia, which he dedicated to the Biſhops. He aſſiſted at the Council of Trent in the Behalf of Charles V. and ſome time after his Return, the Emperor offer'd him the Biſhoprick of Segovia, which Soto refuſed, however, accepted ſeveral Employments from the Emperor, particularly, he undertook the Umpirage of that famous Controverſie about the Expediency and Juſtice of checking the Cruelties and Diſorders of the Spaniards in the Weſt Indies, their Liberties and Barbarities being declaim'd againſt by the Emperor's Confeſſor, and defended by Sepulveda, another Spaniſh Divine and Hiſtoriographer to the ſame Prince: After having diſcharged this Arbitratorſhip to Satisfaction, he retired to Salamanca, where he died the ſixth of December in 1560, and the 66th of his Age. We have his Commentaries upon the Epiſtle to the Romans, and upon the Maſter of the Sentences; De Juſtitia & Jure. De Tegendis ſecretis. De Pauperum Cauſa. De cavendo Juramentorum abuſu. Apologia contra Ambroſium Catharinum. In Porphyrium & Organum Ariſtotelis. Sextus Senenſ. Lib. 4. Bibl. Sacr. Poſſevin. in Appar. ſacr.

SOTO (Fernandes) the General of Florida in America, was the Son of a private Gentleman of Xeres of Badajos in the Portugal Eſtremadura. He went over into America, and accompanied Francis Pizarro in the Conqueſt of Peru; and when King Atabalipa was taken in 1532, he had ſo good a Share in the Diſtribution of the King's Treaſures, that in a little time he was worth 180000 Crowns of Gold. Soto being return'd to Spain, provided himſelf with a magnificent Equipage, and appear'd with the State and Retinue of a Lord. The Emperor Charles V. beſtowed upon him the Government of the Iſle of Cuba, with the Title of General of Florida, and the Title of Marqueſs of all the Places he ſhould conquer. For the Undertaking of this new Conqueſt he equip'd ſeven Ships, and furniſh'd them with all manner of Proviſions and Ammunition; and having choſen his Captains, he embark'd about 600 pick'd Men. It was in the Month of April, 1538. that he parted from St. Lucar, and thence ſailed to the Canaries, and from thence to the Antilles. Being arrived at the Iſle of Cuba, he ſent his Wife with his Ships to Havana, which lies at the other End of the Iſland, 180 Miles from the City of St. Jago, and with his Men croſs'd the Iſland by Land. The eighteenth of May, 1539. he parted from Havana with the Fleet, and diſcover'd the Coaſt of Florida the 25th of May, being Whitſunday: Having landed all his Army, he march'd up into the Country, and aſk'd the Inhabitants whether they knew of any Province or Country which did abound with Gold and Silver; who aſſured him, that beyond the Province of Cale, towards the Weſt, there liv'd a very rich People; whereupon he marched that Way, and came to Cale, and from thence paſſed to the Province of Palaché, where they told him there was abundance of Gold, in the inner Part of that Province. Thus he run from one Province to another, meeting ſometimes with Caciques that entertain'd him very kindly, and at other times was forced to fight. But at laſt Death ſtop'd his farther Progreſs the 21ſt of May, 1542. He had the ſame Deſtiny with many other great Perſons, whom Fortune raiſeth only to give them the greater Fall; for he died at a Time and in a Country where his Soldiers being quite ſpent with continual Marches, were not in a Condition to give him any Comfort, not knowing how to eſcape their own Ruin. Moſcoſo d' Alvarado, who was choſen General in his Place, adviſed to keep his Death from the Knowledge of the Indians, becauſe Soto had endeavour'd always to perſuade them that the Chriſtians were Immortal: Accordingly they buried him in the Night, near the Gate of the Town of Guachoya: But becauſe ſome of the Indians ſeemed to take particular Notice of the Ground that appear'd to have been lately broke up, Moſcoſo cauſed him to be dug up again, and having filled the Cloaths with Sand in which his Body was wrap'd, they caſt it into the River. Hiſtory of Florida, tranſlated at Paris in 1685.

SOTO (Petrus) Profeſſor of Divinity at Dilingen, a City of Suabia in Germany, and Monk of the Order of St. Dominick, was born at Corduba, a City in Spain, and one of the moſt learned Men that ever proceeded thence. He aſſiſted at the Council of Trent, where he died in the Year 1563, the twentieth of April. He hath left ſeveral Works, viz. De Sacerdotum Inſtitutione, Chriſtiana Inſtitutio, &c. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

SOUBIAC, formerly Sublac, a ſmall City in the Eccleſiaſtical State, in the Territory of Rome, upon the River Teverona. It hath a famous Monaſtery of the Order of St. Bennet, where is to be ſeen the Wilderneſs or ſolitary Place which is ſo famous for having been the Retirement or Retreat of that Saint. Raph. Fabretti in Diſſertat.

SOUBISE, a Town in Xantoigne, which has given its Name to ſeveral Perſons of Quality; as firſt to SOUBISE (John de Parthinai, Lord of) was one of the moſt conſiderable of the Hugonot Party in the XVI Century: He was brought over to this Perſuaſion at the Court of the Duke of Ferrara: The Dutcheſs of that Prince, Daughter to Lewis XII. having ſeveral Divines of that Part of the Reformation with her, to whoſe Communion ſhe was brought over; Soubiſe, upon his Return to France, propagated his new Perſuaſion with a great deal of Zeal, and had almoſt made Catharine de Medicis his Proſelite; and when the Differences between the Princes of the Blood and the King's Party came to a Criſis and broke out into a Civil War in 1562; Soubiſe joyn'd the Prince of Conde, who made him Governour of Lions, which Place he defended againſt the Duke of Nemours with a great deal of Conduct and Courage: He was ſtrongly ſuſpected for being concerned in the Aſſaſſination of the Duke of Guiſe, being charg'd pretty home by the Depoſitions of Poltrot; however, 'tis the Opinion of the moſt impartial Writers of the Church of Rome, that he had no Hand in that barbarous Murther. He had formerly been Gentleman of the King's Bed-chamber, and had commanded an Army for Hen. II. in Tuſcany, where he diſcharged the Part of a great General: He died in 1566, being about 54 Years of Age. Bayle Diction. Hiſtor. Mezeray Abr. Chron. T. 5. P. M. 72. &c.

SOUBISE (Benjamin de Roan Duc. de) Grandſon of the former, and Son of Renatus de Roan, ſecond of that Name, and of Catharine de Parthenai, aſſiſted the Enterprizes of the Duke of Roan his Brother with a great deal of Vigour, both in endeavouring to relieve Rockel, and in ſupporting the Hugonot Intereſt in the Kingdom of France. He made his firſt Campaigns in Holland under Prince Maurice, and was one of thoſe French Gentlemen who threw themſelves into Bergenop-Zoom, when beſieged by the Spaniards in 1606; and in 1621 he held out the Town of St. Jean d'Angeli in Xantoigne, againſt his Prince Lewis XIII. who commanded there in Perſon, and upon the Surrendery of the Place had his Pardon for his paſt Miſbehaviour, upon the Condition of his having promiſed Obedience for the Future; however, before the Year was out he ſeems to have forgot his Word, and ſeized upon Royan. In 1622 he made himſelf Maſter of Olonne, and was ſo powerful in the Lower Poictou, that his Party ſcower'd the Fields, and made Excurſions within five Leagues of Nantes: Theſe Advantages laſted but a little While, for the King's Troops attack'd him ſo vigorouſly at the Iſle of Rhee, that after his Defeat his Quarters were beat up every where and his Forces ſcattered: Upon this Misfortune he retired to Rochell, where the Town gave him broad Signs of Diſſatisfaction and Contempt: This Neglect made him ſet Sail for England to treat for Succour; the Deſign of which Voyage being underſtood by the Court of France, he was proclaim'd Traytor on the fifteenth of July, 1522. notwithſtanding he was refuſed by the King of England, he made a Shift to get Credit enough to equip ſome few Veſſels, but theſe did him no Service, being caſt away at Plimouth in a Storm. In the Beginning of the Year 1625, he ſeiz'd upon the Iſle of Rhee, and made an Attempt upon Blavett or Port Lewis in Brittany, where he had but a ſort of Half Succeſs, for his Projects were generally too much over-graſp'd to prove altogether fortunate; however, he made himſelf Maſter of the Haven and of ſix Men of War which lay there, and his Men upon their Landing made themſelves Maſters of the Town, but finding a ſtrong Oppoſition at the Fort, he was forced to re-embark his Troops and quit the Enterprize, not without the Loſs of ſome of his Ships: Afterwards he had the Mortification to ſee himſelf diſown'd by the Hugonots, notwithſtanding, 'twas generally believ'd he had kept cloſe to the Meaſures concerted between him and the Duke of Roan in 1624. He had done his Country a great deal of Diſſervice by taking their Merchant-Men and diſturbing their Coaſts from Garonne to the Loire; but at laſt the Duke of Montmorency, Admiral of France, being reinforced by ſome Dutch Men of War, beat Soubiſe's Fleet, who upon this Defeat being driven from the Iſles of Rhee and Oleron, was obliged to retire into England; at which Court he was very inſtrumental in procuring the Succours ſent to Rochell, and when, notwithſtanding theſe Supplies, the Town was taken he had no Fancy to return into France and enjoy the Benefit of the general Amneſty, but choſe rather to ſtay in England, where he died without Iſſue, having all along made it his Buſineſs to do the King of France as much Diſſervice as lay in his Power. Bayle Diction. Hiſtor. &c.

SOUCHES (the Count of) General of the Empire, was a Grocer's Son of Rochel. His Father gave him to a German Gentleman, who took him along with him to his own Country, where he treated him ſo diſdainfully, that Souches was extremely netled at it; and finding himſelf unable to engage the German to draw his Sword againſt him, becauſe of the Inequality of their Birth, he liſted himſelf in the Emperor's Service, and ſome time after challeng'd the Gentleman that had abuſed him, and diſarm'd him. This Action procur'd him a great Eſteem; and afterwards ſignaliz'd his Valour on ſeveral Occaſions, he was advanced from one Command to another, till in 1664 he was made General of the Forces in the Upper Hungary, where he took Nitria and the Caſtle of Levenez, after having defeated the Turkiſh Army that had beſieg'd it, killing 6000 upon the Place, and taking eleven Pieces of Cannon, 100 Colours, and all their Baggage, and had ſeveral other Advantages over the Turks. He died in Moravia in 1682, being 80 Years of Age. His Son being a Commander of the Forces of the Empire, was killed at Rhinefeld in 1678. Prada Relation of the Wars of Flanders and Germany.

SOUDAN, or Soldan, a Name or Title formerly given to the Lieutenant-Generals of the Caliphs in their Provinces and their Armies: Theſe Soldans afterwards made themſelves Soverains; and Saladine, General of the Forces of Noradine, King of Damaſcus, took this Title, and was the firſt Souldan of Egypt in 1165, after having kill'd the Caliph Caym. Marmol in Africa, Lib. 2.

SOULE, a ſmall Country of France, with the Title of a Vicounty in the Baſques, of which Mauleon de Soule is the Capital.

SOULECHAT (Denys) a Fryar Minorite, lived in the XIV Century; and having advanced ſome Errors concerning the renouncing of Temporal Goods, as alſo of Charity, and the Perfection of Love, and were condemn'd by the Univerſity of Paris; from which he appealed to Pope Urban V. who ratified their Judgment, and ordered him to recant them in the Preſence of the Biſhop of Beavais, which was executed accordingly in 1369.

SOUMEL, a City of the Kingdom of Bengala, in the Empire of the Great Mogul, near the River Ganges. Not far from which is a Mine of Diamonds. Daviti Deſc. of Aſia.

SOUND (The) Sunda Fretum, a famous Strait between the Baltick Sea and the German Ocean: It reacheth fifty Miles from North-Weſt to South-Eaſt, and is about fifteen at its greateſt breadth; but between Eſenburg and Cronenburg is not above three Miles over, by which means all Ships that paſs to and fro are neceſſitated to pay Toll to the King of Denmark.

SOURIQUOIS, a ſavage People inhabiting the Province of Arcadia in New France in America: They are of a middle Stature, well ſhap'd: There are only ſome of the chiefeſt Men amongſt them that wear Beards, the others pluck out the Hair of it by the Roots. During the Summer they live on Fiſh, and in Winter they eat Veniſon. They are ſubject to their petty Princes, whom they call Sagamos. As to their Religion, they have only a kind of ſuperſtitious Worſhip, which is taught them by Magicians, whom they call Autmoins, who, after having conſulted the Devil, foretel future Things to them, and practice Phyſick and Chirurgery: Their way of curing is to moiſten the Place affected with the Steam of their Breath, and ſometimes by opening a Vein and ſucking the Blood out of it, and afterwards covering it with a little Skin, taken from the Teſticles of a Caſtor. Theſe Souriquois are very like thoſe Savages mentioned under the Word Canada. De Laët. Hiſtoir. Nouveau Mondi.

SOUS, or Soul, a Kingdom of Africa, in the Weſtern Part of Biledulgerid, belonging to the King of Morocco.

SOUTHAM, a Market-Town in Warwickſhire, in Knightlow Hundred, 64 Miles from London.

SOUTHAMPTON, Lat. Clauſentium, Antonia magnus Portus, Triſantonum Portus, the County Town of Hampſhire, ſeated on the Weſt ſide of the River Anton or Hampton, which comes from Wincheſter, and here falls into the great Bay in a large Stream. This Town, according to Speed, has been very populous, rich and beautiful, ſtrongly walled about with a Wall of Free-ſtone 1200 Paces in compaſs, with ſeven Gates for Entrance, and 29 Towers for Defence, two ſtately Keys for the Conveniency of Ships, and five Churches for divine Service, beſides an Hoſpital called God's Houſe, wherein the unfortunate Richard, Earl of Cambridge, beheaded for Treaſon, lies interred. On the Weſt ſide of the Town, upon a ſteep Hill, ſtands a ſtrong Caſtle of a circular Form, but now falling to Ruin. In the Reign of King Edward III. this Town was burnt by the French under the Conduct of the King of Sicily's Sons, who had the ill Luck to fall under the Club of a Countryman. After this, in Richard II. his Reign, the Town was rebuilt where it is at preſent, and is now a ſtrong, rich, populous and well traded Town, fenced with a double Ditch, ſtrong Walls and many Turrets for the Defence of the Haven, which is capable of Ships of good Burthen up to the Key, and is oppoſite to Jerſey, Guernſey and Normandy, and is very commodious for lading and unlading of Ships. King Henry VI. granted it a Mayor, and made it a County in 1067. Beauvois of Southampton, that celebrated Warriour, was its firſt ſecular Earl in 1538, the Biſhops of Wincheſter being before Earls of Southampton, and ſo ſtiled in the Statutes of the Garter made by Henry VIII. William Fitz-William, Lord Admiral in 1547. Thomas Wriotheſley, Lord Chancellor, was created the third Earl by Edward VI. to whom ſucceeded three of his Poſterity; the laſt died in 1667. In 1675 Charles II. created Charles Fitz-Roy, eldeſt Son to the Dutcheſs of Cleveland, Baron of Newbery, Earl of Chicheſter and Duke of Southampton. It was here that King Canute, to convince his Flatterers that he was no God, as they pretended he was, called for a Seat, and ſitting by the Water-ſide commanded the Sea to keep back; but ſeeing that inſtead of that it got Ground of him, he own'd God to be the only ſupreme Governour, and in a religious manner gave up his Crown to the Rood at Wincheſter.

SOUTHWARK, a Market and Borough-Town of Brixton Hundred in the North-Eaſt Parts of Surrey, ſituate on the South-ſide of the Thames, oppoſite to London, to which it is join'd by its famous Bridge. It is ſo large and populous, that it falls little ſhort of the beſt Cities in England. The principal Street from St. George's Church to the Bridge is beautiful with fair Buildings. The Inhabitants drive a great Trade with the whole County. Here are two Pariſh Churches, the one call'd St. Mary Over Rey, formerly a Priory, and the other St. George's Church. Here is alſo St. Thomas's Hoſpital, for ſick, poor and diſtreſſed People; two Priſons for Debt, one call'd the King's-Bench, the other the Marſhalſea. The Mint is a pretended Sanctuary for inſolvent People, where many run for Shelter to avoid Impriſonment, governing themſelves as if they were a lawful Corporaton. For the Diverſion of the People is a Place called the Bear-Garden. In ſhort, though Southwark be counted part of London, and part of it under the Lord Mayor's Juriſdiction, yet the Inhabitants thereof do ſtill enjoy ſeveral ancient Privileges peculiar to themſelves, as holding of Courts within themſelves, and chuſing their own Members of Parliament.

SOUTHWELL, a Market-Town in Nottinghamſhire, in Thurgarton Hundred, ſituate upon a Rivulet that falls into the Trent, and adorn'd with a Collegiate Church. It is 94 Miles from London.

SOUTHWOULD, Sowold or Swold, a ſmall Corporation and Sea-Port in the County of Suffolk, famous for the Rendezvouzes of the Engliſh Fleets when in War with the Hollanders, and eſpecially for the two Naval Victories obtain'd over them June 3, 1665, and May 28, 1672, both under the then Duke of York. The Town is ſtrong and pleaſant, ſituate upon a Cliff with the Sea to the Eaſt, the River Blithe, over which is a Draw-Bridge, to the Weſt, and a Bay of its own Name to the South, made by the ſhooting forth of Eaſton-Neſs, the moſt Eaſtern Point of England. The Cliff hath ſeveral Pieces of Ordnance planted upon it.

SOZOMENUS (Hermias) called Scholaſticus, lived in the V Century. He was born at Salamina in the Iſle of Cyprus, and for a long while pleaded at the Bar of Conſtantinople. He compiled an Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory in nine Books, from the third Conſulſhip of Criſpus and young Conſtantine, both Sons of the Emperor Conſtantine; that is to ſay, from 324 to the ſeventeenth Conſulſhip of Theodoſius the Younger, or to the Year 439. He dedicated this Work to the Emperor, of which we have loſt the Relation of what things happened in an Interval of twenty Years, that is, from the Year 420 to the End. 'Tis ſuppoſed that he died towards 450. Sozomen, tho' not altogether ſo judicious a Writer as Socrates, has notwithſtanding the Reputation of no inconſiderable Hiſtorian: His Works, amongſt other things, being valuable for enlarging upon the Diſcipline of the Church, and here the Reader may meet with a particular Deſcription of publick Penance, which was then the general Practice of the Weſtern Church. *Caſſiodor. de Divin. SPA, a ſmall Town in the Biſhoprick of Liege, famed for its medicinal mineral Waters, which draw a great Concourſe thither from all Parts.

SPACO, the Wife of Mithridates that was one of the Herdſmen of Aſtyages, King of the Medes, who was the Nurſe of Cyrus; and becauſe in the Language of the Medes, Spaco ſignifies a Bitch, this gave Occaſion to the Story, that Cyrus was ſuckled by a Bitch. But Juſtin gives us a quite different Relation of this Matter, viz. That Cyrus having been expoſed, was found with a Bitch that ſuckled him, and defended him from the Birds and Beaſts; and that when they took the Child away this Bitch followed him, and ſtay'd with him; for which reaſon the Word Spaco, which ſignifies a Bitch (as it does ſtill in the Perſian Language) was uſed for a Nurſe.

SPAGNOLI (Baptiſta) called Mantuan, becauſe he was born at Mantua, as he reports himſelf, in 1448. He turn'd Carmelite Monk, and was very conſiderable in his Order, of which, after other Promotions, he was made General. He died in 1516, aged 68. Mantuan was a Perſon of indefatigable Induſtry, and had an admirable Genius for Poetry, which Lilius Giraldus fancies he ſpoil'd by writing too faſt. His Muſe ſeems to have ſet out with a great deal of Speed, but flag'd and tired upon Courſe. His Works were printed in four Volumes at Antwerp. Poſſevin. Bel.

SPAHIS, a ſort of Horſemen in the Turkiſh Army, who receive their Pay out of the Grand Signior's Treaſury, and poſſeſs no Land, as do the Zaims and Timariots. Spahi ſignifies a Horſeman. There are about 12 or 15000 of them in Europe, and are of two ſorts; the firſt are called Silahtari or Silahdars, that is to ſay, Armed Men, and have a yellow Cornet; the others are called Spahi Oglanis, i. e. Servants of the Spahis, and have a red Scarfe: The latter march before their Maſters, and are more reſpected than they, becauſe in a Battle, where their Maſters turn'd their Backs, they kept their Ground againſt the Enemy. Their Arms are a Launce in their Hands, a Cimeter by their Side, with Bow and Arrows; ſome of them wear Coats of Mail, and their Head-pieces are of the Colour of their Scarfs. They are not diſtinguiſhed into Companies or Regiments, neither do they obſerve any Order, except that of following their Standard. They are obliged to guard the Grand Signior's and Prime Viſir's Tents on Horſeback, as are the Janizaries on Foot. Ricaut. of the Ottoman Empire.

SPAIN, Lat. Hiſpania, from their King Hiſpanus, is one of the moſt conſiderable Kingdoms of Europe, called heretofore Heſperia and Iberia, from the River Iberus. It is ſeparated from France towards the North-Eaſt by the Pyrenean Hills; on all other Sides it is ſurrounded by the Mediterranean Sea, the Streights of Gibraltar, and the Atlantick Ocean; ſo that it lies in the Form of a great Peninſula, join'd to France by a Neck of 80 Spaniſh Leagues over. Spain extends from 35 to 44 Degrees of Latitude, and from the 9th to the 24th Degree of Longitude: Its greateſt Length from Eaſt to Weſt is 190 German Miles, or 800 Italian: Its Circuit is 2480 Italian Miles, and is 460 Miles greater than France was 50 Years ago. The Air of this Country is generally very good, and the Soil fertile, were it but as well cultivated. Ancient Hiſtorians affirm, That it abounded with whatſoever Ambition or Neceſſity required, being full of Men and Horſes, repleniſhed with Mines of Gold and Silver, Braſs, Iron, Lead, Quickſilver and Salt; produced Corn, Wine, and Oil in abundance, and was ſo extreamly fruitful, that if any Place for want of Water was leſs uſeful, yet even there Flax and Hemp thrived very well. Nonius relates out of Livy, That Spain in a few Years ſent into Italy 600000 Pound weight of Silver unwrought, Argenti Oſcenſis xl. millia, of coarſe Silver 40000, and of Gold about 10000 Pound weight, and beſides all this a vaſt Quantity of Mined Money. The Mines opened by Hannibal, yielded every Year 400 Pound weight. The old Spaniards were noted to be very Factious, but withal Prudent, Stout, Faithful, Hoſpitable, and great Lovers of Learning, as appeareth in their Country-men the Seneca's, Lucan, Mela, Columella, and Hyginus. But the Reaſon of its not being in its former flouriſhing Condition, is, the Fewneſs of its Inhabitants, occaſioned by the Infœcundity of their Women, in compariſon of thoſe of other Countries, the Baniſhment of the Moors and Jews, the Inquiſition, and the many Colonies and Armies they have abroad; but above all, the Diſcovery of the Weſt-Indies have been the greateſt Means of diſpeopling the Country, by reaſon of the great Numbers whom the Deſire of Riches have prompted to leave their Native Country: ſo that its obſerved, that there were never 1000 natural Spaniards in any of their Armies. Indeed, the Riches that are from thence imported into Spain, are almoſt incredible; for a Computation having been made in 1618, it was found, that ſince the Time of their firſt Diſcovery they had furniſhed 1536 Millions of Gold, though the firſt Expence of that Enterprize did not amount to above 12000 Ducats. This is a moſt prodigious Sum; but the Need Spain hath of Foreign Merchandizes exhauſteth the greateſt part of all theſe Treaſures; which made Henry IV. of France ſay, That the Abundance of Piſtoles in Spain was a Sign of their Riches, but that the Neceſſity of Tranſporting them elſewhere, was a Mark of their Poverty.

The Ancients divided Spain into three great Parts, called by them Tarraconenſis, Bœtica, and Luſitanica. Hiſpania Tarraconenſis was the greateſt of the three, and the moſt Eaſtern, which on the Eaſt was bounded by the Pyrenæan Hills, on the North by the Bay of Biſcay, on the Weſt by the Atlantick Ocean and Luſitania, and on the South by the Mediterranean Sea and Bœtica. Hiſpania Bœtica was the moſt Southern Part, and was bounded on the Eaſt and South by the former and by the Ocean, and on the Weſt and North by the ſame Ocean and Luſitania. The Romans divided it into Citerior and Ulterior.

The firſt Inhabitants of Spain were the Celtæ, a People of Gallia Comata, between the Garonne and the Seine, whence came the Name of Celtiberi; after them, the Phœnicians poſſeſſed themſelves of the moſt Southern Parts of the Country, and may well be ſuppoſed to have been the firſt Civilizers of this Kingdom, and the Founders of the moſt ancient Cities, as Diodorus Siculus and Strabo affirm. After theſe followed the Grecians, who from Marſeilles ſent many Colonies into Hiſpania Tarraconenſis. The Carthaginians were the next, who after they had been by the Romans diſpoſſeſt of Sicily, Sardinia and Corſica, at the End of the firſt Punick War, about the Year of Rome 512, by the Iſle of Gades (which was theirs before) entred Spain about four Years after, and in leſs than twenty Years under Amilcar, Aſdrubal, and Hannibal the Son of Amilcar, they deſtroyed Saguntum, built New Carthage, and conquered all the Nations of this Country, as far as the Pyrenean Hills and the Mediterranean, and might eaſily have ſubdued the reſt, but that Hannibal choſe rather to revenge the Injuries of his Country, and to ruin Rome by an Invaſion of Italy. The Jealouſie of the Carthaginians ruined his Deſign in Italy, and the Romans prevailed in Spain under Cornelius Scipio, about the Year of Rome 545. And the Inhabitants of this Country having been broken by the Carthaginians, did the more willingly and eaſily ſubmit to the Romans, under whom they continued till about the Year 400, about which time the Goths, the Vandals, the Suevi, Alani, and Silingi, upon occaſion of Conſtantine's withdrawing his Forces out of that Kingdom to the Eaſt, invaded Spain, and parted it amongſt them; but the Goths not long after continued ſole Maſters of it; and Wallia, King of the Weſtirogoths, in the Year 416, after Athanaricus, Alaricus, Athaulphus, and Sigericus, was the firſt that fixed his Seat in Spain, and he and his Succeſſors extirpated the Vandals, or drove them over the Sea into Africa. The Goths under a Succeſſion of 31 Princes, continued here till the Reign of Roderick, when the Moors were invited into Spain by Count Julian, whoſe Daughter the King had abuſed; who having gained ſeveral Victories over his Forces, himſelf was at laſt ſlain in a Battel fought with them in the Year 713; after which the Moors obliged the Goths to retire to the Mountains of Leon, Aſturia, and Galicia, where Pelagius eſtabliſhed a Kingdom in the Year 717, in ſpight of the Moors; and Charles Martel having defeated the Moors in France, A.C. 732, and Charlemagne done the ſame in Spain, A. 778, encouraged the Goths to leave their Mountains, who in proceſs of time drove the Infidels out of their Country. True it is, that this was not done all on a ſuddain, as taking up the Space 7 or 800 Years, that is, till the Year 1492, during which time were formed thoſe fourteen Kingdoms into which it is now divided, whereof three are towards the North, viz. Navarre, Biſcay, and Aſturia; three towards the Weſt, Galicia, Portugal, and Algarbia; three towards the South, Andaluſia, Grenada, and Murcia; three towards the Eaſt, Arragon, Catalonia, and Valentia; and two in the midſt, Leon and Caſtile. All which Kingdoms were afterwards reduced to three, viz. Caſtile, Arragon, and Portugal. Arragon was joined to Caſtile in 1474, by the Marriage of Ferdinand, King of Arragon, with Iſabella the Heireſs of Caſtile, who chaſed the Moors from Grenada. Joan, one of their Daughters, was married to Philip of Auſtria, Duke of Burgundy, &c. and Charles born of this Marriage, inherited in theſe Kingdoms, and after the Death of Ferdinand his Grandfather, ſucceeded alſo to that of Arragon in 1516. The beſt Ports in Spain are the Groin in Galicia; on the Ocean Carthagena; in the Kingdom of Murcia on the Mediterranean, Setubal, St. Sebaſtian, St. Andero, Les Paſſages, St. Mary near Cales, and Polos, where Columbus embarked for America. Its principal Rivers are the Ebro (Iberus) which falls into the Mediterranean, Guadalquiver Lat. Betis, which runs by Sevil, and falls into the Ocean, Guadiana Lat. Anas, which runs under Ground for a League, the Tagus, and the Durius or Douro. The Sand of the River Tagus is mixt with Gold. This Kingdom is alſo noted for its Horſes; thoſe of Aſturia, which the Romans called Aſtorcones, were the ſtrongeſt, and thoſe of Portugal the ſwifteſt; whence the Ancients feigned, that they were conceiv'd by the Wind.

Spain contains eight Archbiſhopricks, and 45 Biſhopricks, and if we joyn thoſe of Portugal, eleven Archbiſhopricks and 56 Biſhopricks, about 20000 Pariſhes, with a vaſt Number of richly endow'd Abbeys and Monaſteries. The Archbiſhop of Toledo has a yearly Revenue of three or four hundred thouſand Ducats, the other Prelates fifty or ſixty thouſand a-piece, and ſome a hundred thouſand. The Chriſtian Faith was very early preached in this Nation by St. James, or, as ſome think, more probably by St. Paul. Arianiſm entred with the Goths, and continued till 588. They never heard of the Roman Rites till after the Year 1083, when a French Man being made Archbiſhop of Toledo, endeavoured the Introduction of that Service, and was at firſt oppoſed in it by the Clergy and People; and it had been well for Spain if it had never been received, ſeeing it has coſt that Nation ſo many of its People, no leſs than 3000 Familes having been deſtroy'd by the Inquiſition in one Dioceſe in three Years, not to mention the Loſs of the United Netherlands, and the Ruin of Flanders. So that the Inquiſition, which was introduced by Pedro de Gonzales in 1478, may well be look'd upon as one Cauſe of the Ruin of this once potent Kingdom, together with the Expulſion of the Jews and Moors, (Ferdinand and Iſabella in 1492 expelling ſeventeen hundred thouſand Families, and Philip II. in 1520 nine hundred thouſand Moors) and the Peopling of America, which happen'd much about the ſame time.

The King of Spain hath the moſt Land of any Prince of the whole World; upon which account ſome of their Predeceſſors have boaſted that the Sun never ſets in their Dominions, as having Poſſeſſions in all four Parts of the World. In Europe, beſides Spain, he hath the Spaniſh Netherlands, the Dutchy of Burgundy, and the Franche Comté, though the Conqueſts of France have deprived him of the two latter: In Italy he hath the Dutchy of Milan, the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily, Final, Orbitello, and many other Places, beſides the Iſles of Majorca, Minorca, and Sardinia: In Africa, on the Coaſt of Barbary, he hath Oran, Larache, Mahamora, Pennon de Velez, Marſalquivir, Melilla. The Canary Iſlands are his, and the greateſt part of America: In Aſia he poſſeſſeth the Philippine Iſlands, and ſeveral other conſiderable Places mentioned elſewhere in this Dictionary.

The Kings of Spain have the Title of Catholick ſince Ferdinand the Fifth, who receiv'd it from Pope Alexander the Sixth, after the Taking of Granada. No Religion but the Roman Catholick is ſuffered here. The Spaniſh ancient Æra was that of Auguſtus until 1351, which runs 38 Years higher than the common Chriſtian Æra, or than that of Dionyſius Exiguus. The Succeſſion of the Spaniſh Monarchs is reckon'd thus; from the Year 412 to 713, thirty four Kings of the Viſigoths; from the Year 409 to 585, ten Kings of the Suevi, who were Maſters of Galicia and ſome other Provinces. The Kingdoms of Spain were re-united under Ferdinand V. King of Arragon, who ſucceeded John II. in 1479, and married Iſabella, Queen of Leon and Caſtile. Since that time, Philip I. Arch-duke of Auſtria, was King in 1504, Charles I. in 1516, Philip II. in 1555, Philip III. in 1598, Philip IV. in 1625, Charles II. in 1665.

There are five Orders of Knighthood in Spain; that of the Golden Fleece, which is chiefly beſtowed upon Princes and Lords that are Strangers; that of St. James or San Jago, that of Alcantara or Calatrava, that of Saint Salvadorde Montreal, and that of Monteza, which is not much eſteemed.

There are ninety three Grandees Places in Spain, though there be not ſo many Grandees, becauſe it often happens that ſeveral of theſe are entailed upon one and the ſame Family. Some are Grandees during Life only; and others are ſo hereditarily, by reaſon of ſome Lands to which this Dignity is annexed. All the Grandees have the Privilege of being covered in the King's Preſence, and are diſtinguiſh'd into three Ranks; the firſt is, of thoſe who cover themſelves before they ſpeak to the King; the ſecoud, of thoſe who put on their Hats after they have begun to ſpeak to the King; and the third is, of thoſe who only put on their Hats after having ſpoke to him and being return'd to their Places; who though they have the Right of putting on their Hats then, yet never do it till the King gives them Sign ſo to do, which he never fails of.

The Kings of Spain have ſeveral Councils, viz. the Council of State, the Council of War, the Council of Caſtile, the Council of Arragon, of Italy, of the Knightly Orders, of the Chamber, of the Revenue, of the Croiſade, and of the Inquiſition, which hath nine Tribunals, that of Toledo, Grenada, Sevil, Corduba, Murcia, Cuenza, Logrona, Lerena, and Valladolid, and a Sovereign Court at Madrid, the Preſident whereof is called the Inquiſitor-General. They judge without appeal of four Crimes, viz. Hereſie, Witchcraft, Sodomy, and Polygamy; and the Sentence given againſt Perſons convict, is call'd an Act of the Inquiſition, or an Act of Faith.

The Court of Spain is different from the other Courts of Europe, which are generally more magnificent. The King gives Audience but one Day in the Week; the reſt of the Time he keeps himſelf ſhut up in his Palace, in the Courts of which any may walk, they being full of rich Merchants Shops, and reſemble Cloiſters of Religious Houſes. No married Man beſides the King lies in the Palace, and all the Women who live there are either Widows, or the Queen's Ladies of Honour, or thoſe belonging to the Infanta. The King and Queen dine apart, and are to be ſeen but at certain Days in the Week. The Infant, or firſt Son of Spain, is called Prince of Aſturia, becauſe Pelagius I. reigned there. The King aſſembles the States to ſwear Fealty to this Prince, and recognize him as lawful Heir. All Offices of the Court are given, and none ſold. There are three ſorts of Guards, viz. the Burgundian, becauſe the Kings of Spain derived moſt of their Grandeur, and the Order of the Golden Fleece, from Burgundy; the German Guard choſen by the Princes of the Houſe of Auſtria; and the Spaniſh, appointed by the ancient Kings of Caſtile: They all ride on Horſe-back, and carry Launces; beſides which there are a hundred Men at Arms, and fifty call'd the Guard of Eſpinoſa, who lodge nigheſt the King's Perſon; theſe are all Natives of a Borough called Eſpinoſa, an Inhabitant whereof diſcovered a Plot againſt the King. Beſides the Orders of Knighthood, there are thoſe called Gentlemen of the Mouth, who are diſpenſed with from going to War, and have leave to come into the King's Suppers and Dinners; but the greateſt Honour is to be Gentlemen of the Chamber, of which there are three ſorts, ſome who actually ſerve, others who attend but ſerve not, and ſome who neither come in nor ſerve. All have the Privilege of a Key to open what Doors of the Palace they pleaſe, there being no Uſhers, and the Gates kept always ſhut. The Widows who attend the Queen are all of Quality, and clad in white, as its the Cuſtom in Spain. Not only the Grandees, but alſo others of Quality, are cover'd in the Queen's Preſence whilſt they ſpeak to the Ladies: The Grandees Ladies have alſo great Privileges; the Queen riſes up when they come in, and offers them Cuſhions: Ambaſſadors Ladies and Wives of Grandees eldeſt Sons, have the ſame Privilege; and upon the failing of Heirs Male, the eldeſt Daughter ſucceeds to the Honour of Grandeſſa. The Offices of Judicature and Places in the Army, are all given and not ſold. The Governours of Provinces and Towns continue generally three Years, but thoſe of the Indies ſeven. The King ſends Viceroys to Naples, Sicily, Sardinia, Arragon, Valentia, Catalonia, Navarr, New Spain, and Peru, and a Governour to the Netherlands, who has Power to ſend and receive Envoys to Milan, Majorca, and Minorca, beſides many Captain-Generals to Africa, the Indies, and other Places, who have ſometimes the Titles of Viceroys, and preſide over all Affairs. The Civil Government in Cities is moſt the ſame with that of France. One may appeal from any Court to the Council, and from all lower Councils to the Supreme Council of Madrid, which are all held in different Apartments of the Palace, and diſpoſed ſo that the King can hear what is debated in each; beſides which, he has a Weekly Account of what paſſeth in them. The Council of Caſtile, which is the moſt conſiderable of all Spain, is called the Royal Council, and has Juriſdiction over all, except Navarre, Arragon, Valence, and Catalonia; the Preſident of this Council, and the ancienteſt and moſt experienc'd Counſellors, form the Chamber-Council, to be a Member of which, is the greateſt Honour that Gown-Men can attain to. The Council of State conſiſts of ancient Governours, Generals of the Army, and Ambaſſadors. Beſides theſe, are a Council of War, the Inquiſition, and ſeveral other. Moſt People believe, that the King of Spain's greateſt Revenue conſiſts in the Gold and Silver brought him from the Indies, which is a miſtake; for this Wealth belongs to the Merchants and others that pay the Workmen at the Golden Mines of Potoſi, and the Silver Mines of Mexico; ſo that the King receives little more than a Million and a half of Gold, which is about four Millions of French Livres; a great part of the reſt is ſent for England, France, &c. for Cloth, Linnen, and other Goods which the Spaniards have from thence. As for Cuſtoms, the King has about 14 per Cent. for any Goods ſold in Spain, which with the Exciſe upon Wine and mark'd Paper raiſes great Sums.

The Spaniards are noted for their Gravity and Serioufneſs, ſlow in their Counſels and Deliberations, but reſolv'd and conſtant in the Execution of what they have once reſolv'd upon: They are very fit for and excel in Liberal Arts and Sciences, eſpecially in all thoſe that require great Attention, Perſeverance, and Penetration of Mind, as appears in their Arias Montanus and Antonius Nebriſenſis; but undervalue Mechanical Arts, which they judge unfit for and miſbecoming Gentlemen. They are very good Soldiers, very hardy, patient and courageous. Their Armies are very well diſciplin'd, and their Infantry is better than their Cavalry. Its obſerv'd, that the Parts of Spain towards the South and Eaſt, eſpecially along the Coaſt of the Mediterranean, have been very fruitful in learned Men, but that the Inhabitants of the other Parts are more dull and heavy, which is attributed to the Air. The Spaniards in general are accus'd as being defective in Philology, though ſome few have alſo excelled in that. The Hiſtories written in their own Language are of a very good Stile, but partial both as to Church and State. Their Poets are of no Eſteem, and their Antiquaries, who derive their Original from Tubal and Japhet, are counted Fabulous. Their Divines are their beſt Orators. Their Philoſophers are all Peripateticks. They have had good moral Divines and Commentators upon Scripture, but few noted for Controverſie. The Spaniſh Gentry do not live in the Country after the Cuſtom of France and Germany, there being no Villages in Spain; ſo that the Gentry are mix'd among the Burghers, without having any Juriſdiction in Mannors, or any other Prerogative, excepting the Gentry of Arragon, and therefore the Condition of a plain Gentleman in Spain is little conſider'd; there's none reckon'd Noble there, but the Knights of the Military Orders, or thoſe who have the Titles of Earls, Marqueſſes or Dukes. As to the Diſpoſal of Eccleſiaſtical Preferments, the King does not give the Preferments in Abbies, becauſe they all of 'em conſiſt of Regulars, excepting two or three, but then that Prince has more Arch-biſhopricks and Biſhopricks, and much richer, in his Gift, than there are in France; for, beſide the Indies, where there are above Forty Biſhopricks and Arch-biſhopricks, ſome of which are worth 30000 Ducats per Annum; beſides the Low-Countries and the Dutchy of Milan; the King of Spain has the Diſpoſal of 22 great Arch-biſhopricks, and about a hundred rich Biſhopricks, in the Iſlands of Sicily, Sardinia, Majorca, Minorca, and the Kingdom of Naples. As for the Prebends or Canonries, when a Biſhop is Cardinal, they are all in his Gift, of which Toledo is an Inſtance: And when the Biſhopricks were formerly the King's Demeſnes, i. e. in that part of Spain gain'd from the Moors, as Sevil, Grenada, &c. or where the Crown is Founder of the Biſhopricks, there he makes all the Canons; but in all other Biſhopricks, the common Cuſtom of Spain is, that out of the Twelve Months of the Year, the Pope has Four to make theſe Dignitaries in; and the Biſhop and Chapter have the other Eight, in which they collate by Turns: Theſe Canonries are generally very well endow'd. Thoſe of Toledo, which are Forty, being each of 'em worth 3000 Ducats per Annum; when a Biſhop dies, during the Vacancy, the Chapter makes thoſe Canons which belong to the Biſhops Diſpoſal, and not the King's, as the Cuſtom is in France: The Regale likewiſe does not belong to the King, but the Pope; and therefore the Nuntio's and Legates have much more Power in Spain than in France: And here we may obſerve, that the Nomination to Biſhopricks has been in the Crown but ſince the Year 1523, Pope Adrian the Sixth, who had been Præceptor to Charles the Fifth, then giving that Privilege to the Emperor. As to the Meeting of the Eſtates, call'd Cortes, in Spain, the Cuſtom is ſomewhat alter'd from what it was anciently; for in Old time there was a general Meeting of the Eſtates in Aſſemblies, call'd Councils, where not only the Biſhops and Abbots, but likewiſe the King and all the Secular great Men of the Kingdom were preſent: Here all Diſputes relating to the Miſmanagement of Officers of State, and other Perſons in the Adminiſtration, were decided: And here oftentimes their Kings were elected, as Siſebut for Example, was choſen King there after the Death of Gondemar, Anno 612. And in the Fourth Council of Toledo it was decreed, that no Perſon ſhould be own'd as King of Spain, unleſs choſen and confirm'd by the Prelates, who had then a very great Authority in Spain; but ſince the Year 1509, there's nothing of theſe mix'd Councils remaining, but that at preſent call'd the Cortes, ſummon'd by the King of Spain, to take an Oath of Allegiance to the Prince his Son, by which they acknowledge him Prince of Auſtria, and Heir apparent to the Crown: And here 'tis not improper to take Notice, that in theſe Aſſemblies, which are generally held in a Church (poſſibly in Conformity to the Ancient Councils) the King is ſeated on the Epiſtle-ſide of the Choir, and the Biſhops on that of the Goſpel, to ſhow the Authority they formerly had in theſe Councils; whereas upon other Occaſions, as when the King is preſent at publick Maſs, he is always placed on the Goſpel-ſide. At theſe Corteſes likewiſe the Prelates take the Oath before the Grandees, whereas at other ordinary Solemnities the Grandees have the Precedency. The laſt general Meeting of theſe Eſtates or Cortes, which had any ſolemn Appearance, was held at Toledo in 1538, and there 'twas enacted by the Emperor Charles the Fifth, that the Deputies only of 18 great Towns, or Cities ſhould be admitted; the Names of theſe Towns are, Burgos, Leon, Grenada, Sevil, Corduba, Murcia, Jaen, Toledo, Segovia, Salamanca, Avila, Toro, Zamora, Cuenta, Soria, Quadalaxar, Valadolid, and Madrid; theſe two latter have only the Title of Villa's, i. e. Boroughs, and therefore to ſpeak in the Language of the Spaniards; the Cortes conſiſt only of ſixteen Cities and two Boroughs; but lately Galicia is admitted to ſit there, all the Province having the Privilege of one City. *Nu. NEW SPAIN, a large Country in North America, which is contained between the North and the South Seas, and between the Iſthmus or Neck of Land of Panama towards the Eaſt, and Florida to the Weſt. It extends from 16 Degrees of Latitude to 26, and is in breadth 600 Italian Miles, and in length 1200. This Country far ſurpaſſeth the other Parts of America in fruitful Fields and Paſtures. The Air is very temperate though ſituated wholly in the Torrid Zone, by reaſon of the frequent Showers which fall in June, July, and Auguſt, which are their hotteſt Months; and alſo becauſe of the Sea-breezes. It abounds with Mines of Silver, Braſs and Iron, but thoſe of Gold are more ſcarce, and has great Plenty of Coconuts, Cocheneel, all ſorts of Fruits, Cattel and Fowl: But the Grapes do not kindly ripen here, and conſequently afford no good Wine, becauſe the Months of July and Auguſt are commonly too rainy for that Purpoſe. Their Seed-time is in April or May in the hilly and upland Countries, and their Harveſt in October; but in the low and moiſt Grounds they ſow in October, and reap in May. This Kingdom had Kings of its own from the Year 1322 to 1520, about two Years before which time, Fernandez Cortez a Spaniard, with 11 Ships, and 550 Men, took Poſſeſſion of this Country for Charles V. with which Forces he ſacked the Town of Pontonchon, and defeated with his Horſe and Cannon 40000 naked Indians, who came to revenge this Injury, and in the Year 1531 he took the City Mexico the 13th of Auguſt. All this Country is divided by the Spaniards into three Juriſdictions or Audiences, as they call them, viz. that of Mexico, Guadalajara or New Galicia, and Guatimala; the firſt contains the Provinces of Mexico and Mechoacan upon the South Sea, Panuco and Jucatan upon the Gulph of Mexico, Los Angelos, Guaxaca, and Tabaſco upon the South and North Sea; that of Guadalajara compriſeth alſo Seven Provinces, Guadalajara, Cinaloa, Zacatecas, New Biſcay, Culiacan, Chiametla and Xaliſco. The Juriſdiction of Guatimala contains Eight Provinces, Guatimala and Soconuſco upon the South Sea, Chiapa on the South of Tabaſco, Vera Paz and Honduras on the Sea of Mexico, Nicaragua, Coſta Rica and Veragua upon either Seas. All which Provinces are extremely fertile. Acoſta, Lib. 7. Oviedo, Lib. 17. Texeiras, Herrera, Linſchot.

SPALATRO, Salona nova, Spalatum, & Palatium Diocletiani, a City of Dalmatia, very ſtrong, rich and populous, and an Archbiſhop's See. Its Name ſeems to have been a Corruption of Palatium, becauſe it was in former times the Palace of Diocleſian, who was born at Salona, about a League from Spalatro. This City is well fortified, and about a Muſket-ſhot from the Eaſt Gate there is a Fort built upon an high Ground, which commands the City. The Venetians have but a ſmall Gariſon here, as truſting in their Fort of Cliſſa, there being no Paſſage from Turkey to this City, but under the Cannon of that Place. The Cathedral of this City was of old a Temple that ſtood in the midſt of Diocleſian's Palace. Since this Temple was changed into a Church, they have broken through the Wall to make a Quire to it, and made ſeveral Windows in it; for before it received Light only by the Gate or Door, according to the Cuſtom of the Heathens, who commonly made their Temples all dark, to render their Myſteries the more venerable, by the borrow'd Light of many Torches and Lamps. The Walls of Diocleſian's Palace, which contain the two Thirds of the City, are in a manner whole and entire, and make an exact Square, with a Gate in the midſt of each Side. Under the Arch of the Gates the Stones are mortis'd into one another, by which means thoſe that built them thought to make their Arch or Vault more laſting. The Country is very fruitful, and all Proviſions very cheap; Partridges there are ſold for 5 d. a Piece, and a Hare at the ſame Price: As for Butchers Meat it goes at a Penny per Pound. J. Spon. Italian Voyage.

SPALDING, a Market-Town in the Diviſion of Holland in Lincolnſhire, and Hundred of Ellow, upon the Weland, well built, and having a good Trade, though not far from the Waſhes. It has ſeveral Veſſels and Barges belonging to it, and is 98 Miles from London.

SPANDABASEA, a Magus or Philoſopher of Perſia, who govern'd the Kingdom during Cambyſes his Expedition into Egypt, and perſuaded him to murther his Brother Smerdis: He was ſo very like Smerdis, that Cyrus had ordered his Ears to be cut off, to diſtinguiſh him from his Son: Wherefore after that he had found out a Way to hide that Defect, he had the Boldneſs to perſonate the ſaid Smerdis; but his Impoſture was ſoon after detected. See Smerdis.

SPANDOW, Spandava, a City in the Marquiſate of Brandenburg, upon the River Havel, where it receives the Sperche, two Miles beneath Berlin to the Weſt, and about ſix from Brandenburg to the Eaſt, well fortified, yet taken by Guſtavus Adolphus in 1631.

SPANHEMIUS (Frederick) Divinity Profeſſor at Leiden, was a Perſon of great Reputation: He was born at Amberg in the upper Palatinate, January, 1600, and carefully educated by his Father, who was not only a Scholar, but a conſiderable Courtier in the Elector Palatine's Palace: After having ſtudied ſometime in the College of Amberg, he was ſent to the Univerſity of Heidleburg, where he made ſuch a Progreſs in Languages and Philoſophy, that great Things were expected from him. He went home to his Father in 1619, and ſoon after was ſent to Geneva to ſtudy Divinity: Afterwards his Father's Circumſtances growing ſomewhat ſtrait by the Diſturbances in the Palatinate, he lived three Years in the Governour of Ambrun's Family as Tutor to his Children. He travell'd into England in 1625, where after four Months Stay, he went to Paris, and from thence return'd to Geneva, where he ſtood for the Place of Philoſophy Profeſſor, and carried it: Not long after he went into Orders, and in 1631 was made Divinity Profeſſor; and, acquitting himſelf like a Perſon of Parts and Learning in all his Promotions; his Reputation run ſo high, that ſeveral Univerſities courted him to accept of the Chair, particularly he was invited to this Honour by the Univerſity of Leiden, which Invitation he comply'd with. The Town of Geneva regretted the parting with him extremely: Upon his going from thence, he commenced Doctor in Divinity at Bazil to conform to the Cuſtoms of Holland; for neither at Geneva, nor in the Univerſities of the Reform'd in France, Divinity Profeſſors take the Degree of Doctor. He was in the Chair at Geneva when the Jubilee or Annus Secularis of the Reformation was kept, and made a very handſome Harangue upon the Occaſion. He came to Leiden in 1642, and performed rather above Expectation than otherwiſe; but he lived no longer than till May, 1649, having, in all Probability, ſhortened his Life by his exceſſive Studies: His Lectures and other Academical Exerciſes; his Preaching; the Books that he wrote, together with the Avocations of Viſits and Domeſtick Buſineſs, did not hinder him from keeping up a large and learned Correſpondence by Letters. He was much eſteem'd at the Queen of Bohemia and the Prince of Orange's Courts; and Queen Chriſtina of Sweden did him the Honour to write to him, to acquaint him how much ſhe eſteem'd his Perſon and his Writings: He left ſeven Children behind him, the two eldeſt of which are very eminent; the firſt of them, Ezekiel, is extraordinarily ſkill'd in Medals, as appears by his Treatiſe de Preſtantia & Uſu Numiſmatum; indeed he is accompliſh'd in all ſort of Learning; and beſides, by the ſeveral Embaſſies he has performed, he has acquired the Reputation of a great States-man. The ſecond Son Frederick has been Divinity Profeſſor at Leiden a great while, and is one of the moſt conſiderable Perſons of the Dutch Communion. To return to Frederick the Father, concerning whom we may add, that he was ſomething rigid in his Opinions, and neither ſpared Enemies nor Friends when he thought them in the Wrong. He wrote Soldat Swedois. Mercure Suiſſe. Dubia Evangelica, in three Parts. Chamierus Contractus. Exercitationes de Gratia Univerſali, in three Volumes, in Octavo. Epiſt. ad Cottierium de Conciliatione Gratiæ Univerſalis. Epiſt. ad Buchananum de Controverſiis Anglicanis; & Vindiciæ de Gratia Univerſali. Several Orations which are very well written, particularly his Funeral Harangue upon the Death of Henry Frederick, Prince of Orange, &c. Balzac. Let. 19. Bayle Diction. Hiſtor.

SPANUCHIO, a Gentleman of Siena, who had an admirable way of writing very ſmall: He writ the Beginning of the Goſpel of St. John, without any Abbreviations, upon Velom, in a Space that was no bigger than the Nail of ones Little-Finger, and yet all the Characters were ſo well ſhap'd, as to equalize the Writing of the beſt Pen-men. Such likewiſe were the Writings and Strokes of an Engliſh Painter called Oeillard, who made the like Works with his Pencil, which is ſtill more wonderful, for one cannot write ſo ſmall with a Pencil as with a Pen. Many like Wonders have been ſeen in this Age, as Coaches of Glaſs with four Wheels, drawn by three Horſes, with the Coach-man laſhing his Whip in the Air, and all this covered with the Wing of a Fly. A Play at Nine-Pins, with the Bowl, in a Box with a Cover to it, all of Ivory, exceeding well wrought, which altogether did not weigh three Grains. M. Colomies averrs, that he hath ſeen a Goldſmith at Moulins, born at Amſterdam in Holland, who had faſtened a living Flee to a Golden Chain of fifty Links, which did not weigh above three Grains. Theſe Prodigies of Humane Induſtry have alſo appear'd amongſt the Ancients, witneſs Homer's Iliads contain'd in a Nut-Shell; a Chariot of Ivory, which a Fly could cover with her Wings, with a Ship of the ſame Matter and Bigneſs made by the famous Myrmecides. It is but an Age ago ſince an Italian Fryar compriz'd the Apoſtles Creed, and the Beginning of the Goſpel of St. John, in the Space of a ſmall Farthing; and an Italian Prieſt made a Repreſentation in Box of all the Particulars of the Paſſion of Chriſt, which might be ſhut up in the Shell of a Nut; to which we may add, a Coach made of Wood of the Bigneſs of a Grain of Wheat, in which was a Man and Woman, a Coach-man, and Oxen to draw it, beſides many other like Works preſented to the Emperor Charles V. Francis I. of France, and Philip II. of Spain. Sirlet de Antiq. Calabr. Colomies in Cimeliis.

SPARTACUS, a Thracian, the Captain of the Rebelling Slaves that made War with the Romans. He was a Handicrafts Man, and having liſted himſelf a Soldier, deſerted, and became a Robber on the High-ways, where being taken and made a Slave, he was put to ſerve for a Gladiator in the publick Shows; where he made a Shift to perſuade ſeventy of his Companions to endeavour the recovering of their Liberty, which they did by breaking down the Gates of the Place where they were kept at Capua, about the Year of Rome 681. Having taken up Arms, they made themſelves Maſters of the Country, and defeated the Prætors Vatinius and Clodius Glaber; but afterwards were overthrown by Arejus and Craſſus, Prætors, and by Pompey the Great. Plutarch in Pomp. & Craſſ. Titus Liv. Florus.

SPARTIANUS (Ælius) a Latin Hiſtorian, who liv'd in the time of Diocleſian to whom he didicated the Life of Adrian, as alſo of Ælius Verus, Didius Julianus, Severus and Peſcennius Niger. We have alſo the Life of Caracalla of his Writing. He mentions alſo ſome others whoſe Lives he had a Deſign to tranſmit to Poſterity, which are not come to our Hands. Voſſius de Hiſt. Latin.

SPAZZARINI (Dominicus Joannes) born at Padua, hath made himſelf famous by the Hiſtory of Venice, which he hath writ in a Stile reſembling that of Saluſtius. He died in 1519, at the Age of 90.

SPEED (John) born at Farrington in Cheſhire, was bred to an Handicraft, and as generally ſuppoſed a Taylor; but Sir Fulk Grevil, a great Patron of Learning, perceiving his Soul too large for his Occupation, put him in a Condition to follow his Studies. This is he who deſign'd the Mapps and compoſed the Hiſtory of England, aſſiſted by Sir Robert Cotton, Mr. Cambden, Mr. Barham, and others: He alſo compoſed the Scripture Genealogies, formerly bound up with the Bibles as conducing to the underſtanding of Scripture-Hiſtory, having a Patent for the ſame from King James, which was very beneficial to him and his until it came to be quite laid aſide. He died at London in 1629, and was buried in St. Giles Cripplegate, as was alſo the fam'd Mr. Fox, his Brother for Induſtry.

SPELMAN (Sir Henry) was born in the XVI Century at Congham, in Norfolk, near Lynn, deſcended from an ancient Family of that Name, who, about Henry III. his Time, were ſeated in Hamſhire, but afterwards remov'd into Suffolk, and from thence into Norfolk about 200 Years ſince. He was firſt bred in Trinity-College in Cambrige, and afterwards at Lincolns-Inn, from whence, after three Years Continuance, he retir'd into Norfolk, where he was High Sheriff, and afterwards appointed one of the Commiſſioners to enquire into the Oppreſſion of exacting unreaſonable Fees in all the Courts and Offices of England as well Eccleſiaſtical as Civil; and having manag'd this Buſineſs with great Integrity and Application, he was Knighted by King James I. who had a particular Eſteem for him: He was a great Antiquary, and had a thorough Underſtanding of the Laws and Cuſtoms of the Kingdom. His firſt Volume of the Brittiſh and Saxon Councils was publiſh'd by himſelf, but the ſecond, being printed after his Death, did not appear with the ſame Advantage. His Book, De non Temerandis Eccleſiis, in which there are ſeveral Inſtances of God's Judgments upon Sacrilege, made ſuch an Impreſſion upon ſeveral Gentlemen, that they reſtored the Impropriations they were poſſeſs'd of to the Church: To conclude with him, he was a Perſon of great Wiſdom and Experience in publick Affairs, and very eminent for his Learning and Piety. His Works are, Two Volumes of Councils, beginning at the Converſion of Britain to Chriſtianity, and carried on to the Year 1530. His Gloſſarium Archaialogicum. The Larger Work of Tythes. Aſpilogia, publiſh'd by Sir Edward Biſh. De Sepultura, or, A Diſcourſe concerning the Fees for Burials. The Hiſtory and Fate of Sacrilege diſcovered by Examples of Scripture, of Heathens and of Chriſtians, from the Beginning of the World to this Day, finiſhed in 1632: In this Book he treats of the Diſſolution of Abbeys in England, mentioning the King's expreſs Promiſe to employ the Lands to the Advancement of Learning, Religion, and the Relief of the Poor, with the remarkable Calamities that purſued the King, his Poſterity, his principal Agents in that Affair, the new Owners of the Lands, and the Lords who promoted and paſſed the Diſſolution Act. Reliquiæ Spelmannianæ relating to the Laws and Antiquities of England. Henry Spelman likewiſe drew up a Scheme of the Abbreviations, and ſuch other obſolete Forms of Writing as occur in our old Manuſcripts: This Book continues ſtill unprinted in the Bodleyan Library and elſewhere. He died at London, and was buried in Weſtminſter Abbey in 1641. His eldeſt Son Sir John Spelman was a Gentleman of great Hopes and Improvement: He was Knighted by King Charles I. and after the breaking out of the Civil Wars ordered to attend His Majeſty at Oxford, where he wrote ſeveral Papers in Vindication of the Court. He died in 1643, having three Years before publiſh'd the Saxon Pſalter from an ancient Manuſcript of Sir Henry's; he alſo wrote the Life of King Alfred in Engliſh, which was afterwards tranſlated into Latin, and publiſh'd in 1678. Clement Spelman, youngeſt Son to Sir Henry, was a Bariſter, and upon the Reſtauration made Puiſny Baron of the Exchequer. He died in 1679, having publiſhed ſome Pieces relating to the Government, and a large Preface to his Father's Book, De non Temerandis Eccleſiis. Life of Sir Henry Spelman prefix'd to his Reliquiæ, &c.

SPENCER (Edmund) born in London, was brought up at Pembroke Hall in Cambrige, where he became very learned, but eſpecially noted for his Engliſh Poetry and Imitation of Chaucer. It's ſaid of him, that having preſented his Poems to Queen Elizabeth, ſhe was ſo well pleaſed with them, that ſhe order'd the Lord Cecil, her Treaſurer, to give him a hundred Pounds; which he thinking too much, ſhe ſaid, Give him what is Reaſon; but my Lord being buſie, forgot Spencer's Reward: Whereupon he preſented this Petition in a ſmall Piece of Paper to the Queen.

I was promis'd on a Time
To have Reaſon for my Rhime:
From that Time unto this Seaſon,
I receiv'd nor Rhime nor Reaſon.

Whereupon the Queen check'd the Treaſurer, and ordered the hundred Pounds immediately. He was afterwards Secretary to the Lord Grey, when Lord Deputy of Ireland, where, though his Place was gainful, he got no Eſtate. The moſt fam'd of his Works is the Fairy Queen, a Piece of ſuch an ingenious Compoſure, that it is ſtill in great Eſteem. At his Return from Ireland he was robb'd of the little he had, and falling into Want it broke his Heart, ſo that he died An. 1598, and was honourably interr'd at the Charges of Robert, Earl of Eſſex, near Chaucer. His Epitaph are theſe two Lines,

Anglica te vivo vixit plauſitque Poeſis,
Nunc moritura timet te moriente mori.
Fuller.

SPENCERS (Hugh) Father and Son, great Favourites in the Reign of Edward II. The Father was created Earl of Wincheſter, and the Son was made Lord Chamberlain ſucceeding to the Intereſt and Office of Pierce Gaveſtone. The King's extraordinary Inclination to theſe Spencers, and their Miſmanagement of their Advantage at Court, made the Earls of Hereford and Lancaſter, with ſeveral other Barons, enter into an Aſſociation, by which they ſwore to live and die with each other; the Pretence of their taking Arms being to maintain the Laws and Cuſtoms of the Kingdom, and procure the Baniſhment of the Spencers, whom they complain'd of as the great Oppreſſors of the State, miſleading the King to Male-Adminiſtration, and diſpoſing of all Offices at Court according to their own Fancy, in an Arbitrary Manner. Theſe remonſtrating Lords carried their Demands very high, and by Force of Arms obliged the King to baniſh the Spencers. But this Compliance being forced, the King ſoon after levy'd an Army, and ſuppreſſed the Rebellious Barons, ſome of which were executed: However, afterwards a Miſ-underſtanding happen'd between the King and the Queen, ſhe was proclaim'd an Enemy to the Kingdom, being at that time in France; upon which, ſhe having procured ſome Forces from the Earl of Hainault, embark'd for England, and being joyn'd with ſeveral of the Barons, procur'd too ſtrong for the King: Being thus ſuperior, ſhe marches from Gloceſter to Briſtol, of which Spencer the Father, Earl of Wincheſter, was Governour, and having taken the Caſtle by Storm, ſhe ordered this Earl to be hang'd, drawn and quarter'd without any Form or Legal Tryal, which was executed accordingly; and ſoon after, upon the King's Impriſonment, Spencer the Son now Earl of Gloceſter, was apprehended, and being ſent to the, Queen at Hereford, was drawn upon a Sledge and hang'd in his Coat of Arms on a Gallows fifty Foot high. Daniel Hiſt. of England. Speed, &c.

SPENSER (Sir John) deſcended of the ancient and noble Family of Hodenhall, in the County of Warwick, by Margaret his Wife, Daughter to Robert Catline, Lord Chief Juſtice of the Court of King's-Bench, left Iſſue, Robert, who was advanced to the Dignity of Peer of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Spenſer of Wormleighton, the 21ſt of July, 1 Jac. and ſoon after ſent to the Duke of Wirtenburg with the Enſigns of the noble Order of the Garter. Robert was ſucceeded by William his ſecond Son, who had Iſſue three Sons and ſeven Daughters. Henry, his eldeſt Son, ſucceeding him, was for his Loyalty and good Service raiſed to the Degree of Earl, by the Title of Earl of Sunderland, by King Charles I. in the nineteenth Year of his Reign: And being ſlain upon the twentieth of September the ſame Year at Newbury Fight, left one Son called Robert, and two Daughters, Dorothy married to Sir George Savile of Thornhill, in the County of York, Baronet, afterwards created Viſcount Hallifax, and Penelope, who died unmarried. Robert, now Earl of Sunderland, hath married the Lady Anne, Daughter to George, Earl of Briſtol. Dugdale.

SPERMANNUS (Thomas) whom ſome call Opermannus, an Engliſh Dominican Fryar, who flouriſhed in the Year 1300 under the Reign of Edward I. He was Doctor of Divinity, and hath left divers Works, entituled, Commentaria in totam Geneſin. In Epiſtolam D. Pauli ad Hebræos. In Epiſtolam Canonicam D. Jacobi. Quæſtiones Diſputatæ. Pitseus de illuſtr. Angl. Scriptor.

SPERON, or Sperone, an Italian born at Padua in 1504, where he began to read Philoſophy when he was but 24 Years of Age: He was one of the moſt famous Men of his Age. 'Tis ſaid, that being at Rome, he was aſked by ſome Cardinals, what was the meaning of thoſe Letters engraven upon the Gate of the Pope's Palace MCCCLX, he anſwer'd Multi Cæci Cardinales crearunt Leonem Decimum, becauſe that Pope was too young when they elected him to the Papacy. Sperone died in 1588, being 89 Years of Age. His chief Works are, his Dialogues, his Tragedy, intituled Canace, his Diſcourſes of the Prudence of Princes, &c. in Italian. Thuan. Hiſt. Thomaſin. Elog.

SPERTHIES, a famous Lacedemonian, who, with his Friend Bulis, went to Xerxes's Court, to make a voluntary Satisfaction to that Prince for the Injury he had received by ſome of the Lacedemonians, who had murther'd one of his Heralds, which he had diſpatch'd to Sparta; but Xerxes admiring the generous Undertaking of theſe two Perſons, was ſo far from putting them to Death, that he offered them honourable Terms to ſtay at his Court, but they choſe rather to live in their own Country. Herod. Lib. 7.

SPEUSIPPUS of Athens, Plato's Succeſſor and the Son of his Siſter called Potona: He is tax'd for being too Cholerick, extremely addicted to Pleaſure and very Covetous, which made him take Money of his Scholars. He had a very ſickly and diſeaſed Body, ſo that he was fain to be carried to the Accademy to read there. Diogenes meeting him on a time as they carried him thither, told him, that he could not find in his Heart to ſalute him, becauſe he ſaw him ſo cowardly, as to chuſe to live in ſuch a painful and miſerable Condition; whereupon not long after he kill'd himſelf. He writ ſeveral Commentaries and Dialogues. Diogen. Laertius, Lib 4. Vit. Philoſoph.

SPEY, a great River in the North of Scotland; which riſes in the Hills of Badenach, ſeparates the Countries of Ainy and Boin from Murray-Land, and after a Courſe of about ſixty Scottiſh Miles falls into the German Sea below the chief Reſidence of the Duke of Gordan, called Bogie. This River is noted for the Rapidity of its Stream, and a good Salmon-fiſhing.

SPHILSBY, a Market-Town in Lincolnſhire, in Bullingbrook Hundred. It is 101 Miles from London.

SPHINX, the Name of a Monſter near Thebes; of which the Poet tells us, That Juno being incenſed againſt that City, ſent this Monſter to afflict it, which had the Face and Voice of a Maid, the Body of a Dog, the Paws of a Lion, and the Tail of a Dragon, and was uſed to propoſe Riddles to thoſe it met with, devouring them that could not unriddle them. And foraſmuch as this was a great Calamity to the Country, they went to conſult the Oracle about it, who anſwered, That they ſhould not be delivered from that Deſtruction till ſome Body did interpret the Monſter's Riddle, which was this, What Creature it was that had four Feet in the Morning, two at Noon, and three towards the Evening. The Solution of which Riddle was found out by Oedipus, who declared that Man was the Creature, which crawl'd on all four before it could go, being grown walk'd on two, and in his Old Age had need of the third Foot, a Stick or Staff to ſupport its Steps: At which the Monſter was ſo enraged, that it daſh'd out its Brains againſt a Rock. This is the Account the Poets give us of this Monſter, but without doubt this Story was not invented at Random, but to be the Veil and Conveyance of ſome Myſtery hid under it. One of theſe Sphinxes is ſtill to be ſeen near to the Pyramids of Egypt, about four Miles from Cairo towards the Weſt, near the River Nilus: This Figure is of a vaſt Bigneſs; and 'tis queſtion'd whether this monſtrous Repreſentation were cut out of a Rock which Nature had made there, or whether it was brought thither from elſewhere, which ſeems the moſt probable, becauſe the Country thereabouts is a ſandy Ground: For to clear this Doubt, ſome have endeavour'd to dig to the Bottom of it, but could never do it, becauſe it is ſo deep ſunk in the Sand, being covered with it up to the Shoulders. It is all of one Piece, and the Matter of it is very hard: The Proportions of the Face are very well obſerved. Pliny ſpeaks of it in theſe Terms, Before the Pyramids is a Sphinx, which is yet more wonderful, and is as it were the Country Deity of the Inhabitants. 'Tis ſuppoſed that King Amaſis is interr'd under it, and that it hath been brought hither from ſome other Place: It is cut out of one poliſh'd Stone. The Head of this Monſter is 12 Foot in compaſs, 43 in length, and in depth from the top of the Head to the Belly 62 Foot. Hiſtorians relate abundance of Fables of this Image, and amongſt the reſt, that it uttered Oracles; but this was only a Trick of their Heathen Prieſts, who had made a Paſſage under Ground through the Belly of this Coloſs, which terminated at the Head of it, by which they entered to give their equivocal Anſwers to thoſe that came to conſult this Monſter; and becauſe the Hollowneſs of this Figure did extremely augment the Voice, the credulous Heathens perſuaded themſelves that they heard the Voice of ſome Deity. Pliny tells us, there were a great Number of theſe Sphinxes placed in thoſe Parts that were commonly overflown by the River Nile, to diſcern the Encreaſe of the Waters by. The Figure of Sphinx was repreſented by the Egyptians two ſeveral Ways; either in the Form of a Monſter which had the Body of a Lion and the Face of a Virgin; or in that of a Lion couchant upon a Bed or Seat of Juſtice. The firſt of theſe was to ſignifie the Encreaſe of the River Nile, and the ſecond repreſented Momphta, an Egyptian Deity, which preſided over the Waters, and was the Director of the Overflowings of Nile: So that theſe Figures ſignified nothing elſe but the Overflowings of that River, which are of ſo great Uſe, or rather of abſolute Neceſſity to the Welfare of that Country. Thus becauſe this Inundation happened in the Months of July and Auguſt, when the Sun paſſeth through the Heavenly Signs of the Lion and Virgin, they intimated this by a Figure compoſed of a Virgin's Head and the Body of a Lion. Some conceive that this Practice of the Egyptians was the Riſe of the Cuſtom we have to make Lions Heads at the End of Water-ſpouts and Cocks. The Ancients alſo were uſed to ſet the Figure of a Sphinx at the Entrance of their Temples, to import that the Knowledge of Divine Things is very ſecret, myſtical and ænigmatical. Dapper. Deſcription of Africa.

SPIFAME (James Paul) a French Gentleman of an ancient Family, Biſhop of Nevers, who, upon the breaking out of the Civil Wars in France, retired to Geneva, and turn'd a Proteſtant in the Year 1559, and not long after Calvin ſent him to Orleans to the Prince of Conde, who knowing his Ability, ſent him to the Diet at Francfort, there to juſtifie the Proteſtants, who had taken up Arms in their own Defence, and to demand Aſſiſtance from the Emperor Ferdinand and the Princes of the Empire, though without Succeſs. But being return'd to Geneva, he was accuſed of having had a Deſign to betray the Proteſtants, and to be reconciled to the Church of Rome, in Conſideration of a Biſhoprick promiſed to him: Upon this account they were reſolved to diſpatch him, and ſoon after preferred an Indictment againſt him for making a falſe Contract and counterfeiting Seals, and was condemned to have his Head cut off, which was executed accordingly. Spon. Hiſt. de Gen. Lib. 3. La Popeliniere, Lib. 8.

SPINA (Alexander) a Dominician of the Convent of St. Catharine of Piſa. In his Time a certain Perſon invented the way of making Spectacles, about the Year 1205, but would not make it publick. Spina, who was a Perſon of wonderful Induſtry and Ingenuity, preſently found out the way to make them; much like the learned Galilæus Galelæi, who having heard that a Fleming had invented the Art of making Teleſcopes, never ceaſed till he had found out the way of i., which he did in 1608, without ever having ſeen thoſe of the Dutch Man. In the Library of the foreſaid Convent, there is kept the Manuſcript of an ancient Chronicle, where the Death of Alexander Spina is ſet down to have happened in 1313, with this Elegy; Quæcunque vidit aut audivit facta, ſcivit & facere. Oculavia ab aliquo primo facta & communicare nolente, ipſe fecit & communicavit. In a Sermon of Father Jordan of Rivalto, of the ſame Order, it's ſaid, that it was not yet twenty Years ſince the Art of making Spectacles was found: Now this Father Jordan was Contemporary with Spina; and indeed before that Time we know of no mention made in any Authors of Spectacles. If the Greeks and Latins had had any Knowledge of the uſe of Spectacles, without doubt they would have made ſome mention of them, eſpecially in their Comick Writings; and Pliny in his Chapter of Inventors, could not have fail'd to have mentioned this Invention. True it is, the Words Faber ocularius is found upon ſome ſepulchral Marbles, but that cannot prove any thing to this Purpoſe: However, if the Ancients had the uſe of Spectacles, that Knowledge was afterwards loſt, and renewed again in the XIII Century, as appears from what hath been ſaid. One Gordon, a Phyſician and Profeſſor in that Faculty at Montpelier, pretended to refine upon Spina's Thought; for in a Book of his entituled Lilium Medicinæ, he mentions a Noſtrum of his own, called a Collirium or Eye-Salve, which he affirms would fortifie the Sight to that degree, that by the Uſe of it an old Man might read without Spectacles. *Spon. SPINELLO, an Italian Painter, born at Arezzo in Tuſcany, was famous towards the latter end of the XIV Century. 'Tis related of him, that being above ſeventy Years of Age, he drew a Picture in the City of Arezzo, repreſenting how the evil Angels, endeavouring to riſe up in Rebellion againſt God, were caſt headlong into the Abyſs of Hell: Amongſt all the reſt of the Devils he had painted Lucifer in the Form of a monſtrous Beaſt, and took great care to make it extremely frightful and horrible; ſome time after, as he was aſleep, he thought he ſaw the Devil in the hideous Figure he had painted him, who demanded of him, where ever he had ſeen him ſo deformed, and why he had repreſented him in ſo hideous a manner; at the Fright of which he immediately awaked, with a ſtrange Trembling over all his Body, the Horror which had ſeiz'd him being ſo great, that he had like to have died of it: And from that time he always retain'd a wild frighted Look, and a weak Head, and liv'd not long after. Felibien Entretiens ſur les vies des Peintres.

SPINENSIS, a Heathen Deity, to whom they aſcrib'd the Care of the rooting up of Thorns and Briars. Auguſt. de Civit. Dei.

SPINOLA, a Marquiſate of Genoa, giving Name to an Italian Family which hath produced divers gallant Men, particularly in the Beginning of this Century. Don Frederick, one of them, being Admiral to Philip II. King of Spain, was encountered with ſix of his Gallies on the Channel near Dover by three Engliſh and Dutch Ships commanded by Sir Robert Manſel and John Adrianſon, Capt. Two of the Gallies were ſunk upon the Coaſt of Flanders, and the other four run aſhore, Spinola himſelf narrowly eſcaping to Dunkirk with about 200000 Ducats; and before this Encounter he loſt two on the Coaſt of Portugal. About 180 Gally-ſlaves and others were fiſh'd up by the Hollanders, and ſet at Liberty after this Defeat, which hapned Sept. 23. 1602. This ſame Spinola, May 27. 1603. ſail'd from Sluce with eight Gallies and four Frigats well appointed with Slaves and Mariners, beſides 2500 Muſketiers, to attack Prince Maurice of Naſſaw's Ships and Gallies near Oſtend, commanded by the Vice-Admiral Joſ. de Moor; and having both Wind and Tide, and being much ſuperior in Strength, they attack'd the Dutch with much Fury, who defended themſelves with no leſs Gallantry; ſo that after a great Slaughter, Admiral Spinola being kill'd in the Fight, the Spaniard retired, and though four of their Gallies had attack'd one of the Dutch, called the Black Gally, yet they could not carry her off. The Spaniards loſt none of their Gallies, but their General with 800 Men was killed, beſides a great Number wounded; and the Dutch loſt about ſixty, having as many wounded. Grimſton's Hiſt. Netherlands.

SPINOLA (Ambroſio Marqueſs) Brother to this Ferdinand, was General to the Archduke's Army in the Netherlands in 1603. In the Siege of Oſtend he diſplaced 600 Commiſſion Officers for reckoning too high in their Accounts to the King.

June 5. 1604, he gave a general Aſſault to Oſtend, which continued eight Hours, and was thrice renewed; but he was repulſed with eight hundred Men killed, and five hundred wounded. On the 28th of July, 1604. Spinola was detach'd from Oſtend by the Archduke to relieve Sluce, which he attempted with great Courage and Conduct, and endeavoured to force Prince Maurice's Camp; the Beſieged were not wanting neither to countenance him by their Sallies, but all to no purpoſe. Spinola attack'd the Trenches, and fought deſperately, but was oblig'd to retire with conſiderable Loſs: So that perceiving all his Endeavours to be fruitleſs, he retired in haſte on the 16th of Auguſt without Beat of Drum. The Prince purſued him, and kill'd 300 of his Men. However, Spinola did not flee, but watch'd for an Opportunity ſtill to put Relief into the Town, and attack a ſquare Fort before which he loſt 400 Men: But his Army decreaſing daily, he was obliged to retire, and Sluce yielding to the Prince. After this, Spinola returned to the Siege of Oſtend, and by Mines, &c. made his Approaches to Sandhill, which, after great Reſiſtance, he took by the German Regiments, to whom he gave 40000 Guldens to drink out of his own Bounty. The Loſs of the Place and the Slaughter of their Men, brought the Beſieged to treat with Spinola, who granted them the moſt honourable Terms that could be deſired: And ſo, after three Years and eleven Weeks Siege, they ſurrendred Sept. 22. 1604, the Town being reduced to a Heap of Rubbiſh, and the Spaniards having loſt 72124 People before it. The taking of this Town raiſed Spinola's Reputation; ſo that he was ſent to Spain to give an Account of his Actions, and receive a Reward: Whereupon he was created Duke of St. Severino, Lieutenant General of the Netherlands, had the Earldom of Volgira in Milan, 12000 Crowns per An. for his Table, and was made a Grandee of Spain. After this he return'd into Flanders, where he prevented Prince Maurice's Invading the Spaniſh Territories; and in 1605 took Oldenzeel and Lingen from the Prince. In October that ſame Year, the Prince, chiefly by the Aſſiſtance of the Engliſh and Scots, defeated a Body of Spinola's Men near Mulhem, and killed 500 of them, with Theodore Trivulcio, General of the Light-Horſe. Aug. 3. 1606, Spinola beſieged Groll, and in fourteen Days took it by Compoſition. On the 28th he beſieged Rhineberg, and Colonel Edmonds, a valiant Scottiſh Commander who defended the Town, being ſlain, took the ſame by Compoſition, October 2. 1606, but loſt abundance of Men before it. He in a little time after obliged Prince Maurice to raiſe the Siege of Groll. In Febr. 1608 Spinola was ſent to the Hague to treat with the States, where his Magnificence was extraordinary, inſomuch that it was thought no good Policy of the States to ſuffer an Enemy to treat all Comers with ſuch Splendor. In 1622 Spinola beſieged Berghen, and after many Repulſes, he was forced to burn his Camp and retire, leaving a great deal of Baggage and Arms behind him; which did ſo much impair his Authority with the unthinking Vulgar, that they reproached him every where, and the Prieſts did preach ſeditiouſly againſt him: So that the King of Spain was oblig'd to forbid the ſame under ſevere Penalties, ſaying, that he would himſelf participate in the point of Honour or Diſhonour with the Marqueſs de Spinola. In 1623 he ſent an Army who took Schencken-Schans from the States. In 1624 he laid Seige to Breda with 39600 Men, after much Debate and Conſultation, his Entrenchments being 30600 Paces in compaſs; and moſt of the great Captains of Europe came to ſee the Siege and Defence, as Uladiſlaus, Prince of Poland, &c. and abundance of French Nobles, eight of whom endeavouring to eſcape through the Camp of the Spaniards to that of Prince Maurice, were taken and courteouſly treated by Spinola, who gave them the Choice of returning to Breda or going home to France, and they choſe the firſt. Many Skirmiſhes happened betwixt the Garriſon and the Beſieged, and Prince Maurice left nothing unattempted for their Relief; but Spinola by his extraordinary Conduct prevented him in every thing. The Town was alſo viſited with Plague and Famine. Prince Maurice's Letters being intercepted, Spinola underſtood the vaſt Preparations for raiſing the Siege, and in the Rigour of Winter raiſed a ſtrong Trench of 52000 Paces in circuit to defend his Camp. The French King dealt alſo deceitfully as to the ſuffering of the Troops which were levy'd in England to land in his Dominions, which, together with the want of Proviſion, did mightily diſcourage the Beſieged; however, they were perſuaded by their Miniſters and Officers to hold out to the laſt Extremity. Spinola in the mean time ſuborn'd a cunning Boor to go to the Walls of Breda loaden with Proviſions, and pretend that he had found a Paſſage through the Enemies Camp by which he would obtain Credit to carry Letters to Prince Maurice, which he adviſed him to be ſhy of receiving at firſt, and promiſed him a conſiderable Reward if he effected it. The cunning Fellow having done according to Directions, was very welcome at Breda; and receiving Letters from Juſtin of Naſſaw, the Governour, to his Brother Prince Maurice, he brought them to Spinola, who thereby underſtood the Condition of the Town; and having ſeal'd up the Letter, ſent him with the ſame to the Prince, who not doubting any thing becauſe of his receiving a Letter in his Brother's Hand, writ back to him with very much Freedom, by which means Spinola learn'd alſo the Condition of Affairs abroad; and having underſtood the want of Proviſions in the Town, he wrote to the Governour, promiſing honourable Terms if he would ſurrender; to which he return'd a reſolute and magnanimous Denial. A little after the States found means to burn one of Spinola's Magazines, which did him no little Damage. In March, 1625, King James I. of Great Britain died, and a little after Prince Maurice, which gave Spinola great Advantage. Prince Henry of Naſſaw, his Brother, ſucceeded, and arriving ſome Days after in the Camp, the Beſieged play'd more furiouſly than formerly upon Spinola's Quarter, inſomuch that his Bed-Chamber was torn to Pieces, but he was abſent himſelf; and four Days after, as he rode about the City, a Cannon-Bullet broke off his Bridle cloſe under the Horſe's Mouth. After this he puſh'd on the Siege with great Vigour and incredible Diligence, neither allowing himſelf neceſſary Food nor Sleep, yet was always of a chearful and affable Temper, and when awak'd on any Alarm, ſhew'd a wonderful Preſence of Mind; all ſorts of Weather were alike to him, and he would often lodge in a common Sentinel's Hut. He intercepted Prince Henry's Letters and a Swallow ſent out by the Beſieged to the Prince's Camp with a Schedule in Characters. On the fifth of May Prince Henry reſolved to try his Fortune, and attack the Enemies in their Trenches; whereof Spinola had Notice, and prepared for it. The Van conſiſted of the Engliſh, led on by General Vere, who perform'd Wonders; but having too much the Diſadvantage of the Ground, they were forced to retire after a gallant Fight, with the Loſs of 200 Men. After this Spinola fortified himſelf ſtronger in his Camp, and made uſe of that ſame cunning Peaſant to underſtand how Affairs were in the Town and the Prince's Camp; by which he found that the Town could not hold out above eleven Days. So that Prince Henry ſeeing it impoſſible to force Spinola's Camp, retired with his Forces; whereupon Spinola ſignified the ſame to the Governour, and withal, that he might be convinced that he knew his Secrets, ſent him the Letters which the Peaſant had brought betwixt him and the Prince; whereupon they came to a Treaty, and the Garriſon, having received honourable Conditions, marched out on the fifth of June, 1625, Spinola carrying it with much Civility and Courteſie towards them. The reducing of this Place did much encreaſe Spinola's Fame, the then Pope comparing him to Scipio or Cæſar, and calling Italy happy in bringing forth ſuch a matchleſs Champion into the World. He was afterwards employ'd to to invade the Palatinate, to divert the Arms of the Proteſtants from the Emperor, wherein he had very good Succeſs; but farther my Author hath not. Grimſton's Hiſtory of the Netherlands.

SPINOLA, a Lordſhip in Italy, with the Title of a Marquiſate in the Neighbourhood of Montſerrat, the Dutchy of Milan, and the State of Genoua.

SPINOSA. Some Works of this Author, who lived not long ſince in Holland, have made a great Noiſe in the World, eſpecially his Tractatus Theologico-politicus, printed at Hamburg in 1670. M. Stoup, who knew him in Holland, ſpeaks thus of him: Spinoſa is a Jew born, and hath neither abjured Judaiſm, nor embraced Chriſtianity, being indeed a bad Jew, and no better Chriſtian. In his Tractatus Theologico politicus his principal Aim ſeems to be levelled at the Overthrowing of all Religions, but more eſpecially of the Jewiſh and Chriſtian, and inſtead thereof to introduce Atheiſm, Libertiniſm, and the free Toleration of all Religions. He ſaith, They were all invented for the publick Good, to make Men live honeſtly, and obey the Magiſtrates, and to apply themſelves to Vertue, not for the Hope of any Reward after Death, but for the Excellence of Vertue in it ſelf, and for the Advantages which the Followers of it receive in this Life. He doth not in that Book openly declare his Thoughts concerning the Deity, though he ſufficiently hints them; but in his Diſcourſe with others he openly declares, That God is not a Being endowed with Underſtanding, infinitely perfect and happy, as we take him to be, but that by the Word God, nothing is to be underſtood, but that Vertue of Nature which is diffuſed through all Creatures. M. Stoup adds, That Spinoſa liv'd for ſome time at the Hague, where he was viſited by a great Number of curious and inquiſitive Perſons; that his Followers dare not diſcover themſelves, becauſe his Book overthrows the Foundation of all Religion, and for that it hath been forbid to be ſold, by a publick Edict of the S.General. Huetius in his Book, entituled, Demonſtratio Evangelica, hath refuted what Spinoſa hath writ in his Books concerning the Scriptures and the Pen men of them. Thus much is certain, that he advanceth many ſtrange Paradoxes, as in that he makes the Spirit of Prophecy, of the Prophets of the Old Teſtament, to conſiſt in this, that they had a more ſtrong Imagination than other Men: According to this Principle he ſaith, that ignorant Country People and Women who have been endowed with a ſtrong Imagination, have been Prophets; and concludes that the Diverſity of Prophecies proceeds from the Diverſity of Mens Imaginations and Temperaments; and ſets down many other ridiculous Paradoxes that have no Foundation at all. In a Word, Spinoſa argues according to his Philoſophical Prejudices concerning Matters of Religion, which he had never ſtudied. His wretched Syſtem of Notions follow'd the old Maxime, Nemo repentè turpiſſimus; for he did not fall into Atheiſm all at once: He was very remote from that miſerable Perſuaſion in 1663, when he publiſh'd a Mathematical Demonſtration of Cartes's Principles; for in this Treatiſe he is no leſs Orthodox about the Nature of God than Cartes himſelf: However, 'tis believ'd, his miſunderſtanding Cartes's Philoſophy and drawing wrong Conſequences from it, led him to a more fatal Miſtake. A little before he publiſh'd his Atheiſtical Tractatus Theologico-politicus, he printed a Treatiſe under a counterfeit Title of Lucii Antiſtii Conſtantis de jure Eccleſiaſticorum Liber Singularis, in which he affirms, that all the Pretences of Eccleſiaſticks to Authority and Commiſſion are no better than Impoſture and Treaſon againſt the State; from this Beginning he quickly advanc'd to direct Atheiſm. His Tractatus Theologico-politicus has been anſwered by ſeveral beſides Huetius, viz. by Manſveldius, Batelerius, Cuperus, &c. But, not to inſiſt upon the Performances of theſe Authors, though all of them prove the Abſurdity and Inconſequence of Spinoſa's Principles, Bredenburgius has moſt clearly diſcover'd the dangerous Sentiments of this Author, and fully refuted them: His Book is entituled, Johannis Bredenburgii Enervatio Tractatûs Theologico-politici, una cum Demonſtratione Geometrico Ordine diſpoſita, Naturam non eſſe Deum, cujus effati contrario prædictus Tractatus Unice enititur. Spinoſa's Hypotheſis, in his Opera poſthuma, is the moſt abſurd and plaineſt Contradiction to cleareſt Notions of Human Underſtanding imaginable: For the Purpoſe, he ſuppoſes but one Subſtance in Univerſal Nature; That this Subſtance is furniſhed with an Infinity of Attributes, and amongſt others, with thoſe of Extention and Cogitation: In Conſequence of this Suppoſition, he affirms, That all the Matter of the Univerſe are but Modalities of this Subſtance, Quatenùs extended, and that Human Souls are likewiſe Modifications of this Subſtance, conſidered under the Notion of Cogitation; That God is a neceſſary Being and infinitely Perfect, and the Cauſe of all things that exiſt, but does not differ from the Things made by him: The Folly or rather Stupidity of this Syſtem appears at firſt Sight. If the Reader deſires to ſee it farther expoſed and confuted, he may conſult Monſ. Bayle under the Article Spinoſa. Bayle Diction. Hiſtor. M. Stoup Religion of the Hollanders. M. Simon.

SPINTHARUS, a famous Architect of the City of Corinth; he built the Temple of Apollo at Delphos. Pauſan.

SPIRE, a City of Germany, in the Upper Circle of the Rhine. This great, rich, populous Place, is a Free and Imperial City, but under the Protection of the Elector Palatine, and the Biſhop of it is under the Archbiſhop of Mentz. It ſtands in the middle between Straſburg to the South and Mentz to the North, fifty German Miles from each, and fifteen from Heidelberg to the North-Weſt. It was of old called Nemetum, and in the Year 1082 took the Name of Spire. The Cathedral was built in 1011 by Conrade the Emperor, in which are the Sepulchres of the Emperors Henry IV. and V. Philip, Rudolph I. Adolphus of Naſſaw and Albert I. In a Diet held here in 1526, the Peace or Accommodation of Religion was firſt eſtabliſhed, which when it was endeavour'd to be repeal'd in a ſecond Diet held here in 1529, ſeveral German Princes proteſted againſt the Appeal, and were upon that Account called Proteſtants. The Imperial Chamber was firſt inſtituted at Francfort in 1495 by Maximilian I. and in the Year 1530 removed to this City by Charles V. conſiſts of two Preſidents, whereof the one is a Romaniſt, the other a Proteſtant, and of fifteen Councellors, whereof eight are Romaniſts and ſeven Proteſtants, and the Biſhop as the principal Judge. Dr. Burnet writes, that the Government of the City was all Lutheran, but the Cathedral was in the Hands of the Biſhop a Roman Catholick, and that there were ſeveral Convents of both Sexes, and a Jeſuits College, with the Tombs of many of the Emperors, remarkable for their Meanneſs. The Calviniſts have a Church here, but their Number was not conſiderable. Tho' the Town ſubſiſteth chiefly by the Imperial Chamber, yet there was an endleſs Diſpute between them and the Chamber concerning their Privileges. For the Government of the Town pretended that the Judges of the Chamber, as they were private Men and out of the Court of Judicature, were ſubject to them; and in the Year 1685 they put one of them in Priſon: And on the other hand, the Judges ſaid their Perſons were ſacred. In the laſt War in 1672 between the French and the Empire, this City enjoy'd a Neutrality on the account of this Chamber, but in the Year 1688 was taken and gariſon'd by the French, who have demoliſh'd it ſince. Hereupon the Imperial Chamber was by the Diet, with the Conſent of the Emperor, removed to Weſlar, a City of Haſſia. See Weſlar.

SPIRITU SANTO, a ſmall City which is the Capital of a Præfecture or Government in Braſil, under the Portugueſe. It ſtands ſixty Spaniſh Leagues from the River Januario to the North, and fifty from Porto Seguro to the South.

SPIRITU SANTO, a City of New Spain in North America. Alſo a River which the Portugueſe call Rio de lo Spiritu Santo in Africa, in the Kingdom of Monomotapa, which diſchargeth it ſelf into the Æthiopick Ocean near to Cape St. Nicolas. Cabo de S. Nicolo.

SPIRLINGA, a ſmall Town in Sicily, the only Place unconcern'd in the Maſſacre of the French called the Sicilian Veſpres.

SPITIGNEUS I. was the thirteenth Duke of Bohemia: His Father Borivorius reſign'd the Government of his Dominions to him, and the Beginning of his Reign was very commendable and happy; but the Diſſoluteneſs to which he abandon'd himſelf not long after, made his Father repent that ever he had ſet him upon the Throne, as having, beſides all other Wickedneſs, abjured the Chriſtian Religion, under Pretence of enlarging his Dominions. He deſpiſed the Threats of his Father Borivorius and his Mother Ludmilla, but he died eight Days after by a Providential Vengeance in the City of Prague, expreſſing great Sorrow for his Faults. He was the firſt of the Bohemian Princes that was buried after the Chriſtian manner in the Church of Taynetz, which Ludmilla his Mother had dedicated to the Bleſſed Virgin. Julius Solimanus de Elog. Duc. Reg. & Interreg. Bohemiæ.

SPITIGNEUS II. was the 22d and the laſt Duke of Bohemia: He ſucceeded to his Father Bretiſlas I. he was very cruel and vicious in the Beginning of his Reign. At his firſt entring upon the Government, he baniſhed all the Germans out of his Dominions, without ſo much as excepting his Mother or the Nuns. He annull'd the Ordinances his Father had made, and took Moravia from his Brothers. This tyrannical Way of Government, which was likely to prove the Ruin of this Prince, became an Occaſion of a great Change in him for the better; for Severus, Biſhop of Prague, having oppoſed him in his Deſigns, and St. Vitus having exhorted him to change his Life and Management of Affairs, he was thereupon touch'd with Remorſe, recall'd his former Ordinances, reſtored Moravia to his Brothers, and ſet the 300 Gentlemen he had impriſon'd at Liberty. After this he conſtituted a Sett of Judges, and charged them to determine the Caſes of Widows and Orphans that came before them in three Days time. Having on a time met with a poor Woman at the Gates of Prague, who deſired him to hear her Cauſe, he immediately alighted from his Horſe, and gave her Audience for two Hours together. During the Remainder of his Life he had always ſome that read to him, whilſt he was at Table, the Ordinances of all his Predeceſſors, that had been Governours of Bohemia, that he might from them be the better informed how to govern his People, and to make good Laws. He died after he had reigned ſix Years. Julius Solimanus de Elogiis Ducum, Regum & Interreg. Bohemiæ.

SPITSBERGEN, the Name of a large Country, and a Part, as is ſuppoſed, of the Artick Continent between Nova Zembla to the Eaſt and Greenland to the Weſt, which are nevertheleſs about 300 Miles from it. It was diſcover'd by the Hollanders in 1596, who gave it this Name from a great Number of ſmall Mountains very ſharp-pointed at the top, which appear along this Coaſt. The Engliſh call it New-Land. It extends to 80 deg. of North Latitude. Whether it be an Iſland, or joyn'd to any Continent, is unknown, but it is known to be the moſt Northern Part in our Hemiſphere, and extremely cold. That which is moſt remarkable in this Climate is, that the dead Bodies of Men or Beaſts are not ſubject to Corruption. In Winter the Sun continues under the Horizon four Months together, two Months before the Winter Solſtice, and two Months after. The Spring and Autumn are incommoded with ſuch thick Miſts and Fogs, that the Moon can ſcarcely be diſcern'd through them. In the Summer the Sun is four whole Months above the Horizon, and during that time if it appears very bright and glittering, it is a Sign of Froſt, eſpecially when the Wind is North, and of ſtormy Weather when the Wind is South. During this Seaſon the Country abounds with a ſort of Sea-Fowl like to Ducks, beſides a vaſt Number of Bears and Foxes of a whitiſh Colour, and ſome of them black; their Fleſh is good for Food. There are alſo great Numbers of Rangifers, which live only upon Moſs; they are like our red Deer. There are alſo white Bears, almoſt as big as our Oxen, and live only upon the Fiſh they catch in the Sea. Near the Coaſt of this Country there are abundance of Whales, ſome whereof are 200 Foot long, this being the Place chiefly where the Hollanders fiſh for Whales, in order to which they ſet out from Holland in May, and return in Auguſt or September. Geogr. Blaew. Alſo the Name of an Univerſity in Brandenburg, founded in 1554.

SPOLETO, or Spolete, Spoletium, is a City in the State of the Church in Italy, and the Capital of a Dukedom of the ſame Name. It ſtands in the Province of Umbria or Ombria, on the Deſcent of a Hill, which makes the Street ſomewhat uneven, though very large and fair. It is watered by the River Teſſino, and lies thirteen Miles from Fuligno to the North-Eaſt, 45 from Rome to the North, and 62 from Ancona to the South. It is a Biſhop's See immediately under the Pope, and a City of great Antiquity, as having defended it ſelf very well againſt Hannibal in the ſecond Punick War. It is adorned with many fair Churches; the Cathedral of our Lady is in a manner wholly built of Marble. Here are likewiſe to be ſeen the magnificent Remains of a Theatre, of a Temple, and of a Palace of the Kings of the Goths, and a ſtrong Caſtle for the Security of the Place; ſo that it is ſtill in good Eſteem, and well inhabited, though it has ſuffered conſiderably formerly, eſpecially in 1155, when for denying the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa Entrance, and affronting his Embaſſadors, it was moſt of it raz'd to the Ground by his Order. It has a Stone-Bridge, ſupported by 24 Pillars, that joyns two neighbouring Mountains. This Dutchy of this Name conſiſts of rough and barren Hills and delightful Valleys. Its Places of Note beſides Spoleto, are, Eugubio, Nocera, Aſiſe and Todi. In 740 the Pope was ſtraitly beſieged here by Luitprand, King of Italy, becauſe he would not deliver into his Hands Traſamondus, the rebellious Duke. In 1234 Pope Gregory IX. held a Council here for the Recovery of the Holy Land. Sigonius de Regn. Ital. &c. Ughel. Italia Sacr.

SPON (Carolus) a famous Phyſician. He was born at Lions in 1609, and at twelve Years of Age was ſent to Ulm in Germany, the Birth-place of his Grandfather, to ſtudy at that Univerſity. In 1625 he came to Paris, where he ſtudied Philoſophy, Mathematicks, Aſtronomy and Phyſick, and made a great Advance in them. In 1632 he commenced Doctor of Phyſick at Montpelier, and afterwards became a Fellow of the College of Phyſicians at Lions, where he gain'd a very extraordinary Repute. In 1645 he was made the French King's Phyſician. He was a great Lover of Latin Poetry, and had a great Genius that way. We have his Prognoſticks of Hippocrates put into Heroick Verſe, with the Title of Sibylla Medica, The Lions Diſpenſatory, and other learned Works. He died in Febr. 1684. His Son Jacobus Spon, famous by his Travels, and his Knowledge of Antiquities, was alſo Fellow of the College of Phyſicians at Lions, and a Member of the Academy at Padua, and of that of the Beaux Eſprits, founded at Niſmes by Letters Patent of the French King in 1682. He died in Suiſſerland in 1686, having publiſh'd A Voyage to the Levant. A Treatiſe of Inſcriptions, with Notes upon them. The Hiſtory of Geneva, &c. Nouvelles d'la Republique des Lettres.

SPONDANUS (Henricus) Biſhop of Pamiez in France, a Perſon famous in this Age by his Piety, Learning and Dignity, was born at Maubeon de Soule, a Town of Gaſcony between Navarre and Bearn, the ſixth of Jan. 1568, and Henry of Bourbon, afterwards Henry IV. of France, was his Godfather. In 1600 he accompanied the Cardinal de Sourdis to Rome, where he was ordain'd Prieſt five or ſix Years after. He applied himſelf with great Diligence to the Study of Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, and made an Abridgment of Baronius his Annals, and continued them to the Year 1600, and afterwards to 1640. And to the end there might be nothing wanting to the Perfection of this Work, he endeavour'd to perform the ſame in Reference to the Eccleſiaſtical Annals of the Old Teſtament till Jeſus Chriſt, which is properly an Abridgment of thoſe of Torniellus. He wrote a Book likewiſe De Cæmiterius Sacris. He died at Tholouſe the eighteenth of May, 1643, being the 75th of his Age.

SPANHEIM, a County in the Palatinate of the Rhine, between the Rivers Moſelle and Naw, partly under the Elector Palatine, and partly under the Marqueſs of Baden.

SPORADES, Iſles of the Archipelago towards Aſia, ſo called becauſe they lie ſcattered up and down towards Candia, and are not compaſs'd in round together as the Cyclades. Theſe Iſlands, which were formerly very populous and flouriſhing, have been ruin'd by the Romans, Saracens, and laſt of all by the Turks, to whom they are, in a manner, all of them ſubject at preſent; yet they are ſtill inhabited by ſome Greeks. Magin. in his Geogr.

SPRANGER (Bartholomew) a Painter born at Antwerp: He was the Son of a Merchant of that City, and lived in the XVI Century. After he had attain'd great Skill in his Art, he paſſed the Alpes, where Cardinal Farneſe, being taken with a Piece of his Drawing, made him his Painter, and afterwards recommended him to Pope Pius V. who took him to be his Domeſtick Painter, and gave him a Lodging in his Palace of Belvedere. Some time after the Death of his Maſter, he was called to Vienna by Maximilian II. and after his Death was entertained by Rodolphus his Succeſſor, who was ſo jealous of his Works, that he would not ſuffer him to work for any private Perſons; and to prevent him from doing it, took him along with him in all his Journeys. Afterwards, having ſettled his Court at Prague, he lodg'd him in his own Palace, and at a Feaſt he made, beſtowed upon him a three-double Golden Chain, with a Medal, and ſome time after made him a Gentleman. Goltzius the famous Graver has copied ſome of his Pieces. Spranger at laſt finding himſelf very aged, deſired Leave to retire from Court, and to ſpend the reſt of his Days in Peace in his own Family; and not long after took a Journey to his own Country, and after ſome Stay returned to Prague, where he died of a great Age. Wermander.

SPRETUS (Deſiderius or Didacus) of Ravenna, an Author of the XVI Century: He wrote a Treatiſe of the Greatneſs, Ruin and Rebuilding of this Town, and was Contemporary with Leander Alberti, who mentions him in his Deſc. d'Ital. Pag. 310. Ed. Ven.

SPRODAW, a Town or Dutchy of Glagow in Sileſia, ſituate on the River Sprot, formerly ſubject to a Duke of its own; but their Line was extinguiſh'd in 1395. It ſtands four Miles Weſt of Glogaw. Spener.

SPURINA, a very beautiful Youth, who finding that many Women were enamour'd of him for his Beauty, which made him ſuſpected and hateful to their Huſbands, he voluntarily disfigured his Face, chuſing rather that his Deformity ſhould be a Mark of his Chaſtity, than that his Beauty ſhould be an Incentive to any to luſt. Valer. Max. Lib. 4. Cap. 5.

SPURINA, an Aſtrologer or Soothſayer, who had warned Julius Cæſar to beware of the Ides of March, on which very Day in the Morning Cæſar meeting him, as he was going to Senate, he in a jeering way told him, Well, Spurina, you ſee the Ides are come, and I am well for all that: True, anſwer'd he, they are come indeed, but are not yet paſt; and ſo he found it, for preſently after coming into the Senate, he was kill'd there. Val. Max. Lib. 8. Cap. 11.

SPYRIDION, Biſhop of Tremithuntis in the Iſle of Cyprus, a very holy Man, and famous for many Miracles done by him. Some Thieves being come on a time to take away his Sheep, they were ſuddenly bound by an inviſible Power, that they could not ſtir, and ſo continued all Night: The good Biſhop ſeeing them in this Condition in the Morning, exhorted them to amend their Lives; and looſing them of their inviſible Bands, let them go in Peace, beſtowing freely a Sheep upon them. He aſſiſted at the Council of Nicea, where he put a Philoſopher to Silence, who had gravell'd the moſt learned of that Aſſembly by the Subtilty of his Arguments againſt our Religion, and afterwards converted him to the Faith, only by repeating to him a ſimple Expoſition of the Chriſtian Faith. He was a married Man; and having on a time ſet before a Gueſt of his, Fleſh on a Faſt-Day, he authoriz'd his ſo doing with that Saying of the Apoſtle, To the Pure all things are pure. Socrat. Lib. 1. Cap. 8. Sozomenus, Lib. 1. Cap. 16.

SQUILLACI, Scylletium, Scyllaceum, a ſmall City of great Antiquity, and a Biſhop's See in the Further Calabria, in the Kingdom of Naples. It was formerly one of the moſt important Towns of the Brutii in Great Greece, and a Colony of the Athenians. To this City there belongs a Bay on the Ionian Sea, called Golfo di Squillaci. Long. 40. 12. Lat. 37. 48.

STABLO, Stabletum, Stabulenſis Abbas, a ſmall Town enriched with a celebrated Abbey upon the River Ambleve, under the Juriſdiction of its Abbot, who is a Prince of the German Empire; his Territory lies between the Biſhop of Leige and the Dukedom of Limburg and Luxenburg, three German Miles from Limburg to the South.

STADEN, Statio, Stada, a City in the Lower Saxony belonging to the Dukedom of Bremen, which was anciently an Imperial City and a Hanſe-Town: It is a very ſtrong Town, and ſtands upon the River Schuvinge, which a little lower runs into the Elbe. It lies ſeven German Miles from Hamburg to the Weſt, and twelve from Bremen to the North. It was taken in 1676 by the Duke of Brunſwick; but in 1680 was reſtored to the Swedes, under whom it was before put by the Treaty of Munſter.

STADIUM, an ancient Meaſure of Ground, which contains 125 Geometrical Paces, and every Geometrical Pace five Foot, whereas the common contains but three Foot. Eight Stadiums make an Italian Mile. Stadium alſo ſignifies a Place wherein Races were run, becauſe they uſed to diſtinguſh the Space of the Race by Stadiums.

A Reduction of the Ancient Stadia to Roman Miles, each of which Miles contains a Thouſand Geometrical Paces.

STADIUS (Johannes) a famous Mathematician born at Loenhout, a ſmall Village in Brabant, on New-years-day 1527. He compoſed Ephemerides for the Prince of Liege, from the Year 1554 to 1606, in Imitation of thoſe of Alphonſus, King of Arragon. He hath writ beſides many Aſtrological and Aſtronomical Treatiſes, as alſo Commentaries upon Florus. He died at Paris 1579, at the Age of 52 Years.

STAFANGER, Stafangria, a City and Sea-Port of Norwey, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Drontheim, and has a large and ſafe Harbour upon the German Ocean. It ſtands in the Government of Bergen, 90 Miles from Bergen to the South, and 60 from the Baltick Sea. Long. 27.45. Lat. 61.15.

STAFFARDA, a Town near Saluces in Piemont, remarkable only for the Victory which the French there obtain'd over the Duke of Savoy's Army, Aug. 1690. This was the firſt Battle his Royal Highneſs was preſent at, wherein he behaved himſelf with great Courage; but his Forces being raw and undiſciplin'd, were over-match'd.

STAFFORD, the Name of an ancient Norman Family, called originally Toney, related to the Conqueror. The firſt who took the Surname of Stafford was Robert, who was Governour of Stafford Caſtle in William the Conqueror's Time. The Male Iſſue failing after three Generations, the Heireſs married one Bagot of an ancient Family, whoſe Son aſſumed his Mother's Name, which was then uſual when the Mother's Quality was greateſt. This Son's Name being Hervy de Stafford, Dugdale calls him Lord, though he does not mention the Time of their Advancement to that Honour. The Succeſſors of this Family were great Men, and ſerviceable to their Princes in the Wars againſt Scotland and France. Ralph Lord Stafford was Seneſchal of Aquitain, repulſed John, Son to the French King, before Aguillon, and fell on his Rear, and had Share in the Honour of the Victory of Creſſy. He was alſo employ'd in ſeveral Embaſſies, and created Knight of the Garter by Edward III. and ſignaliz'd his Valour in reducing the Iriſh Rebels. On Sept. 14. 23 Hen. VI. Humphry, Earl of Stafford, was in Regard of his near Alliance in Blood, and faithful Services to the King, created Duke of Buckingham; which occaſion'd great Animoſity betwixt him and the Duke of Warwick, to whom the King had given Precedence; which was accomodated by a ſpecial Act of Parliament appointed them to take Precedency by Turns: But after the Duke of Warwick's Death he had a Grant of Precedency above all Dukes in England or France, thoſe of the Blood Royal excepted; and for his firm Adherence to the King againſt the Duke of York, obtain'd great Gifts. Henry, Grandſon to this Duke, ſucceeded, and was the principal Man that aſſiſted Richard, Duke of Gloceſter, to uſurp the Crown, and cut off his Nephews, the true Heirs, for which he had the greateſt Offices in the Kingdom, and whatever he deſired conferred upon him by the ſaid Richard, but rebelled againſt him afterward, whether out of Remorſe of Conſcience or not, is not certain: But his Men deſerting, and the Floods preventing others from joining him, he fled to the Houſe of his Servant Mr. Humphry Baniſter, whom he had tenderly brought up and entirely truſted, who betray'd him for Lucre of a thouſand Pounds promiſed by Proclamation; which King Richard refuſed to pay, as hating the Treachery: However, the Duke was beheaded in the Market-place at Salisbury. His ſecond Son, Edward, ſucceeded him in his Lands and Honours, and prepared to accompany the King into France with greater Splendor than any other of the Nobility. But having turned off one Knevett, his Steward, for exacting upon his Tenants, he, with the Lord Abergavenny, ſwore High-Treaſon againſt him; which he denied to the laſt, and would not ſue to the King for his Life; ſo that he was beheaded on Tower-Hill, May 17. 1521. 13 Hen. VIII. His Son Henry was reſtored again to the Honours, and part of the Eſtate; but the Male Iſſue failing in 1637, the Heireſs being married to Sir William Howard, a younger Son of Thomas, Earl of Arundel and Surrey, Earl Marſhal of England, he was advanced to the Title of Viſcount Stafford by King Charles I. and afterward beheaded for the Popiſh Plot in King Charles the Second's Reign, Oates, &c. being the Evidence againſt him. Dugdale Baron.

STAFFORD of Hooke, a Branch of this great Family above mentioned, deſcended from Sir John Stafford of Bromſhall in the County of Stafford. The firſt of them that arrived to the Degree of Nobleman, was Humphry, created Lord Stafford of Suthwick 4 Edw. IV. and in the ninth of that Reign Earl of Devon, which Honour he enjoy'd not many Months; for, having deſerted the Earl of Pembroke, as marching againſt the Northern Rebels under Sir John Conyers, on account of being put out of his Quarters by the ſaid Earl, who being thus weakened, was next Day defeated and taken by the Rebels; the King was ſo incenſed againſt him, that he ordered him to be apprehended and beheaded, which was accordingly done at Bridgewater Aug. 9. Edw. IV. leaving no Iſſue. There were two other Lords of this Family of Stafford, viz. the Lord Bouchier and Earl of Wiltſhire; but theſe Families were ſoon extinguiſh'd. Dugdale.

STAFFORDSHIRE, Lat. Staffordia, or Staffordienſis Comitatus, an Inland County of England, lies between Cheſhire on the North, Worceſterſhire on the South, Derbyſhire Eaſtward and Shropſhire Weſtward. Its Length from North to South is about 40 Miles, its Breadth from Eaſt to Weſt 26. The whole divided into five Hundreds, wherein are 130 Pariſhes and 19 Market-Towns, whoſe ancient Inhabitants, with thoſe of Cheſhire, Salop, Worceſter and Warwickſhire, went by the Name of Cornavii in the Time of the Romans. The Country making part of the Kingdom of Mercia in the Time of the Heptarchy, as it does now of the Dioceſe of Coventry and Lichfield. Much of this Country conſiſts in Moors and Woods but they are ſuch as yield both Profit and Pleaſure, breeding Multitudes of Sheep, Deer and Conies, and many, by the Huſbandman's Induſtry, yielding very good Corn. Here are alſo abundance of Heath Hens. Amongſt the Foreſts, Orankwood, about the middle of the County, is the moſt conſiderable. The North Parts are hilly, and yet near the River Dove the Paſtures are ſo rich, that the Cattel fatted thereupon will certainly fall in their Fleſh if remov'd to any other Paſture. About a Mile from Burton there is a vaſt rough hilly Ground, which for its Reſemblance to the Wilderneſs of Sinai in Arabia, got the Name of Sinai Park. The South Parts are ſtored with Coal and Iron Mines: One of the Coal Mines betwixt Willingſworth and Wedsbury took Fire An. 1622. In ſhort, for manuring the Ground, here is Plenty both of Lime and Marl; for Building, abundance of Timber with fine and durable Stone. The beſt Alabaſter in England is found about Caſtlehay in this County, whereof many Monuments in Weſtminſter Abbey are made. But the Gentry here are not ſo curious as in other Places in their private Buildings. However, here are two ſtately Caſtles worthy being ſeen; viz. Tadbury and Dudley Caſtle. Beſides the River Trent, which riſes in this County and croſſes it almoſt in the Middle, are the Dove, that parts it from Derbyſhire, the Line, Saw, Tame and Blythe, which fall into the Trent. This River is of ſpecial Note for its Pikes, Pearches, Eels and Grailings; the Dove for its Trouts, and the Blythe for its Eels; over which Rivers are reckoned 24 Bridges. The Country beſides is in ſome Places furniſhed with Salt Springs yielding White Salt, not much inferior to the beſt in Cheſhire. Stafford, the County Town, with Lichfield, Stamford, Newcaſtle under Line and Tamworth, are the only Places that are privileg'd to ſend Parliament Men beſides the Knights of the Shire. In the time of Popery here were Monaſteries at Litchfield, Stafford, Dela Croſs, Cruxden, Trentham, Burton, Tamworth and Wolverhampton, which had the ſame Fate with the reſt all over England in Henry the Eighth's Time.

STAGIRA, a Sea-Port Town of Macedonia, ſituate at the Foot of Mount Athos, famous for having been the Birth Place of Ariſtotle; for whoſe Sake Alexander the Great rebuilt it. It is now called Libia Nova. It is fifteen Miles Eaſt of Athos, and ſomewhat more North from the Bay of Singo.

STAGNO, Stagnum, a ſmall City of Dalmatia, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Raguza, from which it ſtands thirty Miles to the North upon the Adriatick Sea, which affords it the Convenience of an Harbour, and belongs to the Commonwealth of Raguza.

STAINMORE HILL, an exceeding ſtony Hill in Weſtmerland, remarkable for its Croſs, ſaid to have been erected as a Boundary between the Kingdoms of England and Scotland, upon a Peace concluded betwixt William the Conqueror and Malcolm, King of Scotland. The Arms of England were diſplay'd on the South-ſide of it, and thoſe of Scotland on the North. It is now called Recroſs.

STALIMENE, Lemnos, a conſiderable Iſland in the Archipelago. It is 160 Miles in compaſs, and hath a City of the ſame Name. In this Iſland is found the Terra Sigillata, (which is Medicinal in a great many Caſes, eſpecially under any extraordinary Loſs of Blood) whence the Grand Signior draws yearly a conſiderable Revenue. Every Year on the Day of our Saviour's Transfiguration, which falls in Auguſt, the Caloyers or Greek Monks of the Iſland come to gather this Earth near to Sotira, or our Saviour's Chappel, and put it into Sacks, to have the Grand Signior's Seal put upon it; whence it is call'd Terra Sigillata. The whole Iſland is very well cultivated, and produceth excellent Wines; and is particularly famous for being the Birth-Place of the courageous Virgin Marulla, who ſeeing her Father kill'd at the Siege of the City of Cochino in the XIV Century, took up a Sword and Shield, and animating the Citizens againſt the Turks, who were come to the very Gates of the City, ſhe forced Solyman Baſſa to raiſe the Siege; in Recompence for which Service Loredano, the Venetian General, allowed her double Pay, and offer'd her to take her Choice of whom ſhe pleaſed of all the Venetian Captains to be her Husband, promiſing alſo that the Common-wealth ſhould pay her Portion. Mahomet II. took this Iſland from the Venetians. Hilarion de Coſte of Illuſtrious Women. Bochart.

STALIMURA, Lat. Animurium, a City of Cilicia on the Mediterranean, a Biſhop's See, Suffragant of Seleucia; lies betwixt Antioch to the Weſt, and Palapoli to the Eaſt, 44 Miles North of the Iſle of Cyprus, Long. 65. 10. Lat. 36. 50.

STAMPALIA, an Iſland of the Archipelago towards Aſia. This Iſland was formerly called Aſtypalæa. Strabo puts it in the Number of the Sporades. It lies in that Part of the Archipelago which is called Mer di Scarpanto, and of old the Carpathian Sea. Of ancient Times this Iſland had a City called Aſtypalæa, where there was a Temple conſecrated to Apollo, and honour'd by all Greece, which City remains ſtill, and is called Stampalia. The principal Church in it is dedicated to St. George, and follows the Rite of the Greek Church, and as to Spirituals depends on the Biſhop of Seriphanto, who ſome part of the Year reſides here. Here is a Caſtle on a Mountain, which defends the City, and hath the Arms of Rome, France and Tuſcany, diſplay'd on its Frontiſpiece. The Country is barren, and wants freſh Water, which is the Cauſe that there is no other Town in the Iſle ſave this only. Boſchini Archipel.

STANDARD. That which the Turks call the Heavenly Standard, and in their Language Bairac, is a Green Banner, which they believe was the Banner of their falſe Prophet, and was delivered to him by the Angel Gabriel, as an indubitable Token of Victory againſt the Chriſtians. This Standard is laid up in the Treaſury of the Great Turk, and is kept with an extraordinary Care and Reſpect; and whenever the ſame is ſet up or diſplay'd, all that make Profeſſion of the Mahometan Religion are oblig'd to take Arms and follow it, The Motto of this Banner, is, Naſrum min Allah, Victory is from God. Tavern. Hiſt. of the Seraglio. Ricaut. of the Ott. Empire.

STANDON (Johannes) Principal of the College of Mountaigu in the Univerſity of Paris, was born at Malines or Machelen in Flanders, where he began his Studies, but could not continue them, by reaſon of the Poverty of his Parents, and therefore was forced to be a Servant, and to divide his Time between his Service and his Books; however, he made ſo good Uſe of his Time, that ſoon after he was choſen Regent of the College of St. Barbara; and ſome Years after, upon the Death of the Principal of Mountaigu College, he was advanced to his Place; neither was it long before he was choſen Rector of the Univerſity. He bore a great Affection to the Poor that were deſirous to become Scholars, and founded ſeveral Colleges or Communities in Favour of them, as at Cambray, Lovain, Valenciennes, Malines and at Paris. He alotted an Apartment of his College for the Entertainment of a Company of poor Scholars, whom he provided with all Neceſſaries beſides Bread, which the Chartreux Fryars, at his Deſire, furniſhed them with; and the Admiral Granville having, at his Requeſt, built the College of Mountaigu that now is, with the Chappel, he encreaſed the Number of his poor Scholars to 72, in Remembrance of the 72 Diſciples of our Saviour, and maintained twelve Maſters to inſtruct them. Standon was ſo zealous in reproving the Vices of his Time, that it procured him conſiderable Enemies, and having favour'd the Eſcape of one of his Scholars who reproved Lewis XII's Divorcing his Queen to marry the Widow of his Predeceſſor Charles VIII. about 1495, the King condemned him to Death, which, by the Interceſſion of the Admiral and ſome others, was changed into two Years Baniſhment. He died about the Beginning of the XVI Century, and ordered his Body to be interred in the College Chappel, with this Epitaph on his Tomb, Pauperis mementote Standonis. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

STANES, a large well inhabited and traded Market-Town of Brangbing Hundred in Middleſex, has a Bridge over the River to Surrey. It is fifteen Miles from London.

STANFORD, Stamford, Lat. Durobrivæ, a conſiderable and ancient Town of Keſteven Hundred in Lincolnſhire, ſituate upon the River Welland on the Borders of Northampton and Rutland, a Part of it ſtanding in the former, but moſt of it in Lincolnſhire. It is great and populous, having ſeven Pariſhes, with ſeveral Bridges over the River to joyn the Parts of the Town that lie on both Sides, and noted for the Roman High-Dike or Way leading Northward from the Town. The Houſes are built of Free-Stone, the Streets fair and large, ſurrounded with a ſtrong Wall. It hath the Honour of being a Corporation and ſending two Burgeſſes to Parliament. In the Neighbourhood ſtands a ſtately Seat and Park of the Earl of Exeter called Burleigh Houſe. In the Reign of Edward III. part of the Students of Oxford, upon a Quarrel between the Southern and Northern Men, ſettled for ſome time here, and built a College, whoſe Ruins are ſtill to be ſeen, refuſing to return to Oxford until forced thither by Proclamation, which gave Occaſion to a Statute of the Univerſity enjoyning every one by Oath at the taking of Batchelors Degree, not to profeſs Philoſophy at Stamford. In 1628 Henry, Lord Grey of Grooby, was created Earl of Stamford, and was ſucceeded by Thomas his Grandchild in 1673.

STANHOP, Stanhorp or Staindrop, a Market-Town in the Biſhoprick of Durham and Darlington Wapentake, 196 Miles from London.

STANHOPE (Sir Philip) Son and Heir of Sir John Stanhope, deſcended of an ancient noble Family in Nottinghamſhire, was by Letters Patents bearing Date 7 Nov. 14 Jac. advanced to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Stanhope of Shelford, and upon the fourth of Auguſt, 4 Car. 1. created Earl of Cheſterfield. He had Iſſue eleven Sons, whereof ſeven died young, and Philip and Ferdinando loſt their Lives in the King's Service, the firſt at Shelford Houſe, the other at Bridgford. Henry, then Heir apparent, married Catherine, the eldeſt Daughter and Coheir to Thomas Lord Wotton, and departing this Life the 29th of Nov. 1634, 10 Car. 1. his Father then living, left Iſſue Philip, who ſucceeded the Grandfather, and hath married three Wives, Anne, eldeſt Daughter to Algernoon, late Earl of Northumberland, ſecondly, Elizabeth, Daughter to James, Duke of Ormond, by whom he had a Son who died in his Infancy, as alſo Elizabeth a Daughter, now living; and thirdly, Elizabeth, eldeſt Daughter to Charles, Earl of Carnarvan, by whom he hath Iſſue two Sons, Philip and Charles. There was another Lord of this Name and Family bearing the Title of Lord Stanhope of Harington in the County of Northampton; but the Branch is now extinct.

STANLEY (Sir John) deſcended from the ancient Family of Howton within the Precincts of Cheſhire, enriched himſelf mightily by the fair Inheritance of Iſabel, the Daughter and Heir of Sir Thomas de Latham, Knight, of whoſe Family a former Sir Thomas is ſaid to have begotten a Son called Oskytel on a Woman who lived not far from thence; and that having no Child by his own Lady, he deſign'd to adopt this Oslytel for his Heir, but ſo that he might not be thought the Father; obſerving therefore that an Eagle had built her Neſt in a large ſpread Oak within his Park at Latham, he cauſed the Child in ſwadling Cloaths to be privily convey'd thither, and, as a Wonder, preſently call'd out his Lady to ſee it, telling her, that having no Iſſue, God Almighty had thus ſent him a Male Child, diſguiſing the Truth ſo artificially from her, that ſhe forthwith took him with great Fondneſs into the Houſe, educating him with no leſs Affection than if ſhe had been his natural Mother. Whereupon he became Heir to that fair Inheritance, and that in token thereof, not only his Deſcendents whilſt the Male Line endur'd, but the Stanley's proceeding from the aboveſaid Iſabel, the Heir Female, have ever ſince born the Child in the Eagle's Neſt, with the Eagle thereon for their Creſt. Thomas, Grandſon of Sir John, was ſummoned to Parliament amongſt the Barons of this Realm 21 Edw. IV. and in the 22d of this Reign accompanied Richard, Duke of Gloceſter, into Scotland, and afterwards ſtood firm againſt him for the young King Edward V. which had like to have coſt him his Life, as this Loyalty did the Lord Haſtings, who might have avoided it had he been ruled by the Lord Stanley, who upon this Dream the preceding Night, that a Boar with his Tuſks had ſo raz'd 'em both, that the Blood ran about their Shoulders, rode out of the Town, and adviſed the other to accompany him; by which Flight, though he ſaved his Head, yet he was committed to Priſon ſo ſoon as that Duke got the Crown, but afterwards enlarged, and made Lord Steward of the Houſhold, Conſtable of England for Life, and Knight of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter. But having married his ſecond Wife Margaret, the Widow of Edmund, Earl of Richmond, by whom ſhe had Iſſue Henry of Richmond, afterwards King, by the Name of Henry VII. he began to be ſuſpected as a Well-Wiſher to that Party; and was therefore denied Leave to retire into the Country, until he had given up George, his Son and Heir, as an Hoſtage, leſt he ſhould ſtay in thoſe Parts purpoſely to joyn with the Earl of Richmond at his Landing; which was his real Intent, as appear'd by his ſiding with him in the Day of Battle, notwithſtanding the King's Meſſage to him, that if he did not repair to his Preſence, he would put his Son the Lord Strange to Death. King Richard being ſlain, he ſet the Crown found amongſt the Spoils, upon the Earl of Richmond's Head, and proclaim'd him King by the Name of Henry VII. after which, upon the 27th of October, he was advanced to the Dignity of an Earl, by the Title of Earl of Derby, and ſoon after made Lord High Steward of England. Thomas, Son to George, his eldeſt Son, who died in his Life-time, ſucceeded him, and Edward his Son him, who was in the greateſt Places of Truſt and Honour in the Reigns of Hen. VIII. Edw. VI. Queen Mary and Elizabeth. His Son and Succeſſor Henry was one of the Peers who ſate upon the Tryal of Mary, Queen of Scots, and in the 32d of Eliz. was conſtituted Lord High Steward of England upon the Tryal of Philip, Earl of Arundel. His Son Ferdinand ſucceeded him, but died young, leaving three Daughters; whereupon William, his Brother and Heir Male, ſucceeding him in his Honours, a Diſpute aroſe betwixt him and the Heirs Females, touching the Title to the Iſle of Man; ſo that he was forced to purchaſe their ſeveral Claims; which Agreement, together with the King's freſh Grant bearing Date the ſeventh of July, 7 Jac. was ratified by a ſpecial Act of Parliament. To this William ſucceeded James, his Son and Heir, a Perſon highly accompliſhed with Learning, Prudence, Loyalty and true Valour, whereof he gave ſignal Proofs in the laſt Civil Wars on ſeveral Occaſions, eſpecially in Wigan-Lane, where with 600 Horſe he maintained a Fight for two Hours againſt 3000 Horſe and Foot, commanded by Colonel Lilburn, in which Encounter he receiv'd ſeven Shot on his Breaſt-plate, thirteen Cuts on his Bever, and five or ſix Wounds on his Arms and Shoulders, having two Horſes kill'd under him; nevertheleſs, he made his Way to King Charles II. at Worceſter, whence, upon the Loſs of the Day there, Sept. 3. 1651, he fled with him into Staffordſhire, where having left him ſecure, and ſhifting for himſelf, he had the Miſfortune to be taken in Cheſhire by one Colonel Edge, who had him try'd by a Court Martial, which voted him guilty of the Breach of an Act of the twelfth of Aug. 1651, intituled, An Act for prohibiting Correſpondency with Charles Stuart or his Party: Accordingly he was ſentenced to Death at Bolton in Lancaſhire; after which, his Lady, who had formerly defended her ſtrong Houſe of Latham with much Courage and Conduct during four Months vigorous Siege, continued in the Iſle of Man until the Inhabitants, corrupted by one that had formerly been her own Servant, ſeized her and her Children, and kept them Priſoners until the King was reſtor'd. She was Daughter of the Duke of Tremoville by the Lady Charlotte, his Wife, Daughter to the renowned Count William of Naſſaw, Prince of Orange, and Charlotte of Bourbon, his Wife. The noble Earl of Derby had three Sons, Charles, who ſucceeded him, Edward and William, who died unmarried, as alſo three Daughters, the Lady Mary married to William, Earl of Strafford, the Lady Catherine to Henry, Marqueſs of Dorcheſter, and the Lady Emilia to John, Earl of Athol in Scotland: Charles left four Sons and two Daughters, viz. Charlotte married to Thomas, eldeſt Son of Thomas, Earl Rivers, and Mary, who died unmarried. William, his eldeſt Son and Succeſſor, hath married Elizabeth, Daughter to Thomas, Earl of Oſſory, eldeſt Son to the late James, Duke of Ormond. There were ſeveral other Great Men of ſpecial Note of this Family, as, Sir Edward Stanley, Knight, a younger Son to Thomas, the firſt Earl of Derby, who, for his great Service at Flodden Field, was in the ſixth of Henry VIII. created Earl of Mouteagle, which Honour is now extinct; and Sir William Stanley, younger Brother to the firſt Earl aforeſaid, who reſcued King Edward IV. from his Confinement under the Earl of Warwick, and afterwards was the chief Inſtrument of the Victory of Boſworth Field, for which his good Service King Henry VII. made him chief Gentleman of his Bed-Chamber, one of his Privy Council, and afterwards one of the Chamberlains of his Exchequer, and Knight of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter; notwithſtanding all which, being accuſed for a Favourer of Perkin, the Dutcheſs of Burgundy's counterfeit Nephew, he was put to Death on Tower-hill. Dugdale.

Between Romagnio and the Dutchy of Urbin is the petty Republick of St. Marino.

STATEN EYLANDT, a ſmall Iſland which lies to the Eaſt of the Streight of Weygats, near to that Coaſt of Muſcovy which the Hollanders have named New Holland. It was diſcover'd by them the third of Auguſt, 1594, and called Staten Eylandt, that is, the States Iſle. It is about two Leagues in compaſs. On the Side toward the Continent it hath ſome Havens where Ships may lie ſecure; but generally all the Coaſt is thick ſet with frightful Rocks of an Aſh gray Colour, and the Ground is generally very ſtony and barren. Some Cryſtal is found here in the Slits of the Rocks, which have much of the Luſtre of Diamonds, but little of their Hardneſs, as being eaſily broken. Blaeu deſcript. Waygats.

STATIO (Achilles) a learned Portugueſe, much eſteem'd in the laſt Century. He was born at Viaigueira in the Province of Alentejo in 1524. Cardinal Sforza committed to him the Care of his Library, at which time he began to publiſh thoſe many Works wherewith he hath gratified the Publick, upon Cicero, Horace, Catullus and Suetonius; alſo his Orations and Epiſtles, St. Ferrandus, Deacon of Carthage, Gregorius of Elvira, the Rules of St. Pachomius, ſeveral Treatiſes of St. Chryſoſtom and St. Gregory of Nyſſa, of St. Athanaſius, &c. which he tranſlated out of Greek into Latin, beſides many other excellent Pieces. He died at Rome Octob. 16. 1581, being 57 Years of Age, and was buried in the Church of the Fathers of the Oratory, whom he had made Heirs of his Library. *Andreas Scotus Bibl. Hiſp. Juſt. STATIONS, Stationes, are Places in the Sandy Deſart, Countries of Arabia, Africa, &c. in which the Caravans that travel there reſt; they being fix'd in Places where Water is to be found in Springs or Wells. The Romans had alſo their Military Stations on all their Roads, in which Proviſion was made for the Reception and Support of their Forces when they marched through any Part of their Empire, which are all remark'd by Antoninus in his Itinerary.

STATIRA, the Daughter of Darius Codomanus, was taken Priſoner by Alexander the Great after the Battle of Iſſus, a City of Cilicia; and he, who had before refuſed her, when Darius offer'd her to be the Pledge of a Peace between them, married her when ſhe was his Slave. The Marriage-Feaſt was celebrated after that Alexander was come back from the Indies, in the manner of a Triumph: There were no leſs than 9000 Perſons at this Feaſt, which were all of them preſented by the Conqueror with a Golden Cup to ſacrifice to the Gods. Alexander had no Children by Statira, for, being with Child, ſhe was treacherouſly murthered by Roxana. Plutarchus.

STATIUS (Publius Papinius) of Naples, was the Son of Statius, born at Sellæ, a City of Epirus, who was a Perſon ſkilled in the Greek and Latin Tongues, and eſteem'd for his Eloquence and Poetry which he profeſs'd at Rome, and had many Scholars amongſt the Roman Knights and Senators, and amongſt them Domitian himſelf, who after that he was advanced to the Empire, rewarded his Merit with the Lawrel of the Muſes and a Crown of Gold: His Wife's Name was Agellina, by whom he had Pub. Papinius Statius the Poet, who alſo had a great Share of Domitian's Favour and Friendſhip, to whom he dedicated his two Poems of Thebais and Achilleis, the firſt in twelve Books, the other in two, as being left imperfect by him, and five Books of Silvæ. Towards the latter end of his Life he retired to Naples with his Wife Claudia, and died there not long after the Death of Domitian. He was the Author alſo of ſome Dramatick Poems, which are loſt as well as his Agave, mention'd by Juvenal, Satyr. 7.

STATUES, are the Figures of Heathen Gods, Heroes and famous Men, made to beſtow Worſhip upon them, or to honour their Memory. The Greeks were the firſt that made uſe of them, from whom the Cuſtom was tranſported to Italy. During the Government of the Kings there were ſcarce any other Statues in Rome beſides thoſe of Romulus and his Succeſſors. But ſoon after were erected thoſe of Brutus, Horatius Cocles and of Clœlia, which were follow'd by a great Number of others, and theſe Marks of Honour became ſo common by the Liberty every one took to ſet up their own Statues, that it was ordered that all thoſe that had been ſet up in the publick Places without the Decree of the Senate or People, ſhould be taken away; and thus the Right of decreeing Statues remain'd in the Power of the Senate and People till the Time of the Emperors. Women alſo affected this Honour, and had it conferr'd upon them both in the City and Provinces. Under the firſt Emperors there was a prodigious Number of them to be ſeen at Rome; for it is obſerv'd in Hiſtory, that the Statues of Sejanus, Tiberius his Favourite, were ſo many, that they could not be numbred: The Temples, the Palaces, the Portico's, the Amphitheatres, the Baths and Squares were fill'd with Statues, which Merit or Flattery had cauſed to be ſet up, and gave Occaſion to that old Saying of a certain Perſon, that, In the City of Rome there was almoſt as many People in Marble and Braſs as there was in Fleſh and Bones. Caligula and Claudius made it unlawful for private Perſons to uſurp this Honour, enacting, that it ſhould not be afforded to any, but ſuch who had done ſome conſiderable Service to the Commonwealth in the Wars or Magiſtracy. As to the Matter of them, the moſt ancient Statues were of Marble or Braſs; though afterwards they made them of Silver, Gold and Ivory. Thoſe of Silver began to be in uſe in the Time of Auguſtus; but he finding the Charges of them to be too exceſſive, cauſed his own to be melted down, and inſtead of them had others made of Braſs and Marble; but his Succeſſors had not the ſame Conſideration, eſpecially Domitian, who would have all the Statues that were conſecrated to him in the Capitol, to be either of Gold or Silver, and of ſuch a Weight. The Emperors Caligula, Claudius and Commodus, had Golden Statues erected to them; and Arcadius, towards the End of the IV Century, ordered a Statue of Silver to be made to the Emperor Theodoſius, which weighed 7400 Pound Weight. The Figures of Wax which Perſons of Quality were permitted to make a Shew of in their Halls, were no Statues, but Images of their Anceſtors to the Breaſt or Waſte, the Numbers of which ſhew'd the Ancientneſs of their Extraction.

The Statues of old were of four ſorts, viz. Coloſſales, Curules, Equeſtres and Pedeſtres: The Coloſſales were Statues of an extraordinary Bigneſs, and were only made in Honour of the Gods themſelves. Nero was the firſt of the Roman Emperors that cauſed ſuch as theſe to be made in Honour of him: Zenodorus the Statuary made him one that was 100 Foot high; but Nero dying much about the ſame time it was finiſh'd, it was conſecrated to Apollo; and Commodus afterwards ordered Nero's Head to be taken away, and his to be put on the Shoulders of that Coloſs: Adrian alſo, and Alexander Severus erected of theſe Coloſſal Statues. The Curules were Statues of Perſons ſtanding in a Chariot drawn by two or four Horſes; and theſe were by the Decree of the Senate granted to ſuch only as had triumphed, or who by their Conqueſts had enlarged the Bounds of the Roman Empire. Auguſtus honoured moſt of his Generals with this kind of Statues. This Prince likewiſe and ſome of his Succeſſors are thus repreſented upon Medals, where the Chariots are ſometimes drawn by Elephants: This Fancy was borrow'd of the Greeks, who pay'd this Reſpect to thoſe who got the better at the Olympick Games. The Equeſtres were ſuch as repreſented Men on Horſeback, yea, and Women too; thus Clœlia, a noble Roman Virgin, had an Equeſtris Statua erected in Honour to her; to which Seneca referrs, when reproaching the Effeminacy and Luxury of his Age, he ſaid, that Men might be aſham'd to be carried in Litters to that City, where young Maids had deſerved Statues on Horſeback. But theſe Statues were not ſo frequent with the Romans, as amongſt the Greeks, for we read, that Alexander the Great order'd 120 Statues on Horſeback to be made all at once, in Honour of ſo many Knights kill'd in a Battle. Some of theſe Statues on Horſeback were alſo Coloſſales, that is, of an extraordinary Bigneſs; ſuch was the Statue of Domitian on Horſeback, which for the Bigneſs of it, hath been compared by Poets to the Trojan Horſe; And a like Equeſtris Statua of Marcus Aurelius is ſtill to be ſeen at Rome. As for the Pedeſtres, or Statues on Foot, there were more of theſe than of all the others together, this Poſture being of all other the moſt natural, and beſt expreſſing the Air, Port and Stature of the Perſon. The Emperors Statues were uſually erected with great Magnificence; they were accompanied with Panegyricks, Shews of the Circus and Ampitheatre, Comedies, Feaſts and Publick Liberalities; and all theſe were annually repeated. Moreover, they rendred to theſe Imperial Statues little leſs than Divine Honours; they offered Incenſe and Victims to them, as to their Gods, and they were ſacred Places of Refuge to thoſe that fled to them.

There are ſome that make another Diſtinction of Statues into Auguſt, Heroick and Coloſſal; the Auguſt repreſented Emperors, Kings and Princes; the Heroick were the Statues of Heroes or Demi-Gods, and were as big again as the ordinary Stature of a Man; the Coloſſal were ſuch as repreſented the Gods, and were treble the Stature of a Man, and upwards: Such as the Statue of Jupiter Olympius at Elis in Greece, made by Phidias; the Minerva of Athens, whoſe Height was 36 Cubits, made of Ivory and Gold; the Jupiter Capitolinus, which Carvilius cauſed to be made of the Corſlets and Head-Pieces of the Samnites he had defeated; the Coloſs of Apollo of the Height of 40 Cubits, in the City of Tarentum, made by the famous Lycippus; and the Coloſs of the ſame Heathen Deity which Chares Lyndius erected over the Haven of Rhodes. Pliny makes mention of a Coloſſal Statue in a City of Auvergne in the Gauls, that was 400 Foot high, and upon which Zenodorus had beſtowed ten Years Labour.

The Greeks repreſented their Statues in a manner quite naked, to ſhow the Excellency of their Art in repreſenting the Body in its natural Poſtures and Proportions; but the Romans choſe to have them dreſt in the Habits of Peace or War; as are the Statues of Julius Cæſar and Auguſtus, which are ſtill to be ſeen in the Capitol of Rome.

There are alſo a ſort of Statues uſed in Architecture for Columns or Pillars to adorn Buildings, called Perſick Statues, becauſe they repreſented Captive Perſians in their ordinary Habit. The Lacedæmonians were the firſt Inventers of this kind of Architecture, when after their Victory over the Perſians at the Battle of Platea, and having led their Captives in Triumph, they built a Gallery, to which they gave the Name of the Perſian Gallery, the Roof whereof was ſupported by this ſort of Statues, to tranſmit the Memory of their Victory to all Poſterity, and to leave a laſting Reproach upon the Perſians for their Pride and Uſurpation. Vitruv. Lib. 1. STAVERN, Lat. Stavera, a ſmall Hanſe-Town of Weſt Friſland, ſubject to the Dutch. It hath a Haven upon Zuder Zee, four German Miles North of Enchuſen, and ſix South-Weſt of Wollinhove. It was formerly the Reſidence of the Kings of Friſland.

STAWELL (William) Baron Stawell of Summerton; the eldeſt Branch of the ancient Family of the Stawells, which has flouriſhed in the County of Sommerſet, at Stawell, Cotholſton and Ham for more than 600 Years, as plainly appears by old Deeds and Evidences ſtill in the Family, though ſeveral Records of this Nature were deſtroy'd in the Long-Parliament Rebellion. Several of this ancient Family have had the Honour of Knighthood, ſerv'd often for their County in Parliament, and born ſome of the moſt honourable Offices in it. This Family has ſeveral times inter-married with the Nobility, but had no Title till King Charles II. by his Letters Patents bearing Date the fifteenth of January, in the 34th Year of his Reign, raiſed it to the State and Degree of Peerage in Conſideration of the remarkable Loyalty of Sir John Stawell, Knight of the Bath, who, during the Rebellion begun in 1642, ſteddily adhered to his Duty, and at his own Charge raiſed and maintain'd three Regiments, one of Horſe, another of Foot, and a third of Dragoons for his Majeſty's Service; and at laſt, when the Rebels grew Victorious, ſuffer'd Impriſonment, Sequeſtration and the Loſs of almoſt all a very large Fortune, being likewiſe try'd for his Life in their pretended Courts of Juſtice: But, notwithſtanding theſe Diſcouragements, his Loyalty held out againſt the Uſurpation, and was always too ſtrong for ill Uſage. This Sir John dying juſt upon the Reſtauration, His Majeſty thought fit to reward him in his Poſterity, advancing his Son Ralph Stawell, Eſq; to the Dignity of a Baron of England: This Lord being likewiſe recommendable upon the Score of his own Merit, inheriting the Principles of his Father, as well as his Eſtate, and doing ſignal Service to his Prince and Country upon nice and critical Occaſions. After his Deceaſe he was ſucceeded by John Lord Stawell, his eldeſt Son, by Anne, Daughter to John Ryves, Eſq; who married the Lady Margaret, Daughter to James, Earl of Saliſbury, but dying without Iſſue Male, the Honour and Eſtate deſcended to William, the preſent Lord Stawell, another Son of Ralph Lord Stawell, by Abigail, Daughter and Heir of William Pitt of Hartley-Weſpal, in the County of Southampton, Eſq. Sir Mathew and Sir Thomas Stawell, Knights, who lived in the Reigns of Edward III. and Richard II. gave the ſame Supporters which now belong to the Family, as appears by ſeveral of their Seals ſtill remaining. Their Arms are, Ruby, a Croſs of Fuſils, Pearl. Dale's Catalogue of the Nobility of England, &c.

STAURACIUS, Son of the Emperor Nicephorus I. who took him into the Partnerſhip of the Government in 803: This Prince was at the Battle againſt the Bulgarians, which his Father loſt in 811, and was dangerouſly wounded; and having underſtood that his Brother-in-law Ranagabes had got himſelf proclaim'd Emperor, he ritired to a Monaſtry, where he lived the reſt of his Time; his Empreſs likewiſe diſpoſing her ſelf the ſame way. Cedrenus & Zonoras in Annal. Theophanes, &c.

STEENWYCK, Stenovicum, a Town in Over-Yſſel or Tranſiſulania in the United Provinces upon the River Aa, on the Borders of Friſland, ſeventeen Miles from Zwol to the North, and ſeven from the Zuyder Zee to the Eaſt. It was taken from the Dutch by a Stratagem; A certain Spaniard having hired a young Girl to let her Hat drop into the Ditch, that when taking it up ſhe might ſound the Depth; and finding it ſhallow, encouraged the reſt to ſcale the Walls: Taken by the French in 1672, but deſerted ſoon after.

STEGANOGRAPHY. The Art of writing Secrets, ſo as that none but the Party to whom they are addreſs'd ſhall be able to read or underſtand them; the Word being compounded of στεγανὸς cover'd or hid, and γραφὴ Writing. Though this Art were known amongſt the Ancients, yet it ſeems that Trithemius was the firſt that ſet down the Rules of it, which he hath performed not only in his ſix Books of Polygraphy, but more eſpecially in his famous Treatiſe of Steganography, which hath made ſo much Noiſe in the World. Now though his Deſign was to reveal this uſeful Secret, yet was he not willing to make it indifferently intelligible to all ſorts of Perſons; his end being only to inſtruct the Learned and Miniſters of State; and therefore to deterr the Common People from reading of his Books, he pretended to a Familiarity with evil Spirits, and made uſe of ſome ſtrange Baſtard-Hebrew Names, ſuch as Pamerſiel, Camuel, &c. which though he only made uſe of to illuſtrate the Method of this Art, yet was the good Abbot upon this Account ſuſpected to be a Magician. But notwithſtanding that Trithemius his Slanderers have endeavour'd to make his Steganography to paſs for a Piece full of Superſtition and unlawful Magick, yet there have not been wanting many learned Men, who have undertaken to defend Trithemius, and to improve the Art he had publiſh'd; the moſt illuſtrious of theſe Apologiſts was the Duke of Lunenburg, who cauſed a Book on this Subject to be printed, called Cryptography, i. e. a hidden Way of Writing, in 1624. The famous Caramuel alſo publiſh'd his Steganography at Bruxels, and afterwards at Collen in 1635, which is nothing elſe but an Explication of Trithemius his Steganography, and of the Clavicula of Salomon the German. Father Gaſpar Schottus, a Jeſuit, publiſh'd in 1665 his Schola Stenographica, wherein he defends the good Abbot. And laſt of all, about a dozen Years ago, one Wolfangus Erneſtus Heidelius hath writ a Commentary upon Trithemius his Steganography, where he ſets down many new ways of diſguiſing ones Meaning in a Letter by the means of Variety of Characters, with very ingenious Principles for the Improving of this Art. *J. STELLA (Diego) of the Province of St. Jago in Portugal, was a Franciſcan and a famous Preacher; Cardinal Granvelle made him his Confeſſor, and afterwards he was preferr'd to a Biſhoprick. His Commentaries upon St. Luke's Goſpel are very much eſteem'd: He wrote likewiſe ſeveral Treatiſes in Spaniſh, viz. Of the Vanity and Contempt of the World. Of the Love of God, &c. He wrote alſo a Book in Latin, De Methodo Concionandi, printed at Venice. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

STELLA, a Mountain in Galatia in the Leſſer Aſia, near the City of Ancyra, called by the Turks Almadag: This Place is very remarkable for the Defeat of two Great Princes; Mithridates, who was here overthrown by Pompey the Great 63 Years before the Birth of our Saviour, and Bajazet I. Emperor of the Turks, here beaten and taken with his Son Muſa by Tamerlain the Great in 1397: Which Victory, had it been followed by a vigorous Attack of all the Chriſtian Princes, it might probably have put an end to the Ottoman Family.

STENAY, Stenæum, Stenacum, a ſtrong City of Lorrain upon the Meuſe: It lies in the Dukedom of Bar, ſeven Leagues from Verdun to the North, and ſix from Sedan to the South. This Place was taken by the French in 1634, annexed to Champagne.

STENDEL (Benedictus) a German, born at Hall in Saxony; he profeſs'd Divinity with great Applauſe about the Year 1470. He was a Perſon of extraordinary Learning, and writ Commentaries upon Geneſis, Leviticus and Deuteronomy, and beſides left many other Philoſophical and Theological Works behind him. *Trithem. de ſcript. STENO II. alias Steno-Stur II. Adminſtrator of Sweden, the Son of Swanton-Stur, ſucceeded his Father in 1512. After that he had reigned about two Years, according to the Laws of the Land, he began to forget that he govern'd a Nation who were very jealous of their Liberty, and reſolv'd to make himſelf an abſolute Monarch; which was no ſooner known, but the Kingdom was divided into two Parties, the former of which reſolv'd to ſecure their Liberties by depoſing of the King; the other was of thoſe who were the Friends of his Father Swanton; theſe were utterly againſt carrying of things to that Extremity, and declar'd, that in Conſideration of his Father's Verues, they ought with Patience to expect his Amendment. This Party prov'd the ſtronger, but yet the other followed their firſt Purpoſe, and invited the Danes to their Aſſiſtance. Chriſtian II. King of Denmark, levy'd a great Army, and laid Siege to Stockholm, at a Time which was not very proper for ſuch an Enterprize, for they were fain to dig their Lines in the Ice, and the Snow ſtood four Foot deep over the Soldiers Huts, and beſides, their Proviſions were very ſcarce. In the mean time, Steno alſo raiſed a conſiderable Force, and march'd them directly to Stockholm, and raiſed the Siege, made himſelf Maſter of all the Danes Baggage, and took above 300 Priſoners, moſt of them Officers and Perſons of Note that halted to ſuſtain the Shock of the Enemy whilſt the Soldiers were embarking: But the King of Denmark having got the greateſt part of his Army on Board, met with another great Misfortune; for being detained by contrary Winds for three Months in the Road of Stockholm, his Fleet was reduced to the utmoſt Extremity, having neither Water nor Victuals, which occaſion'd a great Mortality among the Soldiers. The King finding himſelf under theſe Diſadvantages, ſent a Meſſenger to the Adminiſtrator to propoſe a Truce, upon Pretence of treating about the Ranſom of the Soldiers: The Adminiſtrator, though he knew the Straits the Danes were in, and 'twas in his Power to complete his Victory by ſtarving his Enemy, yet, either out of Generoſity, or in hopes to procure a ſolid Peace, conſented to the Truce, and ſent ſeveral Boats loaden with Proviſions for the King and his Navy. Chriſtian perceiving that the Adminiſtrator was deſirous of a Peace, imagin'd that this Buſineſs might furniſh him with an Opportunity to make himſelf Maſter of his Perſon: Some time after therefore he propoſed an Interview on Board the Fleet, whither he invited the Adminiſtrator in order to treat a Peace; and for the Security of his Perſon, he ſent ſeveral of the moſt conſiderable Perſons in his Army to the Court at Stockholm: The Prince, who was naturally of a free and candid Temper, was eaſily perſuaded to give him that Satisfaction; but the Senate oppoſed his Reſolution, either becauſe they ſuſpected ſome treacherous Deſign, or were reſolved to maintain the Honour of the State in the Perſon of the Adminiſtrator; thus the Enterview was broken off, and the Adminiſtrator eſcap'd a Snare laid for him: And Chriſtian ſoon after, by another Piece of foul Play, got Guſtavus and five or ſix other Swediſh Lords in his Hands, and ſet Sail for Denmark; and not long after having furniſh'd himſelf with a good Army, gave the Command of it to Otho, who return'd to Sweden, and made a Deſcent upon Weſt-Gothland, Steno march'd with his Forces againſt him, and fought ſo briſkly that the Victory inclin'd to his Side, when he receiv'd a Shot with a Cannon-Bullet, which Loſs of their General made the Swedes loſe Courage and leave the Field to the King of Denmark; and Chriſtian made himſelf Maſter of Sweden. *Varillas Hiſtoire des Revolutions en Matiere de Religion. STENTOR, a Grecian, who had ſo ſtrong a Voice, that he could make a louder Noiſe than fifty Men, according to the Account Homer gives of him: Whence the Proverb, Stentor's Voice. Hom. Lib 5. Iliad.

STEPHANARDUS, or Stephanus de Vice-Mercato, a Dominican and Profeſſor of Divinity, was a Perſon of Note about 1290, and wrote a Chronicle in Verſe, call'd Manipulus Florum. Paulus Jovius in Vita Othon. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. &c.

STEPHANEIDES (William) of a great Family in Normandy, and a Benedictine of Canterbury, was a conſtant Companion of Tho. Beckett, the Archbiſhop. He liv'd in the Reign of King Richard I. to the Year 1190; and, beſides other things, wrote De Vita & Paſſione Thomæ, &c. Pits. de illuſt. Angl. Script.

St. STEPHEN, the firſt of the ſeven Deacons choſen by the Church to provide for the Neceſſities of the Poor amongſt them; of whom read Acts 6. 7.

St. STEPHEN of Muret, Founder of a Religious Order, called the Order of Grandmont, was a French Man, born in the Province of Auvergne. He died in 1124, and was Canoniz'd by Pope Clement III. A. C. 1189. He would never accept of any higher Order than that of Deacon, and always had on his Head a Paper, wherein was writ the Promiſe he had made to God to be wholly his; and continually wore upon his Finger a Ring as a Token of his Eſpouſal to Jeſus Chriſt. Baron. A. STEPHEN, King of England, ſucceeded to his Uncle King Henry I. in 1135. He was ſecond Son of Stephen, Earl of Blois and Chartres, by Alice or Adela his Wife, William the Conqueror's Daughter and Henry I. his Siſter. He had been bred at his Uncle's Court, upon whoſe Death he took Poſſeſſion of the Crown, contrary to his Oath, and to the Prejudice of Maud, the Empreſs, Daughter of the ſaid Henry. But he came in by the Power of the Clergy, and particularly by the Influence of Henry, his younger Brother, Biſhop of Wincheſter, and of Corbel, Archbiſhop of Canterbury; and 'tis obſervable, that the Prelates and Nobles ſwore Allegiance to King Stephen conditionally, that is, to obey him as their King ſo long as he ſhould keep his Covenants with them, by maintaining their Rights and Privileges: Therefore the firſt thing he did at his Acceſſion to the Crown, which he own'd to be by Election, was to confirm the ſaid Privileges. Fuller obſerves, that Covetouſneſs and Pride prompted them to this Diſloyalty, hoping to obtain of an Uſurper what they diſpair'd to get from a lawful King. But he did not long enjoy a quiet Poſſeſſion, being ſoon diſturb'd, firſt by the Welſh, who gave him a great Overthrow, and after by the Scots, who took from him Carliſle and Newcaſtle. A Peace was clapp'd up, which continued but a little while; the Welſh making new Inroads into the Land, and carrying away great Spoils, and David, King of Scots, breaking out again with greater Fury than before. At home, ſeveral of the Barons diſſatisfied with the King revolted, and ſecured a great many ſtrong Caſtles. At laſt, when all thoſe Diſturbances were over, Maud the Empreſs proſecutes her Title to the Crown, which ſpun her ſelf and the King a long Thread of Troubles. A ſtrong Party being formed in her Behalf by Earl Robert, her baſe Brother, a new War breaks out, with various Succeſs on both Sides. Maud being got to Lincoln, King Stephen lays Siege to it and takes it; but the Empreſs had made her Eſcape. Soon after that, a Battle was fought near Lincoln, where the King gave great Proofs of his perſonal Valour, but was taken Priſoner, and carried to the Empreſs to Gloceſter; from whence he was convey'd to Briſtol. Upon this Succeſs the Empreſs began to take the Government upon her; then Earl Robert happened to fall into an Ambuſh, and was taken Priſoner by a Party ſent by the Biſhop of Wincheſter. To releaſe him, it was agreed, that King Stephen ſhould be ſet at Liberty, who, upon the Earl's going into Normandy for freſh Supplies, purſues Maud, and beſieges her at Oxford, from whence ſhe made her Eſcape, and with much Difficulty got to Wallingford Caſtle: After which, both Parties encountred with various Succeſs, until the Empreſs, weary of the War, return'd to her Huſband into Normandy, her Son Henry, afterwards King of England, being gone before her. The King, after her Departure, cauſed all the Barons to ſwear Allegiance to Prince Euſtace his Son, Duke of Normandy; but he dying ſoon after in a Frentick Fit, the King was eaſily prevail'd with, for Peace's ſake, to adopt Henry for his Son and Succeſſor, to whom the Nobles did Homage accordingly, as to the undoubted next Heir, the Prince, on his Side, paying King Stephen the Honour due to a Father; who having reigned nineteen Years, almoſt in perpetual Troubles, departed this Life at Dover, in the Year 1154, and was buried at Feverſham. His Queen was Maud, Daughter and Heireſs of Euſtace, Earl of Boulogne. Daniel. Collect. Hiſt. of England. Fuller's Church-Hiſt.

POPES.

STEPHEN, the firſt of that Name, was a Roman, and ſucceeded Lucius the 9th of April, 255. At the Beginning of his Papacy he had ſome Conteſt with ſeveral Biſhops of Aſia, who condemned the Baptiſm conferred by Hereticks, and re-baptized thoſe who did forſake their Errors to enter into the Boſom of the Church. Firmilianus, Biſhop of Caſarea in Cappadocia, was a great Maintainer of this Sentiment, and as it were the Head of the Re-baptizers: St. Cyprian alſo in Africa called a Synod, in which this Opinion was confirmed; which was the Cauſe of a great Difference between him and Stephen: During this Controverſie St. Cyprian in his Epiſtles to this Pope, treats him upon the Level, and reprimands him with a great deal of Freedom and Satyr, which is an evident Proof that the modern Supremacy of Rome was unheard of in thoſe Times: As for Stephen, upon his foreſeeing a horrible Perſecution ready to fall upon the Church, endeavoured to prepare the Faithful for it, provided for the Government of the Church, and retired himſelf into one of the Catacombés or ſubterraneous Burying Places of the Primitive Chriſtians, where the Emperor Valerian cauſed him to be ſeiz'd and put to Death the ſecond of Aug. A. C. 257.

STEPHEN II. ſucceeded Pope Zachary the 27th of March, A. C. 752. His Papacy was but of three or four Days Continuance, and therefore moſt Authors have either quite left out his Name in the Catalogue of the Popes, or elſe confounded him with Stephen III. who was his Succeſſor. Baron. A. C. 752.

STEPHEN III. a Roman, the Son of Conſtantine, ſucceeded Stephen II. A. C. 752. At the Beginning of his Papacy, Aſtulphus, King of the Lombards, after having made himſelf Maſter of the Exarchate of Ravenna, and many other Places in the Neighbourhood of Rome, marched with his Army to the ſubduing of that City, and ſent a Summons to the Romans to pay him a Tribut of a Golden Crown by the Head: The Pope beſeeching him to leave the Church Poſſeſſions in Peace, and betook himſelf to the Interceſſion of Conſtantinus Copronymus, Emperor of the Eaſt; but Aſtulphus deriding all thoſe Shifts to divert him, the Pope was forced to flee into France to King Pepin, who receiv'd and entertain'd him with great Honour; and not long after Pepin march'd into Italy, beſieged Pavia, and forced Aſtulphus to promiſe the reſtoring not only all the Church Lands he had uſurped, but alſo the Exarchate of Ravenna, which the King added to the Poſſeſſions of the Church. Pepin had no ſooner repaſſed the Mountains, but Aſtulphus, regardleſs of his Promiſes laid Seige to Rome, and ravaged all the Country with Fire and Sword; Stephen thereupon had Recourſe to his Protector, to whom he writ ſeveral preſſing and ſubmiſſive Letters to haſte to his Aſſiſtance, which the King did, and re-entring Italy, forced Aſtulphus punctually to perform his Promiſe. Thus the Exarchate of Ravenna, now called Romagnia, with Pentapolis, now Ancona, the Picentine Cities and ſome others, were put into the Poſſeſſion of the Pope of Rome, who died the ſixth of April, A. C. 752, after a Papacy of five Years and twenty eight Days. Baron. A. C. 752. N. 10, 11.

STEPHEN IV. was choſen Pope after the Degradation of Conſtantine the falſe Pope, whom Toto, Duke of Nepi, his Brother, had got placed in the Chair during the Sickneſs of Paul I. which was the third or fifth of Auguſt, 768. In the Year 769 he aſſembled a Council at Rome, to order Matters about the Election of Popes, and to aſſert the Honour of Images againſt Eaſtern Image-Breakers. He died the firſt of Feb. 772, after having continued in the Chair three Years, five Months and twenty eight Days Baron. A. C. 768.

STEPHEN V. a Roman, was choſen after Leo III. He died in 816, after he had ſate Pope ſeven Months and three Days, from June 22d, 816, till the 25th of Jan. 817. Baron. A. C. 816.

STEPHEN VI. before called Baſilius, a Roman, was choſen after Adrian III. the 27th of May, 885. He writ to Baſilius, the Macedonian Emperor of the Eaſt, to take the part of his Predeceſſors againſt Photius, and diſpenſed with Stephen, Patriarch Elect of Conſtantinople, for having received his Holy Orders from the ſaid Photius. He died in May, 890 or 891, after a Pontificate of ſix Years and ſome Months. Onuphrius, Ciaconius, Platina, &c.

STEPHEN VII. placed himſelf in the Pontifical Chair about the eighth of Jan. 897, after that Boniface VI. was run away, who had intruded himſelf after the Death of Formoſus, and the Roman Clergy, to avoid the Danger of a Schiſm, approved the Election. This Stephen cauſed the Body of Formoſus to be dug out of his Grave, his three Fingers wherewith he uſed to give his Bleſſing to be cut off, and his Body to be caſt into the Tiber; but in the Year 900 himſelf was caſt into Priſon and ſtrangled. Baron. A. C. 897. Ni. 900. N. 6.

STEPHEN VIII. was the Succeſſor of Leo VI. and continued in the Chair two Years, one Month and fifteen Days. He died 931.

STEPHEN IX. a German, was choſen the ſeventh of June, 939, after Leo VII. by the Favour of Otho the Emperor, his Kinſman: Some that pretended to the Papacy were ſo enraged at it, that they fell upon the Pope, and ſo mawl'd his Face, that he was not in a Condition for ſome time to appear in Publick; but that did not hinder him from acting vigorouſly for the Church: He likewiſe aſſiſted Lewis de Outremer, King of France, againſt his Rebellious Subjects. He died 943. Baronius, Ciaconius, &c.

STEPHEN X. before called Frederick, was the Son of Gozzelon, ſurnamed the Great, and Brother of Godfrey, ſurnamed Le Barbu or Great Beard, Duke of Lorrain. He ſucceeded Pope Victor II. He held the Papal See from Auguſt, 1057, till March or April, 1058, and then died at Florence. He was learned, and the Author of ſeveral Works, and amongſt the reſt, of a Treatiſe de Veritate Corporis Domini, &c.

Patriarchs of Antioch.

STEPHEN, the firſt of that Name Patriarch of Antioch, lived in the IV Century. St. Euſtathius had expelled him from the Clergy, for being an Arian: His Party choſe him to the See of Antioch after Placillius, about the Qear 344 or 345: He was a great Oppoſer of St. Athanaſius. In 347 he and his Collegues appeared at the Council of Sardica, but finding it compoſed of Catholick Prelates, he and his Company retired, who were excommunicated by that Council; whereupon they betook themſelves to Philippi, where they held a Council of their own, and made new Articles of Faith. Euphrates, Biſhop of Cologne, and Vincentius of Capua, being ſent by the Prelates of the Council of Sardica to the Emperor Conſtantius, who was at Antioch, Stephen knowing they were ſent for no Good to him, reſolv'd to deſtroy them by means of a Strumpet, whom he got convey'd by Night into the Chamber of Euphrates; but the Thing being diſcovered, Stephen was depoſed from his See in 348, and the Eunuch Leontius put into his Place. St. Athanaſius Epiſt ad Solit. Baron. An. Chriſt. 343, 344.

STEPHEN II. lived in the V Century, and was killed at the Altar by the Eutychians, A. C. 479, having govern'd that Church three Years.

STEPHEN III. ſucceeded him, and died 482.

STEPHEN IV. a Syrian Monk, was choſen 742, after that the Church of Antioch had continued forty Years without a Paſtor. He died 744. Baron. A. C. 479, 482, 483.

Patriarchs of Conſtantinople.

STEPHEN I. was the Son of the Emperor Baſilius, and Brother of Leo VI. He was put into the Place of Photius in the Year 886: And becauſe he had received Orders from that Patriarch, counted Schiſmatical by the Latin Church, Pope Stephen IV. upon his Account diſpenced with the Canon, which declar'd thoſe who had receiv'd ſuch Ordinations, incapable of any Eccleſiaſtical Imployment. He died in 888.

STEPHEN II. ſucceeded Nicolaus Myſticus in the Year 930, and died 933.

Patriarchs of Jeruſalem.

STEPHEN, Patriarch of Jeruſalem, was before an Abbot in France, and being ſome way related to Baldwin, King of Jeruſalem, was preferred to that See in the Year 1128, and died two Years after. Baron. A. C. 1128. 1130.

CARDINALS.

STEPHEN (Cardinal) ſurnamed of Paris, Canon, and afterwards Biſhop of that City, he was born at Vitri upon the Seine, of mean Parents. He was employed by the Dauphin of France, afterwards Charles V, at the Treaty of Bretigny, for the Deliverance of King John, taken Priſoner by the Engliſh, who made him one of his Maſters of Requeſts; and King Charles V. to recompence his Services done to the Royal Family and the Government, procured him a Cardinal's Hat from Pope Urban V. in 1367. He died at Avignon 1373; his Body was conveyed to Paris, and interred in the Choir of our Lady's Church. *Du Cheſne Hiſt. des Cardin. & des Papes. Frizon. Gall. Purp. Sanmarthan. Kings and Princes of Hungary.

St. STEPHEN I. King of Hungary, was born in the Year 979, and ſucceeded his Father Geiſa, the firſt Chriſtian King, in the Year 997. He was ſo zealous in eſtabliſhing the Chriſtian Religion in Hungary, that he is look'd upon as the Apoſtle of that Kingdom. He died at Buda the 15th of Auguſt, 1038. after a Reign of 41 Years, and was buried in the Church he had cauſed to be built in Alba Regalis, or Stoel Weiſſemburg, in Honour of the Aſſumption of the Bleſſed Virgin. Bonfin. Hiſtor. Hungar. Colman Vit. S. Steph. Baron. in Annal. & Martyr.

STEPHEN II. ſurnamed Thunder, was raiſed to the Royal Dignity in 1114, and reigned 18 Years after Colman II. He had Wars with the Venetians, Polanders, Muſcovites and Bohemians. His Wife was the Daughter of Robert, Duke of Puglia, and his ſecond, Judith, the Daughter of Boleſlaus, Duke of Poland. He quitted his Crown in 1131, and became a Monk. Bonfin. Hiſt. of Hungar.

STEPHEN III. ſucceeded to his Father Geiſa III. in 1161. Ladiſlaus II. and Stephen IV. his Uncles, uſurped the Crown that belonged to him of Right; but the former held it only ſix Months, and the latter five. He waged War, with good Succeſs, againſt the Venetians, and the Emperor Emanuel, about the Poſſeſſion of Illyrium. He reigned eleven Years, nine Months, and five Days, died without Iſſue, and was buried at Gran.

STEPHEN IV. called V. came to the Crown after the Death of his Father Bela IV. A. C. 1260. He loſt the Battel he fought againſt Ottocares, King of Bohemia. After this he made Myſia Tributary to him, and defeated the Kings of Bohemia and Bulgaria, and would in all likelihood have increaſed his Conqueſts, had not Death overtaken him the firſt of Auguſt, 1272. in the Beginning of the 13th Year of his Reign.

Kings of Poland, and other Princes of the ſame Name.

STEPHEN, King of Poland, of the Family of Batthori in Hungary, was the Son of Anthony Batthori: His Worth raiſed him to the Principality of Tranſylvania in 1571, and afterwards, when Henry of France, King of Poland, returned to France to take Poſſeſſion of that Crown, he was choſen King of Poland at Warſaw the 15th of December, 1575. This Election was carried for him by the Faction of Zborouski, upon this Advantage he poſſeſt himſelf of Cracovia, where he was crown'd by Staniſlaus Kam Kowiski, becauſe James Wkanski, Arch-biſhop of Gneſne, was in the Intereſt of Maximilian of Auſtria, who had been choſen by another Party: But notwithſtanding this Competition, before the End of the Year 1576, he was univerſally owned as King of Poland, the Inhabitants of Dantzick having been ſeverely chaſtized for their obſtinate Refuſal to own him for their King. After this he declared War againſt the Moſcovites for the Recovering of Smolensko, Severia, Livonia and Eſthonia. He took Poloczko in Aug. 1579. he plunder'd Sokol after having taken it by Storm; he ſubdued Jaroſlaw, Suſſa and Turoula. After theſe Exploits at the Dyet of Warſaw, he refuſed to make Peace with the Moſcovites, becauſe they would not part with Severia and Livonia, which he invaded in 1580; ſubdued all the ſtrongeſt Places in that Country; and Riga the Capital of it was ſurrendred to him at the Beginning of the Year 1581. He ſent to Pope Gregory XIII. for ſome Aſſiſtance towards the ſubduing the reſt of Livonia, and in the mean time took from the Moſcovites the Cities of Oſtrow and Pleskow, where a Peace was concluded upon Condition of their yielding all Livonia to Poland; and that the King in Conſideration thereof ſhould reſtore to the Moſcovites Wielkowki, and the other Places he had taken in Moſcovy. And at the Deſire of the Moſcovites a Truce was concluded for ſix Years, that they might have time to regain the Places which the Swedes had taken from them in Livonia, which they engaged to put into the Hands of the King of Poland, with the reſt of that Country. Stephen was ſucceſsful both in Peace and War. He died before the End of the Truce made with the Moſcovites, the 13th of December, in the Year 1586, without any Iſſue by Anna Jagellon his Wife, whom the States had obliged him to marry. Sigiſmund his Nephew ſucceeded him in the Principality of Tranſylvania, when it was in his Power to have named him his Succeſſor in Poland. He was a magnanimous and wiſe Prince; and was uſed to ſay, That God had reſerved to himſelf Three Things as his peculiar Divine Prerogative, viz. The Power of Creating, the Knowledge of Futurities, and Dominion over the Conſcience. John Kamoski, his Chancellor, writ his Epitaph, containing the moſt ſignal Actions and Atchievements of his Reign. Neugebawer Hiſt. Polan. Thuan. Hiſt. Lib. 53. Connot. Hiſt. Poland.

STEPHEN WAIWOD of Walachia and Moldavia, lived towards the End of the XV Century and the Beginning of the following, and is famous in Hiſtory for his Victories obtain'd againſt Mahomet, Emperor of the Turks, Matthias, King of Hungary, Albert, King of Poland, and the Tartars. He died 1504, Michow, Lib. 4. Cap. 84. &c.

STEPHEN WAIWOD of Moldavia, poſſeſs'd himſelf of that Government by Favour of the Turks, after having cauſed the lawful Sovereign of that Country to be ſlain: He reigned like a Tyrant, and his illegal Management of Affairs gave Occaſion to a Revolt of the Bojars or Great Men of the Country, who aſſaſſinated him in his Tent, having defeated 2000 Turks and Tartars he always kept about him for his Guard. Conſult the ninth Book of the Hiſtory of Thuanus A. C. 1552.

STEPHEN, ſurnamed Henry, Earl of Campagne, Brie, Blois and Chartres, he twice undertook the Croiſade for the Holy War, and was ſlain in his ſecond Voyage near to Rama in Paleſtina in the Month of July, 1102. He was in ſo great a Reputation for his Wiſdom and Conduct amongſt the Barons of the Holy Land, that they were uſed to call him The Father of the Council. Guibert, Abbot of Nogent, near to Coucy in Picardy, tells us, that he was Lord of as many Caſtles as there were Days in the Year. He was married to Alice, the youngeſt Daughter to William the Conqueror, by whom he had William, Earl of Chartres, from whom the Lords of Sully and Voulon are deſcended.

STEPHEN, a Dominican, lived in the XIII Century to the Year 1260. He wrote the Annals of Milan and Cremona, the latter being the Place where he was born.

STEPHEN, a Carthuſian of Siena, lived in the XIV Century. He was once Secretary to St. Catharine of Sieny, and publiſh'd the greateſt part of her Dialogues with the Life of that Saint: This Stephen was a Perſon of Character and elected General of his Order, but there being a Competition in the Caſe, he reſign'd his Claim to prevent a Schiſm. *Petreius in Notis ad Dorland. in Biblioth. STEPHENS (Charles) born at Paris, was a famous Phyſician in the XVI Century, and Brother of the learned Robert Stephens. He died in 1564. He left behind him a Daughter called Nicola, who was famous for her Skill in the Languages, and was married to John Liebaut, a Phyſician. Charles Stephens was Author of the following learned Works: De diſſectione partium Corporis humani, Lib. 3. De Nutrimentis, Lib. 3. Prædium Ruſticum, which he tranſlated into French. De re hortenſi Vinetum. Diſcourſes of the Hiſtories of Lorrain and Flanders. An Abridgment of the Hiſtory of the Dukes of Milan. La Croix du Main, and du Verdier-Vauprivas Bibl. Franc. Vander Linden de Script. Med. &c.

STEPHENS (Henry) a Pariſian, the Son of Robert Stephens, the famous Printer, lived in the XVI Century, and was one of the moſt learned Men of his Time for Greek and Latin. When he was yet very young he publiſh'd Anacreon's Poems with curious Notes, and afterward tranſlated them into Latin Verſe; and wrote a great many other Works both in Proſe and Verſe. The exact Knowledge he had of the Greek and Latin Tongues, gave him Occaſion of gratifying the Publick with abundance of excellent Editions of ancient Authors, eſpecially of Greek ones, and in particular of his Theſaurus Linguæ

Græcæ. He writ alſo a Treatiſe of The Excellency of the French Tongue, which he dedicated to the French King. He was a Proteſtant, and in a Book of his which he calls A Preparatory to the Apology of Herodotus, hath ſome ſharp Reflections upon the Religious of the Romiſh Communion. His Religion made him to retire to Geneva, and he died at Lions in 1598, being ſeventy Years of Age. He left behind him divers Children, and amongſt the reſt Paul Stephens, who was his Heir, and a Daughter who was married to Iſaac Caſaubon. Sanmarthan. Lib. 4. *Elog. STEPHEN's (Robert) a Pariſian and famous Printer, lived in the XVI Century: He got himſelf a great Reputation, not only by the Fairneſs and Correctneſs of his Impreſſions, but alſo by his Works. He had extraordinary Skill in the Greek and Latin Tongues, and publiſh'd the moſt compleat Dictionary that ever had been ſeen till then of the Latin Tongue, with the Title of Theſaurus Linguæ Latinæ, in three Volumes, in Folio. He was a Proteſtant, which was the Reaſon of his retiring to Geneva, where he died in 1559, at the Age of 56. Charles Stephens, a famous Phyſician of Paris, was his Brother, and was Father to Henry and Robert Stephens, which latter was the Father of Francis and Robert, who writ ſeveral Poems in Greek and Latin. La Croix du Maine Bibl. Franc. Pag. 443, 444. Geſner. in Bibl. &c. Almeloveen de vita Stephanorum.

STEPHEN (Stephanus Byzantinus) an eminent Grammarian living in the Vth or VIth Century. He wrote a Dictionary, in which he ſet down the Nouns Adjectives of every Town and Country, deriv'd from the Nouns Subſtantives of their reſpective Places, to theſe he joyn'd a great many Mythological and Hiſtorical Obſervations, by which he explain'd the Original of Towns and Colonies, and gave an Account of the Alterations and Revolutions in them; in which Work the Author ſhew'd a great deal of Reading and Exactneſs: The true Title of the Book was ἐθνικὰ, and not that commonly given it, περὶ πόλεων: There is nothing remaining of it now but a very indifferent Abridgment made by the Grammarian Hermolaus, which he dedicated to the Emperor Juſtinian. Father Auguſtin, an Auguſtin Fryar, tranſlated it into Latin, and added learned Annotations to it; of which there are two Holland Editions in Folio, that of Pinedo and that of Berkelius, the laſt being the better, and printed 1688. Lucas Holſtenius wrote Notes upon it, printed 1684. *Bayle Diction. STEPHEN, a Knightly Order of Florence, was founded in 1560 by Coſmus I. Duke of Florence in Honour of Pope Stephen X. or IX. to thoſe who omit Stephen II. It was confirmed by Pius IV. and V. who beſtowed the ſame Privileges upon this Order as upon that of Maltha. The chief Houſe of the Order is at Piſa, where none are admitted but ſuch as have given Proof of their Gentility, and are obliged to ſerve by Sea and Land, according to the Pleaſure of the Great Duke, who is Grand Maſter of the Order. Upon ſolemn Days they wear a Robe of White Camlet, embroidered with Red, and a Croſs upon it. There is ſome Difference between the Habit of the Prieſts and Servants of this Order. Spondan. A.C. 1554. N. 5. Favin. Theatr. d'Hon. & de Cheval.

STERLING, a Town and County in Scotland, called otherwiſe Striveling, from its Situation upon the Deſcent of a ſteep rugged Rock. This is the Vindovera of Ptolomy. At the upper End of the Town ſtands the Caſtle, which is reckon'd Impregnable, and the ſecond of the Kingdom. King James V. beautified this Place with ſtately Buildings. It is chiefly noted for being defended by the Engliſh againſt Edward Bruce, Brother to Robert, King of Scots, the Garriſon having capitulated to ſurrender if they were not relieved at a limited Time: Whereupon Edw. II. of England marching with 100000 Men to its Relief, was overthrown by Robert Bruce at Bannokburn. It's from this Place that our Money is called Sterling, as being firſt coined here, and current amongſt the Saxons, Scots and Picts. This Town is reckoned the Key of Scotland, as defending that Paſs by the Bridge over the River Forth betwixt the North and South. This Country boaſts for giving Birth to the Emperor Maximus, and of Severus's Wall, now called Graham's Dike, raiſed croſs this Province to reſtrain the Scots and Picts from invading the Britains: Abundance of Roman Antiquities and Inſcriptions have been dug from the Ruins of this Wall, which extended 36 Miles in Length from Eaſt to Weſt. The Country abounds with Wood, Corn and Paſturage, and with Rivers well ſtock'd with Salmon, of which Forth is the Principal, that renders it pleaſant as well as fruitful. It is bounded with Monteith and Fife on the North, the River Clyd on the South, Lothain on the Eaſt, and Lenox on the Weſt.

STERQUILINUS, was a Falſe Deity the Heathens called upon when they were dunging their Ground, as ſuppoſing him to have the Care and Superintendence of that Affair.

STESICHORUS, a Lyrick Poet, Native of Himera, a City of Sicily, he lived in the 42d Olympiad. Of the many Works that he writ, we have only ſome few Fragments, ſcarce ſufficient to give us a Character of his Writing, but that Horace, Dionyſius Halicarnaſſeus and Quintilian commend his Stile for being lofty, full and majeſtick. This pleaſant Story is told of him, that having made ſome Verſes againſt Helen, it was highly reſented by Caſtor and Pollux her Brothers, (who puniſhed this Boldneſs of the Poet by ſtriking him blind: This Misfortune taught him more Wit, and having recanted his former Error in a Song compoſed in Praiſe of that Lady, he recovered his Sight again. *Euſeb. in Chron. STESICRATES, a Statuary, who undertook to make the Mount Athos the Subject of his Art. This Mountain, now called Monte Santo, is a Peninſula joyn'd to Macedonia, which jets out into the Archipelago, between the Bay of Monte Santo, formerly called Sinus Strymonicus and Singiticus. He undertook, I ſay, to cut out on this Mountain, which is of a prodigious height, a ſtupendous Coloſs of Alexander the Great, ſo as to leave in each Hand ſufficient Space to build a City on, and to make the Sea paſs between his Legs by the Communication of the two Gulphs which were ſeparated by this Peninſula: But he died when he had but drawn the rude Draught of his Work. He was hence called Steſicrates Temerarius. Lucian. De Methodo Scribendi Hiſtoriam.

STETIN, the Capital of Pomerania, and a Hanſe-Town, ſtanding upon the River Oder, which divides it into two Parts. It is a very ſtrong, fair and large City, and a great Place of Trade, being about eight Miles from the Baltick Sea to the South, four from the Confines of Brandenburg, and 44 from Dantzick to the South-Weſt. Here is ſtill to be ſeen the Palace of the ancient Dukes of Pomerania, who had their ordinary Reſidence in this City for many Ages till the Year 1630, when Guſtavus Adolphus coming before it got Admiſſion, Bogiſlaus, the laſt of that Line, dying ſoon after: The Swedes being in Poſſeſſion, got their Right confirmed by the Treaty of Munſter, and continued in Poſſeſſion of it till the Year 1677, when the Duke of Brandenburg took it after a tedious Seige; but in 1679 it was reſtored to the Swedes by the Treaty of St. Germain who are ſtill in Poſſeſſion of this very ſtrong Place.

STEUCHIUS (Auguſtinus) ſurnamed Eugubinus, was born at Gubio, in the Dukedom of Urbino, in Italy, and flouriſhed about the Year 1540, being look'd upon as one of the moſt famous for Piety and Learning of his Time. He was Keeper of the Vatican Library. He was very ſkilful in the Oriental Languages, which he made uſe of for digeſting of the Manuſcripts of the Papal Library in thoſe Languages into a better Order. Not long after he had the Biſhoprick of Chiſamo in Candia beſtowed upon him. We have ſeveral of his Works, viz. his Annotations upon the Pentateuch, his Commentaries upon 47 Pſalms, upon Job, *&c. STEWART, the Surname of the Royal Family of Scotland. The Original of which was thus; An. 1050. Bancho, the Thane of Lochaber, a Great Man and of the Blood Royal, being ſuſpected by Mackbeth the Uſurper, becauſe he underſtood by Sorceries that his Poſterity ſhould enjoy the Crown of Scotland, he way-laid him, and cauſed him to be murthered; but his Son Fleanchus eſcaping into North Wales, married the Daughter of Griffith ap Lewellin, the Prince of the Country, by whom he had a Son called Walter, who being a valiant Man went for Scotland, and becoming a Favourite to Malcolm III. then King, who had kill'd Mackbeth, he was employ'd againſt the Rebels in Galloway, where he ſlew their General, and put them to Flight; for which good Service his Majeſty created him Lord Stewart of all Scotland, from which Office his Family took Surname afterwards, and beſides the Royal Family ſpread into divers other Noble Branches. Robert, Son of Marjory, Daughter to King Robert Bruce, was the firſt of them who came to the Crown. Camb. Brit. Buchan.

STEWART (Walter) Earl of Athol in Scotland, was Son to King Robert II. and Uncle to King James I. whom he baſely murthered in the Convent of Dominicans at St. Johnſton, having corrupted ſome of his Domeſticks who gave Admiſſion to the Aſſaſſinates. He was prompted to this execrable Villany by blind Ambition, ſome Witches with whom he conſulted having informed him, that he ſhould be crowned King in a great Concourſe of People, which happened accordingly; for the Nobility purſued him and his Accomplices with ſo much Vigour, that they were all taken, though they eſcaped by the Darkneſs of the Night: The chief of them were put to Death by exquiſite Torments, and he himſelf was executed in this manner; The firſt Day he was put in a Cart, whereon was erected an Engine reſembling a Stork, which hoiſted him up by Ropes let through Pullies, and let him down again to the very Ground, which looſened his Joints, and put him to incredible Pain: Then he was ſet on a Pillory with a red-hot Iron Crown on his Head, having this Motto, The King of all Traytors. The ſecond Day he was bound upon a Hurdle, and dragg'd at a Horſe's Tail through the Great Street of Edinburgh. The third Day he was laid upon a Plank, had his Bowels cut out alive, and thrown into the Fire, as was likewiſe his Heart immediately after. His Head was cut off, and ſet on a Pole in the higheſt Place of the City, and his four Quarters hang'd up in the moſt noted Cities of the Kingdom. After him his Grandſon was executed, but not with ſuch Torture, becauſe but young and ſeduced by the Grandfather; ſo that he was only hang'd and quarter'd: But Robert Graham who actually committed the Murther, was carried in a Cart through the City, with his Right-hand nail'd to a Gallows which was faſtened to it, the Executioner running burning Irons in the mean time into his Thighs, Shoulders, and other places remote from his Vitals; and then he was quartered as the former. This Puniſhment, ſays the Hiſtorian, exceeded the Bounds of Humanity; but conſidering the Barbarity of the Murther, deſcrib'd in its Place, it may ſeem tolerable. Æneas Silvius being then Ambaſſador from the Pope in Scotland, ſaid upon this Occaſion, That he could not tell whether he ſhould give them greater Commendation that revenged the King's Death, or brand them with ſharper Cenſure of Condemnation that ſtained themſelves with ſo heinous a Parricide. Buchan. Camb. Brittan.

STHENELUS, Son of Capanius and Evadne, an Officer of Note at the Seige of Troy, and one of thoſe that went into the Wooden Horſe, in order to ſurprize the City. Homer. Virgil. Æneid. 2.

STHENELUS, King of Argos or Mycenæ, Son of Perſeus and Andromeda; He ſucceeded his Father in the Year of the World 2799, and left it to Euriſtheus his Son in 2837. Euſeb. Chron. Pauſanias, Appollodorus, &c.

STILICO, a Vandal by Extraction, and General under Theodoſius the Great, was a Favourite of that Prince, having married Serena, his Brother's Daughter. Some time after, the ſame Theodoſius having declared his Sons, Arcadius Emperor of the Eaſt, and Honorius of the Weſt, he made Rufinus Tutor to the firſt, and Stilico to the ſecond. This Dignity raiſed him to a very high Degree of Power, and made him Commander in chief of all the Roman Armies; and being a Perſon of wonderful Courage and great Experience, all Things proſpered in his Hands, till Ambition ruined him. About the Year 402 he defeated the Goths in Liguria; and Alaricus, who for thirty Years together had ravaged Thrace, Greece and the Provinces of Illyria, without meeting with any Reſiſtance, was forced to ſave himſelf by Flight: But Stilico, to ſerve his own Intereſts, deprived the Empire of the Fruit of this Victory; for when it was in his Power to have hinder'd Alaricus from making his Eſcape, he, inſtead thereof, made a ſecret Alliance with him, and ſuffered him to get away, concluding, that when the Empire ſhould have no more Enemies, there would be no more Need of him, and that War was neceſſary to keep him up in his preſent Station of Significancy and Power. Some time after he overthrew Radagiſus, and was twice the Emperor's Father-in-Law, who had married his Daughter Maria, and after her Death her Siſter Thermania; ſo that every thing ſeem'd to conſpire to raiſe him to the higheſt Point of Power and Honour: Which not being able to glut his inſatiable Ambition, he form'd a Deſign of raiſing his Son Eucherius to the Empire; and to this end, of a long time had entertain'd a ſecret Alliance and Correſpondence with the Barbarians, and made uſe of Alaricus to this Purpoſe, ſometimes beating him, and at other times letting him have the Victory. But at laſt the divine Juſtice ſuffer'd his Treaſon to be diſcover'd; whereupon Stilico was put to Death by Order of Honorius in 408, and his Son Eucherius and Wife Serena were ſtrangled about the ſame time, ſhe being accuſed by Placidia, the Emperor's Siſter, of having perſuaded the Barbarians to come and beſiege the City of Rome, and had been Partaker of all her Huſband's Deſigns. The Senate paſs'd a Decree that his Name ſhould be raz'd out of all the publick Places where it had been engrav'd, and that all his Statues ſhould be caſt down. Proſp. & Marcellin. in Chron. Oroſ. Lib. 7. Claudian. de Stilic.

STILPO of Megara, a Philoſopher and Diſciple of Euclid. He was a Perſon of ſo great Eloquence, and of ſuch a winning Carriage, that other Philoſophers quitted their Maſters to hear him. Ptolomeus Soter and Demetrius having taken the City Megara, had a high Eſteem for him, offering him an Abode and Money. He is look'd upon as the Head of the *Stoicks. Diog. Laert. Lib.*2. Vit. Phil. Senec. Epiſt. 9. *& Cap.*5. de Conſt.

STIRIA, a Province of Germany, by the Inhabitants called Steyermarck, which was a part of the Old Noricum or the Upper Pannonia, towards the Rivers Muer and the Drave. It is bounded on the Eaſt by Hungary, on the North by Auſtria, on the Weſt by the Dioceſe of Saltzburg and Carinthia, and on the South by Carniola. It is commonly divided into the Upper and Lower Stiria, and Gratz is the Capital of it; the other Cities are, Cilley, Kermend, Marcpurg, Petaw, Pruck am Muer, Rakelſpurg. Caniſha, a very ſtrong Place, belongs alſo to this Province, but is now in the Hands of the Turks, and reckoned to the Lower Hungary. The Quadi were the old Inhabitants of this Country, who being driven out by the Romans, the Country was called Valleria, in Honour of a Daughter of Diocleſian ſo called. This Country is in length 110 Miles, and 60 in breadth. It formerly had Princes of its own, but now belongs to the Houſe of Auſtria; and abounds with Iron Mines, Wine, Corn, Cattel and Salt. Cluver. Deſcript. Germ. Script. Rer. Germ. Hoffmanus.

STOBÆUS (John) a Greek Author living in the 4th or 5th Century. He wrote ſeveral Tracts mention'd by Photius in his Bibliotheca, the moſt conſiderable of which are, Eclogarum, Apothegmatum, & Vitæ Præceptionum, Lib. IV. Collectanea Sententiarum, &c. We have nothing but his Collections remaining. Photius Cod. 167. Geſner in Bibl. & in Proleg. Collect. Sentent. Stobæi.

STOCKHOLM, Holmia, a great City, and the Capital, of the Kingdom of Sweden, with a Haven at the Mouth of the Lake Meler, ſtanding in the Province of Upland, in the Borders of Sudermania. It is the ordinary Reſidence of the Kings of Sweden, and a Place ſurrounded with Rocks, Mountains and Lakes, which make its Situation look ſomething odd: Its Haven is as ſafe and ſecure as any in Europe, and very convenient, for the greateſt Ships can come ſo near the City, that they ſeem to touch the very Houſes, and lie ſafe and quiet in the Harbour without Anchors or Cables. Stockholm conſiſts of ſix little Iſles and two Suburbs; the Iſles are Stockholm, Ridderholm, Konungſholm, Helglandeſholm, Schipſholm, and Ladduggarſland, with the North and South Suburbs. The Iſle of Stockholm is that which properly is called the City, as being the beſt peopled and moſt frequented part of it. Since the Year 1641, the Streets have been much enlarged and beautified, which before were narrow and full of Windings. The principal Street, called Regeringſ-gatan, is faced with very fine Houſes, five Stories high. Here is to be ſeen the Palace of the Nobles called Kiddarchuſet, being the Place appointed for the ſitting of the General Dyets, the Hall where they meet being adorned with the Arms and Titles of the Earls, Barons, and Gentlemen of the whole Kingdom. In the ſame Iſle is the great Market-place, and the King's Caſtle, with a Church dedicated to St. Nicholas, which is cover'd with Copper, as the other Churches likewiſe are, and moſt part of the Houſes. The Iſle of Ridderſholm or Knights-Iſle, is joined to Stockholm by a Bridge of Wood; in it ſtands the Cloſterkirk, which formerly belonged to the Cordeliers, where the two laſt Kings of Sweden are interred. There are many fine Gardens in this Iſland, and pleaſant Walks, and it is joined to the North Suburbs by a Wooden Bridge. Helglandeſholm or Holy-land Iſle, is the Place where moſt Artificers and Handicrafts-men live: It is joined by a Wooden Bridge to the Iſle of Stockholm, and by another to the North Suburbs. Schipſholm or the Iſle of Ships, where is to be ſeen the Court of Admiralty, and ſeveral Magazines for the Building and Equipping of Ships: It is joined to the North Suburbs by a Bridge of Wood. Ladduggarſland, or the Land of Country Houſes and Farms, ſo called becauſe here is the King's Dairy, his Aviaries and Warrens, where his Deer and other Beaſts are kept; there are alſo many Gardens, and Houſes of Pleaſure and Recreation; where the Common People divert themſelves when they walk abroad. The North Suburbs is join'd to it by a Bridge of Wood, and is very conſiderable, as being the Place of Abode of many Handicrafts-men, and of the King's Gardens. In the South Suburbs a great Trade is driven with the Commodities that come from Moſcovia, and a magnificent Exchange has been lately built here, for the Convenience of Merchants. The Lake of Meler makes the Haven of this City, and the ordinary Place for Anchorage is between the City and Schipſholm; and is an excellent Haven for its Capaciouſneſs, the Firmneſs of its Bottom, and its Security from Winds and Tempeſts, ſo that the greateſt Veſſels ride ſafe here, without any Danger from the higheſt Winds or the Attacks of Enemies, by reaſon of the Forts that defend the Entry of it. The Caſtle, which is the Place of the King's uſual Reſidence, ſtands upon a Piece of Ground which commands the Haven, and over-looks the City; the great Gate whereof faceth a great Place or Square, which is ſeparated from the Caſtle by a Ditch. The whole Building is divided into three Parts by ſo many great Courts: In the firſt are the Corps de Guards and great Pavilions, wherein is kept a Court of Judicature, call'd the College of Execution, in which the Governour of the City ſits Preſident. The ſecond Court contains the King's Apartments, which conſiſts of ſeveral Pavilions, and of ſome Galleries. The Building of the Caſtle, tho' ancient, yet hath much of Symmetry, and is very commodious and richly furniſh'd. On the one Side of this Court is the King's Chappel, which is a large and neat Building; the Roof of it is adorned with Gilding, and Figures in Relief, very well wrought: Some of the ancient Kings are buried here. In this Court are contained alſo the Chamber of War, the Chancery, and the Chamber of Accounts: Above the Chancery is the Chamber where the Senators of the Kingdoms ſit, and near to it is the Great Hall of the Kingdom, where the States General ſit when they meet at Stockholm. Round about it are to be ſeen the Arms of all the Provinces of the Kingdom. A little beyond this is a famous Library, remarkable for a great Number of choice Manuſcripts, and a great Number of Figures to the Waſte, repreſenting Heathen Gods, Emperors and Kings, the greateſt part of which are more conſiderable for the Curioſity of the Work, than for the Riches of the Matter, which is of ſeveral Mettals, and ſome of them of fine Stones. The third Court contains the Queen's Apartments, which are commodious and very richly furniſh'd. Another Thing very remarkable in this Caſtle is the Round Tower, called Trekronor, from the three Crowns of Copper gilt, which are ſet on the top of it, repreſenting the Arms of Sweden, and alluding to the three Crowns of Divedon, Denmark and Norway, which were formerly ſubject to one King. There is great Store of Artillery lodg'd in the lower Stories of this Tower. The Swedes have not affected the fixing of the Burials of their Kings to one Place, as well becauſe that Crown had paſs'd to divers Families, who have choſen to be interr'd in the Tombs of their Anceſtors, as becauſe of the Diverſity of Religions, and the Changes of the Royal Reſidence, which hath been transferred to ſeveral Cities. The Heathen Kings were uſed to be interred under the three Mountains of Upſal, which are about half a League from that City, which formerly was the Capital of that Kingdom, whoſe Names are Gambla, Upſala and Hegar. The moſt of the Roman Catholick Kings are buried in the Cities of Strengnes and Wadſtena; the Lutheran Kings have their Sepulchres in the Cathedral of Upſal, except only the two laſt, Guſtavus Adolphus, ſurnamed the Great, and Charles Guſtavus, ſurnamed Auguſtus, who have their Tombs at Stockholm, in the Iſle of Ridderſholm. Some Lords of Sweden are alſo buried there. Jonvain. Voyage de Denmark. Saxo. Grammat, &c.

STOCKPORT, or Stopford, a Market-Town of Cheſhire in Mecklefield Hundred, upon the River Merſey.

STOCKSBRIDGE, a Market-Town and Borough in the County of Southampton, and Kingombom Hundred, upon the River Teſt, repreſented by two Burgeſſes in the Houſe of Commons.

STOECADES, Iſles of the Mediterranean, upon the Coaſt of Provence, now called Iſles d'Hieres, from their Neighbourhood to that City, the three principal of which are Hypæa, Prote and Meſe or Pomponiana; the reſt are Portecros and Porquerolles, and thoſe which the Ancients called Phœnice, Sturium, &c. which are now Teſte de Can, Ribaudas, Ribaudon and Langouſtier. Theſe Iſlands were peopled by Monks in the Time of Caſſianus, and are ſo fertil, that the Knights of Malta, after the Loſs of Rhodes, thought to make their Reſidence here.

STOICKS, Philoſophers of a Sect ſo called, whereof Zeno was the Author. They were ſo called from a Portico or Piazza, called by the Greeks Stoa, which was a Place at Athens where they met to confer about their Opinions. They held, that all things happened by a fatal Neceſſity, which they defined to be ſuch a fixed Order and Concatenation of Cauſes as could not be alter'd by God himſelf, which they called Fatum: They made all Vices equal, ſaying, it was as bad to kill an Ox as a Man, and a Peaſant as a Prince; and ſet their Wiſe-Men almoſt on even Ground with Jupiter himſelf. Of this Sect were Chryſippus, Apollodorus, Poſſidonius, Cleanthes, and others. Laertius, Lib. 7. de vit. Phil. Lipſ. de Philoſ. Stoic. where their Opinions may be ſeen at large. See Zeno Cittiæus. Cic. in Paradox.

STOKEGOMER, a Market-Town of Williton Hundred in the South-Weſt Parts of Somerſetſhire.

STOKESLEY, a Market-Town of Langbargh Wapentake in the North-Riding of Yorkſhire.

STOLHOFFEN, Lat. Stolhoffa, a ſmall Town upon the Rhine in the Marquiſate of Baden, well fortified, two German Miles Eaſt of Hagenow, and three South-Eaſt of Strasburgh. Hoffm.

STOLPE, a Town in the Farther Pomerania, with a ſtrong Caſtle, ſubject to the Elector of Brandenburg, three Leagues from the Mouth of the River Stolpe, and ſeven Weſt of Leoburg. Hoffman.

STONAR, a Sea-Town of the Iſle of Thanet, in the North-Eaſt Parts of Kent, noted for being the Sepulchre of Vortimer, King of the Britains, who having vanquiſh'd the Saxons in many Battles, and driven them out of the Iſland, ordered his Corps to be interred here, thinking thereby to fright the Saxons from landing any more upon this Coaſt; wherein he imitated Scipio the African, who having had good Succeſs againſt thoſe of Carthage, ordered that his Tomb ſhould be turn'd towards Africk to fright the Carthaginians from the Coaſts of Italy: But the Britains found at laſt, by ſad Experience, the Difference between a King in the Field and a King in the Grave.

STONE, a Market-Town of Pyrehill Hundred on the Trent in Staffordſhire. It lies in Cheſter Rode.

STONEHINGE, a ſtupendious Fabrick, and the greateſt Rarity England affords to be ſeen, ſtands in Salisbury-Plain, about two Miles Weſt of Amesbury in Wiltſhire, It conſiſts of many huge rough and grayiſh Stones, ſome of them 28 Foot long and 10 broad, ſet upright in the Ground by two and two, with a third laid overthwart, and faſten'd in the ſame with Tenons and Mortiſes. According to Speed, this Monument was erected by Aurelius, ſurnamed Ambroſius, King of Britain, to the Memory of his Nobles treacherouſly ſlaughter'd there by the Saxons on a Day of Parley: But a Book called Stonehinge Reſtored, proves it to be a Roman Work or Temple dedicated to Cœlus or Cœlum, Son to Æther and Dies, the eldeſt Gods of the Heathen. That it is a Roman Deſign, is apparent by the Order and Scheme of the Monument, conſiſting of four equilateral Triangles inſcrib'd in a Circle with a double Portico, a Scheme much uſed by the Romans in their magnificent Structures, beſides that, the Architraves therein are all ſet without Mortar, according to the Roman Architecture, wherein it was ordinary to have ſaxa nullo fulta glutine. To prove it a Temple dedicated to Cœlum, the Situation, Aſpect and Form thereof may go a great way; its Situation in a Plain in an open Air, without any Woods or Village about it; its Aſpect being ſub dio, and built without a Roof; its Form being circular, and conſequently a proper Figure for the Temple of Cœlum, But how theſe Stones were convey'd hither, is another Queſtion: Cambden is of Opinion, that they were made upon the Spot by Art, the Ancients having had the Art of making Stone: Thus the Ciſterns of Rome were made of Sand conſolidated together with a kind of Lime into the Hardneſs of a Stone. He adds, that many dead Mens Bones are digged up hereabouts.

STONYHURST, in the Pariſh of Mitton in Ribbleſdale, within the Hundred of Blackburn, in the County Palatine of Lancaſter, a ſtately, well-built old Stone Edifice, pleaſantly ſituate near the River Ribble, on the Edge of Yorkſhire, the Seat of Sir Nicholas Sherburn, Baronet, whoſe Family have been Owners thereof ever ſince before the Reign of King John. See more in Sherburn.

STONY-STREET, a pav'd Way which reaches from Hith in Kent to Canterbury, ſuppoſed to be a Work of the Romans. Cambd. Brit. Pag. 351.

STONY STRETFORD, a Market-Town of Newport Hundred in the North Parts of Buckinghamſhire, ſeated on the Eaſt Banks of the River Ouſe, which parts it from Northamptonſhire; and is a good large Town, conſiſting of two Pariſhes, and is ſuppoſed by ſome Geographers to be the Lactodurum of the ancient Romans. It lies upon the ancient Cauſey-Way, which is called Watling-ſtreet, which in the Time of the Romans croſs'd all the Country from Dover as far as Cheſter. Here King Edward the Elder ſtop'd the Danes while he fortified Towceſter againſt them. Here likewiſe did King Edw. I. erect a ſtately Croſs in Memory of his Queen Eleanor, whoſe Corps reſted here coming up from Lincolnſhire to Weſtminſter Abbey. Finally, this Town lies in the Way from the South to the North-Weſt Parts of England, and is accomodated with good Inns. There is another Town of this Name in Warwickſhire, well inhabited, and hath two Pariſh-Churches, it ſtands upon the River Avon, over which it hath a good Stone-Bridge.

STOORJUNKARE, the ſecond God of the Heathen Laplanders, who is, as it were, the Lieutenant of their God Thor, which Word is borrowed from the Norwegians, who call the Governours of Provinces Junkares: They alſo call him Stourapaſſe, that is to ſay, Holy and Great. They believe that all tame and wild Beaſts are under his Command. Each Family hath its Stoorjunkare, which they worſhip on the top of ſome Rock, or near to ſome Cave on the Banks of ſome Lake. The Figure of this God is a Stone that has ſome Likeneſs of a Head, and is found amongſt the Rocks, or on the Banks of Lakes. The Laplanders are great Admirers of this Stone, as ſuppoſing it made by the expreſs Order of their Stoorjunkare, to the end he might be adored under that Figure. They place this Idol on the Ground, on a little Butt or Hillock, and often ſet about it many little Seites or petty Gods, according as they find more or leſs of theſe Stones; the greateſt of which they call Stoorjunkare, the ſecond repreſents his Wife, the third his Son or his Daughter, and all the reſt his Servants or Maids. They commonly ſacrifice to him a Male Rangifer (a Beaſt reſembling one of our Stags) and after that they have ſacrificed this Victim, they in a Semi-circle rank its Horns and Bones behind the Figure of their Idol. Scheffor. Hiſt. Lapon.

STOPFORD, a Market-Town of Northwick Hundred, in the South-Eaſt Parts of Cheſhire. It ſtands on the South-ſide of the River Merſey.

STORK (Nicholas) was one of the chief of the Enthuſiaſtical Anabaptiſts that join'd with Thomas Muncer in Germany. Theſe Men ſet up a new Sect and quitted Luther, pretending that his Doctrine gave too much Liberty: Theſe two Wretches deceiv'd a great Many by an Appearance of Mortification: Their Tenents were, That Revelations upon the Return of Prayer were the only Rules for Conduct and Practice; and, That no Laws either Eccleſiaſtical or Civil were obligatory upon Conſcience; their Reaſon was, That all Men were of the ſame noble Extraction, equally the Sons of God, and Redeem'd into the ſame Liberty by Jeſus Chriſt, and therefore ought to be upon the ſame Level in other things, no one having any juſt Pretence for Authority and Dominion over another. Luther drove theſe Fanaticks from Wittenburg, where they had gain'd a great many Proſelites in 1525: Upon this Expulſion they ſpread all over Germany, preaching up Anabaptiſm, and raiſing abundance of Mob, who, where ever they came, declar'd for the Liberty of the Goſpel. Maimburg. Hiſtoir du Lutheraniſme.

STORMAREN, Lat. Stormaria, a Province of Holſtein, ſubject in part to the Duke of that Name, and partly to the King of Denmark. It is bounded by Wagaren and Lavenburg on the Eaſt, by Bremen and Lunenburg on the Weſt and South. Its principal Places, Gluckſtat, Crempen and Pinnenburg, ſubject to the King of Denmark, and Elmeſhorne, Steinharſt, Reinborſt and Barmſted under the Duke of Holſtein. Hamburgh ſtands alſo in this Province. Hoffm.

STOUFACHER (Warner) a Suiſs, one of the 3 Conſpirators who retriev'd the Liberty of their Country from the intolerable Oppreſſions of Griſler, Gov. of Suiſſerland, for the Emperor Albert I who having taken a fine Houſe from him in 1307, continued to add Threats to this Piece of Injuſtice; whereupon Stoufacher was incenſed to that degree, that he took a Reſolution to ſhake off this intollerble Yoke; and having communicated his Intent to Walter Furſt of Vry and to Arnold Melchtal of Onderval, William Tell joyned with them, who killed the Governour the ſame Year. The firſt Day of the following Year the three Cantons of Suitz, Vry and Vnderwald, razed all the Fortreſſes of the Country to the Ground, and thereby laid the Foundation of their Republick. Simler. de Repub. Helvet.

STOW on the WOULD, a Market Town of Slaughter Hundred in the fartheſt Eaſt Parts of Glouceſterſhire.

STOW, a large and fair Market-Town of Stow Hundred, ſituate on the Orwell, graced with a fair Church, and driving a great Trade of Tamies and other Stuffs.

STOW (John) born in London, Author of a Chronicle of England, and a large Survey of London, ſuch as no City in Chriſtendom, Rome excepted, can brag of; wherein he hath perpetuated its Monuments and Glory. In his Chronicle he was very punctual as to the Notation of Time; and though he takes Notice of many inconſiderable Things, yet Sir Francis Bacon and Mr. Cambden did not diſdain to make uſe of his Labours. He died April the fifth, 1605, and lies buried in St. Andrew's Vnderſhaft, London. His Chronicle has ſince been continued by another Hand. Fuller. Engl. Worth.

STRABO, a Philoſopher, who lived in the Time of Auguſtus and Tiberius. He was originally of Cnoſſus in Crete, but born at Amaſi, a City of Cappadocia or Pontus. He ſtudied under Xenarchus, a Peripatetick; and after that betook himſelf to the Stoicks, as himſelf tells us in his Geography, which we have in ſeventeen Books, and are a ſufficient Proof of his great Genius, Learning and Diligence, who had travelled into divers Countries to obſerve the Situation of Places, and the Cuſtoms of the People he was to treat of. He mentions ſome other Pieces of his, which never came to our Hands. It is ſuppoſed that he died about the twelfth Year of the Reign of Tiberius: Sure it is, that he died at a great Age, if we conſider what he ſaith in his ſecond Book, that Cornelius Gallus, the Governour of Egypt, had been his particular Friend. Suidas in Lex. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. Lib. 2. Cap. 6.

STRABO, Pompeius. See Pompeius.

STRABO, a Sicilian, who had ſo ſtrong a Sight, that being at the Cape Lylybæum or Coco in Sicily, he could diſcern the Ships that ſet Sail from the Haven of Carthage in Africa, and counted every Sail of them, notwithſtanding that the ſaid Haven was about 130 Italian Miles off. Valer. Max. Lib. 1. Cap. 8. Plin. Lib. 7. Cap. 22.

STRADA (Famianus) a Roman and famous Jeſuit, eſteem'd one of the moſt excellent Orators of his Time, and Author of the Hiſtory of the Low-Country Wars, writ in a fine Style, only he ſpeaks too favourable on the Spaniards Side. He hath left ſome other Works; and was preparing a Treatiſe of Deviſes, and another of Epitaphs, when Death overtook him. He died in 1649.

STRAELSUND, Sundia, a ſmall, but very ſtrong City of Germany, in the Hither Pomerania, upon the Shores of the Baltick Sea, and has an Harbour over-againſt the Iſle of Rugen. It ſtands five German Miles from Gripſwalde to the North, and ten from Anclam, and about four from the Iſle of Rugen; and is now one of the Hanſe Towns, but was formerly a Free Imperial City. This City is built in a Triangle, and hath three Gates, to which there is no coming any other Way but by long and well fortified Cauſe-ways, or rather Dikes, caſt up in the midſt of great Marſhes or Boggs, with which the City is ſurrounded, except where it lies open to the Sea, ſo that it cannot be attack'd but by the three aforeſaid Dikes. The Elector of Brandenburg took this Town in 1678, after he had ruined 1500 Houſes by his Bombs and other Fire-Works, and the next Year it was delivered to the Swedes again by the Treaty of St. Germain. The greateſt Part of the Town is ſurrounded by the Sea, and the reſt ſecured by a Moraſs, It was built by the Danes in 1211, and in 1629 beſieged by Count Walſtein for the Emperor; but reliev'd by Guſtavus Adolphus, King of Sweden, whom they call'd to their Aſſiſtance.

STRANGE, or L'Eſtrange (Sir Roger) deſcended from an ancient and noble Family, one of which, John L'Eſtrange, had a Grant of the Mannors of Neſſe and Cheſworthen from King Henry II. The eldeſt Branch of this Family were Barons of Knokin and Elleſmere, Governours of ſeveral Caſtles, had an honourable Share in the Wars againſt the Welſh, Scots and French, and married into the noble Families of the Clyffords, Beauchamps, Mowbrays, Giffards, Fitz-Allans, Earls of Warwick, Nottingham, Arundel, &c. and in the Reign of King Edward IV. Joan, Daughter and ſole Heir of John, Lord Strange, was married to George Stanley, Son and Heir to Thomas, Earl of Derby, who in Right of his Wife had Summons to Parliament, by the Title of Lord Strange, which Title has ever ſince belong'd to the eldeſt Sons of the Earls of Derby. To come down to the L'Eſtranges of Norfolk, we are to obſerve, that John, Lord Strange of Knokin, by his Deed bearing Date in 3 Edw. II. infeoff'd his younger Brother Hammon in the Mannor of Hunſtanton in Com. Norf. from which Hammon the Stranges of Hunſtanton are lineally deſcended; Sir Roger, firſt mention'd, is the Son of Sir Hammon L'Eſtrange by Alice his Wife, Daughter to Richard Stubbs of Sedgford in Norfolk. Eſq. The Arms of this Family are, Gules, Two Lyons Paſſant, Argent. Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. 1ſt. Dugdale's Ancient Vſage of bearing Arms, &c. Sir Henry Spelman's Remains. Weaver's Funeral Monuments. Fuller's Worthies, &c.

STRASBURG, Argentoratum, the Capital City of Alſatia in Germany, and one of the faireſt and greateſt Cities thereof. It is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Mentz, and was for many Ages a Free and Imperial City, ſeated in the midſt of a great Plain upon the River Ill, where it falls into the Breuſche, about one Mile from the Rhine, over which it hath a Timber-Bridge of great Length, and is a Place of great Strength and Wealth, eight German Miles from Briſach to the North, twelve from Spire, fourteen from Baſil, fifteen from Bipont, and twenty from Nancy and Metz. This City is ſo very ancient, that it is ſaid by ſome to be built A. M. 1955. The Arſenal and Town-Houſe do well deſerve the View of Strangers, and the Cathedral dedicated to the Bleſſed Virgin, deſerves their Admiration, not only for the Magnificence and Vaſtneſs of the Structure, and its Doors of Braſs, but more particularly for its Steeple, which is Pyramidal, and full of Windows; 'tis the moſt eſteem'd for its Workmanſhip and Height of any other Steeple in Chriſtendom, being 574 Foot high. But that which is moſt of all admired in this Steeple is the Clock-Work, which, beſides the Hours of the Day, repreſents the Motions of all the Planets. In the Year 1440, or thereabouts, the Art of Printing was firſt invented by one John Guttenburg, a Citizen of Strasburg, who yet removed about the ſame time to Mentz, and there moſtly uſed and improved this noble Art; ſo that a mighty Conteſt had been managed for many Ages between Haerlem, Strasburg and Mentz, which of them ſhall have the Honour of this Invention. The nobleſt Place on the Rhine, ſaith Dr. Burnet, is Strasburg, a Town of huge Extent, which has a double Wall and two Ditches all round it. The inner Wall is old, and of no Strength, nor is the outward Wall very good. It hath a Fauſſebraye that is faced with Brick twelve or fifteen Foot above the Ditch, but the Counterſcarp is in ill Condition; ſo that it could have made no long Reſiſtance: But the French have fortified it very ſtrongly. There is a Cittadel built on that Side that goes to the Rhine, that is much ſuch a Fort as that of Huninghen; and towards the Bridge there is a Horn-Work that runs a great way, with Out-Works belonging to it: There are alſo two ſmall Forts at the two chief Gates, which lead towards Alſatia; ſo that in caſe of a Revolt they can cut off all Communication with the Country, the Bridge being ſo well fortified. There are alſo Forts in ſome Iſlands of the Rhine, and ſome Redoubts; ſo that all round this Place there is one of the greateſt Fortifications in Europe. The Capitulations made with the French have not been hitherto well obſerv'd; but there is not above 200 Romiſh Converts. The Pride and Folly of this Town, together with their over-great Love of Liberty, betray'd it into the Hands of the French, by refuſing 500 Men the Emperor offer'd them for their Security. It is already ſunk in its Trade, and will ſink more when the Fortifications are finiſhed. Dietrick, who was look'd upon as the chief Man that betray'd the Town, was the firſt Man that was baniſhed conntrary to the Capitulation, becauſe he would not change his Religion. In 1529 this City embraced the Proteſtant Religion, and in the Year following entred a League with the Reform'd Cantons for her Defence; but in Sept. 1681. the French King, having before poſſeſs'd himſelf of all Alſatia, ſuddenly ſurprized this important Place, in a time of Peace when no Body ſuſpected it. Long. 29. 26. Lat. 48. 25. Tacitus de Mor. Germ. Cluvier. Deſc. Germ. Bruſchius de Epiſc. Germ. Henſchenius, &c.

STRASBURG, a ſmall City of Poland in the Ducal Pruſſia, which the Inhabitants call Brodvitz. It hath been ſeveral times taken in this Century.

STRATFORD, a Market-Town of Barlickway Hundred in the South-Weſt Parts of Warwickſhire, ſeated on the North-ſide of the River Avon, with a fair Stone-Bridge over it; and for Diſtinctions ſake called Stratford upon Avon, to difference it from ſeveral Towns of the ſame Name in other Counties.

STRATHEARN, a Country in the Highlands of Scotland, taking its Name from the River Earn, which runs through it: This Country has the Stewartry of Menteath, betwixt it and the Forth. It had formerly the Title of Earldom, and as ſuch belonged to ſome of the Royal Family, afterwards to the Grahams, who match'd with the Heireſs. It is now divided amongſt many Noblemen and Gentlemen, and belongs to the Shire of Perth. It lies pleaſantly on each ſide the River, and is honoured with the Reſidence of many Perſons of Quality.

STRATHNAVER, a Country in the North of Scotland, ſo called from the River Navern which cuts it in the middle: It is bounded by the Ocean on the North, Sutherland on the South, and Carthneſs on the Eaſt. This Country is mountainous, full of Lakes and Woods, nor is it ill provided of Havens. The whole is fitter for Paſturage than for Tillage; it abounds with Cattle of all ſorts, which they ſell to other Countries, and has numerous Herds of wild Deer. It was formerly more peſter'd with Wolves than any other Part of the Nation, but they are now totally deſtroy'd: Towards the Sea-Coaſt they have ſome Arable Land, and the whole is well provided with Sea-Fiſh, Salmon, &c. whence they make conſiderable Gain, as alſo from their Iron-Works. In this Country are ſtill to be ſeen many Monuments of the Victories over the Danes. The Inhabitants are robuſt, plain-hearted, very hardy, and great Lovers of their Chief, for whom, according to the Manner of all thoſe Highland Countries, they will willingly fight, and, beſides their uſual Rent, cheerfully contribute either to the Portion of his Daughters, redeeming Mortgages, or making new Purchaſes on Occaſion. They are ſo much addicted to Hunting and Fowling, that they value no Man except he employ himſelf that way: whence it happens that they are always provided with Veniſon. Gordon. Theat. Scotiæ. It is moſt noted for giving Title of Lord to the eldeſt Son of the Earls of Sutherland.

STRATO, King of Sidon, whom King Darius ſet upon the Throne, ſetting aſide thoſe to whom by Birthright it did belong. Alexander the Great having taken this City depoſed him, becauſe he had not ſubmitted himſelf timely enough. Hepheſtion having had the Succeſſion to that Crown offer'd him, choſe rather to beſtow that Honour upon Abdolominus, which Alexander approv'd of: Abdolominus was a Prince of the Blood of the ancient Kings of Sidon, whom Fortune had reduced to the Neceſſity of turning Gard'ner. When the Marks of the Royal Dignity were brought him, he receiv'd them with a Surprize ſuitable to that great Change, but yet with Senſe and Greatneſs enough to ſhew he was not unworthy of that Station. He excited Alexander's Wonder by the Thanks he return'd him for his Favour, and by the Prayer he made, That the Important Gods would be pleaſed to afford him now as much Strength of Mind to bear a Regal Affluence, without Pride or Elevation, as before they had imparted to him Conſtancy in enduring his Poverty, without being caſt down. Q. Curt. Lib. 3. Hiſt. Alex.

STRATO, Lampſacenus, a Philoſopher, ſurnamed Phyſicus or the Naturaliſt, was the Son of Arceſilaus, and the Diſciple of Theophraſtus, the Peripatetick. He was choſen to be the Maſter of Ptolomeus Philadelphus, who had a great Eſteem for him. Apollodorus, quoted by Diogenes Laertius, ſaith, that he ſucceeded in the School of Theophraſtus in the 123d Olympiad, and that he taught there eighteen Years together. He left a great Number of Writings behind him, viz. Of Royalty, of Juſtice, &c. There were in all eight Great Men of this Name; the firſt was the Scholar of Iſocrates; the ſecond is the Philoſopher juſt now mentioned; the third was a Phyſician, the Scholar of Eraſiſtratus; the fourth writ the Hiſtory of the War of Philip and Perſeus againſt the Romans; the fifth was the Geographer mentioned by Suidas, though ſome take him to be the ſame with Strato already mentioned; the ſixth was a Poet and Writer of Epigrams; the ſeventh an ancient Phyſician mentioned by Ariſtotle; the eighth a Peripatetick Philoſopher of Alexandria. Diog. Laert. in Strat. Lib. 5. Vit. Phil. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Grec. Lib. 1. Cap. 20.

STRATO, the Rhetorician, was Brutus's Friend, who gave him his Death's Wound at his Entreaty, after the Battle at Philippi. He was afterwards reconciled to Auguſtus by means of Meſſala. Plutarch. in Vit. Brut.

STRATONICE, the Daughter of a Muſician, and one of the moſt beloved Concubines of King Mithridates, who after his Death delivered up the Place where all his Treaſures were to Pompey, of which he took only ſome part, wherewith to adorn the Temples, and to ſet forth his Triumph, leaving the reſt to her Diſpoſal.

STRATTIS (Olynthius) a Greek Hiſtorian, who lived ſome time after Alexander the Great, or rather who accompanied him in his Warlike Expeditions. He writ a kind of Journal of the Life of that Prince, in five Books, another of his Death; as alſo a Treatiſe of Rivers, Lakes and Fountains. Suidas in Strat.

STRATTON, a Market-Town of Cornwal, where is abundance of Garlick. It lies 174 Miles Weſt from London; famous for a Victory which King Charles I. obtain'd over the Rebels May 16. 1643. The latter was moſt numerous, and advantageouſly barricado'd on the top of a Hill, which the King's Forces mounted four ſeveral Ways; this Action continued from Five in the Morning until Five in the Afternoon, the Succeſs doubtful until the Parliamentarians gave way, 300 of their Men being kill'd on the Spot, and 170 made Priſoners; they alſo loſt thirty Pieces of Ordnance, with all their Baggage and Ammunition. Sir Ralph Hopton was created Baron of Stratton for this Victory.

STRAUBENGEN, Lat. Strabenga, a Town of Bavaria, having a Bridge over the Danube, ſix German Miles below Ratisbone, and eleven from Paſſaw. Hoffm.

STREIN or STRINIUS (Richardus) a Baron of Auſtria, and a Proteſtant, who was very ſkilful in Roman Antiquities, which he hath very much illuſtrated by a Book he writ De Gentibus & Familiis Romanorum. He publiſhed alſo ſome Diſcourſes in Defence of the Liberty of the States of Holland, but ſuppreſs'd his Name, that he might not offend the Princes of Auſtria, whoſe Subect he was. He writ alſo ſome Treatiſes of Divinity, and a Book called Commonitorium de Roberti Bellarmini ſcriptis, atque libris. Voſſius de Philoſoph.

STRENGENES or STREGNES, Stregneſia, a City of Sweden, in the Province of Sudermania, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Upſal: It ſtands eight Swediſh Miles on the Lake of Meler, from Stockholm to the Weſt, and three from Torſil to the Eaſt.

STRENIA, a Goddeſs of the Romans that préſided over New-Years-Gifts, which they called Strenæ, her Feſtival was celebrated on the ſame Day, in a little Temple dedicated to her on the Via ſacra or Holy Way. The Word Strenus ſignified Good, Favourable, Happy. Dempſter in Paralipom. ad Roſin. Lib. 1. Reg. 3.

STRIDONIUM, now call'd Sdrin or Sdringa. A City of Dalmatia, famous for having been the Birth-place of St. Jerom. Others make this a City of Pannonia upon the Confluence of the Mure and Danube, fifteen Miles beneath Rakelſpurg in Stiria.

STRIGELIUS (Victorinus) a German born at Kaufburn, an Imperial City of Suevia: He was Profeſſor of Divinity, firſt at Jena, next at Leipzigk, and laſt of all at Heydelberg; his chief Works are, Epitome Doctrinæ de primo motu. Argumenta & Scholia in Vetus & Novum Teſtamentum. Tres partes locorum Communium. Enchiridion locorum Theologicorum. Scholæ Hiſtoricæ à condito Mundo ad natum Chriſtum, &c, He died at Heydelberg 1569, being 45 Years of Age. Thuan. Hiſtor. Melch. Adam.

STRIGONIUM or GRAN, a City of the Lower Hungary on the Danube above Buda. This City is ſeated on a Plain, and commanded by a neighbour Mountain, on the top of which is a Caſtle. The Archbiſhop of Strigonium is Primate, Chancellor and Preſident of the Council of that Kingdom; his Revenue is a hundred thouſand Crowns per An. The Cathedral ſtands in the Caſtle. Solyman II. or the Magnificent, took this City in 1543. The Archduke Matthias beſieged it in 1574 with 50000 Men, but was forced to raiſe the Siege. Count Mansfeld, General of the Imperial Forces, beſieged this City again in 1595, and defeated 14000 Turks, but died ſoon after before this City: The Archduke Matthias continued the Siege, and forced this City to ſurrender upon Terms, after having been 52 Years under the Dominion of the Turks. After this, Mahomet III. beſieged it in 1606, and took it again, from whom the Imperialiſts got it in 1683, after having raiſed the Siege of Vienna, and after an obſtinate Combat maintained by the Imperialiſts and Polanders, near the Village Barkan, where the King of Poland and his Son were in great Danger of their Lives. Laſtly, in 1685 the Turks having again beſieged it, the Duke of Lorrain, with the Elector of Bavaria, forced them to raiſe the Siege, and totally defeated their Army. Hiſt. des Troubles de Hongrie.

STRIVALI or STROFADI, Strophades, two ſmall Iſlands in the Ionian Sea, to the South of the Iſle of Zante, towards the Weſtern Part of the Morea: The Greater of them is but three or four Miles round, yet produceth a great Quantity of Grapes and other excellent Fruits. It is every where ſo full of Springs, that one can ſcarce thruſt a Stick into the Ground but Water will bubble up. It is ſaid, that in the Fountains of this Iſland are often found the Leaves of Plane-Trees, though none of them grow in the Iſland, or any nearer than the Morea, which is near thirty Miles off; which makes ſome believe, that theſe Springs come from thence by ſome hidden ſubterranean Channels. The Inhabitants of theſe Iſles are all of them Caloyers or Greek Monks that never marry, to the Number of about ſixty or eighty. The Convent is built in the Manner of a Fortreſs, with a Terraſs at the top, planted with Cannons, and have a Portcullice at their Gate, to prevent the Entrance of the Pyrates; though indeed they have no great Reaſon to fear them, becauſe, not only the Turks, but the Pyrates of Barbary, have a Reſpect for theſe harmleſs Monks. The Poets tell us, That the Harpyes retired to theſe Iſles, being chaſed by Zethes and Calais. J. Spon. Voyage de Italie. Coronelli Deſcription of Morea. See Strophades.

STROMBOLI, Strongyle, one of the Iſles of Lipari in the Tuſcan Sea, towards the North of Sicily, ſo called from its round Figure, which is about ten Miles in Circuit: It caſts up ſulphureous Flames by Day and by Night, which, beſides the Stench, render the Ground ſo barren, that it cannot be tilled; yet there are ſome Corners of it which are very fertil in all manner of Fruit and Cotton. The Inhabitants, by the Smoak, do know three Days beforehand what Wind will blow; and becauſe Æolus was King here, the Poets took Occaſion from hence to feign that he was the God of the Winds. Maginus.

STROMITA, or Mira, a City of Lycia, now a Metropolis, its Archbiſhop having 36 Suffragans under him: It ſtands two Miles from the Shore. Long. 59 40. Lat. 38. 25.

STROMONA, Strymon, a River which ſeparates Thrace or Romania from Macedonia: It takes its Riſe from Mont Orbel, which is a Part of Mount Hæmus, and falls into the Archipelago, near the Gulf of Conteſſa. The Cranes, who from their great Numbers haunting this River in Summer, are called Strymoniæ Aves, do leave it in the Winter, and betake themſelves to the Nile.

STRONGOLI, Strongylum, a ſmall City and Principality in the Kingdom of Naples, in the Hither Calabria, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Sancta Severina, placed on an high Hill, three Miles from the Ionian Sea to the Weſt, and eight from its Metropolis to the South-Eaſt. Some think, it was of old called Macellum.

STROUD, a Market-Town of Buleigh in Gloceſterſhire, ſituate on the River Stroud, with a Bridge over it, and abundance of Fulling Mills on the Banks thereof. This is a handſome, well-built and thriving Town, where they dye Scarlet the beſt of any Place in England, the Stroud Water having a peculiar Quality to give the right Tincture. It is 78 Miles from London.

STROZZI (Kirico or Quiric) a Nobleman of Florence: He was a Traveller and Architect, but he excelled in the Peripatetick Philoſophy. He added a ninth and tenth Book both in Greek and Latin to the eight, which Ariſtotle hath writ de Republica, and hath done it ſo dextrouſly, that it would be thought the very Work of that famous Philoſopher, if he had not quoted ſo many Authorities of the Poets: He alſo tranſlated into Latin the eight Books of Clemens Alexandrinus Stromata. He profeſs'd the Greek Tongue and Philoſophy at Florence, and ſince that was alſo Profeſſor at Bononia and Piſa, where he died in 1565, being 63 Years of Age. He was Brother to that Heroical Lady Laurentia Strozzi. Thuan. Hiſtor.

STUCKIUS (Johannes Guilielmus) was born in the Canton of Zurick in Swiſſerland, and hath made himſelf famous by his Works, amongſt which is a very curious Treatiſe of the Feaſts of the Ancients, where he ſets down the Manner how the Hebrews, Chaldeans, Greeks, Romans, and many other Nations, celebrated their Feaſts and ordered their Entertainments, and the Ceremonies they obſerved at them: He hath alſo writ concerning Sacrifices, as well of thoſe of the Heathens as of the Jews; a Treatiſe of Angels and Commentaries upon Arrian, &c. Melchior Adam vit. Germ. Theolog.

STUCKLEY (Thomas) a younger Brother of the wealthy and noble Family of Illfracombe in Devonſhire, having prodigally miſſpent his Patrimony, he entered on ſeveral Projects, the Iſſue general of all decay'd Eſtates; and firſt pitch'd on the Peopling of Florida, then lately found out in the Weſt-Indies; ſo confident was his Ambition, that he bluſh'd not to tell Queen Elizabeth, that he had rather be Sovereign of a Mole-hill than the higheſt Subject to the greateſt Prince in Chriſtendom; adding moreover, that he was aſſured he ſhould be a Prince before his Death, I hope, ſaid the Queen, I ſhall hear from you when you are ſtated in your Principality; I will write to you, quoth Stuckley; in what Language, ſaid the Queen? in the Stile of Princes, To our dear Siſter. His Project at Florida being blaſted, he went into Ireland, and miſſing of his Aim there too, went into Italy, where Pius Quintus created him Baron of Roſs, Viſcount Murrough, Earl of Wexford, and Marqueſs of Leinſter, and then furniſh'd him with 800 Soldiers, paid by the King of Spain, for the Iriſh Expedition. In his Paſſage thereunto Stuckley lands in Portugal, juſt as King Sebaſtian, with two Mooriſh Kings, were undertaking a Voyage into Africa; and being perſuaded to accompany them, adviſed that the Soldiers ſhould be refreſh'd two or three Days before Battle, but was not heard. He was killed in the Fight An. 1578, after he and his Men had valiantly behaved themſelves.

STUGART, Stugardia, a City of Schwaben in Germany, which is the Capital of the Dukedom of Wirtemberg, and the Seat of the Dukes. It has a fine and noble Caſtle, and ſtands upon the River Necker, one German Mile from Eſling to the Weſt, and four from Tubingen to the North. It was built by the Vandals, and repaired by John I. Elector of Brandenburg, and afterwards by Otho III. for the Line of Stugart. See Wirtemberg.

STUHLWEISSENBURG. See Alba Regalis.

STULINGEN, a Territory of Germany in Schwaben, which gives the Title of Landgrave to its Poſſeſſors.

STUNICA (James Lopez) a Spaniard: He was a conſiderable Maſter in Greek and Latin; well vers'd in Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, and Doctor in Divinty in the Univerſity of Alcala. He wrote againſt Eraſmus, and publiſh'd a curious Book, though with an odd ſort of Title, call'd Itinerarium dum Compluto-Romam Proficiſceretur. He died at Naples in 1530. Bibliotheca Hiſpanica.

STUPITZ (John) Vicar General of the Auguſtin Monks in Germany, was much valued by Frederick, Duke of Saxony, who made uſe of his Aſſiſtance in the Univerſity of Wittenburg, founded by that Prince in 1502. When the Indulgences granted by Pope Leo X. in 1517. were publiſhed, Stupitz complain'd to the Duke of Saxony of the Miſmanagement of the Collectors and Preachers employ'd in this Affair, who ſeem'd pitch'd upon purely for the Intereſt of thoſe who were to ſhare in the Indulgence Money: This Remonſtrance he made either, as being heartily concern'd at the Abuſe of Religion, or elſe, becauſe he was diſpleaſed by ſeeing the Dominicans preferred to the Monks of his own Order, who had formerly been employ'd in this Affair in Saxony. Now, being reſolv'd to give the Dominicians all the Trouble he was able, he made uſe of the Aſſiſtance of Martin Luther, as being one of the moſt eminent Doctors in Wittenburg: Luther having preached againſt the Collectors and Preachers of Indulgences, wrote to the Archbiſhop of Mentz, who was nominated by the Pope to publiſh theſe Indulgences in Germany, and ſent him 95 Propoſitions, which he ſet up the ſame Day, being the Eve of All-Saints, upon the Church-Doors of Wittenburgh: Many of theſe Propoſitions were againſt the Pope's Authority, the Treaſure of the Church, and Validity of Indulgences. John Tetzel, a Dominican and Inquiſitor, who had a Commiſſion to preach up theſe Indulgences, publiſh'd 106 Propoſitions at Francfort upon the Order againſt the Theſes of Luther and Stupitz; and being Inquiſitor, he ordered Luther's Poſitions to be burnt, which cauſed his own to be treated in the ſame manner by his Adverſaries: This Diſpute was, as it were, the Signal of Battle, not only between the Auguſtinians and Jacobins, but likewiſe between the Roman Catholicks and Lutherans. Maimbourg. Hiſtoire du Lutheraniſme.

STURBRIDGE, a Market-Town in Worceſterſhire, and Hundred of Halfſhire, on the River Stower, over which it has a Bridge. The Town is well built, ſituate in a Valley, and hath a Free-School and a Library, It is ninety Miles from London.

STURMISTER, a Market-Town of Redlane Hundred in the North Parts of Dorſetſhire, called Sturmiſter from the River Stower, on the North-ſide whereof it is ſeated, and over which it has a fair Stone-Bridge; a noted Place for the Remains of an ancient Caſtle near it, called Newton Caſtle, ſometimes the Seat of the Weſt-Saxon Kings. This Town is 94 Miles from London.

St. STURMIO, was of a noble Family of Bavaria: Charlemagne in 768, in Conſideration of his holy Life, ſent him in Embaſſage to Thaſſilo II. and he was the firſt that preached the Goſpel to the Saxons; and after having taken great Pains to propagate the Chriſtian Faith, he died the ſixteenth of Decemb. 779. Andr. Brunner Annal. virt. & fort. Bojor.

STURMIUS (Jacobus) was born in 1490 at Sleida, near to Collen: After having begun his Studies at Liege, and continued them at Paris, he returned again to Germany, where he was honoured with ſome of the higheſt Employments of the City of Strasburg; and it was by his Advice the Magiſtrates erected an Univerſity there in 1538, whereof he was made the chief Director. He died at Strasburgh in 1553, in the 64th Year of his Age. It was he perſuaded John Sleiden to undertake that Hiſtory which hath made him ſo famous in the World; and not only furniſh'd him with Memorials, but alſo reviſed his Work. Melchior Adam. Thuan. Hiſtor.

STURMIUS (Johannes) was born at Sleida near to Collen in 1507. After having ſtudied at Lovain, where he alſo exerciſed Printing; he came to Paris in 1529, where he was honour'd with the Employment of Royal Profeſſor of the Latin and Greek Tongues: But being oblig'd to leave France becauſe of his Religion, he ſettled himſelf in 1537 at Strasburg, where he became acquainted with Jacobus Sturmius, whom he perſuaded to endeavour the ſettling of an Univerſity in that City, which having happily brought about, this John Sturmius was made Profeſſor and Rector of it, and got the Foundation of it ratified by the Emperor Maximilian II. in 1566. He afterward diſcharged ſeveral Embaſſies, and aſſiſted at divers Conferences about Religious Matters: At laſt, having taught above fifty Years at Strasburg, he loſt his Sight, and died in 1589, being eighty Years of Age. He was accounted the Cicero, the Plato and Ariſtotle of Germany, and hath left abundance of excellent Works both in Proſe and Verſe; amongſt which, thoſe moſt eſteem'd are his Partitiones Dialecticæ and his Notes upon the Rhetorick of Ariſtotle; the other are, De Educatione Principum. De Nobilitate Anglicana. Linguæ Latinæ reſolvendi ratio. Univerſa Doctrina Hermogenis, Phyſica, &c. Thuan. Melchior Adam.

STURMIUS (Johannes) was born at Machelen in Brabant, was a Phyſician and Profeſſor of the Mathematicks at Lovain. He hath publiſh'd ſeveral Works, and amongſt the reſt, Roſa Hierachuntina, Theoremata Phyſices, De circuli Quadratura, &c. Valer. Andr.

STYX, a Fountain of Arcadia, a Province of the Peloponneſus in Greece, which proceeds from the Lake Pheneus, at the Foot of Mount Nonacris, famous for the extreme Coldneſs of its Waters, which were preſent Death to thoſe that drank them; they alſo corroded and waſted Iron and Copper, and broke all manner of Veſſels they were put into; neither could any thing contain them ſave the Hoof of a Mule. Some think, that Antipater poyſon'd Alexander the Great with this Water. Authors tell us alſo, that this Fountain bred Fiſh, that were mortal to all that eat of them. All which bad Qualities of this Spring gave occaſion to the Poets to make Styx one of the Rivers of Hell, which was in ſo great Veneration with their Gods, that when any of them ſwore by Styx, they were bound to perform what they had ſworn, or, in caſe of Failure, to be deprived of the Privileges of their Divinity for the ſpace of an hundred Years.

SUANI, or Souani, a People inhabiting part of Mount Caucaſus, towards the Eaſt of Mingrelia. They are of a becoming Stature, but their Countenances are hideous: They boaſt themſelves to be Chriſtians, though ſcarcely any thing of Religion or Piety is to be ſeen amongſt them; and yet are the moſt civiliz'd of all the Inhabitants of that Mountain. They reſort in Troops to Georgia in the Beginning of the Summer, to work at Harveſt, and carry their Sallary back with them, not in Money, which would be of no uſe to them, but in Linnen and Woollen Cloth, Carpets, Salt, Iron, and other things they ſtand in need of. They are valiant Soldiers, and very dextrous in the uſe of Fire-Arms. Strabo ſaith, they abounded with Gold, which they kept in Sheeps ſkins; but no ſuch thing is found amongſt them now. P. Lamberti Relation de la Mingrelie in Monſieur Thevenot, Vol. 1.

SUATHES, King of Pannonia, where now is a part of Hungary. The good Reception he gave to an Embaſſador of the Huns, that were in Tranſilvania, made him loſe his Kingdom about the Year 744. This Embaſſador, who was come to deſire ſome Ground for them to Till and Inhabit, being very honourably receiv'd, carried away with him a Clod of the beſt Earth of the Country, a Handful of Graſs, and a Bottle full of the Water of the Danube: Whereupon Aradus, General of the Huns, judging of the Fruitfulneſs of Pannonia by the Quality of the Ground, the Graſs and Water, ſent back the ſame Embaſſador to Suathes, to preſent him with a White Horſe, a Golden Saddle, and a Bit of the ſame Mettal; whereupon Suathes freely granted them as much Land as ſhould be neceſſary for their Settlement in the Country. But he was extremely ſurpriz'd when the Embaſſador came and demanded of him to be put in Poſſeſſion of the Lands which had been ſold to the Huns, informing him that they had bought Pannonia, having given the Horſe for the Ground, the Bridle for the Graſs of the Fields, and the Saddle for the Water. Suathes ſmiling, told the Embaſſador, that if this were their Meaning, they might knock the Horſe in the Head with a Club, throw the Bridle into the Fields, and the Saddle into the Danube; which ſo incenſed the Huns, that they came and invaded Pannonia, and defeated Suathes his Army, who himſelf was drowned in the Danube. Bonfin. SUAREZ (Franciſcus) a Spaniard and famous Jeſuit, was born at Grenada in 1447. He entred into that Society at the Age of ſeventeen, and maintain'd himſelf in Repute by reaſon of his great Knowledge in Philoſophy and School-Divinity, whereof he was Profeſſor at Alcala, Henares, Salamanca and Rome, and at laſt betook himſelf to a retired Life, to be at Leiſure to digeſt his Works in order, which he hath left us in 24 Volumes. He died at Lisbon in 1517, being ſeventy Years of Age. Alegambe de ſcript. Societ. Jeſ.

SUAREZ RIBERA (Emanuel) a Spaniſh Lawyer, the Scholar of Hector Rodoric, who writ learned Obſervations upon Pinellus, and compoſed that great Work, entituled, Theſaurus Receptarum ſententiarum Juris. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

SUATOBOJUS, King of Moravia, Son of Suatocopius, began his Reign in 888. He was a profane Prince, which he ſhewed by entring with his Pack of Dogs, and Winding his Horn in the Cathedral near the Altar, whilſt Methodius, Archbiſhop of Volgrade, was at Maſs, only becauſe he had not ſtaid for him till he came from Hunting. He was ſoon after excommunicated by the Pope and deprived of his Kingdom by the Duke of Bohemia. It is obſerv'd by Hiſtorians, that the Pope had permitted the aforeſaid Biſhop to ſay Divine Service in the Sclavonian Tongue, amongſt the newly converted People, becauſe there had been a Voice heard, without knowing whence it came, which uttered theſe Words, Omnis ſpiritus laudet Dominum, that is, Let every Spirit (in every Tongue) praiſe the Lord. De Rocoles les Impoſteurs inſignes.

SUATOCOPIUS, King of Moravia, began his Reign in 860. His Dominion extended over the Hungarians, Bohemians, Polanders, and thoſe of the Black Ruſſia, but was a Feudatory of the German Empire. He was ready and willing to be inſtructed in the Chriſtian Religion by Cyrillus and Methodius, Brothers, and both of them holy Prelates, who made him quit his Heathen Idolatry. He reigned very happily many Years; but being backward to pay the Tribute to Arnold the Emperor, which his Predeceſſors had paid from the Time of Charlemagne, he became engaged in a War in 888, and being defeated and forc'd to flee, he rid away to a Mountain called Sambri, where having chang'd his Habit, he took that of a Peaſant, and in this Diſguiſe he went on till he came into a vaſt Solitude, where he met with three Eremites, of whom he begg'd to be received into their Society, without diſcovering who he was. Some time after, finding himſelf near Death, he made himſelf known to the Eremites, and made them promiſe him, that they would give his Son (who ſucceeded him by the Emperor's Favour) notice of his being there, that he might come and diſpoſe of his Body; which they having perform'd accordingly, his Son Suatobojus ſent Men to bring his Father's Body to Volgrade, which was then the Capital of Moravia, there to be interred. De Rocoles les Impoſteurs inſignes.

SUATOPLUCUS, was the fourth that govern'd Bohemia during the Interregnums. He was the Son of Otho, Marqueſs of Olmutz. He drove Borivorius II. his Father's Brother, from the Kingdom, and by a Sum of Money obtain'd a Grant of the Kingdom from the Emperor Hen. V. and to make up the great Sum he had promiſed on this Account, he robb'd the very Altars. He fought for the Emperor Hen. V. againſt Hungary, which he utterly ravaged and ſpoiled, after having taken Nitria; but hearing of ſome Commotions in Bohemia, he haſted thither; and conceiving it to be for his Intereſt to pluck up this growing Miſchief by the Roots, he put to Death almoſt all that were originally of Warſaw, without ſparing either Women or Children, becauſe of the old Hatred thoſe of that City had conceiv'd againſt the Princes of Bohemia. Thoſe who eſcap'd his Fury retir'd to Poland, in hopes of revenging themſelves ſome time or other, which not long after was preſented them; for Suatoplucus having declared War againſt the Polanders, upon Pretence of their having favoured Borivorius, marched to the Siege of Glogaw, upon the Frontiers of Poland, where he was kill'd by a Dart ſtruck into his Back by a Man ſet on by one of thoſe of Warſaw, whom he deſign'd to have kill'd. His Body was carried to Bohemia, and interred in a Monaſtery he had built. Jul. Solimanus de Elogiis Ducum, Regum & Interregum Bohemiæ.

SUBAR, Sabur, the greateſt River in the Kingdom of Fez, written Sebu alſo; it ariſeth from Mount Seliligo in the Province of Chauz, and deſcends with that Violence, that I have ſeen (ſaith Leo Africanus) a Stone of a hundred Pound Weight carried down by it. It runneth to the North-Weſt by Bembackal, Magilla and Zavia, where it takes in the River Union from Fez: Then turning Weſt, it waſheth Arox, where it receives a great River from the North, and waſhing Mahmora, falls into the Ocean the North of Sallè. The Mouth near the Ocean is deep, and navigable for Ships of great Burthen; but it is very little uſed to that purpoſe by the Moors, who, with great Charge, bring their Corn to Fez by Land along the Banks of the River.

SUBURRA, a Ward or Quarter of the ancient City of Rome, which ſtill retains the ſame Name, in that part of modern Rome called Rione de Monti. It was of old the Haunt of Common Whores, called Nonariæ becauſe they did not begin to ſhew themſelves till about Three in the Afternoon, and Suburrana from the Place of their Abode.

SUCCESS, a Deity to whom the Romans had erected a Temple, whereof ſome Footſteps are ſtill to be ſeen between the Minerva and the Church of St. Euſtachius. They had Recourſe to this Deity, to implore an happy Event of any Buſineſs they took in hand. The famous Praxiteles made a curious Statue of this Divinity, which was placed in the Capitol. This Deity was repreſented by the Figure of a Man, holding a Cup in one Hand, and in the other an Ear of Corn and a Poppy-ſtalk; the Cup ſignified the Joy procured by this God, the Ear of Corn the Profit and Advantage he brought along with him, and the Poppy was an Emblem of that Repoſe and Quietneſs he adminiſtred, which cannot be enjoy'd whilſt the Soul is diſtracted by doubtful Expectation. Plin. Lib. 53. Varro.

SUCHUEN, a large Province of China, lying towards the South-Weſt Borders of that Kingdom, near India and the Kingdom of Thibet. It was almoſt entirely ruined by the Tartars in the late Wars. The Capital of it is Chingtu. It contains eight great Cities, 124 leſſer Cities, 464128 Families. Martin Martini. Atl. Sin.

SUCHZOW, Suczova, the Capital of Moldavia, upon the River Strech, on the Borders of Tranſilvania, fifty Miles from Jaſſey to the Weſt. This City belongs to the Turks, who have a ſtrong Garriſon in it.

SUDA, or Amphimalia, a noted Sea-Port with a ſtrong Caſtle in the Iſle of Candia, formerly ſubject to the Venetians. It is well fortified, ſituate on a Rock ſurrounded by the Sea. Baudrand.

SUDBURY, a Market-Town of Babery Hundred in the South of Suffolk, bordering upon Eſſex, ſeated upon the Stoure, with a fair Bridge over it, conſiſting of three Pariſhes, and driving a good Trade of Says; noted beſides for giving the Title of Baron to his Grace the Duke of Grafton. It is fifteen Miles Weſt of Ipſwich, and forty North of London. It ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament.

SUDERMANLAND, Sudermania, a Province in the Kingdom of Sweden. It is bounded on the North by Weſtmannia and Upſal, and on the South by the Baltick Sea. It has the Title of a Dukedom, born by the Royal Family of Sweden. The principal Places of it are Nicoping, Stregnes and Froſa. Baud.

SUDGOTHLAND, the South Part of Gothland, containing the three Provinces of Schonen, Blecking and Halland. It was ſold to the King of Sweden in 1333 for 70000 Marks of Silver,

Silver by John, Duke of Holſtein, to whom Chriſtopher II. King of Denmark, had pawn'd it: Afterwards Valdemar, King of Denmark, recovered the Poſſeſſion of it in 1341, but Frederick III. quitted it to the King of Sweden by the Treaty of Peace made in 1658.

SUENO, King of Denmark, Son to Harald I. was a valiant Prince, famous for his Victories and Conqueſts; but he ſtained this Glory by waging War againſt his Father; for having embraced the Chriſtian Faith, and joyning himſelf with ſome diſcontented Nobles, who deſired to continue Paganiſm, he twice defeated the Forces of his Father, who was killed with an Arrow as he was leaving the Field, where a third Battle was to have been fought, which ſome of the Nobles had hindered by their Interpoſing. By this means Sueno ſaw himſelf Maſter of the Kingdom in 980; but the Divine Vengeance purſuing the Parricide, he liv'd a miſerable Life during the 32 Years of his Reign. He died in 1012. Crantzius. Metrop. Lib. 3.

SUEONIA, or Suevonia, a large Port of the Kingdom of Swedeland, otherwiſe call'd Suetia Propria, betwixt Lapland to the North, the Baltick to the Eaſt, Gothland to the South, and Norway to the Weſt. It contains ten Provinces, viz. Upland, Sudermanland, Nerick, Weſtmanland, Dalcarbe, Helſing, Medelfad, Geſtrick, Gomland and Angermanland. In this Country ſtands Stockholm.

SUETONIUS (C. Tranquillus) the Hiſtorian, was the Son of Suetonius Lenis, Tribune Commander or Brigadeer of the third Legion under Otho. He was in good Eſteem under Trajan and Adrian, and was Secretary of State to the latter of theſe. Some ſay that this Employment was taken from him for being thought too intimate with the Empreſs Sabina. This Diſgrace put him upon writing ſomething that might be of a publick Uſe; and accordingly compoſed the Lives of the twelve Cæſars, a Book of equal Profit and Pleaſure. Pliny the Younger was one of this Hiſtorian's moſt intimate Friends, who in one of his Letters prompts him to a ſpeedy publiſhing of this Work, by telling him, Perfectum opus abſolutumque eſt, nec jam ſplendeſcit limâ, ſed atteritur. Beſides this, we have alſo a Treatiſe of his De Claris Grammaticis, and another of the Rhetoricians, the greateſt part of which we want, as alſo of that Treatiſe of his which contained the Lives of the Poets; for that of Terence is in a manner wholly his, as Donatus owns; and thoſe of Horace, Juvenal, Lucan and Perſius, probably are his likewiſe: But let this be how it will, 'tis very probable that St. Jerom made Suetonius his Model for his Treatiſe De Scriptoribus Eccleſiaſticis. We have loſt many other of his Pieces, mention'd by Aulus Gellius, Servius, Tzetzez and Suidas. Plin. L. 1. Ep. 18. Lib. 5. Ep. 11. Auſon. Ep. 19. *Suidas in Suet. Voſſ. de Hiſt. SUETONIUS (Paulinus) Proprætor or Governour for the Romans in Britain, he ſubdued the Iſle of Angleſey, carrying his Foot in flat-bottom'd Boats, and ſwiming his Horſes overagainſt the Enemies, who ſtood in great Numbers on the Shore ready arm'd, the Women running about them all in Black, with their Hair diſhevel'd and Firebrands in their Hands: The Druids in the mean time lifting up their Hands to Heaven, and pouring out terrible Curſes againſt the Romans, who were firſt amaz'd at ſuch a Sight, but being encouraged by their Captains, ſoon put the Enemy to Flight, and garriſon'd the Iſland. Whilſt Suetonius was buſie here, he received News that the Province had revolted, complaining of the Cruelties and Indignities committed by the Romans, who had whip'd their Queen Voadicea and deflower'd her Daughters; ſo that under the Conduct of this Queen they took Arms, ſurpriz'd the Colony at Camoladunum, now Malden, in Eſſex, beſieged the Garriſon which had fled to the Temple, and routed the ninth Legion under Petilius Cerealis, himſelf hardly eſcaping. they ſlew to the Number of 70000 Roman Citizens and Aſſociates there and in other Places. Suetonius having got together about 10000 Men, made Head againſt them, who advanced in greater Number than ever before; the Queen with her Daughter repreſenting the Indignities they had ſuffer'd, and encouraging them to fight valiantly for the Recovery of their Liberties. Suetonius on the other Hand animated his Men, who attacking the Britains in very good Order, ſoon put them to Flight, killing, as is ſaid, 80000 on the Place with the Loſs only of 400 on their ſide. Voadicea, after this Diſaſter, poiſon'd herſelf for Grief. Some time after Suetonius being accuſed of Tyranny and Miſmanagement, was ſucceeded by Tribellius Maximus. Cambd. Brit.

SUETONIUS, called Optatianus or Actacianus, lived under the Emperor Tacitus, and writ his Life, as Vopiſcus informs us.

SUEVIA, which the Germans called Schwaben, is a great Province or Circle of Germany, bounded by Bavaria on the Eaſt, Switzerland to the South, the Rhine dividing it from Alſatia on the Weſt, and Franconia to the North. It had heretofore Dukes of great Power, but is now divided into leſſer Territories, the chief of which are the Dukedom of Wirtemburg, the Biſhopricks of Ausburg and Conſtance; the Marquiſates of Baden, Schwartzwalt, Burgow and Ortnow, the Principalities of Furſtemberg and Zollern; the Counties of Ettingen and Hohenburg, and the Territories belonging to the Abbot of Kempton and Algow. It hath alſo many Imperial and Free Cities, the capital City being Ulm; the others are, Augsburg, Kempen, Conſtantz, Hailbrun, Hall in Schwaben, Lindaw, Memmingen, Nordlingen, Stugard, Tubingen and Uberlingen. It is to be obſerv'd, that the Suevi of Spain came from this Country of Germany: About the Beginning of the Vth Century they joyned themſelves with the Alains and Vandals, and about the Year 406 they invaded the Gauls, where having ravaged and ſpoiled divers Provinces, they marched into Spain in 409, and ſettled themſelves in the Provinces of Galicia in Portugal. Hermenric was their firſt King, who died about the Year 440: His Succeſſors were Rechilas, Rechiairus, Maildras, Frumarius, Remiſmondus, Theodemirus, Miron and Eboricus, who ſucceeded his Father in 583, and was dethroned by the Tyrant Andeca, who married the Widow of Miron, and confined Eboric to a Monaſtery: But Leuvigildus, King of the Wiſigoths, took the Tyrant, and join'd the Dominion of the Suevi to his own, about the Year 585, according to the Account of Johannes de Gironne in Chron. S. Iſidor. in Chron. Mariana Hiſt. Hiſpan.

SUEZ, Arſinoe, Cleopatris, Poſidium, a Sea-Port Town of Egypt, in the Bottom of the Red Sea: It hath given its Name to that Neck of Land which is between the Red Sea and the Mediterranean, which is called the Iſthmus of Suez, and ſeparates Egypt from Arabia. It is a great Rendezvous of the Ethiopians, who bring here all ſorts of Spices, precious Stones, Pearls, Ambergreaſe, Muſk and other Rarities from the Indies; which from hence are tranſported by Land on Camels to Cairo and Alexandria, where the Venetians and other Chriſtian Merchants come to buy them. The Town is ſurrounded with a Level altogether covered with Sand; ſo that the Inhabitants are fain to fetch all their Proviſions from other Places, and their Water at two Leagues Diſtance. It has ſome ſmall Fortifications mounted with 26 Canons. It is 30 Miles North of Arſinoe, and 90 Eaſt of Cairo towards Mount Sinai. Dapper. deſcript. of Africa.

SUFFOLK, Suffolcia, a large Maritime County of England, bounded on the North with Norfolk, on the South with Eſſex, Eaſtward with the German Sea, and Weſtward with Cambrigeſhire. From Norfolk it is parted by the Little Ouſe and the Waveney, from Eſſex by the River Stoure, being in Length from Eaſt to Weſt about 45 Miles; its Breadth from North to South not exceeding 20, ſaving by the Sea-ſide, where it runs out more by the Advantage of a Corner. The whole divided into 22 Hundreds, wherein are 575 Pariſhes, and 32 Market-Towns, anciently inhabited by the Iceni, making part of the Kingdom of the Eaſt-Angles in the time of the Heptarchy, as it does now with Norfolk, the Dioceſe of Norwich. The Air hereof is ſo generally ſweet and wholſome, that able Phyſicians have often preſcrib'd it for the Cure of their Conſumptive Patients; but ſome Places near the Sea fall ſhort of that general Character. As to the Soil, the Eaſtern Parts all along the Coaſts for five or ſix Miles Inland are generally heathy and ſandy, with bleak Hills, yet ſuch as yield Plenty of Rye, Peaſe and Hemp, and feed abundance of Sheep. The more Inland Part, commonly called High Suffolk, or the Wood Lands, is for the moſt part Clay Ground, and huſbanded chiefly for the Dairy, with great Advantage. The South Parts, along the Borders of Eſſex and Cambrigeſhire, are much of the ſame Nature; but towards Bury the Country is generally Champain, abounding with all ſorts of Grain; and for Paſture, few Countries can ſhew more than this. Amongſt the many fair Houſes of the Gentry is Long Melford, Summerlay Hall near Yarmouth, where Summer is ſeen continually in its pleaſant green Walks of lofty Fir-Trees: But Euſten Hall, built by the late Earl of Arlington, carries now the Preeminence. In this Country was born St. Edmund, King of the Eaſt-Angles, whom, with the reſt of its eminent Men, you will find in their proper Places, as alſo its Market-Towns, amongſt which ſeven are privileg'd to ſend each two Members to Parliament, beſides the Knights of the Shires; viz. Ipſwich, the chief Town of the Whole, Dunwick, Orford, Alborough, Sudbury, Eye and St. Edmundsbury. Many were the Monaſteries erected here in the time of Popery, the principal of which were Ipſwich, St. Edmundsbury, Iskworth, Blitborough, Clare and Dunwick. This Country is watered with the Orwell, Ore, Blithe, Deben and Breten, and noted for the Title of Duke, • Marqueſs and Earl it has given to ſeveral Families, as firſt, that of Earl to the Uffords in the Perſon of Robert de Ufford or Clifford in 1335; William his Son in 1369; Michael de la Pole, Lord-Chancellor, created Earl in 1379; William de la Pole, the fourth in the Line, was made Duke of Suffolk by Henry VI. Edmund the Eighth was the laſt of the Name, beheaded by Henry VIII. about 1510. In 1513 Charles Brandon (Viſcount Liſle) was created Duke of Suffolk; who by Mary, ſecond Siſter of Henry VIII. had Henry Brandon, who died a Child. In 1551 Henry Grey, Marqueſs of Dorſet, having married Frances, Daughter to Charles Brandon, was made Duke of Suffolk, and beheaded in the Reign of Queen Mary in 1553; after whoſe Death the Title lay dormant until King James I. created Thomas Lord Howard of Walden, Earl of Suffolk, in 1603, from whom is deſcended the Right Honourable George Howard, the preſent Earl of Suffolk. Cambden. Speed.

SUGER, Abbot of St. Denys in France, he aſſiſted at ſeveral Councils, and was ſent to Rome, to Germany and Guienne. Lewis the Young being reſolved to take a Journey to the Holy Land, declared Suger Regent of the Kingdom during his Abſence. After the King's Return as he was preparing to ſend a conſiderable Succour to the Chriſtians in the Holy Land, at his own Charges, he died of a Fever in 1152, being ſeventy Years of Age. He left behind him The Life of Lewis the Groſs, Memorials of his Adminiſtration in the Abby of St. Dennis, An Account of the Tranſlation of the Bodies of his Predeceſſors, Epiſtles, &c. all which Du Cheſne hath added to his Body of the Hiſtorians of France. *Du Pleix. SUIDAS, a Greek Author who lived about the Year 1090, under the Empire of Alexis Comnenus, though others make him more ancient. He writ the Dictionary we have of his, which is made up chiefly of Hiſtorical Collections, which are not in all Points ſo faithful as might be deſired. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Græcis. Cap. 26.

SUINTILUS, or Chintillanus, whom Fredegarius called Senzilas, King of the Wiſigoths in Spain, wreſted the Crown from Recaredus II. about the Year 621. He was a Perſon of Wit and Courage, which he made appear by taking from the Romans all the Places they had yet left in Spain, and accordingly took upon him the Title of Sovereign of all that Country. He died about 631, after a Reign of ten Years. St. Iſidor. in Chron. Mariana Hiſt. Hiſpan.

SULLY (Odo de) Biſhop of Paris, and Nephew of Thibaud, Earl of Champaigne, was elected Biſhop in 1197. He had a Share in the greateſt Tranſactions of his Time, and publiſh'd Synodical Conſtitutions, which are now extant in the Bibliotheca Patrum. He was a Perſon of great Probity and Regularity of Behaviour; of exemplary Charity to the Poor, and of a very obliging Converſation. He died in 1208. Petrus Bleſenſis, Ep. 126, 127. 160. Jaques du Brueill Ant. de Paris. St. Marth. T. 1. Gall. Chriſt. &c.

SULMONA, Sulmo, Solmona, a City of great Antiquity in the Province of Abruzzo, in the Kingdom of Naples, upon the River Sangro (Sarus.) It is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Theatino, and a Principality belonging to the Family of Borgeſe, and is famous for the Birth of Ovid, who often makes mention of it. It is near ſeventy Miles from Naples to the North, and about eighty from Rome towards the Eaſt.

SULPICIA, a Roman Lady that lived in the time of the Emperor Domitian, and writ ſeveral Works in Verſe; and amongſt the reſt a Satyr, and a Poem concerning her Amours with her Husband Calænus. She ſaith in her Writings, that ſhe was the firſt that prompted the Roman Ladies to aſpire to the Glory of thoſe of Greece, who had left ſuch fair Copies of their Learning and Wit;

Primaque Romanas docui contendere Graiis.

SULPICIA, the Daughter of Paterculus, and Wife of Fulvius Flaccus, was eſteem'd by the general Conſent of the Roman Ladies, to be the moſt chaſte and vertuous, and choſen from amongſt the Hundred beſt approved Ladies of Rome, to dedicate the Statue of Venus, according to the Order expreſt in the Sibylline Books, Plin. L. 7. C. 36. Val. Max. L. 8. C. 16.

SULPICIUS SEVERUS, a Prieſt and Diſciple of St. Martin, was of the Province of Aquitain, and, as 'tis ſuppoſed, of that Part of it which is now called Agenois, becauſe, he tells us, that Phœbadius of Agen was his Biſhop. He was a married Man, and after the Death of his Wife betook himſelf to a very retired Life. He was an intimate Friend of Paulinus, Biſhop of Nola. He writ an Abridgment of the Sacred Hiſtory from the Creation of the World to the Nativity and Paſſion of Jeſus Chriſt, and of what paſt in the Three firſt Centuries of the Church; which Work, as to its Stile, hath much of the Air of the moſt refined Ages for Latin. He writ alſo the Hiſtory of St. Martin; and after the Death of that Prelate, he gave an Account, in ſome other of his Works, of what he had omitted in the former Treatiſe concerning his Acts and Miracles. He publiſh'd alſo a Dialogue, wherein he treats of the Egyptian Hermits, in the Relation he gives of a Journey made thither by one Poſthumius his Friend, about three Years before. 'Tis ſuppoſed he died about the Year 419, or 420, but without certainty. But here 'tis proper to obſerve of Sulpicius Severus, after his having taken Prieſts Orders, ſtopt there, and was never advanc'd to the Degree of a Biſhop; and therefore Sigonius and Victor Giſilinus, who have confounded him with S^r. Sulpicius, the firſt Biſhop of Bourges, have miſtaken at leaſt a Hundred Years in Chronology; for this laſt Biſhop of Bourges ſucceeded Remedius, and ſubſcribed the Council of Maſcon in 585, of whom Gregory of Tours gives this Character; That he was a Perſon of Learning and Genius, and a good Poet. There was another Sulpicius, call'd, The Pious, who was preſent at the Council of Rheims in 630.

C. SULPITIUS PÆTICUS, a Roman, was Conſul with Licinius Stolo, the 391ſt Year of Rome. The Year of his Conſulſhip is remarkable for the Inſtitution of the Ludi Scenici, and of the Ceremony of the Clavus Annalis, or the Yearly Nail, which had their Beginning that Year, in order to appeaſe the Gods, and ſtop the Plague. The Scenical Plays at firſt were only ſome Dances to the Muſick of a Flute, accompanied with ſome rude Pieces of Poetry that were ſaid or ſung, which were afterwards changed to Comedies, the Romans being perſuaded that ſuch publick Rejoicings and Paſtimes, accompanied with ſome Hymns in praiſe of their Gods and Sacrifices, were proper to appeaſe their Anger, and to remove the Plague: But finding the Plague ſtill to increaſe, they had Recourſe to another Piece of Superſtition, at the Advice of ſome who declared that the Ceremony of the Yearly Nail had often put a Stop to the Plague, and other Calamities happening to the Commonwealth: Whereupon they created a Dictator to perform that Ceremony, which was celebrated every Year on the Ides of September, by the Conſuls, who faſtned a Nail in the Wall of Jupiter's Temple, that was next to the Temple of Minerva, ſo as that the ſaid Nails ſerved to compute the Years by; wherefore alſo it was call'd the Clavus Annalis, or Year-Nail. In proceſs of time the Romans being more and more perſuaded, that this Ceremony was pleaſing to the Gods, and proper to divert their Vengeance, created Dictators on purpoſe to diſcharge this Ceremony with a great deal of State and Solemnity, in caſe of the Peſtilence, or any other publick Danger or Calamity. Liv. L. 7. P. SULPITIUS SAVERRIO, was Conſul of Rome with Decius Mus, and were both of them ſent againſt King Pyrrhus, and fought him, in which Battel Decius was ſlain. Cic. 2. de Fin.

SULTAN, is originally an Arabian Word, ſignifying a Lord or King, from the Word Salat, Dominatus eſt, Præfuit, he ruled or had Dominion. Some ſay Tungrolipix, Prince of the Turks, was the firſt that took to himſelf this Title, after that he had defeated the Saracens in 1055, though we find that it was made uſe of long before that time, in the Tenth Century, under Baſilius Porphyrogenetes. Inſtead of this Word Sultan the Word Soldan or Soudan hath alſo been uſed to ſignifie the ſame thing, and appropriated to the Mamulucks of Ægypt.

SULTAN SHERIF, a Name which the Mahometans give to the Prince of Mecha, who is very rich, by means of the vaſt Revenue he raiſeth from the Caravans. He rides on Horſe-back bare-foot in token of one of his Predeceſſors having been vanquiſh'd by the Sultan of Egypt, and the Grand Signior, who is now in Poſſeſſion of Egypt, obligeth him to the Continuance of that Ceremony. M. Thevenot's Voyage to the Eaſt.

SULTZBACH, Sultzbachium, a ſmall Town in Nortgow, in the Upper Palatinate of the Rhine, one Mile diſtant from Amberg to the South-Eaſt, and is a Principality belonging to a Branch of the Palatine's Family. The firſt of this Branch was Auguſtus, Son of Philip Lewis, Founder of the Houſe of Newburg: He was born the 2d of October, 1582. Chriſtian Auguſtus his Son ſucceeded, born 16th of July, 1622. His Grandchild Philip, born the 19th of January, 1630, is a Perſon much noted for his Valour.

SULTZBERG, a County in Briſgou, a Province of Germany.

SUMATRA, one of the three great Iſlands of the Sonde in the Eaſt-Indies, to the South-Weſt of the Peninſula of Malacca, from which it is ſeparated only by a narrow Strait, as alſo by another from the Iſle of Java to the South. It extends from North-Weſt to South-Eaſt 910 Engliſh Miles, its greateſt Breadth being of 210. There are ſeveral Kingdoms in this Iſland, the principal of which are Achem, Campor, Jamby, Menanchabo, Pacem, Palimban and Pedir, and the principal City of the Iſland is Achem: The Inland Parts of the Country have many very high Mountains, but all along the Coaſt there are fine Champain Grounds, and very fruitful Meadows. The whole Iſland is watered with great ſtore of Rivers, and beautified with a Number of Trees that enjoy a perpetual Verdure. It is divided by the Æquator into almoſt two equal Parts, which makes the Air very hot and unhealthy. They have Rains that begin in the Month of June, and continue till October, during which term the Weſtern Winds cauſe many Tempeſts and Whirlwinds, which all on a ſuddain end in great Calms, and by reaſon of the great Heat of the Sun, cauſe many Diſtempers. The Soil is fertile enough to bear any Grain, but the Inhabitants ſow nothing but Rice and Millet. Here are great Numbers of Buffels or wild Bulls, abundance of Horſes, but of a ſmall Breed: The Iſland ſwarms with wild Swine, which are neither ſo great nor furious as thoſe of Europe; but their Red Deer are larger than ours. The Woods and Mountains are ſtored with Elephants, Rhinocerotes, Tigers, Porcupines, Civet-Cats, and Apes. The Ground produceth Ginger, Pepper, Camphire, Agarick, and Caſſia in great abundance, Wax and Honey, Silks and Cottons, Precious Stones, and rich Mines of Silver, Tin, Iron, Copper and Sulphur, and eſpecially of Gold, which is here in ſuch abundance, that ſome have conceived this Iſland to be Solomon's Ophir. The Inhabitants are very induſtrious, and caſt as good Guns here as any that are made in Europe. There is a Mountain in the midſt of this Iſland which vomits Flames like that of Ætna in Sicily, or Veſuvius in Campania. It is alſo reported, that there is a Fountain, whence continually flows a kind of Balm. This Iſland, as was mentioned before, is under the Obedience of ſeveral Kings; the King of Achem poſſeſſeth one half of it, and that part of it which joins the Strait of Malacca, is under the Dominion of the King of Bantam, whoſe Capital City is in the Iſle of Java. The Hollanders have four or five Forts here, and have a greater Power in the Iſland than the Kings themſelves, and in a manner are their Maſters. The Portugueſe have no particular Eſtabliſhment here, and they only drive a Trade with Permiſſion of the Hollanders. There is a wonderful Tree grows in this Iſland, which the Malayans call Singali, and the Portugueſe Arbol triſte de Dia, or, The ſad Tree in the day time. This Tree puts forth abundance of Buds, which when open, ſpread themſelves into five Flowers, white as Snow, and ſomewhat bigger than Orange-flowers; theſe Buds open as ſoon as the Sun is ſet, and the Flowers continue all Night, till the return of the Sun, which makes them all to fall off, and ſpoils the Tree of all its Ornament and Leaves, and the next Day it puts forth Buds again, which open after Sun-ſet, and exhale ſuch a wonderful ſweet Odour, as perfumes the whole Air. The Pepper of this Iſland is in great Requeſt, and is accounted the beſt that grows in all the Indies, next to that of Cochim, upon the Coaſt of Malabor: The Places near to the Sea-Coaſt are inhabited by the Malayans, but the inner Parts of the Iſland are poſſeſt by the Natives, or firſt Inhabitants of the Iſle, who ſpeak a Language very different from that of the Malayans. *General Beaulieu Voyage aux Indie Orientales. SUNDERBURG, a Town and Dutchy of Denmark, in the Iſle of Alſen, in the Baltick Sea, towards the Eaſt of South Jutland.

SUNDERLAND, a Market-Town of the Biſhoprick of Durham. It ſtands by the Sea ſide at the Mouth of the River Ware, in the North-Eaſt Parts of the County called Underland, becauſe it's almoſt ſever'd from the Land by the beating of the Sea, it being at High-water environ'd with it. It is noted for its Coal Trade, and for giving the Title of Earl to Robert Spencer, the preſent Earl of Sunderland, deriv'd to him from his Father Henry, advanced to that Dignity by King Charles I. Anno. 1643, and ſlain the ſame Year at the firſt Newbury Fight. This Town is Two hundred Miles from London.

SUND ISLANDS. The Portugueſe comprehend under this Name all thoſe Iſlands in the Indian Ocean, which lie beyond the Promontory of Malacea. Near or under the Equinoctial they are commonly divided into Eaſt and Weſt; of the former, Guileto, Banda, Flouris, Macaſar, and the Moluccoes are the chief; of the other Borneo, Java, and Sumatra.

SUNGKIANG, a City of China, in the Province of Nanking. It is a Place of great Trade, and on which two other Cities depend.

SUNNING, a ſmall Town of Sunning Hundred, in Berkſhire, about three Miles from Reading North-Eaſtward. It ſtands on the Thames, noted for having been the Seat of eight Biſhops before the See was tranſlated from thence unto Sherbourn, and from thence to Salisbury.

SUNNIS, the Name of a Sect amongſt the Mahometans, who are Oppoſites to the Schiais, that is, to the Perſian Mahometans. The Sunnis maintain, that the lawful Succeſſor of Mahomet was Abubeker, to whom ſucceeded Omar, to him Oſman, and laſt of all Mortus-ali, who was Nephew and Son-in-Law of Mahomet. They affirm, that Oſman was Secretary to Mahomet, and a Perſon of great Capacity; that the three others were not only Perſons of extraordinary Underſtanding, but likewiſe great Soldiers; and that they made way for the Doctrine of Mahomet, no leſs by the Sword, than by Argument and Perſuaſion; therefore the Sect of the Sunnis choſe rather to maintain their Religion by Dint of Arms than Reaſoning. The Turks follow the Sect of the Sunnis, and the Perſians that of the Schiais: Alſo in the Empire of the Great Mogul, in the Kingdom of Vijapour, they follow the Sect of the Sunnis; but at Golconda, that of the Schiais. Tavernier Travels to Perſia.

SUNTGAW, Suntgovia, a Province of Germany, now under the King of France, to whom it was yielded by the Peace of Munſter. It is bounded on the North by Alſatia, on the Eaſt by the Rhine, and the Canton of Baſil, on the South by the Dominions of the Biſhop of Baſil, and on the Weſt by the Franche Comte. The principal Places in it are, Ferrete, Beford, Mulhauſen, Maſmunſter, and Hunningen, which laſt has been lately fortified by the French King.

SURA, a City of Syria, near to Euphrates, of old an Epiſcopal See under the Arch-biſhop of Hierapolis.

SURA, a Town in Lycia, a Province of the Leſſer Aſia, between Strumita, otherwiſe Myra, and Fellos, of ancient times famous for a ſort of Prieſts who pronounced Oracles, and made Divinations, by inſpecting the Intrals of Fiſhes. See Plutarch.

SURA, now le Sour, a River which hath its Riſe in the midſt of the Dutchy of Luxemburg, near to Baſtoigne, and runs into the Moſelle, about two Leagues from Trier or Treves.

SURAT, Surata, a famous City of the Hither Indies, in the Kingdom of Guzarat, under the Dominion of the Great Mogul, which has a convenient Haven on the Gulf of Cambay. It lies 21 Degrees and ſome Minutes from the Line, is much frequented by the European Merchants, neither are the Inhabitants leſs conſiderable on the Account of their Wealth than Number. The Engliſh and Dutch have their Factories here, and it is the Staple of the Engliſh Trade in the Eaſt-Indies. The Commodities that force a Trade here are Diamonds brought hither from the Kingdom of Golconda, Pearls, the Fiſhery of which is at Cape Comorin, and in ſeveral Parts of the Perſian Gulf; Ambergreaſe, which the Sea-Coaſts towards the Cape of Good Hope furniſh abundantly; alſo Musk, which comes from China, and Civet. They drive alſo a great Trade with Silks and Cloth of Gold, Cotton, Indigo, and Medicinal Drugs, partly growing in the Country, and partly brought hither by the Arabians; all manner of Spices, whereof the Nutmegs come from Malacca, Cloves from Macaſſar, Cinnamon from the Iſle of Ceylon, and Pepper from all the Coaſt of Malabar. This Town is watered by a River as big as the Thames, ſuppos'd to be a Branch of the Indus. There is a Caſtle at the South-End of the Town, upon the River, flank'd at each Corner, with a large Tower: The Ditches on three ſides are filled with Sea water: It is well provided with Cannon, and is the Reſidence of the Governour, who commands the Neighbouring Provinces, and has the Retinue of a Prince. In 1659, this Town and Caſtle were taken by the youngeſt Son of Chajehan, who ſuppoſing his Father to be dead, endeavour'd to ſeize that Kingdom: It was afterwards plunder'd of many Millions by another Prince; but the Engliſh and Dutch Factories were ſtrong enough to defend themſelves. Bermier. Thevenot, Part. 3. Pag. 15.

SURENA, Lieutenant of Orodes, King of Parthia, who defeated the Roman Army commanded by Craſſus, whoſe Head he cauſed to be chopt off. Plutarch in the Life of Craſſus. Flor. L. 3. Cap. 11.

SURITA (Hieronymus) born at Saragoſſa, in the Kingdom of Arragon, writ a Commentary upon Antoninus his Itinerary, which is a very learned Piece: He alſo compos'd the Hiſtory of Arragon, in Spaniſh, to the Death of Ferdinand the Catholick. He was Secretary of the Inquiſition, and died at Saragoſſa in 1580, being 67 Years of Age. Voſſ. de Mathem. Biblioth. Hiſpan. Poſſevin.

SURIUS (Laurentius) a Carthuſian, born at Lubeck, he followed his Studies at Collen, where he had Caniſius for his Companion. He tranſlated Taulerus his Works, and ſome other Pieces: He compiled a Volume of Homilies of divers Doctors of the Church, and a Collection of the Councils in four Volumes, beſides the Lives of the Saints in ſix Tomes. He alſo writ the Hiſtory of his Time; containing many curious Things and Paſſages. He died at Collen the 25th of May, 1578, in the 56th of his Age, and the 36th of his Profeſſion. Dorlandus Chron. Chart. Petreius Bibl. Carthuſ. Spond. in Annal.

An Obſervation upon Surnames, by a Peer of Scotland, who hath enquired into that Piece of Antiquity, with much Curioſity.

SURNAME, is that which is added to the Proper Name for diſtinguiſhing Perſons and Families; but the Choice and Uſe of them that hath been various, according to the different Cuſtoms of Nations: Therefore we ſhall only take Notice here, how Surnames have been choſen in this Iſland, and particularly in Scotland. As for Surname, in the preſent Acceptation, which is common to the Children and ſucceeding Generations of Families, they were uſed in England before the Conqueſt, and long e'er they were uſed in Scotland, whither the Engliſh brought that Cuſtom; for when Margaret, Queen to Malcolm Canmor, King of Scots, with her Brother Edgar Atheling, fled into Scotland from William the Conqueror, many of the Engliſh, who came with them, and got Lands in Scotland, had their Proper Surnames, as Moubray, Lovel, Liſle, &c. uſing the Particle de or of before them; which makes it probable, that thoſe Surnames had been derived from the Lands which they or their Anceſtors had poſſeſſed. At this time there were no ſuch Surnames in Scotland; though in Kenneth the II's Time in 800, the Great Men began to call their Lands by their own Names; but the ordinary Diſtinctions in uſe then were Perſonal, and not deſcending to ſucceeding Generations, but either the Name of the Father, as, John the Son of William, or the Name of the Office, as Stuart, &c. or accidental Notes from Complexion or Stature, &c. as Black, White, Long, Short, or the Name of their Trade, as, Taylor, Weaver, Sadler, &c. But after the Arrival of the Engliſh, as abovemention'd, thoſe who were poſſeſſed of Baronies or Lordſhips began to take Surnames from their Lands, as, Pa- trick of Dumbar, James of Douglas, John of Gordon, and yet it was a conſiderable time after e're theſe Surnames were tranſmitted to their Children. Others, though Inheritors of Lands, took for Surname the Name of ſome eminent Perſon of their Anceſtors, the Higklanders adding Mack before it, as Mackdonald, i. e. the Son of Donald, and the Lowlanders adding Son after it, as, Donaldſon, Robertſon, &c. The ancient Way of deſigning Perſons in Latin Deeds, confirms theſe Obſervations, as, Patricius de Dumbar, Gualterus Seneſchallus, Joannes Sartor, Gulielmus dictus niger, &c. It's farther to be obſerv'd, that thoſe who had Lands did at that time chuſe rather to take Deſignation from them than from the Families whence they were deſcended, eſpecially in the Lowlands of Scotland; as for Example, William I. of the Houſe of Hume is called Gulielmus filius Patricii Comitis, and his Son is called Gulielmus filius Gulielmi de Hume, and a While after all the ſucceeding Generations are called Hume; whereas in the other Family whence they deſcended there is found Patricius filius Patricii Comitis, and Patricius de Dumbar Comes, and Patricius filius Patricii de Dumbar Comitis, and afterwards they were deſigned, Patricius de Dumbar Comes Marchiæ, when the Surname of Dumbar became common to all his Deſcendents. Whence it is evident, that the ancient Deſcent of Families is not ſo much to be found out by Surnames as by their Armorial Bearings, which are far more ancient, as appears by the Families of Dumbar and Hume, . whoſe Arms differ only in Tincture, the ancient Way of diſtinguiſhing Coats, eſpecially in Scotland. Thus Gordon, Ridpath, Nisbit, Surnames taken from the diſtinct Baronies which they poſſeſſed in the ſame County, are certainly of one Family, their Arms differing only in Tincture. It is alſo obſervable, that many who agree in Surname are not of the ſame Family, their Arms being anciently very different, and eſpecially ſuch Surnames as were taken by thoſe of low Fortunes or vulgar Extract from mean Trades, as, Smith, Wright, &c. or from Complexion, as Brown, White, &c. there being many Paternal Coats of thoſe Names which have no Affinity, thoſe Trades, Complexions, or accidental Qualifications, as, Long, Short, &c. being common; and therefore Perſons of ſuch Surnames, being afterwards advanced to a higher Rank for their Vertue, had Coats of Arms beſtowed upon them; and this occaſion'd the Arma cantantia Rebus's, which are ſometimes found. It is likewiſe clear, that thoſe who have Surnames from Lands in Scotland are deſcended from ſuch Families as were poſſeſſed of theſe Lands when Surnames were aſſumed, except ſuch as have of late changed the Names of their Lands to their Surnames, which are generally known in the Neighbourhood. Theſe Obſervations, though they be taken from the Cuſtom of Scotland, will generally be found to hold alſo in England, and do certainly denote the Antiquity of Families: Thus Wharton and Widdrington, &c. Surnames taken from Baronies, are noted and ancient Families in the North, and Haſtings, Berkley, &c. in the South. The ſame Obſervations hold good alſo in France, Germany and Italy, and moſt other Countries where Surnames are in uſe. That it holds in France is demonſtrable from the Surnames uſed by the Normans at their firſt coming into England, when they diffuſed the Cuſtom of taking their Lands for Surnames more univerſally, as is obſerv'd by Dugdale in the Family of Berkley; and the preſent French King's Surname de Bourbon, is taken from a Town and Caſtle of Bourbonnois in France. The Surname of Naſſaw is taken from a City and County of Weteravia in Germany; and the Surnames of Spinola and D'Eſt are taken from Lordſhips and Cities in Italy: And that the famous old Roman Surnames of Cæſar, Balbus, Calvus, Ænobarbus, Naſo, &c. were taken from accidental Notes, is obvious to every one; whence it's plain that Surname was not originally the ſame with Sirname, i. e. the Name of the Sire or Progenitor, but Surname is nomen ſupra nomen additum; and though, according to modern Cuſtom, Sirname and Surname be the ſame, yet anciently, it was not ſo; for though every Sirname was a Surname, it's evident from the foregoing Obſervations, that every Surname was not a Sirname. i. e. Nomen patris additum proprio.

SURREY, Surria, an Inland County of England, has Middleſex on the North, Suſſex on the South, Kent on the Eaſt, Hampſhire and Barkſhire on the Weſt. The River Thames parts it from Middleſex, and from its Situation on the South-ſide of it, it got the Name of Surrey, i. e. South Rey, the Saxons calling that Rey which we term a River. It contains in Length, from Eaſt to Weſt, 34 Miles, in Breadth, from North to South, about 22, in Circumference 112, the whole divided into thirteen Hundreds, wherein are 140 Pariſhes, and nine Market-Towns, whoſe Inhabitants, together with thoſe of Suſſex, were known to the Romans by the Name of Regni: The County joyntly with Suſſex making part of the Heptarchy Kingdom of the South Saxons, and now being in the Dioceſe of Winchester. This is a pleaſant and healthful Country to live in, enjoying a good Air, well ſtor'd with Parks, Woods and Downs for Hunting. The Skirts of it, eſpecially towards the Thames, are abundantly fruitful both in Corn and Graſs, but the middle Parts are but hungry and barren; which makes the Country People compare it to a coarſe Piece of Cloth with a fine Liſt; others to a Cinnamon-Tree, whoſe Bark is far better than the Body thereof. The Commodities wherein this County excels, are its Fullers Earth and Box; the firſt, of great uſe to Clothiers, is digg'd up near Rygate, and is the beſt in England. Towards Cheam there is alſo a Vein of Potters Earth, much commended in its kind. As for Box, the beſt which England affords groweth about Darking in this County; but it is much ſhort in Goodneſs of that which is brought from Turkey. Its Gardens, eſpecially along the Thames, are very conſiderable. For Ornament, here ſtood formerly two Royal Palaces, Richmond and Nonſuch, the firſt built by King Henry VII. and the laſt by Henry VIII. Here are alſo many Noblemens Houſes; Wimbleton amongſt the reſt, built by Sir Thomas Cecil in 1588, deſerves to be ſeen. As for the Vault near Rygate, Epſham Wells, and the Moles running under Ground, I refer you to the Words Rygate, Epſham and Mole. In this County are Banſted Downs reaching from Croyden to Farnham, ſo noted for Hawking, Hunting and Horſe-racing. Here were alſo fought two memorable Battles; one at Wimbleton between the Weſt and Kentiſh Saxons, the other at Farnham betwixt the Saxons and the Danes, which proved fatal to the latter. In this County alſo ſtands Lambeth-Houſe upon the Thames, firſt erected by Archbiſhop Baldwin in the XII Century, and ever ſince continued the uſual Reſidence of the Archbiſhop for Canterbury; to whom alſo belongs another Palace at Croyden, his Summer Seat. Its Rivers, beſides the Thames, are the Wey, the Mole and the Wandle. Its principal Town is Kingſton upon Thames, Its firſt Earl was William de Warren, created by William the Conqueror in 1607. William, the third of this Line, ſucceeded in 1133, who was follow'd by William de Blois, Son of King Stephen, firſt Husband of Iſabel de Warren, in 1146, and by Hamelane Plantagenet, baſe Son of George, Earl of Anjou, and Half-Brother to Edward III. ſecond Husband of the ſaid Iſabel, in 1163. His Poſterity enjoy'd it in four Deſcents till 1347, when the Male Line failing, Richard Fitz-Alan, Lord Treaſurer, was Earl of Surrey. In 1398 Thomas Holland was made Earl of Kent and Duke of Surrey, afterwards beheaded. Thomas Fitz-Alan, Son to the former Richard, died Earl of Surrey in 1414. In 1450 John, Lord Mowbray, was created Earl of Warren and Surrey, and after Duke of Norfolk. In 1475 Richard, a ſecond Son of Edward IV. was the thirteenth Earl of Surrey. In 1483 Thomas Lord Howard, Lord Treaſurer, after Duke of Norfolk, was created Earl of Surrey, in which Family it is at this Day. Cambden. Speed.

SUS, Suſa or Suſum, a Principality, or, as others, a Kingdom, in Biledulgerid in Africa, bounded on the North by the Kingdom of Morocco, on the Eaſt by Darha, on the South by Teſſeta or Teſſet, and on the Weſt by the Atlantick Ocean. It is divided into ſeven Provinces, and the principal Cities are Tarudant, Teſeut, Sancta Cruz. It is a pleaſant, rich and fruitful Kingdom, abounding with Gold, and is now ſubject to that of Fez, though formerly it had a King of its own. The Inhabitants of this Kingdom are more warlike and expert at Arms than all the other Africans beſides. This Kingdom abounds with Fruit, Corn, Paſturage, Indigo and Allum. Mouette Hiſtoire de Royaume de Moroc.

SUSA, a City of Perſia, formerly the Capital of Suſiana, now Cuſiſtan, watered by the River Eulæus or Choaſpes, built by Tithonus, Father of Memnon, and the ordinary Reſidence of the Kings of Perſia during the Winter and Spring. This City was taken by Alexander the Great, who there married Statira. At preſent this City is ruined; ſo that, according to ſome, the Place where it formerly ſtood is unknown, though ſome Authors tell us, it is ſtill ſtanding, and that its modern Name is Souſter. Strab. Lib. 15. Ptol. Plin. Quint. Curt.

SUSANNA, the Daughter of Chelcias, and Wife of Joachim, famous for her Chaſtity, according to the Apocryphal Hiſtory of her.

SUSA WILLA, a great ancient Town built by the Romans, about a hundred Miles Eaſt of Tunis, in a fruitful Plain yielding Plenty of Olives and Figs, as it would alſo Corn, but that the wandring Arabs will not ſuffer it to grow. The Inhabitants are civil, and traded by Sea to Turkey, Sicily and Italy, when the Saracens conquered it. This was the Seat of the Greek Præfect, whoſe Palace is ſtill ſtanding. The Town is great and ſtrongly walled, and is ſeated on the Mediterranean Sea, at the Weſt end of the Leſſer Syrtis, over-againſt Trapana, the Weſtern Cape of Sicily. It had of old a numerous People, but in our Author's Time was laid almoſt deſolate by the Exactions of the King of Tunis, who was Lord over it. Leo Africanus, Pag. 252, 253.

SUSDAL, Suſdala, a City of Muſcovy, the Capital of a Province of the ſame Name, and a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Roſtow. It ſtands 80 Miles from Moſcow to the South-Eaſt, and 130 from Novogrod Niſi to the North-Weſt.

SUSE, Suſa, a City of Piemont upon the River Doire, which is the Capital of a Marquiſate of the ſame Name, at the Foot of the Alpes Cottiæ, now called Mount Cenis, and Mount Genevre, which ſeparate Piedmont from Dauphine. Some learned Men take this to be the Place where Auguſtus erected his Trophy in the 740th Year of Rome, and fourteen before the Birth of our Saviour; the Inſcription being ſtill to be ſeen on a Triumphal Arch in this City. But others place it at the Foot of the Maritime Alphs, in the Neighbourhood of Nice and Monaco, near to a Place called the Tourbie, by the Corruption of the Word Trophie, and is confirm'd by a Piece of Stone, on which are ſeen part of the Letters compoſing theſe Words, Gentes Alphinæ devictæ, with the Names of ſome other Nations. Some are of Opinion, that Auguſtus cauſed the ſame Trophy to be erected in two ſeveral Places, and ſo endeavour to reconcile both theſe Opinions. This Town is ten Leagues North of Pignerol, and as many North-Weſt of Turin, and is of great Importance, as ſtanding on the two Paſſes of the Alphs into France. It was taken by the French in 1630, and ſtrongly fortified, but reſtored to the Duke of Savoy at the End of that War. It was again retaken by the French in 1690, without any Reſiſtance. The adjacent Country abounds in Wine and Honey. The Sepulchre of Cottus, whence the Cotian Alphes take their Name, was to be ſeen here.

SUSIANA, a large Country in Aſia, formerly a Kingdom, ſituate between Syria, Babylonia and Perſia, the Capital whereof is Suſa. Plin. Herodot. Quint. Curt.

SUSIS (in Latin Cavernæ Suſis) a Place near to Carthage in Africa, where 53 Biſhops of the Donatiſts aſſembled themſelves in 394 againſt Primianus, who, they pretended, had without Cauſe excommunicated Maximianus the Deacon; but he deriding their Citation, they ſoon after depoſed him. St. Auguſt. Lib. 3. & 4. contr. Creſc. Baron. A. C. 394.

SUSSEX, Suſſexia, a Maritime County in the South of England, is bounded Northward with Kent and Surrey, Southward with the Channel, Eaſtward with Kent, and Weſtward with Hampſhire; ſo that it ſtretches in Length from Eaſt to Weſt about ſixty Miles, in Breadth from North to South not above one third part. The whole divided into ſix Rapes, called from their reſpective chief Places, Chicheſter, Arundel, Bramber, Lewis, Pevenſey and Haſting Rapes, all which contains 65 Hundreds; viz. Chicheſter ſeven, Arundel five, Bramber ten, Lewis thirteen, Pevenſey ſeventeen, and Haſtings thirteen, each of them with a proper Foreſt and a River; and in all theſe Hundreds are reckon'd 312 Pariſhes, and nineteen Market Towns, whoſe ancient Inhabitants, together with thoſe of Surrey, were known to the Romans by the Name of Regni, the Country joyntly with Surrey making the Heptarchy Kingdom of the South-Saxons, as it does now of it ſelf the Dioceſe of Chicheſter. The Air is ſomewhat foggy from the Neighbourhood of the Sea. The Roads are very deep in the Weld, that Land lying low; but in that Part call'd the Downs 'tis very pleaſant Travelling: However, the Soil is generally ſo rich, that it makes up for all thoſe Inconveniencies. The North, towards Kent and Surrey, is well ſhaded with Woods, as was all the Country heretofore, till the Iron Works conſumed the moſt part of 'em. The South Parts, towards the Sea, lying upon a Chalk or Marl, yield abundance of Corn, with a delightful Intermixture of Groves and Meadows; inſomuch that the Toll of Corn and Malt ſold in the City of Chicheſter, amounts yearly at a Half-penny a Quarter, to 60 Pounds and upwards. One thing is peculiar to this County, that all her Rivers riſe and fall within her Bounds: The principal of them are, the Rother, which divides ſome part of this County from Kent, Arun, near which ſtands Arundel, and upon which ſtands Lewes: Another thing which ſeems alſo peculiar to this County is the Wheat-Ear, hardly found out of it, a Bird ſo called, becauſe fatteſt when Wheat is ripe: It's as big as a Lark; its Fleſh as fine, but very much fatter. As for Fiſh, both the Sea and Rivers furniſh it abundantly with Dainties of all kinds, witneſs the Arundel Mullets, Chicheſter Lobſters, Selſey Cockles, and Amerly Trouts; nor does any County yield more or better Carps than Suſſex does. Great is the Quantity of Iron made in this County, and much of it exported thence into other Parts. Of this Iron moſt of our great Guns are made, the Goodneſs whereof was ſo well known to Gundamore, the Spaniſh Embaſſador, that he often begg'd Leave of King James I. to tranſport great Numbers of them into Spain. But it is much that ſo large an Extent of Sea-Coaſt as Suſſex has, cannot afford one good Harbour fit for Ships of great Burden, ſuch as it has being, by reaſon of its Shelves and Rocks, both dangerous for Entrance and Anchoring: Rye, near the Borders of Kent, oppoſite to Diepe in Normandy, is accounted its very beſt Harbour. Here are alſo Glaſs-Works and noble Buildings, as Petworth, belonging to the Duke of Somerſet, Arundel Caſtle, &c. It was in Pevenſey in this County that William the Conqueror landed in 1066, and defeated Harold, where, if we believe William of Newbury, the Earth looks as red as Blood always after a Shower. Beſides Chicheſter, the Epiſcopal See, Horſham, Midhurſt, Lewes, Shoreham, Steyning, Eaſt-Greenſtead, Arundel, beſides the Borough of Bramber and theſe Cinque-Port Towns, Haſtings, Winchelſea, Rye, ſend each two Members to Parliament, beſides the Knights of the Shire. This County had no leſs than eighteen Religious Houſes in the Beginning of King Hen. VIII. his Reign. Its firſt Earl was William de Albeney, Earl of Arundel, who married Adelizia, the Relict of Henry I. in 1178. He was ſucceeded by William his Son, and it continned in this Family four or five Deſcents. In 1243 John Plantagenet, Ear of Surrey, ſucceeded. In 1305 John, a Son of the ſame, followed. In 1529 Robert Ratcliff was created by Henry VIII. Earl of Suſſex, whoſe Poſterity enjoy'd the Honour for ſix Deſcents. In 1644 Thomas, Lord Savil, was created the fourteenth Earl of Suſſex, in whoſe Son that Family ended. In 1674 Thomas, Lord Dacres, married to Anne Fitz-Roy, eldeſt Daughter of the Dutcheſs of Cleveland by Charles II. was created Earl of Suſſex.

SUTHERLAND, a County in the North of Scotland, anciently named Cattey. It has Caithneſs and Strathnever on the North and North-Eaſt, Aſſint on the Weſt, Roſs on the South, and the German Ocean on the Eaſt. Formerly Strathnever and Aſſint were reckoned Parts of this County. It is 50 Miles in Length, and 22 in Breadth: In the Middle it is mountainous, but abounds with pleaſant, fruitful, well water'd and well inhabited Valleys. It hath Plenty of Cattel, Veniſon, Fowl, wild and tame, of all ſorts. The Goodneſs of the Soil appears by the Plenty of Saffron which grows to perfect Maturity in the Earl's Garden at Dunrobin. There are three remarkable Foreſts in this County, viz. Dirimoir, Diriſhart and Dirimeanach, which afford Store of Game, and Wolves, Foxes, &c. Towards the South-Weſt the Country is Mountainous and Woody, remarkable for Mount Arkil, whoſe Deer have all fork'd Tails. About Loughſhin in this Country are Veins of Marble. The principal Rivers here are Floid, Brora, Shinn, Caſly, &c. all of them abounding with Fiſh. In this Country are above ſixty Lakes full of Fiſh and Water-Fowl; the greateſt is Loughebin, whence runs the River of that Name, remarkable for its Salmon Fiſhery, and for that it's never Frozen. The Sea-Coaſts are extraordinarily provided with Fiſh, and have ſometimes Whales driven upon them. The Commodities of this Country are Barley, Salt, Coal, Salmon, Beef, Wool, Hides, Butter, Tallow, Cheeſe, Coals and excellent Iron. It is remarkable, that there are no Rats to be found here, and if brought from other Places immediately die, though they abound in Cathneſs, betwixt which and this County there is neither Sea nor River. The principal Town, Dornock, is noted for its Caſtle and Church, founded by St. Gilbert, a Native of this County, and Biſhop of Caithneſs, and for being the See of the Biſhop of Caithneſs. Near it are ſeveral Monuments of Victories obtain'd againſt the Danes, and particularly one of a Daniſh King ſlain there. Many Perſons of Quality reſide in this Country, but the chief are of the Earl of Sutherland's Family, of the Surname of Gordon, the Earl being rank'd among the eldeſt Peers of this Kingdom. His Family has been always remarkable for Valour and Loyalty, and hath many Followers and Vaſſals in that Country. Beſides many other Royalties, he is Admiral of thoſe Seas. The preſent is the Right Honourable George, Earl of Sutherland. To be more particular; This George, preſent Earl of Sutherland, is deſcended from Alan Sutherland Thane of Sutherland, who loſt his Life under the Uſurpation of Macbeth, for his endeavouring to bring the right Heir, Malcolm III. to the Throne. Walter, Son to Alan, was created Earl of Sutherland by Malcolm III. in Conſideration of his Father's Merit and his own. Robert was Son and Heir to Walter, and built the Caſtle of Dunrobin. Hugh, Son and Heir to Robert, was Third Earl of Sutherland, and was employ'd by William, King of Scotland, to apprehend Harald Guthred, Thane of Caithneſs, who had murther'd the Biſhop of that See. William, Fourth Earl of Sutherland, Son and Heir to Hugh, defeated the Danes, and kill'd their General at Enbo in Sutherland, and in 1248, was interr'd in the Cathedral Church of Dornogh, the Building of which was conſiderably promoted by him. William the Fifth ſucceeded; this Earl aſſiſted King Robert the Firſt in all his Wars, but particularly at that memorable Battle at Bannockburn; and is one of the firſt Subſcribers of that famous Letter ſent to the Pope in 1320, from the Earls, Barons, &c. of Scotland, Kenneth, Sixth Earl of Sutherland, marry'd the Daughter of the Earl of Marr: He Commanded the Van-guard at the Battle of Halidown-Hill, in which he was ſlain, in 1333. William, Son and Heir to Kenneth; was at the Battle of Kildrimmy in Marr, and afterwards made an Incurſion into England, taking the Caſtle of Roxbrough in his return: This Earl marry'd the Lady Margaret Bruce, Siſter to King David II. from whom he obtain'd ſeveral Lands and Privileges, and an Infeoffment of the whole Earldom of Sutherland, in Regality with a Charter yet extant: This Earl was taken Priſoner at Durham with King David, and died afterwards at Dunrobin in 1370. He had the Character of a Perſon of great Courage and Conduct. Alexander, Eldeſt Son to this William, being a Hoſtage in England, and dying under Age, the Honour deſcended to John, the Eighth Earl of Sutherland: This John, in the Reign of Robert II. march'd into England with Archibald Douglaſs, Lord of Galloway, &c. and waſted Cumberland, and returning home, died the next Year in 1389. He was marry'd to Mabella, Daughter to the Earl of March, by whom he had Iſſue, Nicholas, Ninth Earl of Sutherland, who had ſome Feuds with his Neighbour Macky, which were fatal to the latter. He marry'd a Daughter of the Lord of the Iſles; and was ſucceeded by Robert, his eldeſt Son, the tenth Earl of Sutherland. This Earl Robert lived in very troubleſome Times, was at the Battle of Homeldown in 1403, and had the Happineſs to preſerve his Country both from Faction and Invaſion: He married the Daughter of the Earl of Murray, by whom he had John, the ſecond of that Name, and the eleventh Earl of Sutherland, who married Margaret Baylie, Daughter to the Laird of Lammingtown, by whom he had John, the third of that Name, and twelfth Earl of Sutherland, who married the Daughter of the Earl of Roſs, Lord of the Iſles, by whom he had (for here we muſt be particular in mentioning the younger Brothers and Siſters) firſt, John, his Succeſſor; ſecondly, Alexander, who died young, and Elizabeth married to Adam Gordon of Aboyn, ſecond Son to the Earl of Huntley: This John was very loyal to King James III. and died in 1508. John, the fourth of that Name, was the thirteenth Earl of Sutherland, and he dying without Iſſue, the Honour deſcended to Adam Gordon of Aboyn, who became Earl of Sutherland in Right of his Wife Elizabeth, Siſter to John, thirteenth Earl: This Adam was at the Battle of Flowdon, where King James IV. was loſt, and afterwards his Lady Elizabeth, Heretrix of Sutherland, and himſelf join'd in a Reſignation of the Earldom of Sutherland, with ſome Reſervations, to Alexander, the eldeſt Son: This Alexander Maſter of Sutherland, married Lady Jane Stewart, Daughter to John, Earl of Athol, by whom he had John, the fifth of that Name, and fifteenth Heir of Sutherland. He was Lieutenant from Spey Northward, and eſcap'd with Difficulty from the Battle of Pinke. He attended the young Queen into France, where he had the Order of St. Michael conferred upon him: This Earl likewiſe was made Governour of Murray and Roſs by the Queen Regent, and ſupported Queen Mary in her Marriage with the Lord Darnley againſt her diſcontented Subjects, eſpecially her Brother Murray; but afterwards, in 1567, himſelf and his Lady had the Misfortune to be both poiſon'd: This Lady was Helena Stewart, Siſter to Mathew, Earl of Lennox, and by her he had Iſſue Alexander, his Son and Heir, and ſixteenth Earl of Sutherland, who in 1573 married Jane Gordon, Daughter to the Earl of Huntley, and Counteſs of Bothwel, to whom ſucceeded John, his eldeſt Son, the ſixth of that Name, and ſeventeenth Earl of Sutherland: This John procur'd a new Infeoffment of the Earldom of Sutherland, with ſeveral additional Privileges: He married Ann Elſingſton, Daughter to the Lord Elſingſton, Lord High Treaſurer of Scotland, by whom he had Iſſue John, his eldeſt Son, the ſeventh of that Name, and eighteenth Earl of Sutherland: He married Lady Jane Drummond, ſole Daughter and Heir to the Earl of Pearth, and had Iſſue by her, firſt, John Lord Strathnaver, who died an Infant in 1637. Secondly, George, preſent Earl of Sutherland, born at Dornogh November 2, 1633, Thirdly, Robert, born in 1634 George, the preſent Earl, married Lady Jane Weems, Daughter to David, ſecond Earl of Weems, by whom he has Iſſue, John Lord Strathnaver, &c.——— The Earls of Sutherland claim Precedency of all the Earls of Scotland; but this Privilege being conteſted, remains ſtill undecided. Buchanan, Spotſwood, &c.

SUTRI, Sutrium, Colonia Julia Sutrina, an ancient City in St. Peter's Patrimony, upon the River Pozzolo, and a Biſhop's See immediately dependant on Rome, five Miles from Nepi to the Weſt, and 24 from Rome to the South-Weſt. It is but a little City, and encompaſſed with Rocks on all ſides. The Emperor Henry III. conven'd his Prelates at Sutri, to examine the Caſe of Gregory VI. who on a time when there were three Popes at Rome, perſuaded them to abdicate or depoſe themſelves, and got himſelf put in their Place in 1044, but was depoſed in that Council, and Conſtantine II. put into his Room. And in 1059 another Council was called here to confirm the Election of Nicolas II. in Oppoſition to Mincius, Biſhop of Velitri, who took the Name of Benedict.

SUTTON, or Sutton Colefield, a Market-Town of Hemlingford Hundred in the North-Weſt Parts of Warwickſhire. It is 88 Miles from London.

SUTTON (Lord Lexington.) This Family is deſcended from the Suttons of Aram in the County of Nottingham. The firſt advanced to the Dignity of Peer was Robert Sutton, Eſq; who, for his Service to King Charles I. and in Conſideration of his Deſcent from an Heir Female of the honourable Family of Lexington, was by Letters Patents, bearing Date Novemb. 21 Car. I. created Lord Lexington of Aram. He married Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir George Mannors of Hadon; his ſecond was Daughter of Sir Guy Palms; and laſtly, Mary, Daughter to Sir Anthony St. Leger, by whom he had Robert, now Lord Lexington. He died October 13, 1668. Dugdale.

SUVAS, Lat. Sebaſtopolis, a Biſhop's See ſuffragan of Sebaſtia, a Place of very good Note, and the Reſidence of a Turkiſh Governour, fifty Miles North-Eaſt of Amaſia. Long. 67. 30. Lat. 42. 30.

SWATHAM, a Market-Town of South-Greneboe Hundred, in the South-Weſt Part of Norfolk, 74 Miles from London.

SWALE, a River in Richmondſhire, in the North Riding of Yorkſhire, which gives the Name of Swaledale to that Part of the Country which it runs through: It is chiefly noted becauſe Paulinus, Archbiſhop of York, at the firſt Converſion of the Saxons, is ſaid to have baptiz'd there above ten thouſand Men, beſides Women and Children, in one Day. Cambd. Brit.

SWANSEY, a Market and Sea-Port Town of Swanſey Hundred, in the South-Weſt of Glamorganſhire, ſituate at the Mouth of the River Tovy, 202 Miles from London.

SUARTSLUYS, a ſmall City in the Province of Overyſſel, ſubject to the States of Holland.

SWEDEN, Suecia, one of the Northern Kingdoms of Europe, is called by the Inhabitants Swerie, Swedenrick and Swerieſryke. It is a great and populous Kingdom, and contains the greateſt part of that which of old was called Scandinavia, and was for ſome time united to the Crown of Denmark, and has been a diſtinct Kingdom only ſince the Year 1525. It is bounded on the North by Lapland, Norway and the Frozen Sea; on the Eaſt by Muſcovy or Great Ruſſia; on the South by the Baltick Sea, and on the Weſt by Denmark and Norway. It is commonly divided into ſix Parts, viz. 1. Gothland, 2. Sweden, properly ſo called, 3. Swediſh Lapland, 4. Finland, 5. Ingria, 6. Livonia; which are divided into 34 Provinces, viz. Angermania, Bleking, Weſtern Bothnia, Caiania, Carelia, Delecarlia, Dalia, Northern and Southern Finland, Geſtricia, Halland, Helſing, Jempterland, Ingria, Kekholme, Lapland, Livonia, Medelpede, Niland, Oſtrogothland, Savolax, Schonen, Switland, Sudermanland, Tavaſthus, Vermland, Upland, Weſtrogothland and Weſtmania, and theſe again ſubdivided into Haeradlis, like our Hundreds, and contains ſeventeen Cities, the Capital whereof is Stockholm; the others are, Calmor, Carloſtadt, Chriſtianople, Lincoping, Gothemburg, Upſal, Norkoping, Toorn, Riga, &c. Sweden abounds with Rivers, Lakes, Rocks and Mountains. The Air is cold, but clear and wholſome (except thoſe Places that lie near to the Seas, Lakes and Marſhes) ſo that frequently People have been found to live here 130 or 140 Years. It is in Length, from Stockholm to the Borders of Lapland, 1000 Italian Miles, in Breadth twenty Days Journey on Horſe-back; ſo that, with all its Appendages, it is thought 900 Miles greater than France and Italy put together. The Soil is more fertil than any other of the Northern Kingdoms; it abounds with all Neceſſaries of Life: They tranſport great Quantities of Malt and Barley, alſo Braſs, Lead, Steel, Copper, Skins of Goats, Bucks, Hides of Oxen, rich Furrs, Deals and Oak for Building. They have ſome Silver in their Mines, and in the Woods Tarr and Honey, and vaſt Quantities of Sea and Freſh-water Fiſh. The People are ſtrong, healthy, and well proportion'd, hoſpitable and civil, and ſo induſtrious, that a Begger is not to be ſeen amongſt them; and are very good Soldiers. This was the Country of the Goths, who in the Fourth Century broke the Force of the Roman Empire in the Weſt, and let in the other barbarous Nations, who ſtill poſſeſs it. The Kingdom of Sweden was formerly Elective till the Year 1523 or 1525, when Guſtavus II. was choſen King, who expell'd the Danes. The Swedes were converted to the Chriſtian Faith by Anſgarus, Biſhop of Bremen, about the Year 816. Lotharius the Emperor procured the Settlement of Biſhops in theſe Northern Countries. They embrac'd Lutheraniſm under Guſtavus the Firſt in the Year 1525. They have alſo planted a New Sweden in America, not far from Virginia.

In the Great Affairs of the Nation the King convenes the States, which conſiſt of the Nobility, the Clergy, Merchants and Country-men. The Nobility ſend the eldeſt of their Families, the Clergy depute two Prieſts out of each Community or Corporation, every City ſends two Merchants, and each Territory or Diſtrict ſends two Country-men. All other Concerns are referred to ſeven Councils, which are the Council of Juſtice, of War, of the Admiralty, of the Chancery, of the Revenues or the Echequer, and of Commerce and Mines. The five chief Officers of the Crown are called the five great Lords, and are the King's Tutors, and govern the Kingdom during his Minority. The Government of their Church is by Biſhops, Prieſts and Deacons, as with us here in England; but their Biſhops have not ſuch large Revenues, nor ſuch Power over the Clergy. The Parochial Prieſts are obliged to Hoſpitality, and to give Entertainment to all Paſſengers and Travellers that ſtand in need of a Loging; ſo that their Houſes are as ſo many Inns. I muſt not forget a very ſingular way they have in ſome Parts of this Kingdom to ſow their Corn; They burn down whole Foreſts, and when they are conſumed they ſow in the remaining Aſhes Seed-Corn and ſome Earth mix'd together; for which, without any further Trouble, they reap two Years together very good Grain. Their Authors ſay, that they have been under Kingly Government ſince the Year of the World 2014, three hundred after the Deluge, their firſt King being nam'd Eric, but own that from A. M. 3336 to 3916 they miſs the Names of their Monarchs; and betwixt the Year of Chriſt 455 to 800 there were fourteen of their Kings controverted. Their preſent King makes the hundreth in their Catalogue; but Hoffman ſays, they reckon from Magog (Noah's Grandſon to Japhet) to Charles XI. 150.

Olaus II. was the firſt who call'd himſelf King of Sweden, his Predeceſſors having call'd themſelves Kings of Upſal, their Metropolis. About 1387 Margeret of Denmark, call'd the Semiramis of the North, united the Kingdoms of Norway, Sweden and Denmark, telling her Nephew Eric, that Sweden would feed him, Norway cloath him, and Denmark defend him. The Genealogy of the preſent King of Sweden is thus; The Nobility, weary of the Tyranny of Chriſtern, King of Denmark, choſe Guſtavus, Son to Ericus of Waſa, in 1522. He was ſucceſsful in his Wars againſt the Danes, with whom he at laſt made Peace. He had alſo War with the Muſcovites and City of Lubeck, and died in 1560. His Son Ericus XIV. ſucceeded in 1561, had War with the Danes and Poles, impriſon'd his Brother John, married his own Concubine, a mean Woman, and cauſed her to be Crown'd in 1568; whereupon his Brother impriſon'd them both, and the Government came to John III. his Brother by another Marriage, who made Peace with the Danes in 1570, as alſo with the Cities of Stetin and Lubeck, but carried on the War againſt the Muſcovites. His Son Sigiſmond, by Catherine, Daughter to Sigiſmond, King of Poland, being choſen King of that Country, ſucceeded him alſo as King of Sweden in 1594, but his Subjects made an Inſurrection againſt him, depoſed him, and excluded his Son Uladiſlaus from the Succeſſion, and gave the Crown in 1604 to Charles IX. third Son of Guſtavus, who had a cruel War with the Poles and Danes. The Kingdom of Sweden was confirm'd to him and his Children of both Sexes, excluſive of Sigiſmond and his Poſterity for ever. He died in 1611. His firſt Wife was Daughter to the Elector Palatine, by whom he had Catherine, married to Caſimer, Duke of Duex Ponts. His ſecond Wife was Chriſtiana, Daughter to the Duke of Holſtein, by whom he had Mary Elizabeth, married to the Duke of Finland, and Guſtavus Adolphus, born in 1594, crown'd in 1617. He made Peace with the Danes in 1613, with the Muſcovites in 1617, made War with the Poles in 1625, ſubdued all Livonia, and made Royal Pruſſia the Seat of the War. He undertook his Expedition into Germany in 1630 to aſſiſt the Proteſtants againſt the Emperor, was kill'd in the Battle of Lutzen in 1632, leaving Mary of Brandenburg: Chriſtina who under Tutelage of her Mother and Conduct of her Couſin Charles Guſtavus, Duke of Deux Ponts, carried on the German War. She made Peace with the Danes and Imperialiſts in 1645, and turning Roman Catholick in 1658, reſign'd the Crown, and was ſucceeded by the forementioned Charles Guſtavus, Son of her Aunt Catherine, who was crown'd in 1654, and, by the Aſſiſtance of the Elector of Brandenburg, became Maſter of moſt of Poland, Pruſſia and Denmark, died in 1660, leaving by his Wife, Daughter to the Duke of Sleſwick, King Charles XI. born in 1655; and by Procurement of the French King made Peace with the Emperor, Poles, and Elector of Brandenburg; but afterwards Leaguing with France, declar'd War againſt the Danes, Elector of Brandenburg, &c. until the Peace of Nimeguen. He married a Daughter of Frederick III. of Denmark, by whom he had Charles, born in 1682, and a Daughter born in 1688. Schowart. Cluverius Ortelius, Mercator, Sanſon & *Du Val. Geograph. SWENKFELD (Gaſpard) a Gentleman of Sileſia, living in the XVI. Century, was very well accompliſh'd in the Belles Lettres; and to raiſe his Character, he pretended about the Year 1527 to make a Jeſt of Luther, declaring every where that Martin had too little Sence and Conduct to ſet up a new Church. Afterwards he fell into ridiculous Hereſies, affirming, that the Scriptures ought to be regulated by the Standard of Mens Faith, and not Faith by the Scriptures: He reviv'd likewiſe ſome of the Hereſies of Valentinus, aſſerting that Jeſus Chriſt brought his Body with him from Heaven, and that the Human Nature of the Son of God was not created by God; and that after our Saviour's Aſcenſion, it was wholly turn'd into God-head: Farther, he affirm'd alſo, that every Man has the ſame Wiſdom, Righteouſneſs, Probity and Charity, both for Kind and Degree with God himſelf; and that the Force or Energy of the Holy Scriptures is the ſame with the Word. Luther ſet ſeveral of his Friends to oppoſe him, as Melanchton, Bucer, Bullenger, &c. Spond. An. SWERNICKE, a great City with a conſiderable Paſs on the River Trona, near the Confines of Boſnia, which was taken by the Imperialiſts. Octob. 15. 1688.

SWINDEN, a Market-Town of Kingsbridge Hundred, in the North-Eaſt Parts of Wiltſhire; from London 62 Miles.

SWINTON, the Name of a Barony in the Shire of Berwick, in the South of Scotland, which gives Name to a very ancient Family, who have a Charter dated in the Reign of Malcolm Kenmoir, King of Scotland, giving Sir Allan Swinton a Right to this Barony, which did formerly belong to his Predeceſſors. The Male Iſſue failing afterwards, the Heireſs married a Son of the Earl of Marches, from whom the preſent Swintons are deſcended.

SWITZERLAND, Helvetia, is a large Country of Europe, which in ancient time was eſteemed a Part of Gallia, in the middle times of Germany, and for three of the laſt Centuries has been a Free State. In the time of the Romans it was divided into four Parts, the Tigurini, Tugeni, Ambrones and Urbigeni. Switzerland is bounded on the North by the Rhine, which ſeparates it from Germany; on the Eaſt by the Lake di Idrio or of Breſcia and the Rhine, which divides it from Germany and the Griſons; on the South by the Lake Lamane, Walliſterland and the Dukedom of Milan; and on the Weſt by the Franche Comtè. It is commonly divided into thirteen Cantons, and other Territories ſubject to them or allied with them; the thirteen Cantons are Zurich, Bern, Lucerne, Uri, Schwitz, Underwalden, Zug, Glaris, Baſel, Friburg, Soleure, Schafhauſen and Appenzel; of which ſeven are Roman Catholicks, and four Proteſtants, and two where both Religions are admitted, viz. Glaris and Appenzel: The Roman Catholick Cantons are Uri, Schwitz, Underwalden, Lucerne, Zug, Friburg and Soleure or Solothurne; and the Proteſtant, Zurich, Berne, Baſel and Schafhauſen. The former commonly have their Aſſemblies at Lucerne, and the latter at Arau; but the general Aſſemblies are kept at Baden. The Countries ſubject to the Cantons are the County of Baden, the Bailywicks of Bremgarten and Mellingan, the Governments or Counties of Tzergans, Rapperſwil, Zurzach; the four Governments of Italy Lugano, Locarno, Mendriſio and Madio, of which the Swiſs have been Maſters ever ſince 1512; the Bailywicks of Gaſteren, Uzenach, Granſon, Orbe, Schwartzemburg, and the Barony of Altſax, all which Countries have either been conquer'd, or came in by voluntary Submiſſion: Their Allies are the Griſons, Walliſerland, the Biſhop of Sion and of Baſel, the Abbot of St. Gal, and the Cities of Mulhauſen, Rotweil, Bienne, Neufchaſter, Geneva, &c. though it is to be obſerved, that theſe are not allied with all the Cantons in general, though moſt are. The Country is for the moſt part overſpread with Lakes and Mountains, yet it is not barren, the Tops of theſe Hills being full of Graſs, and the Bottoms ſurrounded with rich Meadows and fruitful Paſtures, and it yields Corn and Wine, though not ſufficient for its Inhabitants. It is in Length two hundred and forty Miles, and in Breadth a hundred and eighty. The Inhabitants are honeſt, frugal, induſtrious, great Lovers of Liberty, good Soldiers, and Lovers of Impartiality and Juſtice. About the Time of Julius Cæſar's Conquering Gaul, the Swiſſes in a vaſt Body made an Irruption into Gaul, burning all their own Towns before they left them; but Julius Cæſar gave them ſuch warm Entertainment, that they were forced to return to their own Country, after having loſt the greateſt part of their Forces; from which time forwards they were ſubject to the Romans, till the Reigns of Honorius and Valentinian II. they were Conquered by the Burgundians and Germans. A part of this Country, about the Year 635, was given to Segibert, Earl of Habſpurg, the Founder of the Houſe of Auſtria, though that Dukedom came not into the Hands of the Family till about 1376. in the Time of Rodolph the Fortunate, he being the 20th of this Line, and elected Emperor 1273. The reſt of this Country was given by Rodolph, the laſt King of Burgundy, to Conrade II. Emperor of Germany, in the Year 1032, and from thence forward was eſteem'd a part of Germany. But being oppreſſed by Albert, Duke of Auſtria, in 1308 they revolted, and leagued againſt him, viz. the Cantons of Schwitz, Underwalt and Uri; which League they made perpetual in the Year 1315. In 1332 Lucerne, 1351 Zurich, 1352 Glaris, and the ſame Year Zug and Berne, in 1481 Friburg, Baſel and Solothurne, in 1501 Schafhauſen, and in 1513 Appenzel, were added to the former, and their Liberty in the Year 1649 was entire fixed by the Treaty of Munſter. They were converted to the Faith about the Year of Chriſt 177. At the Reformation Zwinglius began here to preach before Luther, and the Cantons of Zurich, Berne, Baſel and Schafhauſen followed his Doctrine, and held a Synod at Baſel for the Eſtabliſhment of it in 1530. This is ſuppoſed to be the higheſt Land in Chriſtendom, yet none abounds more with Lakes and Rivers, which afford Plenty of Fiſh, and good Conveniency for Traffick. The People were formerly of ſuch Reputation for Valour, that no Prince thought himſelf ſecure without them in his Army; but having at laſt diſcovered their mercenary Temper and Treachery in betraying Duke Lodovick Sforſe, who put himſelf under their Protection, their Credit declined; however, they have ſtill yearly Penſions from the greateſt Princes of Europe to keep them Neuter. At the Beginning of the Reformation, the Heats about it broke out into open War betwixt the Papiſts and Proteſtants, the latter being at firſt diſcomfited, and Zuinglius, their great Reformer, ſlain in the Battel;

tel: His Body being found, was burn'd, but his Heart remained untouch'd by the Fire. The Proteſtants taking Arms again defeated their Armies, and at length came to an Accommodation, and ſtill continue their Confederacy for mutual Defence. The thirteen Cantons reſerve to themſelves particular Privileges that do not extend to their Confederates. The four Calviniſt Cantons are more than thrice as big as all the ſeven Popiſh; ſo that Switz does not give Name to the reſt by way of Eminence, but becauſe it was the firſt that aſſerted its Liberty. Their Government, as well as Religion, is various, ſome being wholly Democratical, as Glaris and Appenzel; the reſt, ſome more ſome leſs Ariſtocratical, but none perfectly ſo. At Baſil the Gentry are excluded the Government, becauſe they endeavour to ſubvert it; but at Zurich, Solaturne and Berne alone, the Gentry are chief in Government, becauſe always faithful: But each of the Cantons are abſolute within their reſpective Juriſdictions. The Country in general, though mountainous, is happy in rich Valleys, but their great Diſtance from the Sea renders them uncapable of any flouriſhing Trade; ſo that their greateſt Advantages are from hiring out their Men to Foreign Princes and States, the Thoroughfair of Merchants and Travellers, the two great annual Marts at Zurzeaken, their Linnen Manufactory at St. Gall, the Univerſity of Baſil, and ſeveral other Colleges. Their Force conſiſts altogether in Foot, their Mountains rendring Horſe unſerviceable. They and their Confederates are able to raiſe about 60000 Men; Boterus ſays 120000, but this muſt be underſtood of all that are able to bear Arms. *Simler. deſcript. Helvet. Cluver. deſcript. SWOL, Lat. Navalia, a ſtrong City in the Province of Overyſſel, belonging to the Dutch. It has double Ditches and Ramparts, and ſuppoſed to be the ſtrongeſt Town of the Country. It is three German Miles from the Zuyder Sea, ten North of Nimeguen, and two South of Suarte Sluce. Guichardin.

St. SWYTHIN, was firſt a Prior of a Convent of Benedictines in Wincheſter, and afterwards made Biſhop of that See. Egbert the Great, the firſt King of all England, had formerly choſen him for Præceptor to his Son Ethelwolf. He was a Perſon of an exemplary Life, very charitable to the Poor, and had that Regard for Places conſecrated to Religion, that he left Orders not to be bury'd in the Church, which were perform'd accordingly. He was Biſhop of Wincheſter eleven Years, and died in the Year 863. Anglia Sacra pars prima, &c.

SYAGRIUS, King of Soiſſons, was a Roman Captain, who made himſelf a Sovereign after the Revolution of the Weſtern Empire: He had much ado to keep himſelf ſo, and was the only Perſon of all the Roman Captains, commanding in Gallia Celtica and Belgica, that reſiſted the Force of their Enemies. But at laſt Clovis, King of France aſſembling the Forces of his Kingdom to fight him; who, finding the Battle going againſt him, took his Flight, having beſmear'd his Face with Blood, that he might not be known; and, with ſome of his moſt faithful Subjects, eſcap'd to Alaricus, King of the Viſigoths, who receiv'd him very civilly; but not long after deliver'd him into the Hands of Clovis, who, after having kept him long in Chains, cut off his Head in 486, whoſe Death put an end to the Roman Power in the Gauls. Dorm. de la ville de Soiſſons.

SYBARIS, a River of the Lower Italy, formerly called Great Greece, now Calabria, being the ſame which at preſent is called Cochile, and flows from Mount Apennine. This River gave its Name to a City, which, according to Euſebius, was built the fourth Year of the ſeventeenth Olympiad, that is, about forty five Years after the Building of Rome, and became very powerful, as having twenty five fair Cities, and four neighbouring Provinces that were under its Government. The Inhabitants of this City were infamous for their Effeminateneſs and Luxury. It is reported of them, that they invited thoſe they had a mind to treat a whole Year before the Feaſt; and that being great Lovers of Eels, they favour'd the Fiſhers of them with an Exemption from all Taxes; they would not ſuffer any Handicraft in their City, that by its Noiſe might in the leaſt diſturb their Reſt; and Athenæus tells us, that for this Reaſon they would not ſuffer any Cocks within their Walls; and Seneca repreſents one of the Inhabitants complaining that he had not been able to take his Reſt ſuch a Night, becauſe ſome of the Roſe Leaves he lay upon had doubled under him. Theſe Sybarites maintain'd a long War with thoſe of Crotona, who under the Conduct of Milo vanquiſh'd them and ruin'd their City, about the Year of Rome 244. Some time after, about the Year 308, the Sybarites rebuilt their City, calling it Thurii, and the Athenians two Years after ſent a Colony thither. The Ruins of this ancient City are ſtill to be ſeen about the Gulph of Tarentum, in a Place which thoſe of the Country call Sibari Rovinata. Athenæus, Lib. 7. 12 & 13. Senec. Lib. 2. *de Ira. SYDENHAM (Thomas) Son of William of Wintfordeagle, in Dorſetſhire, Eſq; was admitted Commoner of Magdelen Hall in Oxford in 1642. He took the Degree of Batchelor of Phyſick in that Univerſity in 1648, and afterwards went out Doctor of that Faculty at Cambrige, and was very conſiderable in his Profeſſion, being particularly eminent for his cool Regimen in the Small-Pox, as alſo for giving the Peruvian Bark after the Paroxiſm in Agues, and for his Laudanum. He died in Weſtminſter in 1689. His Works are, Methodus Curandi Febres propriis Obſervationibus ſuperſtructa, &c. *Cui etiam acceſſit Sectio quinta de Peſte, ſive morbo Peſtilentiali. SYDENHAM (Sir Philip) of Brimpton in Com. Sommer. Bar. and Maſter of Arts of Catharine-Hall of Cambrige, and Fellow of the Royal Society, is deſcended from Robert de Sydenham of Sydenham, near North Petherton in Sommerſetſhire, who in the Ninth Year of King Henry the Firſt, marry'd with the Heireſs of the Kitsfords, from whom deſcended Richard de Sydenham of Combe-Sydenham, Juſtice of the Common-Pleas, in the Time of King Richard II. from which Richard deſcended Simon de Sydenham, Dean of Saliſbury, and Lord Biſhop of Chicheſter, and Walter de Sydenham of Orchard-Sydenham in Sommerſetſhire, and John Sydenham, Eſq; who in the eighth Year of King Edward IV. marry'd the Heireſs of the honourable and ancient Family of the Stourtons of Breſton-Plucknet, in Com. Sommer. by whom the Eſtate of Brimpton came into this Family. Sir George Sydenham, whoſe only Daughter was marry'd to the famous Sea-Commander Sir Francis Drake, was deſcended from John abovementioned, and ſo likewiſe was Sir John Sydenham of Brimpton, Knight, who married into the Family of the Godolphins in Cornwall; Sir John, his Son, marry'd with the Bucklands and Gilfords. John Sydenham of Brimpton, Eſq; is the next of this Line, who marry'd the Heireſs of the Hobies of Hales in Glouceſterſhire, to whom Sir Ralph Sydenham, Knight, late Maſter of the Charter-Houſe in London, was a younger Brother. Sir John Sydenham of Brimpton, Bar. was Son and Heir to John above mentioned, and marry'd one of the Daughters of Sir John Hare of Stow in Norfolk, where he lieth buried, by whom he had Iſſue Sir John Poſthumus Sydenham, Bar. who marry'd firſt Elizabeth, Daughter of the Right Hon. John Lord Paulet of Hinton-St. George, in Com. Sommer. and after her Deceaſe was marry'd to the Right Honourable the Lady Mary, ſecond Daughter to Philip, Earl of Pembrook Mother to the preſent Sir Philip. Sir Jo. Father to this Sir Philip, had a conſiderable Eſtate left him as Heir by Sir Thomas Poſthumus Hobye, ſecond Son of Sir Thomas Hobye of Beſham in Com. Berks, who died Embaſſador for Queen Elizabeth in France; Her Majeſty being Godmother to Sir Tho. Poſthumus above-nam'd, who was a Perſon of great Abilities and Integrity, and much eſteem'd by ſome of the principal Miniſters of State and other Great Men of his Time. Beſides the Alliances above mentioned, the Sydenhams have intermarry'd with the Arundels, Audleys, Pophams, Harcourts, Huſſeys, Dalvinfriges, Whetons, &c. The Arms of this Family are, Argent, Three Rams Sable.

SYENA, a City of the Upper Egypt, upon the Nile and the Confines of Ethiopia, which in former times was very conſiderable, and an Archbiſhop's See, being the Boundary of the Roman Empire on that ſide, as it is now of the Turkiſh. Some ſay, it is the ſame which at this Day is called Aſna, and as others Aſuan. Marmol tells us, that the Ethiopians call it Gaguere, and that it was called Aſna when the Arabians conquer'd Egypt, who changed that Name into Zema, that is to ſay, the Fair, as being indeed a very pleaſant City. It formerly was of a very large Circuit, and it is ſtill beautified with very ſumptuous Structures and ſtately Sepulchres, with Epitaphs in the Egyptian and Latin Tongue. There is alſo yet ſtanding one of the Pagan Temples, whole and entire. Near to this City is ſeen one of the principal Cataracts of Nile, which there precipitates it ſelf from very high and ſteep Rocks with an horrid Noiſe. The Marble called Syenites is hewen out of the Mountains near to this City, which was alſo ſurnamed Stignites, from the black Spots wherewith it is diverſify'd: The Italians call this ſort of Marble Granito; of which there are ſeveral Obelisks, Spires, Pillars, and other Works, to be ſeen at Rome, the natural Hardneſs of the Stone having reſiſted the Force of Fire and the devouring Teeth of Time; wherefore the Egyptians made uſe of it to eternize the Memory of their Great Men, recording their Actions by Characters engraven upon Spires or Pyramids of this Marble, ſet upon their Tombs. Marmol. de l'Afrik, Lib. 2. Felibien Principes des Arts.

SYGAROS, an Iſland in the Red-Sea, of ſuch an Antipathy to Dogs, that if any be brought thither from other Places, after having run up and down a while they fall down dead. Plin. Lib. 6. Cap. 20.

SYLBURGIUS (Fredericus) a German born in Heſſen, near to Marpurg, was a Man very learned in the Greek and Latin Tongues, and alſo in the Hebrew, and ſpent much Time in Reviſing and Correcting Greek and Latin Authors, and died at Heydelburg in 1569, being very old. He writ alſo theſe following Books, Grammatica Græca, Grammatica Hebræa, Notæ in Clenardum, beſides ſeveral Greek Poems. Melchior Adam.

SYLLA (Lucius Cornelius) Conſul and Dictator of Rome, was born of one of the moſt illuſtrious Families of that City, and a Deſcendent in the ſixth Line of Cornelius Rufus, who was one of the principal Commanders in the War againſt Pyrrhus: But he was much fallen from the Height of his Anceſtors, and reduced to great Poverty. 'Tis ſaid, he began to riſe again by means of a certain Woman of the Town, called Nicopolis, who made him her Heir, her Fortune being very conſiderable; beſides which, he alſo inherited a great Eſtate from his Mother-in-law. Sylla ſerved in the Wars under Marius in Africa, was advanced to be Prætor, and having gone through other uſual Offices, came at laſt to be Conſul. The Province of Aſia fell to his Command, whilſt he was in the Neighbourhood of Nola, engaged in a War againſt the Marſi: But Marius being become his Enemy, engaged Sulpicius the Tribune to publiſh a Law, by which the People took from Sylla the Command conferred upon him, and ordered Marius to go and command the Army in Aſia, and make War againſt Mithridates. Sylla incenſed by this Affront, and the Cruelty of his Enemies, came to Rome, made himſelf Maſter of it, put Sulpicius to Death, and obliged Marius to make his Eſcape; and then marched with his Army againſt Mithridates, defeated his Lieutenants in Bæotia, Macedonia and Greece, took the City of Athens, and after many Victories forc'd the King to beg Peace of him, which he granted. Theſe Wars detained him two or three Years in Aſia, which gave his Enemies occaſion to ſtrengthen themſelves againſt him in the City; which being informed of, he reſolved to return thither and quaſh their Deſigns. The Conſuls that then were, march'd out to diſpute his Paſſage, but in vain, for he defeated Norbanus near to Canuſium in 671 of Rome, and the following Year he defeated Marius the Younger at the Seige of Paleſtrina, and entred the City fighting, through the Gate Collina; and having given himſelf the Name of Felix or Happy, and being declared Dictator, he proſcrib'd a great Number of the Senators, and exerciſed moſt unheard-of and barbarous Cruelties. Afterwards quitting his Dictatorſhip, he retired near to Cumæ, and died of a Phthiriaſis, or Louzy Diſeaſe, about the Year 676, being 60 Years of Age. He was not without his good Qualities, which he greatly obſcured by his barbarous Cruelties. Plutarch. in Sylla. Velleius Paterc. Lib. 2. Titus Livius, Florus, Eutrop.

SYLVA, (Beatrix de) ſhe was the Foundreſs of the Order of the Conception in 1484, approved by Innocent the Eighth; and Queen Iſabella of Caſtile beſtowed a Houſe upon her at Toledo, into which ſhe retired with twelve Virgins, who embraced this Inſtitute, and died there much about the ſame time. Franciſc. Gonzag. in her Life.

SYLVA (Edwardus) a Portugueſe Jeſuit, who went to Japan by Order of St. Franciſcus Xaverius, where he became ſo perfect a Maſter of the Language of the Country, that he was the firſt that made a Grammar and large Dictionary of it. He died in the Kingdom of Bango, in the Year 1564. Alegambo Bibl. Soc. Jeſu.

SYLVA, a Roman Game, in which they planted an artificial Wood in the Circus, and furniſh'd it with a great Number of Beaſts, which the People courſed or hunted, but without any Arms, for they were obliged to take them alive; for which Reaſon they ſeldom put any wild Beaſts into theſe Artificial Foreſts, that might dangerouſly hurt the Hunters. The Emperor Heliogabalus inſtead of Pieces of Money, that were uſed to be thrown amongſt the People, and leſſer Animals that were allowed them to make Sport with, furniſh'd the Circus with Oxen, Camels and Red Deer; and the Emperor Gordianus beſtowed a Sylva, wherein were two hundred Red Deer, thirty wild Horſes, a hundred Goats, ten Elks, a hundred Bulls, three hundred Oſtriches, thirty wild Aſſes, a hundred and fifty wild Boars, two hundred wild Goats, and two hundred Fallow Deer. Since Conſtantine's Time we find no Mention of theſe Sylvæ in Hiſtory, but only of the Game or Sport called Pancarpus. See Pancarpus. Salmaſius. Jul. Capitol. Caſaubon, &c.

SYLVANUS, a Roman Country God, whom they ſuppoſed to preſide over Woods, Foreſts and Flocks. Some make him the Son of Faunus, but Plutarch ſaith, he was the inceſtuous Iſſue of Valeria, by her Father Valerius. The Poets tell us, he loved a Boy called Cypariſſus, who being changed into a Cypreſs-Tree by Apollo, Sylvanus thenceforward carried a Branch of Cypreſs in his Hand. Feneſtella tells us, that Pan, Faunus and Sylvanus, were only ſeveral Appellations of the ſame Deity. Their Prieſts were called Luperci, and their Feaſt Lupercalia. Horat. 2. Epod. Plut. in his Paralels. Feneſtel. de Sacerdot. Rom.

SYLVERIUS (Pope) the Succeſſor to Agapetus I. he was born in the Territory of (Rome, Campagnia di Roma) and was the Son of Hormiſdas, who was afterwards raiſed to the Papacy. Some ſay, that he was more beholding for his Election to the Authority of Theodatus, than to the free Suffrages of the Roman Clergy; though others ſay, that ſome Prieſts having at firſt oppoſed his Election, approv'd of it as ſoon as they ſaw him choſen, which was the twentieth of June, 536. But the Empreſs Theodora, Juſtinian's Wife, having promiſed the Papacy to Vigilius the Deacon, found a Pretext againſt him, for refuſing to re-eſtabliſh Anthimus, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and cauſed him to be driven out of the City, ſent him in Baniſhment to Patara, and put Vigilius into his Place; but the Biſhop of Patara interceding for Sylverius to the Emperor, he ordered him to be brought back to Italy; where Vigilius's Party were ſo ſtrong, that they got him baniſh'd a ſecond time to a deſart Iſland in the Sea of Liguria, called the Iſle of Palmes, where, in 539, ſome Italian Prelates being come to viſit him, he pronounced the Sentence of Excommunication againſt Vigilius, which ſo incenſed him, that he ordered Sylverius to be more ſtraitly impriſon'd; ſo that the next Year he ended his Life there of Hunger and Grief the twentieth of June, 540. Liberat. in Breviar. Anaſtaſ. in Vit. Pontif. Baron. in Annales & Martyr.

SYLVESTER, the firſt of that Name Pope, was a Roman, and choſen after Melchiades, the firſt of February, 314. Preſently after his Election he ſent Deputies to the Council of Arles, aſſembled to determine the Caſe of the Donatiſts. In a Council he held at Rome in 315, he diſputed againſt the Jews, the Acts of which Diſpute are ſtill to be ſeen. He died in 335, the laſt Day of December. Baron. Annal. Platina.

SYLVESTER II. was a French Man, and a Monk of the Abbey of Aurillac in Auvergne, though others ſay of Fleuri: His Name was Gerbert; he had great Skill in Mathematicks and other ingenuous Literature, which made Hugo Capet, King of France, to prefer him to be the Præceptor of his Son Robert, who was his Succeſſor, and ſo famous for his Learning and Piety. Gerbert behaved himſelf ſo well in this Station, that the King beſtowed upon him the Archbiſhoprick of Reims in 992, which had before been given to Arnulphus, natural Son of King Lotharius: This cauſed ſome Trouble to Gerbertus, who ſeeing himſelf forced to quit that See, retired to Germany, where the Emperor Otho III. made him his Præceptor, and beſtowed upon him the Archbiſhoprick of Ravenna in 997. And ſome time after, upon the Death of Pope Gregory V. he was advanced to his Place in 999. He died the twentieth of May, 1003. We have ſeveral Works of this Pope, as, his hundred and forty nine Letters, of the Life of St. Adelbert, Archbiſhop of Prague, and ſome other Treatiſes of Geometry, Rhetorick, Mathematicks, the Aſtrolabe, &c. which Sciences being a kind of Prodigy in the tenth Century, which was an Age of Ignorance, made him to paſs for a Magician. *Baron. in Annal. SYLVESTER III. (Anti-Pope) before called John, Biſhop of Sabina, was choſen in Oppoſition to Benedict IX. in 1043 or 1044; and three Months after his Election was depoſed by the Faction of the Earl of Freſcati, and Benedict ſet up again. Baron. A. C. 1044.

SYLVIA, otherwiſe called Rhea and Ilia, the Daughter of Numitor, King of the Albans, whom her Uncle Amulius, after having driven Numitor from his Kingdom and kill'd his Son, cloiſtered up amongſt the Veſtal Virgins, to prevent her having any Iſſue. But, contrary to his Expectation, it ſo happened, that being on a time gone to fetch Water from the Tyber, and overtaken with a great Drowzineſs, ſhe fell aſleep on the Banks, and dreaming that the God Mars lay with her; whereupon ſhe was found with Child, and was delivered of Romulus and Remus, who by Command of Amulius were expoſed, and ſhe buried alive on the Banks of that River: However, Plutarch ſays ſhe was pardon'd. Plut. in the Life of Romulus.

SYLVIUS (Alba) King of the Latins, of the Family of Æneas, ſucceeded to his Father Latinus Sylvius, about A. M. 3026. Titus Livius doth not reckon him amongſt the Princes deſcended from Æneas, but Dionyſius Halicarnaſſeus and others do. He reigned thirty nine Years, and left his Crown to his Son Atys or Caper Sylvius. Dion. Halic. Lib. 1. Cap. 8. Euſeb. in Chron.

SYLVIUS POSTHUMUS, King of the Albans, Son of Aſcanius and Grandſon of Æneas: He was called Sylvius becauſe he was born in a Wood, and from him his Succeſſors in the Kingdom of Alba were called Sylvii, as the Roman Emperors Cæſars, and the Kings of the Parthians, Arſacides. He was called Poſthumus, becauſe he was born after the Death of his Father. He reigned twenty nine Years, and was contemporary with Saul, King of the Jews. Geneb. in Chron.

SYMMACHUS (Pope) born in the Iſle of Sardinia, was Canonically elected after Anaſtaſius II. in 498; Feſtus, a Patrician, who had promiſed the Emperor Anaſtaſius to oblige the Pope to ſubſcribe his Edict againſt the Council of Chalcedon, foreſeeing that he who was then elected would never be brought to ſuch a ſcandalous Compliance, reſolv'd to get another ſet up, and in ſhort, he work'd the Buſineſs ſo induſtriouſly by his Cabals and Money, that ſome of the Clergy were perſuaded to elect another Pope, called Laurentius, who was choſen the ſame Day; which Schiſm was the Cauſe of many Diſorders, and engaged both Parties to have Recourſe to the Judgment of Theodorick, King of the Goths, who decided the Controverſie in Favour of Symmachus, who was afterwards declared lawful Pope by a Council, and upon his being declared ſo, made Laurence his Antagoniſt Biſhop of Nocere. Thus the Matter is related by Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius, but the Account of Theodorus Lector, Paulus Diaconus and Nicephorus is more probable, who report that this King of the Goths conven'd the Council above-mentioned at Rome, where he did not appear till a Year after its Sitting, as Caſſiodorus informs us, who was then one of his Retinue: This happened about the Year 500 or 501, when the Schiſmaticks having reviv'd their Calumnies againſt this Pope, obliged him to ſubmit his Cauſe to the Determination of the Biſhops, who declared him innocent and lawful Pope both in this Council and in three or four others. He oppoſed the Emperor Anaſtaſius, who had declared himſelf againſt the Council of Chalcedon, and having acquainted the Biſhops with the Miſconduct of this Prince, in favour of the Eutychians, he proceeded in Excommunication againſt him: When Anaſtaſius was acquainted with this Cenſure, he fell into a violent Paſſion, and not having it in his Power to revenge himſelf any otherwiſe than by Invectives, he fell foul upon the Pope, and blacken'd him to that degree, that Symmachus was oblig'd to purge himſelf in an Apologetical Letter: He likewiſe employ'd his Intereſt for the Reſtitution of the Eſtates of the Church, and writing to the Orthodox Eaſtern Biſhops, exhorted them to hold out againſt the Rigours and Cruelty of the Emperor, and not to be forc'd upon any unreaſonable Compliances. Symmachus died at Rome in July, Ann. 514, after having held the Chair fifteen Years. There are eleven Epiſtles and ſome Decrees of his extant. Ennodius Lib. de Fide Cathol. Theodorus Lector in Collect. Anaſtaſius in vit. Pontif. Ciaconius. Du Cheſne & *Papyr. Maſſon in Symmacho. SYMMACHUS, a Heretick, was a Samaritan by Nation, and being not ſatisfied with the Eſteem he had amongſt his own Party, he betook himſelf to the Jews, and ſubmitted himſelf to a ſecond Circumciſion; and after this turned Chriſtian, and fell into the Errors of the Ebionites. He denied the laſt Judgment, &c. S. Epiphan. de pond. & menſ. St. Jerom. Lib. 2. adv. Ruff. St. Ambroſ. Præf. in Epiſt. ad Gallat. Philaſtre de Hæres. Baron. Ann. Chriſt. 203. N. 15 & 16.

SYMMACHUS, Præfect of Rome, lived towards the End of the IVth Century, and was famous for his Birth, Eloquence and Vertue: He was the Son of another Symmachus, a Writer of Epigrams. The Son was deſigned to be the Pagan High-Prieſt of that City, and was choſen by the Senate to preſent a Requeſt to the Emperor Valentinian for reſtoring of the Revenue of the Pagan Prieſts and Veſtals, and of the Altar of Victory; upon this Occaſion he made a curious Harangue, and it muſt be ſaid, that a bad Cauſe was never better defended: But St. Ambroſe, who was likewiſe a Perſon of Elocution, being informed of this Embaſſy, writ the Emperor a moſt excellent Letter, to prevent him from giving way to his Petition, and by that means quaſh'd Symmachus his Deſign. Afterwards Symmachus compoſed a flattering Panegyrick upon the Uſurper Maximus, in which he ſunk much beneath his Quality and Character; to atone for which Fault, he employ'd his Rhetorick upon the juſt Commendations of Theodoſius the Great, before the ſame Valentinian, and therein repeated his Requeſt of reſtoring the Altar of Victory, he incenſed the Emperor, who thereupon cauſed him to be baniſh'd, though afterwards, upon reading his Apology, he received him again into the Number of his Friends, and raiſed him to the Dignity of Conſul in 391. Plin. Lib. 5. Saturn. Cap. 5. St. Ambroſ. Ep. 30. *Proſper. in Chron. SYMMACHUS, Præfect of Rome, and Conſul in 522. His Learning, his Probity, his Experience and Wiſdom, made him the moſt conſiderable Man in the Senate, and was beſides Boethius his Father-in-Law, which alſo added to his Eſteem. He was put to Death by Theodorick upon meer Suſpicions.

SYMPLEGADES, otherwiſe called Cyaneæ, and at preſent le Pavonare, are two Iſles, or rather Rocks, ſituate near to the Channel of the Black Sea, or the Streights of Conſtantinople, which are at ſo ſmall a Diſtance, that they ſeem to touch one another, which hath given the Poets Occaſion to ſay, that they knock'd againſt one another; whence they took their Name. Ovid. Lib. 15. *Metamorph. SYNAGOGA, is a Greek Word ſignifying a Congregation or Aſſembly, but is peculiarly taken for the Place where the Jews were uſed to meet to celebrate Divine Worſhip. Leo of Modena, a Venetian Rabbi, gives us this Deſcription of them. The Jews make their Synagogues, which they alſo call Schools, in a Houſe or Place ſeparate from others as much as they can, when they have not the means of building ſumptuous Edifices for that Purpoſe. The Walls are whited, wainſcotted, or hung with Tapeſtry; and round the Walls ſeveral Sentences of Scripture are writ, putting them in mind to be attentive in Prayer. The Floor is furniſh'd with ſeveral Benches to ſit upon, and in ſome of theſe Houſes or Buildings are Cupboards or Preſſes where they ſhut up their Books and Veils: In the midſt of the Room, or along the Wall, are hung many Lamps, into which they put Oyl and Wax to illuminate it; and a Trunk is placed at the Entry to receive the Charity of well-diſpoſed People, which is afterwards diſtributed to the Poor. At the Eaſt End of every Synagogue is a large Preſs, which they call Aron, that is to ſay, an Ark, in Memory of the Ark of the Covenant, where they keep the five Books of Moſes, written upon Velom, with Ink made expreſs for that purpoſe. In the Midſt, or at the Entry of the Synagogue, is as it were a long Altar of Wood, ſomewhat raiſed, upon which they unfold or unrol the Book of the Law when they read in it; and they lean on this kind of Table or Pulpit when they preach. They have a Place on one ſide of the Synagogue, or a Gallery, on high, faced with a high Wooden Lattice, where the Women perform their Devotions, who can ſee what is done in the Synagogue, but cannot be ſeen by the Men, to the end they may be no Occaſion of giving them any Diſtraction in their Prayers. Of theſe Synagogues there are more or leſs in every City, according to the Quantity or Diverſity of the Jews that inhabit there; for the Eaſtern, German, Portugueſe and Italian Jews have ſome Difference in their Prayers, and therefore are willing each of them to have diſtinct Places in which to perform their Devotions.

Formerly there were many of theſe Synagogues in the Holy Land, both in Cities and Country, for the Convenience of the People; and at the time of the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem by the Romans, there were no leſs than four hundred and eighty in that City, whereof many were built by the Jews that were Strangers, for the uſe of their own Nation, as appears from the ſixth Chapter of the Acts, where mention is made of the Synagogues of the Cyrenians and Alexandrians. Every Synagogue of the Jews had its Chief, who was called the Prince of the Synagogue, and had under him ſeveral Miniſters, whereof ſome were employ'd to Preach, others to read Prayers, and about other Ceremonies of their Religion, excepting Sacrifices only, which could not be offered ſave only in the Temple. R. Leo of Moden. Part 1. Chap. 10.

SYNAXARION, is the Name of an Eccleſiaſtical Book of the Greeks, which contains a brief Collection of the Lives of the Saints, and a ſhort Explanation of each Feſtival or Holiday. This Book is not only printed in the ordinary Greek of the Learned, but alſo in the Vulgar, for the uſe of the Common People. There are many Falſities contained in this Book, as may be perceived from the two Diſſertations which Leo Allatius hath writ concerning the Eccleſiaſtical Books of the Greeks, where he accuſeth Zantopulus for having inſerted many Falſities in the Synaxaria.

SYNESIUS, Biſhop of Ptolemais or Cyrene, was one of the moſt learned and eloquent Prelates of his Age: He had been the Diſciple of the famous Hypatia of Alexandria, the Daughter of Theon, and profeſs'd the Platonick Philoſophy. The Chriſtians perceiving the Innocence of his Life and Converſation, perſuaded him to be baptiz'd, which he was. He was married, and had four Sons, whom he took Pains to inſtruct himſelf. In the Year 400 he was ſent to Conſtantinople, at which time he compoſed a Treatiſe De Regno, in which he gave ſignal Marks of his Wiſdom, Judgment and Politeneſs, and preſented it to the Emperor Arcadius, together with the Crowns of Gold, which he with the Deputies of his Province had brought along with them. Some ſhort time after this he was ordain'd Prieſt; and the Biſhop of Ptolemais dying in 410, the People choſe him for his Succeſſor, and was conſecrated by Theophilus of Alexandria. As he was a great Lover of Retiredneſs and Study, he did his utmoſt Endeavours to avoid the accepting of that Dignity, as appears by the Letter he writ to his Brother (which is the hundred and fifth) wherein he accuſeth himſelf of being a Lover of Gaming and Hunting, and proteſts that he would not quit his Wife. The preciſe time of his Death is not known. His Brother Evoptius ſucceeded him in his Biſhoprick. Dionyſius Petavius has publiſh'd Syneſius's Works in 1632 and 1633, which are the beſt Editions we have of them: To which are added very curious Remarks, together with the Life of this great Prelate. His Books are not many, but very exact and full of Learning. Beſides his Treatiſe De Regno, he writ alſo that of Providence, one hundred and fifty five Epiſtles, Calvitii Encomium, Cataſtaſis in Barbarorum Excurſionem, Cataſtaſis in Laudem Anyſii. De Dono Aſtrolabii, and Homilies, that are very excellent. His manner of ſpeaking concerning God, the Trinity, the Soul and Spirits, ſhew him to have been a great Platoniſt. Evagri. SYNNADA, or Synada, a City of Phrygia, and an Archiepiſcopal See, on which no leſs than twenty Epiſcopal Cities depended, and famous for its Marble, which was called Synnadicum. Some Prelates being aſſembled here, in the Year 265 declared the Baptiſm conferred by Hereticks to be null, and that it was to be adminiſtred anew to thoſe who relinquiſh their Errors. Euſeb. SYPHAX, King of a part of Numidia, the Inhabitants whereof were called Maſſyli. He took part with the Romans, but afterwards joyn'd himſelf to the Carthaginians. Scipio being come into Africa, twice defeated the Carthaginians, commanded by Aſdrubal, the Son of Giſcon and Syphax; in the firſt Battel there were 40000 of the Enemies kill'd or burnt, and 6000 taken Priſoners; and in the ſecond all their Forces were utterly routed and diſperſed; and Lælius and Maſiniſſa, King of another part of Numidia, purſued Syphax, whom they took in Cyrta, with Sophoniba his Wfe, who being a Carthaginian, and the Daughter of Aſdrubal, had engaged her Huſband to break with Scipio, and to joyn with the Carthaginians. Maſiniſſa, taken with the Beauty of this his Priſoner, married her; but finding his Marriage diſapproved by Scipio, who was ſuſpicious of the Wit of this cunning Woman, and the mortal Hatred ſhe had againſt the Romans, he was forced to leave her. Vermina, the Son of Syphax, was likewiſe defeated, and his Dominions were given to Maſiniſſa. This unhappy King being led in Triumph by Scipio, and afterwards caſt into Priſon, there famiſh'd himſelf. Plutarch. in Scip. Titus Livius. Polybius. Eutropius.

SYRACES, a Jockey or Horſe-Rider amongſt the Saces, who having cut off his Noſe and Ears, came to Darius, being then engaged in War againſt his Country, and told him he had received that ill Uſage of his own Countrymen, which had forc'd him to ſeek a Refuge with him: Darius believing him, committed to him a part of his Army; who made uſe of this Opportunity to deliver his Country from ſo powerful an Enemy. Polyæn. Lib. 7. in Dario.

SYRACUSA, once the nobleſt and moſt potent City in the Iſland of Scicily, ſeated on the Eaſt-ſide thereof, which was formerly a Metropolis, but is now only a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Montreal. It was built by Archias, a Corinthian, A. M. 3190, above 700 Years before the Birth of our Saviour, in the Days of Uzziah, King of Judah. In after-times it became the greateſt and moſt celebrated City the Greeks poſſeſs'd in any Part of the World; and as Strabo ſaith, was a hundred and eighty Greek Stadia's in Circuit, which is twenty two Engliſh Miles and an half It was divided into four Parts, which were, Acradina, Tyche, Neapolis and Inſula; the firſt of theſe, which was the greateſt, contain'd the famous Temple of Jupiter, a magnificent Palace, and a great Square ſurrounded with arched Walks and Piazza's, beſides abundance of fair Streets: In that of Naples was a great Amphitheatre, and a wonderful Statue of Apollo in the midſt of a large Square: The third Tyche, contain'd a College and divers Temples: And the laſt, called the Iſle of Ortygia, was conſiderable for Hiero's Palace, two Temples of Diana (now the Cathedral of St. Lucia) and Minerva, and the famous Fountain of Arethuſa. It fell under the Power of the Romans in the Year of the World 3738, of Rome 541, and 210 Years before the Birth of our Saviour, when it was entirely ruin'd by Marcellus, the Roman General, who found more Booty here than the Romans found at Carthage; yet it recovered again, and in Tully's Time had three Walls, three Caſtles, and a Marble Gate, and could raiſe twelve thouſand Horſe and four hundred Ships. Archimedes, a Mathematician, who was ſlain in the Storm, having retarded the Taking of it by his Art, more than the Citizens and Gariſon did by their Arms, in 884 the Saracens took and razed it to the Ground, ſince which it has never recovered its ancient Splendor. At preſent Syracuſe, now Syragoſa, ſtands in the Iſle of Ortygia, ſurrounded with Rocks, which make it very ſtrong; having alſo a ſtrong Caſtle, and is it ſelf ſtrongly walled, and hath two fair Havens. It hath a Gariſon of two hundred Spaniards and three hundred Townſmen, a neighbouring Marſh renders it unhealthful. Long. 39. 24. Lat. 36. 24. *Cluver. deſcript. Sicil. Vincenzo Mirabella Antiq. SYRIA, now by the Inhabitants called Souriſtan, is a vaſt Country in the Greater Aſia, called by the Jews, Aram: When it is largely taken it contains Phœnicia, Paleſtine or the Holy Land, and Syria properly ſo called. In the latter Acceptation, it is bounded to the North by Cilicia and the Leſſer Armenia; on the Eaſt by Meſopotamia, divided from it by the Euphrates, and Arabia Deſerta; on the South it hath Paleſtine and Phœnicia; and on the Weſt the Mediterranean Sea. Its Length from North to South is four hundred Miles; and from Eaſt to Weſt it is in Breadth two hundred Italian Miles. In ancient Times Damaſcus was the capital City of this Country, afterwards Antioch, and now Aleppo. The Country is by Nature extremely fruitful, and was once as populous, but is now almoſt deſolate. It contains the Cities Alexandretta, Amain, which is the ancient Apamea, Hierapolis, now Tedith, Laodicea, now Laudicia, Samoſata, now Scompſat, and Antioch now Antachin. Syria was at firſt ſubject to Kings of their own, the laſt of whom was conquer'd by Tiglath Pileſer, King of Aſſyria, and beheaded in Damaſcus. After this they were ſubject to the Kings of Aſſyria, Media and Perſia, till after the Death of Alexander the Great. Seleucus Nicanor began another Kingdom here about A. M. 3644, whoſe Succeſſors reigned to the Number of twenty one, till Pompey ſubdued it to the Romans, and made it a Province in A. M. 4650, ſixty two Years before the Birth of our Saviour, and continued under the Romans till A. C. 636, or as others 64, when it was conquered by Haumer, the third Caliph of the Saracens. About A. C. 1075 Melech and Ducat began a Turkiſh Kingdom here, which in 1262 was deſtroy'd by Haalon the Tartar. Next it fell into the Hands of the Mamaluks of Egypt. Conſtantine the Emperor took this Country from the Saracens in 932, and Godfrey of Bouloigne did the like afterwards. Baldwin IV. King of Jeruſalem waſted it twice about 1173. Seraph, Sultan of Babylon, ſeiz'd the whole about 1292. The Egyptians poſſeſs'd it in 1304. And the Turks enjoy it ſince 1517. This Country is noted for producing Black Lions. The Language of the Inhabitants is ſomewhat like the Hebrew, but writ in different Characters. The People are effeminate and inconſtant, paſſionate, cunning and covetous, much addicted to ſenſual Pleaſures, and delight in Oyntments and Perfumes. Herodian, Propertius, Virgil. Syria is a Country of great Trade, the greateſt part of the Inhabitants are Mahometans, beſides a conſiderable Number of Jews and Chriſtians of divers Denominations. *Selden. in Prolegom. de Dis Syris. SYRIANUS, a Platonick Philoſopher of Alexandria, who profeſs'd at Athens. He writ Commentaries upon all Homer, and ſeven Books of the Republick of Athens. His Diſciple Proclus ſucceeded him. Suidas.

SYRIANS, or Jacobites, a ſort of Chriſtians, called Syrians becauſe they lived in Syria, and Jacobites from one Jacob, who followed the Errors of Eutyches. There are about fifty thouſand of them diſperſed through Syria, Meſopotamia and Chaldæa, ſcarcely any of them being to be found elſewhere: They united themſelves with the Armenians in a Convention of ten Biſhops of both Nations conven'd in Perſia at a Place called Tevin, eighty three Years after the Council of Chalcedon, in the Time of Coſroes, King of Perſia. They admit but one Nature in Jeſus Chriſt, compoſed of the Divine and Human, according to the Opinion of Dioſcorus, whom they honour as a Saint: And for a Mark of their owning one only Nature, they make the Sign of the Croſs with the middle Finger only; keeping all the reſt bent down. They adminiſter extreme Unction only to Prieſts, and that too after they are dead, immediately before they are put into the Grave. The Jacobites don't believe Purgatory, though they pray for the Dead: They don't think themſelves oblig'd to pay any Obedience to the Pope, but own him the firſt of the four Patriarchs. They begin their Day at Sun-ſet, and faſt, that is, abſtain from Fleſh, on Wedneſdays and Fridays. Morery adds, that about twenty Years ſince, their Patriarch Andrew, together with Cachadour, the Patriarch of the Armenians, ſent a Profeſſion of their Faith to Pope Alexander VIII. with Letters of Submiſſion to the See of Rome, but after the Death of this Andrew, Abdel Meſſich ſucceeding in the Chair, attempted to revoke his Predeceſſor's Act of Submiſſion, but the Roman Catholicks elected one Peter Gregory, Archbiſhop of Jeruſalem, for their Patriarch, and procured an Order from the Grand Signior to confirm their Election: This Peter Gregory was conſecrated at Aleppo by eight Archbiſhops and Biſhops, i. e. one Maronite Biſhop, three Jacobite Roman Catholicks, two Greeks and two Armenians. After his Promotion to this Dignity, he annul'd all the Acts that the Patriarch Meſſich had made during his five Months Sitting, returning Things into the ſame State they were left by the Patriarch Andrew. He likewiſe wrote to Pope Innocent XI. and ſent him a Form of his Creed in Syriac and Arabick: But notwithſtanding ſome of the Principal of their Perſuaſion are come over, our Author inſinuates, that the greateſt part of their Church continue in their old Opinion. The Syrian Patriarchs and Biſhops wear no Mitres, but only a kind of embroidered Cap. They celebrate the Divine Office in the Syriack Tongue, which they tell us was the ſame our Saviour ſpoke. They conſecrate leavened Bread, conformable to the Practice of the Greeks, and contrary to the Cuſtom of the Maronites and Armenians. Their Abſtinences are more ſtrict and ſevere than thoſe of the Roman Catholicks; for beſides Lent, they obſerve the Faſts of Chriſtmas, of the Aſſumption of our Lady, and of the Apoſtles, and during the whole Lent they eat nothing till Three a Clock in the Afternoon. See Jacobites. Michael l'Fevre Theatr: d'la Turquie.

SYROPULUS (Sylveſter) the Author of the Hiſtory of the Council of Florence, printed at the Hague in 660. He was one of the Staurophori, or Croſs-bearers, which are Officers of the Patriarch, that wear Croſſes upon their Hats to diſtinguiſh them from others. He was a profeſs'd Enemy to the Latins, that is, the Roman Catholicks, as appears by his Hiſtory of that Council. The Greek Manuſcript of Syropulus is in the French King's Library, whence the Copy of the printed Book is taken. Fa. Simon.

SYRTES, are two Banks or Sands in the Mediterranean, on the Coaſt of Africa, between the Kingdoms of Tunis and Barca in Barbary. They are very dangerous by reaſon of the ſhifting of the Sands, ſo that the Sea there is ſometimes very ſhallow, and at other times again very deep. The leſſer of theſe lies between Tunis and Tripoli, and the greater between the Kingdoms of Tripoli and Barca. There are alſo of theſe Syrtes or Quick-ſands on the Land over-againſt the greater Syrtis or Golfo di Sidra, as the Italians call it, where the Sand is ſometimes carried in Drifts as high as Mountains, cauſing Travellers not only to loſe their Way, but often overwhelming them; and obligeth them to direct their Way by the Stars.

T.

THIS Letter is ſometimes put for ſ, Θαλάττα for Θαλάσσα, pultare for pulſare; and ſometimes for d, as Alexanter for Alexander. In Engliſh, when join'd to h, it has ſometimes the Sound of a d, as in the Words, the, this, that, which comes from the Dutch, de, dis, dat. The Romans us'd it, to ſignifie, that the Tribunes had approved what was mark'd with it. Lucian ſays, That it was a Mark put upon Robbers, becauſe it repreſented a Gibbet, to ſignifie what they deſerved.

TABAGO, or the Tobacco Iſland in the Weſt-Indies, in the North Sea, poſſeſſed by the Dutch, lyes eight Miles from Le Trinidad to the North-Eaſt, and 90 South of Barbadoes, water'd with 18 ſmall Rivers, and well provided with ſafe Harbours. It's about nine Dutch Miles long, and three broad, very fruitful, and ſcarcely wanting any Neceſſaries. The Dutch began to plant it about forty Years ago. The Engliſh under Sir Tobias Bridges took and plunder'd it in 1673, and carried away four hundred Priſoners, and as many Negroes. In 1677, the French King ſent the Count D'Eſtree with ten Ships thither, who entring Klips Bay, engaged for ſeveral Days together a Fleet of eight Dutch, commanded by James Bincket a Dutchman, who defended the Iſland ſo well, that though the French pretended to keep the Fort, yet they were forc'd to draw off, and leave the Dutch Maſters of it. The whole Plantation of this Iſland is Tobacco. Long. 316. Lat. 10. 30.

TABARESTAN, a Province of the Kingdom of Perſia, on the Caſpian Sea, to which it giveth Name. 'Tis a part of ancient Hircania, which lyes between the Provinces of Gilan and Khoemus. Its capital City is Aſterabeth.

TABARCA, a Sea-Port Town on the Coaſt of Barbary, twenty Leagues from Biſerta to the Weſt, over-againſt Cape Pulo in Sardinia, thirty Leagues, So. Nub. pag. 88. Forty four from Collo Eaſt. This was anciently called Tabraca.

TABARQUE, a City of Africk towards the Mediterranean, on the Coaſt of the Kingdom of Tunis. It was formerly a Biſhop's See, but at this day is only conſiderable for its Harbour, which belongs to the Houſe of Lomellini of Genoa.

TABASCO, a Province of Northern America in New Spain, belonging to the Government of Mexico; its capital City is Tabaſco, or Notredame d' la Victoire.

TABENNA, an Iſland of Egypt in Thebais, where is at preſent the Eaſtern Part of Said, near the ancient City of Syene, which is believed to be Aſna or Aſuan. There was a little Town called Tabennis, which is ſpoken of in St. Pachom's Life. This Iſland was formerly famous, by the Reputation of the Monks to whom it gave the Sirname Tabennioſita. Palladius Hiſt. tripart.

TABERNACLES. The Jews had a Feaſt which they called the Feaſt of Tabernacles, or Tents, in Commemoration of their encamping in the Wilderneſs after their Departure out of Egypt. It was called Scenopegia, Σκηνοπηγία Gr. which is a Word compounded of σκήνη a Tent, and πηγνύειν to fix, build, make. It was celebrated on the 15th of the Month Tiſri, which anſwers to September. This Feaſt is inſtituted in Lev. 23. where it is ſaid, Seven days ſhall ye dwell in Tabernacles or Tents. Leo of Modena ſays, That every one made in an open Place a Lodge covered with Leaves, hung round, and adorned to their utmoſt Ability. They eat and drank, and ſome even lay in them. The eighth day was ſolemnly obſerved in a Publick Aſſembly. The Feaſt of the Rejoicing of the Law, Lætitia Legis, which is celebrated the Day following, makes a part of the Feaſt of Tabernacles, which likewiſe laſts nine Days: The two firſt and two laſt Days of this Feaſt are ſolemn, but the other five are not. They procure againſt that time one Branch of Palm-Tree, three of Myrtle, two of Willow, and one of Citron-Tree; and when they ſay over the Pſalms Hallel in the Synagogue, they take in their Right-Hand all the Branches tied together, except that of the Citron-Tree, which they hold in their Left; and bringing them by one another, they ſhake them towards the four Corners of the World, as 'tis ſaid Lev. 23. 40. And on the firſt day ye ſhall take the Branches of goodly Trees, and Branches of Palm-Trees. Then ſinging ſome Songs, they go round this little Altar or Desk that is in the Synagogue every Day, holding theſe Branches in their Hands. Becauſe that anciently they performed the ſame Ceremonies in the Temple round the Altar. Leo of Modena's Treatiſe of Ceremonies, part 3. ch. 7.

ROUND-TABLE. A kind of Tilting or ſingle Combat, ſo called becauſe the Knights that had fought at theſe Combats, came after they had done to ſup with him that procur'd the Tilting, where they were ſet at a Round-Table. The Old Romances aſcribe the Glory of Inventing the Tournament, Tilting, and the Round-Table, to the famous Arthur King of the Britons: And ſome Engliſh Authors write, that this Table is to be ſeen ſtill, faſtned to the Walls of the old Caſtle of Wincheſter; which the Learned Cambden calls in queſtion, remarking that this Table is of a later Fabrick. Thomas of Walſingham ſays, That K. Edward the Confeſſor, who began his Reign An. 1042, cauſed a Houſe to be built at Windſor-Caſtle, which he called the Round-Table. However it be, there is this difference between Tournaments and the Combats of the Round-Table, that the firſt was performed by Troops, and the latter were ſingle Combats with a Lance. Matthew Paris diſtinguiſhes theſe two Military Exerciſes An. 1252, in theſe Words, Non in haſti-ludo illo quod Torneamentum dicitur, ſed potius in illo ludo militari qui Menſa rotunda dicitur. Du Cange Diſſert. 7. on St. Louis's Life.

NEW-TABLES, in Latin Tabulæ novæ, was the Name of a certain Edict anciently made uſe of by the Romans, whereby all ſorts of Debts were generally aboliſhed, and all Obligations made null. It was called Tables, becauſe that anciently before Paper or Parchment were uſed in writing Publick Acts, they were graved with a ſmall Needle on little Boards of thin Wood covered with Wax, which were called Tabulæ; and the Publick Acts ſtill retain this Name in Latin. This Edict was called New, becauſe it obliged them to make New Tables to write the Acts upon, the old ones being rendred uſeleſs. Aul. Gell. l. 9. c. 6.

TABLE OF THE SUN, a Place of Ethiopia in the Iſland of Meroe or Guerguere. The People believed, that a vaſt quantity of good Meat that they ſaw expoſed there every day, to thoſe that would take it, was produced there; but the Magiſtrates ſet it there before day. The Italians call it Paëſe della Cucagna; and the French, Païs de Coccagne. Theagenes and Chariclea's Romance ſpeaks at large of it. Herodot. l. 3. Mela. Solin.

TABOR, a little City of Bohemia, on the River Lauznic. The Huſſites retired thither during the Wars of Bohemia, in the 15th Century; for which Reaſon they were called Taborites. Æneas Sylvius Hiſt. de Bohem. Cocleus.

TABOR, a Mountain in the Tribe of Zebulon in the Land of Canaan, called by the Seventy Itabyrium, by others Tabyrium, by Pölybius, Maſtoim. It ſtood ſix German Miles from Ptolemais to the South-Eaſt, and was remarkable for the Rendezvouz of the Army of Barac againſt Siſera, and alſo for the Transfiguring of our Lord upon it: And it is alſo ſuppoſed to be the Mountain, on which by Appointment, he ſhewed himſelf to five hundred of his Diſciples after his Reſurrection. In Memory of which, St. Helena built here a noble Church dedicated to the three Apoſtles; to which were after added two Monaſteries: of all which nothing remains but the Ruins. Matth. 17. Mar. 9. Jud. 4. 5.

TABUC, a Town in Arabia Deſerta, in the Road between Damaſcus and Medina, ſuppoſed to be the Medaba of Ptolomy. It has a beautiful Caſtle, and a fine large Spring of Water which affords Drink to the Inhabitants, and Support to the Palm-Trees. Nub. pag. 110. 119. It ſtands forty German Miles South of Damaſcus, about ſeventy North of Medina, thirty South-Eaſt of Herat, five Stations North of Hagiar, and ſix from Madian. Ibid. pag. 109.

TACFARINAS, a Numidian Slave, who having learned the Art of War under the Romans, as a private Sentinel, deſerted them, and retired into Africk, where he got together a great number of Robbers, whom he diſciplin'd, and formed into a potent Army, being joined by a great many Troops of Saracens and Moors. Having got himſelf proclaimed King, he ravaged all the Country, and defeated the Roman Army, commanded by Decius Proconſul of Africk, whom he wounded in the Eye. But afterwards he was overcome by Camillus, and in fine killed by Dolabella. Tacit. lib. 2.

TACITUS, (Marc. Claud.) Emperor, eſteemed for his Prudence. He was choſen Aurelian's Succeſſor after an Interregnum of about ſeven Months. The Soldiers approved this Election, and every one hoped for a happy Government from the Vertues of a Man advanced in Years. He owned Tacitus the Hiſtorian for his Kinſman, and cauſed his Statue and Works to be ſet up in all the Libraries, for fear they ſhould be loſt. Some Authors ſay, that he died a natural Death; but 'tis certain, that he was aſſaſſinated by the Soldiers near Tiane, being 65 Years of Age, and about ſix Months after his Election, An. 275. Florianus his Brother made himſelf Maſter of the Empire, and enjoyed it but two Months. Vopiſcus in Tacit. & Flor.

TACITUS (Cornelius) a Latin Hiſtorian: His Merit raiſed him to the higheſt Places of Truſt in the Commonwealth. He lived under the Emperor Veſpaſian and ſome following Reigns, and was eſteemed and beloved as one of the chief Men of his Age. Pliny the Younger, extols him highly, and ſays in one of his Epiſtles, That notwithſtanding there were a great many celebrated Orators then at Rome, he made choice of Tacitus for his Pattern. 'Tis believed, that Tacitus did not begin to write till well advanced in Years, and under the Empire of Trajan, as he himſelf remarks. He wrote his Hiſtory, whereof we have no more than five Books, and afterwards his Annals, a great part whereof is likewiſe loſt: Beſides theſe two Pieces, he has alſo compoſed a Treatiſe of the different ſorts of People that inhabited Germany in his Days, where he ſpeaks of their differing Manners; and a Book of the Life of his Father-in-law Agricola. Some attribute to him in like manner, that of the Cauſes of the Corruption of the Latin Tongue, which others will have to be Quintilian's; and according to Juſtus Lipſius it was writ by neither. As for the Stile and Expreſſion of this Author, the Reader may conſult Pliny. Epiſt. lib. 1, 4, 6, 7. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 1. cap. 30. La Moth. la Vayer, juge deſ. Hiſt. Lat.

TADCASTER, a Market Town in the Weſt-Riding of York-ſhire, having a large Stone Bridge over the River Warſe. It's of note for the Lime-Stone digg'd here in great Plenty. From London 182 Miles.

TADDA (Francis) a famous Italian Graver, whom Coſme de Medicis had in great eſteem. This Prince having in 1555 found ſome Pieces of Porphyre among many Pieces of old Marble, would have a Baſon made for a Fountain; and to facilitate the Work, he cauſed ſome Herbs to be diſtilled, from which he drew a Water that gave an extraordinary Hardneſs to hot Iron-Tools ſoak'd in it: By this means Tadda made a very fine Baſon for the Fountain. And as the Duke had communicated this Secret to him, he tryed it upon other Works, and ſucceeded ſo well in it, that he made in a Demi-relievo a Head of Chriſt, and in the two other Ovals thoſe of the Duke Coſme de Medicis and the Dutcheſs his Wife. Tadda made afterwards other Pieces with like Succeſs: But this Secret was loſt, and 'tis not known that any has it at preſent. Felibien Principles of Arts.

TADICA, an Arabian Woman, whoſe Servant Mahomet was. She was 50 Years of Age, but rich, when Sergius the Monk perſuaded her to marry Mahomet, who afterwards invented his new Religion. Volaterr. l' Geograph. 12.

TAFILET, a Kingdom of Biledulgerid in Africk, beyond Mount Atlas. It is a very ſandy Country, and almoſt every where barren, by reaſon of the exceſſive Heat moſt part of the Year. It produces no Wheat, and the Barley which they ſow along the Rivers, grows not without a great deal of pains; none but Cherifs or Princes, and the Alcayds or Governors, can afford to buy it; and the People live on Dates and Camels Fleſh. The Provinces which depend on this Kingdom are Touet towards the Eaſt, Dras towards the South; with the Deſerts of Sara, which contain the People of Ferquela, Toudega, Ligueriſy, Toguedout, Sedrat, Mougouna, Secoura and Hadet, each of whom dwell near Rivers of the ſame Name. There is no City but Tafilet in this Kingdom. The People are of three ſorts, the Cherifs, the Arabians, the Barbarians: The firſt ſay, that they are deſcended of Mahumet, and dwell in the Caſtles: The Arabians came from Arabia with their Prince Mouley Meheres, and pitch in the Plains in Tents. The Barbarians are the ancient Inhabitants, and live in the Villages. Theſe are a big and tawny People, breed Cattel in the Mountains, and exchange them with the Arabians for Dates. This Country abounds in Dromedaries, ſo admirably ſwift, that they will make more way in twenty four Hours than a good Horſe can in ſeven or eight days. Mouly Archy, King of Tafilet, is become famous by his great Conqueſts in this Age. See Mouley Archy. Moliette Hiſt. of the Kingdom of Marot.

TAFILET, the capital City of the Kingdom above-mentioned. It has a ſtrong Caſtle, and is peopled with a great number of Bereberes, called Filelis. The Country about it is ſufficiently fruitful, and produceth excellent Dates; hath all ſorts of Cattel, and a great many Camels: They likewiſe traffick much in Indigo for Dying, and Goats Leather, which brings the Merchants of Europe and Barbary. Here are made Bucklers of wild Ox Leather, fine ſtrip'd Silks, with Moresk Work, and rich Coats, which they call Filelis, with curious Tapiſtry, like thoſe of Turkey. Marmol. of Africk, lib. 7.

TAGASTE, a City of Africk, formerly a Biſhop's See, and famous for having been the Place of St. Auguſtine's Birth. 'Tis at this day but a pitiful Village in the Province of Conſtantine, within the Kingdom of Algier.

TAGAT, a Mountain two Leagues to the Eaſtward of Fez, Capital of a Kingdom of the ſame Name in Africk. It extends to the River Bunacer about two Leagues. All the foreſide of the Mountain that looks towards Fez is covered with Vines, but the other ſide and the top is arable Ground. Every Winter ſome of the poor Inhabitants of Fez come to this Mountain to ſearch for Treaſures, which they pretend the Romans left there at their Departure. They ſay, that they have Memoirs which ſhew the Places where theſe Treaſures are, and nothing can diſſuade them from this Opinion, which they have imbibed from Father to Son; ſo that they loſe both their Time and their Goods in digging this Mountain. When any would undeceive them, they ſay that theſe Treaſures are enchanted, and that they'll never find them till the Enchantment is removed. They have wrought more than five hundred Years in this fruitleſs Search. Marmol. of Afr.

TAGENON, according to ſome Authors, Dean of Padua in Italy; but according to others who wrote with more certainty, of Paſſaw upon the Danube in Germany: The Latin Name of Patavia having deceiv'd thoſe of the former Opinion. He went into Paleſtine with Frederick Barbaroſſa, and left the Hiſtory of that Expedition, which has been Publiſh'd by Marquardus Freharus, and inſerted into the Collection of the German Hiſtorians. Aventin. lib. 7. Annal. Boior. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 2.

TAGES, was a young Child that appeared in Tuſcany, near the City Tarquini, now deſtroyed, while a Peaſant was plowing the Ground. His Countenance repreſented a ſtaid Man, and his Diſcourſes had nothing but what was great. He taught the Art of Predicting Things to come, by the Inſpection of Entrails of Living Creatures, to thoſe who out of Curioſity came from all Parts to ſee him. The Tuſcans, who in this were the moſt ſuperſtitious of all Men, tranſmitted theſe Ceremonies from their Country to Rome by means of the Tarquins, who were of this Country. Ciubo de Divinatione, Lucan l. 1. Pharſ. Ovid 15 Metam.

TAGUS, or Tajo, a River of Spain, whoſe Source is in New Caſtile, on the Confines of Arragon. It paſſes to Toledo and Talavera, and being then encreaſed by ſome other Rivers, it watereth Eſtramadura, and runs through Portugal. It forms the vaſt Haven of Lisbon, and on the South-ſide of that City paſſeth into the Atlantick Ocean, having from its Fountain run 110 Spaniſh Leagues, and being at its Mouth two Spaniſh Leagues broad. This River is frequently mentioned by the Poets on the account of its Golden Sands.

TAICHEU, a City of China in the Province of Chakian: It ſtands upon a Mountain, and has Juriſdiction over five other Towns, according to Martin Martini.

TAICKO, Emperor of Japan in 1573. He was a Soldier of Fortune, who firſt appeared at the Head of 50 Men, with whom he did ſo great Exploits, that in a little time he was back'd by a conſiderable Army. He at firſt ſeized ſome Caſtles, took many Cities afterwards, and in three Years time made himſelf Maſter of all the Empire. He left to Dayro, the lawful Emperor of Japan, all his external Grandeur, but uſurped the Authority. This Tyrant rendred himſelf hateful to all the Lords of his Court, and was poiſoned Anno 1598. On his Death-bed he pray'd Ongoſchius, one of the greateſt Lords of that Country, to take upon him the Guardianſhip of his Son Fidery, but ſix Years old; which he accepted; but he made himſelf Sovereign, and uſurped the Crown from this young Prince. Mandeſloe's Voyage into the Indies.

TAILLEBOURG, a City of France in Xaintonge. It is upon the Charant, famous for the Victory which St. Louis obtained there in 1242, over Hugh de la Marche and other Malecontents, who had called in the King of England.

TAISNIER (John) a learned Mathematician, born at Ath in Heynault, in the 16th Century. He was an excellent Man, and applied himſelf to ſeveral ſorts of Studies, as Law, Philoſophy, Mathematicks and Muſick; and having commenc'd Doctor, he taught the Law and other Sciences publickly: but, as he was a Lover of Novelties, he quitted his Country, and travelled through almoſt all Parts of the World. Having made ſome Friends with the Emperor Charles V. when he was making Preparation for the Siege of Tunis, he was entertained at that Prince's Court in Quality of Chaplain and Muſician of the Oratory, and accompanied him in that Expedition; during which he informed himſelf of the Doctrine of the Moors and Arabians. From Africk he went into Aſia; and after he had inſtructed thoſe of the Eaſt in the Secrets of the Mathematicks, he ſailed to Maltha and Scicily, where he invented a kind of Ship of an extraordinary Form and Bigneſs. Being arrived at Rome, he taught the Mathematicks there to above three hundred Students, as he did likewiſe at Ferrara, and ſome other Univerſities; afterwards he took a Turn into Germany, and ſtaid ſome time at Cologne to look after the Muſick of John Gebhard Archbiſhop of that City. In fine, returning to his Country, he wrote a Book of the Load-ſtone, which has ſince that time been of great uſe in Navigation; one of perpetual local Motion againſt Ariſtotle and the Peripateticks, another of the Sphere, and one of the very rapid Motion, till then unknown; but inſtead of continuing to ſeek after Renown by thoſe laudable Studies, he applied himſelf to the Publiſhing what he had learn'd in his Travels about the Art of predicting Mens Fortunes by the Lines of the Hand. He addicted himſelf wholly to theſe Vanities, by which he drew the Ignorant and Credulous after him; wherein he loſt the reſt of his time, with the Reputation he had acquired in the Places where he taught. He died very aged towards the end of the 16th Century.

TAITUNG, a City of China in the Province of Xanſi, the third of that Province, very well fortified, and a Place of great Trade.

TALAPOINS, a Name of the Indian Doctors or Prieſts at Siam: They live a very Exemplary Life, and declaim with a great deal of Zeal againſt thoſe that worſhip Devils, tho' they are but little minded. They have no averſion for ſuch as turn Chriſtians, provided they live agreeably to their Profeſſion, imagining that a good Life will make People ſafe under any Perſuaſion: They go Barefoot, and eat but once a day. Mandeſlo, Tom. 2. de Olearius. Relations de Siam.

TALASSE, a God, who, according to the Romans, preſided over Marriages, as Hymenæus did among the Greeks; therefore they uſed to call upon him on their Wedding-days, that their Marriage might be proſperous: It happened on this Occaſion, when the Romans raviſhed the Daughters of the Sabines, (who came to Rome to ſee ſome Plays that Romulus had inſtituted,) ſome having carried away a very beautiful Virgin, went crying along the Streets, à Talaſſius, à Talaſſius, that no body might attempt to take her away from them, letting people know, that they were taking her for a Wife to Talaſſius, who was a very valiant young Roman, and much beloved by the People. His Marriage proving very fortunate; he was after his Death invoked by the Romans in their Marriages, to the end they might have as much Content in their Marriages as he had in his. Tit. Liv. l. 1. Plut. in his Problems, and on the Life of Romulus.

TALBOT. The firſt of this Name, whom Dugdale mentions, is one Richard in the time of William the Conqueror; the next is Geffrey, who had a large Eſtate in Kent in K. Henry the Firſt's time: He was Baniſhed by King Stephen for his Cruelty in his Military Employments, in behalf of Maud the Empreſs. He was afterwards taken, as deſigning to ſeize the City of Bath, but pardoned. In the 3d Year of Stephen, he held out the Caſtle of Hereford againſt the King, for Maud the Empreſs. He was ſucceeded by Hugh his Brother, who took a Monk's Habit in the Monaſtery of Beaubeck in Normandy, to which he had been a great Benefactor. His Son Richard ſucceeded, whoſe Son Gilbert in the 5th Rich. I. was Governour of Ludlow Caſtle. His Son Richard married Aliva, Daughter to Alan Baſſet of Wiccomb Com. Bucks, Siſter to Philip Baſſet, Juſtice of England: Their Son Gilbert ſucceeded, and was made Governour of the Caſtles of Groſmund, Skenfrith, and Blancminſter, and one of the Juſtices itinerant for the County of Hereford. In 47 Hen. III. upon the Commotions of the Welſh, he was commanded by the King to fortifie the Caſtles abovesaid, and that of Monmouth. Having married the Daughter of Rheſe ap Griffith, Prince of Wales, he changed his Arms, the Bend of ten Pieces Argent and Gules, and bore the Lyon Rampant Or in a Field Gules with a Bordure engrail'd of the firſt, being the Arms of the ſaid Princes of Wales. He died 2 Edw. I. and was ſucceeded by his Son Richard, who ſerved that Prince in his Expeditions into Wales and Gaſcony, and againſt the Scots, being one of thoſe Nobles who ſubſcribed that Letter to the Pope, aſſerting King Edward's Superiority over Scotland. He was ſucceeded by his Son Gilbert, who alſo ſerv'd Edw. I. in Scotland, and was one of thoſe who cut off Pierce Gaveſton, for which he was pardoned 7 Edw. II. whom he alſo ſerved in his Wars againſt Scotland. In the 16th of that King, he was made Governour of the Town and Caſtle of Gloceſter, but afterwards Fin'd for being concern'd in the Inſurrection of Thomas Earl of Lancaſter, and afterwards pardoned. He was at that time a Banneret, and very active for the King in his Wars, ſo that he procured a Grant of more Mannors, was made Lord Chamberlain to the King, and Juſtice of South Wales. He had been ſummoned to Parliament from the 4th to the 18 of Edward III. and died in the 20th, being ſucceeded by Richard his Son, who married Elizabeth Daughter to John Cumin of Badenoch in Scotland; and ſhe being forcibly taken by Hugh le de Spencer, Earl of Wincheſter, was kept Priſoner a Year, and for fear of Death forced to reſign her Mannor of Painſwick in the County of Gloceſter, and the Caſtle of Goderick, to him, and Hugh, and his Son. An. 1331, in 5 Edw. III. he was one of thoſe who invaded Scotland, and obtain'd a great Victory: In the 8th of that King, he was taken Priſoner there after a great Slaughter of the Engliſh, but was afterwards ranſom'd, and made Governour of Berwick upon Twede. He ſerved that King afterward in his Expeditions into France and Scotland, and having been ſummoned to all the Parliaments held during his Life in that King's Reign, died in the 30th Edw. III. being ſucceeded by Gilbert his Son, who alſo ſerved the King in his War with France, and died in the 10th of Rich. II. being ſucceeded by his Son Richard, who ſerv'd that King in his Wars againſt Scotland, and attended John Duke of Lancaſter, King of Caſtile and Leon, into Spain. He died 20th Rich. 2. ſucceeded by his Son Gilbert, who as Son and Heir to Sir Richard Talbot Knight, Couſin and Heir to John de Haſtings, ſometime Earl of Pembroke, claimed to carry the Spurs at the Coronation of King Hen. V. He afterwards ſerved the King againſt Owen Glandower the Welſh Rebel, as alſo againſt the French, was conſtituted Captain General of the Marches of Normandy, and employed to reduce all the Caſtles and Forts in that Country. He died leaving only one Daughter, who dying without Iſſue, Sir John Talbot Knight, her Uncle, ſucceeded. He married Maud, the eldeſt of the two Daughters and Coheirs of Sir Thomas Nevil Knight, by Joan his Wife, ſole Daughter and Heir to William Lord Furnival. He was firſt ſummoned to Parliament in 11 Hen. IV. and in 1 Hen. 5. was committed to the Tower, but why is not ſaid; but in Feb. following, he was conſtituted Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and had Letters of Protection ſent him thither by the Name of Sir John Talbot Knight, Lord Furnival: At that time he retained James Butler then Earl of Ormond, to ſerve him with his whole Retinue upon Occaſion. In 5 Hen. V. he attended the King at the Siege of Caen, and the Duke of Exeter at that of Roan. Whilſt he was Lieutenant in Ireland, he took Donal Macke Murghe, a great Rebel, brought him to the Tower of London, and in 3 Hen. VI. he was given to him to make his beſt Advantage of him. In 5 and 6 Hen. VI. he attended John Duke of Bedford Regent of France, in the Wars there. In 6 Hen. VI. his Succeſs having made him terrible to the French, he was ſent thither as General of the Army, reduced Main, took Pontoiſe, and aſſiſted at the Siege of Orleance, fortified Mehune, and took La Vall. Whereupon the French marched againſt him under the Conduct of the Maid of Orleance, defeated and took him Priſoner; whereupon many Places fell off from the Engliſh: Being afterwards ranſom'd, he raiſed new Forces, and went into France, where he took Bellomont by Aſſault. In 18 Hen. VI. he with Thomas Earl of Dorſet, defeated the French at Obrune in Normandy, plundered the Country, and beſieged Diep, but in vain. In 20 Hen. VI. March 20. he was created Earl of Shrewsbury. He was afterward ſent as Ambaſſador to treat of Peace with France, and again made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and Earl of Waterford, and Hereditary Steward of that Kingdom; and in a few Weeks after, his Son Sir John was conſtituted Chancellor of the ſame. He was after this, employed again in the French Wars, and the Fortune of the Engliſh there being on the Declenſion, he ſurrendred Falieſe upon honourable Terms. In 30 Hen. 6. he was made Admiral of the Engliſh Fleet, and next Year Lieutenant of Aquitane, where he Took and Gariſon'd Bourdeaux; upon which ſeveral other Cities ſubmitted. Thence he marched to relieve Chaſtillion Beſieged by the French, to whom he gave Battel; but being killed by a Cannon-Ball, his Army was routed, July 20. 1453. His Body was brought into England, interred at Whitchurch in the County of Salop, his eldeſt Son being ſlain with him. His Grandſon John ſucceeded, who during his Father's life-time, had been made Knight, Chancellor of Ireland, and employed in the French Wars. In 35 Hen. VI. he was made Lord Treaſurer of England; but he was ſlain in the Battel at Northampton, fighting for the Houſe of Lancaſter, An. 1460, and ſucceeded by his Son John, who in 11 Edw. IV. was made Chief Juſtice of North Wales, with a Commiſſion of Array to arm all who were able to bear Arms for the Defence of the Country. In 12 Edw. 4. he was one of the Commiſſioners to treat with the Scots, and by his Wife, Daughter to Humphry Stafford Duke of Buckingham, had amongſt others George his Succeſſor, who in 2 Hen. VII. was at the Battel of Stoke near Newark on Trent, againſt the Rebels, who were there vanquiſhed. In 5 Hen. VI. he was one of the chief of thoſe ſent with a powerful Army to Flanders, to aſſiſt the Emperor Maximilian againſt the French. In 1 Hen. VIII. he was made one of the Chamberlains of the Excheouer, Steward of the King's Houſhold, and one of the Privy Council. In 4 Hen. VIII. he commanded the Van of the Army at the Siege of Therouenne; and in 12 Hen. VIII. preſent at the interview betwixt the King and Francis I. of France. He was afterward made Lieutenant-General of the North, Conſtable of Radnor and Wigmore Caſtles, one of thoſe who ſubſcribed the Articles, which proved ſo fatal to Cardinal Woolſey, and that Declaration ſent to the Pope about Hen. VIII's. Divorce. He died July 26. 33 Hen. VIII. with this Character, That he was Vir Nobilis, Sapiens ac in omnibus Vitæ partibus moderatus. His Son Francis ſucceeded, who Commanded the Rear of the Engliſh Army when they plundered Leith and Edinburg, becauſe the Treaty of Marriage betwixt Prince Edward and Mary Queen of Scots was broke off. He afterwards Commanded 15000 Men, who reinforced Hadington, at that time Garriſon'd by the Engliſh, and Beſieged by ſome French and Scots, and brought back his Men without fighting. He was alſo made Juſtice of all the Foreſts beyond Trent, and Preſident of the Council of the North by Queen Mary, of the Privy Council to Queen Elizabeth, and was the only Lord, beſides the Viſcount Montacute, who oppoſed the Bill for aboliſhing the Pope's Supremacy and eſtabliſhing the Reformation, 2 Eliz. and died Sept. 21. the ſame Year, ſucceeded by his Son George, who in his Father's Life-time Commanded 3000 Soldiers, and relieved the Earl of Northumberland in danger at Lowick; was afterwards a Colonel of 500 Horſe upon the Borders, and in 11 Eliz. was entruſted with the Keeping of the Queen of Scots. He was Lord High Steward upon the Tryal of the Duke of Norfolk, and after his Death conſtituted Earl Marſhal of England, and behaving himſelf ſo as to gain a great Reputation for Fidelity, Prudence, Fortitude and Valour; he had the Cuſtody of the Queen of Scots for 17 Years. He ordered by his Laſt Will, June 24. An. 1590, 32 Eliz. that he ſhould be buried at Sheffield in Yorkſhire, and that the Mayor and Aldermen of Pomfret, with the Aſſent of the Earl of Shrewsbury for the time being, ſhould on every Whitſun-Monday, lend the poor Tradeſmen of that Town 5 l. each, for three Years, on Security, as far as 200 l. would go, which he bequeathed for ever for that Uſe, to encourage Trade: And he gave 500 l. to the Town of Cheſterfield in Derbyſhire, to ſet up Tradeſmen, who had no Stock to begin with. He was ſucceeded by his Son Gilbert, who in his Father's Life-time was ſent over into France 15 Elizabeth with Edward Earl of Lincoln, Lord Admiral of England, for confirming the League then made, and was in the 32d of that Reign called to Parliament as a Baron, before his Father's Death. In 39 he was ſent Embaſſador into France; at which time he was Knight of the Garter. In 1 Jac. he was conſtituted Guardian and Chief Juſtice of all the Foreſts beyond Trent, and died May 8. 1616, having only three Daughters, Survivors, who became Heirs to the greateſt part of his Eſtate, viz. Mary Wife of William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke, Eliz. of Henry Earl of Kent, and Aletheia of Thomas Earl of Arundel. Whereupon his Title devolved to Edward his Brother and Heir Male, who Married the eldeſt Daughter and Coheir of Cuthbert Lord Ogle, but died without any ſurviving Iſſue Feb. 8. 1617. Upon which, George Talbot of Grafton, Com. Wigorn. Eſq; lineal Heir to Sir Gilbert Talbot of Grafton, Knight Banneret, ſecond Son to the famous John, firſt Earl of Shrewsbury of this Houſe, to whoſe Iſſue Male the Earldom was limited, became Earl, whoſe Deſcendents do ſtill enjoy that Honour. This preſent Earl being very Inſtrumental in the Revolution, was made principal Secretary of State to Their Majeſties King William and Queen Mary, which Office he hath ſince demitted; but afterwards took it up again, and was made Duke of Shrewsbury; however, a Fall off his Horſe having rendred him incapable to undergo the Fatigue of that Imploy, he reſigned a ſecond time; and ſince, his Majeſty has been pleaſed to confer upon him (as he had done before, the Noble Order of the Garter,) a moſt honourable Imployment, but of eaſier Management, by advancing him to the Dignity of Lord Chamberlain of his Houſhold. John, the Son of Thomas Talbot of Longford, Eſq; is Couſin German to the preſent Charles Earl of Shrewsbury.

TALED, is the Name which the Jews give to a certain white Vail made of Wool, which is ſquare, and has Tufts at the Corners. They never pray in their Synagogues, but they put it on their Head, or at leaſt about their Necks.

TALGA, an Iſland of the Sea of Sala, which brings forth ſeveral ſorts of Fruits without Cultivation: and for this Reaſon the neighbouring Nations believed it a Sacrilege to touch them, judging that it was reſerved for the Gods. Pomp. Mela, lib. 3. Ptolem. lib. 6. cap. 9. Pliny calls it Tazata.

TALISMANS or MUTHALSANS. The Name of certain Figures graved upon Stones of Metals, whereof the Anonymous Author of a Book intituled, The Taliſmans juſtified, gives this Deſcription. The Taliſman, ſaith he, is the Seal, the Figure, the Character, or Image of a Celeſtial Sign, Conſtellation or Planet, graved on a ſympathetick Stone, or on a Metal correſpondent to the Star, in a time convenient for the receiving the Influences of this Star. The Effects which are attributed to theſe Figures, are altogether marvellous. 'Tis ſaid, for Example, that the Figure of a Lion engraven on Gold while the Sun is in Leo, preſerves thoſe from the Stone that carry this Taliſman; and that that of a Scorpion made under the Sign Scorpio, ſecures from the Wounds of that Animal. For Joy, Beauty, and Strength of Body, they grave the Figure of Venus on the firſt Face of Libra, Piſces, or Taurus. To purchaſe Honours and Dignities eaſily, they grave the Image of Jupiter, that is, a Man having the Head of a Ram, on Silver, or a white Stone; and he that carries this Taliſman about him, will ſee, ſay they, ſurprizing Effects. To be ſucceſsful in Merchandize and in Gaming, they repreſent Mercury on Silver. To be Couragious and Victorious, they engrave the Figure of Mars on the firſt Face of Scorpio. To procure the favour of Kings, they repreſent the Sun in likeneſs of a King ſitting on a Throne, with a Lion at his Side, on very fine Gold in the firſt Face of Leo. In the Number of Taliſmans are ranked the Palladium of Troy, the Roman Bucklers called Ancilia: The fatal Statues of Conſtantinople, for the preſervation of that City: The Statue of Memnon in Egypt, which moved and gave Oracles aſſoon as the Sun was riſen: The Statue of the Goddeſs Fortune that Sejanus had, which brought good luck to thoſe that poſſeſs'd it: The Brazen Fly, and Virgil's Golden Leech, which hindred the Flies from entring Naples, and deſtroyed all the Leeches of a Well in this City: The Figure of a Stork, which Apollonius ſet up in Conſtantinople, to drive away theſe Animals: The Statue of a Knight, which ſerved as a Preſervative to this City againſt the Plague: The Figure of a Serpent in Braſs, which hindred all Serpents from entring into the ſame Place. Whence it happen'd that Mahomet II. after the Taking of Conſtantinople, having broke the Teeth of that Serpent, a prodigious number of Serpents came upon the Inhabitants of that City, but without doing them any hurt, becauſe all their Teeth were broke, as were thoſe of the Brazen Serpent. Thiers Treat. of Superſtitions.

Taliſmans are diſtinguiſh'd into three ſorts, viz. Aſtronomical, Magical, and Mixt. The Aſtronomical are referred to Signs or Celeſtial Conſtellations, which are engraven with other Figures, and ſome intelligible Characters. The Magical have extraordinary Figures with ſuperſtitious Words, and the Names of unknown Angels. The Mixt are compoſed of Signs and barbarous Names, but which are neither ſuperſtitious, nor of unknown Angels. They bury them in the Earth, or in the Squares of publick Places, or they may carry them about them. Some have believed, that Apollonius Tyanæus was the firſt Author of the Taliſmans; but others are of Opinion, that the Egyptians were the Inventers of them; which Herodotus ſeems to inſinuate in the ſecond Book of his Hiſtory, when he ſays, that this People having firſt of all given Names to the twelve Celeſtial Gods, did likewiſe engrave Animals on Stones. The Inhabitants of the Iſland of Samothracia made Taliſmans with Gold Rings, which had Iron ſet in them inſtead of precious Stones. Petronius ſpeaks of it, when he ſays, that Trimalico carried a Gold Ring ſet with Stars of Iron. The Gods which they called the Gods of Samothracia, were thoſe who preſided over the Science of the Taliſmans; which is confirmed by the Inſcriptions of thoſe three Altars whereof Tertullian ſpeaks; Before the Pillars, ſaith he, there are three great Altars dedicated to three ſorts of Gods, which they call Great, Mighty, and Strong; and which are believed to be thoſe of Samothracia. Apollonius makes mention of three Divinities, to whom he joineth Mercury, and relateth the barbarous Names of thoſe Gods which it was prohibited to reveal, viz. Axierus, Axiocerſo, Axiocerſus, and Caſmilus, which he ſays are Ceres, Proſerpina, Pluto, and Mercury. The Egyptians, from whom the greateſt part of other People have learned the Secret of thoſe Rings, had alſo other Taliſmans for all Parts of the Body: And perhaps 'tis for this that we find ſo many little Figures of Gods, Men, and Animals in the ancient Tombs of this Country. The moſt ancient Taliſmans are made upon Plants, Branches of Trees or Roots. Joſephus ſpeaks of them in the eighth Book of his Antiquities, and attributeth the Invention of them to Solomon. They apply, ſays he, to the Noſe of the Sick (poſſeſſed by the Devil) a Ring, wherein a Root was ſet inſtead of a Stone: Solomon had taught it in his Works. This Hiſtorian ſays, that he has even ſeen the Effect; and that a Jew, Eleazar by name, cured many poſſeſſed in this manner, in the Preſence of the Emperor Veſpaſian. The ancient Egyptians believed, that certain Stones cut out into Beetles had conſiderable Vertues, to procure Strength and Courage for thoſe that carried them about with them; becauſe, ſays Ælian, this Animal has no Female, and is an Image of the Sun. They put likewiſe ſometimes the Figures of Frogs in Taliſmans; and Pliny teſtifies, That if we believe thoſe that improve that Science, a Parcel of Frogs ought to be eſteem'd more ſignificant in a Common-wealth, than a Body of Laws. Ælian ſays, that thoſe of Egypt took a Reed, which preſerved them from being devoured by Adders or Crocodiles of the Nile; and that they are the Emblem of Wiſdom and Prudence. Tzetzes relateth, that a Philoſopher put a ſtop to a Plague at Antioch by a Taliſman of Stone, wherein there was a Head of Charon graved. Apollonius made uſe of the Figure of Storks and Serpents. And the Egyptians commonly made uſe of the Figure of Serapis, of Canopus, God of the Egyptians; of the Spar-Hawk and Aſp againſt the Evils which might come from the four Elements, Earth, Water, Air and Fire. The Modern Taliſmans are not ſo curious as the Ancient; and we may know them by the Characters, which are purely Arabick, Turkiſh, or of other Oriental Tongues. The principal Authors that have treated on this Subject in the latter Ages, are Camilli Leonardi, who has writ The Mirror of Stones; Geber, Bacon, and Paracelſus, who have treated of Aſtrological Magick, and of the Sympathy of Stones, Metals and Planets. Gaffarel has compoſed a Book on this Subject, intitled, Unheard-of Curioſities: and Agrippa has treated of it in his occult Philoſophy. Gregory of Tours relateth, that the City of Paris had been built under a Conſtellation, which preſerved it from Conflagration, Serpents and Mice; and that a little before the Fire that happened in the Year 588, they had found in raking up an Arch of a Bridge the two Taliſmans, Preſervers of that City, which were a Serpent and a Mouſe of Braſs. Some have derived the Arabick Name Taliſman from the Greek τέλεσμα, which ſignifies Preſervation. We will not ſpend time to ſhew the Vanity of the Taliſmans; for we live in an Age that is not much addicted to ſuch Superſtitions. Salmaſius in Kerkoëtium. Gaffarel. Reichelt.

TALMUD, is properly the Book which contains the Civil and Canon Law of the Jews; and it principally conſiſts of two Parts, the former whereof, which ſerveth as a Text, is called Miſna, and the other, which is as the Comment, is called Guemara. The Miſna, as Father Simon remarks in his Catalogue of the Jewiſh Authors, is written in a Rabbinical pure Hebrew; but ſo conciſe, that 'tis difficult to underſtand it, at leaſt that the Matter whereof it treats is not known. The Guemara, which is an Expoſition worſe than the Text, is writ in a ſorry Chaldaick, and in a very intricate Style; ſo that 'tis underſtood even by very few Jews. There are a great many Editions of the Miſna by it ſelf; but the beſt and moſt convenient is that publiſhed by the Jews of Holland ſome Years ſince, to which they have added the points of the Vowels. There are alſo many Editions of the whole Talmud; that which is moſt ſought after, and is now very ſcarce, becauſe the Jews of the Levant carry the greateſt part of the Copies thither, is the Edition of Venice by Bombergue, which is in ſeveral great Volumes. Father Simon remarks in his Supplement to the Jewiſh Ceremonies, that the Jews having two famous Schools, viz. that of Babylon, and that of Paleſtine, where they taught their Traditions, gave Occaſion for two different Collections of theſe Traditions, and by conſequence to two Talmuds, whereof one is called the Babylonian, and the other the Jeruſalem Talmud. This latter was firſt compoſed; but 'tis ſo obſcure, that the Jews can make but little uſe of it: ſo that when they cite the Talmud, they ordinarily cite that of Babylon; and when they would denote the other, they add Jeruſalem. Beſides the Fables which the Talmud is ſtuff'd with, there are manifeſt Falſhoods in Hiſtory and Chronology; but the greateſt part of the Jews don't mind that ſo narrowly. This Talmud is prohibited the Jews in Italy; ſo that they dare not read, nor keep it by them. See what is remarked on R. Juda, ſirnamed The Saint.

TALMUDISTS, the Name of thoſe who follow the Doctrine of the Talmud, a Book which contains the Religious Ceremonies and Law of the Jews. The Doctrines contain'd in it, were, as they pretend, tranſcrib'd from the Memoirs of the High-Prieſts, out of which, in the Year 188, Rabbi Juda Hakkadoſh compos'd a Book call'd Miſna, i. e. a Repetition, or Reiterated Leſſon. Afterwards, in 469, Rabbi Jochanan, with the Aſſiſtance of ſome other Jews, made a new Collection of theſe Judaical Precepts, which was added to the former, and call'd it The Jeruſalem Talmud, upon the account of its being drawn up in that City. In 476, two other Rabbins of Babylon, Aſè and Hammai, enlarg'd this Volume by inſerting the Jewiſh Diſcipline, and ſome other Treatiſes; and ſo compil'd that which they call'd the Babylonian Talmud: but Aſè not living long enough to finiſh this Work according to the Scheme he had laid down, his Son Rabbi Meïr, in 546, completed the Deſign upon the Model of his Father's Memoirs. This Book the Jews have an extraordinary regard for, preferring it often even to the Holy Scriptures; notwithſtanding it contains a multitude of ridiculous Traditions and Fables, mix'd with the Jewiſh Law: beſides, there are likewiſe Blaſphemies in't of ſeveral kinds; and not to mention thoſe againſt our Saviour, they tell us, that before the Creation of the World, God Almighty ſtruck out ſeveral Plans, and attempted to form it upon different Models; and that he ſpent three Hours a Day in Reading the Jewiſh Law, &c. From hence it appears, that Gregory IX, in 1230, did not Condemn this Book without good Reaſon. It likewiſe incurr'd the ſame Cenſure by Pope Innocent IV, in 1244; by Julius III, in 1555; and by Paul IV, in 1559. The Talmud is divided into ſix Orders, or Tomes, each of which into diſtinct Treatiſes, and each Treatiſe into ſeveral Chapters. Sixtus Senenſis lib. 2. Bibl. S. Genebrard. lib. 2, 3. *Bibl. TALUS, Nephew to Dedalus, otherwiſe called Perdix. Being of quick Apprehenſion, he learned Architecture under his Uncle in a ſhort time. He invented the Uſe of the Saw and Compaſs. Dedalus envying his Induſtry, for fear he ſhould in time ſurpaſs him in his Art, threw him down from the top of the Tower of Minerva. But this Goddeſs being a Favourer of Ingenuity, received him in the middle of the Air, and changed him into a Bird, giving him ſwiftneſs of Wings in recompence of his Subtilty. Therefore it is that the Partridge, that retains his Name, dares not raiſe himſelf high, and flies only near the Earth, where ſhe builds her Neſt; for his ancient Fall makes him avoid high places. Ovid. Met. l. 8.

TAMARACA, a City and Iſle of Southern America. One of the 14 Governments of Braſil belonging to the Portugueſe.

TAMAR, Lat. Tamaris, a River in the Eaſt of Cornwal, which divides that County from Devonſhire. It runs South from its Source, which is in Devonſhire near the Iriſh Sea, waters Bridgrule, Telcoc, Tamerton, Beyton, Lawhitton, Calſtock, and forms a capacious Haven at Plymouth, where it empties it ſelf into the Britiſh Sea. Camb. Brit.

TAMERLANE, Tamberlan, or Temir-Lanc, whom his Subjects ſirname Temir Cuthlu, that is, Happy Iron, Emperor of the Tartars; he became formidable towards the end of the 14th Century. Some Authors will have it, that he was Kinſman to the Cham of the Tartars, to whom he ſucceeded; but 'tis more probable that he was the Son of a poor Shepherd, and that he raiſed himſelf by his Courage and Conduct. At firſt he put himſelf at the Head of ſome Troops, which he got together in haſte, and obtained divers Victories in Perſia. This good Succeſs encreaſed his Ambition and Army, which afterwards conſiſted of 800000 fighting Men. He invaded his Neighbours, though none were able to oppoſe him; and in a little time he ſubjected the Parthians, forc'd the Walls of China, ſubdued divers Provinces of the Indians, with Meſopotamia and Egypt; and, in fine, made his Boaſt that he had three Parts of the World under his power; and for this Reaſon he bore for his Coat of Arms O O O. Authors ſpeak differently of his Humour, Inclinations, and Conqueſts. Some commend him for his Temper, others for his Senſe, but a third ſort deteſt him for his Cruelty. However, 'tis certain he had ſome Skill in the Mathematicks, and was no Stranger to Mahumetan Theology. His Victories were tarniſh'd by his Cruelty. When he beſieg'd a City, he uſed the firſt Day to ſet over his Tent a white Standard, to ſignifie to the Inhabitants, that he was then ready to treat them kindly, if they would ſurrender without Reſiſtance. The next Day his Banner was Yellow or Red; and this imported that the Grandees of the City ſhould loſe their Heads. And in fine, on the third Day he ſet up a Black Standard, to teſtifie that he would put all to the Sword, without regard had to Sex, Age, or Condition. But of all Tamerlane's Victories, that which he obtained over Bajazet is the moſt conſiderable. This laſt was extremely proud and ambitious; he charged Tamerlane with Robbery and Rebellion: Theſe Diſcourſes were told him, and being invited by the Princes whoſe Eſtate the Ottoman had taken away, or made Tributaries, he reſolved to puniſh him for his Pride. The Battel was fought at the City of Angoria in Galatia, and Bajazet loſt the Field: it was ſaid by ſome to be An. 1399; but 'twas, more probably, fought in 1402. This Conqueror treated the Turkiſh Prince civilly at firſt; but he whoſe Pride was inſupportable, render'd himſelf unworthy of it by his Paſſion, Menaces and Contempt againſt the Perſon of Tamerlane, who cauſed him to be put in an Iron Cage, where he beat out his Brains againſt the Bars. I ſhould not forget that this Tartarian Prince ſent Embaſſadors to Charles VI, King of France, to ſignifie that he look'd upon him as the chief Monarch of the Weſt. This we learn from the Monk of St. Denis, who has writ the Hiſtory of this Reign. Tamerlane died two or three Years after this Victory, leaving Sons who loſt almoſt all his Conqueſts, and who had nothing in them becoming the Reputation of their Father. His Hiſtory is writ by the Sieur Vattier. Pietro Perundini in Vita Tamer. Chalcondylas lib. Hiſt. Turk. Spond. in Annal. &c.

TAMUL, a petty Kingdom of Aſia in India, on this ſide the Ganges in Biſnagar.

TAMUS, the fourth Month of the Hebrews, remarkable for the Faſt of 25 Days, whereof the Prophet Zachary ſpeaks Ch. 8. Torniel in his Annals.

TAMWORTH, a Borongh and Market Town in the Borders of Stafford and Warwickſhire, at the Confluence of the Tame and the Auker. It has a ſtrong Caſtle, a fine large Church, and ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament. It's govern'd by Bailiffs and a Commonalty, and has a Court of Record without Limitation, holden before the ſaid Bailiffs. It's 89 Miles from London.

TAMYRAS, a Poet of Thracia, who liv'd before Homer, and compoſed a Poem of 3000 Verſes on the Theology of the Ancients. The Fable ſays, that he had the Boldneſs to challenge the Muſes, who took away his Harp, and put out his Eyes to puniſh his Inſolence. Hence comes the Proverb againſt thoſe that undertake raſh Attempts, Tamyras is a very Fool. Suid.

TANAGRA, now Anatoria, an Epiſcopal City under the Metropolis of Athens, near the River Aſopo in Stramulipa, which is a part of Livadia in the European Turkey. Pliny aſſures us, that it had Cocks of extraordinary Strength, and indefatigable in Fighting. Athenæus ſays, that a Whale of a prodigious bigneſs, which was forc'd a-ſhore there, gave ground to the Proverb Cetus Tana-græus, to expreſs a great Booty. Stephen calls it Gephyra, and Ariſtotle, Orops. Plin. lib. 10. cap. 21. Var. lib. 3. cap. 9.

TANAIS, or Don, a River of Muſcovy, which parteth Europe from Aſia. It riſes in the Province of Rezan, from the Lake Juvanouvo Lazioro, runs near the Volga, and after a long Courſe empties it ſelf into the Palus Mæotis near the City of Tanais. There is alſo the little Tanais, which comes from the Dutchy of Sevesky, and diſcharges it ſelf into the great Tanais, a little above a City of that Name. This City, now called Azak, is one of the Places of greateſt Traffick in Tartary. It was taken by the Muſcovites, and ſince retaken by the Turks.

TANAQUIL, otherwiſe called Cecilia, Wife to Tarquinius Priſcus, famous for her Ingenuity and Skill in the Art of making Cloaths. A Royal Cloak of her making was to be ſeen in the Temple of Fortune, which Servius Tullius King of the Romans ſometimes wore. She was alſo the firſt that made Coats and Waſte-Coats all of one breadth of Cloth, which were given to young Souldiers and new-married Men. Plin. l. 8. c. 48. Tit. Liv. l. 1.

TANCREDE of Hauteville, a Norman Lord, Vaſſal to Robert Duke of Normandy, ſeeing himſelf burthen'd with a very great Family, and having but a ſmall Eſtate, he ſent his two eldeſt Sons into Italy, who began to ſettle in Sicily, where their Deſcendents reigned ſince. After the Death of William II. called The Good, which happened in 1189, Sicily being wholly peſtered with Diviſions, Tancrede, Baſtard to Roger Duke of Pouilla, got himſelf ſet upon the Throne, and died after he had reigned three Years, leaving a Son called Roger, who died in Priſon, being deprived of his Sight. See Sicily.

TANCREDE, the pretended Duke of Rohan. He was carried young into Holland by a Captain, who gave him to a Peaſant to bring up. Being grown up in Years, he was ſent to Leyden, to learn the Latin Tongue: and ſo little care was taken of him, that not having whereupon to ſubſiſt, and ſeeing himſelf almoſt abandoned, he had a mind to betake himſelf to a Trade. He went publickly to Church, but privately to Maſs, having ſuckt in the Sentiments of the Roman Religion with his Milk. But he was forbidden to frequent the Aſſemblies of the Roman Catholicks. And the Dutcheſs of Rohan having a mind to own him for her Son, ſent him wherewithal to equip himſelf. He returned afterwards to Paris, and after a long Diſpute about his Birth, the Parliament gave it againſt him, and declared him unrelated to the Family to which he pretended, by a famous Sentence given Anno 1649. He was of a brave Perſonage, but died very young, being kill'd by a Piſtol-ſhot, in the Civil Wars, Anno 1649. Du Verdier's Univerſal Hiſtory.

TANGER, anciently called Tingis, a City of the Province of Habata, in the Kingdom of Fez, in Africk. It is ſituate in the bottom of a Gulf of the Weſtern Ocean, and very near the Streights of Gibralter. Its Situation is pleaſant, but the Soil round it is barren. It was well fortified, and had a good Citadel, defended by ſeveral Baſtions, with a very high Tower, which ſerved for a Belfry. This City was very conſiderable in former Times, and had an Univerſity. The Goths took it from the Romans, and joined it to the Government of Ceuta. Alfonſus King of Portugal made himſelf Maſter of it in 1471, and in 1662 it was given as a Dowry with the Princeſs of Braganza, Daughter to Dom John IV. King of Portugal, when ſhe was married to Charles II. King of England. At laſt it was found not worth the Expence of keeping, and therefore demoliſhed in 1684 and 1685. Vanſleb, Villaut, Relation of Africk.

TANGERMUND, Lat. Tangermunda, a Town in the old Marquiſate of Brandenburg upon the Elbe, where it receives the River Tanger. It was heretofore very ſtrong, and ſo conſiderable, that the Emperor Charles X. kept his Court in it: But in the Swediſh War it ſuffer'd ſo much, that it's become of little account. It's 26 Miles Weſt of Brandenburgh, and 32 North of Magdeburg.

TANGUT, a Kingdom of Aſia, in Tartary. It is alſo called Tanim and Bagharger. Its capital City is Tangu called Tanin, and Campion, according to the Opinion of William Sanſon. Tangu is alſo a Kingdom of India, on the other ſide the Ganges.

TANOR, a City and petty Kingdom of the ſame Name, on the Coaſt of Malabar, in the Peninſula of India, on this ſide the Gulf of Bengala, five Leagues from Calicut towards the South. This Kingdom reaches not above eight or ten Leagues ſquare; yet the King is neither Inferior nor Tributary to any other of Malabar. He has kept a firm Alliance with the Portugueſe ſince they ſetled in the Indies, and they have carefully maintained his Friendſhip. He reſides about a League from the City of Tanor, where he leaves a Governor to adminiſter Juſtice to his Subjects that are Heathen or Moors: but has no Authority over the Chriſtians; the Right of puniſhing them, when they treſpaſs, being reſerved to the Director of the Church, who is a Jeſuit. The Soil of Tanor is fruitful, the Air wholſome, and they have great Conveniency for Hunting and Fiſhing. Fiſh is the ordinary Food of the Inhabitants, but the Rich eat Fowl and Kids, Beef being prohibited, according to the Superſtition of theſe Pagans. Dellon Relation of the Eaſt-Indies.

TANQUEREL (John) Bachelor of the Sorbonne, having defended in a Theſis, in the Reign of Charles IX. An. 1561, that the Pope had Power over Kings, as well in Temporals as Spirituals, and that he might deprive them if they deſerved it; the Parliament of Paris condemn'd him to make an honorable Amand: and becauſe he abſented himſelf, ordered that the Verger of the Faculty ſhould do it in his ſtead, in the School of the Sorbonne, in preſence of a Preſident, two Counſellors, and the Attorney-General; in Preſence alſo of a Dean and the Doctors, who were obliged to be there, on pain of having all the Privileges forfeited which had been granted to the Faculty by his Majeſty's Predeceſſors. Mezeray on the Life of Charles IX.

TANTALUS, King of Phrygia and Paphlagonia, according to the Poet's, Son to Jupiter and Plota; he only of all the neighbouring Princes was not invited by Tros to the firſt Solemnity that was celebrated at Troy: And to avenge himſelf on this King, he carried off his Son Ganimedes while he was a Hunting; whereupon Ilus, another of Tros's Sons, raiſed a potent Army, and forced Tantalus to retire into Peloponneſus. Fabulous Hiſtory reporteth, that Tantalus once entertained Jupiter and the other Gods at his Table, and that to make Tryal of their Divinity, having cauſed his Son Pelops to be killed, he cut him in pieces, and cauſed him to be ſerved up with the Meat. The Gods diſcovered this Murther, and would not eat of it, except Ceres, who, having her Mind intent upon nothing but her Daughter Proſerpina, inconſiderately eat his Left-Shoulder. Jupiter gathered up all his Members, and having raiſed him to Life again, gave him a Shoulder of Ivory inſtead of that of Fleſh that had been eat. As for Tantalus, he was condemned to be eternally tormented in Hell, by exceſſive Hunger and Thirſt. He was ſet in a Lake, where the Water came up to his Chin, and a Branch of a Tree laden with Fruits reached even to his Lips; but when he would take of this Fruit, the Branch was lifted up on high, and when he endeavoured to drink, the Water went back. Higinus ſaith, that Tantalus ſuffered this Pain, becauſe he had revealed to Men the Secrets that Jupiter uſed to truſt him with. But others ſay, that it was a Puniſhment for his unſatiable Avarice. 'Tis ſaid, that he built the City of Smyrna, and that he had three Sons, Pelops, Daſcylus, and Broteas; and a Daughter, named Niobe. Hygin. Fab. 82. Diodor. lib. 4.

TAPAISA or TAPI, a River of Southern America, giving its Name to a Province of that Country. It riſes in the Frontiers of Brazil, and after a long courſe diſcharges it ſelf into the River of the Amazons.

TAPSE, or Thapſas, a City of Africk in the Kingdom of Byzacina, on that ſide where is now the Kingdom of Tunis. Cæſar Beſieged this City, to oblige Scipio to fight in its Defence: And after the Battel, where the latter was Defeated, the City being preſs'd on every ſide, was forc'd to Surrender. Artius of the African Wars.

TARAGALE, a City of the Province of Darha in Biledulgerid in Africa, near the City Darha. Here is a ſtrong Caſtle, where the Cherif of Morocco keeps a Governour, with 400 Horſe, and 500 Muſqueteers, to guard the Gold of Tibar, which is brought in Duſt from Tagaza. At Taragale they melt it and mark it, and from thence they ſend it to Morocco. The City is great, and there are above 400 Families of Jews in it. The Country is fruitful in Corn and Paſturage, and the Palm-Trees bring forth a great Quantity of Dates. Marmol of Afr. l. 7.

TARAGOVISCO, or Tervis, the capital City of Valachia.

TARANTAISE, a Province of the Dutchy of Savoy, between the Alpes, Maurienne, Savoy Proper and Foucigni. Its chief Town is Mouſtiers, which the Ancients alſo called Tarantaiſe, Tarentaſia Forum Neronis Centronum, and now Monaſterium, ſituate upon the Iſere. It is an Archbiſhoprick, and has for Suffragans Sion and Aouſte. It has not been a Metropolis but ſince the eighth Age; for before that time all Eccleſiaſtick Authors agree, that it was ſubject to that of Vienne.

TARASCON, a Town of France in Provence, upon the Rhone, with a Caſtle built by the Counts of Provence. This Town, without doubt, is the Taraſcho of Strabo, and Head of ſeveral Boroughs under the Title of Vigucrie.

TARASIUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople; a Perſon of Noble Extraction, born in the Eighth Century. He was made firſt Secretary of State in the Reign of Conſtantine and Irene, and had formerly been Conſul; and in the Year 784, when Paulus the Patriarch of Conſtantinople was expell'd his See, by the Violence of the Empreſs Irene, Taraſius was, by the Court, nominated to ſucceed him; which Promotion he refus'd to accept, but upon condition of calling a General Council: And here Dr. Cave obſerves, That when the Synod was met at Conſtantinople, Taraſius apprehending that the Party againſt the Worſhip of Images was likely to prove too ſtrong for the other, encourag'd a Tumult under-hand, and, upon that pretence, got the Council Prorogu'd for a Year, and Transferr'd to Nice in Bithynia; and having thus ſtrengthen'd his Intereſt by gaining time, he open'd the ſecond Nicene Council in September 787; in which, notwithſtanding the Pope's Legates were preſent, he himſelf Preſided; and being fortify'd with the Court Intereſt, and grown too ſtrong for the Orthodox Party, he got the ſeventh General Council of Conſtantinople condemn'd, and the Worſhip of Images decreed in this Synod. In the Year 795, when the Emperor Conſtantine had a mind to Divorce himſelf from Mary his lawful Empreſs, and to marry his Wench Theodote, the Patriarch Taraſius at firſt made a noble Stand againſt him, and threaten'd him with Excommunication, unleſs he deſiſted from that ſcandalous Deſign; but ſoon after Taraſius's Courage failing him, made him meanly forget the Intereſt of Vertue, and the Authority of his Place, inſomuch, that he ſuffer'd this leud Marriage to be Solemniz'd by Joſeph, Abbot of Conſtantinople, and conniv'd at the Empreſs Mary's being Shav'd, and put in a Nunnery. This Patriarch died in February 806. He wrote ſeveral Epiſtles; one Circular Letter to the Eaſtern Patriarchs ſoon after his coming to his See; another to Pope Adrian, &c. Acts ſecond Council of Nice. Theophanes in Annal. Baron. in Annal. Concil. Tom. 7. pag. 161, and 637. &c. Cave Hiſt. Liter. Part 1*ſt*.

TARAXIPPUS, the Name of a certain God adored by the People of Elis in Peloponneſus. His Altar was placed in the Liſt where they kept their Chariot Courſes: And this was the ground of that Worſhip; There was near the end of this Encloſure, or Place railed in, a Liſt of a conſiderable breadth fix'd to the Ground in form of a Semi-Circle, of a lively bright Colour, that the Courſers in their greateſt Speed might ſee it, and ſo turn back again. It often happened, that the Horſes coming up to the Place, either ſtarted at the Sight, or thoſe that guided, out of too great haſte, turned them ſhort, and made them throw the Coachman out of the Box, and break the Chariot. The ſuperſtitious Grecians not kowing what to attribute this to, imagined, that there was ſome God that would be Worſhipped in that Place, and call'd him Taraxippus or the Terror of Horſes. Pauſanias in Eliac.

TARBE, a Town of France, Capital of Bigorre, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Auch. It lyes upon the River Adoure, in a a very fertil Country. The Ancients call'd it Tarba, Turba, and Caſtrum Bigorræ.

TARBULA, Siſter to Simeon Biſhop of Seleucia, was accuſed by the Jews, of deſigning to poiſon the Queen of Perſia, to revenge her Brother Simeon, who was put to Death by Sapor King of Perſia. Upon this falſe Accuſation, the Queen had her condemned by the Magi, one of whom, ſmitten with her Beauty, promiſed to ſave her Life if ſhe did condeſcend to his Paſſion. The Offer did but raiſe the Zeal of this generous Chriſtian, who choſe to die rather than preſerve her Life at the expence of her Vertue. Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccl.

TARENTUM, Urbs Salentorum, a City of the Province of Otranto in the Kingdom of Naples. It was built and made the Capital of the ancient Magna Græcia, by a Band of Lacedæmonian Baſtards, who having no Inheritance at home, were ſent hither to ſeek their Fortunes, A. M. 3242, forty five Years after the Building of Rome. It became a famous Commonwealth. Its Inhabitants ſollicited Pyrrhus's Deſcent into Italy to make War upon the Romans. In the Year of Rome 481, Milo, one of its Citizens, betrayed it to the Romans. In the ſecond Punick War it received Hannibal; and in the Year of Rome 545, was recovered out of his hands, by Quintus Fabius Maximus. In 631 it was a Roman Colony. In 1194 Henry IV. gave it to William Son of Tancred Prince of Taranto, whom he caus'd to be caſtrated to prevent his Iſſue. It's now an Archbiſhop's See, ſmall, but ſtrong and well-inhabited, defended by a Caſtle gariſon'd with Spaniards. The Haven was once very good, but ſpoil'd by great Stones ſunk in the Mouth of it; ſo that none but ſmall Ships can enter it. It has the Title of a Principality, and ſtands in a Peninſula on a Bay of its own Name, at the Mouth of the River Tara, whence ſome derive its Name. In 843, Saba General of the Moors or Saracens of Africa, took this City, though it was powerfully ſuccoured by the Emperor Theophilus the Great, and the Venetian Fleet. On the Weſt-ſide it has a good Haven, on the North-Eaſt a Lake 12 Miles broad, which receives three Rivers, and with the Haven encompaſſes the Town on all Sides but the North, where it is entred by a Cauſey 300 Cubits long and 15 broad. Horace was ſo pleaſed with the Sight of this City, that he wiſhed it might be one of thoſe in which he ſhould ſpend the laſt part of his Life: For this Corner of the World (ſaith he) ſeems to me one of the moſt beautiful; having Plenty of excellent Honey; delicate Oil and Wine, little inferiour to that of Falernum; an early Spring, and a ſoft Winter, rendring it a pleaſant Habitation to an Old Man. Lib. 2. Od. 6. Juvenal ſtiles it, Coronatum petulans madidumque Tarentum, Sat. 6. l. 2. v. 296. aſcribing the Corruption of the Roman Manners to the Taking of this City. This Town ſtands 40 Miles South-Eaſt of Bari, and 62 Weſt of Otranto. Long. 39. 28. Lat. 40. 26.

TARGUM, with the Jews ſignifies Interpretation, and is what they call their Gloſſes and Paraphraſes upon the Scripture. Father Simon obſerves, that the Chaldaick Tongue becoming current among the Jews after their Return from Babylon, the Doctors taught the People Moſes's Law in it, and thence took occaſion to publiſh their Gloſſes, which were therefore call'd Targums or Interpretations: The moſt ancient of them are thoſe of Onkelos upon the Books of Moſes, which is almoſt a literal Explication; and that of Jonathan upon the Books called by the Jews the firſt and laſt Prophets, i. e. upon Joſhua, the Judges, upon the four Books of Kings, &c. Theſe two laſt are in pure Chaldaick, which is ſomewhat like the ancient Babylonick Language. See Paraphraſe Chaldaick.

TARICHEA, Tarichæa, Sueton in Titus, Tarrachia, a very ſtrong City in the Tribe of Iſachar in Galilee, ſeated on the Lake of Tiberias, to the South of that City two German Miles, and North of Bethſan (Scythopolis.) Joſephus the Hiſtorian made this Place much ſtronger than it was before, and it had 40000 Inhabitants to Defend it; yet Caſſius, a Roman Commander, took it. Joſephus being in great danger to be ſtoned by the Inhabitants of this Place, who were tumultuouſly aſſembled againſt him, he appeaſed them by a Stratagem. It was afterwards taken, with great Difficulty and hard Labour, by Veſpaſian. Joſ. 14. Antiq. 13. 1 Bell. 6. 2 Bell. 25, 26, 27. 3 Bell. 16, 17, 19.

TARIFFA, a City of Spain in Andaluſia, near the Streights of Gibralter, once a great and ſtrong Place, but now almoſt ruined, and thinly inhabited; though it ſtill has a Caſtle and a Haven. It was recover'd from the Moors in 1292, and in 1340 they receiv'd a great Defeat near it. It ſtands four Leagues from Algezira to the Weſt, and ſix from the Coaſt of Barbary to the North.

TARN, a River of France in Languedoc, that ſprings in the Mount of Loſere in the Cevenes, runs by Albi and Montauban, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Garonne.

TARPEIA, Daughter of Tarpeius, Governour of the Capitol under Romulus; ſhe ſold and deliver'd the Capitol to Tatius General of the Sabins, deſiring no other Recompenſe for the Treachery but the Golden Bracelets the Soldiers wore on their Arms. Tatius being in poſſeſſion of the Fortreſs, commanded the Sabins, according to his Promiſe, to give her all they bore on that Arm, and begun himſelf in throwing his Bracelet and Buckler at her, the reſt doing the like: She was quite kill'd with Bracelets and Bucklers, and Buried upon this Mountain, which from her Name was called Tarpeian. It was from this Mountain they us'd to throw their Criminals headlong. Plutarch.

TARQUIN, the firſt of this Name, call'd Priſcus or the Ancient King of the Romans, Son to one Damaratus of Corinth, who came to live in Tuſcany. After his Father's Death he came to Rome, and by his Policy obtain'd the Throne after Ancus Martius in 139. He inſtituted the Plays of the Circus, ſubdued 12 different ſorts of People of Tuſcany, and increas'd the Number of Senators, laid the firſt Foundations of the Capitol, and undertook ſeveral conſiderable publick Works. It's ſaid, that the Cuſtom of tying Bunches of Rods round the Magiſtrates Axes, the Robes of Kings and Soothſayers, the Senators Ivory Chairs, with the Rings and Ornaments of Knights and Children of Noble Families, were invented by him. He was killed by his Predeceſſor's Children the 80th Year of his Age, and 38th of his Reign, in 177 of Rome, and Servius Tullius was put in his Place. Flor. Tit. Liv.

TARQUIN II. who, by reaſon of his inſupportable haughty Humor was called the Proud, murthered Servius Tullius his Wife Tullia's Father, and ſet himſelf upon the Throne, chuſing rather to uſurp it violently than expect it peaceably. He is accuſed of being the firſt that uſed Priſons, Baniſhments and Torments at Rome, where he behaved himſelf towards the Subjects with inſupportable Severity, ſparing neither Nobles nor Senators. He built a Temple that was common to all the Latins, and finiſh'd the Capitol with the Spoils of the Enemy. Being ſomewhat ſevere to one of his Sons, he went away to the Gabii, where having got great Power, he ſent to acquaint his Father Tarquin therewith; who walking in his Garden when he received the Meſſage, returned no Anſwer, but ſtruck off the Heads of the Poppies that ſtood before him. The Son, when the Meſſenger told him this at his Return, underſtood very well what his Father meant, and ſo cut off the Heads of the chiefeſt of the Gabii. The Romans, unable to bear with the Father's Tyranny and his Children's Licentiouſneſs, took occaſion to baniſh him from the Throne on the Violence which his Son Sextus uſed to Lucretia, in the 245th of Rome, while Tarquin was at the Siege of Ardee. This King, who had Govern'd 24 Years, did all he could to remount the Throne, employing the Arms of Porſenna, and his other Neighbours, but to no purpoſe; for the Romans had always the better. Tit. Liv. l. 1. Florus.

TARQUIN, ſurnam'd Collatinus, Son to Egerius, and Nephew to Tarquinius Superbus, was Husband of Lucretia, whom Sixtus Tarquinius violated. The King being Baniſhed Rome upon this Account, he was choſen firſt Conſul with Brutus, but was afterwards forced to quit his Place, and to undergo a voluntary Baniſhment, for no other Reaſon, but becauſe he bore the Name of Tarquin, then ſo odious to the Romans. See Lucretia. Tit. Liv. l. 1.

TARRAGONE, a Town of Catalonia, upon the Mediterranean, with an Archbiſhoprick. Latin Authors call it Tarraco. It was Built and Fortified by the Scipio's upon the Deſcent of a Hill near the Sea, where it has a Port, fit for no other Veſſels but Barks, the Rocks rendring it very dangerous for greater Ships. The Spaniards brag, that it was never Taken: The Moors ſurrounded it with Walls, and it has ſince their Time been very regularly Fortified. The Province of Taragone, called Taragonoiſe by the Ancients, comprehended the Country of the Celtiberians, Vardules, Vaſcons, Cantabrians, Aſturians and Gallicians. Now all the Province of Taragone contains Murcia, Valencia, Catalonia, Aragon, Navarre, Biſcay, the Aſturies, Galicia, the Kingdom of Leon, and almoſt both the Caſtiles. Merul. deſc. Hiſp.

TARSUS, a Town of Cilicia in Aſia Minor, now called Teraſſe, Tirſis, or according to others Hamſa. The Ancients called it Tarſus and Tarſos, and ſince that it had the Names of Antonin, Severin, and Adrian, in honour of ſuch Emperors as lov'd the Town. It was famous for its Situation upon the River Cydnus, its Magnificence and Riches, the Genius of its Inhabitants, and for Sciences, being the Birth-place of St. Paul, of Antipater the Stoick, Archidamus, Neſtor, the two Athenodorus's, and ſome others. This Town ſtands 44 Miles Eaſt of Tertoſa, 54 Weſt of Barcelona, and 112 North-Weſt of Majorca. Long. 19. 26. Lat. 40. 36. Strabo l. 14.

TARTA, a Lake upon the Confines of Cappadocia the Greater, which is ſaid to prove mortal to the Birds that come near it, for their Wings grow ſo big and heavy that they cannot fly, and ſo are eaſily catch'd.

TARTAGNI (Alexander) d' Imola, Liv'd in the Fifteenth Century, in the time of Baldus and Paul de Caſtro: He profeſs'd the Law thirty Years at Bologne with great Reputation, inſomuch that he was call'd the Monarch of the Law, and the Father of thoſe that practis'd it. He wrote upon the Clementines, Conſilia. Apoſtillæ ad Bartholum, in 2 Cod. & ff. Nov. &c. Theſe Works have been often Printed, as at Venice in 1571, Francfort in 1575, and at Lions in 1585, &c. He dy'd at Bologne in 1477. Fichard. in Vit. Juriſc. Poſſevin in Appar. Leand. Alberti Deſc. Ital. Bumaldi Bibl. Bonon, &c.

TARTARIE, a great Country of Aſia, that comprehends almoſt a third of that part of the World. It's generally called Great Tartary, to diſtinguiſh it from that of Europe. Some divide this ſpacious Country into four or five Parts, which are Tartary Proper, Tartary the Deſert, Zagatai, Catai, and Turqueſtan. All this Country lyes between the Frozen Sea, that of China, and the Streights of Anian, the Caſpian Sea, the Dominions of Perſia and China, and the Rivers Obi and Tanais. Some Modern Authors deſpiſe this, and follow the Arabian Diviſion, who count in Tartary, the Kingdom of Thibet or Tobbat, which was formerly the Northern part of Scythia; the Maurenaher or Mawaralnahara, Olgarie or the Kalmuki, the Chazalgites, the Caulachites or Kara Cathai; Mongal, Moal or Magog, the Kaimachites or Naimans; the Kingdom of Tangut or Taniu, and Bagarghar; the Kingdoms of Niuche or Tenduc, and Jupi. This King of Niuche was he that made himſelf Maſter of China ſome Years ago. The Ancient or Proper Tartary is towards the North, and moſt part of it unknown. Some ſay, there is a Place in it called Tartar, or Tatar which gave its Name to the Country, though there is more likelihood that it was called ſo from a River of that Name. Tartaria Deſerta reaches from the Rivers Jaxarte and Tanais to Mount Imaus, and it's thought to be a part of the Sarmatia Aſiatica of the Ancients; its poſſeſſed by ſeveral Companies of People or Clans, which the Tartars call Hordes, and do much reſemble the Tribes of the Jews. Tartarie of Zagatai has more poliſh'd and civiliz'd Inhabitants than the firſt, as are alſo thoſe of Catai. This is the Empire of the Great Cham, who is ſaid to have about a hundred Tributary Kings: His Subjects have that Reſpect and Veneration for him, that they generally call him the Son, the Shadow and Soul of God; and when he dies kill all they meet, that they may go ſerve their Prince in the other World; which ſometimes coſts above 10000 People their Lives. The ordinary Reſidence of the Great Cham, in Winter, is Cambalu, the Capital of his Territories, ſituated in the farthermoſt part of Catai. Modern Relations ſpeak of it as one of the greateſt and richeſt Towns of the World. As for Quenſai, that ſignifies the City of Heaven, placed in this Country by Marc Polo; 'tis not known where it is, nor are the 12060 Stone-Bridges which he ſays it has, to be found. Beſides this Kingdom of Catai, the Great Cham has ſeveral others that are very conſiderable; as that of Tangut, where it's ſaid Printing has been in uſe above a thouſand Years; and it's hence we have our beſt Rhubarb: The other Places are the Kingdom of Tenduc, where live ſome Neſtorians; that of Thebat, which abounds in Coral, whereof they make uſe as Current Coin. It's believed, that all this Land was inhabited in former Times by the Scythians, a cruel and barbarous Nation. The Aſiatick Tartars have a ſtrong inclination for War, and are accounted the beſt Archers in the World: Their Diſputes generally end in the Ravage and Deſolation of the Enemies Country.

try. They commonly have no fix'd place of Abode, making it their Buſineſs to over-run the Neighbouring Countries: The moſt peaceable ſort of 'em are Shepherds and Herds-men, and live in Tents of courſe Woollen-cloath. The principal Strength of the Great Cham conſiſts in Cavalry, which is ſo very conſiderable, that the Princes under him ſometimes pay him a Hundred thouſand at a time for Tribute. Their Hordes or Tribes take their Name ſometimes from the Place where they Encamp longer than ordinary,and ſometimes from the difference of their Habits. Almoſt all the Tartars are Mahometans : They are very tall of Stature, and are open and ſincere enough in their Dealing. They have very little Written, or Common Law, but refer their Differences to the moſt conſiderable Perſons among 'em. Their Cloaths are, for the moſt part, made of Sheep or Fox-skin; but People of Faſhion among 'em, wear long Veſts of Silk or Cotton, moſt of which are brought from China. They know nothing of the uſe of Spurs; and as for their Diet, 'tis commonly half Roaſted, or half Boil'd: And Horſe or Camel's Fleſh is counted the beſt ſort of Eating; Beef being ſeldom us'd among 'em. The Tartars of the more Northern Parts of Aſia, mind neither Trade nor Husbandry; ſo that all the Wealth they are Maſters of, comes from Plunder. They have ſome Gold Mines in their Country, but their great Buſineſs is to manage their Flocks of Sheep and Goats, the Milk of which is their common Beverage. They wear a Head-piece in the Field, or at leaſt a round Leathern Cap which comes over their Fore-head and their Ears. They underſtand nothing of Fire-Arms, but make great uſe of Bows and Arrows. The Houſings of their Horſes ſpread upon the ground, ſerve generally for their Troopers to ſleep on: They charge with a great deal of Briskneſs and Fury, but ſoon after ſeem to give way; and when once they have drawn the Enemy into a diſorderly Purſuit, they immediately Rally one and all, and ſeldom fail of gaining an Entire Victory. Daviti, Ambaſſ. des Hollandois A la Chine, Sanſon, Briet, Ferrai, Duval, &c.

TARTARIE in Europe, call'd Little Tartary, comprehends not only the ancient Taurica Cherſoneſus, but alſo divers Countries between the Boryſthenes or Nieper and the Tanais. It generally goes by the Name of Crim or Precop Tartary. High Mountains divide this Peninſula in two Parts: Its Name of Precopenſis comes from a Ditch dug in the Iſthmus or Neck of Land about half a League or 1200 Paces wide for its greater Strength; and it is this Tartary which is divided into the Precopenſian that comprehends the Peninſule and Crimee, which reaches far beyond it, and takes Name from a City called Crim : The capital Town is Bacieſaria. The other Towns are Haraſa, Mancup : Or Frecop, Coffow, Crimenda or Solat, Pantico, Baluclawa, and Caffa which belongs to the Turk. We may add to theſe the Nogaian Tartars, thoſe of Budziack in Beſſarabia, the Tartars of Dobruce in Bulgaria, and thoſe of Oczacow, about the Euxine Sea, all in Europe. The Cherſoneſus Taurica, where now are the Little Tartars, in the Beginning had its particular Princes, until it was ſubdued by the Tauro-Scythians, who gave it their own Name. Mithridates took it from them,and join'd it to the Kingdom of Pontus. The Romans depriving him of his Kingdom, eſtabliſhed Sovereigns in Cherſoneſus, which were call'd Kings of the Boſphorus. After this, theſe Provinces belonged to the Eaſtern Empire; and the Genois ſubdued a great part of it, but were forc'd to pay the Tartars a Tribute, who came to ſettle here in 1250. So that they were ſole Maſters of all this Country until Mahomet II. took Caffa in 1452, and beat them quite out of it. The Little Tartars were always great Robbers and Plunderers of their Neighbours; ſo that their Frontiers are very deſert. They have a Prince called Kam, who is Tributary to the Turk, and employ'd by him very often to make Incurſions into Poland and Muſcovy. If we believe Relations, their Cuſtoms are very odd. They put no Value upon bread, which they call Beaſts Food, and eat nothing but Fleſh, which they ſtew under their Saddle.

The Tartars of Krin, People of the Kingdom of Niuche upon the Confines of China, towards the Country of Leaotung, are commonly called Lords of the Golden Mountains, becauſe it's thought this Country abounds with ſuch,Krin in the Tartar Language ſignifying Gold. Theſe have always been capital Enemies to the Chineſe, for they invaded their Country in 1206, and made themſelves Maſters of the Provinces of Peking, Leaotung, Xantung, Xanſi, and Xenſi; ſo that the Emperor of China was forced out of the Northern Provinces called Catai, to the Southern called Mangin. Theſe Tartars would then have ſubdued all the Empire, if the Tartars of Samahania or Samarcanda, jealous of their Conqueſts, had not entered China by the Provinces of Xenſi and Suchen, beat them out, and ſet one of their own Family of Ivena upon the Throne in 1278, whoſe Succeſſors reign'd after him until the Prieſt Chu, Chief of the Family of Taiminga, beat theſe Uſurpers home to their own Country, and eſtabliſhed his Family, which governed until 1644, that the Tartars of Krin deprived them, who now govern there, Tſumte being the firſt Tartar Emperor, after him his Son Xunchi, and after him the preſent Emperor Tunchi. The Tartars live generally in Tents covered with wax'd Silks or Hides. Some wear Skins, others Silk and Cotton: They carry their Cimeter on the left-ſide, with the Handle raiſed behind; ſo that they draw it eaſily with the right-hand alone: Their Caps, in Winter, are faced with very rich Furr, as Beaver, Ermin, &c. but in Summer they wear one of Ruſhes. Theſe ſeem more poliſh'd than the other Tartars, perhaps becauſe they live ſo near China. They are better Soldiers than the Chineſes, and accuſtomed to Toil and Fatigue from their very Youth. As for Religion, they have none at all, but hate Mahometaniſm and the Turks very much, becauſe they aſſiſted the Chineſes to beat them out of their Country, under the Reign of the Founder of the Family of Taiminga, when the Chriſtians, eſpecially the Neſtorians, ſtood by the Tartars. The Emperor of China, notwithſtanding, is a Mahometan, and part of his Native Subjects have taken up ſeveral ſuperſtitious Practices from the Indians, and hold their Prieſts, called Lamas, in Veneration. They ſeem much diſpoſed to receive the Chriſtian Religion, and many of them have embrac'd it already. Their Language ſomewhat reſembles the Perſian; in Reading they begin at the upper part of the Page, and end at the bottom, as they of China, continuing from the Right to the Left, as the Hebrews and Arabians, and all the reſt of China do. M. Thevenot Deſcription of China, vol. 3.

Tartars Nogaian, Neighbours to thoſe of Precops, inhabit the Peninſula of Crim towards Circaſſia, Moſcovy, Poland, and Moldavia. Theſe have no Towns, but a great number of Cabins, which they carry upon Chariots, and obey particular Princes called Cankariers, that is, Chief of the Hordes or Tribes, who can raiſe above 50000 Horſe. Though they are Mahometans, yet they are no ſtrict Obſervers of the Laws of that Sect. The Coggia or Doctors and Prieſts come not amongſt them, becauſe they cannot accuſtom themſelves to their way of living; they live on Fleſh and Milk without Bread; their Drink is ſour Milk and Water; and upon Holy-days they drink Mares Milk prepared with Barley: They have abundance of good Paſture in their Plains, and Cattel in great numbers, as alſo wild Horſes, Deers, Wolves, Elks, Foxes, Bears, &c. Skins, Slaves, and Butter, are their chief Commodities, which they truck for Cottons, Cloth, Turkey-Leather, Knives, and ſuch other Ware; for they do not care for Money. They are very deform'd, and have neither Honeſty nor Civility. Their Children do not ſee well a long time after they are born, their eyes are ſo little, and ſo much ſunk in their Heads: They have neither Books nor Writing: He that Commands adminiſters Juſtice. Peter of Luca. But others make a more exact Diviſion of the Tartars, ſaying, the Crim Tartars poſſeſs the Peninſula, and are above 60000 Men. The Nogays poſſeſs the Country, which begins at Perecops, and reaches on one ſide to the River of Nieper, and on the other to the Town of Oczakou, and can raiſe 12000 Men. The Tartars of Oczakou, and the Neighbourhood of Don, are about 2000 fighting Men, otherwiſe called Beſlei, that is, pay'd or hir'd. The Tartars of Budziack live about the Town of Bilogrod, upon the Frontiers of Moldavia or Beſſarabie, and can make up 15000 Men. As for Nogaye, it's divided into greater and leſſer: The Greater Nogaye, whoſe Hordes made frequent Incurſions to the Weſt, was quite over-run by the Cham of Tartary, who forced the People into the Peninſula; and the Leſſer Nogaye, which lies between Donets and the Sea of Limen from the Precops to Oczakou, is under the Protection of the ſame Cham. The Orbey or Governour of Precops is their Chief and Judge. M. Thevenot.

Tartars of Precops, or Crim Tartars, People that inhabit the Peninſula between the Black Sea and the Sea of Limen, formerly called Cherſoneſus Taurica, which joins the firm Land by an Iſthmus half a League broad. This Place is about 700 Miles in Circuit, comprehending 80000 Coi or Villages, eight Towns which are Precop or Or ſituated upon the Iſthmus; Bacieſarai or Baccaſarai in the middle of the Country, where they build their Galleys and other Veſſels; Criminda or Solar, Kerſi or Karaſu, Mancop, Coſelow and Caffa, where the Grand Signior puts a Baſcha; but his Juriſdiction does not reach into the Country, whereof the Cham is ſole Sovereign. This Prince takes the Title of King of the Tartars, Nogays, Circaſſia and Malibaſe. The Precopenſian Tartary is a very plain, but cold, Country, by reaſon of the Wind it is expoſed to. There are four Rivers called Alma, Cabarta, Bejeſula, or Kacia, and Caraſu. Theſe Tartars have ſuch great Quantities of Wheat and Millet, that they ſell a Cart loaden with as much as two Oxen can draw, for two Crowns: Beſides theſe, they have good Paſture, and vaſt numbers of Cattel, good Horſes, great and double-bunch'd Camels. Other Proviſions are ſo cheap, that a Hen is ſold for four Aſpers or two Pence, fifteen Eggs for an Aſper or a Half-penny. Their Water is good, but beſt near the Sea: They have ſo much Fiſh, that it's far cheaper than Fleſh: Nor do they want Fruit-Trees either in the Plains or along the Sea and Rivers ſides. The Salt they uſe is gather'd without any Trouble in the Fens and Marſhes, where People may have and take as much as they pleaſe. They make a great Quantity of Earth-Oyl, which they call Oyl of Stones. Here are no ravenous Beaſts. Wine is dear, as alſo Oyl of Olives. They eat but little Bread, but devour a great deal of Meat, eſpecially Horſe-Fleſh. When a Murſe or Country-Lord makes a Feaſt, it's not regarded if they have not a young Colt. Mares Milk, prepared with Barley, is their ordinary Drink, mixing a little Wine ſometimes with it: This Preparation is made by putting the Veſſel near the Fire, or expoſing it to the Sun for about three Weeks to boil and purifie the Liquor. They eat, ſitting on the Ground upon Carpets or Mats. Their Tables are round, and covered with Leather. They entertain

Strangers pretty civilly; for when any comes into their Villages they ſend him to the Moſque, where he has Meat ſent him; but if he be one they know, they take him to their Houſe, and lodge him in an Apartment kept for Strangers. Their Marriages are made in Preſence of the Coggia, or Prieſt of their Law; and they take as many Wives as they can maintain, beſides whom they have Slaves, called Cuma, that is, Concubines. The common ſort make a Traffick by ſelling the Children of thoſe Concubines. The Crim Tartars are generally at War with the Polanders, Muſcovites, Ruſſians, Circaſſians, and Moldavians, and carry a great many into Slavery from thoſe Countries. They know no other Calling but War, whereof their long Experience has taught 'em all the Secrets. Sometimes they are above a hundred thouſand Horſe, and march for four Months together in Deſarts, for all People quit their Dwellings at their Approach: Each carries a Bag of Barly-Meal upon his Horſe, with ſome Biskets, and a thing they call Cuſcum, which is a kind of Paſte fry'd in Butter. They take greater care of their Horſes than of themſelves; it being a Proverb amongſt them, That to loſe ones Horſe is to loſe ones Head. The Horſes are moſt of them very ſmall and lean, but will do great Service, and endure Fatigue. The Murſes, or Gentry, have very fine Horſes, yet they never keep them in the depth of Winter nor greateſt Snows. Their Saddles are very light, and ſerve them for many Uſes: The underpart is a Woollen Cloth well folded, which they ſpread and lye upon; the Back ſerves for a Bolſter, and their Cloak hung upon Pikes, which they always carry, makes a Tent: Their Arms are a Sword and Bow, with Head-pieces of Mail, much eſteemed in Tartary. They can ſhoot their Arrows behind them, as the ancient Parthians us'd to do. The Cham has no ſtanding Troops, except five hundred Fuſiliers that are his Guards. He takes a Tenth of what Booty his Subjects make. The Towns of moſt Trade in Tartary are Caffa, Caraſu, Caſlow, and Bachaſaria, where there are always Slaves to be ſold, which the Turks, Arabians, Jews, Armenians, and Greeks do buy; for there are of all theſe Nations in this Country that pay Tribute to the Cham of Tartary and Baſcha of Caffa. The Precopites are great Obſervers of their Religion, and go four or five times a day to their Namas or Moſques, and do juſtice immediately upon the Complaint of the Party, whether in Criminal or Civil Matters. Their Houſes are generally of Wood, built without any Obſervation of the Rules of Architecture. In Summer they have round Cabins made of Willow, which they put upon their Chariots, and carry from one Place to another for the conveniency of Paſture. They ſpeak the Turkiſh Language, with ſome other mixture. The King has five Seraglio's, pretty well built: His Treaſure lyes in a Town called Mancop, built upon a Mountain, and inhabited by Jews that obey a Tartar Governour. Hither the Cham retires when there is any Trouble or Rebellion in the Country, or that he is in War with the Grand Signior, who poſſeſſes and keeps a ſtrong Garriſon in Caffa, the beſt Town in his Dominions. M. Thevenot in his Relations of the Tartars, Vol. 1. Other Authors give this Account of the Religion of the ancient Tartars, That they Worſhip'd the Sun, Stars, Fire, Earth, and Water; to whom they offered the firſt Fruits of their Meat and Drink each Morning: That they believ'd there was one God, Creator of all Things, but did not Worſhip him: That they placed Idols at their Tent-doors to preſerve their Cattel and Milk: That they offer'd Horſes to the Emperour's Idol, which no Man muſt ride upon afterwards. They burnt the Bones of their Sacrifices: They believed the other World to be ſuch as this, and ſet Meat and Mares-Milk before their Dead, while they themſelves did eat a Horſe, and burnt the Bones for their Souls. They buried with the Deceaſed a Mare, Colt, and Horſe, bridled and ſadled, together with his Gold and Silver; and that he may have a Tent in the other World, ſet the Skin of the Horſe which they eat upon Poles. At Prayer they uſed to lift up their Hands and ſmite their Teeth thrice, and poured Mares-Milk on the Ground, or threw it in the Air, to feed the Ghoſts. They had Monaſteries, and a particular Order called Senſcin, who did eat nothing but Bread ſteep'd in Water. They forced no Man to be of their Religion. Their Prieſts uſed to Preach to them from high Trees, and afterwards beſprinkle them with a mixture of Blood, Milk, Earth, and Cows Dung. Orteliuſ. Paul. Venet. Vincentius. Matth. Paris. The Modern Tartars have diverſity of Religions among them, ſome being Chriſtians, others Mahometans, and a third ſort Pagans. In Sachien they have divers Monaſteries for their Idols, to whom they dedicate their Children, and ſacrifice Rams on Feſtival-days, eating the Fleſh, but reſerving the Bones as holy Relicks. The Prieſt is allowed the Head, Skin, Feet, Inwards, and ſome part of the Fleſh. When Great Men are buried they ſet a well-covered Table before the Corps, thinking that the Soul is refreſhed with the Odour of the Meats, and throw the Pictures of his Men, Women, and Horſes, &c. into the Fire with the Body, to ſerve him in the other World. In Tangoth they Worſhip Idols with many Heads. In Camdu they proſtitute their Wives, Siſters, and Daughters, to Strangers, in honour of their Idols. In Cathai and Mangi they offer Blood to the Idols for recovering the Sick, as alſo Rams with black Heads, and ſpiced Drinks; and fling the Eroth in the Air; and the Monks wear Strings of Nutſhels, on which they ſay their Prayers, Will. de Rubruquis.

TARTARUS, according to the Ancients, was the loweſt Place in Hell, which Plato in his Phædon inclines to believe is the Centre of the Earth, and calls it in another Place the Priſon of the Wicked. Heſiod in his Theogonia ſays, That Place ſprung from the Chaos, and is as far from the Earth as it is diſtant from the Heavens.

TARUDANT, in Latin Tarodantum, a Town of Africa, Capital of the Kingdom of Sus, in the Weſtern part of Biledulgerid, now in the King of Morocco's Dominions.

TASGET, King or Sovereign Prince of Chartres, which his Anceſtors poſſeſſed 600 Years: His Subjects were againſt receiving him, until Cæſar, whom he had ſerved faithfully, ſetled him upon the Throne. Yet he was murthered publickly by ſome of his Enemies three Years after, none of his Subjects troubling themſelves to defend him; which made many think that they were in the Conſpiracy themſelves. Cæſar upon this News fearing a general Rebellion, ſent Plancus thither with his Legion to keep the People to their Duties, and to diſcover who were the Authors of the Murther, that they might be puniſhed. Jul. Cæſar de Bello Gall. lib. 5.

TASSO, an Iſland of the Archipelago towards Europe, formerly called Thaſſos or Thalaſſia. It lyes one League from the firm Land of Romania, and is ſeven or eight in Circuit: The Land is unequal, half plain half hilly. The Mountains of the Southern ſide have Quarries of very good Marble, and Vineyards, that bear excellent Grapes. There are alſo great numbers of Pine and Fir Trees, and ſome heaps of the Refuſe of Metal, which ſhew, that there have formerly been good Mines there, which yielded Philip of Macedon and Alexander the Great, 80 Talents per An. A Colony of Phœnicians built this Town, now much ſhort of its ancient Splendor, though it be very well inhabited. Before the Phœnicians came to this Iſland, it was called Chryſe for its Gold; and Thas in the Phœnician Tongue ſignifies a thin Plat of Gold; whence the Iſland had its Name. *Bochart. TASSO, Torquato, a famous Italian Poet, born at Sorrento a Town of the Kingdom of Naples. He compoſed ſeveral ingenious Pieces, as, his Poem of Jeruſalem Deliver'd, and his Amintas, the Maſter-piece and Model of all Paſtoral Comedies. He was the firſt that introduced Shepherds upon the Stage. His Diſputes with the Academy of Cruſca in Florence, and his new Troubles at Ferrara where he was impriſoned, made his Life very uneaſie. He died at Rome in 1595, the 51ſt of his Age, being on the point of receiving the Lawrel Crown. Lawrenzo Craſſo Elog. d' huom. &c.

TASSONI (Alexander) an Italian Poet, Native of Modena, was of the Academy of the Humouriſts, took upon him to Criticize on Petrarque and Homer, which procured him Contempt; but the Poem on the Wars betwixt Modena and Bolonia was well eſteemed. He was of ſuch an odd Humour, that he cauſed himſelf to be Painted with a Fig in his Hand, to intimate that he was not a Fig the better for his Acceſs to great People. He quitted thoſe Exerciſes when he grew more in Years, and applied himſelf to write an Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, which he continued from our Saviour's Birth to the 15th Century; in which he has contradicted Baronius in a great many places. Pinacoth vir. illuſtr.

TATIAN, an Hereſiarch of the 2d Century, a Syrian and Diſciple of Juſtin Martyr; he was look'd upon at firſt to be of eminent Piety and great Learning, and employ'd his Talent for the Service of Chriſtianity; for Origen quotes a Book of his in Defence of the Chriſtians againſt the Heathens, which is now Extant; yet there are ſome falſe Doctrines in this Treatiſe too, as, That the Soul being mortal of its own Nature, becomes immortal, &c. He returned into the Eaſt from Rome, after St. Juſtin's Death, where he fell into the Errors of the Valentinians and Marcionites, and afterwards became Chief of the Encratites or Continents, condemned Marriage, and held many other Abſurdities. He compoſed a Harmony of the four Evangeliſts, intitled, Diateſſaron, wherein he left out the Proofs of Chriſt's Humanity. There was another Work attributed to him, intitled, Of the Perfection according to the Saviour, which he makes to conſiſt in abſtaining from Marriage, and from ſeveral other things which are lawful according to the Goſpel. St. Irenæus, Tertullian, Clem. Alexandrin. Origen. Baronius. Bellarmin. See Encratites.

TATIUS, King of the Sabins, being enraged that the Romans had taken away his Subjects Daughters, march'd againſt them; but the War was prevented by the Womens Prudence, who put themſelves between their Fathers and Husbands. This happened the fourth Year of the Foundation of Rome. Three Years after, Peace being ſworn betwixt the Romans and Tatius, he came to ſettle at Rome, having quitted his ancient Reſidence at Cures; whence the Romans took the Names of Quirites. He was murthered ſix Years after, as it was thought, by Romulus's Order, who did not like ſuch a Competitor. Tit. Liv. Plutarch.

TATIUS (Achilles) born at Alexandria, wrote a Book, De Sphæra, the greateſt part of which ſeems to have been only a Paraphraſe upon Aratus. Petrus Victorius Printed it firſt from a Manuſcript in the Duke of Florence's Library: This Treatiſe was Tranſlated into Latin by Petavius. Tatius likewiſe wrote a Romance, call'd the Amours of Leucippe and Clitophon, which Commelin publiſh'd in Greek, from a Manuſcript of the Elector Palatine; 'Twas afterwards Tranſlated by Crurius, a Milaneſe, into Latin; It has been ſince Reprinted with Notes, by Salmaſius. Suidas ſays, That this Achilles Tatius was firſt a Pagan, but afterwards turn'd Chriſtian, and was made a Biſhop. Photius mentions him in his Bibliotheque, cap. 87. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. lib. 3. & de Scient. Mathem. 6. 31.

TATTA, a Kingdom of the Indies belonging to the Great Mogul with a Town of the Name upon the River Indus and the Frontiers of Perſia.

TATTEMBACH, Count of Rheiſtan, entred into Count Serini's League in 1669. The Emperor being acquainted with his pernicious Deſigns, got him ſeized at Gratz by Prainer, Preſident of the Sovereign Council of Stiria, as he was coming into the Council Chamber; and being ſent to the Caſtle, the Judge went to his Houſe, where he found his Papers, with Arms, Stores, and a conſiderable Sum of Money to raiſe 6000 Men, as was diſcovered afterwards. Tattembach, upon his Examination, acknowledged all his Intreagues with Count Serini and the other Heads of the Conſpiracy. The Project was thus; They agreed that Tattembach ſhould come in the Night before the Gate of Gratz with five Chariots laden with Turks; that he ſhould pretend he had made his Eſcape, and brought off his Baggage from Count Serini, and beg to be ſheltered there; that aſſoon as this ſhould be granted, and one of his Carts entred upon the Draw-bridge, they ſhould overſet it, by making one of the Wheels to fall off, and cumber the Bridge whilſt the Turks ſhould put all the Guard to the Sword, and ſecure the Gate for Count Serini, who was to follow with his Army; and ſo being Maſters of the Town, ſhould alſo ſeize the Province. Tattembach found means to make his Eſcape, but being retaken, was always kept in ſight, and not ſuffered to write to any body. He was not ſentenced until ſeven Months after the Counts of Serini, Frangipani and Nadaſti were put to Death, becauſe the Elector of Brandenburg pretended, that if his Eſtate was confiſcated, the County of Rheiſtan ſhould fall to him tanquam jure devoluit; about which, his and the Emperor's Officers had great Diſputes: but at laſt that Buſineſs being adjuſted, Tattembach was ſentenced to have his Hand and Head cut off, his Goods confiſcated, and his Poſterity degraded of their Nobility. But the Emperor moderated the Sentence as to that part that related to the cutting off his Hand, and he was executed the firſt of December 1671. Hiſt. of the Troubles of Hungary.

TATTERSHALL, a ſmall Town in Lindſey Diviſion in Lincolnſhire, 98 Miles from London.

TAVERNIER (John Baptiſt) Baron d' Aubonne, one of the greateſt Travellers of the 17th Century, was born at Paris in 1605. His natural Inclination to Travel, was much heightned by his Father's Employment who ſold Maps. He ſatisfy'd his Fancy this way very early, having travelled through moſt of the fineſt Countries of Europe, at 22 Years of Age. He made ſix Voyages into Turkey, Perſia and the Indies, in forty Years time; and changing his Roads as much as was poſſible, he attempted a ſeventh Voyage, in which he died at Moſcow, July 1689. He had made a great many Obſervations, but had no Talent in writing French; and therefore he got Monſieur Chappuzeau and De la Chapelle to Methodize his Memoirs, and put 'em into the Form in which they are Printed. His Travels were Publiſh'd at Paris in two Volumes in Quarto, in 1679. They comprehend his Six Voyages. Afterwards he Printed a Relation of the Seraglio, a Deſcription of Japan, of the Kingdom of Traquin, and a Hiſtory of the Management of the Dutch in Aſia, &c. in which laſt Treatiſe, he falls violently hard upon the Governors of the Dutch Eaſt-India Company: for which reaſon Chappuzeau refus'd him the Aſſiſtance of his Pen, which made him apply to the Sieur d' la Chapelle, who comply'd with his Requeſt. Bayle Diction. Hiſtor. &c.

TAVASTHUS, a Province of the Kingdom of Swedeland in Finland, with a Town of this Name that was formerly called Gruneburg. It was Fortified by the Muſcovites.

TAVESTOCK, a Market and Borough Town of Devonſhire, pleaſantly ſeated on the Tavoy, whence it's furniſhed with plenty of excellent Fiſh. It was formerly very famous for its ſtately Abby, in which, according to William of Malmesbury, were to be ſeen the Sepulchre of Ordoupa, Son to the Earl of Devonſhire, of ſuch a Gigantick Stature, that he could ſtride over the River there ten Foot broad, and ſo ſtrong that he could burſt the Bars of great Gates aſunder. This Abby was burnt by the Danes about thirty Years after its Foundation, but rebuilt with much Splendor, and became famous for a Lecture in the Saxon Tongue, to prevent the forgetting of that Language, which Cambden ſays, was preſerved to the time of his Forefathers. It's Capital of its Hundred, repreſented in Parliament by two Burgeſſes, and is 166 Miles from London.

TAVILA, or Tavira, a Town of the Kingdom of Portugal in Algarva, with a good Port and Fortreſs upon the River Xilaon.

TAUREADORES, a Name which the Spaniards give to thoſe that endeavour to ſtop a Bull by throwing a Cloak upon his Eyes in the Bull-Courſes at Madrid. This Courſe is a Combat that holds ſeveral Days, and is kept upon great Solemnities. The King and Perſons of Quality place themſelves in the Galleries of a Palace called El Conſiſtorio, and the Embaſſadors in another over-againſt them. The Combatants, who are Perſons of Quality, are on thoſe Days clad in Black, but their Creados or Waiters are very richly dreſſed, ſome in Turkiſh Habits, ſome in Mooriſh, and others dreſt like Savages. They let looſe one Bull at a time; and there is one Man to attack him with his Lance or ſmall Spear and Darts. The Combatant enters the Liſt on Horſeback, with his Legs bent towards the Horſe's Flanks: this Champion, accompanied with his Creades, goes to ſalute the King and then the Ladies, whilſt the People fret and enrage the Bull in a Houſe at the end of the Liſt. When they find he is mad to purpoſe, they let him out, and the Horſeman turns a little out of his way, but endeavours to ſtick him with his Lance or Dart in the Neck, which is the eaſieſt Place to make an end of him at one ſtroke. If he kills him, then there are Mules richly harneſſed to carry him off in Triumph; but if the Horſeman in ſtriking at the Bull, happens to have his Horſe hurt, or is himſelf thrown out of the Saddle, then he muſt fight a-foot with his Sword, which is call'd Empeno; but upon ſuch Occaſions the Waiters and Friends help to attack the Beaſt, which ſometimes kills ſeveral before he falls. Jouvain in his Voyage of Spain.

TAUNTON, a fine and well-built Borough Town in Somerſetſhire, with a fine Bridge over the River Tone, Navigable there for Barges. This Town is the beſt in the County, grac'd with ſpacious Streets, containing two Pariſh Churches; well inhabited, eſpecially by Clothiers, who drive here a mighty Trade for Serges, and is 120 Miles from London.

TAURICA, or Cherſoneſus Taurica, now a Peninſula in Little Tartary, that reaches between the Sea called Major and that of Zabache as far as the Streights of Caffa, which parts Europe from Aſia. It's 24 Miles long, and 15 broad, the Air temperate, the Soil fertil in all kind of Fruits, and the Plains very good for Paſture; yet the Inhabitants are very lazy, and neglect to till or look after the Land. The great Diverſity of wild Beaſts renders Hunting very pleaſant here. The Country is divided into two Parts by Mountains, and call'd the Northern and Southern Cherſoneſus. The Crim Tartars inhabit the Northern part: Caffa, Capital of the Southern is a Sea-Port, and a Place of great Commerce. It was an ancient Colony of Genoeſe until 1475 that it was taken by the Turks. Its ancient Inhabitants were very cruel, being accuſtomed to ſacrifice Strangers to their Goddeſs Diana, eſpecially the Greeks that landed there, and uſed to tye their Enemies Heads that were kill'd in Battel at the top of their Chimneys, thinking that this would ſecure their Houſes: But now they follow the Mahometan Law both in Politicks and Religion, and do Juſtice ſpeedily without Law-Suits. Mercator in his Atlas.

TAURINUS got himſelf ſaluted Emperor in Syria in Alexander Severus's Time, about 233 or 34; but hearing that this Prince drew near at the Head of an Army which he was leading againſt the Perſians, he was ſeized with ſuch a terrible Fear, that he threw himſelf into the Euphrates. Lamprid in Alex. Sever.

TAURIS, a Town of Perſia in the Province of Adirbeitzan. It's not at all doubted, but this is the Ecbatane of Media, and not the Terva of Ptolomy which was in Armenia. It is one of the richeſt Towns, and of moſt Traffick in Aſia, built in a very good Air, a fertil Soil, and convenient for Caravans, which come thither from all Parts. Theſe Advantages render'd it often the Seat of War between the Turks and Perſians. Schach Iſmael took it from the firſt, and Solyman retook it from him: that Turkiſh Prince, though the Town was diſmantled, and the Inhabitants made no Reſiſtance at all againſt his Arms, plundered it moſt barbarouſly, and defaced the Paintings, Gold, gilt Wainſcots and Cielings, with the other Marks of the Magnificence of the Monarchs of Perſia in their Palace there. Schach Thomas retook it from the Turks; his Son loſt it; but it was again recovered by Schan Abas; ſo that the Perſians are in Poſſeſſion of it now. Tauris is ſituate in a Plain not far from a Mountain, which modern Authors take to be Orontes. The little River Spingtica runs through it, and overflows ſometimes, to the great Damage of the Inhabitants. The River Agi runs on the North ſide, and is a large and pleaſant Stream. It's called Agi, which ſignifies Saltiſh, becauſe it's ſo for ſix Months Yearly, by ſome Brooks that run into it through Salt Grounds. The Town is divided into nine Parts or different Quarters, has 15000 Houſes, and as many Shops: Theſe Shops are in the Bazars, or great Market Places in the middle of the Town, ſurrounded with long vaulted Streets; and the Houſes are built on the out-ſides. There are alſo 300 Carvanſera's, all large and well-built, which are Inns and publick Warehouſes for foreign Merchants and Strangers. There are, beſides theſe, 250 ſtately Moſques, whereof ſome are half ruin'd. They have three Hoſpitals, wherein though they ſeldom lodge any, yet they keep open Table twice a day for ſuch as come. The Median or Square, is remarkable for its Greatneſs; it's here they keep their Publick Plays, their Wreſtlings, the Bull and Ram Fights, and the Wolf Dances, a Diverſion the People are much taken with, and will not ſtand to give 500 Crowns for a Wolf that is well trained to this Exerciſe. Here is a pretty high Gallery in this Place, where there is a Conſort of Trumpets and Drums every day at Sun-riſe and when it ſets; which is alſo practiſed in all Towns of Perſia that have Governors. The Capuchins have a pretty Dwelling here, where they inſtructed the Intendant's, or Governor of the Province, two Sons in Philoſophy and Mathematicks in 1668. The Hermitage of Ayn Ali, at the end of the Town, is a very charming Place. Without the Town, to the South are the Ruins of the Palace of the ancient Kings of Perſia, and to the Eaſt are Remains of the Caſtle, wherein the Armenians ſay Coſroes lived. There is alſo a very magnificent Moſque a little from the Town, upon the Road towards Iſpahan, but it's ruinous, and neglected, becauſe the Turks made uſe of it. This Building is all covered on the out-ſide with Bricks verniſhed with different Colours, the in-ſide all embeliſhed with curious Moſque Paintings, and an infinite number of Figures and Arabick Letters in Gold and Azure, with very fine and high Towers on both ſides, the Front all covered with verniſhed Bricks, the chief Ornament of all great Buildings of Perſia. To the South of the Moreſque are two great white and tranſparent Stones, which ſeem Red when the Sun ſhines upon them, and ſometimes after Sun-ſet, one may read by the Reverberation of the Light from them: This ſort of Stone is a kind of Alabaſter, that is found in the Neighbourhood of Tautis. The Town is very well Peopled, ſome counting 1100000 Men in it; but to ſpeak within compaſs, one may ſay, there are above 600000 Inhabitants, beſides a great number of Strangers from all Parts of Aſia; for the Commerce of this Town reaches through all Perſia into Turkey, Tartary, Muſcovy, and upon the Black Sea. They work Cottons, Silks, Gold, and make the beſt Turbans of Perſia here. They have fine Horſes, and very cheap, and it's here that moſt part of the Shagreen is made, ſo much uſed in Perſia, that all People, except the Boors, have Boots and Shoes of them. It is made of the hinder part of the Skins of Horſes, Aſſes, and Mules, but the beſt Grain is raiſed on the Aſſe's Skin. The Air of Tauris is very healthful, though it rains there almoſt all the Year beſides Summer, and that the Sky is generally covered with Clouds. The Cold holds a long time, becauſe the Town is environed with Mountains towards the North, that are cover'd with Snow nine Months of the Year. Proviſions are very cheap, Bread being but a Half-penny a Pound, and Fleſh three Halfpence; Wine, Fowl, and Fruit, are alſo at very reaſonable Rates. There are ſeveral great Quarries round the Town of white Marble, whereof ſome are tranſparent, ſaid to be formed of the Waters of a Mineral Well that congeal by little and little; and beſides, there are two Mines lately diſcovered, one of Gold, the other of Salt. Moſt modern Geographers believe, that Tauris is the ancient Ecbatane ſo often mentioned in Scripture, and in the ancient Hiſtories of Aſia. Mr. Herbert ſays, that in 1627, it was ſix Miles in Circuit, well peopled, and had a ſtrong Gariſon, but Fortified only with a Mud Work. In 1638, it was almoſt ruined by the Grand Seignior Amurath, and in 1651 ſuffered much by an Earthquake. The Beglerbeg or Governour of Tauris, is the moſt conſiderable of the Kingdom, is Generaliſſimo of the Armies, keeps three thouſand Horſe, and has under him the Cans or Governours of Cars, Oroumi, Maraga and Ardevil. Chardin and Tavernier's Voyage of Perſia.

TAURUS, the greateſt Mountain in the World, that parts Aſia in two; extending from Weſt to Eaſt, from the Coaſt of Rhodes between Caria and Lycia to the Extremities of Tartary and China. The Greek Geographers, as Strabo, &c. have called that part of Aſia the Outward, which this Mountain leaves to the North, and Inward the other towards the South. It alſo receives different Names, according to its different Situations, as, Amanus, Niphates, Choatres, Parchoatres, Becius, Zagrus, Oronto, Coronus, Imaus, Emodus, Sericus, &c. A certain Author ſays, that this Mountain is 50 Engliſh Leagues wide, and above 1560 in Length, and that it's of ſo prodigious a Highth, that it takes up two Days to get to the top of it. This Author adds, that the Way is cut out of a Rock; that he went for three Leagues, where the Paſſage was but three Foot, and ſometimes but a Foot and a half wide, over ſteep and terrible Precipices. The particular Name of Taurus belongs moſt properly to that Branch which divides Pamphylia and Cilicia from the Leſſer Armenia. Thom. Herbert's Voyage of Perſia.

TAXANDRE, Duke of Tongres, was brought up in his Youth at the Emperor Gratian's Court, where he ſuffered much through the Envy of Eugenius Grammaticus and Arbogaſtes. He became Chriſtian in St. Martin Archbiſhop of Tours his time: Afterwards he quitted the Emperor Gratian, and ſided with Maximin who gave him many Priviledges. It was in his time that St. Servais Biſhop of Tongres, quitted this Town, having foretold the Perſecution of the Huns, that ſhould quite ruine the Place after Gratian's Death. Taxandre was well-beloved by Theodoſius the Great, and died in his Reign.

TAXILA, the greateſt Town of the Indies according to Strabo, but not known now, unleſs it be Camboia. Philoſtrates ſays, that it was King Phraotes's Reſidence, and that all the Houſes were of Earth. Strabo lib. 15.

TAXIS, a German Count who firſt eſtabliſhed the Poſts at his own Expences in Germany; in conſideration of which Service, the Emperor Mathias, in 1616, gave him the Place of General or Chief of them, for him and his Heirs. Hornigk Tract. de regal. Poſt. Jure.

TAY, the greateſt River in Scotland, has its Source from Loch-Tay, a Lake of 24 Miles long in Braid Albin. It waſhes the Grampian Mountains, the Country of Athol, the Town of Dunkell and St. Johnſton, the fruitful Country of Gowry, and falls into the Sea at Dundee, where it is two Miles over. It is Navigable as high as St. Johnſton, about twenty Miles into the Land.

TAY-BOU, the Name of one of the two great Magicians of the Kingdom of Tonquin in the Indies towards China. The People of this Country have a particular Veneration for two Magicians, which they call Tay-bou and Tay-Phou-Thouy; and for a Witch called Bacoti. The Tay-bou makes them believe, that he can foretell what is to come: ſo that when they deſign to Marry their Children, to buy any Land, or undertake any conſiderable Buſineſs, they conſult this Oracle about the Succeſs. He has a Book filled with Figures of Men, Beaſts, Circles, and Triangles; and three Pieces of Braſs, with ſome Characters on one ſide only; theſe he puts into three Cups, and having ſtir'd them, caſts them upon the Ground: If all the Characters lye uppermoſt, the Magician cries, that the Perſon will be the happieſt in the World; but if on the contrary they lye under, it's look'd upon as a very bad Omen. If one or two Characters appear upon the uppermoſt ſide, they conſult their Books, and foretell what they think fit. He alſo pretends to know the Cauſes of Diſtempers, when the Tay-phou ſends him them that conſult him; and to call the Souls of the Dead out of Bodies that they are troubleſom to. Tavernier's Voyage of the Indies.

TAY-PHOU-THOVY, the Name of the other Magician of Tonquin, to which they have Recourſe in their Sickneſs: He has ſuch a Book as the former, wherein he pretends to find the Cauſes of Diſtempers. If he ſays, the Devil is the Occaſion of the Diſtemper, then muſt they ſacrifice, and offer him a Table well furniſhed with Rice and Meat, which the Magician knows how to make uſe of. If after this the Sick do not recover, all their Friends and Kindred, with ſeveral Soldiers, ſurround the Houſe, and diſcharge their Muſquets thrice, to frighten the evil Spirit away. Sometimes the Magician makes the Sick believe, that it's the God of Water that troubles him, which they generally ſay, if it be a Sea-man or Fiſher-man that lyes ill, and then he orders that they ſpread Tapeſtries and Build Cabins, and there keep good Tables for three Days, at certain Diſtances from the Sick-man's Houſe to the next River, to invite this God to retire, and ſee him ſafe into his Dominions again. But the better to know the Cauſe of this Diſtemper, this Magician ſends them very often to the Tay-bou, who anſwers, that they are the Souls of the Dead that cauſe the Sickneſs, and promiſes to employ his Art and Tricks to draw off theſe troubleſom Ghoſts to himſelf, and make 'em tranſmigrate into his own Body, (for they believe the Metempſychoſis,) and when he catches that Ghoſt which did the Miſchief, he ſhuts it up in a Bottle of Water until the Perſon is cured: If he recovers, the Bottle is broke, and the Ghoſt ſet at liberty to go whither it pleaſes: If he dies, the Magician, after he has enjoined the Ghoſt to do no more harm, ſends it away. Tavernier's Voyage of the Indies.

TAYGETE, Daughter of Atlas and Pleione, one of the Pleiades, by whom Jupiter had Lacedemon, Founder of the Town of Lacedemonia.

TAYGETE, a Mountain of Laconia, a Province of Peloponneſus or the Morea, ſo near Sparta, that falling upon it by an Earthquake, it almoſt quite ruined it. This Mountain was conſecrated to Caſtor and Pollux, who were born at the foot thereof. Pliny. Homer.

TAYLOR, (Jeremy) born in Cambrige, and bred in Caius's College in that Univerſity: Being afterwards taken notice of by Archbiſhop Laud, for the quickneſs of his Parts, and other unuſual Advantages, was by him preferr'd to a Fellowſhip in All-Souls, Oxford. When the Rebellion broke out, he Officiated in His Majeſty's Army. He was a Perſon of general Learning, particularly a good Philologer. His Invention was extremely copious, his Imagination rich, and his Life regular and unexceptionable. Upon the Reſtoration of King Charles II. he was made Biſhop of Down and Connor in Ireland, where he Govern'd his Dioceſs, and Supported his Character to a great degree of Commendation. He died in 1667. He wrote a great many conſiderable Books, the greateſt part of which are as follows: His Polemical Diſcourſes in Folio; Ductor Dubitantium, or a Reſolution of Caſes of Conſcience in Folio; His Courſe of Sermons, &c. in Folio; His other Tracts are, The Grand Exemplar; Holy Living and Dying; The Golden Grove, &c.

TAYLOR, (John) called the Water-Poet, was born in Gloceſterſhire, and never learn'd any farther than his Accidence. He was afterward bound Apprentice to a Water-man of London, but neglected not to follow Poetry, to which he had ſuch a natural Inclination, inſomuch that he wrote above fourſcore Books, ſome of which he dedicated to K. James, and others to K. Charles the Firſt, which they accepted well, as conſidering the Greatneſs of his Ingenuity and the Meanneſs of his Education. After King Charles Firſt's Death, he kept a Publick Houſe in Phœnix Alley in Long-acre, where he ſet up the Mourning Crown for a Sign, but that rendring him obnoxious, he hung up his own Picture, with theſe two Lines under it:

There's many a King's Head hang'd up for a Sign,
And many a Saint's Head too, then why not mine?

He died about 1654, and one wrote this Epitaph upon him:

Here lyes the Water-Poet, Honeſt John,
Who rowed on the Streams of Helicon;
Where having many Rocks and Dangers paſt.
He at the Haven of Heaven arriv'd at laſt.

TAYLOR (Will.) was born at Kighley in Yorkſhire, Sept. 30. 1616, bred at Magdalen-Hall, Oxon, and afterwards School-maſter of Keyton in Herefordſhire, and in 1639 at Cirenceſter in Gloceſter- ſhire. That Town being taken by the Royaliſts in 1642, he retired to London and Preached, firſt at Bow near the City, then at St. Stephen's in Colemanſtreet, in the room of John Goodwin, turn'd out by the Parliament; but meeting with Oppoſition there, he Preached at a Church in Woodſtreet, and Lectur'd at St. Giles's Cripplegate, and St. Peter's Cornhil. He was however re-eſtabliſhed at St. Stephen's, where he continued till his Death, Sept. 5. 1661. and was buried in the Chancel of the Church. He was a Lover of the King's Intereſt, a zealous Presbyterian, and very Learned and Laborious. He publiſhed ſome Sermons on Phil. 2. 10. beſides others. He alſo Collected, Reviewed, and Prefac'd, ſeveral of Mr. Chriſtopher Love's Sermons before they went to the Preſs. His Funeral Sermon was Preach'd by Dr. William Spurſtow of Hackney, who ſpoke many things to his Honour. His Son William, a Presbyterian Miniſter, is Chaplain to the Right Honourable Philip Lord Wharton, and hath reviewed Dr. Manton's Poſthumous Works: His Wife is Mary, Daughter to Mr. Henry Jolly of Chute in Wiltſhire, by Frances Gainsford deſcended from Sir John Gainsford of Crowhurſt, Com. Surrey, Squire of the Body to King Henry VIII. that Family having been fix'd there ſince 1049, as appears by a fair Tomb erected for William Gainsford buried at St. Edmundsbury in Suffolk.

TEA, or Théa, a Plant, otherwiſe called Chia or Cia, grows in China. The People of that Country take the tendereſt Leaves of this Shrub, towards the Spring, and boil them a little, then ſpread and make them up into Rolls, which they keep in Tin Veſſels to uſe as they have occaſion. The Drink made of Thé is very good for People of great Application, that ſtudy much, and ſit up late, for which uſe it may be ſaid to ſurpaſs the Turks Coffee and the Americans Chocolat; for Coffee is a Spleenatick Drink, and the Chocolat heats too much in Summer, but the Thé is very temperate, and does no hurt, though taken ſeveral times a day. It's believ'd that the uſe of this Drink preſerves the Chinoes from the Stone and Gout, for they are ſeldom or never troubled with either; at leaſt it's certain, it cleanſes the Reins, purges the Brain, and hinders Crudities and Indigeſtions, when taken after Meat. The Tea has long, narrow, and dented Leaves; to preſerve them, they are dried, and then appear of a dark Brown; but when they are put into warm Water, they ſtretch, and come to their former Green. The Perſians boil them until the Water taſtes bitter, and is of a Greeniſh Yellow Colour; then they add Fenel, Aniſeed, Cloves and Sugar. Olearius's Voyage of Perſia. Tulp. Obſerv. Medic. Kircher's China.

TEARE, a River of Thrace, now Romania, takes its Source from 38 Fountains, and empties it ſelf into the River Hebrus now called Mariza. It's ſaid, Darius Son of Hyſtaſpes, liked theſe Waters ſo well, that he ſtaid here three days, and built a Pillar with this Inſcription in Greek, The Water of this River ſurpaſſes all the other of the World in Beauty and Goodneſs. Herodotus.

TEBESCA, or Teveſta, a Town of Africk, formerly a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhoprick of Carthage.

TECHORT, A Country in Biledulgerid in Africk, with a Town, River, and Deſart of the ſame Name.

TECLA, a Diſciple of St. Paul; ſhe was the firſt Chriſtian Martyr of her Sex. Baron. A. C. 47.

TECMESSA, Daughter to a Phrygian Prince, call'd Teuthrantes by Dictys Cretenſis. This Lady was taken Captive when the Grecian Army Ravag'd the Country in the Neighbourhood of Troy. Ajax took ſuch a fancy to this Priſoner of his, that he made her his Concubine. She had Euryſaces by him, who Reign'd at Salamis after the Death of Telamon, Ajax's Father. Teucer, ſecond Son of Telamon, had a mind to return to Salamis, after he had ſettled himſelf at Cyprus, but Euryſaces prevented his Deſign. Pauſanias takes notice, that the Athenians had a particular Honour for Ajax and his Son, of which there were ſome Marks remaining in his Time. Sophocles, in his Ajax Flagelliſer, makes Tecmeſſa lament the Death of Ajax with a great deal of Regret and Tenderneſs. Pauſan. lib. 1. Dictys Cretenſis, lib. 5. *Bayle Diction. TECTOSAGÆ, an ancient People of Gallia Narbonenſis, whoſe Capital was Toloſe. They made an Incurſion into Germany, and ſettled themſelves near the Hyrcinian Foreſt.

TEDDELES, Tedles, a Province and Town in Barbary, 30 Miles Eaſt of Algier, environed with moſt ancient and ſtrong Walls, ſeated in a fruitful Soil as to Corn, and having many Rivers and Streams running through it. The Inhabitants are moſt Dyers, and they have ſuch plenty of Fiſh that they give them away freely. They are a rich and a civil People. Leo Afric. pag. 232.

TEDZA, Tezza, Teza, a rich and a noble City in the Province of Chauz in the Kingdom of Fez, five Miles from Mount Atlas, 50 from Fez to the South, 130 from the Ocean to the Eaſt, and 170 from the Mediterranean. Of old it had about 50000 Families, being ſumptuouſly built, eſpecially the Palaces, Colleges and Temples. Out of the Atlas riſeth a ſmall River which paſſeth through the chief Moſque; but it has been diverted, to the great Damage of the Inhabitants, when they had Quarrels with their Neighbours; ſo that they have been forced to uſe Ciſtern Water. For Wealth, Civility, and People, it is the third City in the Kingdom of Fez; and its Inhabitants are more Liberal and Civil than they of Fez. It has a large Temple, three Colleges, and divers Baths, fruitful Fields, and learned and rich Inhabitants, and about 500 Families of Jews, who make much excellent Wine, the beſt in Africa. It has a fair Caſtle, in which the Governour reſides, who is the ſecond Son of the King of Fez; and the King himſelf often comes thither for the pleaſant Air, and to defend it from the wild Arabs, who bring thither, in Exchange for Corn, the Dates of Segelmeſſe and great Sums of Money, which makes the City very rich. Leo Africanus.

TEES, a River in the North of England, which riſes upon the Borders of Cumberland, takes its Courſe Eaſtward for the ſpace of four Miles: It parts the Biſhoprick of Durham from Weſtmorland, and from thence all along ſerves for a Boundary betwixt that Biſhoprick and Yorkſhire, till it falls into the Sea about ſeven Miles South of Hartlepool.

TEFETHNE, a Sea-Port Town in the Province of Hea in in the Kingdom of Morocco, ſeated on the North-ſide of Mount Atlas, three Days Journey from Meſſa (North), in the Province of Sus. It conſiſteth of about 600 Families, and hath a convenient Harbour for ſmall Ships, frequented by the Portugal Merchants for Goat Skins and Wax. It is ſurrounded with a Wall of hewn Stone and Brick, and was built by the Africans. The Inhabitants are now Mahometans, who have Judges for their Civil Cauſes, but revenge Murthers by the next of Kin by way of Retaliation; but if the Murtherer eſcape, he is baniſhed ſeven Years, and then he returns and payeth a Fine, which acquits him. The Inhabitants are White, Courteous, and have great Plenty of Barly and Goats, which latter being at Night houſed in their Dwelling-houſes, make them very naſty and offenſive. At this Place Mount Atlas begins.

TEFFILIN, certain Parchments which the Jews carry about them in time of Prayer. Leo de Modena makes two ſorts of them, viz. The Teffela for the Hand, and the Teffela for the Head. Upon theſe two Pieces of Parchment, theſe four following Paſſages of the Pentateuch are written in ſquare Letters with Ink made on purpoſe, viz. Hear, O Iſrael, &c. The Second runs thus: And it ſhall come to paſs, if thou obeyeſt, &c. The Third, Sanctifie to me all the Firſt Born. The Fourth, And when the Lord ſhall cauſe thee to enter, &c. Theſe two Pieces of Parchment are roll'd up in the Figure of a Roll, a little ſharpen'd at the End, and put up in a Piece of a Black Calf-Skin, with ſeveral other ridiculous Circumſtances too tedious to mention; one they wear tied to their Left-Arm, and the other to their Forehead. St. Jerom makes mention of theſe Teffelins of the Jews in his Commentary upon St. Matthew. Father Simon aſſures, that the Caraites make no uſe of theſe Teffelins, and that on the contrary they laugh at the Rabbanites, calling them bridled Aſſes with their Teffilin. See Leo of Modena. Fath. Simon in his Supplement to that Author's Book.

TEFTIS, or Tiflis, Capital of Gurgiſtan, or Georgia, properly ſo called, is ſituated at the Foot of a Mountain, and on the Banks of the River Kur, with a great Fortreſs towards the South, upon the ſide of the Hill, inhabited and gariſon'd by none but natural Perſians, a ſafe Shelter for Criminals or other People in Debt. The Vice-Roy is to come through this Citadel when he goes to receive at the Gate the Preſents and Letters the Sophies ſend him, who have eſtabliſhed this Cuſtom, that when they pleaſe they may ſeize him without running the hazard of cauſing an Inſurrection. There are fourteen Churches in the Town, whereof ſix belong to the Georgians, and the reſt to the Armenians. The Cathedral of the Georgians, called Sion, is an ancient Structure conſiſting of four Naves, abundantly furniſhed with flat Paintings after the Greek manner, but has no Images in Relief. The chief Church of the Armenians is called, The Monaſtery of the Bacha, ſaid to be built by a Baſſha who fled hither. There is not one Moſque, though the Place belongs to the King of Perſia a Mahometan, and though that, with all the Province, is governed by a Vice-Roy of that Sect. The Perſians have ſeveral times endeavoured to Build ſome, but could never finiſh any, for the People always roſe, took Arms, demoliſh'd the Work, and beat and abuſed the Men that carried it on: The Princes of Georgia were glad at the Heart at theſe Seditions of the People, though they pretended the contrary, becauſe they never abjur'd their Religion, but to obtain the Place of Vice-Roy of the Eſtates they were diſpoſſeſſed of. And becauſe the Georgians are very mutinous, valiant, and not far off the Turks, the Perſians are not over-rigorous, but leave the Town of Teſlis, as well as the reſt of Georgia, the liberty of keeping all outward Signs of their Religion; for they have their Bells and their Croſſes at the top of their Steeples, which is in no other part of the Ottoman Empire. They ſell Pork and other Fleſh every Day, and their Wine in the Corners of the Streets: The Perſians have lately built a ſmall Moſque in the Fortreſs, which the Georgians could not prevent; but when the Mahometan Officer got upon the Tower to call the People to it, they threw ſo many Stones at him, that none durſt venture up ſince. There are ſome Capucin Miſſionaries eſtabliſhed here and in other Places in the Country, firſt admitted under the Title of Phyſicians, which Name they retain ſtill, and receive large Preſents as Fees, by which, and the Penſion ſent them from Rome, by the Congregation de propaganda fide, they make a ſhift to ſubſiſt. Teſlis is very well inhabited, and has a great number of Strangers in it from all Nations. The Court is very magnificent, always attended with many Lords and Gentlemen of very good Faſhion. The Turks were twice Maſters of it; the firſt time in the Reign of Iſmael II. King of Perſia, and the ſecond in the following Reign, Solyman becoming Maſter of it much about the time he took Tauris, in 1535. The King of Perſia retook it afterwards, and named it Darel Melec, that is, a Royal Town, becauſe it's the Capital of the Kingdom. Chardin's Voyage of Perſia.

TEGAZA, a Deſart upon the Frontiers of Zaara, and the Country of Negroes in Africa. The Inhabitants hereof never appear before other People, and they of Zanhaga traffick with them after a very ſtrange manner; they bring their Salt, and lay it upon the Banks of a certain River, then withdraw; the other come in their Abſence, and lay by each Heap of Salt the Price they are minded to give for it: When theſe are alſo gone, the Zanhagues return, and take the Gold the others have left; all which is done very honeſtly on both ſides. Some Years ago, two of theſe Savages were taken, who died without being heard to have ever ſpoken, which makes People believe they are Dumb. Joan. Leo.

TEGÆA, a Town of Peloponneſus in Arcadia, now call'd Muchli; 'tis frequently mention'd by the Old Poets, and likewiſe by Strabo, Pliny, &c. 'Twas formerly a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Corinth.

TEGRE, a Kingdom of Abiſſinia in Africa, which others call Pegremahon, and Francis Aluarez, Auſen. It's the beſt and greateſt part of Abiſſinia, containing 17 Provinces, whereof the moſt Northern and next to Egypt, is call'd Barnagas. The Town of Ama, where the Queen of Sheba kept her Court, is thought to be in this Kingdom, beſides which there is a very conſiderable Place called Kaxumo or Arca, which ſome ſay was that Queen's Reſidence. Here are ſtill 17 fine Pyramids and three Churches built upon the Mountain. Dapper's Deſcrip. of Africa.

TEIJEUT, a pleaſant and very populous Town or City in the Province of Sus and Kingdom of Morocco, built by the Africans, in a fruitful Soil, yielding Plenty of Corn, Sugar Canes, Dates, and Gold, Figs, Grapes and Peaches. This City contains 4000 Families, who trade only with Gold and Iron. They have excellent Leather. The Inhabitants are rude and fierce, and very warlike. They have Judges in Civil Caſes, but revenge Murthers by Conſpiracies againſt the Murtherer, or Baniſhment for ſeven Years. There live here many Jews, who pay no Tribute. This City is ſeated on the Sus, South of Meſſa. Leo. Africa. p.60. It lyes 35 Miles from Taradant to the Eaſt.

TEKELI (Stephen) a powerful Count of Upper Hungary, where he was worth 300000 Livres a Year. Some write that this Wealth was the Occaſion of his Misfortune, making the Emperor's Miniſters to ſeek means to involve him in Count Serini's Conſpiracy; for after this Count's Execution, and that Frangipani, Nadaſti, and Tattembach, were Beheaded in 1671, General Spork, at the Head of ſome of the Emperor's Troops, came to Beſiege Tekeli in his Fortreſs; who finding himſelf in no condition to reſiſt, endeavoured to amuſe them with good Language to gain time for his Son Emerick to make his Eſcape, which he did in a Boor's Attire, with two other Gentlemen in the ſame Apparel, who carried him ſafe to Poland. The Count did not out-live his Son's Eſcape any long time. After his Death his Goods were confiſcated, and his three Daughters carried to Vienna, where becoming Roman Catholicks, they were married to three great Lords of the Empire. In the mean time their Brother retired into Tranſilvania. Memoire du Temps.

TEKELI, (Emeric Count of) having made his Eſcape thus by his Father's Policy, went into Tranſilvania in 1671, with ſome other of the Chief of the Malecontents of Hungary. His Wit and Valour ſoon diſtinguiſh'd him at Prince Abaſti's Court, where he became, in a little time, firſt Miniſter of State, and afterwards Generaliſſimo of the Troops ſent to aſſiſt the Malecontents, with which he made himſelf Maſter of ſeveral Places in the Upper and Lower Hungary; whereupon the Archbiſhop of Strigonia endeavoured to bring him and the Emperor to an Agreement: Count Tekeli and the reſt of the Malecontents, declared, they would come to none before the Clergy, whom they ſuſpected were baniſhed the Kingdom, until a general Amneſtie were granted, and the free Exerciſe of Religion allow'd, their Goods and Churches reſtor'd, and Power given them to chuſe a Palatin of their own Nation; adding, that if theſe Conditions were not agreed to, he would deliver all the Towns in the Mountains that he was Maſter of to the Turks. The Emperor's Council not thinking fit to give a clear Anſwer to theſe Propoſals, the Acts of Hoſtility begun as before. In 1680, there was a Truce for two Months, during which there were new Propoſitions for an Accommodation; and Count Tekeli (as our Author relates) who had always a ſtrong fancy for Count Sereni's Daughter, now Prince Ragotski's Widow, offer'd to turn Roman Catholick, on condition he might be permitted to Marry her, but the Emperor's Miniſters diſſuaded his Imperial Majeſty from giving his Conſent, alledging, that this Match would make Count Tekeli ſtill more powerful, and 'twas to be fear'd might put the Princeſs Ragotski, into a Condition of revenging her Father's Death. The States of Hungary met at Tirnau to treat of an Accommodation; but Count Tekeli being diſſatisfy'd at the Emperor's refuſing to conſent to his Marriage with the Princeſs Ragotski, declar'd, he could conclude nothing without pre-acquainting the Grand Signior. This Anſwer made his Imperial Majeſty think it adviſable to ſend the Baron de Kaunits to the Port, to diſcourſe the Grand Viſier about Tekeli's Excuſe: But Tekeli having notice of Kaunits's being ſent away, drew out of his Quarters before the End of the Truce, and committed many Acts of Hoſtility: The Malecontents likewiſe recommenc'd the War; and Count Tekeli having received a Reinforcement of Turks and Tartars, divided his Army into three Bodies, Heading one himſelf, and giving the Command of the other two to Petrozzi and Palaſſi Imbre, with a Deſign to enter by three ſeveral Places into the Hereditary Country of the Houſe of Auſtria, whilſt the Baſſa of Buda ſhould invade Croatia. After this, he made a Truce and new Articles; but the Turk hearing of it, ſent a Baſſa to diſſuade him from an Accommodation, and promiſe him the Principality of Tranſilvania after Prince Abaſti's Death. This Baſſa had many Conferences with the Count and the other chief Heads of the Malecontents, who promiſed in the Name of all the reſt of the Kingdom, to pay his Maſter a Yearly Tribute of 80000 Crowns, on condition of a powerful Aſſiſtance. Some time after this, Tekeli went to Buda to conſult with the Baſſa about the Meaſures they were to take, and changed all his own Accoutrements for a rich Turkiſh Garb the Baſſa preſented him with from the Grand Signior, who alſo declared him King of Hungary. After this, Tekeli ſent his Secretary to Vienna for the Emperor's Leave to marry the Princeſs Ragotski, which he obtained, partly to reclaim him, and partly becauſe they had reſolved to go on whether he had conſented to it or no. This Buſineſs being over, and the Places that belonged to the Princeſs being Garriſon'd by her Husband's Troops, Tekeli in 1682 joined the Turks, and ſtruck Terror where ever he came, Coin'd Money with his own Effigies upon't, and theſe Words, Emericus Comes Tekeli, Princeps Hungariæ, on one ſide, and on the Reverſe theſe Words, Pro Deo, pro Patria, & pro Libertate. Then diſpatched his Deputies to Vienna, with Memoirs to the Emperor, that both he and the other Malecontents ſolemnly proteſted, that they did not think themſelves anſwerable for what Chriſtendom ſhould ſuffer from the Turks, becauſe they had no other Intention, but to preſerve the Liberty and Privileges of Hungary, which his Imperial Majeſty, at his Acceſſion to the Crown, promiſed inviolably to obſerve. He call'd a Diet at Caſſovia in 1683, where, amongſt the reſt, there was to be a Turkiſh Aga or Baſſa for the Grand Signior's Intereſt, from which Tekeli declared in this Aſſembly, he could not depart: But though he continued to block up the Places that were left the Emperor in Upper Hungary, and cut off their Relief, yet he pretended ſtill he could wiſh his Imperial Majeſty would allow him reaſonable Conditions; until finding the Turks near at hand, he publiſhed his Manifeſto, by which he acquainted the People, that the Grand Signior would protect all thoſe that ſtuck to the Malecontents, and allow them the free Exerciſe of their Religion, with all other their Privileges; but, that they were to expect no Quarters who did not ſubmit. This had ſuch great Effect, that ſeveral Towns open'd their Gates to his Party. Then Tekeli joined the Grand Vizir as he march'd to Beſiege Vienna, to receive his Orders for the Campagne. After the raiſing of this Siege, and the Victory gain'd over the Turks, the King of Poland endeavoured to reconcile the Malecontents to the Emperor. Their Pretenſions were reduced to five principal Heads; 1. The Preſervation of the Privileges of the Kingdom; 2. The Liberty of a free Exerciſe of Religion; 3. The Reſtitution of Confiſcated Eſtates. Laſtly, To declare Count Tekeli Prince, and give him the Counties proffered him before. To which the Duke of Lorrain returned this Anſwer, That the only means to be received into the Emperor's Favour, was, to part from the Turks, lay down his Arms, and ſubmit to his Clemency. Theſe Conditions were rejected: In the mean time the Count underſtanding that he was accuſed to the Grand Signior of Correſponding privately with the Imperialiſts, poſted incognito to Adrianople about the end of the Year 1683; and having found means to come into the Sultan's Preſence, he declared, he was come with his Head himſelf, which he choſe to loſe rather than be expoſed to his Enemies Calumnies, or his Protector's Diſgrace. This Boldneſs ſucceeded ſo very well, that the Sultan believed all that happened, was to be imputed to his Vizir's bad Conduct, and diſmiſt Count Tekeli with a farther Aſſurance of his Protection and Aſſiſtance; ſo that he has ever ſince remained Head of the Malecontents, and firm to the Intereſt of the Port. Hiſtoire des Troubles de Hongries. Tekeley's Life.

TELAMON, King of the Iſle of Salamine in the Salonick Gulf, was Son of Eacus, Brother to Peleus, and Ajax's Father. He was one of the Argonautes, and aſſiſted Hercules at the Siege of Troy, who for Recompence gave him Heſione, Laomedon's Daughter.

TELAMON, a Sea-Port Town in the States of Siena, Eaſt of Piombino, of great Antiquity, Plutarch mentioning it by this Name in the Life of Marius. It was accounted in ancient Times the chief City of Tuſcany, and is remarkable for a Battel fought near it between the Romans and the Galls in the Year of Rome 528, in which Attilius one of the Conſuls, was ſlain, Æmilius the other Conſul gaining the Victory, killing 40000 and taking 10000 Priſoners. This Town is now in the Hands of the Spaniards.

TELCHINES, Children of the Sun and Minerva, or Saturn and Aliope, inhabited the Iſle of Rhodes for ſome time, whence it took the Name of Telchine. It's ſaid they were Magicians, or rather Devils, that inchanted with their Sight only, and cauſed Rain or Snow as they pleaſed. Some add, that they uſed to take the Water of the River Styx and ſprinkle the Earth therewith, which produced all manner of Inconveniencies, as, Sickneſs, Plague, Famine, &c. for which reaſon the Greeks called them Alaſtores or Deſtroyers. Jupiter at laſt, to puniſh their Wickedneſs, changed them into Rocks. Ovid.

TELEBOES, Iſlanders, living in the Neighbourhood of Acarnania.

carnania. Their King Pterelaus's Sons Plunder'd Electryon King of Mycenæ's Country, and kill'd all his Sons in the Field: Alcmena was this Electryon's Daughter, and being, upon this Misfortune, oblig'd to retire to Thebes, promis'd to Marry any Perſon that would revenge the Death of her Brother. Amphitrion undertook the Buſineſs, and raiſing what Troops he could, made a Deſcent upon the Country of the Teleboes, in which Expedition he was ſucceſsful; as the Reader may ſee more at large in Heſiod's Scutum Herculis, and Plautus's Amphitrion. Bayle's *Diction. TELEGONUS, Son of Ulyſſes and Circé, who being come to Age, and deſirous to ſee his Father, went to Ithaca the place of his Abode. The Servants taking him for a Stranger, would not let him come into it: Whereupon he kill'd ſome of them; and his Father running to their Aſſiſtance, was alſo ſlain by him; which when he underſtood, he quitted Ithaca, and came into Italy; where he laid the Foundations of the Town of Tuſculum, now called Paſcari. Plut. in his Paral.

TELEMACHUS, a Monk that lived in the 5th Age, under the Empire of Honorius and Arcadius. He left his Convent to come to Rome, where one Day ſeeing the Fencers or Gladiators Plays, he boldly entred to part them, but was ſtoned to Death by thoſe that took Pleaſure in that cruel Paſtime. To puniſh this Murther, the Emperor Honorius aboliſhed theſe Plays. Euſeb. de Hiſt. Eccleſ.

TELEMACHUS, Son of Ulyſſes and Penelopé. His Father left him to keep his Mother company when he went to the Siege of Troy. Her Gallants abus'd the Child, who had his Father's Aſſiſtance at his Return to revenge the Injuries he had ſuffered. Homer. Odyſſ.

TELEPHANES, Slave to a Cart-Maker of the Town of Cumæ in Aſia Minor, was deſigned by the Oracle to be King of the Lydians. Whoſe Embaſſador finding him in the Shop, bought him of his Maſter, and immediately declared him King. At the ſame time there happened to be a Country-man who had beſpoke a Cart, and would have Telephanes finiſh it, that he might brag he had a Cart made by the King of the Lydians. Heraclides in Politicis.

TELEPHANES, (Sicyonian) an excellent Painter, and the firſt that became famous in that Profeſſion. The famous Statuary of this Name flouriſhed under Xerxes and Darius K. of Perſia.

TELEPHUS, Son of Hercules and the Nymph Augé, being by his Grandfather's expreſs Command expos'd in a Wood, was found ſucking a Hind: This was thought a good Omen of what he would afterwards come to, and influenc'd the K. of the Myſians to adopt him. He ſucceeded this King when the Grecians were going to Beſiege Troy, and endeavoured to ſtop their Paſſage, but was wounded by Achilles in the Engagement. He conſulted the Oracle for a Remedy for the Hurt; and being anſwered, that none could cure but he that wounded him, he reconcil'd himſelf to Achilles, who gave him the Ruſt of his Lance, wherewith he made a Plaiſter that quite eaſed him; or rather, he received ſome Preſcription of Achilles, who had been Inſtructed in Phyſick and Chirurgery by Chiron. Others ſay, that the Wound Telephus receiv'd from Achilles, cur'd him of an Ulcer in his Side. Ovid. lib. 13. Metam. Dictyſ. Cret.

TELEPTE, a Town of Africk in the Kingdom of Tunis, in the Province of Byzacene. Donatus, who was Primate of this Province, held a Council here in 418, againſt the Pelagians.

TELESCOPE, a Glaſs Fix'd in a Tube, wherewith one diſtinguiſhes an Object at ſeveral Leagues diſtance, as if but a hundred Paces off. This Inſtrument was invented in the 17th Century, by James Metius a famous Mathematician, Native of Alcmar in Holland, who preſented the States with one in 1608. By means of this Teleſcope, we obſerve ſome Spots in the Sun, and a great number of Mountains that ſeem to vomit Flames, and alſo Inequalities in the Moon, with the Likeneſs of Mountains and Valleys; as alſo that Mercury, Venus, and Mars, ſeem ſometimes round and full, and at other times there is but part of their Circle ſeen, and imitate the ſeveral Forms of the Moon according to their different Poſitions in reſpect of the Sun: Beſides this, there have been little Stars obſerved to move round Jupiter, and therefore call'd his Attendants: There are alſo five which move around Saturn, upon which Planet there is a Circle reſembling a Ring. We have obſerved alſo, that the Milky Way, or Via Lactea, is but a heap of Stars of leſs Light than the other, and that there are a great many more Stars than were known to the Ancients, who determined the number to 1022, for that number is found in the very Conſtellation of Orion, without ſpeaking of ſeveral other Stars that appear and diſappear from time to time; as, that which was ſeen from 1600 to 1626 upon the Swan's Breaſt, that which appear'd in 1670 near the Swan's Head, and that which was obſerved in 1612 and 1664, in the Conſtellation of Andromeda, &c. Deſcartes Diſcourſe de la Dioptrique. Meſlu Neouvelles de Couvats.

TELESILLA, of Argos, a Lady famous for her Wit and Courage, who perſuaded her Companions to beat the Lacedemonians home, which ſucceeded very happily. Her Skill in Poetry, and other great Talents, got her the Honour of a Statue that was built in one of the publick Places of Argos. Clem. Alexand. lib. 4. Strom. &c.

TELESPHORUS (Pope) a Grecian and an Hermit, was forced to quit his ſolitary Life to Govern the Church after Sixtus I. He was choſe the 8th of April 140, and died a Martyr the 5th of January 152. It was he, as is pretended, who order'd that the Hymn, Gloria in excelſis Deo, ſhould be ſung in Maſs, and the Midnight-Maſs at Chriſtmas. Baron. in Annal.

TELL (William) one of the chief of the Swiſſers Conſpiracy in 1307, having paſſed ſeveral times before the Cap that Griſler Governor of that Country for the Emperor Albert, had put on the top of a Pike in the publick Market-place at Altorf, that all they that came by ſhould put off theirs, and make a low Reverence; and refuſing to ſtoop to ſo mean a thing, was carried before the Governor, who condemned him to ſhoot an Apple from off his Son's Head with his Arrow at a good diſtance. Tell made Anſwer, that the Command was inhumane, and that he had rather die than hazard his Child's Life: but Griſler threatning to put them both to Death, Tell ventured, and had the good Fortune to beat it off without hurting the Child. All admired the Addreſs beſides the Governor, who obſerving that he had another Arrow under his Doublet, asked, What he carried it for? He preſently anſwered, It was always the Cuſtom never to carry a Bow without two Arrows. This was not ſatisfactory; ſo Griſler preſſed him to tell the Reaſon, with a Promiſe of his Life, if he told the Truth; whereupon Tell confeſſed, that it was to kill him if he had chanced to kill his Son with the firſt. The Governor deſigned to keep his Word in not putting him to Death, but ſent him tyed hand and foot aboard a Bark that expected him on the Lake of Uri, to carry him to the Caſtle of Cuſnach. As they were about the middle of the Lake, there aroſe a Storm that grew ſo very violent, that the Governor's Men told their Maſter they would all be certainly loſt if they did not untye the Priſoner, who was not only ſtrong, but as expert a Boat-man as could be. The Danger Griſler ſaw himſelf in, did not allow time for Deliberation, ſo he conſented. Tell no ſooner had the Rudder in his hand, but he turns the Bark towards the Country of Schwits; and finding himſelf pretty near a Rock, which to this Day is called Tell's Rock, he took his Bow and Arrow, leaped out of the Boat, which he puſhed back into the Water with all his force, and whilſt they ſtrove to guide it back again, he got to the Mountains, choſe a hollow Path which the Governor muſt of neceſſity paſs, and hiding himſelf behind a thick Buſh, ſhot him dead as he went by, then ran to Schwitz to acquaint Stouffacher and the reſt of the Conſpiracy what had paſſed; who thereupon took Arms, baniſhed all the other Governors, and razed their Fortreſſes. The Emperor Albert ſurprized at ſo unexpected a Change, endeavoured to reduce the Cantons again to his Obedience, marched his Army into the Country; but his own Brother's Son, to whom he was Guardian, and in Poſſeſſion of all that ſhould belong to him, laid an Ambuſcade at the Paſſage of the River of Rieſs, and kill'd him. His Children employed to revenge this Death, were forced to leave the Swiſſers in Peace; and Henry VII. Albert's Succeſſor in the Empire, confirmed their Privileges, and maintained them in their Liberties. Glar. Deſcr. Helv.

TELLIAS, a Poet of Elis in Peloponneſus. He learned the Phocians a very ſtrange Stratagem when they made War againſt the Theſſalians, adviſing them to chuſe 600 of their ſtouteſt Men, and make their Cloaths and Arms all white with Chalk or Plaiſter, then to ſend them towards the Enemies Camp at Night, with Orders to kill all that did not look like themſelves. This took ſo well, that the Theſſalians, frighted at ſo extraordinary a Sight, made no Reſiſtance at all, and left 3000 kill'd on the Place. Pauſanias in Phoc.

TELLIER (Michael) he roſe by degrees to be Secretary of State, and at laſt Chancellor and Keeper of the Broad-Seal of France. He was a Man of great Parts, and of ſingular Integrity, and died at Paris the 30th of October 1685, the 83d Year of his Age.

TELLUS, eſteemed by the Ancients the Goddeſs of the Earth, which Homer calls the Mother of the Gods, to ſhew, that all the Elements are engendred one of another, and that the Earth is the Foundation of all. He would alſo have it the Sun's or the Heaven's Wife, becauſe theſe render it fruitful. They painted it in the ſhape of a Woman with a great many Breaſts, to ſhew, that the Earth nouriſhes all ſorts of Beaſts. Many confound her with the Goddeſs Ceres.

TELLUS, a poor Athenian, but a Man of great Probity, who, upon the account of having given his Children good Education, and loſt his own Life in the Field for his Country, was, by Solon, eſteem'd a happier Man than Crœſus. Plutarch. Diogenes Laert. in Vit. Solon.

TEME, a River of Wales, which has its Source upon the Borders of Montgomery, Salop, and Radnorſhires, takes its Courſes Eaſtward: It divides Shropſhire from Radnorſhire, and part of Herefordſhire, and at laſt falls into the Severn in Worceſterſhire.

TEMESNE, a Province of the Kingdom of Fez in Africa, between the Atlantick Ocean, the Kingdom of Fez, the Province of Chaus, and a part of the Kingdom of Morocco. It is in Length from Weſt to Eaſt 80 Miles, in Breadth 60, and a plain Country, and has ever been eſteemed the beſt Province in that Kingdom. It contains 40 great Towns, and 300 Caſtles, inhabited by Barbarians. In 323 of the Hegyra, it became a ſeparate Principality. In the Year 450 it was deſolated by the Kings of Morocco and Fez, and lay waſte till 600, and then was peopled by Manſor with the Arabians. Theſe being expelled after his Death, it was re-peopled by them of Zenete and Haora, who in 100 Years were able to bring into the Field 60000 Horſemen, and had 200 Caſtles; ſo that they feared not the King of Fez. Leo Afric. p. 108. The principal Places in it are, Anfa, Manſora, Rebat.

TEMESWAR, a large and ſtrong Town of Hungary, upon the River of Temes, whence it has its Name, five Leagues from Lippa, towards the Borders of Tranſilvania, and about ten from Belgrade. The Turks took it from the Tranſylvanians in 1552, and Fortified it to that Degree, that they now eſteem it impregnable. It's indeed the ſtrongeſt Place they have. The County of Temeſwaer is bounded on the North by Chaunad and Tranſilvania, on the Weſt by the Tibiſcus, on the South by the Danube, and on the Eaſt by Moldavia.

TEMIAM, a Kingdom of Africa, in Nigritia, between the Kingdom of Gangara and Bito, the River Niger, and the Deſarts of Sets and Seu.

TEMPE, a pleaſant Valley on both ſides of the River Peneo in Theſſaly, between Mount Olympus to the North, and Oſſa to the South, Lariſſa to the Weſt, and the Bay of Theſſalonica to the Eaſt, all covered with ſhady Bay Trees, and the Ground cloathed with ſoft Graſs, pleaſing Flowers, and ſweet-ſmelling Shrubs; ſo that all the Poets celebrated this as the Earthly Paradiſe, and the moſt delicious place on the whole Terreſtrial Globe. It is five Miles long, but very narrow, according to what Pliny ſaith, lib. 4. cap. 8.

TEMPLE, a Name given in all Times to Buildings conſecrated to Divine Worſhip and Religion; tho' the Worſhip of God was conſiderably antecedent to any ſuch Structure. The People of God were a long time without any, the Pagans alſo had none, but perform'd their Ceremonies, ſome on the top of Hills and Mountains, others in great Plains, until they found at length, that the Application of Mind requiſite to treat with the Gods, required a more retir'd Place; and then many Nations began to celebrate their Myſteries in Woods, and afterwards wall'd in Places deſtin'd for Prayers and Sacrifices, but always left them uncover'd to have a clear ſight of the Skye from all Parts; theſe the Latins call'd Temples. In proceſs of time, they found that lying thus open to the Air diſturb'd their Prayers and Ceremonies; then they covered ſome, leaving others ſtill open, and appropriated the Name of Temple to the Places only deſtin'd to ſerve the Gods in; (the Egyptians were the firſt who had Temples, as we may learn from Herodotus, lib. 2. and from the Author of the Tract De Dea Syria, in Lucian,) Superſtition and the Number of their Gods increaſing, their Temples grew more numerous too, but under different Names: The general Name of all were Ædes, common to all the Buildings that were conſecrated to the Gods; Templum was proper to ſuch Places where they obſerv'd the Flight of Birds, which for this reaſon were uncover'd, that they might ſee a great part of the Sky; whence came the Word Contemplari. The Places where Oracles gave their Anſwers were the moſt religiouſly reſpected; the Latins gave them the Name of Faunum, from Fari to ſpeak, or from the God Faunus, who was the firſt that gave out Oracles in Italy. They call'd a Temple where they went to expiate for a Crime, Delubrum, from the Word Deluere, which ſignifies to Waſh, Cleanſe, or wipe out; and where People fulfilled the Vows they made the Gods in their preſſing Dangers: Others ſay, that Delubrum was a Temple, wherein was a Place full of Water, where Prieſts waſh'd before they began their Sacrifice. Sacellum was the Name of a little Place built in honour of ſome God, with an Altar in it. There was this Difference between the Sacrarium and Sacellum, that this latter was properly a Sacred place, and the firſt not ſo, but called Sacrarium, becauſe the Sacred or Holy Things were kept there, to be taken thence as there was Occaſion for them. Inſtead of Temples they often conſecrated thick Woods to certain Deities, and named them Lucus, from the Word Lux, by way of Antiphraſis, that is, an oppoſite Senſe, becauſe the Light could not penetrate 'em: In theſe Groves, they offered their Sacrifices, and perform'd the other Solemnities of their Religion: Theſe Woods became extreme thick, becauſe they did never cut them, through the Veneration and Reſpect they bore the Deity, and becauſe they thought that ſuch Darkneſs did beſt become the Myſteries of Religion. There happened very often, that a Temple or Tomb was built near theſe Woods, becauſe they were not always conſecrated to Gods, but alſo to Men that died in great Reputation for their Vertue. Theſe Temples were firſt built ſo, that when People pray'd, their Faces were turn'd towards the Weſt; but this Cuſtom was ſoon changed, and Temples were built towards the Eaſt, that they might pray to the Gods on that ſide whence the Sun ſends its Light. The Form of theſe Buildings were different, according to the Nature of the Deity. Jupiter's were long, and commonly uncover'd, or at leaſt very high, to ſhew, that his Immenſity could not be circumſcrib'd or encloſ'd by any Dimenſions. Thoſe of Ceres and Veſta, of Bacchus, of the Sun, and other Gods, who had any Relation to the Earth which is round, were round too. Thoſe of Pluto and other Subterranean and infernal Gods, were in Vaults under the Earth. The Places where Temples were built, were alſo very different, according to the different Deities. The Temples of Tutelar Gods of Towns, were built on Heights if there were any, the better to protect and defend them on all ſides. The Gods who preſided over Vertues, Peace, and Arts, had their Places in the beſt peopled Parts of the City, to be the nigher at hand, to inſpire Men with Noble Thoughts and Inclinations for the good of the Publick. As for thoſe who preſided over Pleaſures as Venus, over War as Mars and Bellona, over Fire as Vulcan, their Temples were built out of the Towns, to ſhew, that they were either hurtful to Men, or at leaſt to mark that they were not to accuſtom themſelves to their uſe. Neptune's Temples were generally upon the Sea-Coaſts, and thoſe of Eſculapius, and the other Deities who preſided over Medicine, in the moſt temperate Parts of the City and Country, and where there was beſt Air, that altogether might contribute to the Recovery of the Sick ſent thither; nor muſt it be forgotten, that each Temple had its particular God or Gods, and that no other God but ſuch as the Temples were conſecrated to, could be Worſhipped in them. And now having mention'd the Temples of the Heathen, it may not be amiſs to ſay ſomething of thoſe belonging to the true God. We read in Scripture, that Moſes had the Model of the Tabernacle given him by God; but this Tabernacle was Unfix'd and Portable, ſo that the Jews had no Temple, properly ſpeaking, till the time of Solomon, which was four hundred and fourſcore Years after their coming out of Egypt. We ſhall ſpeak of this Temple in the following Article. However, we may obſerve here, that thoſe that pray'd, turn'd their Faces towards the Weſt, as we may learn from the Eighth Chapter of Ezekiel and St. Jerome's Expoſition upon't. But the Jews having but this one Temple built at Jeruſalem; all of that Nation that were remote from this City, turn'd their Faces towards the Town when they Pray'd, ſome towards the Eaſt, and ſome toward the Weſt, according to their different Situation. This Temple was Prophan'd by King Achaz, who firſt rifled it, and then ſhut it up: His Son Hezekiah had it open'd, and as it were, new conſecrated. Afterwards Manaſſes prophan'd it ſo far, as to place Idols in it; but being ſtruck by the Hand of God, he repented of his Wickedneſs, remov'd the Abominations out of the Temple, and encourag'd the Practice of the Legal Solemnities. In proceſs of time, Nebuchadnezzer King of Babylon, beſieg'd Jeruſalem, and having taken it by Storm, ſack'd it, and burnt the Temple, which was afterwards rebuilt by Eſdras and Zorobabel, under the countenance of Cyrus King of Perſia. 'Twas afterwards Plunder'd and Prophan'd by Antiochus King of Syria, who was a great Perſecutor of the Jews. Some time after it was recovered by Judas Maccabæus, who Cleans'd and Dedicated it. Joſephus, in his Antiquities, gives an Account, how much it was Beautify'd and Enlarg'd by Herod the Great; and thus it ſtood till the Reign of Veſpaſian, who ſent his Son Titus to Beſiege Jeruſalem: During this Siege, the Jews were divided into three Factions, who Quarter'd their Forces, and cut one anothers Throats in the Temple: Titus continued to preſs the Siege, and reduc'd the Town to the laſt extremity of Famine; however, the Jews remain'd obſtinate and refus'd to Surrender; but the Town being taken by Storm, notwithſtanding Titus had given expreſs Orders againſt doing any damage to the Temple, a Roman Centinel, being over-born by an unaccountable Inclination, ſet this magnificent Structure on Fire; which being ſo very ſurprizing, both in its catching, and the Flames driving on with ſuch irreſiſtible Force, that all the Aſſiſtance of the Jews and Romans, encourag'd by the General, were not able to put a ſtop to it, till it was all laid in Aſhes. This, as Joſephus informs us, happen'd upon the 10th of Auguſt, which was the ſame day on which 'twas burnt before by Nebuchadnezzer: This Deſtruction of the ſecond Temple, was Eleven hundred thirty Years after the Building of the firſt by Solomom, and Six hundred thirty nine Years from its being Rebuilt by the Order of Cyrus. St. Jerom obſerves, That from this time the Jews have an Anniverſary-day of Mourning upon the 10th of Auguſt, in which they bewail the loſs of their Temple with a great deal of paſſionate and moving Lamentation, giving Money to the Roman Soldiers to get leave to enter Jeruſalem, and to weep over the place where the Temple ſtood; which Cuſtom this Father takes notice, was continued to his Time: The Emperor Julian having renounced Chriſtianity, and Apoſtatiz'd into a violent Averſion againſt the Chriſtians, had a mind to Rebuild the Temple of Jeruſalem, out of a wicked deſign of making our Saviour's Prediction diſagree with Matter of Fact, by which it was foretold, That the Jews ſhould never ſee it Rebuilt: The Emperor Julian's Letter, upon this Occaſion, is ſtill extant, being the 25th in the Collection; 'twas Penn'd in ſuch very kind and encouraging Expreſſions, that the Jews had reaſon to believe he was become their Proſelyte: But God diſappointed both the Emperor and the Jews in their vain Deſign; for after a very expenſive and pompous Preparation, and the Work was begun with all imaginable Application, the Workmen having dug to the Foundations of the Old Temple, and juſt ready to lay the firſt Stones of the New; the Attempt, I ſay, being thus far advanced, there burſt out of the Earth all on a ſudden, terrible Balls of Fire, which burnt ſeveral of the Men, and frighted away all the reſt, as we may learn from Ammianus Marcellinus, who was a Heathen, and by conſequence cannot be ſuſpected of any partiality in the Relation: St. Chryſoſtom, who was then very Young, makes mention of it; and St. Gregory Nazianzen adds, that the Workmen being frighted, and running into a Temple hard-by, a Fire broke out of a ſudden, and burnt moſt of thoſe poor Wretches, and that a ſhining Croſs appear'd in the Air at the ſame time, and was ſeen by the whole Town: Ruffinus who was living at the ſame time, and dwelt a great while at Jeruſalem, gives the ſame account of this Matter; adding withal, that there were ſuch terrible Earthquakes, that the greateſt part of the Jews who fled to the Piazza's for ſhelter, were cruſh'd in Pieces under the Ruins of 'em, and that others were burnt by an unaccountable Fire breaking out in their own Houſes, and that for the ſpace of a whole day, the great Square appear'd all on Fire, the Flames ruſhing out of the Houſe in which the Jews had laid up their Tools for the building of the Temple: This Narration is farther confirm'd by Theodoret, who reports that all their Tools were conſum'd by this unaccountable Fire, and that all the Materials for the Structure were either blown away or ſwallow'd up with Tempeſts and Earthquakes. Ruffinus and Socrates continue farther, that St. Cyril, who was then Biſhop of Jeruſalem, was an Eye-witneſs of the full Accompliſhment of thoſe Words of our Saviour, That there ſhould not be one Stone left upon another; for, by a ſurpriſing Earthquake, the old Foundations of the Temple were thrown above-ground, and the Stones all ſcatter'd from each other. Theſe Prodigies put a ſtop to the Emperor's Project, and ſo the Place where the Temple ſtood remain'd unbuilt till the Year 636; when the Saracens having taken Jeruſalem, their Prince Omar built a Temple or Moſch in the ſame Place for the Uſe of the Mahometans; which continu'd to be employ'd, for the ſame purpoſe, 463 Years; i. e. to the Year 1096; when the Chriſtians having re-taken Jeruſalem under Godfrey of Bologne, this Moſch was turn'd into a Chriſtian Church: but in the Year 1187, Jeruſalem falling once more into the hands of the Infidels, Saladine made a Moſch on't again. Before we leave this Subject, 'twill not be improper to ſay ſomething of the Temples or Churches of the Chriſtians. After that the Son of God had, by his Death and Paſſion, put an end to the Types and Figures of the Old Teſtament, and begun the New Covenant with his People; the Old legal Temple was then abandon'd by the Holy Spirit, the Veil of it was rent, and Chriſtianity beginning to grow up, its Profeſſors had Places for Religious Worſhip in every Town where the Faith was propagated: Theſe Places being ſet apart for Prayer, Adminiſtration of the Sacrament, and other parts of Divine Service, were call'd by ſeveral Names, of which that of Eccleſia is one of the moſt ancient; which Word, in the Greek, ſignifies an Aſſembly, and was made uſe of by the Primitive Chriſtians, to ſignifie not only the Company, but the Place where they met; as appears, to mention nothing more, both from St. Paul's and Ignatius's Epiſtles. In the Apoſtles Times, the Chriſtians us'd to have their own Houſes conſecrated into Churches: Thus the Houſe of the Roman Senator Pudens, a Diſciple of St. Peter, was turn'd into a Church; the ſame Precedent being follow'd by a Lady of Quality call'd Euprepia, as appears by the Acts of the Senator Pudens abovemention'd, cited by Cardinal Baronius. Theſe private Houſes which were turn'd into Churches, were ſoon after this religious Appropriation ornamented ſuitably to the Dignity of the Employment they were put to: and for this point we may vouch the Heathens themſelves; for Lucian, who liv'd in the time of Trajan, deſcribes a magnificent Building with gilded Roofs, &c. which, ſays he, ſerv'd only for the Chriſtians to meet in. Lampridius likewiſe, and Vopiſcus, make mention of Chriſtian Churches. The other Names by which the Churches were call'd, were, Tituli, Domus Oratoriæ, Memoriæ, Martyria, Concilia Martyrum, Concilia Sanctorum & Baſilicæ. To underſtand the Reaſon why they were call'd Tituli or Titles, we may obſerve, that when any Houſe was forfeited, and became part of the Emperor's Demeſns, it was the Cuſtom of thoſe who found the Office, and took poſſeſſion for the Emperor, to faſten a piece of Canvas upon the Houſe with the Emperor's Picture upon it, or elſe to write his Name in great Letters; which Cloth or Canvas was call'd Titulus, and the Circumſtances and Formality of the Seizure was call'd Tituli Impoſitio. Now as this new Name and Diſtinction was given to ſhew the Houſe did not belong to its former Owners, but to the Emperor; ſo the Chriſtians imitated this method of transferring Titles when they deſign'd a Houſe ſhould paſs from a private Owner to the Service of God: And therefore, as our Author goes on, when any Chriſtian conſecrated his Houſe, he hung a Canvas on the outſide, upon which, inſtead of the Emperor's Pourtraict, there was a Repreſentation of the Croſs, which they call'd Titulus, or a Title, in Imitation of the Cuſtom abovementioned. The Name of Memoriæ, or Memorials, was given to Churches when the Cuſtom began to build them in Honour of the Memory of the Martyrs; for which Reaſon they were likewiſe call'd Martyria, or Concilia Martyrum. The Name of Concilia Sanctorum, or Places of Aſſembly for Saints, was given 'em becauſe all the Chriſtians who met there were call'd Saints. As for the Name of Baſilicæ, it was made uſe of, in the Opinion of ſome, becauſe Palaces Royal were ſo call'd from the Word Βασιλεὺς, which ſignifies a King; the Chriſtians believing that this magnificent Diſtinction could not be apply'd with ſo much propriety to any Houſes, as to thoſe which were conſecrated to the King of Kings. Others affirm, That not only Kings Palaces, but likewiſe their Courts of Juſtice, and Town-Halls, were call'd Baſilicæ, ſome of which were given to the Chriſtians to make Churches of; upon which account, the former Name was not only continued, but likewiſe given to all other Houſes conſecrated to Religion: However, in proceſs of Time none but the moſt conſiderable Churches, either for the Bigneſs or Curioſity of the Structure, were call'd Baſilicæ. It would be difficult to tell the preciſe time when Chriſtians began to build Churches, becauſe at firſt, as we obſerv'd before, People conſecrated ſome of their own Houſes, and appropriated them to religious Uſes: however, 'tis certain that the building of Churches began not long after Chriſtianity; becauſe Euſebius aſſures us, that the Emperor Diocleſian order'd all the Churches within the Empire to be pull'd down. I ſay, long before this perſecuting Order was publiſh'd, the Chriſtians had of themſelves pull'd down thoſe Churches which firſt were erected, and built others in their places, much larger, and better ornamented; and theſe latter were the Churches which the Emperor Diocleſian order'd to be demoliſh'd. 'Twas the Cuſtom, at the firſt building of Churches, to place 'em Eaſtward, i. e. with ſuch a Situation, that when the Chriſtians ſaid their Prayers, their Faces might look towards the Eaſt; it being their Cuſtom then always to do ſo; which made the Heathens believe they worſhipped the Riſing Sun, as Tertullian obſerves in his Apologetick. In ſhort, they built the Churches, as near as they could, upon the Model of the Temple of Jeruſalem: Before the Door there was a Portico, where the Penitents and others ſtay'd who were not admitted to come into the Church; at the Entry of which was a large ſpace, call'd the Nave, which was for the Laity: beyond that was the Choir for the Clergy; and at the End of the Choir the Sancta Sanctorum, or a little place rail'd in, with an Altar, where the Sacrament was adminiſtred. We may underſtand the Figure of the firſt Churches, by thoſe that Conſtantine order'd to be rebuilt upon the old Foundations; the firſt Model being follow'd in theſe latter Structures, as appears by the Teſtimony of the Fathers of that Age. In the Churches there were ſome particular Apartments, call'd Chambers by Paulinus Biſhop of Nola, and which now go under the Name of Chapels to pray in: There was likewiſe a Sacriſty, or Veſtry, where the Sacerdotal Habits and conſecrated Plate were kept; and alſo another Convenience to keep the Books in. Farther, as in the Temple of Jeruſalem there was a great Lavatory, full of Water, before the Door, where the Prieſts waſh'd their Hands and Feet before they came into the Temple; ſo before the Chriſtian Churches there ſtood great Veſſels of Water, in which the People waſh'd their Hands and Faces before they came in; it being a Maxim of natural Reaſon, that People cannot be too pure when they approach the Deity: therefore both Jews and Heathens have always us'd the Cuſtom of Waſhing before they began Divine Service. In proceſs of time, the Chriſtians made uſe of Holy Water inſtead of Common, which they ſet at the Church-door. We are farther to obſerve, that in the Chriſtian Churches there were not only diſtinct Places for the Clergy and Laity, (as there was at the Temple of Jeruſalem) but likewiſe for the Men and Women, and for the marry'd Women and Maids: Theſe Separations were made with Boards, as we underſtand from St. Ambroſe; the Right ſide being aſſign'd for the Women, and the Left for the Men: And laſtly, There was a particular Place in the Porch for Beggars; for, notwithſtanding the Rich and Poor were receiv'd without Preference or Diſtinction at the Communion-Table, yet the Beggars were forbidden to come into the Church to ask an Alms, for fear of diſturbing the Devotions of the Congregation, but were order'd to receive the Charity of others at the Church-door. There having been, as we have obſerv'd already, a great many Churches built in the firſt Ages of Chriſtianity, till the Year 302, in which the Emperor Diocleſian publiſh'd an Edict to lay 'em all in Rubbiſh; this Order being executed with great Diligence and Rigour, and Diocleſian dying ſoon after, the Chriſtians immediately began to build new ones: but Licinius being made believe, as Gregory Nyſſene reports, by the Miniſters of the Devil, that he ſhould never ſucceed in the Field againſt the Emperor Conſtantine, unleſs he did his utmoſt to deſtroy the very Name of Chriſtianity. Upon this Perſuaſion, he order'd all the Churches of the Eaſt to be pull'd down in the Year 316. But when Conſtantine the Great had built St. Peter's at Rome, and carry'd 12 Baskets of Earth upon his Shoulders, in Honour of the 12 Apoſtles; this Example and Encouragement put others upon the ſame pious Work, inſomuch that there were a great many noble and magnificent Structures erected for the Worſhip of God in all parts of the Empire. And here we may juſtly take notice of the Modeſty of this great Emperor; who, notwithſtanding the vaſt Expence he had been at in Erecting and Ornamenting Churches, would never ſuffer any Inſcription to be made to Record his Piety and Munificence; and when they told him that Trajan, his Predeceſſor, who was ſo much in the Peoples Eſteem, never built any noble Pile, without putting his Name upon't: to this Conſtantine reply'd, That Trajan's Name cut in Stone, and the Plant Wall-wort, *ſignify'd much the ſame thing. TEMPLE of Solomon, as it was formerly, upon Mount Moriah, where David had ſeen the Angel, the Executioner of Divine Juſtice, with a naked Sword in his hand; and where the Prophet Gad admoniſhed him to raiſe an Altar for Sacrifices. This holy Place comprehended 4 Parts, all within the ſame Wall, viz. the Parvis or Court of the Gentiles, that of the Jews, the Sanctuarium or Court of the Prieſts, and the Sanctum Sanctorum. The Parvis, or Court of the Gentiles, was 500 Paces in Circuit, and had a high Gallery about it, ſupported by ſeveral Marble Pillars, and four Gates towards the four Parts of the World; and was common to both Gentiles and Jews, who ſold Sheep, Lambs, Pigeons, and other Offerings there: but ſuch Traffick being indecent in God's Houſe, our Saviour baniſh'd them thence twice. Out of this, the People entred into that of the Jews, which was really magnificent, being environ'd with Galleries as the former, the Floor was of Marble of various Colours, the Walls gilt with very fine Gold, and the Doors with Plates of Silver. The Sanctuarium in which the Prieſts worſhip'd and officiated, was 40 Cubits long and 20 wide, the Pavement Porphyry, and the Walls covered with Plates of Gold; in the middle was a ſquare Braſs Altar, each ſide being 20 Cubits wide, and 10 high, upon which they burned the Beaſts that were offer'd in Sacrifice, the Fire being continually kept in by the Prieſts. On both ſides were 10 great Braſs Veſſels in form of Cherubins, Lions, Oxen, &c. to hold the Water to waſh the Victims. On the right ſide was another great Braſs Veſſel call'd a Sea, by reaſon of the prodigious Quantity of Water it contained: This was ſupported by 12 Oxen of Braſs, and ſerved the Prieſts and Levites to waſh their Hands and Feet in before they began their Sacrifices: Hence they went to the Porch, which was 20 Cubits long, and 10 wide, where ſtood two great Pillars of Copper adorned with 200 Pomegranates of the ſame Metal. Out of this Porch they entred into the Temple, which had no Roof, where there was an Altar all covered with Gold, on which they offered Frankincenſe and precious Perfumes. On both ſides were 10 great Golden Candleſticks, having each ſeven Branches, and as many Lamps, that burned continually, with 10 Tables of Gold, on which they put the Shew-bread for the Prieſts Maintenance. After this was the Sanctum Sanctorum, 20 Cubits ſquare, whereof 10 were cover'd with Gold, and the other 10 with Gold and precious Stones. In this Place was kept the Ark of the Covenant, cover'd with two Cherubins of pure Gold, 10 Cubits high; and here none enter'd but the Sovereign Pontif or High Prieſt. Joſephus ſumming up the Riches of this Temple, ſays, there were 10000 Candleſticks of Gold, 10000 Tables cover'd with the ſame Metal, and one that was very big, and all Gold; 20000 Cups of Gold, 160000 of Silver, 80000 Diſhes of Gold, 160000 of Silver, 50000 Golden Baſons, 100000 Silver ones, 20000 great Golden Veſſels, 40000 Silver, 20000 Golden Cenſers, and 50000 leſſer ones, 1000 Habits, ſet with precious Stones, for the Prieſts, 200000 Silver Trumpets, and 40000 Gold and Silver Inſtruments of Muſick. It's ſaid, the Service of this Temple was perform'd by 38000 Levites, and 24000 Prieſts. Some Authors aſſure, that Solomon employ'd 3000 Millions of Gold for the Building of this vaſt Body; which is not ſo ſtrange as it appears to be, becauſe his Father David left him immenſe Treaſures, and Jewels of an ineſtimable price. Any might enter into the Parvis, or Court of the Gentiles; but there were Pillars at the Entrance of the ſecond, where it was written in Hebrew, Greek, and Roman Letters, That it was lawful for none but the Iſraelites to go into it. The Womens Parvis was for that Sex alone. The Parvis of Iſrael was for ſuch as were cleanſed from all legal Impurities: And the Prieſts Parvis was ſo proper to them, that the Laity never enter'd it but when they offer'd Sacrifices. There were ſeven ſorts of Miniſters that belonged to this Temple: 1. The High-Prieſt; 2. The Sagan, or his Vicar; 3. Two Catholikin, or Subſtitutes of this Sagan; 4. The ſeven Immarkalins, who took care of the Keys of the Doors and Treaſury; 5. The three Gizbarin, or Treaſurers; 6. The chief of the Prieſts that officiated during their Weeks; 7. The Heads of the Families of this Order or Claſſis; and, 8. Thoſe who were only bare Prieſts. The firſt five Orders formed a kind of Council, which had the Care of what belonged to the Temple: Beſides theſe were 15 Deputies, in the nature of a Committee, part of which was changed every Week, with the Claſs or Order of Prieſts: The Body of the Prieſts were divided into 24 Claſſes, each dividing the ſacred Functions proportionably to the Number of Families of which it was compos'd. The Levites did the Office of Porters, Overſeers, Singers, and Muſicians: The Conſorts of Vocal Muſick conſiſted only of theſe; but in thoſe of Inſtrumental Muſick, Perſons of all Tribes were admitted, provided they were allied to any Sacerdotal Family. There were alſo 24 Claſſes or Orders of Iſraelites, who were obliged to come to the Temple each their Week, leſt there ſhould be none at Divine Service beſides thoſe that officiated. Theſe ſtood in the Court of the Jews, and repreſented all the People. Doubdan Voyage de la terre ſante. Lightfoot's Deſcription of the Temple of Jeruſalem.

TEMPLE of Solomon, as it's now. It was Oſmar, an Arabian Prince, ſecond Succeſſor to Mahomet, that built it, about the Year 640, to ſerve as principal Moſque for the Mahometans. This Temple ſtands in the middle of a great Place about 500 Paces long from North to South, and 400 wide from Eaſt to Weſt. This is call'd the Parvis, and is environ'd with cover'd Galleries, as the Royal Palace of Paris, paved in ſome parts, and the reſt lies Green, with ſome Trees in it. About the middle of this Parvis is another ſquare Place, eight foot high, with ſeveral Stairs up to it, with each their Porch. In the middle of this Place, thought to have been the Sanctum Sanctorum of the Jews, is the Temple built in an Octogone form, the whole of Marble cut into little Squares, and damask'd with Flowers and other Figures of ſeveral Colours, which ſhew very pretty when the Sun ſhines on them. The Body of this Building is cover'd with a Terraſs, or flat Roof of Lead; in the middle riſes a great Dome all covered with Lead, having alſo a Creſcent of the ſame Metal on the top, that weighs above 300 weight. This Dome has a Window to each Face or Side, and upon the Platform round the Temple are four or five ſmall Oratories, ſupported by ſeveral Marble Pillars. The Parvis, or Court, has four Doors into it, two to the North, whereof the firſt is near Piſcina Probatica, or the Pool by the Sheep-Market, the other towards Pilate's Houſe, a third towards the Weſt, look'd upon to be the beſt, and the fourth towards the Eaſt, called the Golden Gate. Theſe have high Vaults, fifteen Paces long, and ſix wide, under which hang Lamps, which the Turks light on certain Days. The Chriſtians are ſo ſtrictly prohibited to come into this Temple, or into the Parvis or Court, that they certainly are put to Death if they are found in either, unleſs they embrace Mahometaniſm, the Infidels holding this Place too holy for them to come near it. About 460 Years after the building of this Temple, that is, in 1099, Godfrey of Bouillon, firſt King of Jeruſalem, having purified the Place, and taken away all the Marks of Mahomet's Superſtition, founded a Choire of Canons to celebrate Divine Service, as he did alſo in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre; and 10 Years after the Patriarch Arnauld made them Regulars of St. Auguſtin's Order: but Saladin making himſelf Maſter of the Town in 1187, through the Miſunderſtanding and Diſputes of the Chriſtians, cauſed all the Pavement and Walls to be waſh'd with Roſe-water, to purifie it, according to his Notion; and then turned it into a Moſque. Hiſtorians ſay, he waſh'd it ſo well, that it took up 500 Camel Loads of Roſe-water. At the End of the Parvis, or Court, towards the South, is another fine Temple, call'd that of the Preſentation, becauſe ſome believe it's the Place where the Bleſſed Virgin, when but three Years old, was preſented by her Father and Mother to be brought up in Piety, until the Prieſts of the Temple married her to Joſeph, at fourteen. Doubdan Voyage de la terre ſaints. See Jeruſalem.

TEMPLERS, a Military Order that began about 1118, at Jeruſalem. Hugo de Paganis, Geofrey of St. Aumer, with ſeven others whoſe Names are not known, devoted themſelves to God's Service like Canon Regulars, and made their Vows of Religion to the Patriarch of Jeruſalem. Baldwin II. gave them a Houſe near the Temple of Solomon, whence they had the Name of Templers or Knights of the Temple: but living then on nothing but Alms, the King, Prelates, and Great Men, gave them Eſtates, ſome for a ſet term of Years, and others for ever, the End of the Inſtitution being to defend the Pilgrims from the Cruelty of the Infidels, and keep the Paſſes free for ſuch as undertook the Voyage of the Holy Land. Theſe nine received no more into their Society until 1128, after the Celebration of the Council of Troyes in Champagne, where there were Rules made for the Order, and amongſt the reſt, that they ſhould go in White. And afterwards, in 1146, Eugenius III. added a Croſs to be ſet upon their Cloaks, This Order flouriſh'd then for a time, and grew ſo very rich, that Matthew Paris ſays they had 9000 Houſes or Convents, beſides other great Wealth. This render'd them ſo proud and inſulting, that they refuſed to ſubmit to the Patriarch of Jeruſalem, plunder'd the Chriſtians as well as Infidels, attack'd crown'd Heads, and ſeiz'd upon their Eſtates; nay, they held Correſpondence with the Infidels, and by their Advices gave the Souldan of Egypt an opportunity of ſurprizing the Emperor Frederick II. who had then made an Expedition into the Holy Land. Being convicted of theſe and other horrid Crimes by Commiſſioners named by Pope Clement V. and Philip the Fair, James of Molai, a Gentleman of Burgundy, Great Maſter of the Order, was burn'd at Paris, and ſeveral others executed in other Provinces in 1313, the Order being aboliſhed the Year before at the General Council of Vienne, and a great part of their Poſſeſſions given to St. John of Jeruſalem's Order, then of Rhodes, but now of *Malta. TEMPLERS, Hereticks who liv'd in Jeruſalem An. 1030, after the Death of Philip Auguſtus. They were ſo called becauſe they frequented the Temple very much. They had an Image made by exquiſite Art, cover'd with a Man's Skin, and having two ſhining Carbuncles inſtead of Eyes. They ſacrificed to this Idol the Bodies of the Dead reduced to Aſhes, and gave them to be drunk by others, to render them more ſtrong and conſtant. Thoſe who were born to a Templer wedded to a Maid, they roaſted after Death, and Anointed the Image with the Droppings, to evidence their greater Zeal. Lloyd ſays, they were Condemned in the Council of Vienne, in the Papacy of Pope Clement; but Hoffman ſays it was the Knights Templers who were then Condemned, and conceive them to be a different Relation of the ſame thing. Spanheim is poſitive that thoſe and abundance of other Impieties with which that Order was charged, were the Effects of the Malice and Covetouſneſs of Philip the Fair of France and Pope Clement, the former having a Deſign to ſeize their Poſſeſſions in France, and have one of his Sons made King of Jeruſalem; and the latter having a mind to enrich himſelf with their Spoils, and willing to pleaſe the French King with concurring to deſtroy that Order rather than conſent to have Pope Boniface VIII's Bones dug up as an Heretick, which he thought muſt unavoidably diminiſh the Papal Authority. And other Princes being incenſed againſt the Templers upon the ſame account, they were in a cruel manner exterminated through all Europe, and all ſorts of Barbarities and Tortures inflicted upon them to make them confeſs what they were charged with; but for the moſt part without effect: And though their Grand Maſter James Mola, a Burgundian, had by the Violence of Torment been prevailed upon to acknowledge the Truth of what the Order was charged with; yet when he came to the Fire he aſſerted their Innocence, and with his laſt Breath cited Clement V. to anſwer it in 40 Days at the Tribunal of God, who, as it happen'd, died within that time. Neither did Philip the Fair, nor their other Proſecutors, eſcape Divine Puniſhment. Improba nunquam ſpes Lætata diu eſt. Papire Maſſon. Mezeray Contin. Nangii.

TENARUS, a Promontory of Peloponneſus near Sparta, now call'd Cape Matapan or Maina. Here is ſtill to be ſeen a Temple dedicated to Neptune, which was an inviolable ſhelter for all that fled to it. Tenare is ſtill famous for its Quarries of Marble, ſpoken of by the Ancients.

TENBURY, a pretty good Market Town in Worceſterſhire, ſituate on the River Tu, 100 Miles from London.

TENBY, a much decayed Sea Port in the South-Weſt of Pembrokeſhire, with a commodious Haven for Ships; 172 Miles from London.

TENDUE, a City and Kingdom of the Aſian Tartary, bounded on the North by Great Tartary, on the Eaſt by Jupia, on the Weſt by the Kingdom of Tangut, and on the South by China. The Prince of this Country, about 1644, Conquer'd the Kingdom of China, and is now one of the greateſt Princes in the World, his Dominions extending from Cochin China to the River Obb North-Weſt and South-Eaſt.

TENEDOS, a ſmall Iſland of the Archipelago, near Natolia, two Leagues from the ancient Troy, near the famous Promontorium Sigeum, now called Cap de Jannizari. When Troy ſtood, this Iſland was particularly dedicated to Apollo. The Grecians, who feigned to loſe the Hopes of Taking Troy, and hid themſelves in one of the Harbours of this Iſland the better to cover their Deſign, have render'd it very famous. Its Inhabitants exerciſed Juſtice with ſo much Severity and Rigour, that, according to the Laws of Tennus its Legiſlator, when the Judge ſat to pronounce Sentence, an Officer ſtood behind him with an Axe in his hand, immediately to ſtrike either the Criminal or the falſe Witneſs. The Venetians and Genoiſes had a long Diſpute about this Iſland, which is now in the Turks Poſſeſſion. It's conſiderable for its good Muſcadin, which is ſold for a Crown a Tun: They alſo have abundance of Game. Its Port is ſhelter only for light Veſſels, yet is ſo very advantageous, that if it belonged to the Chriſtians they might make an Arſenal in it to command the Streights of Gallipolis, and to ſecure the Archipelago. This Iſland is 28 Engliſh Miles in Circuit, and has two ſtrong Caſtles, which were both Taken by the Venetians in 1655. Grelot. Voyage de Conſtantinople.

TENERIFFE, the biggeſt of the Canaries or Fortunate Iſlands, was formerly called Nivaria. Its Circuit is pretty conſiderable: The Boroughs are Laguna, St. Croie, Garrico, St. Criſtoval, and Rialejo. Beſides its high Coaſts, it has the higheſt Mountain of the whole World, called the Pic of Adam, or Teneriffe, being 15 Leagues to the top, diſcovered by Sea-men with their proſpective Glaſſes at 60, and ſometimes in fair Weather at 90, Leagues diſtance. It was formerly thought to vomit Flames at the top, as Mount Ætna does in Sicily; but this does not appear now; for its Summet is for the moſt part cover'd with Snow, and the Air is ſo cold there, that none can go up it but in July and Auguſt. The other Iſlands round this Place look from the Top as if they all ſtood at its foot; and ſometimes there is one more ſeen than is mark'd in Maps, becauſe it's ſo difficult to find it out, being low and always cover'd with Clouds; ſo it's called the Inchanted or Inacceſſible Iſland. The Hollanders place the firſt Meridian in this Pic de Adam and Cap. Verd. Hackluit adds, that it's half a Mile broad at top, and hollow like a Cauldron, there being nothing but Aſhes and Pumice-ſtones within two Miles of the Summet; and beneath this Place it's covered all the Year with Snow; and ſomewhat lower grow huge Trees which will not rot in Water; and for 10 or 12 Miles below them there are pleaſant Woods of Bay-Trees abounding with melodious Birds. This Iſland yields more Corn than any of the reſt. It was anciently govern'd by ſeven petty Kings, who liv'd in Caves, and were clad in Goats-skins. This and two other Iſlands pay 50000 Ducats per Ann. to the King of Spain, and 12000 to their Biſhop. Hackluit. Lincſchot des Iſles Canaries.

TENERIFFE, a ſmall Town of America Meridionalis, in the firm Land, near the Place where the River of St. Madelaine joins that of St. Martha.

TENES or Tennes, the Son of Cygnus, gave Name to the Iſland Tenedos, where he had the good fortune to come aſhore when his Father had ſet him adrift in a Trunk. Cygnus was put upon this piece of Cruelty by the Suggeſtions of his Wife, who being Tenes's Mother-in-law, had wrongfully charg'd him with an Attempt upon her Vertue. Tenes was afterwards a Prince in this Iſland, where he made Adultery Capital; and his own Son being convicted of this Crime, the Queſtion was put to him, How he wou'd have him diſpos'd of? To which he anſwer'd, That the Law ſhould be executed. Tenes likewiſe made another remarkable Order, i. e. That a Man ſhould always ſtand behind the Judge with an Axe in his hand, to be ready to chop off the Head of any Perſon that was guilty of falſe Witneſs. At laſt Tenes was kill'd by Achilles, for endeavouring to reſcue his Siſter's Honour from the Brutality of that Greek: and after his Death he was honour'd as a God, by his Subjects of Tenedos. Pauſanias l. 10. p. 330. Steph. Byzant. voce Tenedos. Conon apud Photium, p. 437. Suidas, Bayle Diction. Hiſtor.

TENEZ, a Town and Kingdom of Africa in Barbary, towards the Weſt of that of Alger, and upon the Coaſts of the Mediterranean.

TENNIS, a vaſt Lake in the Lower Egypt, at the Mouth of the moſt Eaſterly Branch of the Nile, abounding with Iſlands, upon one of which ſtands the City Tennis. Baldwin, King of Jeruſalem, when he invaded Egypt in 1221, being overflowed by the Waters let out upon him, was forced to return to this Iſland. Nub. pag. 102. The Waters of this Lake, in the Summer, when the Nile overflows, are ſweet, but ſalt at other times, becauſe it lies open to the Mediterranean.

TENO, a ſmall Iſland of the Archipelago, which hath been in the Venetians Poſſeſſion near upon 300 Years. It abounds with Marble Rocks, lies high, and is extremely populous. Its principal Town is in the middle of the Iſland, with a Caſtle ſituate on a high Rock, 90 Engliſh Miles South-Weſt from Tenedos.

TENTERDEN, a Market Town in Kent, in Scray Lath, a Member of Rye, noted for one of the fineſt Steeples in England: from London 50 Miles.

TEOS, one of the 12 Towns of Ionia, ſituate in a Peninſula over-againſt Clazomenæ, had Athamas for its Founder. This Athamas was Grandſon to another Athamas, Son of Æolus, who carried a Colony of Orchomenians to Teos, who were afterwards join'd with other Athenian and Bæotian Colonies: The Inhabitants of Teos not being able to defend themſelves againſt the Troops of Cyrus, commanded by Harpagus, put to Sea in the 59th Olympiad, and ſettled at Abdera in Thrace. The Poet Anacreon, and the Hiſtorian Hecatæus, were born in this Town. Pauſanias l. 7. p. 208. Strabo l. 14. circa init. Pomponius Mela l. 1. c. 17.

TERAMO, in Latin Interamnia, a Town formerly of the Samnites, now in the Kingdom of Naples and Farthermoſt Abruzzo, with a Biſhoprick, and the Title of Principality.

TERAPHIM, a Name which Moſes gives the Idols of Laban ſtoln by Rachel, Gen. 31. 19. Some have thought that theſe Teraphims were Braſs Inſtruments, that ſerve to ſhew the Time of Day and Number of Hours by the Sun, or by the Fall of Water into a Baſin by equal Proportions, which riſing gradually, ſhewed by its Height and Elevation what the other did by the Shadow. Others pretended they were Figures made by Aſtrology, and that the Stars influenc'd them with a certain Vertue that made them ſpeak. Dr. Spencer, in his Diſſertation De Urim & Thummim, treats this Subject at large, and confutes the Opinion of Father Kercher, who believ'd that the Teraphim was an Egyptian Word, and that the Uſe of 'em was firſt practis'd in that Country. But Dr. Spencer endeavours to ſhew, that theſe Images or Idols came from the Amorites and Chaldeans, or Syrians, and that Teraphim is a Chaldee Word, which ſignifies the ſame thing with Seraphim in Hebrew, the change of S into T being common in thoſe Languages: He adds farther, that the Egyptian Idol Serapis, is the ſame with the Teraphim or Seraphim of the Hebrews: To fortifie this Opinion, he cites ſeveral Teſtimonies of Rabbies, and Arabian Writers, extracted out of Kircher's Oedipus Ægyptiacus. R. Levi Ben-Gerſon will have the Teraphims to have had Humane Shapes, and that they were made at certain Hours for the Uſes they were deſigned for. Selden, in his Book De diis Syris, writes a whole Chapter of theſe Teraphims; and ſeveral others have writ on the ſame Subject. Pere Simon.

TERBERIS, or Trebelius, the firſt Chriſtian King of the neighbouring People to the Black Sea, about 866 left the Kingdom to his Son, who alſo became a Chriſtian, and turn'd Fryar himſelf, until hearing that the Son re-eſtabliſhed the Worſhip of Falſe Gods, he quitted the Convent, put out his Eyes, gave the Kingdom to his Brother, and then retired again to his Cloiſter. Sabell. l. 3.

TERCERA, an Iſland of the Atlantick Ocean, between Africa and America Septentrionalis, and chief of the Azores or Terceras, being 16 Leagues round, and ſo environed with Rocks, that it's almoſt inacceſſible. The Town of Angra is Capital hereof and all the other Iſlands, with a Port in form of a Creſcent, between two high Mountains that ſtretch into the Sea. It belongs to the King of Portugal. The Soil is very good, but the Corn will not keep, which makes them put it up in Pits and Holes dug in the ground, until Chriſtmas. Their Cows are very big, yet ſo tame, that they come when call'd like any Dog.

Here happen alſo frequent Earthquakes that overturn Churches and Houſes; and three Leagues from Angra is a Fountain that petrifies Wood, as appears evidently by a Tree that grows part in the Water, for the Root of one ſide is all Stone, whilſt the other is ſtill Wood. Mandeſloe's Voyage of the Indies. It was plundered by the Engliſh in 1597, who took five Spaniſh Ships out of the Port of Fayal.

TEREUS, Son of Mars and King of Thrace, having married Progné, Daughter of Pandion King of Athens, came thither at her requeſt for her Siſter Philomela, whom ſhe deſired to ſee; but falling in love by the way, he forced this Siſter to cut her Tongue out, that ſhe might not diſcover the Inceſt, and kept her Priſoner in a remote Place, perſuading Progne that ſhe died on the Road. Philomela finding means to acquaint her Siſter with what had paſs'd, the Queen choſe the Time of the Orgies, and with her Companions went to deliver her out of her Impriſonment; and to revenge her Husband's Crime, cut his Son Itys in pieces, and made him eat of it: This enraged King would have purſued Progne and Philomela, but they were all changed into Birds, he into a Lap-Wing, Progne into a Swallow, Philomela into a Nightingale, and Itys into a Pheaſant. Ovid. lib. 6. Metamorph.

TERENTIA, Cicero's Wife, frequently mentioned in his Epiſtles. After Tully had parted with her, Saluſt married her, to diſcover, as is ſaid, his Enemies Secrets. She lived 117 Years according to Pliny. lib. 7. c. 48.

TERENTIUS, a Comick Poet of Carthage in Africa, was Slave to Terentius Lucanus at Rome; but his Wit and good Mien ſoon got him his liberty. He happily hit upon the fine Strain of Comedy, and left ſome Pieces of that kind that few have been able to imitate; ſo that he was not only rang'd amongſt the beſt and moſt eſteemed Authors, but was alſo thought ſo incomparable for the Purity of his Stile, the perſpicuity and beauty of his Compoſitions, that Cicero, a Man of great Judgment in this, praiſes him in ſeveral Places, and conſiders him as the Rule and Standard of the Language; adding, that his Comedies ſeemed ſo charming and eloquent, that they were thought to be written by Scipio and Lelius, two great Men, and the greateſt Maſters of Stile then amongſt the Romans, as Terence himſelf owns in his Prologue of Adelphes. We have ſix Comedies of this Author. There are ſeveral French Tranſlations of Terence, but the beſt is that done by Madamoiſelle l' Fevre, Daughter of Tanaquil l' Fevre, a famous Critick, and Wife of Monſieur Dacier, another eminent Perſon in that ſort of Learning. He died Ann. Rom. 495. but whether in Arcadia, or caſt away at Sea, is uncertain. Lil. Girald. Voſſius.

TERENTIUS, General of the Roman Army under the Emperor Valens. Returning Victorious out of Armenia, this Prince offered him whatever Recompence he ſhould name; whereupon he preſented a Petition for a Church for thoſe who expos'd their Lives in the Defence of their Faith. Valens, who was an Arian, being mad at this Requeſt, tore the Paper, and bid him ask any thing elſe. Terentius having gather'd up all the Pieces, ſpoke thus; I have received a Preſent from you, I ſhall keep it, and ſhall ask no other, and appeal to God for the reaſonableneſs of my Choice. Euſeb. Hiſtor. Eccleſiaſt.

TERICH, Dilkarnaim, a famous Epocha of the Eaſtern Greeks, generally called the Æra of the Seleucides. It began A. M. 3742, 312 Years before our Saviour, when Seleucus, one of Alexander the Great's Generals, took the City of Babylon, Media, Suſiana, and ſeveral other Eaſtern Provinces, from his Rival Antigonus; and by theſe and other great Victories, laid the Foundation of the Kingdom of Macedonia in Syria. The Authors of the two Books of the Maccabees have made uſe of this Epoque, but with this difference, that in the firſt Book theſe Years of Seleucides begin in the Month of Niſan, which anſwers to our March; and in the ſecond in the Month of Tiſri, which is the ſame with our September. Some Authors call it the Alexandrian Period, and place it preciſely on the 6th of September, 12 Years after Alexander's Death, that is, A. M. 3742. It is not to be confounded with the Philippen Æra, or of Philip Arideus, Brother and Succeſſor of Alexander the Great, which began the Year of Alexander's Death, i. e. A. M. 3730, and 324 before Chriſt. P. Petau de Doct. Temp. Labbe in Chronolog.

TERKI, Lat. Terchium, the principal City of Circaſſia in Aſia, ſituate upon the River Temenski, in a vaſt Plain. It was ſome Years ago put into the Hands of the Duke of Muſcovy, who has fortified it with Rampiers and Baſtions of Earth, and keeps always a Gariſon of 200 Ruſs in it, becauſe it's his Frontier on that ſide, againſt the Perſians. It has been three times Fortified, the firſt by a Ruſs, the ſecond in 1636 by Corn. Claaſs a Dutchman, the third in 1670 by Bayly a Scotch-man, who added huge Baſtions, and a wide and deep Mote quite round the Town. It is ſeated in a Champain Country without Wood or Hill in view, and is a Place of great Truſt, being the Key or Frontier of the Ruſſian Dominions, and has always a good Gariſon. Lat. 47. 27. It ſtands upon a Neck of Land between two great Bays to the South-Weſt of Aſtracan. Struys.

TERME, Terminus, a God who Bounded and Abutted Lands. Numa Pompilius built this God a Temple upon the Tarpeian Mount, and made its Worſhip one of the chiefeſt Points of his Religion; which was a ſignal proof of his great Wiſdom, becauſe covetous and ambitious Men needed to be kept within the limits of their own Poſſeſſions by ſomething ſo Sacred that they durſt not violate it. This God had alſo his Feaſts and Sacrifices: The Feaſts called Terminalia were celebrated about the end of February, becauſe that was the End of the Year: And as for the Sacrifices, they never offer'd him any living thing, to ſhew he was God of Concord and Peace, and therefore could not delight in Blood. The Roof of his Temples were always open over his Statues, and it was a great Crime, according to Feſtus's Obſervation, to cover the God Terminus in any manner, ſince the Bounds and Limits of Land ſhould be order'd ſo, that all People might ſee them. This Deity was generally repreſented by a Stone, a Tile, or Poſt, ſtuck in the Ground at the end of Gardens and Fields: According to Ovid in his Second Book of Faſti.

Termine, ſive Lapis ſive es defoſſus in agris

TERMINI, in Latin Termulæ, a Town and Dutchy in the Kingdom of Naples, belonging to the Capitanata, and having a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Benevento.

TERNATE, the chief of the Molucco Iſlands in the Indian Seas, has the ſmall Iſland Ileris to the North, Initerra to the South, a Channel of a League broad, ſeparates it from Tidoro: The Spaniards were firſt Maſters of it, but were beaten out by the Hollanders, who have two Ports there. Baudr.

TERNI, in Latin Interamna, a Town of Ombria, a Province of the States of the Church in Italy, near the River Nar or Nera, upon the Frontiers of the Territory of the Sabins, 12 Miles from Spoleto. It's a Biſhop's See independent of any Metropolitan. The famous Family of the Caſtelli's, with ſome Remains of its Antiquity and former Splendor, render it ſtill conſiderable. In the time of the Roman Empire it was a Colony of the Latins, and its Inhabitants had the Privileges of Roman Burgeſſes. Baudr.

TERNOUA, Lat. Ternobum, a City of Bulgaria, the ancient Seat of the Deſpote, now the Reſidence of the Turkiſh Sangiack. It ſtands upon a Hill, near the River Janthra or Iſcbar, and the Borders of Thrace. It was heretofore very ſtrong, but is now much neglected. It's 30 German Miles from Adrianople to the North-Weſt, and 25 from Sophia to the North-Eaſt.

TEROVANE, a Town of the Low-Countries in Artois, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Reims. Latin Authors call it Teruana or Civitas Morinorum, becauſe it was Capital of the ancient Morins. Theſe People were converted in the third Age by St. Fuſcian and Victoricus; but having relaps'd again into their Idolatry, Antimonde, ſent by St. Remigius, preach'd them the Goſpel a ſecond time. It was look'd upon as an impregnable Place; but Ponthos de Laillan L. of Bugnicourt, took it in 1553 for Charles V. who order'd it ſhould be Demoliſhed; ſo that now there are but a few Inhabitants, who are under the King of France. The Year it was Demoliſhed in, is marked by the Numerical Letters or Chronogram of theſe Words, DeLeti MorInI. It ſtands ſix Leagues from Bologne to the Eaſt, and two from St. Omer to the South. Ceſar, Gazei, Sancte Marthe le Mire.

TERPSICHORE, one of the Muſes, to which the Invention of Set-Dances, and the keeping of Time is attributed. She was repreſented Crown'd with a Garland holding a Harp in one Hand, with other Muſical Inſtruments at her Feet.

TERRA ARCTICA, or the Artique Land. This Name is given to the Country that is near the Artique Pole, where are Spitzberg, Groenland, New Denmark, Eſtotiland, and ſeveral other Places not yet diſcovered.

TERRA AUSTRALIS, or Southern Land, a large Country towards the Antarctique Pole, diſcover'd by Captain Gonneville of Honfleur in Normandy, who was driven thither by Storm in 1503, as he ſail'd to the Eaſt-Indies. This Captain, after he had ſtaid ſome time to obſerve the Quality of the Soil and Cuſtoms of the Inhabitants, returned into Normandy; and the better to confirm his Diſcovery, brought one of the King's Sons of that part which he Landed in along with him; but falling unfortunately into the Hands of an Engliſh Privateer in ſight of Guernſey, they made complaint to the Admiralty of England, and gave in an Account of their Voyage, and amongſt other Particulars, that this Country which he calls the Southern Indies, is very fruitful; that there are many Roots which give extraordinary Tinctures or Dyes, not known to the Europeans; and that there are great Numbers of all kind of Beaſts, Birds, and Fiſh, with ſeveral other remarkable things: That it's indifferently well inhabited, and the People are divided into ſmall Towns of 40 or 80 Cabins each: That they are docile, and of a good Complexion, love their Eaſe, and go half naked, eſpecially the young People, and wear fine Cloaks of Mat or Feathers, which ſome tye round them like Aprons, the Men down to the Knees, and the Women to the middle of the Leg. Their Arms are a Bow and Arrows, and each Canton has its King very much reſpected by the Subjects. Terre Auſtrale Meridionale. Printed at Paris in 1663. The Hollanders have lately diſcovered in the Southern Lands to the Eaſt of the Streights of Maire, a Place they now call the States Land. Geographers do not agree about the Situation of it; for ſome will have it an Iſland, and others a part of the Southern Continent: However, this is certain, that it was diſcover'd by James Maire, Native of Amſterdam in 1615, who called it by the Name of the States Land, and at the ſame time diſcovered that famous Channel to which he gave his own Name, and call'd the Land to the Weſt of this Channel, Maurice of Naſſau. The Hiſtory of this Voyage adds, that both in this Sea and the Northern, they met ſuch vaſt numbers of Whales and other Fiſh, that they were often forced to give them Broad-ſides to get clear of them. They alſo obſerved in all theſe Turns and Windings, that the States Land ſeem'd all covered with Green, and that of Maurice with Snow; and appeared low to the North, but very hilly to the South. They alſo ſtill diſcovered in this Voyage, a great many Places that look'd like Iſlands, whereof the chiefeſt ſeemed to be but about two Leagues aſunder. Theſe they named Barnevelt. Herrera. Deſcription des Indes, Voyage de le Maire.

TERRA DEL FUEGO, is an Iſland in the Form of a Triangle, having the Streights of Magellan to the North, the Mar del Zur to the Weſt, and the Mar del Nort or Atlantick Ocean to the Eaſt: The moſt Southern Cape is called Cape Hoorn, Lat. 57. 48. It is for the moſt part of it, ſurrounded with high Mountains covered with Snow. The firſt Diſcoverer of it was Magellan. Hawkins, Lemary, and the reſt, found it was nothing but a Knot of Iſlands, and cut through by many Channels, ſome paſſing into the two Oceans, and others into the Streights of Magellan. The greateſt part of it is mountainous, but ſo that it has fruitful pleaſant Valleys between theſe Hills, watered by Rivers and ſmall Torrents, and yielding good Harbors for Ships between the Iſlands. The Mountains are covered with fine and uſeful Timber. The Air is very much ſubject to violent Winds and Tempeſts from the Weſt and South. The Inhabitants are as White as the Europeans, but they paint themſelves Red: They are nimble, and of the ſame Stature with us; their Hair black, and they are very hardy. They are very Barbarous, eating raw Fleſh; deſtitute of all Religion and Civil Government; immodeſt to the higheſt Degree, treacherous and perfidious, flattering Strangers at firſt, and deſtroying them upon the leaſt Advantage. Laet. p. 517. cap. 14. See Magellan. and Lemary.

TERRA FIRMA, or the firm Land, a Country of America Meridionalis that belongs to the Spaniards. It comprehends a Province of this Name, the Iſthmus of the two America's, the Golden Caſtile, Guiana, &c. Its Towns are Nueſtra, Senora de Remedios, or Rio de la Hacha, Cali, New Carthagena, Cori, Sainte foi de Bogota, Sainte Marthe, New Cardoua, Panama, Popajan, and Puerto Belo, which two laſt are properly in the Province of the Firm Land. The Spaniards have another Place they call Terra del Fuego, or Land of Fire, and is an Iſland of America Meridionalis, between the Streights of Magellan and Le Maire. It has a Promontory called the Cape de Horn.

TERRA DI LAVORO, a Province of the Kingdom of Naples, upon the Coaſts of the Tuſcan Sea, between Abruzzo to the North, the County of Moliſe and farthermoſt Principato to the Eaſt, the hithermoſt Principato to the South, and the Tuſcan Sea, and Campania di Roma to the Weſt. This was call'd the happy Country for the Fertility of its Soil, the chief Town being then Capoua; but now Naples is Capital of this as well as all the Kingdom. Here are ſtill 22 Towns, 166 Caſtles, 170 Villages; beſides, Corn, Wine, and all other Neceſſaries for the ſupport of Life. This Country hath many Phyſical Springs and good Baths, with Minerals of Brimſtone and Allum. The Lake Avernus, Mount Miſene, and the flaming Mount di Somma, are all in this Country. 'Tis now part of the Kingdom of Naples. Mercator's Atlas.

TERRE-NEURE, a Dutchy of the Kingdom of Naples in the Farthermoſt Calabria.

TERRACINA, Tarracina, Anxur, an ancient City in the States of the Church in Italy, in the Province of Campania di Roma, in the Borders of the Kingdom of Naples, ſituate at the Mouth of the River called Il portatore, upon the Tyrrhenian Sea. It has a Caſtle, but is a Place of no Strength, by reaſon of a Mountain which commands it. It has a Harbour too, but of little uſe, the City being almoſt deſerted by reaſon of the Unhealthfulneſs of the Air. It's 60 Miles Eaſt of Rome, and as many Weſt of Naples.

TERRAIL (Peter) of Bayard, of a Gentleman's Family in Dauphine, one of the beſt Generals of his time, ſirnamed the Knight without Fear or Reproach; was much beloved by, and did conſiderable Services for Charles VIII. Lewis XII. and Francis I. which laſt having wone the Battel of Marignan againſt the Swiſſers, deſired to be Knighted by him, and to be embraced according to the Ceremonies of the Ancient Knights. Bayard, who was always very facetious, holding his naked Sword in his Hand, ſpoke to it thus: How happy art thou in conferring Knighthood on ſo Vertuous and Powerful a Monarch! Truly, my truſty Blade, thou ſhalt be henceforth honoured and kept as a Relick; for I will never make uſe of thee but againſt the Turks, Saracens, and Moors: And ſo putting it up, he gave two Leaps for Joy. After this he was at the Siege of Pampeluna, and defended Mezeres, a Place of no conſiderable Strength, againſt Charles V. who batter'd it for ſix Weeks with 100 Pieces of Cannon. But having followed Admiral Bonnivet into Italy, he was mortally Wounded in the Battel of Rebec; this happen'd in April 1424. When he perceived himſelf dangerouſly hurt, he call'd upon God, kiſs'd the Croſs upon his Sword, and behav'd himſelf very piouſly; and being not able to ſtand, he order'd himſelf to be ſet under a Tree with his Face towards the Enemy, ſaying, That ſince he never turn'd his Back whilſt he liv'd, he would not begin when he was dying. He deſir'd Monſieur Allegre to tell the King, that he was extremely ſatisfy'd with Dying in his Service, and was only ſorry that he could ſerve him no longer. The Conſtable Charles of Bourbon that purſued the Army, coming up, told Bayard, That he was ſorry to ſee a Man he always eſteem'd ſo much, in that Condition: He anſwer'd, I thank your Lordſhip; but there is no Cauſe to look upon me as an Object of Pity, who die like an honeſt Man in the Service of my King; You deſerve more to be pitied your ſelf, for appearing in the Field againſt your Prince, your Country, and your Oath of Allegiance. Bayard died ſoon after in the 48th Year of his Age, to the Grief of all who knew or heard of him. Du Bellay Memoir.

TERRISS, one of the Scots Weſtern Iſlands, eight Miles long, and three broad, abounding with all Things neceſſary for Life, having great ſtore of Cattel, Corn, Fowl, and Fiſh. It has a Lake of freſh Water, an old Caſtle, and a very good Harbour for long Boats. Buchan.

TERRE-ROUGE (John de) the King of France's Advocate or Council in the Stewartry of Niſmes. He wrote a Treatiſe De juribus & Præleminentiis Delphini Franciæ, and another De Poteſtate Papæ.

TERTULLIAN Quintus Septimius Florens, a Prieſt of Carthage, was in great Eſteem in the beginning of the third Age. He was an African, deſcended of a Noble Family of Carthage. His Father being a Pagan, brought him up in his ſuperſtitious Errors; but God ſhewing him the true Way, he received Baptiſm, and appeared a very zealous Defender of his Faith. He had furniſh'd his Underſtanding with all the Ornaments and Advantages of Humane Learning; was ignorant of nothing that the ſeveral Sects of Philoſophers held: He underſtood the Civil Law, Hiſtory, and all the Myſteries of Idolatry, with the Original and Progreſs of the Heathen Theology. His Style was lively and ſtrong, though ſomewhat forc'd and obſcure; and he was well verſ'd in the Scriptures. Theſe were the beginnings of this great Man, who beſides ſeveral other Treatiſes againſt Hereticks, a Liſt of all which he ſets down in his Preſcriptions, wrote an admirable Apology for the Chriſtians, when cruelly perſecuted under the Emperor Severus, and addreſs'd this Maſter-piece of Eloquence and Learning to the Heathen Prieſts and Magiſtrates, who daily tryed the Chriſtians and condemn'd their Religion without knowing what it was. He did not however ſet his Name to it. He wrote ſeveral other Things in defence of the true Faith, to diſprove the Cuſtoms of the Idolaters, and againſt the Marcioniſts and Valentinians, with ſo much Eloquence, Reaſon, and convincing Proofs, that as Vincentius Lirinenſis ſpeaks of him, every Word ſeems a Sentence, and every Sentence a Victory. Yet after all this, he deſerted the Church, for which ſeveral Reaſons are alledged; and amongſt others, that he was diſguſted that B. Victor was preferred to that See before himſelf; others attribute his going off to his being refus'd the Biſhoprick of Carthage, and the ill uſage he met with from the Prieſt at Rome; and becauſe Pope Zephirin uſed Adulterers with ſuch Mildneſs as to admit them to publick Penance, which did not agree at all with his auſtere Temper; and found the Doctrin of Proclus, Diſciple of Montanus, far more conformable to his Humour; for on one ſide he advanced nothing contrary to the Myſteries of the Trinity and Incarnation, and on the other he moved his Followers to frequent Faſtings, a rigorous Continence, and an ardent deſire of Martyrdom, which he held it was never lawful to ſhun. The outward Appearances of Piety pleaſed Tertullian, and made him revolt openly from what he had before ſo zealouſly and learnedly defended. Dr. Cave is of opinion, that the Roman Clergy being diſſatisfy'd with the rigidneſs of his Humour, charg'd him with Montaniſm; and upon his being backward to condemn the Sentiments of that Sect, put him under an Excommunication. Upon this Tertullian, being of a warm Temper, and thinking himſelf ill us'd, and being likewiſe taken with the ſpecious Diſcipline and Auſterities of the Montaniſts, went over to their Party; but then 'tis not probable, that Tertullian ever ſunk ſo low as the Dregs of Montaniſm, but that he believ'd nothing farther than that Montanus was a new Prophet and Paraclete, furniſh'd with an extraordinary Degree of Illumination, and ſent into the World by God, for the Reformation of Chriſtians, and to give greater Light and Perſpicuity to ſome Doctrines deliver'd more obſcurely by the Apoſtles. After Tertullian turn'd Montaniſt, he defended the unuſual Severities and Mortifications of that Party, in ſeveral Learned and Eloquent Tracts, in which he is ſo hardy as to call the Catholicks Pſychici, or Senſual. Cave Hiſt. Liter. part 1. It's not known what he did afterward, nor what became of him, only it's ſaid he died Old. His Followers were called Tertullianiſts, who were all extinguiſhed in St. Auſtin's time. One of his principal Errors was, the Traduction of the Soul ex ſemine Parentum. All the Great Men who came after him admired him, particularly St. Cyprian and St. Jerom. His Treatiſes have been publiſhed with Commentaries, by ſeveral Perſons. Monſieur Alix hath publiſhed his Life, wherein he treats more exactly than any before him of the Time when Tertullian publiſhed his ſeveral Books. There are ſome who confound this Tertullian with Tertullus Conſul, Tertullian the Lawyer or Tertullian the Martyr, but there is very much difference betwixt them; the firſt was Conſul in 195, and ſirnamed

Quintus Flavius,and Tertullian was marryed Aug. 4. 260. Tertullian is cited by ſeveral as a Favourer of their Heterodox Opinions concerning the Trinity; but he is ſuccinctly and clearly vindicated by Calvin in his Inſtitutions. Thoſe who have a mind to ſee a Catalogue of his Works may conſult Cave's Hiſt. Liter. The beſt Edition of them is reckoned that of Paris in 1663.

TERVEL, a Town of Spain in Arragon, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Saragoſſa. It is upon the River Guadalaviar,which ſome have called Turia or Turias. Latin Authors call the Town Julia, Turulinm, Turia, and Terulum.

TERVIS or TERGOVIS, the Capital of Valachia, where the Prince keeps his Court: The Italians call it Targoviſco, in Latin Tergoviſtus & Tiriſcum.

TESSAGON, a Native of Cyprus, taken by the Romans, and put naked into a great Veſſel full of Serpents, which inſtead of ſtinging did lick him, to the great Amazement of his Enemies; who judging thereby that there was ſomething extraordinary in him; they carried him to Rome, where he was in great Eſteem. He was of the Family of the Ophiogenes, thought to be deſcended of Serpents, becauſe they had that ſtrange Property that they were never hurt by any, and could cure any others that were, by a meer Touch with their Hand. Hiſt. Gen. du Rojau de Oypre.

TETBURY, an indifferent good Market Town in Gloceſterſhire, on the Confines of Wiltſhire, has a fair Market-Houſe. Its chief Magiſtrate is a Bailiff. It's 77 Miles from London.

TETHYS, Daughter of Heaven, and Veſta, Saturn's Siſter, Wife of Neptune, and Mother of all Rivers and Nymphs, according to Heſiod in his Theogonia; but Ovid. l. 5. Faſt. will have her to be Titan's Daughter, that was eldeſt Brother to Saturn. There is alſo a Sea Goddeſs called Thetis.

TESTAMENT. The Old and New: For ſo thoſe Books are call'd, which were written by the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt. The Hebrew Word, Berith, ſignifies a Covenant, and the Greek, Διαθήκη, a Teſtament; theſe Names being given to the Holy Scripture, becauſe they contain the Covenant between God and his People, are a Witneſs and Declaration of his Will, and of that Heavenly Inheritance which God has prepar'd for the Elect; The principal Deſign of a Laſt Will and Teſtament being to ſettle Inheritances and diſpoſe of Eſtates. And here Morery, in ſtating the Canon of the Old Teſtament, inſerts, Wiſdom, Eccleſiaſticus, Judith, and the two Books of Maccabees: But Monſieur Du Pin, another Roman Catholick of great Learning, Judgment and Impartiality, calls theſe Books no more than Deutero-Canonical, and owns, that they were not receiv'd into the Canon in the Primitive Times. The firſt Catalogue wherein theſe Books were admitted as Canonical, and as having the ſame Authority with the other, is that of the third Council of Carthage, held in the Year 397, which confirms the Decree of the Council of Hippo of the Year 393, wherein theſe Books were receiv'd into the Canon, but upon condition that the Church beyond Sea ſhould be conſulted for its confirmation, as 'tis imply'd in an ancient Note on that Canon, which runs thus, De confirmando iſto Canone, Tranſmarina Eccleſia Conſulatur. Theſe Books (which we reckon Apochryphal,) were never, as Du Pin obſerves in the Jewiſh Canon, and are not to be met with in the ancient Canons of the Sacred Books, drawn up by the Chriſtian Writers, except (in ſome later Collections) of the Churches of Rome and Africk; which Point he proves at large in his Hiſtory of the Canon. The Old Teſtament, as Morery goes on, was writ in Hebrew, and Tranſlated into Greek by ſome Jews; at the inſtance of Ptolomy Philadelphus; This Du Pin admits of, as an unqueſtionable Truth; but the circumſtances of the Hiſtory of this Tranſlation, as the diſtinct Cells, &c. reported by Ariſtæus and Joſephus, he looks upon as Fabulous, adding, that the Tradition of this Verſion being made by ſeventy two Perſons, may perhaps, as well as the reſt, be an Invention of the Jews. See Bible and Septuagint. As to the Old Teſtament, as Morery continues, Divines and Learned Men are divided in their Opinions, whether the Hebrew Text ought to be preferr'd to the Verſion of the Septuagint, where the Senſe differs: And here our Author cites Pezron's Antiquitè des Temps, to fortifie the Conjecture of thoſe that ſuppoſe the Hebrew Text has been alter'd by the Jews in ſome Places, relating to the Proofs of Chriſtianity; that the Fathers charg'd the Jews with unfairneſs upon this Account, and that this foul Dealing was actually put in Practice during ſome time of that fifty Year, which paſs'd betwixt the deſtruction of Jeruſalem and the Rebuilding of it in the Reign of Adrian; and that Akiba, a famous Rabbi, made theſe pretended Alterations: But the Learned Monſieur Du Pin has a large Chapter, to ſhew the unreaſonableneſs of this Opinion, in which he makes it appear, that the Author who made theſe Objections, has miſ-cited the Ancients, and that the Fathers did not charge the Jews with corrupting the Hebrew Text, but only with making unfaithful Tranſlations of it: And here in the courſe of the Argument, he cites St. Jerom, who declares himſelf with Origen, for the Hebrew Text, and poſitively denies that it was falſify'd by the Jews: 'If any one (ſays he in the Third Book of his Commentary on the 6th of Iſaiah,) 'pretends, that the Hebrew Copies were corrupted by 'the Jews, let him hear what Origen ſays, in the Eighth Volume of his Explications upon Iſaiah, and anſwer that Queſtion, Why our Lord and his Apoſtles, who reprov'd the Doctors of the Law and the Phariſees for their other Crimes, 'did not tell them of this, which if true, would have been the 'greateſt? If it be ſaid, that the Hebrew Copies were corrupted ſince the coming of our Lord, I cannot but ſmile that they 'would have me to believe, that Jeſus Chriſt his Evangeliſts and 'Apoſtles have quoted theſe Paſſages in the ſame manner as the 'Jews ſhould falſifie 'em afterwards. We cannot doubt then, ſays Monſieur Du Pin, but that St. Jerom was perſuaded, that the Hebrew Copies were not injur'd by the Jews; for had he been of that Opinion, Why ſhould he have undertaken a New Verſion from the Hebrew Text? Upon what grounds ſhould he have preferr'd that to the Verſion of the LXX? And with what confidence could he have always given it the Name of the Hebrew Verity? To St. Jerom, he adds the Teſtimony of St. Auguſtin, who in his 15th Book De Civitate Dei, cap. 13. delivers himſelf thus: God forbid, that any prudent Man ſhould imagine, that the Jews, how malicious ſoever they be, could falſifie ſo many Copies that were diſpers'd in ſo many Places: And therefore, in his Treatiſe De Doctrina Chriſtiana, he adviſes People to have recourſe to the Originals; and when he prefers the Verſion of the LXX to all the reſt, he always puts in a Salvo for the Honour of the Hebrew Text, (De Civitate Dei, lib 18. cap. 43.) inſomuch that when there's any difference between the Text and the Verſion, he ſays, we muſt rather believe the Original than the Tranſlations. Ibid. lib. 15. cap. 13. Monſieur Du Pin having attack'd this unreaſonable Opinion by good Authorities, proceeds to confute it by Reaſon and intrinſick Argument: And, Firſt, He argues from the great reſpect the Jews always had for the Sacred Books, as appears, to mention no more, from Philo, Joſephus, and Trypho in Juſtin Martyr; which laſt (according to the Maxims of thoſe of his Sect,) affirms, That they were ſo far from corrupting the Sacred Scriptures, that all of 'em believe 'twould have been a more enormous Crime than to worſhip the Golden Calf, conſecrate their Children to Idols, make 'em paſs through the Fire to ſacrifice 'em, or to kill the Prophets. This Learned Sorboniſt argues in the Second place, that if the Jews had corrupted the Holy Scripture out of hatred to the Chriſtians, to deprive 'em of thoſe Advantages by which they ſupported the Doctrines of the New Teſtament, they would certainly have falſified thoſe Paſſages which contain'd the cleareſt Predictions of our Saviour, and with which they were hardeſt preſſed by the Chriſtians; but theſe Paſſages have ſtill continued in their Purity, and are ſometimes more expreſs in the Hebrew Text than in the Vulgar Tranſlation, there being a great number of clear Prophecies concerning our Bleſſed Saviour which the Chriſtians alledge againſt the Jews, in which 'tis agreed, the Jews have made no Alteration. In the Third place, he proves, That ſuppoſing the Jews ſhould have been willing to have falſify'd the Sacred Books, 'twas morally impoſſible they could do it; For how could they conſpire to carry on that Deſign? How could they, when diſpers'd all over the World, agree ſo unanimouſly upon the ſame falſification? How could they falſifie all the Copies without leaving ſo much as one in its Original Integrity? Admitting they could have accompliſh'd their Deſign in reſpect of the Copies which were in their poſſeſſion, How could they have corrupted thoſe which were in the hands of Chriſtians? For the Jews that were firſt converted to Chriſtianity, did no doubt, keep Copies of the Sacred Books. The Nazarenes Law did, without all queſtion, keep Copies of the Bible: Now the Jews were never Maſters of thoſe Copies, and by conſequence could not corrupt them. Hegeſippus, who liv'd a little after the Apoſtles, and came off from Judaiſm to Chriſtianity, did certainly underſtand Hebrew, as we may learn from Euſebius: This Perſon had, without doubt, the Hebrew Copies of the Old Teſtament: Many other Chriſtians likewiſe of Paleſtine, originally Jews, underſtood and read the Bible in Hebrew; 'tis impoſſible then, that the Jews could have falſify'd their Copies and that no body ſhould have perceiv'd it. From the 12th Year of the Emperor Adrian, the Hebrew Text was conformable to that which we have at preſent, as appears by Aquila's Verſion. This pretended Falſification then, muſt have been made betwixt the taking of Jeruſalem and the beginning of the Second Century, i. e. within the compaſs of 30 or 40 Years: But, is it any way likely, that in that time when there were ſtill many converted Jews in Paleſtine, none of 'em ſhould have preſerv'd the Copies they had, uncorrupted? Shall we believe that the Jews could in ſo little time, ſuppreſs all the Copies of the Hebrew Text, and ſubſtitute new ones in their Place? The Hebrew Text which Origen inſerted ſome little time after in his Hexapla, was agreeable to that we now have. In fine, in Jerome's time, the Jews and Chriſtians had the ſame Hebrew Text that we have at preſent; and St. Jerome's Verſion is a certain Evidence, that no conſiderable Change has been made in it ſince that time, and by conſequence, that the Jews have not corrupted it; and beſides all this, if any farther Evidence were neceſſary, it might be added, That the extraordinary and ſcrupulous Diligence of the Maſſorites, muſt needs have contributed mightily towards the Preſervation of the Text. With theſe Reaſonings, beſides others, which the Reader may conſult at his leiſure, the Learned Du Pin proves to a Demonſtration, That the Hebrew Text is tranſmitted down to us in its Original Genuineſs and Purity. Du Pin's Complete Hiſtory of the Canon of the Old and New Teſtament. Vol. 1. To return to Morery, who obſerves, That the Old Hebrew Characters, made uſe of by Moſes, and thoſe Writers who liv'd before the Captivity of Babylon, are thoſe which were preſerv'd by the Samaritans: This was not only the general Opinion in St. Jerome's time, as he obſerves in his Preface to the Kings, but is farther confirm'd by old Medals, upon which there is the Inſcription of Holy Jeruſalem, in Hebrew Words, and Samaritan Characters; now this Inſcription, ſays Monſieur Du Pin, in his Nouvelle Bibliotheque, &c. could not have been made after the ſeparation of the Ten Tribes in the Reign of Rehoboam, and in the Year of the World 3060, becauſe, after that Separation, the Samaritans did not any longer look upon Jeruſalem as a Holy City: [But this Reaſoning of Monſieur Du Pin ſeems not cogent in the Opinion of others, becauſe the Characters were not chang'd in the time of Rehoboam but after their return from the Captivity; and therefore the Money might be ſtamp'd with the Old Characters at Jeruſalem, under the Poſterity of Rehoboam.] After this Diviſion of the Kingdom, the Iſraelites or Ten Tribes preſerv'd the Pentateuch, as handed down to 'em from Moſes, and gave it to the Cutheans, a People who came from Aſſyria and Perſia, who were afterwards call'd Samaritans: The Tribes of Judah and Benjamin likewiſe kept the ſame Characters, to the time of the Captivity; but being brought to Babylon, they learn'd by degrees, to write and ſpeak the Chaldean Language, inſomuch that when Eſdras made a Collection of the Canon of the Old Teſtament, he got the Copies tranſcrib'd in Chaldee Characters, as being better known to the Jews, and which they have generally made uſe of ever ſince. Indeed the Jews did not only make uſe of the Characters of the Chaldeans, but likewiſe of their Language, which was that of the Syrians or Aſſyrians, and was very near that of the Hebrew. 'Tis true, this Language was not very common at firſt to all the Jews, but by little and little, both the Languages were run together; and the Vulgar Tongue of the Jews was the Syriack Language mix'd with old Hebrew Words, and which afterwards, in the common way of ſpeaking, was call'd the Hebrew Tongue: Notwithſtanding this, the Holy Scriptures of the Old Teſtament continued to be always written in Hebrew, the Jews reading it in this Language in their Synagogues, and explaining it to the People in the Mother Tongue, which probably was the Original of the Chaldaick Paraphraſe. The Hebrew Text continued in this condition without Points, till about the Year of our Lord 500, when the Jews of Tiberias invented thoſe Vowel-Points, to govern the Reading and Pronunciation of the Hebrew Language; for St. Jerome informs us in his 22d Queſtion upon Jeremy, and in his Commentary upon Habakkuk, that in his time the Pronunciation of Hebrew was not aſcertain'd and regulated by Points, as it has ſince been. Morery proceeds to ſay ſomething about the Tranſlations of the New Teſtament, and affirms, that there was none made in the Vulgar Tongues till the 14th Century, and inſinuates pretty plainly, as if the Bibles lying open to the Underſtanding of the Laity, had done diſſervice to the Church: To this Opinion we ſhall only oppoſe the Authority of the Learned Du Pin above-mention'd, who proves at large, That the Sacred Hiſtorians, both of the Old and New Teſtament, writ in the Vulgar Tongue generally uſed and underſtood in the Countreys where they liv'd. That becauſe (tho' the Greek was commonly, yet not generally underſtood in the Weſt,) the Bible was very early Tranſlated into the Latin Tongue; ſo likewiſe thoſe people who underſtood neither Greek nor Latin, as the Syrians, Ethiopians, Egyptians, Armenians and Perſians, had their own Tranſlations of the Holy Scripture in their ſeveral Languages, after they were converted to the Chriſtian Faith: Afterwards the Arabick being become the Vulgar Language in the Levant, the People had both the Old and New Teſtament Tranſlated into that Language, and of late Years the Greeks themſelves have caus'd them to be Tranſlated into the Vulgar Greek. Monſieur Du Pin proceeds to ſhew, that even in the Weſt there were Tranſlations of the Bible into the Vulgar Tongues before the 14th Century. He likewiſe proves at large, both from the Authority of the Scriptures and Fathers, and from the reaſon of the thing, that the reading of the Holy Scriptures was intended for the Laity as well as the Prieſts, and that 'tis very uſeful for all ſorts of People. Du Pin's Complete Hiſtory of the Canon of the Old and New Teſtament, Vol. 1. Father Simon's Critical Hiſtory of the New Teſtament, lib. 2. cap. 32.

TETRAPLA, a Book of the four Verſions of the Bible, made by the Septuagint, Aquila, Theodotion, and Symmachus, diſpos'd in four Columes. The Name comes from the Greek τετραπλᾶς, which ſignifies Quadruplex, that is, Fourfold. See Hexapla. Du Pin nouvelle Bibliotheque des Auteurs Eccleſiaſtiques.

TETRAPOLIS, a Country of Syria, where were four remarkable Towns, viz. Antioch, Seleucia, Apamea, and Laodicea, once called Siſters for their Concord and good Underſtanding. Strabo, lib. 15.

TETRICUS (Caius Preſuvius) Præfect in Gaul, and Proconſul in Aquitain. He got himſelf proclaimed Emperor at Bourdeaux on the requeſt of Victorine or Victoria, called the Mother of Armies. The Inſolence of his Soldiers grew ſo ungovernable, that he came to Chalon upon the Marne, and deliver'd himſelf into the Emperor Aurelian's Hands, who carried him in Triumph to Rome, and ſome time after made him his Intendant in Italy, and Governor of ſome Provinces. This Tetricus had a Son of his Name, who was alſo led in Triumph to Rome, but afterwards Aurelian admitted him into the Senate, and without depriving him of his Anceſtor's Eſtate let him live at his Eaſe, belov'd and eſteem'd by all that knew him. Trebellius. Pollio.

TETUAN, a Town and ſmall Commonwealth of Africa, in the Kingdom of Fez, with a Port at the Mouth of the Mediteranean. Latin Authors call it Tetuanum. It's hither all the Caravans come, who go by Sea to Meccha, by Alexandria and Egypt.

TETZÉL (John) a Dominican, and Inquiſitor, was choſe by the Teutonick Knights to preach the Indulgences which they had obtained for the War againſt the Muſcovites, which he did with Succeſs. Some time after this, the Archbiſhop of Mentz being named by Pope Leo X. to publiſh the Indulgences of the Year 1517, gave the Commiſſion to this Tetzel, who aſſociated thoſe of his own Order with him in the Employment; and when Luther, at Stupitz's requeſt, had faſtned upon the Door of Wittemberg Church 95 Propoſitions, whereof many were againſt the Pope's Power, the Treaſure of the Church, and the Worth of Indulgences, Tetzel oppoſed 106 other Propoſitions to the former, which, as Inquiſitor, he burn'd publickly; and on the other hand Luther burn'd his. This was the Beginning of the Diſputes betwixt the Dominicans and Auguſtines, which occaſion'd Luther's Reformation; which, together with the Reprimand given by the Nuncio Charles Miltitz unto Tetzel, as the Occaſion of the Diſorders of Germany, afflicted him ſo much, that he died of Grief in 1519. Maimbourg Hiſtoire du Lutheraniſm.

TEUCER, Son of Telamon King of Salamine, an Iſland over againſt Attica, and Brother to Ajax, with whom he went to the Siege of Troy. When he returned from this Siege, his Father baniſh'd him becauſe he did not revenge Ajax's Death on Ulyſſes. This Misfortune did not at all ſhake Teucer's Conſtancy, who encouraged thoſe that followed him with a Promiſe of a more pleaſant Dwelling, ſaying, that we ought to eſteem that for our Country where we are well; and ſo went to the Iſle of Cyprus, where he built a new Salamine. Cicero. Horace.

TEUCER of Crete, King of Phrygia Minor, ſince called Troas, Reigned in Conjunction with his Son-in-Law Dardanus, who married his Daughter Batica. It was one of his Grand-children, called Tros, that gave Name to the City of Troy, Capital of this Kingdom; and from Teucer the Inhabitants were called Teucri.

TEUDEGILDE, was a poor Shepherd's Daughter, but ſo great a Beauty that Charibert King of France, fell in Love with, and married her. She out-lived this Prince, and made uſe of all her Charms and Treaſures to win Gontran King of Orleans; who having deprived her of her Wealth, cloiſtered her in a Monaſtery at Arles, where ſhe died. Gregor. Turon. lib. 4. &c.

TEVIOTDALE, Lat. Teviotia, a Country in the South of Scotland, taking Name from the River Teviot, which runs through it. This Country is fruitful in Corn and Paſturage, and the Inhabitants were always well eſteemed for their Valour during the Wars betwixt Scotland and England. Its principal Town is Jedburgh, where the County-Courts are held; though in Writings it is always called the Shire of Roxburgh, from an ancient Town and Caſtle now deſtroyed. The ancient and honorable Family of Douglas of Cavers are hereditary Sheriffs of this County. It's divided from England by Cheviot Hills, bounded on the Weſt by Liddiſdale, Eskdale, and Euſdale, on the North with the Sheriffdom of the Foreſt, and on the Eaſt with the Mers. The principal Families of this Country are the Scots and Kerrs; the Dutcheſs of Buccleugh and Monmouth being chief of the former, and the Earl of Roxburgh the moſt conſiderable of the latter in this County.

TEUPOLUS (Bajamond) Son to a Doge of Venice, formed a Deſign to oppreſs his Country, and uſurp the Sovereignty; but the Plot being diſcovered, the States ſent for ſome Troops to Venice to oppoſe him; and having worſted his Party at a Rencounter in the Place of St. Marc, they ſecured him, and puniſh'd his Accomplices. Egnar. lib. 3. cap. 5.

TEUTATES, a Name under which the ancient Gauls worſhipped Mercury, to whom they ſacrificed humane Victims; the Druids either burning, piercing them with Arrows, or ſtrangling them in the middle of their Temples. Strabo. Cæſ. Comment.

TEUTOMALUS, King of the Salians, Inhabitants of the ancient Gallia Viennenſis, being forced to leave his Country to the Romans, who eſtabliſhed themſelves in it under the Conſul C. Sextius, he withdrew to the Allobroges, and with the help of his Allies maintained a ſecond War againſt Cn. Domitius, about 632 of Rome. Tit. Liv.

TEUTOMATUS, King of the Nitiobriges, People of the ancient Aquitain, was Son of Ollovico that Reign'd before him: He adhered to Vercingentorix, and with his Forces contributed to repair his Loſs at Avaric. Cæſar ſays, that this Prince, who was under the Walls of Gergovia during the Siege, was ſurprized in his Tent aſleep; and thinking of nothing leſs than an Attack that Day, the Roman Soldiers beat up his Quarters ſo very ſuddenly, that he had not time to put on his Cloaths, and that it was as much as he could do to ſave himſelf, his Horſe being wounded under him. Cæſar. de Bello Gallico, lib. 7.

TEUTONS, This Name was given to the ancient Germans, bordering upon the Cimbrians: They inhabited the Iſlands of Funen and Zelande in Denmark, were very troubleſome to their Neighbours, and held out a long time againſt the Romans.

TEUTONS, The Name of the Knights of the Teutonick Order, anciently that of our Lady of Mount Sion, inſtituted in 1191, by Henry of Jeruſalem, the Patriarch, and other Chriſtian Princes, in favour of the German Nation. On this occaſion, when the Emperor Frederick undertook the Croiſade, with ſeveral other great Princes, to recover the Holy Land, whereof Saladin Sultan of Egypt made himſelf Maſter in 1187, a great number of German Lords and Gentlemen follow'd him in quality of Voluntiers, who ſignaliz'd themſelves upon all occaſions. And after the Emperor's Death, being without a Generaliſſimo before Acre, beſieg'd by the Chriſtians, they choſe Frederick Duke of Suabia, ſecond Son of the Emperor, and Henry Duke of Brabant, for Captain-Generals of their Nation: under whom they diſtinguiſhed themſelves with ſo much Bravery, at the Taking of Acre, and other Places of that Country, that Henry King of Jeruſalem propoſed to inſtitute an Order in their Favour, and with the Patriarch and other Princes, formed the Statutes according to the Model of the Knights of St. John of Jeruſalem, and the Templers, whence they extracted what they thought would beſt become an Order both Military and Hoſpitable. The Statutes, amongſt other things, ſet forth, that the Knights ſhould be well Born, that they ſhould vow the Defence of the Chriſtian Church and Holy Land, and give Entertainment to the Pilgrims of their Nation; and finally, that they ſhould call themſelves, Knights of our Lady of Mount Sion. The Emperor Henry VI. and Pope Celeſtin III. approved the Inſtitution, order'd that they ſhould be clad in White, and wear a black Croſs, in form of that of St. John of Jeruſalem, in their Habits, Standards, and Arms, with a Field Argent, and live according to St. Auguſtin's Rule. Hereupon the King of Jeruſalem, with Duke Frederick of Suabia, by the Emperor's Authority, created the firſt Knights to the number of 40, making Walpot their great Maſter. All Chriſtian Princes ſhew'd their Affection to this Order by their Liberalities and Endowments, which began to be very conſiderable under the fourth great Maſter Herman of Saltza, elected in 1210, in whoſe time theſe Knights reſcued John the Son of Henry King of Jeruſalem, in a Battel which the Chriſtians loſt againſt Conradin King of Syria; in Acknowledgment of which good Service, the ſame John honour'd them with the proper Arms of the Kingdom of Jeruſalem. After this the Duke of Maſovia in Poland gave theſe Knights a Grant of what Lands they could Conquer from the Pagans in Pruſſia, which the Pope and Emperor confirm'd. So that the Teutons having gain'd an entire Victory, beat the Infidels quite out of that Country, and by little and little made themſelves Maſters of Livonia and Curlande; and having built ſeveral Churches, Towns, and Caſtles, and planted ſeveral German Colonies, they entred Ruſſia, where they alſo eſtabliſh'd the Chriſtian Religion. But whilſt they were Victorious in thoſe Parts, and made conſiderable progreſs towards the Baltick Sea, the Town of Acre was taken by the Sultan of Egypt in 1291, and the Knights there were forced to return into Germany. The principal Houſe of the Order was eſtabliſh'd at Marpurg a Town of Heſſia in the Circle of the Upper Rhine, and afterwards tranſlated to Marienbourg in Pruſſia. In 1510 theſe Knights choſe Albert, Marquis of Brandebourg, Nephew to Sigiſmund King of Poland, for their great Maſter. But this Prince embracing Luther's Doctrine, treated with the King of Poland to make himſelf abſolute Maſter of Pruſſia, upon condition to do Homage for it to the Crown of Poland. After this Agreement the Duke quitted the Title of Great Maſter, and drove all the Knights out of Pruſſia. Since that time this Country is call'd Ducal Pruſſia. The Teutons retir'd to Mergenthein alias Mariandal in Franconia, and choſe Walter de Cromberg for the Adminiſtrator of Pruſſia, who was then Grand Maſter of the Teutonick Order in Germany and Italy. Now this Order conſiſts of 12 Provinces, viz. that of Alſace and Burgundy, that of Auſtria, of Coblentz, and Etſch, ſtill called Provinces of the Juriſdiction of Pruſſia, the Provinces of Franconia, Heſſe, Bieſſen, Weſtphalia, Lorrain, Thuringia, Saxony, and Utrecht, which are of the Juriſdiction of Germany. But now the Hollanders are Maſters of all that belonged to the Order in the Province of Utrecht. Each Province has its Commandaries, and the ancienteſt of the Commanders is call'd the Provincial, but all are under the great Maſter, as their Chief. The 12 Provincial Commanders aſſembled together, can chuſe a great Maſter or Coadjutor. The great Maſter keeps his ordinary Reſidence at Mariendal in Franconia, ſince the Order was forc'd out of Pruſſia, and is worth about 20000 Crowns a Year. The moſt part of the Commandaries are poſſeſſed by German Lords, and Princes younger Brothers. The Arms of the Order are, *Argent, a Croſs Patee Sable ſurmounted with a Croſs Potent, Or. Heiſſ. TEWKSBURY, Lat. Theocicuria, a Market and Borough Town of Tewksbury Hundred in the North-Weſt of Gloceſterſhire, ſituate at the Fall of the Avon into the Severn. Noted for its Manufacture of Woollen Cloth, and for the Battel fought here Anno 1471, between the Houſes of York and Lancaſter, by King Henry VI. and Edward IV. which determined the long Quarrel for the Crown, and ſettled it on the Houſe of York. Edward the Prince, only Son to King Henry VI. was ſlain in this Battel.

TEXEL, a ſmall Iſland at the Mouth of the Zuyder Zee, which has a ſtrong Caſtle and good Harbour on its South ſide, the uſual Place where the Dutch Fleet rendezvouz in times of War. General Monk, afterwards Duke of Albemarl, beat the Dutch near this Place, July 31. 1653, kill'd their famous Admiral Van Trump, burn'd and ſunk 26 of their Men of War, with the Loſs of two ſmall Engliſh Ships, and drove the reſt into the Texel.

TEXTOR (Raviſius John) a famous Grammarian of Nevers in France, flouriſh'd about the middle of the 16th Century. He wrote ſeveral things, as, Officina, Cornucopia, Specimen Epithetorum, &c. Geſner. Biblioth.

THABOR, or Tabor, a famous Mountain of Galilee in Paleſtina, near the great Plains of Eſdrelon, and the little River of Kiſhon, ſix Miles from Nazareth towards the Eaſt. It was on the top of this Mountain that Jeſus Chriſt transfigur'd himſelf in preſence of the Apoſtles, St. Peter, St. John, and St. James. One may ride up it about a thouſand Paces on Horſe-back, but thence the way is ſtraight and ſteep to the top, not winding, as in other Mountains. Joſephus ſays, 'tis 30 Furlongs high, that is, 3750 Paces: and ſome very credible Travellers affirm, that they were a whole Day getting up to the top. It is of a Cylindrical Figure, ſomewhat like a Sugar-loaf; and on the ſide of Nazareth, towards the South and Weſt, cover'd with Shrubs and Buſhes that are always green, and well ſtock'd with wild Beaſts, eſpecially Boars and wild Hogs, becauſe the Mahometans imitate the Jews in their Averſion to Swines-fleſh. On the top of this Mountain the Empreſs Helena built a very ſumptuous Church with three ſmall Chappels, to repreſent the three Tabernacles, one for Jeſus Chriſt, one for Moſes, and the third for Elias, which are now almoſt buried under the Ruins of the Church: They are little ſquare Vaults, and diſpoſed in form of a Croſs: That in the middle marks the Place where our Saviour was during his Transfiguration; and thoſe on both ſides where Moſes and Elias were by him: The middlemoſt has an Altar in it, where the Fryars of Nazareth celebrate Maſs always by Candle-light, becauſe the building is under ground. It's very freſh and cold upon the top of this Mountain, even during the greateſt Heats, by reaſon of the continual Wind thereon. Here are abundance of fine Ciſterns cut in the Rocks, full of excellent Water, and ſhaded with Fig-trees. From this Mountain may be ſeen thoſe of Hermon, Gilboa, Samaria, the Mountain of Precipice, that call'd the Mountain of Bleſſings, where our Saviour preach'd the excellent Sermon recorded in the 5th of Matthew; and alſo the Sea of Galilee, or Lake of Geneſareth. At the foot are the Towns of Naim and Endor, now quite ruin'd, and inhabited by Arabians; the great Plains of Eſdrelon, the Valley of Jezreel, and the Torrent or Brook of Kiſhon or Endor, which divides it ſelf into two Branches, whereof one paſſes at the foot of Mount Hermon near the Town of Endor, whence it runs into the Sea of Galilee. It was on the Banks of this Brook, which has its Spring near Thabor, that Siſera's Army was cut in pieces. The other, after ſeveral Windings in the Plains of Eſdrelon and Zebulon, diſcharges it ſelf into the Mediterranean, between Mount Carmel and S. John d'Acre. It was near this little River of Kiſhon that Elias put the 450 Falſe Prophets of Baal to death. Joſephus ſays, That Alexander Jannæus, King of the Jews, built a Fort on the top of this Mountain, which Veſpaſian took by Compoſition, A. C. 82. Godfrey of Bologne rebuilt the Churches on this Mountain, and erected two Monaſteries there in 1099, making it a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Jeruſalem. Saladin baniſh'd the Chriſtians thence in 1187, and they retook it in 1253. Pope Alexander IV. gave it to the Templers, but in 1290 the Sultan of Egypt laid it quite deſolate. Doubdan Voyage of the Holy Land.

THALASSIUS. was a Favourite of the Emperor Conſtantius, probably upon the account of his being an Arian. Ammianus Marcellinus reports him to have been Præfectus Prætorio; and St. Athanaſius ſtiles him Comes: but let his Dignity be what it will, he was one of the Emperor's Miniſters of State, and Repreſented him at the Council of Sirmeum. Athanaſ. Marcellin. l. 14. & 22. Zoſim. l. 1. &c. There was another of this Name, who was a Monk, and an Acquaintance of St. Maximus the Martyr: He liv'd about the Year 650, and wrote ſeveral Treatiſes, which are now in the Bibliotheca Patrum; as, De ſincera Charitate, ac vera Continentia. De regimine Mentis, &c. Coccius in Indic. Auth. Theſau. Cathol.

THALES, a Philoſopher, and the firſt of thoſe called the Seven Sages, or Wiſe Men of Greece, Son of Examius and Cleobulina. Some affirm that he was born in the 36th Olympiad, in Phœnicia, and deſcended from Cadmus and Agenor's Family. But this is certain, that he was the firſt in thoſe Parts who deſerved the Name of Sage, and that he was Author of the Ionian Sect, ſo call'd becauſe he was born at the Town Miletum of Ionia. He is thought to be the firſt that penetrated into the Secrets of Aſtronomy, and that none before him had foretold the Eclipſes of the Sun, nor underſtood the Courſe of the Stars. He held, that the Water was the Principle or Beginning of all other things; that the World had a Soul, and was full of Spirits. He obſerv'd the different Seaſons and Changes of Time, and divided the Year into 365 Days. This Science, that Greece was not acquainted with before his Time, he learn'd partly from the Prieſts of Egypt, whither he travell'd, and partly by his own proper Studies and diligent Search into the Phænomena of Nature. He went to meet Crœſus who lead a powerful Army into Cappadocia, and help'd him to paſs the River Halys without making any Bridge. He died in the 58th Olympiad, and the 92d Year of his Age. Theſe following Maxims are attributed to him. That it's the hardeſt thing in the whole World to know ones ſelf: The eaſieſt to adviſe another: And the Sweeteſt to accompliſh our Deſires. That to live well, we muſt keep from what we reprehend in others. That Health is the Happineſs of the Body: Knowledge the Felicity of the Soul. That there was nothing more Ancient than God, Greater than Space, Quicker than Spirit, Stronger than Neceſſity, nor Wiſer than Time. Adding, That we are to ſay nothing to provoke any Body that can Injure us: And ſhould live with our Friends, as with People that may become our Enemies. Diogen. Laert. Tully l. 1. de Divin. Lactant. l. 3. c. 14. Divin. Inſt.

THALES, a Lyrick Poet of the Iſle of Crete or Candie, whom Solon ſent to Sparta to excite the People to the Love of Vertue, and diſſuade them from the Seditions and Enmities that reign'd amongſt them: ſo that it was he that prepared the way for Lycurgus to bring the Lacedæmonians to their Duty.

THALESTRES, Queen of the Amazons, having a ſtrong Deſire to ſee Alexander the Great, travell'd out of her Dominions in queſt of him; and being near his Camp, ſent him word, ſhe was come to make him a Viſit: Alexander having acquainted her that ſhe ſhould be welcome, ſhe order'd her Train to make a Halt, and came to him attended with only 300 Women. Being ask'd the Occaſion of her Coming, ſhe told him, 'Twas to have Iſſue by him; which if it happen'd to be a Daughter, ſhe would keep her to her ſelf: but if a Son, he ſhould be ſent to his Father. Quint. Curt. l. 5. Arrian gives no credit to this Story, l. 7. c. 6.

THALIA, one of the Nine Muſes, which ſome will have to be the firſt Inventor of Geometry and Agriculture. She preſides over Comedy, and is repreſented with a Waggiſh and Laſcivious Countenance, crown'd with Ivy, and holding a Mask in her Hand.

THAME, a Market Town in Oxfordſhire upon the Borders of Buckinghamſhire, which takes its name from the River Thame, which almoſt encompaſſes it, and is here cover'd with a Bridge, leading into Buckinghamſhire. It's Capital of its Hundred, enjoys the Benefit of a Free School, and has an Hoſpital founded by the Lord Williams of Thame.

THAMES, Tamiſis, the principal River of England, is ſo called from the Thame and Iſis, which joining into one Stream at Dorcheſter in Oxfordſhire, taking there the name of Thames. The Tame has its ſource in Buckinghamſhire, the Iſis ſprings in Wiltſhire, receives the Windruſh, and the Even Lods before it comes to Oxford, beneath that City the Charwell a large Stream, at Dorcheſter; the Thames, as was ſaid before, is joined by the Kennet and the Loddon from Barkſhire; the Coln from Buckinghamſhire receives the Brent from Middleſex, the Wey and Wandle from Surrey, the Lea and Roden from Eſſex, and the Darent from Kent. It waters in its courſe Dorcheſter and Henley; in Barkſhire, Reading and Windſor; in Buckinghamſhire, Maidenhead; in Middleſex, Stanes, Brentford, Weſtminſter, London; in Surrey, Kingſton, Richmond, Lambeth and Southwark; in Eſſex, Berkin; in Kent, Deptford, Greenwich and Graveſend. Though this River is in no way to be compared for the length of its courſe with the Danube, Rhine, and Loire, yet it may be ſaid to exceed them in the excellency of its Waters, and the gentleneſs of its Stream, and eſpecially in the vaſt Riches that are continually conveyed upon it from all parts of the World, Ships of great Burthen coming up as far as London, which is ſixty Miles from the Sea, and the Tide reaches as far as Kingſton, which is twenty Miles higher.

THAMUS, a Maſter of a Ship, born in Egypt, ſailing to Italy, and having on Board Epitherzes, Father of the Orator Æmilianus, had a good Gale of Wind till he came over againſt the Echinades, now call'd Le Curzolari, over againſt the Gulph of Corinth or Lepanto, where the Sea was becalm'd, and the Ship was forc'd by the Tide, near to the Iſland Paxos: The greateſt part of the Crew being awake in the Night, a Voice was diſtinctly heard from the Iſland, calling to Thamus; to which he making no anſwer, neither the firſt, nor the ſecond time: The Voice grew ſtronger, and bid him, That as ſoon as he came to Palodes, he ſhould give notice that the great Pan was dead: Thamus, as ſoon as he came up to the Place, did as he was bid; and immediately upon declaring his Meſſage, he heard great groanings and lamenting. This News was preſently ſpread at Rome, and was ſo much taken notice of, that the Emperor Tiberius ſent for Thamus, who confirm'd the truth of it; upon which, the Learned being conſulted, were of opinion, that this Pan was the Son of Mercury and Penelope. Some Chriſtians pretend to believe, that the Death of our Saviour happening at that time, was ſignify'd by this extraordinary Voice. Plutarch de Oracul. defect. Euſeb. lib. 5. de Prepar. Evang. cap. 9.

THAMUZ, an Idol of the Hebrews and Phenicians, ſpoken of in the eighth Chapter of Ezekiel. R. David Kimchi ſays, That they celebrated its Feaſt in the Month Thamuz, which anſwers our June and July, and that then the Idol ſeem'd to weep: Which was effected thus, The Prieſts after having put Lead round the Eyes, heated the Statue in the inſide, until the heat melted the Metal. Moſt Authors ſay, that Thamuz was the ſame with Adonis, of whom St. Jerom ſpeaks thus: Adonis or Thamuz, Venus's Favourite, was a very handſome Young Man, who being killed in the Month of June, was brought to Life again, as is reported. The Idolatrous Hebrews call the Month of June by this Name, and celebrate every Year a Feaſt in Honour of this Thamuz or Adonis, whereof the Ceremony was to bewail him as Dead, and praiſe him afterwards as come to Life again. Some believe, that Thamuz or Adonis was the ſame with Oſiris King of the Egyptians, in whoſe Honour theſe People kept two Feaſts the ſame Month, one for his Death, that they called 'Αφανισμὸς, and the other for the Reſurrection, which they called 'Ευρέσις. Abenephe ſays, that Thamuz was King of Egypt when the Iſraelites were in Bondage; That he inſtituted the Ceremonies of Oſiris. Which theſe People after their return, continu'd to celebrate, and call the Month they did it in Thamuz. Father Kircher ſays, that this Thamuz was alſo called Tetmoſis and Tamoſis. Kircher Oedipus Ægyptiacus, Tom. 1. Selden de Diis Syris.

THAMYRIS, a Poet, born at Odriſa in Thrace, and one of the beſt Muſicians of his time: He had a great many good Qualities, but his Vanity ſpoil'd 'em all. His Voice and his Skill were ſo extraordinary, that the Scythians choſe him for their King, notwithſtanding he was a Foreigner. Plutarch, as Natalis Comes cites him, commends him very much for this Talent, and affirms, that he wrote a Poem of the Wars of the Titans againſt the Gods: Others make him the Author of a thouſand Verſes upon the Creation of the World, and that he wrote a Syſteme of Theology, conſiſting of Three thouſand Verſes, which was extant in Suidas's time. He is ſaid by ſome, to be eight Generations older than Homer, or five at the loweſt; and that he was the third Perſon that carry'd off the Prize at the Pythian Solemnities. Homer tells us, he had the confidence to challenge the Muſes, to a Tryal of Skill in Muſick, and being worſted, loſt his Sight for his Preſumption. Plato, according to the Principles of Tranſmigration, fancy'd the Soul of Thamyris remov'd into a Nightingale. Homer Iliad. 2. Pauſanius, lib. 4. Conon apud Photium, n. 186. p. 428. *Suidas. THANET, Lat. Tanetos, Thanatos, a ſmall Iſland on the Eaſtern Coaſt of Kent, ſurrounded on the South by the Sea, and on the Weſt by the River Stoure, here call'd the Yenlade. It's about eight Miles long and four broad. It was in this Iſland that the Saxons firſt landed, and alſo St. Auguſtin the Monk. Nicholas Lord Tufton was created Earl of Thanet by King Charles I. in 1628. Richard the fifth of this Family ſucceeded in 1680.

THARBIS, Daughter of one of the Kings of Ethiopia, who is ſaid to have fallen in love with Moſes as he aſſiſted the Egyptians at the Siege of Saba, ſo that they married, and the Town thereupon ſurrendred to Moſes, who led his Victorious Egyptians back into their Country, but was ill rewarded for his Service. Joſeph. lib. 2. cap. 5. Antiq. Jud.

THARGELIA, in Greek Θαργηλία, Feaſts which the Athenians kept in Honour of Apollo and Diana, under which Names they worſhipped the Sun and Moon. Suidas.

THARSAMUNTHUS, a famous Roman Soldier, who gain'd a Victory over the Goths, but being wounded in the Leg, was ſo tranſported with Fury againſt the Enemy, that he vow'd to be reveng'd when he was cur'd: He went alone into their Camp, where he kill'd many of them before they could put themſelves in a poſture of Defence; and being environ'd, he laid many at his Feet, and would never give up his Sword until he drop'd in ſight of the Romans, who ſtood and admir'd his Courage. Procopius de Lib. Goth.

THARSHIS, according to moſt of the Interpreters of the Holy Scripture, is the place whither Solomon ſent his Fleet for Gold, Silver, and other precious Merchandiſes. Authors do not agree what place this was; ſome think there was a particular place of this Name, whether it was Tharſis of Cilicie, or Tarteſſus in Spain, and that becauſe the Hebrews were not good Seamen, and look'd upon the Voyage of Tharſis to be a long one, they call'd all their other long Voyages by the ſame Name, as in the laſt Age the Name of the Indies, which properly belong'd but to a Country of Aſia, water'd by the River Indus, was given to all the Southern Coaſts of Aſia, as alſo to America, becauſe they were long Voyages as the former. M. l' Abbe de Choiſ. Vic. de Salomon. See Ophir.

THASSILON, Duke of Bavaria, and Son of Chiltrude, Siſter to Pepin King of France, to whom he did Homage in an Aſſembly held by this Prince at Compeigne. But Pepin ſuſpecting that he had contracted an Alliance with Deſiderius King of the Lombards, his Father-in-law watch'd him ſo cloſe, that he never could undertake any thing to his Diſadvantage. Thaſſilon ſwore the like Allegiance to Charlemagne, but broke his Oath, which drew that Prince's Arms into his Country. Thaſſilon, to procure Peace, beg'd pardon for what had paſſed, and gave his Son Theudon as Hoſtage for his future good Deportment. Yet this inconſtant Duke, at his Wife's requeſt, undertook a new War againſt the King, in which being made Priſoner, he and his Son were condemn'd to be put to Death, but Charlemagne chang'd the Sentence into a perpetual Impriſonment. Thaſſilon died in the Abby of Olton 788. Haimo, lib. 4. Otho Frizen, lib. 5, &c.

THEACO, an Iſland of the Ionian Sea, between Cephalonia the Iſle of St. Maure, and the Curzolaires. The Ancients call'd it Ithaca. It has a wide and ſafe Port, and formerly had a Town which Plutarch calls Alalcomene, but now there are only ſome Villages: The Inhabitants are about fifteen thouſand, and moſt of them People that were baniſh'd from Zante, Corfou, and Cephalonia. The Cephalonians chuſe one every Year, to whom they give the Title of Captain of Theaco, but muſt be approved by the Miniſters of the Commonwealth of Venice, and then Judges between theſe Iſlanders, and decides their Differences. It's thought this Iſland was Ulyſſes's Country, and the place of Penelope's Reſidence, whoſe Memory is ſtill in ſuch Veneration there, that the Inhabitants have a conſideration for ſome certain Ruins, thought to be the Remains of that chaſt Princeſſes Palace. P. Coronelli's Deſcription of Morea.

THEAGENES, a very famous Wreſtler, who wone about 1400 Prizes in the Olympick and other Publick Games, and was therefore by the Oracle of Apollo ranked amongſt the Heroes, and had a Statue of Copper erected for him after his Death. An envious Fellow whip'd this Statue ſo often, that it fell and cruſh'd him to death at laſt; whereupon his Children call'd it to an account, (for according to Draco's Laws, inanimated things were to be brought to trial for Manſlaughter,) and condemn'd it to be caſt into the Sea. But the Theſſalians being afterwards afflicted with Famine, and the Oracle conſulted what they ſhould do, it bid them recall the Baniſhed: Which being underſtood of Theagenes's Statue, they fiſh'd it up, put it in its former place, and Sacrific'd to it as a God upon the Reputation it had acquir'd of curing ſeveral Diſtempers. Suidas makes mention of three other Athenians of this Name. Pauſanius in Æliac.

THEANO, Pythagoras's Wife, and Daughter to Pithonacte; was Native of the Town of Crotone. She was a very deſerving Woman, and of ſo great Learning and Wit, that ſhe taught Philoſophy with her Sons after her Husband's Death. It's alſo ſaid, That ſhe writ a Poem in Hexameter Verſe. Diogenes Laertius.

THEATINS, or Teatins, Fryars ſo called from the Town of Teate in the Kingdom of Naples, whereof John Peter Caraffa, Superior of this Order, afterwards known by the Name of Paul the IVth, was Biſhop. Their proper Name, according to the firſt Inſtitution, was that of Regulars, and their Founder one Gaetan of Thiene. The Theatins were eſtabliſh'd at Rome in 1524, afterwards at Venice in 1527, at Naples three Years after; and Cardinal Mazarin ſettled them at Paris in 1644. John Baptiſt Turffi in Annal. Theat.

THEATRUM, a place deſign'd for the ſight of Publick Plays, differing from the Amphitheatre in this, that the firſt was in form of a half Circle, the Amphitheatre of a round or oval Figure. What we now call Theatrum was call'd Pulpitum by the Romans, and was a high built place, where the Actors came to rehearſe and act their Comedy; and what we call Galleries and Boxes, was much the ſame with what they call'd Theatrum; all the Building comprehended the Scene, the Orcheſtra or Space between the Stage and Seats, and the Steps or Stairs whereon the Spectators ſate. The Scene in general comprehended all the Room the Actors took up, as well they that repeated, as they that danc'd or did their parts by Geſtures, and were called Pantomimes; this was a ſumptuous Building, enrich'd with Ornaments; behind it was a place where the Actors retir'd and dreſs'd themſelves. The ſecond part call'd Orcheſtra, was the loweſt part of the Theatre, where the Senators ſate as now in our Comedies Perſons of Quality are ſuffered upon the Stage, and take up part of that place allotted for the Actors. The Ancients diſtinguiſh'd three ſorts of Scenes, viz. the Tragick, Comick, and Satyrick, whereof the Decorations were Paintings brought forward by Engines. The Tragick had its Pillars, Statues, Baluſters, and other Ornaments belonging to a Royal Palace. The Comick repreſented private Houſes with their Balconies. The Satyrick was adorn'd with Groves, Mountains, Caves, and all ſorts of Landskips. The third part were the Steps or Seats for the Spectators. Valerius Maximus ſays, that until the 558th of Rome, the Senators ſate amongſt the common People: But their Seats were ſeparated by Attilius Serranus and L. Scribonius, Ediles, according to the Advice of Scipio Africanus; and there was alſo a Law made afterwards to give the Gentlemen their Seats apart. Suetonius relates, that Auguſtus iſſued an Edict, to forbid Womens ſitting upon the Steps of the Theatre, but ordering them up to the top amongſt the common People. The Ancient Romans had no Theatres nor Amphitheatres for their Stage-plays, but took the Diverſion ſtanding; they had afterwards Seats of Earth raiſed round the place where they were acted in; and in the 599th. there was a Theatre built, which Scipio Naſica deſtroy'd ſoon after. Pompey the Great was the firſt that built one of Stone, on the top of which was a Temple dedicated to Venus, thereby to hinder the Cenſors from demoliſhing it. *Roſin Antiq. THEBALDESCHI (Francis) Cardinal and Arch-Prieſt of St. Peter, Native of Rome, one of the ſixteen Cardinals that aſſembled there after Pope Gregory XI. his Death in 1378. Whilſt the Sacred College held a Conclave for the Election of a new Pope, and expected Bartholomy Prignan Archbiſhop of Paris his conſent; the People impatient for a Roman Pope, ruſh'd into the Conclave with ſo much Fury, that the Cardinals, to appeaſe them, and ſecure themſelves from danger, cry'd out, That the Cardinal of St. Peter was juſt then choſen, and that it was the part of the Magiſtrates of Rome to make him conſent to his Election. This was no ſooner noiſed in the Town, but the People flock'd in great numbers to worſhip this pretended Pope, who was a poor Old Man above Fourſcore Years of Age, then forced him to St. Peter's Church, and put him upon the Altar according to cuſtom, though he cry'd out as loud as he could, That it was not he but the Archbiſhop of Bari that was choſen. Thence they carried him, do what he could, to the Pope's Palace, and created him with the uſual Ceremonies. Thus things went on until the next Morning that Bartholomy Prignan's Election was publiſh'd. Maimbourg Hiſtoire du Grand Schiſme.

THEBES or Dioſpolis, a Town of Egypt, one of the greateſt and moſt beautiful of all Antiquity, it being aſſured that it was 140 Furlongs round, and had a hundred Gates, which made it be call'd Hecatompylos. It was ruined by Cornelius Gallus Governor of Egypt. Tacitus ſpeaks thus of it in his Deſcription of Germanicus his Voyages. Thence he viſited, ſays he, the great Streets of ancient Thebes, where were then ſtill in Egyptian Characters, engraven on Obelisks the Marks of its former Wealth. An ancient Prieſt order'd to interpret them, ſaid, That there had been 700000 Combatants in this Town, and that with this numerous Army King Rhamſes ſubdued Lybia, Ethiopia, &c. The Tributes the People paid were alſo mark'd, the weight of Gold and Silver, the number of Horſes and Arms, the Ivory and Perfumes for the Temples. The Cuſtoms upon Corn and other Goods, which bore great Proportion with what the Roman Power, and the Violence of the Parthians impoſed upon the Nations they had ſubdued. John Leon aſſures us, that the Modern Name of this Town is Theres; but Sanſon thinks it's Minio, which now belongs to the Turks. *Tacit. lib.*2. Annal. c. 19.

THEBES, a Town of Greece in Beotia, call'd Heptapylos by Pindar, by reaſon of its ſeven Gates. Cadmus built it A. M. 2620. or at leaſt augmented it with a Fortreſs call'd Cadmea, famous in the Works of Poets. Thirty ſeven Years before the Deſtruction of Troy, Polinices Son of Oedipus, and Jocaſta, arm'd againſt his Brother Eteocles, and beſieged Thebes, with Adraſtus King of Argos, and ſome others. This War, generally call'd the Enterpriſe of the Seven Generals againſt Thebes was Fruitleſs, but their Children carried the Town ten Years after, A. M. 2843. The Thebans were very Powerful, and maintain'd a War againſt the Athenians and Lacedemonians; which laſt they utterly defeated at the Battle of Leuctra in Beotia, by the Valour of Epaminondas, though they were but few in compariſon of the Enemy, who with their Credit, loſt there their beſt Men, and their King Cleombrotus. Philip of Macedon conquer'd the Thebans, and put a Garriſon of Macedonians in their Town, cutting all them off that he either had an Averſion for or ſuſpected, forc'd the reſt away, and recall'd thoſe of his Faction whom they had baniſh'd, giving them Offices and conſiderable Places. The Thebans carried this heavy Yoke with much Reluctancy, ſo that upon the report of Alexander's Death they revolted, and ſolicited their Neighbours to do the like; but the Town being taken the ſecond time was quite deſtroy'd, not one Houſe being left ſtanding but that of Pindarus. This happen'd in the CXI Olympiad, about the 419th of Rome. Caſſander, Antipater's Son, repair'd it twenty Years after, and it had afterwards the Title of an Archbiſhoprick, but is now an inconſiderable Borough call'd Stives, ſubject to the Turks.

THEERS, otherwiſe call'd Alchores, are a ſort of Indians who profeſs no Religion; all People abhor them, which is the reaſon that they live in the outermoſt parts of the Suburbs, to be out of the way of other People: They are employ'd to lead Criminals to the place of Execution. *Mandeſlo, Tom.*2. of Olearius.

THEMISTIUS, a famous Orator, living under the Reigns of Conſtantius, Julian the Apoſtate, Jovian, Valens and Valentinian. He was a Peripatetick Philoſopher, and wrote Commentaries upon Ariſtotle, and upon the account of his Learning and Employments, made a conſiderable Figure. His Religion was Heatheniſm; but notwithſtanding that, he was ſo far from having an averſion to the Chriſtians, that he employ'd his Intereſt and Rhetorick at Court to ſtop the Perſecution which the Arian Emperor Valence had rais'd againſt the Orthodox; endeavouring to ſoften the Emperor in a fine Harangue made upon this occaſion, where he ſhews, that there were greater Diviſions among the Heathens than among the Chriſtians, and that ſuch differences in Opinion ought not to be capitally puniſhed. This Themiſtius had a great ſhare in Julian the Apoſtate's Favour. We have ſeveral of his Orations extant, which were addreſs'd to the Princes under whom he liv'd. St. Aug. de Categ. Suidas, &c.

THEMISTOCLEA, Daughter of Mneſarchus a Goldſmith of Samos, and Siſter of Pythagoras, was very Learned in Morals, as appears by the ſeveral good Maxims which ſhe communicated to her Brother. Strabo.

THEMISTOCLES, an Athenian Captain, Son of Neocles, a Man famous for. his Birth and Vertue: He was ſo wild in his Youth, that his Father diſinherited him; but inſtead of diſpiriting him, this did but raiſe his Courage; for concluding with himſelf that he could not waſh off that Stain, but by ſome great Actions of Courage and Conduct, he devoted himſelf to the Publick Good, and applied all his care to get Friends and acquire Reputation. He was generally taken up in deciding private Diſputes, and propoſing neceſſary Expedients, which he was as happy at putting in execution as inventing. He was intruſted with the Management of the War againſt Corfu, which he brought to a happy Concluſion, ridding the Sea of all Pyrates, and rendring Commerce free. This was ſoon follow'd with greater Advantage by his Victory at Sea againſt Xerxes in the LXXV Olympiad. But being afterwards accuſed by the Lacedemonians, and baniſh'd by the Athenians, he went to Admetus King of the Moloſſians, thence to Aſia, and afterwards into Perſia, where the King gave him ſome Towns for his Subſiſtence. He died at Magneſia, ſome ſay of a Natural Death, or according to others, by taking a draught of Bull's Blood, rather than bear Arms againſt his Country. This happen'd about the 29th of Rome. Cornelius Nepos and Plutarch in his Life.

THEMISTOGENES, of Syracuſe, a Greek Hiſtorian, who liv'd in Artaxerxes Mnemon's time. Xenophon ſpeaks thus of him, They that have the Curioſity to ſee how Cyrus rais'd his Men, how he marched his Army againſt Artaxerxes, how he ordered the Fight, and how after his Death the Grecians return'd into their Country by the Bridge over the Euxin Sea, let him read Themiſtogenes of Syracuſa's Hiſtory of Cyrus, Brother to the ſame Artaxerxes.

THEOBALDS, a Royal Seat of the Kings of England in Hartfordſhire, in the Hundred of Hartford, not far from Hodſdon on the Lea, and leſs from Waltham Abby in Eſſex. It is delightfully ſituated amongſt Groves and Springs, Sir William Cecil, Lord Treaſurer of England, built it; and Robert Lord Cecil his Son, of the ſame Office to King James I. much beautified it.

THEOCRINES, a Grecian, who was firſt a Tragick Poet, and afterwards turn'd Informer; his Name became odious by inventing of Calumnies, which made Demoſthenes call Eſchines a Tragical Theocrines. And St. Jerom obſerves, that the Pagans uſed to call the Chriſtians by this wicked Name, becauſe by their Profeſſion of Holineſs, they ſeem'd to accuſe the Idolaters of Impiety. St. Jerome Epiſt. ad Furiam.

THEOCRITUS, a Greek Poet, born at Syracuſe, liv'd in the time of Ptolomeus Lagus; he wrote Paſtorals, call'd Idyllia, afterwards imitated by Virgil in his Ecclogs. 'Tis ſaid, the Tyrant Hiero put him to Death for giving him an ill Character. Theocritus wrote in the Dorick Dialect, and was a conſiderable Maſter in his way. Strabo, &c.

THEODAT, or Theodahade, King of the Goths in Italy, was Son to Amalfride, Siſter to King Theodorick, and of a Perſon of Quality of this Court. Amalaſuntha having loſt her Son Athalarick, and ſeeing her ſelf without Support, put Theodat on the Throne, but on this condition, That ſhe her ſelf ſhould always Govern, which he promiſed: But finding himſelf well ſettled, and aſſur'd of the Crown, he baniſh'd his Benefactrix to an Iſland of the Lake Volſena, where he got her Strangled in a Bath in 534. The Emperor Juſtinian reſolv'd to revenge the Death of this Princeſs, and taking his Opportunity, during the Diſorders of the Goths, reunited Italy to the Empire. Mundus and Beliſarius did him conſiderable Service in this Juncture, one ſubduing Dalmatia, and the other making himſelf Maſter of Sicily. Theſe Succeſſes frightned Theodat ſo much, that he proffer'd to ſubſcribe to what the Emperor pleaſed, even to the reſigning of the Kingdom, ſo he might be allow'd a Penſion, and live quietly. But the Face of Affairs changing afterwards, he put Pope Agapet upon a Journy to make his Peace with that Prince. But theſe Precautions were to no purpoſe, all went againſt him, his own Son-in-law Ebremond ſubmitted to Beliſaſarius, who reduc'd Naples, and all the neighbouring Country; ſo that not knowing what to reſolve upon, he gave the Conduct of his Army to Vitiges, one of his Captains, far more noble by his Valour than Birth, who being well beloved by the Goths, was proclaim'd King in 536 or 37, ſeizes Theodat as he return'd from Rome to Ravenna, and put him and his Son Theodegiſilus to Death, a juſt Puniſhment for his Ingratitude to Amalaſuntha. And thus God made uſe of one Traitor to puniſh the others Treachery. It's ſaid, that Theodat was Learned, and compoſed a Hiſtory. Procopius, lib. 1. de Bell. Goth. Caſſiodor. lib. 10. Epiſt. 3. &c.

THEODEBERT, or Thiebert, Firſt of the Name, King of Metz, ſucceeded his Father Thierry or Theodoric I. King of Auſtraſia in 534, and in the beginning of his Reign committed ſeveral violent Actions unworthy a Chriſtian Prince, but afterwards by the care and good Advice of Nizier Biſhop of Trews, he mended his Life, and liv'd with as much Juſtice and Piety as could be deſir'd. Seeing the Romans and Goths engag'd in a War wherein Fortune balanc'd the Succeſs, he look'd upon it as the moſt favorable Opportunity that could offer, to deprive them both of Italy, the ſubject of their War; whereupon he entred it, ſome ſay, with an Army of 100000, others ſay of 200000 Men, and had the good Fortune to force both Camps in one day, ſo that being Maſter of the Field, he ravag'd the Country, and took ſeveral Places, but his Army growing Sick, he was forc'd to repaſs the Alps. This Warlike Prince, accuſtom'd to conquer, defeated the Danes, who had made an Incurſion into his Country, and kill'd their King Chochilaicus in 516. He died in 548, as he was preparing a formidable Army, with the Aſſiſtance of the Lombards, againſt Juſtinian, and deſign'd to march to the Gates of Conſtantinople. His Death was occaſion'd by the fall of a great Branch, which a wild Cow or Ox ſhook down upon his Head as he was Hunting in the fourteenth Year of his Reign. Gregory de Tour. Procop.

THEODEBERT II. King of Auſtraſia, ſucceeded his Father Childebert in 595 or 96. The Kingdom was divided between him and his Brother Thierry, his Grandmother Brunehaud, that govern'd three Years during his Minority, endeavouring to make him paſs for a Suppoſititious Prince, irritated him ſo much, that he baniſh'd her his Court; whereupon ſhe went to the other Brother, King of Burgundy, and perſuaded him to declare War againſt Theodebert, but this not having the deſigned Succeſs, ſhe ſollicited both of them to engage in a War againſt their Couſin Clotaire II. over whom they had conſiderable Advantage in 590, and after this declared War againſt each other, Theodebert was overcome, his Troops put to flight at the Battels of Toul and Tolbiac, and he was himſelf killed at Cologne, whither he fled in 511, and the 26th of his Reign: His two Sons Meroves and Clotaire, were both put to Death by the wicked Brunehaud's Orders. Mezeray.

THEODEBERT, or Thietbert, Son of Chilperic I. who put himſelf at the Head of his Troops, againſt his Brother Sigebert I. King of Auſtraſia; he was taken in 568, and kept Priſoner a whole Year; being then ſet at Liberty, he took the Field, entred Touraine and Poitou, committing ſtrange Hoſtility, ſparing nothing either Sacred or Prophane, and defeated Sigebert's Army commanded by Gondebaud, but was himſelf kill'd afterwards at a Battel near Angouleme in 575. Gregor. Turon. lib. 4. cap. 40. Haimo, lib. 3. Fredegarius, &c.

THEODECTES, a Tragick Poet, who for making uſe of Scripture Subjects, is ſaid to have been puniſh'd with the loſs of his ſight, and to have recover'd it afterwards upon his Repentance. Joſeph.

THEODELINDA, Queen of the Lombards, who after her Husband Autharis his Death about 592, kept the Crown, and conferr'd it upon her ſecond Husband Aigulphus; ſhe brought the Lombards to quit Arianiſm, but fell her ſelf afterwards into the Schiſm of the Biſhops of Iſtria, diſſenting about the three Chapters, until Gregory the Great reclaim'd her. She outliv'd Aigulphus, and govern'd the Kingdom with her Son from 616 to 626, that Arioaldus dethron'd them. Paulus Diaconus, lib. 4. Hiſt. Long.

THEODON I. under whoſe Conduct the Boians eſtabliſh'd themſelves in Vindelicia in 508. He was of the Illuſtrious Family of the Agilolfingians, which furniſh'd Bavaria with many Illuſtrious Princes. Authors do not agree about the Eſtabliſhment of this Prince in Vindelicia, yet there is more likelihood that Theodoric King of Italy, gave him leave to bring a Colony thither, which increaſed by little and little, than that he ſettled there by force of Arms; for it's certain this Prince receiv'd the Laws of the Goths, and that Theodoric Son of Clovis, preſcribed them new ones. Andr. Brunner. Annal. Boiorum.

THEODON III. Duke of Bavaria, ſucceeded Garebald II. He marry'd Reginatruda, Daughter of Childebert, or of Theodebert King of France; and by her perſuaſion turn'd Chriſtian, and was Baptiz'd at Regentsburg by Rupert Biſhop of Worms, whom upon his Death-bed, he recommended to his Son Theodebert, and enjoin'd him to look upon him as his Father. Andr. Brunner. Annal. Virt. & Fort. Boiorum.

THEODORA, Wife of the Emperor Juſtinian, was declar'd Auguſta at the ſame time that her Husband receiv'd the Diadem from his Uncle Juſtin the Elder. Anthimus Patriarch of Conſtantinople, being her Favourite, ſhe endeavour'd to protect and keep him in his Place; but failing, ſhe reſolv'd to croſs Pope Agapetus in all his Deſigns, and ſped pretty well by her Credit with the Emperor, whom ſhe brought to favour the Eutychians. She was alſo engag'd in the buſineſs of the three Chapters, favour'd Vigil's Schiſm againſt Pope Silverius, and died in 548. Procop. de Bello Goth. & Perſ. in Anect. &c. Evagrius, lib. 4. Hiſt.

THEODORA AUGUSTA, and Porphyrogenet, was Daughter to Conſtantine the Young, and Siſter to Zoe. She was put into a Monaſtery, and afterwards brought to the Throne, after Conſtantine, ſirnam'd Monomachus or the Dueliſt. She reign'd ſix Years and eight Months, and died in 1056, having created for Emperor Michael VI. ſirnam'd the Old Man, or Stratioticus, that is, the Warrior. Curopalat. in Annal.

THEODORA, a Roman Lady, ſhe was very powerful at Rome in 908, by the means of the Marquis of Tuſcany, who gave her the Command of the Caſtle of St. Angelo. She created Popes as ſhe pleaſed, gave John, one of her Gallants, the Biſhoprick of Bolognia, afterwards the Archbiſhoprick of Ravenna, and at laſt made him Pope under the Name of John. She had a Daughter called Marozia, who was as Handſom and Leud as her ſelf. Baronius Luitprand.

THEODORET, Biſhop of Cyrus, a Town of Syria, lived in the fifth Age, was Native of Antioch, and Diſciple to St. John

Chryſoſtom: His private Expence was very ſlender, but was liberal to the Publick; for he built great Bridges, made publick Baths and Aqueducts at Cyr, and was in ſuch favour with the Princeſs Pulcheria, that on his account his Dioceſe was not burthened with new Taxes. He had the misfortune to ſide with John, Patriarch of Antioch, his Primate; which John, notwithſtanding he was a Catholick, believ'd the Council of Epheſus had been too haſty in condemning and depoſing Neſtorius, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, not treating him with that Juſtice and Moderation which the cauſe required. Theodoret was engag'd in another Diſpute liable to miſconſtruction, and that was, his writing againſt the Twelve Anathema's, which St. Cyril had publiſh'd in a Synod of Alexandria againſt Neſtorius. However, afterwards both Theodoret and John of Antioch were reconcil'd to St. Cyril of Alexandria; and thus Theodoret being diſengag'd from Neſtorius, wrote learnedly againſt his Hereſie, and recover'd himſelf from former miſ-interpretations. The Eutychians depoſed him in the pretended Synod of Epheſus; but he was afterwards re-eſtabliſhed in the General Council of Chalcedon, An. 451. There is no mention made of him in Hiſtory after this Council, which makes ſome think that he did not out-live it long; though others ſay, that he did not die before 460 or 470. His Works are a ſufficient Evidence of the Greatneſs of his Learning, and the Beauty of his Genius. We have ſeveral Editions of his Works, the laſt publiſh'd by P. Sermond in 1642, is in 4 Volums Greek and Latin, the two firſt contain Comments upon ſeveral places of Scripture; the third, An Expoſition upon the Epiſtles of St. Paul, five Books of Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, which begin at the Hereſie of Arius, and reaches to the time of Theodoſius the Younger. Gennadius ſays, he continued them to the Reign of Leo, in five other Books that are loſt. This Volume contains alſo 147 Epiſtles, with the Hiſtory of the Famous Anchorites of his time. The fourth Volume contains four Treatiſes, the firſt Entituled Enariſtes, or Polymorphus, contains three Dialogues; the ſecond in five Books, treats of Hereſie; the third has ten Elegant Diſcourſes of Providence; and the laſt twelve againſt the Pagans. The whole Philoſophy and Divinity of the Ancients are comprehended in his Work, Entituled, De Curandis Græcorum Affectibus, i. e. The Knowledge of the Evangelical Truth by the Philoſophy of the Gentiles. Gennadius ſpeaks of another Treatiſe of his againſt Eutyches and Dioſcorus, in Defence of the Myſtery of the Incarnation. Garnier the Jeſuit publiſh'd a 5th Volume of Theodoret in 1684, containing ſeveral Pieces of his that were diſperſed; among other Writings, this Volume has alſo ſome Diſſertations of P. Garnier concerning Theodoret and his Works. Photius has the Arguments of 27 Books againſt the Eutychians wrote by the ſame Theodoret, but unhappily loſt. We muſt not forget to take notice, that the Name of this Learned Prelate was afterwards concern'd in the buſineſs of the three Chapters, in conjunction with Theodorus Mopſueſtenus, and Ibas of Edeſſa, and that this Controverſie was puſh'd ſo far, that the Doctrine of this Father was condemn'd in the 5th General Council, i. e. the ſecond held at Conſtantinople in 553, in which they cenſur'd Theodoret's Anathema's which he had oppos'd to thoſe of St. Cyril; however, there paſſed nothing in this Council againſt the Perſon of Theodoret, inaſmuch as he had both publickly renounc'd Neſtorius's Opinion, and declar'd againſt it in his Writings, and had alſo been receiv'd to Communion by Pope Leo, and the Fathers of the Council of Chalcedon. St. Leo, Gennadius. Liberat. Phot. Baron. Bellarmin. Voſſius. Hoffman adds, That he rather defended Neſtorius his Perſon than Doctrine: That he was in great Eſteem at Antioch for his Doctrine, Eloquence and Piety. Dallæus calls him Sanctiſſimus & S. Literarum intelligentia Præcellentiſſimus Theologus. Druſius ſpeaks thus of him, Sectator Magni Joannis Chryſoſtomi, cujus imitatione fluidus admodum & in elocutione facilis & Atticam gravitatem redolens.

THEODORIC, King of Mets, was Son to Clovis the firſt Chriſtian King, and the firſt who preſcrib'd Laws to the Boii or People of Bavaria; it was upon this Model that the Emperor Juſtinian, ſome Years after, made a Collection of all the Roman Laws. He died in 531. Andreas Brunner Annal. virtut. & fort. Boior.

THEODORIC, King of the Oſtrogoths in Italy, was Son of Valamer King of part of Dacia and Moeſia, by a Concubine call'd Erlieve or Euſebia. Some Authors give him the Sirname of Amale, becauſe he was deſcended from an ancient King of that Name. Being returned from Conſtantinople, where he was kept a Hoſtage ten Years under Leo the Thracian; he was crown'd King after the Death of his Father and Uncles Theodemer and Widemer, and ſoon after aſſiſted the Emperor Zeno, expell'd by Baſiliſcus, and defeated the Officers that had revolted againſt this Prince; who thereupon honour'd him with a Triumph, erected him a Statue on Horſe-back in the great Square at Conſtantinople, adopted him for his Son, and gave him part of Lower Moeſia, and the Town of Novi, where he kept his ordinary Reſidence, with leave to march againſt Odoacer into Italy, who had defeated Phœba King of the Heruli. Theodoric looking upon this Conjuncture as favourable to his Deſigns, came into Italy, and having beaten Odoacer in ſeveral Engagements, at laſt beſieg'd him in Ravenna: This Siege holding two Years, Theodoric concluded a Peace with Odoacer in 493, dividing Italy betwixt them; but ſome time after he put him to Death, on pretence of ſome ill Deſigns. Being ſole Maſter of Italy, he endeavour'd to confirm himſelf in his new Dignity, by powerful Alliances; for he took to Wife Clovis of France's Siſter, and married his own two to Alaric King of the Viſigoths, and Sigiſmond Son of Gonebaud King of the Burgundians; and having made Peace with the Emperor Anaſtaſius, and the Vandals of Africa, applied all his Care to reform and mend the Government of his Kingdom by proper Laws and Regulations, which was much diſordered by the former Wars; and for this end he made uſe of Caſſiodore, a Man of Senſe and great Learning, who was his Secretary of State. Though this Prince was an Arian, he did not moleſt, but rather protected the Orthodox: He did not love that any ſhould change his Religion to pleaſe him, and condemn'd one of his Officers to loſe his Head for becoming Arian, pronouncing theſe remarkable Words, If you could not continue true to your God, how can you prove Faithful to me that am but a Man? Caſſiodorus's Epiſtles make mention of a great many ſerviceable Expedients made uſe of by him for the advantage of the Common-wealth; he added a hundred and fifty Laws to thoſe which were formerly obſerv'd in the Empire. After this and ſeveral other great Actions, that made him equal to the greateſt Princes of Antiquity, the laſt Years of his Life blemiſhed all the former; for after he had occaſion'd Pope John's Death, he condemn'd Boetius and Symmachus, two of the greateſt Men then in Italy, to die, upon groundleſs Suſpicions, but did not out-live the Murther himſelf any long time; for being one day at Table, and ſerved with a Fiſh's Head in his Diſh, he cried out, that it was the Head of Symmachus who threatned him. And getting up in a Fright, lay down on his Bed, and died in a few days after, continuing to his very laſt extremely diſturb'd. This happen'd in 526. Caſſiodorus. Sigonius. Baronius. Jornand. de Reb. Goth. Procop. lib. 1. de Bell. Goth.

THEODORIC, the Firſt of this Name, K. of the Viſigoths or Goths in Spain, ſucceeded Vallia in 419, or according to others 429, he laid Siege to Arles, but was beaten thence by Aetius; ſome time after he defeated Litorius General of the Roman Army, and led him Priſoner to Toulouſe. But when the formidable Forces of Attila King of the Huns, put all the Princes of the Gauls into a great Conſternation, he join'd his Forces with Merovee King of France, Aetius, and Gundicaire King of the Burgundians, and fought and defeated Attila; Theodoric behaving himſelf very gallantly was kill'd in the Fight, Anno 451. in the 23d or 33d of his Reign. Baronius. Jornandes de Reb. Goth. Gregor. lib. 2. &c.

THEODORIC II. Son to the firſt, depriv'd his eldeſt Brother Thoriſmond of his Crown and Life in 453, and did ſo well improve the Diviſions of the Romans, that he extended his Limits, and made himſelf Maſter of the Town of Narbonne, which was deliver'd him by Count Agrippin in 462. Being advanc'd pretty far into Spain, Rechaire King of the Suevi his Brother-in-law, gave him Battel; but being worſted, and taken in his Retreat, Theodoric ſentenced him to Death, and was himſelf kill'd ſoon after by the contrivance of one of his Brothers call'd Evaric, who mounted the Throne in 466. Jornandes.

THEODORUS I. of this Name, Pope, Native of Jeruſalem, choſen in 641. oppoſed the Hereſie of the Monothelites, and excommunicated Pyrrhus and Paul, Patriarchs of Conſtantinople upon that account. He died in 649. He cauſed the Bones of the Martyrs, Primus and Feluccarus, to be removed out of the Sandy Grott in the Via Nomentana to Rome, where he depoſited them in the Church of St. Stephen the Proto-Martyr, ſparing no Coſt in Ornaments of Silver and Gold upon their Tombs. He alſo built and adorn'd a Church in the Via Flaminea; as likewiſe two Oratories, one near the Lateran Church, dedicated to S. Sebaſtian, and the other in the Via Oſtenſis to Eupolus the Martyr. He apply'd himſelf, like a good Biſhop, to all thoſe things which he thought might tend to the Advancement of the Chriſtian Religion, being a Perſon obliging to all Men, but extraordinarily charitable to the Poor. Anaſtaſius in vit. Pontif. Platin.

THEODORUS II. a Roman, Son to Photius, was choſen Pope after Stephen VI. according to ſome, but according to others after Romanus, whom ſeveral put in the number of Anti-Popes, but Theodorus's Election was Canonical. He died twenty days after his Promotion in 901. having done nothing conſiderable, but reſtor'd the Decrees of Formoſus, which Stephen VI. abrogated. Ciaconius. Baron. A. C. 902, &c.

THEODORUS, a pretended Pope choſen after John V. in 687. the Electors diſſenting in their Choice of a Pope, occaſion'd a Schiſm between Peter the Arch-Prieſt and this Theodorus; the firſt being choſen by the Clergy, the other by the Soldiers of Rome; but this Diſorder was appeaſed by the Creation of Conon, choſen by the conſent of both Parties. After his Death, Theodorus and the Arch-Deacon Paſchal divided the People into Factions; and moſt Authors agree with Anaſtaſius the Library-keeper, that Sergius I. his Election appeaſed the Diſorder. Yet this Pope's Epitaph found in the Vatican, ſhews, that Theodorus held the Chair, and that Sergius was never in peaceable Poſſeſſion until after his Death.

THEODORUS. General of the Emperor Valens his Army. Some Philoſophers of his time, who applied themſelves to Magick, made a Tripot of Lawrel, to know of the Devil who ſhould ſucceed to the Empire: He made anſwer, A Valiant Man, whoſe

Name began with Theod. This coming to Valens his Ears, he ſeiz'd Theodorus, and put him and thoſe whoſe Names began with Theod to Death: Yet notwithſtanding theſe cruel Precautions, Theodoſius the Great ſucceeded him. Sozomen. Ammian. Marcellin.

THEODORUS, a Phyſician, being introduc'd by Theophylact, Simocatta, to ſoften the barbarous humour of Chagan King of the Avares or Huns, acquainted him with Seſoſtris King of Egypt's ſudden alteration of Temper on ſight of one of the four Kings, whom he had the Inſolence to uſe as a Horſe to draw his Chariot thus; Seſoſtris perceiving one of theſe Captive Princes having his Eyes fix'd upon the Wheel, and asking him why he did ſo, he anſwered, Becauſe it gave him a perfect Idea of the Viciſſitudes of the tranſitory Things of this World, which are no ſooner up than down, and no ſooner down but raiſed again. This wiſe Anſwer procur'd him his Liberty, and Seſoſtris did never after uſe his Priſoners with ſo much Contempt. Theophylact Simocatta in Hiſtoria Mauritii Imper. lib. 6. 11.

THEODORUS, a Philoſopher, ſirnam'd the Atheiſt, Diſciple to Anniceris, Denis the Logician, and Ariſtippus. He held that the end of all things was Joy and Grief; that the firſt conſiſted in Prudence, and the ſecond in Folly and Diſorder; approv'd all Crimes, and maintain'd that none was of its own nature Shameful, but only was ſo in the opinion of the People, which he call'd a Multitude of Ignorants. He ſurpriſed his Auditors with captious Queſtions, and deluded many into his Opinion, for which he was baniſh'd Athens, and ſome ſay put to Death. Diogenes Laertius ſays, he ſaw a Book of his concerning the Gods, for which he had a great Eſteem. Diog. Laert.

THEODORUS, Biſhop of Ceſarea in Cappadocia, was in ſo great Eſteem with the Emperor Juſtinian, that he made him believe, that nothing hindred the Reception of the Council of Chalcedon, but the Praiſes and Approbations which it gave to Theodorus of Mopſueſtia, and the Epiſtles of Ibas of Edeſſa to Maris; and that if he could get their Writings, and thoſe of Theodoret againſt Cyrillus of Alexandria condemn'd, none would refuſe to ſubſcribe to the Council, whereof he pretended himſelf a very zealous Defender. Juſtinian who did not underſtand his Cunning, did eaſily comply. This was in 538, and eight Years after the Emperor taking the opportunity of the Nuncio Pelagius's abſence, publiſh'd a Writing in form of a Conſtitution or Ordinance againſt the three Chapters, which had very ill Conſequences; the Pope excommunicated Theodorus as Author of all the Diſorder, but admitted him again to the Communion of the Church upon his Submiſſion, and Confeſſion of the Orthodox Faith; yet he was ever an Eutychian in his Heart, and it was at his Perſuaſion that the Emperor Juſtinian undertook the Defence of the Opinion of the Incorruptibles. Baronius in Annal.

THEODORUS LASCARIS, a Greek Emperor, who reſided at Nice in Bithynia; was Son-in-law to the Uſurper Alexis Angelus Comnenus, Brother of Iſaac Angelus. Alexis ſucceeded to this laſt, and Alexis the Younger his Nephew and Son to Iſaac, was Crown'd after him, and Strangled by the Uſurper Alexis Ducas Murzufle: This latter growing intolerable, was outed by the French and Venetians, who took Conſtantinople in 1204. Theodorus Laſcaris, whom the Clergy had declar'd Deſpot againſt the Uſurper, quitted the Town, with his Princeſs and Children, and retir'd to Nice, where he was Crown'd Emperor, and Reign'd eighteen Years over a part of what was left of the Greek Empire. See Byzantin Hiſtorians.

THODORUS LASCARIS the Younger, call'd ſometimes Ducas, ſometimes Conſtantine, was Son of John Ducas, to whom he ſucceeded in 1255, Aged 33. He was ſolemnly Crown'd Emperor of Conſtantinople by the Patriarch Arſenius, made War againſt the Bulgarians, from whom he retook many Places; and having concluded a Peace with them, he made Head againſt the Tartars who invaded Cappadocia. He died in Aſia, Auguſt 1259, leaving his Son John, then but ſix Years of Age, under the Tutelage of the Patriarch Arſenius, and George Muzalon Maſter of his Wardrobe. Nicephoras Gregorias, Spond. in Annal.

THEODORUS, Biſhop of Mopſueſtia in Cilicia, was bred in a Monaſtery, but noted for his Incontinence. Chryſoſtom, who was his Companion, wrote that fine Remonſtrance to him, which is to be ſeen in his Works, intitul'd, Theodorus Fallen. He began to reform, but did not perſevere; yet he was choſen Biſhop, and died as he liv'd. Neſtorius was his Diſciple, and learn'd his Errors from him, as appears by the fifth Council from Gregory the Great, and the Abridgment of Liberatus: Theodorus wrote in Favour of Neſtorius; and after the Celebration of the Council of Epheſus in 431, the Neſtorians publiſh'd that Piece, not only in Greek but alſo in the Syriack, Armenian and Perſian Languages. Theodoret ſpeaks advantagiouſly of this Prelate, being ignorant of the Errors of his Writings, which were oppos'd by St. Cyril, Proclus of Conſtantinople, and Rabullus Biſhop of Edeſſa, that was ſucceeded by Ibas, who blames him in a Letter to Maris a Perſian, for condemning Theodorus, whom he extols very much: And about the ſame time, Theodoret Biſhop of Cyrus, oppoſed his Anathema's to thoſe denounc'd by St. Cyrillus againſt the Neſtorians; but Ibas and he having afterwards ſubmitted, were reſtor'd to their Sees by the Council of Chalcedon; yet in the enſuing Century the Writings of theſe three Prelates occaſion'd great Diſorders in the Church, and were call'd the Buſineſs of the three Chapters, which was not compoſed until the fifth General Council in 553, when an Anathema was denounced againſt the Perſon and Writings of Theodorus of Mopſueſtia, which was the firſt time that the Church condemn'd any Perſon after their Death. Liberatus, Evagrius, Theodoret, S. Gregory, Baronius. Fifth Gen. Council, Act. 4*th*.

THEODORUS, a famous Stickler for Images: He died in 826, and left ſeveral Treatiſes.

THEODORUS, Diogenes Laertius makes mention of 24 great Men of this Name, the firſt was of Samos, and adviſed the laying of Charcoal in the Foundation of the Temple of Epheſus, ſaying, That the place being moiſt, the Coal would become ſo ſolid, that no Water would be able to get into it: The ſecond was Native of Cyrenes, a Geometer, and Plato's Maſter: The reſt were all fam'd Orators, Philoſophers, &c.

THEODORUS, Biſhop of Frejus in Provence, liv'd in the fifth Century, and ſucceeded Leontius. He conſulted Pope Leo the Great, how he ought to manage himſelf, (with reference to the Enjoyning of Penance,) towards Diſorderly and Excommunicated Perſons, who lay at the point of Death; to which the Pope made him a very uſeful and ſignificant Anſwer, extant in his Works. Leo Epiſt. 91. St. Marth. Gal. XL. Baron. in Annal. &c.

THEODORUS GAZÆUS, born at Theſſalonica, retir'd into Italy when Conſtantinople was taken by the Turks. He found a great Friend in Cardinal Baſſarion, which to ſpeak truth, was no more than was due to his Learning and Merit. He was taught Latin in Italy, in which he became ſo great a Maſter, that he ſpake it with as much eaſe and exactneſs as if it had been his native Language. He Tranſlated Ariſtotle's Hiſtory of Animals, Theophraſtus of Plants, and ſome other Pieces, into Latin. He likewiſe Tranſlated Tully's De Senectute into Greek; wrote a Treatiſe of Months, of the Original of the Turks, &c. And 'tis probable, had gone on farther, had he not been diſcourag'd by the ſlender Reward given him by Pope Sixtus IV. to whom he had made a Preſent of ſome of his Writings. He died in 1478. Paulus Jovius in Elog. Doct. cap. 26. Voſſius, Leo Alatius, Spondon, &c.

THEODORUS LECTOR, liv'd in the fifth Century, and was ſo call'd, becauſe he was a Reader in the Church of Conſtantinople. He publiſh'd two Books of Hiſtory, call'd, Collectanea Hiſtoriæ Eccleſiaſticæ, in which he begins at the Death of Theodoſius the Younger, and goes on as far as the Reign of the Emperor Juſtin. Poſſevin. in Appar. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. &c.

THEODORUS STUDITES, ſo call'd, becauſe he was Abbot of the Monaſtery built by the Conſul Studius, in the Suburbs of Conſtantinople. He liv'd in the 9th Century, and was, as Morery obſerves, one of the moſt Learned Men of his time. He could not bear the Liberty which the Emperor Conſtantine, Son of Leo IV. took, in parting with his Empreſs, and marrying Theodora, which diſorder being conniv'd at by the Patriarch Taraſius, Studites and Plato, another Abbot, refus'd to Communicate with him for ſome time. This Theodorus was a zealous Champion for Images, and ſuffer'd pretty much for his Opinion. He dy'd in the Year 826. He wrote ſeveral things, as his Will and Teſtament, which Baronius inſerts at large. One hundred and thirty four Catechetical Sermons, Epiſtles, &c. His Life is written by Michael Studites. Zonaras, Curapalates, Cedrenus, Baronius, &c.

THEODOSIUS I. Emperor, call'd the Great, Son to another of the Name, an excellent Officer, whom Valens put to Death in Africa, though it was he who deliver'd him from the Tyranny of Firmus; was a Native of Spain: The great Proofs which he gave of his Valour and good Conduct, and the good Services which he had already done the Empire, made the Emperor Gratian, being attack'd by the Goths and Germans, to admit Theodoſius to an equal ſhare of the Government with himſelf: All People approv'd the Choice, and he receiv'd the Purple at Sirmich in 379, the 43d Year of his Age. Paſſing thence into Thracia he quite routed the Goths, and carried the News himſelf of this important Victory to Gratian. Falling ſick the Year after at Theſſalonica, he was Baptized, and then publiſh'd ſeveral Edicts againſt Hereticks. Athanaricus King of the Goths, being baniſh'd his Kingdom, came to Conſtantinople, where Theodoſius receiv'd him as a Prince, and ſhew'd much Concern and Pity for his Misfortune. Afterwards he made Peace with the Perſians, upon conditions that were both Honorable for the Empire, and Glorious to the Emperor's Perſon. He call'd the ſecond General Council held at Conſtantinople in 381. Valentinian, who reign'd in the Weſt, was much incommoded by the Uſurper Maximus, who having kill'd Gratian, declar'd himſelf Emperor: Theodoſius fortify'd himſelf, firſt by Prayer and Faſting, and afterwards marching againſt him, defeated him in two Battels, one in Hungary, and the other in Italy; and purſuing him to Aquileia, forc'd his Soldiers to deliver him into his hands. He rendred this Victory glorious by his Moderation, for he intended to pardon him, but the Soldiers holding him unworthy of Mercy, and fearing the ill Conſequences of that Clemency, drew him out of his Tent, and cut off his Head. This happen'd in the Year 388. Theodoſius having thus ſettled the Weſt for Valentinian, aſſur'd the Eaſt for himſelf and his Succeſſors, and came the Year after to Rome, to receive the Honour of a Triumph, and quite aboliſh'd all the Remains of Idolatry. But in 390 the Inhabitants of Theſſalonica having in a Tumult kill'd one of his Lieutenant Generals, he abandon'd the Town to the Diſcretion of his Troops, who kill'd Seven thouſand of the Inhabitants: All People murmur'd againſt this Action, and St. Ambroſe writ the Emperor a Letter, to exhort him to Sorrow and Repentance for it. And ſome Months after, this Prince being at Milan, he refuſed to admit him into the Church until he had undergone eight Months Penance for that raſh Action. After this, Arbogaſtus having kill'd Valentinian to avoid the Puniſhment of his Crime, choſe Eugenius, a mean Man who had taught Grammar, and got him declar'd Emperor, on Condition that he would tolerate Idolatry. Theodoſius march'd againſt him, routed his Army, and he himſelf being taken Priſoner, the Soldiers cut off his Head in 394, and Arbogaſtus kill'd himſelf, for fear of falling into the Conqueror's hands. After this Victory the Emperor came to Milan, where he died of a Dropſie in 395, aged 60, leaving two Sons, Arcadius Emperor of the Eaſt, and Honorius of the Weſt. Theodoret, Socrates, Zozimus.

THEODOSIUS II. call'd the Younger, was Son of Arcadius and Eudoxia. Arcadius dying in 408, left his Son, then but ſeven Years of Age, under the Guardianſhip of Iſdegerdes King of Perſia, in whom he had great confidence. This Prince not thinking it ſafe to leave his own Kingdom, ſent Antiochus, a very able Man, to take care of the young Emperor's Education. He began his Reign by ſevere Edicts againſt the Jews and Hereticks, and in 415 declar'd his Siſter Pulcheria Auguſta, with whom, though but young, he divided the Imperial Power. She, to render her Brother as great by his good Qualities, as he was by his Birth and Dignity, choſe him very able Maſters, and took care of his Education her ſelf. Socrates ſpeaks very advantagiouſly of his Inclinations, Prudence, Piety and Love for the Study of Philoſophy. He made this fine Anſwer to ſome who ask'd him, why he did not put ſome People to Death who had offended him: Would to God I could bring all thoſe to Life that have died on that account. Theodoret alſo praiſes and brings many Examples of his Piety, concluding that God recompenc'd his Zeal for Religion, by a viſible Protection of him againſt his Enemies; and that Rhodas, General of the Scythians, having croſſed the Danube, ruining all Thracia, and threatning Conſtantinople, was conſum'd with all his Army, by Fire from Heaven. Yet we muſt confeſs, that Theodoſius was rather a good Man than a great Prince, and that Pulcheria govern'd all along abſolutely under his Name; it's true, ſhe govern'd ſo very well, that during her Adminiſtration, the Empire enjoy'd perfect Peace, and was a Terror to its Enemies. Theodoſius married Athenais the Philoſopher Leontius his Daughter, which at her Baptiſm took the Name of Eudoxia. He ſent a great Army into Africa againſt Genſeric King of the Vandals, under the Conduct of Aſpar; and this being defeated, he ſent another by Sea againſt him, under the Command of Areobindus, Anaxillus and Germanus, but was forc'd to recall them, to oppoſe Attila, who with his Hunns ravaged all Thracia; and being unable to ſtop theſe Barbarians before the return of his Army, he was forc'd to diſpatch his Ambaſſadors to Attila, to give him Six thouſand Livres of Gold, and promiſe them a thouſand yearly to retire. He baniſh'd Neſtorius from Conſtantinople, endeavour'd to reconcile the Prelates, eſpecially John of Antioch, and Cyrillus of Alexandria, and publiſh'd new Laws againſt the Pagans, Jews, Samaritans and Hereticks. But in the mean time Pulcheria quitting the Court upon ſome Difference with the Empreſs Eudoxia, the Emperor for ſome time was a Prey to the Eutychian Hereticks, until Pulcheria's return brought things aright again, and Theodoſius went to Epheſus to make publick Satisfaction for protecting the falſe Council: And after his return to Conſtantinople, as he was a Hunting, his Horſe fell and hurt him, ſo that he was brought home in a Litter, and died ſoon after. Others ſay, he died of a Sickneſs, and ſome will have it, he fell into a River; however it was, he died in 450, aged 49, without Iſſue. Pulcheria choſe Marcian after him. Socrates, l. 7. Hiſtor.

THEODOSIUS III. ſirnam'd the Adramitian, was ſet on the Throne againſt his will in 715. The Fleet ſent about that time againſt the Sarazens, having kill'd their General, and revolting to eſcape Puniſhment, bethought themſelves at Adramitium a Town of Phrygia, to proclaim Theodoſius Emperor, who was one of the Prince's Receivers or Collectors. He did what he could to hinder their Deſign, but they forc'd him to accept the Empire, and ſupported him againſt Anaſtaſius II. In the mean time Leo of Iſauria, who pretended to the Crown, declar'd againſt Theodoſius with all the Land-Army, which deſpiſed ſuch a ridiculous Choice, advanced to Nicomedia, and took Theodoſius's Son Priſoner; who endeavour'd to oppoſe his Paſſage, and then march'd towards Conſtantinople. Whereupon Theodoſius, who had no ill Deſign, ſent the Patriarch St. Germain with an Offer to yield him the Empire, and devote himſelf to God in retiring from the World, ſo he would grant him his Life. This being agreed, both he and his Son entred into Orders, and withdrew into Epheſus, where he paſſed the remainder of his Life in Pious Exerciſes; and at his Death order'd they ſhould put no other Epitaph upon his Tomb, but this Greek word ὑγίεια, which ſignifies Health. Theophanes, Zonaras, Cedrenus.

THEODOSIUS, an intruding Patriarch of Jeruſalem, liv'd in the fifth Century. He was an Eutychian Monk, who in the Year 451, made it his buſineſs to aſperſe the Biſhops aſſembled at Chalcedon. The Monks of his Party were ſo troubleſom to the good Biſhop Juvenal, that he was forc'd to quit the Town, and retire for ſhelter, to the Emperor at Conſtantinople. The diſorder of theſe Monks did not ſtop here; for upon Eaſter-Day in the Year 452, they had the confidence to make him their Biſhop. Having uſurp'd this Dignity, his Temper appear'd ſuitable to his Title, for he govern'd at the moſt Tyrannical and Savage rate imaginable, ſetting Houſes on fire, murthering a great many People of eminent Piety; ſhutting the Town-Gates againſt honeſt Men, and opening thoſe of Priſons, to give Villains their liberty: But notwithſtanding his Claim and his Actions were thus of a piece, and his Character ſo remarkably blemiſh'd, he made a ſhift to ſurprize the good Nature of the Empreſs Eudoxia, (Dowager to Theodoſius the Younger.) and infect her with the Eutychian Hereſie. Euthymius did what he could againſt this wicked Monk, and the Emperor Marcian gave orders to take him up; but he having notice of it, made his eſcape to Mount Sinai, where he caus'd a Report to be ſpread, as if Pope Leo had confirm'd the Hereſie of Neſtorius; having the aſſurance to blacken the Emperor Marcian and Pulcheria with the ſame Imputation; but his Calumnies were ſoon detected and expos'd by that Empreſs. Evagrius, lib. 2. cap. 5. Nicephorus, lib. 15. cap. 9. Baronius, A. C. 452.

THEODOTION of Epheſus, liv'd about the end of the ſecond Century, was Diſciple of Tatian, and afterwards Follower of Marcion; then became Jew, and tranſlated the Old Teſtament into Greek in Commodus's Reign; this Tranſlation is more hardy than that of Aquila, taking the liberty both to leave out and to add great things, as Origen has obſerv'd. Baronius, A. C. 184. Serarius in Prelag. Bibl. c. 16, 17. R. Simon Crit. Hiſt. Old Teſt.

THEODOTUS, a Silver-ſmith, invented new Errors, holding the Son of God to be inferior to Melchiſedec, who was, ſaid he, Eternal, without Father or Mother, and the Advocate of Angels: That Jeſus Chriſt was but pure Man, and exerciſed the Office of Mediator only for Men. His Followers were called Melchiſedecians. Tertull. Euſebius, Baronius.

THEODOTUS of Byzantium, a Currier or Tanner by Trade, having denied Jeſus Chriſt in the Perſecution, added a new Crime to his Apoſtaſie, teaching that our Saviour was Conceiv'd by the Operation of the Holy Ghoſt, and yet was but a Pure Man; excelling others only in Juſtice and the Sanctity of Life. He came to Rome to ſpread his Errors there, and lay hid a long time before he was diſcover'd, but was forc'd thence by Pope Victor's Excommunication. Euſeb. Baron.

THEODOTUS, or Theodotion, was Maſter to the laſt Ptolomy, whom he counſell'd to put Pompey to Death, and the better to perſuade him to it, made a long Speech, which he concluded with this Proverb, The Dead never Bite. He fled betimes to avoid the Puniſhments which Julius Cæſar threatned Pompey's Murtherers with, and wandred up and down hated by all Men. Plutarch. in vit. Pomp.

THEOGNIS, a Greek Poet, born at Megara in Greece, and living in the 59th Olympiad. He wrote ſeveral Pieces: And is different from another Tragick Poet of the ſame Name; which latter was ſo cold and unaffecting in his Expreſſions, that they call'd him Snow-Ball. Euſeb. Chron. Lilius Giraldus Hiſt. Poet. Scaliger, Voſſius, T. le Fevre, &c.

THEOGNIS, Biſhop of Nice, and Diſciple of the Martyr St. Lucian, was one of the Lapſi, and offer'd Incenſe to Idols in the Diocleſian Perſecution, and afterwards went in to the Arian Hereſie. He was Depos'd in the Council of Nice; and tho' he was afterwards Reſtor'd, yet never quitted his Un-Orthodox Opinions. Baron. in Annal.

THEOLOGY. The word ſignifies, a Diſcourſe concerning God; it being the buſineſs of this Science to treat of the Deity. The Heathens had their Theologues or Divines, as well as the Chriſtians: The Fathers making no difficulty to uſe theſe Terms, in ſpeaking of thoſe who wrote of the Heathen Religion. Euſebius, in his Fourth Book De Preparatione Evangelica, and St. Auguſtin from Vano, in his Tract De Civitate Dei, diſtinguiſh the Theology of the Heathens into three ſorts: Firſt, The Fabulous and Poetical: Secondly, Natural, which was explain'd by Philoſophy and Phyſicks: The Third, was Political or Civil. The Firſt and Second of theſe, lay at the mercy of Poets and Philoſophers, who could add, retrench, and modellize the Syſteme as they pleas'd; but as for the Political or State Theology, that being ſettled by the Magiſtracy, could not be alter'd without their Authority, it being forbidden by Law, as Euſebius obſerves, to Poets and Philoſophers, to innovate any thing of this Nature. The Romans were very exact in this Point, and made a Law to ſecure the Old Religion, which Tully has cited in his Second Book De Legibus. The State Theology of the Heathens conſiſted chiefly in the ſolemn Service of the Gods, and in the Belief they had in Oracles and Divinations, together with the Ceremonies with which they were treated and perform'd. Theſe Doctors or Pagan Divines, were well ſatisfy'd of the unreaſonableneſs and impoſture of their Eſtabliſh'd Religion, but had not the courage to declare openly againſt it. Divinity amongſt the Chriſtians, is divided into Poſitive and Scholaſtical: Poſitive Divinity is founded upon Fact and Inſtitution, having the Scriptures, Councils, and Fathers for its ground and bottom; and this, properly ſpeaking, is the true Divinity. The other call'd Scholaſtical, is principally ſupported by Reaſon, which is made uſe of to ſhew, that the Chriſtian Theology contains nothing inconſiſtent with natural Light: And with this View it is, that Thomas Aquinas makes uſe of the Authority of Philoſophers, and Arguments from natural Reaſon, becauſe he was engag'd with Philoſophers who attack'd the Chriſtian Religion with Arguments from thoſe Topicks. This latter ſort of Divinity, Monſieur Morery obſerves, is by no means ſerviceable at this time o'th day to encounter Hereticks; which made Cardinal Perron ſay, That the greateſt School-Divines were none of the beſt to engage in Controverſie; theſe great Doctors being ſometimes puzled with a ſlight Difficulty. Father Simon is of opinion, that Scholaſtical Divinity came firſt from the Moors or Arabians, who were very ſubtile at it, and underſtood Metaphyſicks exactly. Perron in Perronianis. R. Simon Remarques ſur le Voyage du P. Dandini Jeſuite.

THEON of Alexandria, a famous Philoſopher and Mathematician, flouriſh'd in the fourth Century in Theodoſius the Great's time: He writ Commentaries upon Ptolomy, and ſome other Pieces, that have made him famous to Poſterity. He had a Daughter call'd Hypatia, whom Syneſius calls his Miſtreſs in Philoſophy. Socrates, Voſſius.

THEOPASCHITES, Hereticks that attributed the Paſſion to the Three Perſons of the Trinity. Foulon.

THEOPHANES of Byzantium, liv'd in the Sixth Age, in the Reign of Juſtin II. who ſucceeded Juſtinian in 565. He is eſteem'd for a Hiſtory in Ten Books, which he publiſh'd of Juſtin's War againſt Coſroes, and for ſome other Pieces. This Author ſays, that the uſe of Silk-worms began to be known to the Greeks and Romans in the Emperor Juſtinian's time.

THEOPHANIA the Empreſs, Wife of Romanus Emperor of Conſtantinople; after whoſe Death, in 963, ſhe poiſon'd her eldeſt Son Stephen, ſparing Baſilius and Conſtantine, becauſe being then very young, they could prove no Obſtacle to her Ambition. Afterwards having made Nicephorus Phocas Triumph in the Hippodrome, ſhe intreagu'd ſo well, that the Eaſtern Army declar'd him Emperor; ſo that he was receiv'd at Conſtantinople, and Crown'd by the Patriarch Polieuctes, and then married the Empreſs. But ſhe who conſented to the Match only through a blind Paſſion, ſoon chang'd her Love into Hatred; ſo that upon the News ſhe receiv'd that Otho's Lieutenants, whom he endeavour'd to ſurpriſe Treacherouſly, had cut his Troops in pieces, and retaken Calabria and Apuleia from the Grecians, ſhe cauſed him to be murther'd by John Zimiſces an Officer of great Reputation, who was at the ſame time plac'd upon the Throne: but he repenting himſelf of the Crime, baniſh'd the Murtherers and the cruel Theophania, who put them and him upon the Action, and join'd the young Princes Baſil and Conſtantine to the Government with him, who after his Death recall'd their Mother from Baniſhment, and gave her part of the Government as before. Maimbourg Hiſtory of the Schiſm of the Greeks.

THEOPHILUS, Biſhop of Alexandria, ſucceeded Timotheus about 385, and was ſo much conſider'd for his Learning, that the Council of Capua, in 389, nam'd him to decide the Difference between Evagrius and Flavian, both ordain'd Biſhops of Antioch: this laſt being ſuſpicious of him, refuſed to conſent he ſhould be Judge; yet Theophilus, by his great Prudence, compoſed the Diſpute, and reconcil'd Flavian in 402 to Pope Innocent I. He endeavour'd to put an end to the Diviſions of ſome of the Churches in Egypt and the Eaſt, who were ſomewhat imbroil'd about the Doctrines of Origen. He reconcil'd St. Jerom and Ruffinus, and in the Year 399, having notice that the Origeniſts infected the Monks of Nitria, he conven'd a Synod againſt them, condemn'd 'em as Hereticks, and expell'd 'em both Alexandria and Egypt. St. Chryſoſtom being deſirous to make up the Breach betwixt theſe Monks and their Prelate, was thought to go too far by Theophilus, who, upon this ſcore, became his Enemy, and preſiding at the Synod, ad Quercum, got him depos'd; and after his Death would never conſent to have his Name put in the Dypticks; though Pope Innocent I. did thereupon Excommunicate him. He died in 412, after he had preſided over the Church of Alexandria 27 Years. St. John of Damaſcus ſays, that he was in a very great Agony on his Death-bed, and could have no Quiet in his Spirit, till he had honour'd Chryſoſtom's Picture which was brought him. He wrote againſt the Origeniſts, and Anthropomorphites, and about the Day of Celebrating Eaſter. St. Jerom, Baronius, Bellarmin.

THEOPHILUS, Emperor of the Eaſt, ſucceeded his Father Michael the Liſper in 829, who had aſſociated him to the Empire before, and inſpir'd him with a Hatred againſt Images. He began his Reign by puniſhing thoſe that aſſiſted his Father in the Murther of Leo V, and ſent his Mother-in-law Euphroſyne into that ſame Convent whence his Father had taken her. This Prince had many good Qualities; he was dextrous, and a Lover of Juſtice, and knew how to conceal his Faults ſo well, that he was admir'd and prais'd by all his Subjects. He fought five Battels againſt the Saracens, and was always unfortunate: his Sorrow for the laſt was ſo great, that he died of it, A. C. 842, after a Reign of twelve Years and ſome Months. Curopalatus, Baronius.

THEOPHOBUS, Brother-in-law to Theophilus the Greek Emperor, was born at Conſtantinople, his Father was a Perſian Embaſſador of the Royal Blood; and Theophilus, to engage him in his Service, married his Siſter to him, and made him Commander of the Troops compoſed of thoſe Perſians, who, to eſcape the Tyranny of the Saracens, had paſſed into the Grecians Service. Theſe Troops being not well paid by Theophilus, proclaim'd Theophobus, their General, Emperor; but he appeaſed the Tumult, and refuſed the Sovereign Authority, as he did once afterwards: And though he thus gave Proofs of his Fidelity, as he had done of his Courage upon ſeveral Occaſions; yet Theophilus ſuſpecting him, order'd that he ſhould be cloſely confin'd: And being himſelf ſoon after very weak, and near his End, commanded Theophobus's Head to be cut off, though innocent; and having deſir'd it ſhould be brought him to his Bed, with all the Strength left him he took it up by the Hair, and raiſing his Voice, cry'd, Well, if I ceaſe to be Theophilus, you muſt alſo ceaſe to be Theophobus. Maimbourg, Hiſtoire des Iconoclaſtes.

THEOPHRASTUS of Ereſus, a Philoſopher, Son of Melanthus, firſt heard Lucippus, then was Plato's, and at laſt Ariſtotle's Diſciple; who chang'd his Name of Tyrtanus to Theophraſtus, becauſe of his Divine Eloquence. He ſucceeded this Philoſopher, and compoſed ſeveral Treatiſes mention'd by Diogenes Laertius. He ſaid of an Orator without Judgment, that he was a Horſe without a Bridle. When he obſerv'd one that ſaid nothing, If you are a Man of Parts, ſaid he, you do ill; if you are not, you are an able Man. He always uſed to ſay, That there was nothing ſo dear as Time; and that they that laviſh'd it to no purpoſe, were the moſt prodigal People of the World. His Characters of Vertues and Vices are tranſlated very well into French by M. de la Bruyere. He uſed to ſay, that a Learned Man was never alone, a Stranger in any Country, or without Friends. Cicero ſays, That at his Death he expoſtulated with Nature, for making Stags and Ravens ſo long-liv'd, who needed it not at all; and Men ſo ſhort, who could improve a longer Life, in rendring themſelves perfect in all ſorts of Literature and Arts. Diogen. Laertius, Strabo.

THEOPHYLACTUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, was Son of Romanus, who abuſing the Youth of his Son-in-law Conſtantine, Porphyrogenetes plac'd his own Children upon the Throne, and made Theophylactus, a younger Son, Patriarch at the Age of Sixteen; but the Care and Management of the Eccleſiaſtical Affairs were left to Tryphon; who in 944, refuſing to reſign his Place, was depoſed, and Theophylactus put in Poſſeſſion of the whole. This hopeful Prelate doted ſo upon Horſes, that being one Day at Divine Office, when News was brought him that a Mare which he lov'd much had Fol'd, he ran to the Stable to ſee it, and then return'd to make an end of the Office. Baronius.

THEOPHYLACT, Archbiſhop of Achrida in Macedonia, (call'd by the Turks, Giuſtandil) liv'd in the 9th Century, as Cardinal Baronius has clearly prov'd, notwithſtanding ſeveral learned Men believ'd he liv'd in the 11th. He was born at Conſtantinople, and apply'd himſelf early to the Study of Divinity, in which he made ſo great a Progreſs, that he was look'd upon as one of the moſt learned Men of his Time: 'Tis not known exactly what Year he died in, only that it was after 1071, and that he liv'd ſome time with Pope Gregory VII. He wrote Commentaries upon the 4 Evangeliſts, the Acts of the Apoſtles, the Epiſtles of St. Paul, upon Habakkuk, Jonah, Nahum, and Hoſea; in which he makes great uſe of St. Chryſoſtome's Works. Meurſius, in 1617, printed 75 of his Epiſtles in Greek, tranſlated into Latin by Marinier de Valens, and inſerted into the Bibliotheca Patrum. Father Gratzer, in his 2d Volume De Cruce, printed a Treatiſe of Theophylact, intitled, Oratio in Adorationem Crucis medio Jejuniorum tempore. And in 1651 Father Poſſin printed another Greek and Latin Tract under Theophylact's Name, call'd, Inſtitutio Regia ad Conſtantinum Porphyrogenitum Michaelis Ducis Filium. Sixtus Senenſis, in Bibl. Poſſevin. in Appar. Baron. A. C. 1071. Bellarmin. de Script. Eccl. &c.

THEOPHYLACTUS, call'd Simocatta, flouriſh'd about 612, under the Empire of Heraclius. He writ the Hiſtory of the Emperor Maurice, in eight Books, whereof the five firſt treat of his War againſt the Perſians, and the three other of that againſt the Avares and Sclavonians, with the Account of his Death. Beſides theſe, he has writ Letters on all ſorts of Subjects. Photius, Suidas.

THEOPOMPUS, born in the Iſle of Scio, was an Orator and Hiſtorian. He liv'd in the time of Artaxerxes, Ochus, and Philip of Macedon. He was one of Iſocrates's Schollars, and was very eminent for the Orations, Epiſtles, and Hiſtory, written by him. And here we may take notice, that Ariſtæus and Joſephus's Relation how this Orator loſt his Senſes by his preſumption in tranſcribing ſome Paſſages of the Holy Scriptures into his Works, will ſcarcely hold in the Chronology, the Scriptures being not tranſlated into Greek till the Reign of Ptolomy Philadelphus, which was a conſiderable time after this Theopompus was dead: and therefore if the Story be true, it muſt belong to ſome other Theopompus. Athenæus l. 3. Strabo l. 14. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. l. 1. c. 7.

THEOPOMPUS, King of Sparta, who eſtabliſh'd the Ephori.

THEOSKEPOSTI, the Name of the Grotto, where S. John the Evangeliſt writ his Apocalypſe in the Iſle of Patmos, which many now call Palmoſa. This Iſland is in the Archipelago towards Aſia. Daviti de l'Aſie.

St. THERESA, born at Avila, a Town of Old Caſtille in Spain, of a Noble Family. She was a profeſs'd Carmelite at 21 Years of Age, and eſtabliſh'd an Order which ſhe call'd Reformed, with ſuch Succeſs, that ſhe left 30 Monaſteries, 14 of Men, and 16 of Nuns of that Order at her Death, all Founded by her ſelf: and beſides a great number of Letters all Collected into a Volume, ſhe compoſed ten ſeveral Books upon Godly Subjects, or concerning her Order, which are as follow: 1. Her Life, written by her ſelf. 2. The Way to Perfection. 3. The Foundations. 4. The Manner of Viſiting Nunneries. Theſe four, by the Order of Philip II. King of Spain, were ſent in Manuſcript into the Library of the famous Monaſtery of the Eſcurial. The 5th is call'd, The Manſion or Caſtle of the Soul. The five following Treatiſes are much leſs than the former: The firſt treats of Divine Love, upon the ground of ſome Paſſages in the Canticles; the ſecond is call'd, Exclamations; the third, Spiritual Advices; the fourth, Her Preparations for Confeſſion; the fifth, Additions to her Life. Pope Gregory XV. Canoniz'd her in 1622. She died in 1582, and is extremely magnified for her Piety and Auſterities, by thoſe of her Communion. Hiſt. de la Reform. des Carmelites.

THERMIA, an Iſland of the Archipelago, towards Europe; formerly call'd Polyagos: Italian Pilots gave it the Name of Serminea or Fermia, a corrupted Word from Thermia, which ſignifies a hot Bath; for near the Sea it has ſome mineral and hot Fountains of excellent uſe for a great many Diſtempers, particularly for Swellings. The Town of Thermia is very conſiderable, and there is a great Borough at the foot of an old Caſtle. Baudr.

THERMODON, now call'd Pormon according to le Noir, is a River of Cappadocia, which diſcharges it ſelf into the Euxine Sea towards Themiſcyra. Suidas will have another of that Name in Thrace; and Plutarch makes mention of that which was in the European Scythia, in the Country of the Amazones.

THERMOPYLÆ, now call'd Boca di Lupo, a famous Paſſage of Mont Oeta, call'd Banima, upon the Gulph of Ziton in Theſſaly, leading into Phocis in Achaia. Near this place Aſſemblies of all Greece were kept on certain Days: And it was here alſo that Leonidas, at the Head of 300 Lacedemonians, courageouſly reſiſted the whole Perſian Army. Demoſth.

THERMUTH, Pharaoh's Daughter, that ſav'd Moſes, and brought him up when expoſed upon the River. Joſeph.

THERSIPPUS of Athens, a Man of very great Strength, who always expos'd himſelf generouſly for his Country: Being at laſt diſabled, Solon aſſign'd him a Penſion, and made a Law, That all ſuch as loſt the uſe of their Limbs in the publick Service, ſhould be maintain'd at the Commonwealth's Charge. Heracl.

THERSITES, one of the moſt Deformed and Sillieſt Men in Greece, who preſuming to Affront Achilles, was ſtruck dead by him with his Fiſt. Homer has deſcrib'd his Uglineſs ſo much to the life, that to expreſs the greateſt Deformity, it ſuffices to compare it to that of Therſites. Homer, l. 2.

THESEUS, placed in the number of the Demi-Gods, was Son of Egeus King of Athens, and of Æthra Daughter of Pitheus. He gave Marks of his Courage on all Occaſions, in oppoſing thoſe that diſturbed the publick Peace, defeating whole Companies of Robbers, taming Monſters, &c. He made War againſt the Amazones in their own Country, and defeated Creon King of the Thebans. Poets feign'd, that he kill'd the Minotaure of the Iſland Crete, whereof Minos was King: The truth is, that Minos being very powerful at Sea, to revenge his Son Androgeos's Death, oblig'd the Athenians to ſend him a yearly Tribute of Boys and Girls; until Theſeus, by his Valour, freed them from the Obligation, by killing the Minotaure; and came out of the croſs Windings of the Labyrinth, by the Aſſiſtance of Ariadne the King's Daughter. This Princeſs follow'd him, but he left her in the Iſle Naxos. Theſeus coin'd ſome Money with an Ox ſtamp'd on one ſide, either in memory of the Minotaure, the Bull he had overcome at Marathron, or that he would incite the Athenians, by ſuch a Figure, to apply themſelves to Agriculture. And it was hence, in Plutarch's Judgment, that the Ancients uſed to ſay, Such a thing is worth ten Oxen, ſuch another worth a hundred, meaning the Pieces coin'd with that Stamp. Theſeus inſtituted the Iſthmick Plays in Honour of Neptune, and in Imitation of Hercules, who had eſtabliſh'd others for Jupiter. It's ſaid that Lycomedes, King of the Iſle of Scyros, threw him headlong from a Rock: Pirithous was his ſpecial Friend. Hoffman adds, that the Minotaure was a famous General under King Minos; that the Poets feign how Theſeus went with Pirithous to Hell to force Proſerpine thence, and that Pirithous was kill'd, and he himſelf kept in Chains by Pluto, until Hercules his great Friend ſet him at Liberty. Plutarch in his Life.

THESMOPHORIA, otherwiſe called Cereales, Feaſts inſtituted in the Town of Eleuſis, in Honour of the Goddeſs Ceres, by Triptolemus, whom ſhe had taught to Sow all kind of Grain. During the Solemnity of the Feaſts, ſeveral Virgins carried certain Books on their Heads, that contain'd the ſecret Myſteries of that Goddeſs's Service, which were not to be reveal'd on pain of Death. Theſe Ceremonies and Sacrifices were ſo Religiouſly obſerved, that during all the time, the Women lay upon the ground, without Eating or Drinking, and had not the liberty of having their Husbands with them; for they were to be pure, and without any Crime. There were alſo other Ceremonies obſerved, according to the difference of Places. The Sicilian Women ran with their lighted Torches, and call'd Proſerpine aloud, becauſe Ceres did ſo in ſearch of her. The Country-men and Labourers alſo ſolemniz'd a Feaſt in her Honour, call'd Ambarvales by the Latins, which were Proceſſions round their Fields: See Ambarvales. They alſo uſed, when their Corn was cut down, to offer this Goddeſs the Firſt-fruits of their Grain. And they that were a-kin, or any ways allied, celebrated Feaſts together in her Honour. It being forbidden, under pain of Death, to diſcover the Myſteries of Eleuſis, we have but a little Account of 'em from Antiquity. What is to be met with upon this Subject, may be ſeen in Meurſius's Eleuſinia, and in the Sixth Tome of the Bibliotheque Univerſelle.

THESMOTHETÆ, certain Magiſtrates of the Council of Athens, who to the number of ſix, with the Archonte, the King and Polemarch, govern'd the Commonwealth. This Name was given them, becauſe they chiefly had the Care to eſtabliſh Laws, and put them in Execution, took cognizance of Criminal Matters, and gave Places to Judges according to their Ranks. Demoſth.

THESPIS, a Tragick Poet, Native of Icaria a Town of Attica in Greece, flouriſh'd about A. M. 3050. In his time Tragedy was carried on by a Choir, that is, a Set of Muſicians and Dancers, who, as they danced, ſung Hymns in Praiſe of Bacchus. He, that the Muſicians and Dancers might have time to reſt, and that the People ſhould have ſome other new Diverſion, introduced an Actor, who between every two Songs repeated ſome Diſcourſe upon a Tragical Subject: This Actor's Diſcourſe was call'd Epiſode; whence ſome have call'd this Poet the Inventor of Tragedy. He alſo furniſh'd Satyr with Actors; and Horace ſays, he brought forth his Satyrs in an uncover'd Cart, where they rehearſed their Poems, their Faces being daub'd with the Dregs of Wine, or according to Suidas, painted with Ceruſe and Vermillion, to imitate the Satyrs, who are repreſented with a red and high-colour'd Viſage.

> Ignotum Tragicæ Genus inveniſſe Camænæ,
> Dicitur & Plauſtris vexiſſe Poemata Theſpis,
> Quæ canerent agerentque perunƈti Fæcibus ora.
> Horat. de Art. Poet.

The Epiſode meeting a kind Reception amongſt the People, Æſchylus introduc'd two Actors, and Sophocles added a third, which brought Tragedy to its full Perfection. Caſſiod. Diogenes Laertius. See Epiſode.

THESSALY, a great Country of Greece, part of Macedonia, between Epirus and Attica. It has had different Names, derived from divers Princes who have lived therein, and was divided into five parts, Theſſaly Proper the Country of the Pelaſgi, Eſtioſia, Magneſia, and Phtiotide. All theſe Provinces had very fine Towns, their Inhabitants were well bred, civil, but ſomewhat too voluptuous, yet they did not want Courage. The Air is good, the Soil fruitful. Theſſaly for a long time had its particular Kings, until it was firſt ſubjected to the Macedonians, and afterwards to the Romans. Deucalion was one of their moſt ancient and celebrated Kings. He reign'd in the ſame Age with Cecrops firſt King of Athens, 349 Years before the Ruin of Troy. Hellen, his Son, gave Name to a great part of Greece. Dorus, his 2d Son, left his Name to the Dorians near Parnaſſus. Xuthus, the 3d, was the Father of Achæus, Founder of the Peloponneſian Achæans. Ion, his 4th Son, was the chief of the Inhabitants of Attica. The Inhabitants, noted for Magick and Drunkenneſs, were the firſt that minted Gold and Silver, tam'd Horſes, and put Ships to Sea. They are ſtill warlike, and are a handſome Race of People, having black Hair, black Eyes, and their Faces of a beautiful ſanguine freſh Colour. The Country produces delicious Figs, Water Mellons, Pomegranates, Oranges, Limons, Citrons, excellent Grapes, Almonds, Olives, and Onions. Sultan Amurath Conquered the greateſt part of this Country, and his Poſterity ſtill enjoy it. It is encompaſſed with Olympus, Pindus, Oſſa, and Oeta, four great Mountains. It is reaſonably well Peopled, and for the moſt part inhabited by Chriſtians. Its modern Name is Janna, from a Town of this Name, beſides which there is Lariſſa, &c. Pliny, Strabo, Pauſanias, Briet.

THESSALONICA, now called Salonichi, a famous Town of Macedonia belonging to the Turks, with a good Port at the End of the Gulf of this Name. It was formerly Metropolis of Macedonia. St. Paul Preached the Goſpel, and Converted a great number of People, here: He deſigned to have returned thither afterwards; but not being able to compaſs it, he ſent Timothy to confirm the Inhabitants in their Faith. It ſtands at the foot of a Hill, 220 Miles from Durazzo to the Eaſt, 350 from Conſtantinople to the South-weſt, and 230 from Athens to the North, defended by ancient Walls and a Caſtle. Theodoſius the Great ſlew 7000 of its Inhabitants for a Tumult. In 895 it was taken and ſack'd by the Saracens. The Eaſtern Emperors, to whom this Town was ſubjected, ſold it to the Venetians, from whom Amurath II. took it in 1432. The Turks kept it ſince; and it's now the beſt Peopled, and one of the beſt Towns for Commerce in the Levant. Strabo, Pliny, Chalcondylas.

THESSALUS, Son of Hippocrates, and Brother of Draco, both very learned Phyſicians, and worthy of their Father: Thoſe that maintain the contrary, miſtake them for the Sons of another Hippocrates of Athens, ſo ignorant indeed, that when People ſpoke of any dull Fellow, they generally ſaid, he was as ignorant as Hippocrates's Sons. Caſtellan. in vit. Medic. illuſtr.

THESTOR, a Prince of Crete, had two Daughters, whereof one was called Thonoé, and the other Leucippe; the firſt of which was taken away by Pyrates, who carried her to Caria, where the King bought and married her. Theſtor ſometime after reſolved to go to ſeek his Daughter, and landed in Caria, where he was taken for a Spy, becauſe he would not diſcover himſelf in an Enemies Country. Leucippe came alſo thither diſguiſed in the Habit of a Prieſt, in obedience to the Oracle, which order'd her to take that Habit if ſhe deſired to find her Father and Siſter. The Queen Thonoé obſerving the Air and good Meen of Leucippe, endeavoured to gain her Love; but meeting a Diſappointment, accuſed her of a pretended Crime: whereupon ſhe was condemned to Death. This Execution was to be done in the Temple by way of Sacrifice. Theſtor was choſen to do it, and was to have his own Life and Liberty upon that Condition. Though he did not know his Daughter in her Diſguiſe, yet he found ſome Averſion in his Heart to ſpill the Blood of ſo handſome a Perſon; and in deploring his Misfortune, made ſeveral Exclamations, in which he pronounced his own and the Names of both his Daughters. The Queen, who ſat with the King to ſee this Sight, was ſurprized to hear her Name; nor was Leucippe leſs when ſhe heard hers and her Fathers: ſo that all three obſerving each other narrowly, they knew one another. The King join'd his Joy to their Tranſports; and after he had treated his Father-in-law and Siſter, he ſent them home into their own Country, laden with rich Preſents. Hygin, Fab. 190.

THESTOR, Son of Idmon and Laothoe, and Father of the Soothſayer Chalchas; upon which account this latter is called Theſtorides by the Poets. Ovid. Metam. 12.

THETFORD, Lat. Sitomagus, a Market and Borough Town of Shoreham Hundred in the South-weſt Borders of Norfolk; called Thetford from the River Thet, upon which, and the Ouſe, it is ſituate, with a Bridge over the laſt leading to Suffolk. It was ſack'd by the Danes in 1004 and in 1010. In the 11th Century the Biſhop's See was removed hither by Biſhop Herfactus from North Elmham, and then it began to thrive: But his next Succeſſor but one removed it hence to Norwich in 1088, where it has continued ever ſince. Thetford is ſtill a Corporation, and ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament. The Lent-Aſſizes for the County are uſually kept here. It gave the Title of Viſcount to the late Earl of Arlington. Thetford is 70 Miles from London.

THETYS, Wife of the Ocean, and Mother of Nereus and Doris who married together. It was of this Marriage that the Nymphs of the Earth and Sea came; whereof Thetis, the younger, was the moſt charming: Her Beauty charmed Jupiter ſo, that he married her; but having afterwards underſtood by the Oracle, that ſhe ſhould be brought to Bed of a Son who ſhould be greater than the Father; he married her to Peleus. The Wedding was very magnificent; all the Gods and Goddeſſes being invited to it except Diſcord, who to be revenged for the Contempt, threw a Golden Apple amongſt them with theſe Words engraven on it, Let it be given to the Faireſt. Pallas, Venus, and Juno, put in for it, and pitch'd upon Paris to decide the Difference; who determined for Venus. Thetis was Achilles's Mother. Ovid. Metam.

THEUDAS, a certain Jew, an Impoſtor and Magician, who ſeduc'd the People ſo far, that he gather'd four hundred Men, perſuading them to quit the City of Jeruſalem, aſſuring them, that by his Word alone he would drain Jordan: Yet his Troops was at laſt exterminated, he himſelf Beheaded, and the Head brought to Jeruſalem. Act. cap. 3. Euſeb.

THEUDISCLES XV. King of the Goths, began his Reign under the Emperor Juſtinian about the Year 548. A Plot being formed againſt him, he was kill'd as he ſat at Supper at Seville, after he had Reigned only a Year and ſeven Months. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

THEUDOREDUS VI. King of the Goths, began to Reign under the Empire of Theodoſius the Younger, in 421. He refuſed the Romans Alliance, laid Siege to Orleans, and being at the famous Battel againſt Attila, King of the Huns, in the Plains of Chalons, where there were above 300000 Men kill'd; he quitted his Horſe, and had the Misfortune to be trod to Death in the 33d Year of his Reign. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

THEVENOT (Monſieur de) was a Gentleman of a good Family in France, and born in 1633. He was bred in the College of Navarre in Paris. He began his Travels in 1652, coming firſt for England, then croſſing over into Holland, afterwards into Germany, and then to Italy, where he ſtaid till after the Creation of Pope Alexander VII. From thence he Travelled over moſt part of Turkey, Egypt, The Holy Land, &c. After which he came back to France, where making a ſhort ſtay, he ſet out again, and Travell'd over Perſia and the Indies; and as he was returning through Perſia into Europe, he died at Miana, a little place, about 30 Leagues from Tauris, in November 1667. He was very exact in making his Remarks, carrying his Obſervations oftentimes to very Minute-circumſtances; which Particularities are often uſeful, tho' poſſibly not Ornamental to his Hiſtory. His Travels are divided into Three Parts: The firſt, into Turkey: The ſecond, into Perſia: And the third, into the Eaſt-Indies. The Firſt Part only was publiſh'd by himſelf; the two others were collected from his Memoirs, and printed after his Death. Monſieur Thevenot underſtood the Turkiſh, Arabick, and Perſian Languages perfectly well, was a good Botoniſt, and made a conſiderable progreſs in natural Philoſophy, Geometry, Aſtronomy, &c. Preface to Thevenot's Travels, &c.

THEVET (Andrew) born at Angouleſme, liv'd in the 16th Century. He wrote ſeveral Tracts, but the moſt conſiderable is his Pourtraicts of Illuſtrious Men, which he dedicated to King Henry III. La Croix du Maine, & du Verdier Vauprivas Biblioth. Franc.

THIARD (Ponthus de) Biſhop of Chalons in Burgundy, was born at Baiſſy in the Dioceſs of Macon, in the Year 1521, of a Gentleman's Family. He was a good Linguiſt, and a conſiderable Maſter in the Belles Lettres, and was counted an eminent Poet for his time. He likewiſe apply'd himſelf to the Study of Mathematicks, Plato's Philoſophy and to Divinity. Charles IX. and Henry III. had a great Value for him. He died in 1605, being 84 Years of Age. He wrote ſeveral Pieces of Poetry, Homilies, Ephemerides Octavæ Sphæræ. De Cœleſtibus Aſteriſmis. De Erroribus Amatoriis. De Genealogia Hugonis Capeti. Diſcurſus Philoſophici, &c. This Prelate made his own Epitaph, which runs thus:

Non teneor longæ dulciſq; cupidine vitæ,
Sat vixit cui non vita pudenda fuit.
Nec fama illuſtris me tangit gloria, forſan
Per genium vivent ſat mea Scripta ſuum.
Nilq; moror quo ſint mea membra tegenda Sepulchro,
Hæc propria Hæredis ſit pia cura mei.
Sed cupio ut tandem mens Chriſti inixa levetur,
Peccati duro pondere, ad Aſtra vehar.

Several great Men have given this Biſhop a Character of Advantage. La Croix du Maine, & du Verdier Vauprivas. Bibl. Franc. &c.

THIBAUD, or Theobalde, King of Auſtraſia, was Son to Theodebert. He endeavoured the Re-eſtabliſhment of Pope Vigilius and the Biſhop of Dacius, who were exil'd by the Emperor Juſtinian afterwards. The ſame Juſtinian after this, ſent Embaſſadors to engage him to arm againſt the Goths, but had no Succeſs, becauſe Thibaud died ſoon after, leaving no Iſſue. Clotaire I. married his Widow, and poſſeſſed himſelf of his Eſtate. Gregory of Tours.

THIBAUD I. King of Navarre, and the ſixth Count of Champagne of this Name, was ſirnamed The Poſthumous, the Great, and Maker of Songs, becauſe he was a great Admirer of Provencial Poetry, and compoſed ſome pretty Songs in that Tongue. He made War againſt France during the Minority of St. Lewis; but this Difference was ſoon adjuſted, and he a little after ſucceeded his Uncle Sancho the Strong in the Kingdom of Navarre; and at his Return from his Voyage to the Holy Land, died at Troy, July the 10th, 1254. Hiſt. de Camp. & de Navarre.

THIERRI, the firſt of this Name, King of France, was Son of Clovis II. Brother to Clotairius III. and Childeric II. was ſettled in the Kingdom of Neuſtria and Burgundy, by the care of Ebroin, Major of the Court or Palace, in 669. But a little time after, Childeric got him ſhav'd and put up in the Abby of St. Denis, and Ebroin was put in that of Luxeuil in Burgundy. Both had their Liberty after Childeric's Death; and Ebroin being re-eſtabliſhed in his Dignity of Major, ſacrificed a great many conſiderable Men to his Reſentment and Revenge. He made War in Thierri's Name againſt Dagobert II. call'd the Young King of Auſtraſia, and defeated Martin and Pepin, Dukes of Auſtraſia, in 681. But this King was not always Victorious; for Pepin Heriſtel, who was acknowledged Major of the Palace, defeated his Army at the Battel of Tetri in Vermandois, in 687. Thierri died in 690 or 91, leaving Clovis III. and Childebert II. Fredegarius. The Annals of Metz. Mezeray, &c.

THIERRI II. ſirnamed of Chelles, becauſe he was brought up in a Monaſtery of that Name, was Son to Dagobert II. King of Auſtraſia, and third of that Name of France. Charles Martel brought him out of the Convent where he was bred effeminately amongſt Women, and placed him upon the Throne in 720 or 21, and govern'd the Kingdom glorioſly under his Name; for it was in his Reign that he wone the memorable Battel of Tours where Abderamus was kill'd, and beat the Wiſigoths quite out of the Kingdom. All this time Thierri lived quiet in his Palace, and died in 737, the 24th or 25th of his Age. There was an Interregnum of four or five Years from this Thierri I. to Childerick III. laſt King of the firſt Race.

THIERRI, the Firſt of this Name, King of Auſtraſia, whom ſeveral Authors by miſtake, reckon amongſt the Kings of France, was Son of Clovis the Great. The Town of Mets was his Capital. In the Year 516, he defeated the Danes; and being join'd with Clodomir his Brother, fought Godomar King of Burgundy in the Plains of Voiron in Dauphine: This happen'd in 524. Afterwards he aſſiſted Hermenfroy, King of Thuringia, who at firſt promis'd him great things, which he made a Jeſt of after his Turn was ſerv'd; but Thierri being provok'd with this ill Uſage, rais'd an Army, and being aſſiſted with Clotarius his Brother, beat the Thuringians. Sometime after, in the Year 531, having drawn Hermenfroy to Zulphia, under the colour of a ſafe Conduct, he order'd him to be thrown down a Precipice from the top of the Town Walls; and by this means, he added Thuringia to his own Dominions. While he was engag'd in this War, Childebert his Brother made himſelf Maſter of Auvergne, either becauſe he thought him dead, or had a mind that People ſhould believe ſo. Thierri having notice of his Brother's Practices, ctices, march'd againſt him, and recover'd all the Places which the other had ſeiz'd: This Thierri died in 534, at the Age of 51, having Reign'd 23 Years. Theobert I. his Son ſucceeded him. Gregor. Turon, lib. 2. &c 3. Procop. Fredegarius, &c.

THIERRI II. call'd the Young King of Burgundy and Auſtraſia, was Son of Childebert II. He paſſed the firſt Years of his Life with Theodebert II. under the Regency of Queen Brunehaud their Grandmother. In the mean time having Burgundy for his ſhare, he retired thither, and received Brunehaud when Baniſhed from the Court of Auſtraſia. She perſuaded him to take Arms againſt his Brother; but this unjuſt War was unſucceſsful to him. Both Brothers had better Succeſs againſt Clotaire II. who loſt two Battels near Sens and Eſtampes in 599 and 604. Thierri married Etmerberge, Daughter of Bertric King of the Viſigoths, but he ſent her ſhamefully back the Year after; ſome think it was at the Solicitation of the wicked Brunehaud, who would not ſuffer a Princeſs of ſenſe to be near that King, but help'd him her ſelf to ſome Wenches that were at her Devotion. That unhappy Prince committed ſeveral ill things to pleaſe her: He Defeated his Brother at the Battels of Toul and Tolbiac, and having put him to Death in 611, took Cologne, ſeiſed his Treaſures and Kingdom of Auſtraſia; but died of a Flux as he led an Army againſt Clotaire II. who re-united both the Brothers Eſtates to his Kingdom of France. Fredegaire, &c.

THINITES, the Name of the Kings of Egypt who Reigned at This, the Capital of the Kingdom of Thebes in Upper Egypt. The firſt King was Menes, who begun the Empire of Egypt, and founded the three Principalities of This, Thebes, and Memphis. Athotis his Son ſucceeded, and had for Succeſſor his ſecond Son Cencenes, who commanded at This, whilſt the Eldeſt, named Athotis II. Reigned at Thebes, and another of his Sons at Memphis. There were eight Kings after Menes's Death in the firſt Dynaſty of the Thinites, whereof the laſt was Bienaches. This Principality was afterwards poſſeſſed by another Family, whereof Bochus was chief. This Family, called the ſecond Dynaſty of the Thinites, whereof Cheneres was the ninth and laſt King, is thought to have been deſtroyed by Pammus King of Thebes, who conquered the Kingdom of Memphis. P. Pezron. Antiquites des Temps.

THIONVILLE, upon the Moſelle, a Town of the Dutchy of Luxemburg belonging to the Kings of France. Latin Authors call it Thodonis Villa. Its Situation and Fortifications are ſuch, that it has paſſed a long time for impregnable. The Duke of Guiſe took it in 1558, but it was afterwards delivered to the Spaniards. The French were beat before it in 1639, but they made themſelves Maſters of it in 1643, and kept it by the Peace of the Pirenées. It was in this Town that Charlemagne generally aſſembled the Prelates and Barons of his Kingdoms, as in 806, when he divided his Poſſeſſions among his three Sons. In 822 and 32, Biſhops met here, and made ſeveral Canons drawn up in four Chapters, againſt thoſe that Mal treated the Clergy, which were found ſo juſt and reaſonable, that Lewis the Debonaire confirm'd them in a Council of Tribur; and all the Princes of France and Germany ſubſcrib'd their Approbation. Here was alſo an Aſſembly of Prelates in 835, who after having declared their Abhorrence of the wicked Proceedings of Ebbo the Archbiſhop of Reims and his Adherents, who had depos'd Lewis the Meek; they depos'd that Prelate as the chief Author thereof: this treaſonable Practice being abhorr'd by all Perſons of Vertue and Conſcience. Charles the Bald, Lotharius, and Lewis, Sons of Lewis the Meek, aſſiſted at another Council here in 844.

THIRTY TYRANTS, a Name that was given to the Governours of Provinces of the Roman Empire, who made themſelves Maſters of their Governments under the Emperors Valerian and Gallien, about 260. They all got themſelves proclaimed Emperors by the Legions they commanded, and ſo ſhar'd the Sovereign Authority amongſt them. Here follow their Names, very neceſſary for the underſtanding of Hiſtory, drawn from Inſcriptions and Medals.

1 Odenatus.
2 Herodis, or Herodianus his Son.
3 Manius Acilius Aurelius.
4 M. Fulvius Macrianus.
5 Q. Macrianus his Son.
6 Cn. Fulvius Quietus.
7 Servius Anicius Baliſta.
8 P. Valerius Valens.
9 Calpurnius Piſo.
10 T. Ceſtius Alexander Æmilianus.
11 M. Caſſius Latienus Poſthumus.
12 C. Junius Caſſius Poſthumus.
13 Q. Nonius Regillianus.
14 Sex. Julius Saturninus.
15 C. Annius Trebellius.
16 T. Cornelius Celſus.
17 Ap. Claudius Cenſorinus.
18 Herennianus Odenatus's Son.
19 Timolaus, Son of Odenatus.
20 Vabalath Odenat's Son.
21 Mæonius, Couſin of Odenat.
22 Spurius Servilianus Lollianus.
23 Aul. Pomp. Ælianus.
24 M. Aurel. Victorinus.
25 C. Victorinus his Son.
26 M. Aurelius Marius.
27 P. Piveſius Tetricus.
28 C. Piveſius Tetricus his Son.
29 Victoria Victorina, or Vitruvia.
30 Zenobia.

Victoria, the Wife, or according to others the Mother of Victorin, one of the Thirty Tyrants, and Zenobia Odenat's Widow, deſerved a Place amongſt the reſt, for the Greatneſs of their Courage. Tribellius Pollio de Trigint. Tyran.

THISBE, a Babylonian Young Gentlewoman, Pyramus his Sweet-heart. They having continued their Love a long time, without being ſuffered to ſee each other but through a Hole of a Wall, becauſe their Parents were againſt the Alliance, agreed at laſt upon a Meeting-place to accompliſh their Deſires. Thisbe came firſt, and ſate under a Mulberry-Tree, until ſhe was frighted away at the ſight of a Lioneſs, which came out of the Wood to drink at a Fountain that was near. Her Scarf drop'd as ſhe haſtned away, which the ravenous Beaſt tore and defiled with his bloody Jaws. Pyramus coming a little after, and finding his Miſtreſſes's Scarf in that condition, concluded that ſhe was devoured; and being tranſported with Deſpair, threw himſelf upon his Sword. Thisbe's Fear being over, ſhe came out of the Place where ſhe hid her ſelf in, and finding her Lover mortally wounded, killed her ſelf with the ſame Sword that made an end of him: both their Bloods changed the Fruit of the Mulberry, which was before that time White, into Red. Ovid. l. 4. Metam.

THISTLEWORTH, a Town of Middleſex, 8 Miles Weſt South-Weſt from London, ſeated upon the Thames near Sion-Houſe, and well inhabited by Gentry.

THOAS, King of the Iſle of Lemnos in the Egean Sea, eſcaped by the Policy of his Daughter Hypſipyle when the Women of that Iſland maſſacred their Husbands for preferring Slaves to them, and retired to Cherſoneſus Taurica, where he made himſelf Maſter as well as High-Prieſt of the Temple of Diana. Hygin.

THOAS, a Citizen of the Town of Patras in Achaia, a Province of Peloponneſus, after he had bred a Serpent a long time in his Houſe, he reſolv'd to rid himſelf of her, ſo went to a very remote Wood, and left her there; but as he came back, being ſet upon by Thieves, who were about to take his Life, the Serpent hearing him cry out, and knowing his Voice, ruſh'd out upon the Robbers with ſuch Fury that they were forced to fly. Ælian. lib. 3.

S. THOMAS the Apoſtle, ſirnamed Didymus, not being with the reſt when our Saviour appeared to them after his Reſurrection, he would not believe what was ſaid of it until he ſaw and touched his Feet, Hands, and the Wound in his Side. This Incredulity occaſioning an inconteſtable proof of the Reſurrection, made ſome of the Holy Fathers ſay, That his Doubt did us more Service that all the other Apoſtles Faith. He Preach'd the Goſpel to the Ethiopians, Parthians, Perſians, Medes, and Indians, and to thoſe of the Iſland of Taprobane, and was run through with a Lance near the Town of Meliapur, now called the Town of St. Thomas. Our Modern Hiſtorians of the Eaſt-Indies aſſert, as a certain Truth, that in the Kingdoms of Narſinga and Cranganor, and in the neighbouring Provinces, it paſſes for unqueſtionable Tradition, that this Apoſtle Preach'd the Goſpel there. The Chriſtians who live there call themſelves Chriſtians of St. Thomas, and report ſeveral ſtrange Things of him, contained, they ſay, in their Annals, which are ſung by the Children of Malabar in that Country Language. Dr. Cave, in his Antiquitates Apoſtolicæ ſays, that as it was cuſtomary with the Jews when travelling in Foreign Countries, or familiarly converſing with the Greeks and Romans, to aſſume a Greek and Latin Name of great Affinity, ſo this Apoſtle was called Thomas and Didymus, both which in the Syriack Verſion ſignifie Twin. Simeon Metaphraſtes ſays, he was brought up to the Trade of Fiſhing; that he made up in pious Affections what he ſeemed to want in the Quickneſs of his Underſtanding, not readily apprehending ſome of our Lord's Diſcourſes, nor over-forward to believe more than himſelf had ſeen, as appears by his refractory Unbelief of our Saviour's Reſurrection, though it had been foretold by Moſes and the Prophets, told him by our Saviour himſelf before his Paſſion, and atteſted by the reſt of the Apoſtles, Eye-witneſſes thereof: When he ſatisfied his Faith with a Demonſtration from Senſe, our Saviour replied no more, but that it was well he believed his own Senſes, yet that it was a more noble and commendable Act of Faith to acquieſce in a rational Evidence, and to entertain the Doctrines and Revelations of the Goſpel upon ſuch Teſtimonies and Aſſurances of the truth of Things, as will ſatisfie a wiſe and ſober Man though he did not ſee them with his own Eyes. St. Thomas is ſaid to have diſpatched Thaddæus to Abgarus Toparch of Edeſſa, between whom and our Saviour the Letters commonly ſaid to have paſſed, are ſtill extant in Euſebius, whom he firſt cured of an inveterate Diſtemper, and afterwards converted him and his Subjects to the Faith. The Apoſtolick Province aſſigned to him, as Origen tells us, was Parthia; after which Sophronius and others tell us, that he Preached the Goſpel to the Medes, Perſians, Carmans, Hyrcanians, Bactrians, and neighbouring Nations; and ſome will have it that he met with the Magi, who brought the New-born Jeſus the Preſents, and Baptized and took them along with him as his Companions and Aſſiſtants in the Propagation of the Goſpel. He came at laſt to India, and travelled as far as the Iſland of Taprobane, ſince called Sumatra, Preaching every where with all the Arts of Gentleneſs and mild Perſuaſions, not flying out into tart Invectives and furious Heats againſt their Idolatrous Practices, but calmly inſtructing them in the Principles of Chriſtianity, by degrees perſuading them to renounce their Follies, knowing that confirm'd Habits muſt be cured by ſlow and gentle Methods; and by theſe means he brought the People from their groſs Errors to the Entertainment of Religion. The Portugueſes tell us, that St. Thomas came firſt to Socotora, an Iſland of the Arabian Sea, thence to Cranganor, where having Converted many, he travelled farther into the Eaſt; and having ſucceſsfully Preached the Goſpel, returned to the Kingdom of Cormandel, where at Malipur, the Metropolis, not far from the Influx of the Ganges into the Gulf of Bengala, he built a Church, and Converted Sagamo, Prince of the Country. The Brackmans foreſeeing that this tended to ſpoil their Trade, put him to Death, one of them running him through with a Lance at Prayers. The Authors abovementioned pretend ſeveral ancient Inſcriptions to confirm the Truth of this. Some will have his Body tranſlated to Edeſſa, but the Chriſtians of the Eaſt conſtantly affirm, that it remained in the Place of his Martyrdom; the judicious Reader may meaſure his Belief by the Credit of the Reporters, and the rational Probability of the Things reported. Gregory of Tours tells us of a Lamp which burnt before his Tomb at the Solemnization of his Anniverſary, without any humane Aſſiſtance; but the Reader may chuſe whether he will believe it.

THOMAS, Chriſtians of St. Thomas, a Name given to the Chriſtians of the Indies of the Chaldean and Neſtorian Sect. Their Hiſtory at length may be ſeen in that writ by Alexis of Meneſes, Archbiſhop of Goa in 1599. Theſe Chriſtians of St. Thomas, notwithſtanding the ſeveral Attempts made to reform them, remain obſtinate in their ancient Cuſtoms; and if they comply ſometimes with the Miſſionaries, it's but in outward Appearance. When they are deſired to ſubmit to St. Peter or to the Church of Rome, they anſwer, That as St. Peter was Chief of that, ſo St. Thomas was Head of their Church, and that both Churches were independent the one of the other, and ſtand ſtedfaſt in acknowledging the Patriarch of Babylon, without minding the Pope, for they hold, as Morery reports it, Neſtorius's Opinion, receive no Images but the Croſs, nor have they any great regard for that neither: They hold, that the Souls of Saints do not ſee God before the Day of Judgment, and allow three Sacraments, Baptiſm, Orders, and the Euchariſt; nor do they agree in theſe neither, there being ſeveral Forms of Baptiſm in the ſame Church. They abhor Auricular Confeſſion, and for their Conſecration make uſe of ſmall Cakes made with Oil and Salt: The Wine they uſe is nothing but Water, in which they ſteep Raiſins: They obſerve no Age for Orders, but make Prieſts at 17, 18, 20, &c. who may marry as often as their Wives die. They adminiſter no Sacraments without their Fees or Reward; and as for Marriage, they make uſe of the firſt Prieſt they meet with. They all have an extraordinary reſpect for the Patriarch of Babylon, chief of the Neſtorians, and cannot abide to hear the Pope named in their Churches, where for the moſt part they neither have Curate nor Vicar, but the eldeſt preſides. It's true, they go to Maſs on Sundays, not that they think themſelves obliged in Conſcience to do ſo, or that they would ſin mortally if they did not. In 1546 Dom Juan Albuquerque, a Franciſcan, Archbiſhop of Goa, erected a College at Crangannor for the Converſion of theſe Chriſtians to the Church of Rome: The Jeſuits eſtabliſhed another, a League from Crangannor; and in 1559 Meneſes Archbiſhop of Goa, and Primate of the Eaſt, was employed in a great Miſſion hither to promote the ſame Converſion, but all to no purpoſe. Children, unleſs in caſe of Sickneſs, are not Baptized till the 40th Day. At the Death of Friends, their Kindred and Relations keep an eighth Day's Faſt in memory of the departed. They obſerve the Times of Advent and Lent, the Feſtivals of our Lord and many of the Saints, thoſe eſpecially that relate to St. Thomas, the Dominica in Albis, or Sunday after Eaſter, in Memory of the famous Confeſſion which St. Thomas on that Day made of Chriſt after he had been ſenſibly cur'd of his Unbelief; another on the 1ſt of June, celebrated not only by Chriſtians, but by Moors and Pagans. The People who come to his Sepulchre on Pilgrimage, carry away a little of the red Earth of the place where he was interred, which they keep as an ineſtimable Treaſure, and believe it to be a Sovereign Remedy againſt Diſeaſes. Their Prieſts are ſhaved in faſhion of a Croſs. Father Simon, in his Hiſtory of the Nations of the Levant, and in his Remarks upon Gabriel of Philadelphia, does not charge them with ſo many Errors as Meneſes does. Hiſtoire Orientale.

THOMAS A KEMPIS, a Canon Regular of St. Auguſtin's Order in the Archbiſhoprick of Cullen. We have ſeveral Editions of his Works, the chief of which are his Imitation of Chriſt, in four Books; Soliloquia Animæ, Hortulus Roſarum, Vallis Lilliorum, &c. His Book of the Imitation of Chriſt, which ſome attribute to John Gerſon, others to the Abbot Geſſenus a Benedictine, is Tranſlated into moſt Languages, and is ſeen in the Turkiſh Tongue in the Emperor of Morocco's Library, who prefers it to all other Books. He died in 1471, being 91 Years of Age. Joh. Badius in ejus Vita. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

THOMAS AQUINAS, a Fryar of the Dominican Order, was born in 1224, ſtudied at Cologne and Paris: He new-modell'd the Scholaſtick Divinity, and was therefore called the Angelick Doctor, and Eagle of Divines. The moſt illuſtrious Perſons of his time were ambitious of his Friendſhip, and put a very high Value upon his Merit, ſo that they offered him Biſhopricks, which he refuſed with as much Ardor as others ſeek after them. He died on his Journey to the ſecond Council of Lions in 1274, the 50th Year of his Age. Pope John XXII. Canoniz'd him in 1323, and Pius V. declared him Doctor of the Church in 1567; his Body was removed to Toulouſe, under the Pontificate of Urban VI. in 1368, and is look'd upon as a great Ornament to the City. We have his Works in 18 Volumes, printed at Lions in 1556, at Rome in 1570, at Antwerp in 1612. Baron. Bellarm.

THOMAS, call'd a Tyrant or Uſurper of the Eaſt, was a common Soldier, and grew ſo Succeſsful and Ambitious, that at laſt he graſp'd at the Throne. It's ſaid, that a Hermit meeting Leo the Armenian, Michael the Liſper, and this Thomas together in the Army, told them that the two firſt would be Emperors, and that the laſt ſhould periſh in his Attempt to become one: This Prophecy, whatever Spirit it proceeded from, was true, and the Event quickly began to verifie it. Leo came to the Empire, and gave Thomas one of his beſt Legions, and ſome time after Michael having placed himſelf upon the Throne, Thomas, who always had been his Enemy, made the Army revolt againſt him, took Poſſeſſion of Aſia, and under colour of revenging his Benefactor, reſolved to march to Dethrone him: In the mean time hearing that the Saracens had Revolted, he turn'd his Arms that way; and having ſubdued them in a little time, and augmented his Troops with theirs, he marched to Antioch, and got himſelf Proclaim'd Emperor, and Crown'd by the Patriarch Job: Then having had the good Fortune to make himſelf Maſter of the Naval Army of the Empire, he marched to Beſiege Conſtantinople, but without Succeſs; for being twice beaten at Sea, having loſt three Battels on Land, he retired out of Deſpair, to Adrianople, where the Inhabitants deliver'd him to Michael in 823. This Prince put him to inexpreſſible Torments to have the Pleaſure to ſee him die a lingring Death; and when he found he was juſt ſpent, he cauſed him to be impaled with Anaſtaſius, whom this unfortunate Thomas had drawn out of a Monaſtery and created Cæſar. Others ſay, That having Debauched the Wife of one of the Senators of Conſtantinople, he fled to the Saracens, and abjured his Faith; that afterwards he called himſelf Conſtantine, Son of Irene; and that he made himſelf Maſter of Armenia under Leo the Armenian. Baron. Annal.

THOMASINI (James Philip) Biſhop of Emonia, or Citta Nuova in Iſtria, liv'd in the 17th Century, and Publiſh'd two Volumes of Elogies of Famous Men, with a Catalogue of their Works; the greateſt part of which are Italians: This Performance was ſo well eſteem'd, that it procur'd him his Biſhoprick. This Author likewiſe wrote ſeveral other Pieces; among others, a Collection of Men of Learning, who were famous in the 17th Century: We have alſo a Catalogue of Manuſcripts of his, both Publick and Private, belonging to the Towns of Padua, and Venice: The firſt of which was printed with ſhort Notes in 1639, and the latter in 1650. Labb. Bibl. Belg.

THOMYRIS, or Thomiris, Queen of the Scythians, being enraged that Cyrus had put her Son Spargapiſes to Death, whoſe Army he defeated in an Ambuſcade, raiſed freſh Troops, and ſet upon the Victorious Army with ſuch extraordinary Courage, that ſhe put 200000 Perſians to the Sword; and not content with that Revenge, cut Cyrus's Head off, which as ſhe dip'd in a Baſon full of Blood, ſhe cry'd, Filii mei ſanguinem hauſiſti, & meum ſitiviſti, Cyre, at ego te cruore ſaturabo, You ſpilt my Son's Blood, and thirſted after mine, but now Cyrus I will give thee thy Fill. Juſtin. l. 1. Herod. l. 2. Yet Xenophon ſays, that Cyrus died peaceably in his own Kingdom.

THONGCASTER, or Thongcaſtle, a Market Town in the North of Lincolnſhire. It belongs to Brodley Wapentake in Lindſey Diviſion, and is ſo called from an ancient Caſtle built here by Hengiſt the Saxon, after he had beaten the Picts in Vortiger's Quarrel, for the raiſing whereof King Vortiger granted him ſo much Ground as an Ox-hide cut into Thongs would compaſs; from whence it got the Name of Thongcaſter. The Town is well compacted, and ſtands upon the ſide of a Hill.

THANON or Tounon, in Latin Tunonium, a Town of Savoy, on the Lake of Geneva, being the Capital of Chablais.

THOR, or Thordoen, Thoron, which in the Swediſh Tongue ſignifies Thunder, is the falſe God of the Idolatrous Laplanders, which in their own Language they call Tiermes, that is, Thundering, or the noiſe of Thunder: They alſo give it the Name of Aijeke, which ſignifies Great Grandfather or ancient Father, and attribute to him a Sovereign Authority over all miſchievous and malevolent Spirits that inhabit Mountains, Lakes, and live in the Air: They alſo allow him a Bow to kill theſe with, and imagine he makes uſe of the Rainbow. They worſhip him as Author of Life and Death, and Governour of all Men: They repreſent him by the Stump or Trunk of a Tree, the top being ſomewhat formed, but very coarſly, like a Man's Head. They ſtick a piece of Steel and a bit of Flint in this Head, that it may ſtrike Fire at pleaſure: They ſet alſo a Hammer by his Hand, which they ſay, he ſometimes makes uſe of beſides his Bow and Arrows, againſt evil Spirits. Being thus dreſs'd up, they place him upon a Table in form of an Altar, which generally ſtands behind their Cabins: Round this Altar they ſtick Branches of Pine and Birch, and border the Alley towards it with the ſame. The Victims they generally ſacrifice to theſe Idols are Rennes, which are a ſort of Deer: and ſometimes they offer other Beaſts, as Lambs, Dogs, Rats, and Hens, which they buy from the Merchants of Norway, for they have none in their own Country. After the Sacrifice, they place before the Idol a kind of Box made of Bark of Trees, full of Bits of Fleſh taken from every part of the Body of the Victim, with the Fat melted. Scheffer's Hiſtory of Lapland. Bartholin. Antiq. Danic.

THOROLD (Sir John) Son of Anthony Thorold of Marſton, in Com. Lincoln, Eſq; By his Wife Grizilla Wray, Daughter of Sir John Wray of Glentworth, in Com. prædict. Bar. This Family of the Thorolds is of Saxon Extraction, and has for many Ages been ſeated in Lincolnſhire. Thoroldus de Bukendale was Sheriff of that County before the Conqueſt; and, during the time of his Shrievaldry, gave his Mannor of Spalding for a Cell to the Abby of Croyland, as appears by the Date of the Charter. He was deſcended from one Thorold, Sheriff of Lincolnſhire, in the Reign of Kenulphus King of Mercia. Thorold, Benefactor to the Abby above-mention'd, was Brother to Godiva, Wife of Leofrick, Earl of Mercia, which Lady was a great Benefactreſs to the Town of Coventry, having perſuaded her Husband the Earl, to diſcharge that Place of the Burthen of a ſervile Tenure, (as Dugdale ſuppoſes,) upon condition of her riding naked through the Town. The Lady having the advantage of very long Hair, comply'd with the Terms, and had the Privileges agreed for made good to the Corporation: Since this remarkable Action, the eldeſt Daughter of the Family of the Thorolds, has always been Chriſten'd Godiva. About the Reign of Henry I. this Family intermarry'd with Marſton Heireſs of Marſton, where it ſtill continues. His Arms are Sable, Three Goats Salient, Argent. Ingulphus, pag. 65. Ed. Gale. Monaſticon Anglicanum, Vol. 1. pag. 306. Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. 1. pag. 9.

THORAX, a Mountain of Lydia near the Town of Magneſia or Maniſſo, where a certain Grammarian, called Daphitas, was crucified, becauſe he uſed to ſpeak ill of Princes in his Verſes; whence came the Proverb, Remember Thorax, when we would have one hold his Tongue leſt he might injure himſelf. Strab. lib. 14.

THORISMOND, King of the Wiſigoths, eldeſt Son of Thierry or Theodorick, who was killed in the Battel fought againſt Attila in 451. Thoriſmond was in this Fight himſelf, and was wounded. He came to receive the Crown after his Father's Death, but enjoyed it not above a Year and ſome Months, being then murther'd by his Brothers Theodorick and Frederick, as we learn from Idacius his Chron.

THORN, a Hanſe or Free Town of the Royal Pruſſia upon the Weſil; it's a ſtrong Place, and was built in 1234 by the Knights of the Teutonick Order, who were forc'd to deliver it to the King of Poland in 1454, in whoſe Poſſeſſion it remains. It's Famous both for the long Sieges it ſuſtain'd, and the Birth of the Famous Mathematician Copernicus. It was here alſo that Albert King of Poland died in 1501, and where the great Diſputes aroſe between the Bernardins and Jacobins, which were appeaſed in 1345. There was a Conference of Lutherans, Calviniſts and Roman Catholicks held here in 1645, which had no Succeſs: It was taken by the Swedes in 1655, but was retaken by the Poles in 1658, after a Siege of ſix Months. The Swedes recover'd it afterwards, and the Poles ſurpriz'd it again in 1665. It has a fine Univerſity. Harlſnoch. Diſſert. de Orig. Relig. Chriſt.

THORNDIKE (Herbert) Educated at Trinity-College in Cambridge, went into Holy Orders, and was made Prebendary of Weſtminſter in the Reign of King Charles II. He was a Perſon of unexceptionable Life and great Learning. His Works are, A Diſcourſe of the Primitive Form of the Government of Churches. A Diſcourſe of Religious Aſſemblies. A Diſcourſe of the Rights of the Church. Epilogus. De jure Finiendi Controverſias Eccleſiæ Liber. A Diſcourſe of the Penalties which a due Reformation requires. Juſt Weights and Meaſures.

THOROS, or Theodorus, King of Armenia, was Son of Haiton, whom he ſucceeded in the Kingdom. He could not abide that Amauris of Luſignan, his Couſin, ſhould have the Adminiſtration of the Kingdom of Cyprus, which King Henry his Brother had given him, and therefore confin'd Henry very cloſe, to make him give it to ſome other; but at laſt he was forc'd to ſet him at Liberty and come to a Peace. After his firſt Wife's Death, who was Daughter of Capeſan Emperor of the Tartars; he married Chelvis, Siſter of Henry King of Cyprus, and died in 1300, leaving Luion her Son, who ſucceeded him in the Kingdom. Hiſtoire de Raiamine du Cypre.

THRACIA, a great Province now called Romania, bounded on the South by the Archipelago; on the Eaſt, by the Propontis and the Black Sea; on the North, by Bulgaria; and on the Weſt, by Macedonia. It formerly had very famous and conſiderable Towns, as Abdera, Cypſele, Perinthus, Apollonia, Bizantium now Conſtantinople, Philippopolis, Adrianople, Trajanople, &c. The Hebre which runs by Adrianople, the Neſſus, and the Mariza, are the greateſt Rivers; and Rodolpe, Orbelus and Hæmus its moſt conſiderable Mountains. The ancient Thracians were diſtinguiſh'd amongſt themſelves, as well by Name as in their Manners, and ſcarce agreed in any thing but Barbarity and Brutality. They firſt had their particular Kings, afterwards became Tributary to the Macedonians; and Caius Scribonius Curio Proconſul, ſubjected them to the Romans. After this they were forc'd to follow the Deſtiny of the reſt of Greece, and fell under the Tyranny of the Turks, who are the only abſolute Maſters of it, ſince the taking of Conſtantinople by Mahomet II. The Thrauſi, mention'd by Livy for a Cuſtom of Rejoicing at Deaths, and Mourning at Births, were ſome of its ancient Inhabitants. This Province is twenty days Journey in length from Eaſt to Weſt, and ſeven broad. Strabo. Pliny, &c.

THRAPSTON, a Market Town of Naviſford Hundred in Northamptonſhire, upon the Eaſtern Banks of the River Nen, 53 Miles from London.

THRASEAS, or Thraſus, a pretender to Prophecy; told King Buſiris in a great Drought which laid Egypt waſte, that there was no other way to obtain Rain, but by Sacrificing to Jupiter all the Foreign Paſſengers. The Tyrant ask'd him what Country he was of himſelf: And having declar'd that he was a Stranger, Buſiris anſwer'd, That he ſhould be the firſt Sacrificed; which was performed accordingly. Ovid. lib. 3. de Arte Amandi.

THRASIMOND, or Thraſamond, King of the Vandals in Africk, ſucceeded his Brother Gondebaud or Gunthamunt in 496. They were all Arians, and great Perſecutors of the Orthodox. Gunthamaud iſſued three rigorous Edicts againſt the Orthodox Biſhops; ſo that thoſe left in Africk thinking their Church could not hold much longer, ordain'd a great number, that there might be ſome to defend the Flock againſt the Hereticks. Which this Prince took ſo ill, that he baniſh'd above a hundred of them into Sardinia, amongſt whom was St. Fulgentius, much admir'd by the King himſelf, for Learning and Eloquence; and this Perſecution laſted 27 Years. He made War againſt the Moors, but generally to his Diſadvantage; and at laſt the Governor of Tripoli, a Man of Piety and Courage, nam'd Cabaon, defeated and cut off moſt of his Troops, having prepar'd himſelf for the Battel by Prayer and Faſting; and Thraſimond died ſoon after this loſs in 522. Procop. lib. 1. de Bell. Vandal.

THRASYBULUS, Captain of the Athenians, beat the thirty Tyrants out of the City, and reſtor'd it to its Liberty: He afterwards wone ſeveral Victories in Thrace, took ſome Towns in the Iſle of Metelin, and kill'd Therimacus General of the Lacedemonians, in a Battel which was about the 62d of Rome. Two Years after he was kill'd in Pamphilia by the Aſpendians, who engag'd for the Lacedemonians. Xenophon. Diod. Sic. &c.

THRASYBULUS ſucceeded his Brother Hiero, Tyrant of Syracuſa, in the LXXVIII Olympiad, but was forc'd a Year after to retire into Lower Italy, where he liv'd like a private Man in the Town of Lecri. Diod. Sicul. lib. 11.

THRASYDEUS, Son and Succeſſor of Theron, Tyrant of Agrigentum: He was defeated by Hieron, and ſome time after kill'd by his Citizens, who thereby recover'd their former Liberty. Diod. Sic. lib. 11.

THRASYLAUS, a noble Athenian, who imagin'd that all the Veſſels which anchor'd at the Port of Pyreum near Athens, from whatever Country they came, belong'd to him; being a Perſon of Quality, they ſpared no coſt to bring him to himſelf, and when he recover'd from his Indiſpoſition, he ſaid, That he never had more Pleaſure, than whilſt he was Diſtemper'd, which he remembred very well. Adding, That they would have oblig'd him much, to let him enjoy a Happineſs that put him in Poſſeſſion of all things, without depriving any Body of the leaſt. Athenæus, lib. 12.

THRASYLLUS, an Athenian, very expert in Military Affairs; who governing the State of Athens with Thraſybulus Admiral of the Fleet, beat Mindarus a Lacedemonian, chief of the Peloponneſians, in a Sea-fight near the Town of Seſtos. Thucydides lib. 8.

THRASYLLUS, a famous Mathematician, much belov'd by Tyberius, whom he comforted when baniſh'd to the Iſle of Rhodes by the Emperor Auguſtus, with the hopes of ſeeing him ſoon again at Rome; and boldly told him, That the Veſſel they ſaw draw near the Iſland, came with ſome good News, which fell out accordingly; for Tiberius receiv'd Letters from Auguſtus and Livia, which recall'd him. Some add, That Tiberius, when in this ſame Iſland, deſign'd to have thrown Thraſyllus headlong from the top of a high Wall, becauſe this Learned Man knew all his Thoughts and Deſigns: But ſeeing him look Sad, and hearing his Anſwer, That it was becauſe he fear'd ſome ill Accident; he changed his Reſolution, not being able to put to Death a Man endued with ſuch great Knowledge. Dion. Sueton. Zonar.

THRASYMACHUS, a Rhetorician, Native of Calcedonia, was the firſt that taught the Artificial ranging of Words, and Cadence of Periods: He lived in Alexander the Great's time. Suidas makes mention of his Works.

THRASYMEDES, Son of Phylomelus, being deeply in Love with the Daughter of Piſiſtratus, and meeting her, in a great Solemnity kiſs'd her, which the Brothers looking upon as a great Affront, the Father ſpoke to them thus; If Puniſhment be the Requital of Love, what muſt we do to thoſe that hate us? Afterwards Thraſymedes having got ſome of his Companions together, ther, and obſerving his Miſtreſs ſacrificing on the Sea, he with Sword in Hand put the Attendants to Flight, and took her into his Ship; but as he was ſailing to Ægina, was taken by Hippias Piſiſtratus his eldeſt Son. Being brought before the Tyrant, he boldly bid him to do what he pleaſed; adding, That he deſpiſed Death, when he reſolv'd to take his Daughter away. Piſiſtratus admiring his Courage, freely gave him his Daughter in Marriage. Polyæn. lib. 5.

THRASYMENE, a Lake of Hetruria in Italy, now call'd the Lake of Perouſe in Ombria, a Province of the Church-lands upon the Frontiers of Tuſcany, ſeven Miles from Perouſe: The Italians call it Il lago di Perugia; and it's otherwiſe call'd Il lago di Caſtiglione, and Il lago di Paſſignano. This place is Famous for the Victory wone by Hannibal over the Conſul Flaminius. Plutarch in vita Flaminii.

THRIZUS, or Tryſus, a cruel Tyrant, who fearing that his hard Government ſhould occaſion ſome Conſpiracy againſt him, he forbad his Subjects upon pain of Death, to ſpeak to one another, either in publick or private, and this reach'd the very Geſtures and Signs they were oblig'd to make uſe of for neceſſary things. Whereupon one of the Subjects of more Courage than the reſt, bethought himſelf to go to the middle of the publick Market-place, where Sighing and Weeping in great Deſpair, without ſpeaking a Word, he drew all the People about him, upon whom Tryſus ruſh'd with his Guard, which the People, being rendred deſperate, diſarm'd, and then kill'd himſelf. Elian. l. 14. Var. Hiſt.

THRONBURG, a Market Town of Thornbury Hundred in the South-Weſt of Gloceſterſhire, on the Eaſt-ſide of the Severn, 89 Miles from London.

THRONES. Agents of the third Order of the firſt Hierarchy, ſo call'd, becauſe they ſerve as Thrones for the Majeſty of God. Dionyſ. de Cæleſt. Hierarch. cap. 6.

THRUSK, or Thriſk, a Market and Borough Town in the North-Riding of Yorkſhire, and Hundred of Budforth; it had anciently a ſtrong Caſtle, and now ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament. It's 153 Miles from London.

THUANUS JACOBUS AUGUSTUS, youngeſt Son of the Preſident de Thou, was much admir'd by all Great Men that were his Contemporaries, for his Prudence and Probity in the Diſcharge of his Office of Preſident a Mortier, and will be no leſs by ſucceeding Ages, for the Depth and Erudition of the Works he left behind him. He was born in 1553, and having ſtudied in the Univerſities of Paris and Orleans, travell'd into Italy, Flanders and Germany. His Father deſign'd him for the Church, and got Nicholas de Thou his Uncle, Biſhop of Chartres, to reſign his Benefices to him: But he quitted theſe after his Father's Death, was receiv'd Counſellor in the Parliament; and at laſt, through the Care of his Uncle Auguſtus de Thou, had the Survivance of the Place of Preſident a Mortier, and took Poſſeſſion thereof in 1595. He follow'd King Henry III. after the Barricado's at Paris, and was ſent by him along with the Sieur Schomberg into Germany, whence he went to Venice, where receiving the News of that Prince's Death, he return'd into France, where Henry IV. charm'd with his Learning and Integrity, often call'd him to the Council of State, and imploy'd him in important Negotiations, as to treat with the Deputies of the Duke of Merceur, and at the Conference of Surene, &c. After the Death of Amiot Biſhop of Auxerre, he nam'd him great Maſter of his Library: He was afterwards one of the Catholick Commiſſioners in the Famous Conference of Fontaine bleau, between Perron Biſhop of Evreux, and the Sieur de Pleſſis Mornai. During the Regency of Queen Mary of Medicis, this Sage Magiſtrate was one of the General Directors of the Treaſury; was deputed to the Conference of Loudun, and imploy'd in other important Buſineſs; which he diſcharg'd with ſo much Prudence, that he was eſteem'd the Cato of his Age, and the Ornament of France. The King join'd him in Commiſſion with Cardinal Perron, to reform the Univerſity of Paris, and to carry on the Royal College begun by his Care. In 1601 he was choſen Temporal Protector of the Order of St. Francis throughout the whole Kingdom of France, and then he took care to finiſh the Body of the Franciſcans Church at Paris. Notwithſtanding all theſe great Diverſions, he writ the Hiſtory of his Time in Latin, from 1543 to 1608, in CXXXVIII Books, a Work both for Subject and Style, comparable to the Performances of the Antients. He alſo left Memoirs of his own Life; and died at Paris 1617.

THUCYDIDES, a Greek Hiſtorian, of whom we know nothing certain, but what he tells us himſelf, neither do we know whether his Grandfather married the King of Thracia's Daughter, whence his Father had the Name of Orolas or Olorus, nor whether this Grandfather, call'd Miltiades, was akin to him of that Name, that eſtabliſh'd himſelf in Cherſoneſe, and was deſcended of the famous Miltiades; but what is more, is, that he was a Citizen of Athens, General of an Army in Thracia, where he was in great Credit, becauſe of the Gold Mines fallen to him, either by the King his Grandfather, or by the Wife he married. It's ſaid of him, that being at the Olympick Plays very young, when Herodotus read his Hiſtory there, and weeping at what he heard; the ſame Herodotus addreſſing himſelf to Thucydides's Father, ſaid, He eſteem'd him very happy in a Son, that gave ſuch early Proofs of his Affection for the Works of the Muſes. However he was unjuſtly baniſh'd by Cleon's Faction, for not ſuccoring Amphipolis; and during this Exile, imploy'd great Sums to procure Memoirs for the deſign he had to write his Hiſtory, which we have of his in eight Books. It was deſign'd to give an account of the War of Peloponneſus, which laſted 27 Years between the Commonwealth of Athens and Sparta, but dying as he writ the Succeſs of the 21ſt Year, he left the Work imperfect of the ſix laſt, which Theopompus ſupplied ſince, and Xenophon continued. Some think the eighth Book is not his, and attribute it to his Daughter, or to the ſame Xenophon; but the Learnedſt Criticks judge it to be Thucydides's own, and that Sickneſs hindred him to poliſh this part of his Work. Dionyſius Halic. writes, that Demoſthenes was ſo much taken with Thucydides's Style, that he wrote his Book over eight times. Cicero de Oratore ſpeaks of him thus, Graviter ſane & probe res geſtas & bella & prælia narrat Thucydides. And in the ſame place adds, Thucydides omnes dicendi artificio mea ſententia facile vicit. See Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. La Mothe le Vayer. Jugem. des Hiſt.

THULE, commonly taken to be Iſland in the Northern Ocean, but is more properly Schetland.

THURINGIA, or Thuringen, a Province of Germany in High Saxony, with the Title of Landtgraviat; it's between Miſnia, Franconia, the Dutchy of Brunſwick, the Country of Heſſe, and Principality of Anhalt. It formerly had its particular Kings, but was afterwards ſubject to the Kings of France of the firſt Race. Now it's divided between the Duke of Saxony, Weimar, the Count of Mansfield, and ſome others. Erford the chief Town is under the Elector of Mayence. It is inviron'd with woody Mountains, but the Country it ſelf is plain, pleaſant, and fruitful in Corn, has ſome Mines of Gold and Silver, and rich Pits of Salt, ſo that it wants nothing but Wine. It's about 120 Miles ſquare, ſo populous, that it has twelve Earldoms, 140 Cities, as many Market Towns, 150 Caſtles, and 2000 Villages.

THURISMOND VII. King of the Goths, ſucceeded his Father Theudorede in 451. and in the firſt Year of Marcian's Reign, overcame the Huns: After his Triumph he became ſo very Inſupportable, that his Brothers Theuderic and Frederick, cauſed him to be kill'd in 453: Before he fell he reveng'd himſelf on the Murtherers, killing many of them with a Knife which he forced out of one of their Hands, before the loſs of his Blood quite weakned him. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

THURNAI (Simon) a Doctor of the Sorbonne, Learned, but ſo Inſolent, that defending a Theſes of the Incarnation of the Word, with the general Applauſe of all the Auditors; he ſpoke thus, O Jeſule, Jeſule, Quantum in hoc quæſtione confirmavi Legem tuam & exaltavi; profecto ſi malignando & averſando vellem fortioribus argumentis ſcirem illam infirmare & deprimendo improbare. He became ſo very ignorant after this, that his Son having ſpent a whole Year to teach him the Lord's Prayer, and the 24 Letters to no purpoſe, diſcontinued, crying, Quare cecidiſti de Cœlo Lucifer. Matth. Paris. in Hiſt. Angl. ad Ann. 1201. Polydor. Virg. lib. 5. Hiſt. Angl.

THYESTES, Son of Pelops and Hippodamia, Father of Egiſthus and Brother of Atreus, he committed Inceſt with his Siſter-in-Law Europa, Wife of Atreus, who to revenge himſelf of the Injury, cut the Child's Noſe off as ſoon as born, and preſented it at Table to Thyeſtes. Poets ſay, that the Sun turn'd back and hid it ſelf at the ſight of ſo horrid an Action. Ovid. Met.

THYMBREUS, a Sir-name given to Apollo, either from ſome Plains of Troas call'd Tymbræ, or from a Town of that Name, wherein he was chiefly adored. Strabo ſays, there was a Temple dedicated to Apollo Thymbreus, where the River Thymbris diſcharges it ſelf into the Scamandre, which is the place where Achilles was kill'd by Paris, whence came the Fiction that Achilles was kill'd by Apollo's Arrows. Virg. lib. 3. Æneid.

THYMELE, a certain Buffooning Dancer and Muſician, whom the Emperor Domitian was very much taken with. It was from her that the Songs formerly ſung in Bacchus's Honour, were call'd Thymelies or Thymeliennes. Mart. lib. 1. Epigr.

THYMOETHES, Son of Priamus and Ariſbe, his Mother being brought to Bed of him the ſame day that Hecuba bore Paris, and the South-ſayers having foretold, that Troy ſhould be ruin'd by one that was born that day, Priamus commanded that both ſhould be put to Death; but the Order was executed only on Thymoethes, Paris being preſerv'd by Hecuba. Others ſay, that Thymoethes was Ariſba's Husband, and that his Son being put to Death on the account aboveſaid, he deferr'd his Revenge until he contributed to the taking of Troy; for though he knew that the Grecians were in the wooden Horſe, yet he was one of the firſt that preſſed to take it into the Town. Servius, in lib. 2. Æneid.

THYNNE, (whoſe firſt Name was Bouteville,) came into England in the Reign of King John; who during his Wars with the Barons, ſent unto his Subjects in his Countries of Poictou and Gaſcognie for Troops to aſſiſt him. They ſent him a great Army of Gaſcoignes under the command of Sauery de Malleon or Malo Leone, and of Poictevins, commanded by Geoffery and Oliver de Bouteville, two Brothers, who joined with his Forces here, made him for ſome time Victorious over his Rebellious Barons, and particularly took Beavoire Caſtle, (now the Earl of Rutland's) from Albini, call'd Pincerna, then Earl of Arundel; for which good Service Geoffrey de Bouteville was conſtituted Governor of it, and Knighted. All which is recorded by Matt. Paris, Polydore Virgil, and ſeveral Hiſtorians after them. In which Command he carried himſelf ſo fairly, that the Earl of Arundel gave him Lands in Shropſhire, part of his two great Mannors of Stretton and Cardington, (where he ſettled himſelf,) which are ſtill by a little change of Language call'd Botfield's Lye or Botfield's Place; at Botfield's Lye they remain'd long very conſiderable: And the Grandſon of Sir Geoffrey, Sir Adam Bouteville, in the Reign of Edward I. was one of the Knights who went out of Shropſhire to ſerve that King at the Siege of Caer-Laverock, as appears by an ancient Manuſcript in Parchment ſtill remaining in that County. Afterwards in the time of the Wars between York and Lancaſter, that part of England adhering to the Title of York, the Family of Bouteville was oppreſs'd, and the greateſt part of their Eſtate taken away in the Reigns of the Three Henry's. However, ſome of the Family continued at Botfield's Lye, and remain there at this day, keeping the Name of Botfield, and give the ſame Arms with the Thynne's. But another Branch of the Family took the Name of Thynne, ſtill retaining Bouteville, writing Thynne alias Bouteville, as appears by the Firſt Edition of the Works of Chaucer, collected and publiſh'd by William Thynne alias Bouteville, dedicated to Henry VIII. That William Thynne was in great favour with Henry VII. and Maſter of his Houſhold, who lyes buried in Barking Church near the Tower. Sir John Thynne, the Raiſer of the preſent Family, was Nephew to that William, and bred up by him, who having render'd himſelf conſiderable by his Parts and Travels, was taken into the Service of the Duke of Somerſet, Lord Protector, and made his chief Officer. He was Knighted in the Battel of Muſcleborough againſt the Scots, whilſt the Wounds he receiv'd there were bleeding, and had the Scotch Lion given him for an Addition to his Arms. Afterwards he grew into ſo great favour with the Protector, that he was eſteem'd his chief Counſellor; and when that Duke was twice impriſon'd in the Tower, was both times committed thither; and tho' he eſcaped with his Life, was the laſt time fined 6000 l. and had ſeveral great Offices and good Leaſes taken from him. During the Reign of Queen Mary, he was by the Lady Elizabeth, afterwards Queen, made the chief Officer of her Family, by the ſtile of Comptroller; but in thoſe dangerous Times of Perſecution, he retired into the Country, and lived ſeldom with her, eſpecially in her Confinement; for which reaſon, he was not advanc'd by her when ſhe came to Reign. Living in the Reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI. when Abbies and Chauntries were diſſolv'd, by his Favour at Court he purchaſed many of thoſe Lands; and marrying the Daughter of Sir John Greſham (by whom he had above 2000 l. a Year) left a conſiderable Eſtate to his Family, and match'd his four Daughters to ſome of the beſt Families in the Weſtern Parts of England. His Son (for diſtinction call'd Sir John Thynne the younger) married a Daughter of Sir Rowland Hayward, by whom he had 1000 l. a Year in Land, and left Sir Thomas Thynne his Son and Heir; whoſe firſt Wife was Mary Daughter to the Lord Audley; and his ſecond, Katharine Howard, Grandchild of Thomas Viſcount Bindon, ſecond Son to the Duke of Norfolk. By his firſt Wife he had Sir James Thynne, who married the Lady Iſabella Rich Daughter to the Earl of Holland, but had no Children, whereby his Eſtate deſcended to his Brother's Son Thomas Thynne who was murther'd. After whoſe Death, by virtue of an Entail, the Eſtate came to Thomas Thynne created Viſcount Weymouth by King Charles II. Son of Sir Henry Frederick Thynne and Mary his Wife, Daughter of Thomas Lord Coventry, Keeper of the Great Seal of England. Which Viſcount Weymouth married the Lady Frances Finch, Daughter of Heneage Earl of Winchelſea and the Lady Mary Seymour, Daughter of William Duke of Somerſet. His Lordſhip's Arms are, Barry of Ten Topaz and Diamond. Matth. Paris, Polydore Virgil, Dale's Catalogue of the Nobility of England, &c.

THYNNEE, in Greek Θυνναῦον, was a Fiſh-Sacrifice which the Fiſhermen of Greece offer'd to Neptune, to move him to be favourable to their Fiſhery. Cœlius Rhodiginus makes mention of this Sacrifice: This is by ſo much the more remarkable, that we find by it that Agrippa miſtook in his Book of the Vanity of Sciences, when he ſays, cap. 76, that Fiſh was never offer'd in Sacrifice.

TIARA, a kind of a round and high Cap, incircled with three Golden Crowns, ſet with Jewels in three Rows one over another, ending in a point that ſupported a Globe, with a Croſs over it. Nicholas I. choſen Pope in 858, was the firſt, who to ſhew his Sovereign Authority, took one Crown. Boniface VII. created in 1294, added a ſecond; and Urban V. choſen in 1362, took a third. Anaſtaſius Biblioth. in Nichol. I.

TIBARENIANS, according to Strabo and Pliny, were certain People, Neighbours of the Chalybes near the Black Sea, who were ſuch ſtrict Obſervers of Juſtice, that they would not ſet upon their Enemies until they gave notice of the Place and Time of Fight. When the Women were brought to Bed, the Husbands lay down and were ſerved by their Wives as if it had been they who had been brought to Bed. Valer. Flaccus, l. 5. Nymphodor in Aſiæ Periplo, &c.

TIBERIAS, or Genezareth, commonly call'd Tabaria, a Town of Paleſtina in Galilee. Herod gave it this Name in Conſideration of the Emperor Tiberius. There is alſo the Sea of Galilee called the Sea of Tiberias. After the taking of Jeruſalem by the Chriſtians under Godfrey of Bovillon, Hugh of St. Omer coming into the Holy Land, receiv'd the Principality of Galilee and Lordſhip of Tabarie of Baudovin I.

TIBERIUS (Claudius Nero) Son of Tiberius Nero and Livia Druſilla, whom Auguſtus married. Authors ſpeak of him as a dangerous, cruel, and miſtruſtful Prince, as infamous for his Voluptuouſneſs as for his Cruelty. He was rais'd to the Empire more by the Artifices of his Mother Livia, than the Choice of Auguſtus, who never approv'd his wild Inclinations, nor his lewd and Debauch'd Courſe of Life. He began his Reign after the Emperor's Death, about the 19th of Auguſt, A. C. 14. His Government at firſt was pretty mild, whether he diſſembled, or had ſo much Conſideration for his Mother, that he would not diſoblige her: but this laſted but a ſhort time; for never was there ſo great an Hypocrite, nor ſo falſe a Prince. His fear of loſing ground in his Authority, was always ſtronger than the Love of his neareſt Kindred and deareſt Friends. The Death of Germanicus, the great Object of his Jealouſie, and of his Wife Agrippina, were as unhappy as bold Proofs hereof. Their Sons Druſus and Nero were treated with the ſame Rigor. His beſt Friends could not eſcape his hands. After he had raiſed Sejanus to the higheſt degree that a Subject could aſpire to, he miſerably made him away, involving all thoſe he ſuſpected, or had a mind to be reveng'd of, in his Fate. The Senate was depriv'd of its nobleſt and moſt vertuous Members, through the Malice of Informers, the Inſtruments of his Cruelty and Miſtruſt. Nor was he leſs monſtrous in his ſenſual Pleaſures, which were not ſo well hid, nor ſo cloſe kept in the Iſle of Caprea, where he liv'd for a time, but Suetonius diſcover'd them. Tiberius had for his firſt Wife Vipſania Daughter of Agrippa, whom he was forc'd to repudiate to marry Julia Daughter of Auguſtus, whom he alſo Divorc'd a little after. He had a Son call'd Druſus by his firſt Wife, who left three Children, two Sons, one of which died young, and the other was kill'd by Caligula; and a Daughter twice married, firſt to Nero Son of Germanicus, and after his Death to Rubellius Blandus Father of Rubellius Plautus, whom Nero put to Death. In the mean time, Life became troubleſome, and a burthen to Tiberius, who had in himſelf a Puniſher of all his wicked Actions. But as if he deſign'd to make People forget them, he choſe a Succeſſor worſe than himſelf, Caligula the Son of Germanicus, though he ſeem'd leſs for him than for the young Tiberius, being often heard to ſay of Caligula, That he was a Serpent whom he bred for the People of Rome, and a Phaeton whom he raiſed for the Ruin of the Univerſe. His Death is differently diſcours'd of. Suetonius holds, That Caligula gave him a lingering Poiſon; others ſay, that they refuſed to give him Food as he recover'd of a Fever; ſome others, that he was ſtifled with a Bolſter thrown upon his Face, when he was heard to call for his Ring that they had taken off his Finger in one of his ſwooning Fits: And add, That when Caligula perceiv'd he would not let the Ring go, for he declar'd him his Succeſſor to whom he ſhould give it, ſtrangled him with his own hands. But be it how it will, it's certain Tiberius died a violent Death, being 78 Years old, whereof he Reign'd 22, and near ſix Months. Suetonius ſays, That this Emperor ſpoke Greek and Latin very well, and writ ſome Lyrick Verſes, intituled, Complaints upon Julius Cæſar's Death; and compoſed Greek Verſes in imitation of Euphorion, Rhianus, and Parthenius, whoſe Pictures he placed in the Publick Libraries. This made the Learned of thoſe Times to write in Praiſe of theſe Poets, and dedicate their Works to Tiberius. Suet. Tacit. Dion. &c.

TIBERIUS (Flavius Aniſius Conſtantinus) originally of Thracia, was choſen by Juſtin the Younger to govern the Empire, and afterwards created Cæſar by him: He fully anſwer'd the Expectation that People had of his Probity and Underſtanding. After Juſtin's Death he reign'd alone, and had the good Fortune to beat the Perſians, who were become very formidable under the Conduct of their King Coſroes. He died near Conſtantinople, in 582, after a Reign of three Years and ten Months, with all the Glory and Reputation of a great Prince: it's true, he was the leſs regretted, becauſe he left for Succeſſor his Son-in-law Mauriſius, from whom the World expected as happy and prudent an Adminiſtration, as from himſelf. He created him Cæſar at his Return from the War of Perſia, and made an excellent Speech, related by Nicephorus, lib. 18. cap. 6.

TIBERIUS, a famous Impoſtor, who in 726 took this Name, and would have had People believe that he was of the Race of the Emperors; thinking thereby to ſet himſelf upon the Throne. He ſeduced ſome People of Tuſcany, who proclaim'd him Auguſtus: but the Exark, aſſiſted by ſome Roman Troops, beſieg'd him in a Caſtle whither he fled; and having taken him, cut off his Head, and ſent it to the Emperor Leo Iſauricus. Maimbourg Hiſtoire des Iconoclaſtes.

TIBET, a Kingdom of Great Tartary, that comprehends many other Kingdoms: Towards the North it has Tartaria Propria and Deſerta: Towards the Eaſt Tangut and Catay; the Indus to the South, and Usbok to the Weſt. Several ſay it's part of the Turqueſtan. It's very Cold here ſix or ſeven Months of the Year; ſo that they are forc'd to lay up Proviſions for that time, by killing great numbers of Cows and Sheep in the beginning of September, and putting them into Salt. The Tibetans exactly obſerve their Laws, and puniſh Criminals with great Severity, firſt cutting off their right Leg, and putting out one of their Eyes; two days after they cut off their other Leg, and put out the other Eye: and if they do not die of this, they cut off both their Hands. They have an Averſion for Mahomet's Law, and cannot abide to be call'd Heathens. Their Prieſts are call'd Lamas, and obſerve the ſame Religion, though their Ceremonies and Cuſtoms differ. Some marry, others live ſingle, and ſeveral in Communities under Superiors. All live on Charity, and go a-begging, though many of them are very Rich. They believe that God is Three and One, and call the firſt Perſon Lama-Conjoc, the ſecond Cho-Conjoc, and the third Sanguya-Conjoc. They alſo hold that there is a Paradiſe for the Good, and a Hell for the Bad. Theſe Lamas have a Ceremony of Bleſſing Water, by reading ſome Prayers in a Book, which they eſteem much; then mixing Gold, Coral, and Rice with it, they ſprinkle ſome in their Houſes to drive the Devils away, and burn Frankincenſe in their Kings Palaces. Beſides this, they attribute to them the Cure of ſeveral Diſtempers, and other Superſtitions. They call the People to Church by ſound of Trumpet, but this is but twice a Year; the Lamas go oftner, and ſometimes ſtay three or four Months there together, to pray and confer upon what is contain'd in their Books. They drink in Mens Skulls, and have Beads of dead Mens Bones, to make them remember the Dead. Deſcription, of Tibet join'd to the Hiſtory of what paſſed in Ethiopia in 1624, 25, and 26.

TIBRE, which the Latins call Tiberis, and the Italians Teverre; a River of Italy, which has its Source in Mont Falterota, near Monte Corvajo in the Apennin, between the States of Florence and Romandiola; receives the Chiana, Nera, Teverone, and forty leſſer Rivers; runs by Rome, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Tuſcan Sea, a hundred Miles from its Source by two Mouths, whereof the leſſer, call'd Fiumicino, forms a Port built by the ancient Emperors, and which the Popes have endeavour'd to preſerve.

TIBULLUS (Albius) a Roman Gentleman and Latin Poet, who liv'd in Auguſtus's time. He was well acquainted with Horace, Ovid, and all the other famous Authors of that Age. He accompanied Meſſala Corvinus in his Expedition to Corfu, where being taken very ſick, and believing he ſhould die, he wrote himſelf this Epitaph:

Hic jacet immiti conſumptus morte Tibullus
Meſſalam Terra, dum ſequiturque Mari.

But Campaigning being not his Talent, he gave it over, and apply'd himſelf to the writing of Elegies and Love-Verſes, of which there are four Books extant. Lilius Giraldus Hiſt. Poet.

TICHO-BRAHE, Son of Otho-Brahe, Lord of Knuſtrop and Beatalbida, was born in 1546. Having obſerved at fourteen Years of Age, that an Eclipſe of the Sun hapned in the very ſame moment that the Aſtrologers foretold; he look'd upon it as a very great matter, and took a fancy to learn that Science: And it's ſaid, that his Deſire to make new Diſcoveries in Aſtronomy, put him to the Expence of above 200000 Crowns in Gold. He did not only excel in Aſtronomy, but alſo in Chymiſtry, wherein he made rare Diſcoveries, and cur'd ſeveral Diſeaſes that ſeem'd incurable; diſtributing his Remedies with much Liberality and Charity to all that needed them. He had a great Genius and Inclination for Poetry, and diverted himſelf often in making of Verſes, of which that which Martial uſed to ſay in another Caſe is true, Sunt bona, ſunt quædam mediocria, ſunt mala plura. He lov'd to joak extremely, but could not abide to be joak'd upon, nor to be contradicted. It's ſaid that he was alſo ſo ſuperſtitious, that if he met an Old-woman as he went from home, he would return back inſtead of continuing his Journey; and look'd upon the meeting of a Hare as an ill Omen. He was extremely belov'd by William Landtgrave of Heſſe, who was alſo well skill'd in Aſtronomy. As for his Syſtem, he eſtabliſh'd it thus: He places the Earth immovable in the Centre of the World: That the two Luminaries, viz. the Sun and Moon, make their Courſes round it, eſtabliſhing that ſame Globe in the mean time as the Centre of the Firmament, and Primum Mobile: for making the Earth ſtand ſtill, he was forc'd to imagine a Primum Mobile, as Ptolomy did. He makes the Sun Centre of the Motion of Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn: And becauſe the Motion of the Earth ſhock'd a great many Aſtronomers and Philoſophers, as ſeeming contrary to Reaſon, Senſe, and Religion, many rejected Copernicus's Syſtem to embrace Tycho's, who gave much the ſame account of the Celeſtial Appearances; but both of them at laſt quitted Ptolomy's Hypotheſis, as not agreeing with new Obſervations, ſince the Invention of Teleſcopes. Ticho travell'd much, and was eſteem'd by ſeveral Princes, who would fain have engag'd him to them. Frederick II. King of Denmark, gave him the Iſland of Weer or Huena, where he built the Caſtle of Vraniburg, or Town of Heaven, to make his Aſtronomical Obſervations, and the ſeveral Inſtruments and Machines that have been the Admiration of the Learned: There he invented his New Syſtem, wherein he only chang'd ſomewhat of that of Copernicus. After Frederic II. died he left Denmark; and the Emperor Rodolphus II. having offer'd him his Protection, he retir'd to Prague, where he died in 1601, the 55th of his Age, of a Retention of Urin, occaſion'd by a fooliſh reſpect to the Emperor, as he rid with him in his Coach. He wrote, Progymnaſmata Aſtronomiæ inſtaurata, de Mundi Ætherei recentioribus Phænomenis, Epiſtolas Aſtronomicas, &c. Gaſſend. in ejus Vita. Thuanus Hiſt. lib. 126. Voſſius de Scientia Mathematica, &c.

TICKHALL, a Market Town of Strafford Hundred in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, having a diſtinct Liberty, call'd, The Honour of Tickhall, 119 Miles from London.

TIDSWALL in Darbyſhire, ſo call'd from the Ebbing and Flowing Well near to it call'd Wedon-Well, one of the ſeven Wonders of the Peak; an indifferent Market Town, beautified with a fair Church, and a Free School. It's 120 Miles from London.

TIEL, Tila, a ſtrong Town in the Province of Gelderland, ſeated on the North ſide of the Vahal, two Leagues from Bommel to the Eaſt, and five from Vtrecht to the South-eaſt. This Place is mention'd by Sigebertus Gemblacenſis in the Year of Chriſt 451, under Valentinian III. Emperor of Rome, and was then taken by Attila the Hun. Under the Kings of the Franks it became an Earldom, and was called Comitatus Teiſterbantiæ. In the Year 1304 it was firſt walled, during the Wars between the Brabantines and Geldrians; after which it grew greatly, and was every day improved in Strength and People, till it was able to defend it ſelf againſt any Enemy: but then the narrow Streets made it leſs delightful and healthful. The Franks gave this Place to the Biſhoprick of Vtrecht, by whom it was given as a Fee to the Dukes of Brabant. In the time of Reinald II. Earl of Gelderland, it was by the Mediation of Philip King of France exchanged for Haſden, and re-united to Gelderland in the Year 1336. It has ſuffer'd very much in ſo many Ages. In 1009 it was taken and burnt by the Normans: In 1136, and 1301, it ſuffer'd much by War and Fire: In 1286 Reinaldus I. took and ravag'd it: In 1315 Otho Earl of Bury took it: In 1332 Reinald II. took and diſmantled it: But the moſt famous Siege was that made by Charles V. in the Year 1528, with an Army of 20000 Men, which yet were not able to take this place. This Town was anciently alſo one of the Hans Towns, and included in the League of Commerce, for ſo the ancient German Word Hanzen ſignifies, it being the ſame with our Engliſh Word Hanſell. Georg. Hornius Diſſertationes Politicæ, p. 26.

TIENSU, an Idol of the People of Tonquin in the Indies towards China, which they adore as the Patron of Arts, and ſacrifice to it that it may give Wit, Judgment, and Memory, to their Children. Tavernier Voyage des Ind.

TIGNONVILLE (William) Provoſt of Paris under Charles VI. condemn'd two Scholars, in Orders, to be hang'd, for a Murther committed in 1408. But becauſe the Univerſity at that time had great Power, he being afraid that the Scholars would come to reſcue the Priſoners, got them executed in the Night by Torch-light: They hung on the Gibbet three or four Months, during which time the Univerſity ſued ſo vigorouſly for Reparation of this Breach of Privilege, that Tignonville was at laſt forc'd to cut the Bodies down, kiſs them three times, and accompany them with his Officers to the Convent of the Maturins, whither they were carried in a Coffin upon a Cart, led by the Executioner, mounted on the foremoſt Horſe, and clad in a kind of Surplice of white Linnen. Their Epitaph is ſtill to be ſeen in the Maturins Cloiſter on the Chapter-ſide. Mem. de l'Vniverſité.

TIGRANES, King of Armenia, was one of the moſt powerful Princes of his Time. The Syrians, tir'd with the Revolutions that had waſted their Country, put themſelves under his Protection. He maintain'd the War againſt the Romans, and was overcome by Lucullus and Pompey; but upon yielding part of his Eſtates to theſe Conquerors, they declar'd themſelves Protectors of the reſt, and ſuffer'd him to live in Peace. Juſtin, Livy, &c.

TIGRIS, Tigil or Tegil, in Hebrew Hiddekel, a River of Aſia, which has its Source in Armenia Major. This Word Tigris, which in the Language of the Medes ſignifies an Arrow, expreſſes the Rapidity of this River, which croſſing the Lake Arethuſe, runs into a Pit or Cavern at the foot of Mount Taurus, and thence into another Lake call'd Thoſpites, and buries it ſelf a ſecond time under the Ground; but after having receiv'd ſeveral Rivers, it ſeparates Syria from Meſopotamia, divides it ſelf in two parts, forms a great Iſland, and where it joins again, receives the Name of Paſitigris, runs through the Lakes of Chaldea, and at laſt empties it ſelf, by two mouths, into the Perſian Gulf. The Emperor Trajan deſign'd to cut a Canal, to join the Tigris with the Euphrates; but having found that the Euphrates was the higheſt of the two, he was afraid it ſhould empty ſo much of its Water into the other, that it would become unnavigable. Monſieur Thevenot, who ſail'd upon this River, obſerves, that it's very crooked, full of Iſlands and Banks of Stone. Mr. Tavernier adds, That it's divided below Bagdat, and that there are the Ruins of a great City between the two Branches; the Walls ſtill ſtanding are ſo very broad, that ſix Coaches may go a-breaſt on them. At the point of the Iſland form'd by theſe two Streams, are three ſtrong Caſtles. As for its Rapidity, Corvin Novoſor ſaith, it goes as far in one day as a Horſe-man can run in ſeven. Other Travellers who ſaw it ſay, That its Rapidity makes the Lookers-on giddy. The overflowing of this River makes the neighbour Country fruitful in Corn, Rice, Pulſe, and Dates. Strabo, Plin.

TIKEN-HALL, in Darbyſhire, where are made great ſtore of Earthen Pots, diſperſed into ſeveral Countries.

TILBURY, a Fort in Eſſex, ſeated on the Thames over againſt Graveſend in Kent. Here the four Proconſular ways made by the Romans, croſſed each other. This place is famous for the Reſidence of St. Chad, Biſhop of the Eaſt-Angles, when about 630 he Converted and Baptiz'd that Nation. Alſo for an Encampment here by Queen Elizabeth's Order in 1588, when the Spaniſh Armado was expected.

TILLEMONT, in Flemiſh Thienen, in Latin Tena, or Tenaæ, or Tillemontium, a conſiderable Town of the Spaniſh Netherlands in the Dutchy of Brabant on the River of Geet, three Leagues from Louvain. It was one of the four Principal Towns of Brabant, until it was almoſt ruin'd during the Civil Wars between the French and thoſe of Liege. The Duke of Guelderland plunder'd it in 1507, but the Inhabitants of Namur purſu'd him, and having ſurpriz'd his Camp in the Night near St. Hubert in Ardenne, recover'd the Booty, and took many Priſoners. This Town was Surrendred to Don John of Auſtria in 1578, and has a very fine Church dedicated to St. Germain Biſhop of Paris. Guicciardin.

TILENUS (Daniel) a Sileſian, and a Miniſter of Sedan, liv'd in the 17th Century, and follow'd the Opinions of Arminius, and had a warm Diſpute with Peter du Moulin, a Gomariſt or Calviniſt Miniſter. Spondan. A. C. 1613. La Mercure Francois ſur l' An. 1613. Pag. 277. & dena.

TILON COLUP, a famous Impoſtor, who call'd himſelf Frederic II. About 1284, he had much of that Emperor's Air, and could give an account of his Life, Wars and Adventures to the leaſt Circumſtances, becauſe he was one of his Domeſticks; he appear'd in Germany 34 Years after Frederic the Second's Death, which happen'd in 1250, the 54th Year of his Age. He gain'd Credit to his Impoſture by telling his Tale thus: That finding after all his Misfortunes, they had a deſign to poiſon him, he reſolved to retire from the World, and ſhut himſelf up in a Monaſtery; and that feigning to paſs into Sicily on this Deſign, he entred Apuleia, and went to a Caſtle call'd Forentine, where he pretended Sickneſs, that having truſted the Secret to a Lord who had a little before quitted his Service, and had then a faithful Servant with him; he by their means procur'd the Body of a Man who died the day before, which he in the night time drew up into his Chamber by the Window, and put in his Bed, and went out at the Window himſelf, and that it was this Body which his Son Mainfroy buried at Palermo inſtead of his: That for himſelf he arriv'd at the Chartreuſe of Squillace in Calabria in a Diſguiſe, where for a Sum of Money and ſome Diamonds, he was receiv'd; and the Lord that accompanied him having a Brother there, took the Habit alſo. That after Charles of Anjou had cut off his Grandchild Conradin's Head in 1268, he came to another Chartreuſe Convent in Champagne, near the Town of Langres, call'd Luny, whence afterwards he came into Germany. And thus, either by his Cunning or Witchcraft, he drew not only ſimple Burgeſſes, but alſo ſome Princes and great Lords to his Party; amongſt others the Marquis of Miſnia and Thuringia; and being receiv'd by thoſe at Nuiz, he had the Boldneſs to write to the Emperor Rodolphus I. to quit the Empire; who under a pretext of Willingneſs to comply, made uſe of all means to ſeize his Perſon; and having gain'd the Inhabitants of Wetzlar in the County of Heſſe, he cauſed him to be brought back again to Nuiz. Others ſay, That this Impoſtor being beſieg'd in the Town of Nuiz, the Inhabitants deliver'd him to the Emperor, who condemn'd him to be burnt as a Magician. De Rocoles les Impoſteurs Inſignes.

TIMAGORAS, an Athenian, who being ſent Embaſſador to Darius, had the Complaiſance to adore him after the Perſian way; which being told to the Athenians at his Return, they condemn'd him to Death for that Meanneſs, which they reckon'd diſhonourable to their Country. Val. Max.

TIMARATE, one of the three Old Women which Jupiter made uſe of to pronounce his Oracles at Dodona; the two others were call'd Promenie and Nicandra. The Theſſalonians call'd theſe Women Peliades; and becauſe Πελειάδες in Greek ſignifies Pigeons, ſome feign'd they were Pigeons that pronounced the Oracles of Dodona. *Archealog. TIMARIOTS, Soldiers who enjoy the Revenues of certain Lands allow'd them by the Grand Signior to ſerve in his Armies. Theſe Fiefs they poſſeſs are call'd Timars, perhaps from the Greek Τιμὴ, which ſignifies Price and Honour; for Timar is the recompence the Sultan gives for the Services done him. This Revenue is ſettled by Letters Patents from the Grand Signior, and may be from 6000 to 20000 Aſpers lacking one. For the Sum of 20000 compleat, is the Revenue of a Zaim. Theſe Timariots are oblig'd to Equip a Horſe-man for every 3000 Aſpers per Annum; theſe Horſe-men are call'd Gebelins, and are diſpoſed in Regiments that have their Colonel with Colours and Kettle-Drums; they are never excus'd from ſerving in Perſon with the Train, which their Eſtates obliges them to bring into the Field with them; they are oblig'd to ſerve, whether it be by Sea or Land; for if they happen to be Sick, they muſt get themſelves carried in Litters; if Children, then are they carried in Baskets or Hampers, and ſo inur'd from their Youth to the Fatigues of War. The moſt part of the Timariots have the Revenue of their Lands for them and their Heirs; and others enjoy them but during Life. In this caſe, or if they happen to die without Children, theſe Lands return to the Crown, ſometimes much increaſed by the Induſtry and good Management of thoſe that poſſeſſed them; ſo that the Grand Signior Letting them to others according to their Worth, gets a greater number of Soldiers by the Bargain. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

TIMÆUS, a Pythagorean Philoſopher of Locri in Italy, wrote a Book De Natura, ſtill extant: This is that Timæus whoſe Name Plato makes uſe of in his Dialogues. Voſſius.

TIMOCHARES, Native of Ambracia, a Town of Epirus in Greece, and Officer of Pyrrhus King of Epirus; he came ſecretly to Fabricius a Roman Conſul, promiſing to poiſon the King if he might be rewarded. Fabricius having ſent to acquaint the Senate with this Propoſition, diſpatch'd Embaſſadors immediately to that King, to adviſe him to have a care of his Domeſticks, who had a Deſign upon his Life, but ſaid nothing in particular of Timochares. Aul. Gel. lib. 3. cap. 8.

TIMOCLEA, a Noble Theban Dame, being forc'd by one of Alexander the Great's Captains, after the taking of Thebes, found this means to revenge her ſelf; for as that Inſolent Fellow preſſed her to tell him where her Treaſure was hid, ſhe told him that ſhe had thrown it into a Well, whither he joyfully deſcended: And when ſhe found by his Voice that he was at the bottom, ſhe threw ſo many Stones down upon him, that ſhe cruſh'd him to Death. This Action was praiſed by Alexander, who thereupon order'd that no ſuch Violence ſhould be offer'd for the future to Perſons of her Birth. Plutarch.

TIMOLEON, a famous Corinthian Captain, who when his Brother Timophanes had made himſelf Maſter of the Commonwealth's Army, with deſign to Uſurp the Sovereignty, he preferr'd the Love of his Country to that he had for his Brother, and conſented that Satyrus their Brother-in-Law ſhould put this new Tyrant to Death. He was afterwards choſen to go to Sicily to deliver the Town of Syracuſe from the Oppreſſion of the Tyrant Dyoniſius. And before he departed, being in the Temple of Delphos, a Fillet that had Crowns painted on it, drop'd on his Head, from the place where Preſents were hung, which was look'd upon as a promiſing Omen of his Victory. Having vanquiſh'd Dionyſius, he baniſh'd him to Corinth, raſed the Citadel of Syracuſe, and carried his Victorious Arms againſt Icetas chief of the Leontins, People of the ſame Iſland, and againſt Mago General of the Carthaginians, that deſign'd to make themſelves Maſters of Sicily. He afterwards overcame the Tyrants Mamercus and Hippo, the one of Catana and the other of Meſſina, and deliver'd the whole Iſland from the Oppreſſion it groan'd under. He loſt his Sight about the latter end of his days, which oblig'd him to live a private Life, wherein he enjoy'd the Glory that he had acquir'd by his great Actions. After his Death they raiſed him a Sumptuous Monument, environ'd with fine Galeries, and Fencing Schools to teach Young Men in. This Place was afterwards call'd Timoleonte. Diodor. Plutarch. Cornel. Nepos.

TIMOMACUS, a Byzantin Painter, who drew the Pictures of Ajax and Medea, which Ceſar bought for 80 Talents, which are about 48000 Crowns, and placed them in the Temple of Venus. Plin. Hiſt. Nat. lib. 35. cap. 11.

TIMON, an Athenian, a Savage Man, and Enemy to Society, was ſirnam'd Miſanthropus, that is, Man-hater. Being one day ask'd, Why he hated all Mankind beſides young Alcibiades, whom he cheriſh'd? Made Anſwer, That it was becauſe he foreſaw he ſhould be the occaſion of the Ruin of the Athenians. And being one day in great Company, though he always avoided ſuch; he ſaid aloud, That he had a Fig-tree on which ſeveral had hang'd themſelves, but that deſigning to build a Houſe, he intended to cut it down; wherefore he adviſed them, that if any had a mind to make uſe of the Occaſion, they ſhould do it quickly. His Tomb was on the Sea-ſhore, on which was Ingraven an Epitaph, wherein he made Imprecations againſt thoſe that ſhould read it. He liv'd in the time of the Peloponneſian War. Laertius. Plutarch.

TIMOPHANES, a Corinthian Captain, Brother of the Famous Timoleon, was choſen General of the Horſe in the War which the Corinthians had againſt the Argives. Some time after, they gave him the Command of 400 Horſe, raiſed for the Service of the Commonwealth, with which he deſign'd to Uſurp the Sovereign Authority. See Timoleon.

TIMOSKA, Ankudina, who call'd himſelf Son of Zuski, Great Duke of Muſcovy, was Native of Vologda, Capital of a Dutchy of the ſame Name in Muſcovy, and Son of a Linnen-Draper, call'd Demko Ankudina. The Archbiſhop of this Town took him into his Service, becauſe he was a Handſom Man, and had a good Voice, and afterwards gave him his Neece in Marriage: This puffed him up with ſuch Pride, that he ſtil'd himſelf Son-in-Law of the Vaivode of Vologda in his Letters, and liv'd at ſuch an extraordinary Rate, that he ſpent his Wife's Portion. This and the Archbiſhop's Death made him go thence to Moſcow, where he got a place in the Exciſe Office; but following his old Courſe, laviſh'd away a great part of what he receiv'd, and fearing to be brought to an account, and ſeeing that his Wife reproach'd him with his way of Living, he ſhut her up in a Stove, ſet Fire to his Houſe, and fled to Poland ſo ſecretly, that it was thought at Moſcow that he periſh'd with his Family when his Houſe was burn'd. Timoska made his eſcape thus in 1643, but in 1645 finding that the Great Duke of Moſcovy was ſending an Embaſſador to that Crown, and that ſo he might be diſcover'd, he went to Chmielmski, General of the Coſſacks, and beg'd his Protection againſt the Perſecutions made againſt him, becauſe he was near akin to Zuski that was Great Duke of Moſcovy in 1610. As his Cheat began to take, he was diſcover'd by a Moſcovite, which forced him to fly to Conſtantinople, where he became Mahometan; but having play'd ſome Prank here, he made his eſcape to Rome, abjur'd Mahometaniſm, and turn'd Roman Catholick: From Rome he went to Vienna in Auſtria in 1650, thence to Tranſilvania to Prince Ragotski, who recommended him to Queen Chriſtina of Swedeland: This Princeſs receiv'd him very kindly, conſidering him as Son of the Great Duke Zuski, until hearing his Character by an Embaſſador of Alexis Michel, Great Duke of Moſcovy; ſhe had him taken up at Ruel in Livonia, whither he had fled; but he found means to make his eſcape out of Priſon, went to Bruxelles, thence to Leipſic, where he made Profeſſion of Lutheraniſm. A little after, the Duke of Holſtein put him into the hands of thoſe the Great Duke ſent in 1653, to carry him to Moſcow; when he was put to the Queſtion, he maintain'd that he was a Prince, and Son to the Great Duke Zuski; but when his Mother and Son were brought before him, he would not ſpeak a word more. Whereupon his Sentence was pronounc'd to be led to the great Square, there to have both his Legs and Hands cut off, and then his Head, which was to be ſtuck upon a Stake, and his Body to be thrown amongſt Carrion. Olearius's Voyage of Moſcovy.

TIMOTHEUS, Son of Conon the Athenian, a famous Captain, who added much to the Glory left him by his Father; for he was both Eloquent, well experienced in War, and withall extraordinary Lucky: The Athenians erected him a Statue in the Publick Square at Athens for the Victory he won over the Lacedemonians; and becauſe he environ'd the Town with a Wall, ſome envious People placed his Image near that of Fortune, that brought him Towns ready taken in her Nets as he lay faſt aſleep. He was juſtly offended at this proceeding, ſaying, That the Honour of his Actions was due to him and not to Fortune. And it's added, That Fortune irritated at his Ingratitude, croſſed his Deſigns ſo much, that he never afterwards had any Happy Succeſs. Cicero commends him for his Learning and Wit. Ælian. Var. Hiſt. lib. 13. Cic. lib. 2. de Offic.

TIMOTHEUS, the Mileſian, Son of Therſander the Muſician, that added the 10th and 11th Strings to the Harp. He flouriſhed in Philip of Macedon's time; and it's ſaid, the Sweetneſs of his Muſick rais'd Alexander the Great's Courage, who felt himſelf moved to great Actions by the Sound of ſuch Inſtruments. Suidas. Pliny.

TIMOTHEUS, Firſt Biſhop of Alexandria, ſucceeded his Brother Peter in 380. The Antients give him the Character of a very Holy Prelate. He died in 385. The Theodoſian Code makes mention of him, in a Law Publiſh'd by Theodoſius the Great, by which Lay-Judges were forbid to take any cognizance of Eccleſiaſtical Cauſes. Lib. 3. *de Ep. Jud. TIMOTHY the Evangeliſt, Diſciple of St. Paul, Son of a Gentile, but his Mother was a Chriſtian Jeweſs; he was ſtoned to Death as he oppoſed the Impious Worſhip of Diana, and the Superſtition of the Gentiles in one of her Feaſts. Euſebius Baronius.

TIMOTHY II. called Ælurus, an Eutychian; he was ordained Biſhop by two Heretick Prelates that were depoſed for their Hereſie, perſecuted all the Clergy that were not of his Party, tormented the Laicks, and committed ſo many other Violences, that the Governour of Alexandria forced him out of Town; at which time his Party by his Order, murthered Proterius. Timothy was afterwards baniſhed by the Emperor Leon, Baſiliſcus re-eſtabliſhed him again, and he began his Violences with more Fury than before, but at laſt he poiſoned himſelf about 477. Evagrius.

TINE, a River of Northumberland in the North of England, riſes Weſtward out of the very Borders of Scotland; from whence it takes its courſe South-Eaſtward till it falls into the Sea, towards which it becomes a Boundary betwixt Northumberland and the Biſhoprick of Durham. Amongſt the Rivers it receives into its Channel, the Read and Alow are the Principal. Newcaſtle ſtands upon the Tine, and moſt of our Coals from theſe Parts, are brought down that River to Sheales, and from thence by Sea.

TINE, an Iſland of the Archipelago towards Europe, one of the Cyclades; it was firſt called Hydruſia from its Waters, then Ophiuſa, by reaſon of its Serpents; and at laſt was called Tenos, whence was form'd the word Tine. This Iſland was famous in former times for a Temple and little Grove conſecrated to Neptune, whither People came in great Numbers to Sacrifice to that Falſe God. The Town, or rather the Chorion of Tine, is a great League from the Sea at the foot of a Fortreſs, which belongs to the Venetians as well as the reſt of the Iſland. The Country has excellent Wines, very delicious Figs, and a great quantity of Rabits: The Inhabitants Traffick in Silk, and are Papiſts, there being but few of the Grecian Church. Magin and Ariſtotle ſay, that there was a Fountain in this Iſland, whoſe Water did not mix with Wine. Pliny, Magin. Atheneus.

TINGMOUTH, a Sea Town of Exmiſter Hundred in the South-Eaſt parts of the County of Devon, called Tingmouth, from its Situation on the Channel at the mouth of the River Ting, a ſmall, open, and obſcure place, more like a Hamlet than a Town, the Reſort only of Fiſher-men, who here had ſome few Thatch'd Houſes which were burnt by the French Fleet in 1690.

TINMOUTH, Lat. Tunnocellum, Tinomothum, a conſiderable Sea-Port and Caſtle in the Borders of Northumberland, and the Biſhoprick of Durham upon the River Tine, which divides theſe two Counties, and here falls into the German Sea, having paſſed by Newcaſtle, called from it Newcaſtle upon Tine. In the Reign of William II. Robert Mowbray Earl of Northumberland, truſting too much to the Strength of the Caſtle of Tinmouth, was taken Priſoner by that Prince after a ſharp Siege.

TIPASA, an ancient Town of Mauritania Ceſarienſis in Africk, formerly a Biſhoprick, but now ruined, and no more than a Village called Saca, ſituated near Alger. It was here the famous Miracle happen'd in 484, when Cyrola, Patriarch of the Arians, was Biſhop under Hunneric King of the Vandals. This Tyrant being furiouſly enraged againſt the Orthodox, ſent his Officers with expreſs Orders to cut out all their Tongues who refuſed to become Arians. This barbarous Order was put in execution, and the Inhabitants came in great numbers to profeſs the true Religion: And after their Tongues were cut out, they cry'd with a louder and ſtronger Voice than ever, That Jeſus Chriſt was True God. And that which made this look ſtranger, was, That a Young Man born Dumb, began then to ſpeak like the reſt. This cannot be called an Imaginary Wonder, nor one of thoſe ſubtile Illuſions people's Credulity take for Miracles, there are ſo many Witneſſes who atteſt it, as not only having heard, but alſo ſeen it themſelves. Victor Uticencis then in the place, ſaid, If any body doubted the Truth of it, he might come to Conſtantinople, where, amongſt ſeveral others, he ſhould ſee the Deacon Reparatus, who ſpoke very well without a Tongue, and is therefore in great Eſteem in Zeno's Court. The Hiſtorian Procopius, who ſerv'd in the Field under the Emperor Juſtinian, and was a Perſon of great Reputation, declares, That in his time, there were ſeveral of theſe Perſons at Conſtantinople, who ſpoke with eaſe, without Tongues. Æneas Gazeus, a Platonick Philoſopher who liv'd at the ſame time, had a mind to be ſatisfied of the truth of this wonderful Report; and after having examined the Mouths of ſeveral of theſe venerable Perſons, found their Tongues cut out by the Roots. Maimbourg. Hiſt. de Arianiſm.

TIPORA, a Kingdom of the firm Land of the Indies, beyond the Ganges, with a Capital of the ſame Name. It ſtretches to the North and Weſt of the Kingdoms of Pegu and Arracan: The Inhabitants are ſubject to the Swellings of the Throat, becauſe the Waters are unwholſom. Davity, de l' Aſie.

TIPPERARY, a County of the Province of Munſter in Ireland, called by the Iriſh Cnutae Thobruideardum. It's bounded on the Eaſt with the County of Kilkenny, on the Weſt by that of Lymerick, on the South by the Counties of Waterford and Cork, and on the North by Gallway, from which it's ſeparated by the Shannon. The principal Places of it are Caſhel, Caryck, Clonmel, &c. It is one of the Titles, as a great part of it is in the Poſſeſſion of the Duke of Ormond. The Soil is very good both for Paſture and Corn.

TIPPING (Sir George) of Wheatfield in Com. Oxon. deſcended from an ancient Family, originally of Tipping-Hall, within the County Palatine of Lancaſter, was Knighted upon the Borders of Oxfordſhire, where he receiv'd King James I. in his Royal Progreſs, 30 Jul. 1605, being then High Sheriff of the County. William Tipping of Merton in the ſame County, Eſq; (his Grandfather,) match'd with Agnes, Daughter of Thomas, and Siſter and Heir to William Burt of Shobbington in Com. Bucks, Gent. whoſe Son Thomas Tipping Eſq; of Draycot, in the County of Oxford aforeſaid, by Margaret his Wife, Daughter of John Latton of Chitton. in Com. Berks, Eſq; was Father to the ſaid Sir George, who had Iſſue by Dorothy, Daughter to John Borlace Eſq; of Little Marlow in Buckinghamſhire; John Tipping Eſq; who wedded Anne the Eldeſt Daughter, and one of the two Coheirs of Sir Chriſtopher Pigot of Dodderſhall, in the ſame County, Knight, which Ann (extracted by Heirs General, from the ſeveral Families of Gifford, Iwardby, Miſſenden, From, Spigurnell, Brewſe, Lords of Buckingham and Barons of Brember, Milo Earl of Hereford, Newmarch Lord of Brecknock, Langſton, Pigot of Laughton, Edy and Saunders,) was Mother to Sir Thomas Tipping of Wheatfield, Knighted by King Charles II. 15 Jun. 1660, who married Elizabeth the younger Daughter, and Coheir of Sir White Beconſaw of Moils-Court in Hantſhire, Knight, deſcended from the Heirs General of the Families of Aſhton, White of Chriſt-church, Fenrother, Bond, Lutton, Prowz and Long of Glaſtenbury.

TIRAQUEAO (Andrew) a famous French Lawyer, living in the 15th and 16th Century; who, beſides his being eminent in the Practice of his Profeſſion, wrote ſeveral conſiderable Treatiſes, as, Of the Laws of Marriage: The Privileges of Nobility: Commentaries upon Alexander ab Alexandro, &c.

TIRCONNEL, Lat. Conatia, a Caſtle and County in the Province of Ulſter in Ireland, bounded on the South-Weſt and North, by the Virgivean Ocean, on the Eaſt by Tyrone and Colrane, alſo called the County of Dunghall. The Country is Champain and full of Harbours. It extends from North-Eaſt to South-Weſt, above 80 Engliſh Miles, and almoſt 30 broad; ſo that it ſeems to be one of the greateſt Counties in Ireland, but it has no conſiderable place in it except Dunghall; the River Dugh and the Lake of Foyle ſeparate it from the reſt of Ulſter.

TIRESIAS, one of the moſt famous South-ſayers of Antiquity, was Son to Everus and the Nymph Chariclo; being originally deſcended from Eudæus, one of thoſe who were born of the Serpent's Teeth, ſown by Cadmus. Tireſias was blind, the occaſion of which Accident is differently related: Some ſay, The Gods blinded him, for his having diſcover'd more than was convenient; others will have it, That Minerva pull'd out his Eyes for being ſurpriz'd by him, Diſrob'd in the Fountain Hyppocrene: And 'tis alſo commonly ſaid by the Poets, That Juno ſtruck him blind for deciding a Caſe between Jupiter and her, to her Diſſatisfaction; but to ſupport him the better under his Misfortune, Jupiter gave him the Faculty of Divination. The Poets likewiſe feign, That Tireſias was metamorphos'd into a Woman, but return'd to his own Sex again. Strabo ſays, he was Bury'd near the Fountain Tilphouſa, and that the Thebans worſhipp'd him as a God. Homer. in Odyſſ. Calimach. in Lavacrus Palladis. Ovid, lib. 3. Metam. Strabo, lib. 9.

TIRIDATES, King of Armenia, Brother to Vologeſes King of the Parthians, who after ſeveral Diſputes in the Field with Corbulo, Proconſul of Syria, being at laſt Defeated, came to a Treaty with the Romans, and receiv'd the Crown from Nero, as a Homager to that Emperor. Tacit. lib. 5. Annal.

TIROL, a Province of Germany, giving the Title of an Earldom to the Houſe of Auſtria; it lyes between Bavaria, Carinthia, Saltsbourg, Swiſſerland and Italy. It's divided into Tyrol, which derives its Name from a ſmall Borough, in the Biſhoprick of Trent and Breſſenon, and into the County of Bregens, Feldkirk, Fludents, and Montfort. The Capital Town is Inſpruck, the others are Bolzano, Bregens, Brixen or Breſſenon, Trente and Hall. This Country is very fertile, and rich in Mines of Gold and Silver, watered by the Rivers Etſch and In, the Alpes of Trent divide it. Tirol had its particular Princes, but through default of Heirs Male it fell to the Emperor.

TIRRISS, one of the Scotch Weſtern Iſlands, eight Miles in length and three in breadth, being the moſt Fruitful of them all, in Cattel, Corn, Fiſh and Fowl. It has a Lake of Freſh Water, with an Old Caſtle, and an Harbour convenient for Gallies. Buchan.

TISIPHONE, one of the three Furies of Hell, called ſo from the Greek words Tiſis, which ſignifies Revenge, and Phonus Murther, becauſe ſhe puniſhed Murthers. This Fiction was invented to repreſent the unfortunate Condition of the Wicked, both in this and the next World.

TISSERAN (John) a Franciſcan of Paris, founded the Order of Filles Penitentes, the Penitent Magdalens in 1493. he was a great Preacher, and is ſaid to have Converted ſo many, that ſome were ſuffered to beg through the Town for the reſt, until Lewis of Orleans, afterwards 12th King of the Name, gave them the Hotel of Orleans in 1500, where they lived until 1572 that Queen Catherine of Medicis placed them elſewhere. Genebrard.

TITAN, Son of Heaven and Earth, or Veſta, eldeſt Brother of Saturn, whom, for all that, at his Mother's Requeſt he ſuffered to enjoy the Crown, upon condition that he ſhould bring up no Male Children, that ſo the Kingdom ſhould fall again to his own Off-ſpring: But Jupiter, Neptune, and Pluto being ſav'd and brought up by Rhea their Mother; Titan and his Children ſeeing themſelves fruſtrated of their Hope, took Arms againſt Saturn, overcame him, and kept him Priſoner until his Son Jupiter ſet him at liberty and quite defeated the Titans. Diodorus and others reckon but ſix Titans and ſix Daughters; of this Number were Japet Father of Prometheus, and of Hyperion Father of the Sun and Moon: and it's hence the Sun is called Titan, and the Moon Titanis. The Egyptians reckon 45, and ſome confound theſe Titans with the Giants, but others diſtinguiſh them, and ſay, the Titans made War againſt Saturn, and the Giants againſt Jupiter. Tit in the Phœnician Language ſignifies Mud, which agrees with the Fable of the Titans, being Children of the Earth. Nat. Comes.

TITARESIUS, now the Titareſo, a River of Theſſaly, which has its Source at the Foot of Mount Titare, paſſes near the Town of Farſa, and diſcharges it ſelf into the River Falampria, formerly called Peneus. Hiſtorians obſerve, that Falampria will not receive it, and that after it has carried its Waters, which ſwim a-top like Oil, it caſts them out of its Channel, and forces them to take another Courſe, becauſe they come from Styx. But Lucan ſays, that Titareſo being part of the River Styx, ſo much eſteemed by the Gods themſelves, ſcorns to mix its Water with them of any ordinary River. Plin. Lucan.

TITHON, Son of Laomedon King of the Trojans, and Brother of Priamus, was taken away by Aurora for his Beauty, and carried into Ethiopia, where ſhe had a Son by him called Memnon. Poets add, that at Aurora's Requeſt, Jupiter rendred Tithon immortal; but that forgetting to deſire he ſhould not grow old, he fell ſo very decrepid, that taking no Pleaſure in the Joys of this World, he obtained of Aurora to be changed into a Bird called Cigale, which never dies, but changes its old Skin and grows young again.

TITIAN, a Painter; the moſt univerſal Genius of all the Lombard School, the beſt Colouriſt of all the Moderns, and the moſt eminent for Hiſtories, Landſchapes and Pourtraicts, was born at Cadore in the Venetian Territories, Anno 1477, being deſcended from the ancient Family of the Vecelli. He was bred up in the School of Gio. Bellino, at the ſame time with Georgione: But improv'd himſelf more by the Emulation that was betwixt him and his Fellow-Diſciple, than by the Inſtructions of his Maſter. 'Tis true, he was cenſur'd by Michael Angelo Buonaroti, for want of Correctneſs in Deſigning; but that Defect was abundantly ſupply'd in all the other Parts of a moſt accompliſh'd Artiſt. He made three ſeveral Pourtraicts of the Emperor Charles V. who Knighted him, created him Count Palatine, and aſſign'd him a conſiderable Penſion out of the Chamber of Naples. He alſo Painted Philip II. Solyman the Magnificent, Emperor of the Turks, two Popes, three Kings, two Empreſſes, ſeveral Queens, and almoſt all the Princes of Italy. He was ſo happy in his Conſtitution, that he never had been ſick till the Year 1576, when he died of the Plague, Aged 99. Ridolphi vies des Peint de l' Etat d' Veniſe. Vaſſary vies des Peint. A ſhort Account of the moſt Eminent Painters, bound up with Dryden's Tranſlation of Freſnoy.

TITICACA, Tiquicaca, a vaſt Lake in the Kingdom of Peru; the beginning of which is 40 Leagues from Cuſco to the South. It is about 80 Leagues in compaſs, and in ſome Places 70 or 80 Fathoms deep. When it is agitated by furious Winds, it rageth like the Sea, but has no Communication with the Ocean, being 60 Leagues from the South Sea, and parted from it by vaſt Mountains. It has many and ſome very large Iſlands poſſeſſed by the Indians, who ſecure in them their beſt Goods. Acoſta ſaith, it receives 10 great Rivers, and it has one Out-let, not large but very deep, ſo rapid withal, that no Bridge can be laid over it, nor Boat paſs it; but the Indians have found a way to paſs by a Bridge of Ropes made of Graſs, ſo ſtrong, that Man and Beaſt paſs ſecurely over them. The Waters are brackiſh, yet not ſo ſalt as the Sea, but thick and not drinkable. It has only two ſorts of Fiſh, but plenty of Water Fowl. The Outlet paſſeth to the South into a ſmaller Lake, 50 Leagues from this called Paria and de Aulagis, which has no Out-let, but is thought to paſs into the South Sea by ſubterraneous Caverns. Laer. p. 458.

TITUL, a ſtrong Fort and Town ſeated at the Fall of the Tibuſcus into the Danube, upon an Hill four German Miles from Belgrade, and three from Peter Waradin, and well Fortified, according to the ancient way with Towers. It was Taken the 25th of July 1688, by the Imperial Forces, and was thought a very convenient Poſt to ſecure the Bridge at Peter Waradin, and promote the Taking of Belgrade. Five hundred Janizaries that were in it, Surrendred at the firſt Summons, though they had 18 Pieces of Canon, and Victuals and Ammunition for a long Siege.

TITUS, the Emperor, was eldeſt Son of Veſpaſian and Flavia Domitilla. His Father, at his coming to the Crown, left him the care of the Wars of Judea, which he ended by the Taking of Jeruſalem, and had the Honour of a Triumph. He ſucceeded Veſpaſian in 79, and was ſirnamed The Delight of Mankind, for his great Clemency, Liberality and Mildneſs. He had all the Vertues of a great Prince; and amongſt the reſt, his Liberality was very remarkable, and Hiſtory has recorded that excellent Saying of his, when having ſpent a day without giving any thing, he cry'd, Friends, we have loſt this Day. He was a great Lover of Learning, and compoſed ſeveral Poems in Greek and Latin. His Reign was but two Years, ten Months, and twenty Days, for he died A. C. 81, the 41ſt of his Age. Domitian his Brother is thought to have poiſoned him, that ſo he might come to the Throne. Sueton. Joſephus. Eutrop. &c.

TITUS LIVIUS, a Latin Hiſtorian, Native of Padoua; he came to Rome, where his Merit ſoon acquired him great Friends, whereof Auguſtus was one: This Prince's Favour help'd him with means to have faithful Memoirs for the Compoſure of his Hiſtory, whereof he wrote part at Rome, and the reſt at Naples, whither he retir'd ſome times to work with leſs Interruption; and after Auguſtus's Death, he return'd to his Birthplace, where he died in the 4th Year of Tiberius's Reign, the very ſame Day that Ovid died, as Euſebius obſerved. His Hiſtory which began with the Foundation of Rome, ended at the Death of Druſus in Germany; it was not then divided into Decads, but in 140 Books, whereof we have but 45; nor do theſe follow in order neither: We want the ſecond Decad, and we have but the firſt, the third, fourth, and one half of the fifth, found at Worms by Simon Grynéus; and ſince that time the beginning of the forty third Book was found among the Manuſcripts of the Library of Camberg. It's true, this Fragment was not received without ſome Debate. Francis Bartholin, who brought it out of Germany into Italy, Anthony Querenge and Gaſpard Luſignan Author of the firſt Impreſſion, believ'd it Authentick. Voſſius and ſome others were againſt it, ſaying, it could deceive none but ſuch as had Midas his Ears. Before this Hiſtory, Ti- tus Livius writ ſome Philoſophical Dialogues, which he dedicated to Auguſtus, according to Seneca. Quintilian aſſures us, that he gave excellent Precepts of Rhetorick in a Letter directed to his Son; and Suetonius obſerves, that he was choſen amongſt the learnedſt Men of his Age to have the care of the Inſtruction of young Claudius, afterwards Emperor. Yet his Hiſtory is what he got moſt Reputation by; for ſome have given him the ſame Commendation the Rhetorician Seneca gave Cicero, viz. That he was as great in his Genius, as the Romans were in their Empire: And Pliny the Younger obſerves, that a Spaniard came to Rome from Seville or Cadez, then thought to be the extremity of the Earth towards the Weſt, to have the Satisfaction to ſee and diſcourſe with him. Sueton. Voſſius.

TITUS, a Diſciple of St. Paul, whom that Apoſtle made Biſhop, or rather Archbiſhop of Crete; we have a Canonical Epiſtle written to him. He is ſaid to have Preach'd the Goſpel in Dalmatia, and died in Crete, being 84 Years of Age. Euſeb. Hiſt. Hieron. De Script. Eccl. Baron. in Annal. & Martyrol.

TITYRUS, the Shepherd's Name made uſe of in the Bucoliques of Virgil and Theocritus. He was called thus from the Greek Word Tityros, which ſignifies the Reeds whereof Shepherds made their Flutes and Flagelets.

TITYUS, Son of Jupiter and the Nymph Elare, Daughter of Orchomenus. This Nymph being with Child, and Jupiter fearing Juno's Indignation, hid her in a Cavern under Ground until ſhe bore Tityus, who was of a prodigious Bigneſs. Elare dying in the Labour, the Earth nouriſhed and brought the Child up, who therefore was ſirnamed The Son of the Earth. He was afterwards ſo raſh to attempt the Honour of Latona, Apollo's Mother; for which being ſhot to Death by his and Diana's Arrows, he was hurl'd to the bottom of Hell, where his Body ſtretched out at large, covered nine Acres of Land; and a Serpent, or Vultur, according to Homer, continually fed upon his Liver, which grows again with the Moon. Ovid. Apollonius Rhodius.

TIVERTON, a Market and Burrough Town of Tiverton Hundred in the County of Devon, ſituate at the Confluence of the Rivers Leman and Ex, and is a Town of good Account and great Trade for Cloth. It hath a fair Stone-Bridge, is governed by a Mayor and twelve Burgeſſes. It's 136 Miles from London.

TIVOLI, upon Teverone, a Town of Italy in Campania di Roma, with a Biſhoprick. Latin Authors call it Tibur. It's 15 Miles from Rome, much viſited by Travellers for its Paintings, Antiquities, Fountains, Palaces, and Gardens, which make it one of the fineſt Places of all Italy. It was built by Cardinal Hippolyto of Eſt. The Cataracts of the River Terevone have formed Vaults in the Rocks, in which Sibylla Tiburtina is ſaid to have lodg'd. There are ſtill ſome Remains of a little Temple to be ſeen, and ſaid to have been dedicated to this Sibylla: Others will have it, that it was dedicated to Hercules, by reaſon of this Inſcription found in the Town, Herculio Saxano, or, To Hercules of the Rock. Half a League from Tivoli is a Lake which is four or five hundred Paces round, and very deep: The Water being Sulphureous, People Bath themſelves for many Diſtempers, in a little Brook called Sulforata that runs from it. The Lake is very remarkable for many floating Iſlands that ſwim upon it, all covered with Reeds, and the Earth of the Iſland ſo thick that long Poles cannot reach the bottom. There is no other way to gueſs at the Depth of this Lake, but by obſerving how long it is after a Stone is thrown into it e'er a Bubble riſes. The biggeſt of the Iſlands is about 25 Paces long and 15 broad. The reaſon given for theſe floating Iſlands, is, that the Lake abounding with Springs of Sulphureous Waters, its Bubbles raiſe a great deal of rarified Mud with them, which ſwimming a-top, and ſticking to Bullruſhes and Herbs, grows bigger and bigger by the Acceſſion of the like Subſtance. Theſe Iſlands thus formed of Porous and Sulphureous Earth, do not ſink, but yield Ruſhes, as other Marſhes do. There are floating Iſlands near St. Omer which are inhabited; Pliny makes mention of ſeveral. J. Spon. Voyage of Italy, 1675.

TLASCALA. The City of Tlaſcala is ſeated to the Eaſt of Mexico, in 20 Degrees of North Lat. ſurrounded by ſteep Rocks and Precipices, in which it has fruitful Valleys, and well watered by Springs and Rivulets. The Inhabitants of this City, ancient Enemies of the Mexicans, joined with Cortez, and enabled him to take Mexico; who obtained from Charles V. that they ſhould never pay any other Tribute to the King of Spain but a Sheaf of Wheat for every Perſon, which amounteth to above 13000 Buſhels in the Year. The Spaniards have fixed here a Biſhop's See, and extended the Bounds of the Dioceſe from Sea to Sea 100 Leagues. This City is a very great Mart of Cattel, Cochineale, and all Indian and Spaniſh Merchandize; but the Biſhop's See was removed in 1550 to Penubla de los Angelos.

TLEPOLEMUS, Son of Hercules and Aſtyoche, whom Hercules carried from Epyre or Corinth, a Town of Peloponneſus; having killed Lycimnius his Uncle, Son to Mars, he fled his Country; and equipping a Fleet, landed in the Iſle of Rhodes, where he made himſelf Maſter of three Towns, whereof he was declared King. In the time of the Trojan War he came to the Aſſiſtance of the Grecians with nine Ships, but was ſlain by Sarpedon, King of Lycia. Homer.

TMOLUS, a Mountain of Phrygia, upon the Frontiers of Lydia, famous for the Saffron and Wine gathered on it. The River Pactolus runs thence. The modern Name is Tomalitze.

TOBOLSK, a Town of Moſcovy, Capital of the Province of Siberia. It has on one ſide the River Irtim, and on the other Tobol, from whence it has its Name.

TOCHO, a famous Goth, ſo expert an Archer, that he never miſs'd beating an Apple off the Top of a Stick in any place within the reach of his Bow. This being reported to Haraud his King, he was willing to ſee the Experiment, and commanded that he ſhould ſhoot an Apple off his Son's Head: He obeyed, and arm'd with three Arrows, placing the Child where he could ſee nothing but the Apple, ſhot it juſt in two. The King asking afterwards what he carried the other two Arrows for? He made Anſwer, that it was to ſhoot Both at him for the Injuſtice of his Command, if he had the misfortune to hurt his Child. Bonfrerius.

TOKAY, a very ſtrong Town in Upper Hungary, with a Citadel, upon the River Bodroch, which there diſcharges it ſelf into the Teiſſa or Theiſs. This Town was taken by the Turks, but the Emperor retook and kept it until 1683, that Count Tekeli ſeiz'd it, who loſt it again in 1685. Tekeli's Life.

TOLEDO, upon the Tage or Taje, Toletum, in Carpetanis, Capital of New Caſtile in Spain, with an Archbiſhoprick and Primacy. The Situation is very odd, being a Rock ſeparated from high Mountains by the River Tagus. The Top is a kind of Platform where the Church and Caſtle are built; the reſt is all covered with Houſes. The Town is big; its Cathedral, the Palace of the Archbiſhop, and that which Charles V. built, deſerve to be ſeen. Toledo has been the Reſidence of the Kings of the Wiſigoths and ſome Moors, under which laſt Alfonſus VI. called The Valiant, conquer'd it in 1085. The Archbiſhop of Toledo is Primate of the Kingdom, and born Chancellor of Caſtile. He has 19 Suffragan Biſhops, and is eſteemed one of the greateſt and richeſt Prelates in Chriſtendom, his Revenues amounting to 30000 l. per Annum. There was formerly a very remarkable Palace in this City, of great Strength, always kept lock'd up with Bolts and Irons, becauſe it was generally believed that the Ruin of Spain ſhould accompany or ſoon follow the opening thereof. But when Rodericus, thinking that there was ſome Treaſures laid up in it, broke the Doors open, he found nothing but a Cheſt full of Linnen, repreſenting odd Shapes and Apparels, with this Inſcription, A tali gente exitium Hiſpaniæ imminet, which prov'd true; for Rodericus was overcome, and all the Gothiſh Nobility ſlain ſoon after by the Saracens and Moors. This Town is thought to be the Centre of Spain, being nine Days Journey from Corduba to the North, from Lisbon to the North-Eaſt, from St. Jean de Luz to the South, and ſo much from Valencia and Almeria to the Weſt. There has been a great many Councils held at Toledo, the firſt of which met in the Year 400, where amongſt other things they publiſh'd a Confeſſion of Faith againſt the Hereſies then on foot, and more particularly againſt the Priſcilianiſts, who committed great Diſorders in Spain. There was likewiſe twenty Canons made here for the Regulation of Diſcipline.

TOLEDO (Don Pedro de) was born in this City. He gave a remarkable Inſtance of his Probity when made Governor of Milan, in which Poſt he was put by Philip IV. at the beginning of his Reign. The firſt day he came to his Government, a Noble Man of that Country hoping to gain an Intereſt in him, ſent him a fine Preſent of all ſorts of Wild-Fowl; Don Pedro as ſoon as he had receiv'd 'em, order'd 'em to be made ready, and ſent 'em back juſt fit to be ſet upon the Table; and by this generous Return got rid of that croud of Preſents, which People ſeldom ſend but with a deſign to corrupt thoſe whom they either fear or have occaſion to make uſe of. Quevedo.

TOLEN, or Ter-Tolen, an Iſland and Town of the Low Countries in Zeland, at a little Diſtance from the pleaſant Place of S. Martin of Dyck. It has two other pretty conſiderable Towns, and ſome good Villages.

TOLET (Francis) Cardinal, one of the moſt Learned Divines of his time, was born at Corduba in Spain, in 1532. He ſtudied in the Univerſity of Salamancka, and was call'd the Monſter of Ingenuity, by Dominico Soto. Afterwards he went to Rome, and after ſeveral other conſiderable Preferments, was made Cardinal by Pope Clement VIII. in 1593. He was a great Admirer of Equity and Juſtice, as appears from his promoting the Reconciliation of Henry IV. with the See of Rome, notwithſtanding he knew his own Prince, the King of Spain, was againſt it; for which Fairneſs and Impartiality, that King of France had a great regard for him. He died in 1596; having written Learned Commentaries upon ſeveral Books of the Scripture, as upon St. John, Twelve Chapters of St. Luke, &c. He wrote likewiſe, Sums of Caſes of Conſcience, or Inſtructions for Prieſts in Eight Books: Commentaries upon Ariſtotle, and a great number of other Tracts. Spond. in Annal. Hilarion de Coſta. Alegamb. Nicholas Antonio, &c.

TOLHUYS, a Place of Betau in the Dutchy of Cleves in Germany, upon the Rhine, become famous ſince the French ſwam over that River in 1672 to fight the Dutch, being intrenched on the other ſide and routed them.

TOMBUT, a Kingdom of the Country of the Negroes in Africa. The King's Power appears in his ordinary Guard, which is of 3000 Horſe and an infinite number of Foot, who uſe poiſon'd Arrows. He entertains a great number of learned Men, but is a great Enemy to the Jews. The chief Town is alſo called Tombut, whereof the Houſes are built of Chalk and Straw, except the King's Palace. The Inhabitants of this Country are of a very mild Humour, and paſs a great part of their time in Leaping and Dancing. They weave Linnen and Cotton, are rich, and want nothing but Salt, which is brought from Tegaza, through Deſarts, for 500 Miles. They uſe unminted Gold in their Commerce. The King of Morocco and Fez ſent 1700 Men under the Command of Hamade, a Moor, to Conquer this Country in 1594; who, though many of his Men periſhed in the Deſarts for want of Water, entred Tombut, and forced the King to pay 60 Quintales of Gold per Annum. In 1594 there came hence to Morocco 30 Mules laden with this Tribute, at which time the King of Fez was ſending 3000 Men, which were reckoned ſufficient to reduce the whole Kingdom, as being a People altogether unskilful in War, and having no other Arms but poiſon'd Poles and Arrows. Hackluit. Magin. in his Geography.

TOMONBEIES. Emir Chebir of the Mammelucks, the powerfulleſt Man under the Soldan of Egypt, was a good Commander, but proved Treacherous; for being ſent by his Maſter Campſon againſt Zamballac Governour of Damaſcus, who refuſed to own him as Soldan; he joined the Rebel, and came with him to Caire, where they took Campſon, and impriſon'd him in the Town of Alexandria. Peter Martyr Bibl. Hiſt.

TONANTIUS (Ferreolus) Captain of the Prætorian Guards in Gaul, was born about 450, at the Caſtle of Trevidon, 4 Leagues from Milan, upon the little River of Trevezels. Ferreol his Father, who had the ſame Place under Honorius, was ſo conſiderable for his Birth, that all his Anceſtors for a great way up, had been Senators, and honour'd with a Triumph. The Mother was alſo very famous both for her Birth and other Endowments. Tonantius Ferreolus was Præfect the Year that Attila advanced as far as the River Loire, and came to Beſiege Orleans; and it was he who perſuaded the Gauls to join their Forces with thoſe of Aetius, Commander of the Roman Horſe, that ſo altogether they might make a more vigorous Oppoſition againſt this powerful Enemy of the Empire. His happy Succeſs rendred him ſo recommendable in Gaul, that he was look'd upon as their Deliverer. The Romans alſo valued him highly, and made uſe of him in their greateſt Difficulties, in which he always had good Succeſs. It's obſerved, that Thoriſmond King of the Goths, having laid Siege to the Town of Arles, which then belong'd to the Romans, changed his Deſign by the force of his Eloquence at the Feaſt he invited him to. In 467 the Gauls having reſolved to complain of the Adminiſtration of Arvandus Præfectus Prætorio, who had favour'd the Enemies of the Empire, Tonantius was deputed for this Buſineſs to Rome with Thaumaſtus and Petronius, all three Learned and Eloquent Men, who carried with them the Letters of Arvandus which they had intercepted; and preſenting themſelves before the Senate all in Black, repreſented Arvandus's Crime ſo well, that he was condemned to loſe his Head by the common Executioner; but Sidonius had this Puniſhment changed into an Exile. Some Modern Authors look upon this famous Gaul to have been the Stock of Charlemagne's Anceſtors. Sidonius. Du Bouchet.

TONGRES upon Jecker, a Town in the Biſhoprick of Liege. It's not doubted but it is very ancient, being firſt ruined by Attila, and afterwards by the Normans. Some pretend, that St. Materne, ſent by St. Peter, preach'd the Goſpel, and was firſt Biſhop of this Place, where he had eight Succeſſors, until St. Cervais removed the Seat to Maſtrick, whence it was afterwards changed to Liege. Thoſe of the Country call it Tongeren, and Latin Authors Tungri or Aduatuca Tungrorum; yet now it has nothing conſiderable but its Name and the Glory of its ancient Splendor.

TONQUIN, a Kingdom of the Indies beyond the Ganges, towards China, bordering on the Province of Canton to the Eaſt, and to the Weſt the Kingdom of Brama; to the North it has the Provinces of Quamſi and Junnan, and to the South Cochinchina. Though People are apt to think, that the Climate of this Country is exceſſive hot, yet it's temperate enough, both by reaſon of the many Rivers that help to refreſh it, as alſo by the Rains that fall in their Seaſons, and ſeem to make a continual Spring. Here is never any Froſt nor Snow, and the Trees are always cover'd with Leaves. The Plague, the Gout, the Stone, with other Diſtempers, very common in Europe, are not ſo much as known to the Tonquinois. Two Winds divide the Year, the North and South, and each Reigns ſix Months; the firſt begins in Auguſt, and refreſhes the Earth, ſo that no Place can be then more pleaſant than Tonquin; the other begins in February, June and July, and are the Rainy Months: Yet once in every ſeven Years there riſe furious Winds called Ouragans or Hurricanes, which blow down Houſes, Trees, and do great Damage, but do not laſt above 24 Hours. Tonquin is about the Bigneſs of France, containing many Provinces, whoſe Limits are not very well known. The Tonquinois being no great Geographers, the moſt underſtanding amongſt them aſſure, that there are about 20000 Towns and Burroughs in the Country, and ſay, there would be a great many more if People did not delight much in living on the Water in Boats, which ſerve them for Houſes. The moſt conſiderable Towns are Checo or Cachao, which is Capital of the Kingdom; Bodego, Cuadag, Kecou, Ketoi, Cimpa, and Cuaſay. The Country is watered by many Rivers, whereof ſome bear great Galleys and Barks. They have no Wine, nor other Corn but Rice, which grows in great Quantity, and ſerves to make Drink and Strong-Waters of. They have a great many ſtrange Trees; amongſt others a Palm-Tree, which bears Nuts as big as a Man's Head, with a very hard Shell, which contains a white Kernel that taſtes like Sweet-Almonds, beſides about two great Glaſſes full of a very freſh and well-taſted Liquor. The other Trees have alſo very particular Things, as the Gojavier, which much reſembles a Lawrel-Tree, and bears Apples full of Kernels, a little bigger than thoſe of Pomegranates. Theſe Apples have a ſort of little Noſe-gay growing on the top of 'em. The Papager, another of their Trees, bears a Fruit of a delicious Taſte, much like a little Melon. The Araguer has no Branches but only on the top, and affords a Fruit much like a Nutmeg. In four Iſlands towards Cochinchina, are Bird's Neſts that make very excellent Sauce: Theſe Birds are about the bigneſs of Swallows, and make their Neſts of a kind of Gum, which when diſſolved in warm Water, ſerves to ſeaſon Fleſh and Fiſh; and the Sauces which are mix'd with it, have ſuch a fine Flavour, that they ſeem to have all the fine Spice of the Eaſt in them. To the Eaſt of theſe, are five other leſſer Iſlands, where is found a prodigious Quantity of Tortoiſes, which are ſo good Victuals that the Tonquinois and Cochinchinois have often fought about them. There is alſo Sugar in abundance, but hardly any Sheep, Aſſes, or Lions, to be ſeen in all the Country. Their Woods are full of Tygers, Stags, and Apes, the Plains cover'd with Cows and Hogs; and as for Hens, Ducks and Turtles, they have them without number. Their Horſes are very ſtately: They alſo have a great number of Elephants; nor is there any Place of Aſia where they are ſo big, ſo tall, nor ſo docile and well manag'd. For Religion, the Tonquinois are divided into three Sects; the firſt takes its Original from an ancient Philoſopher called Confucius, whoſe Memory is very famous in all China and moſt neighbouring Kingdoms. They of this Sect believe, that when a Man dies his Soul vaniſhes into Air. They ſacrifice to the Sun, Moon, and other Planets, and have four principal Gods, and a Goddeſs beſides. The Gods are called Brama, Raumu, Betolo, and Ramonu, and the Name of the Goddeſs is Satibana. But the King, the Mandarins, or Lords of the Court, and the learned Men, adore only the Sky. The ſecond Sect came from a kind of Hermit called Chacabant, who is generally follow'd by the Common People; he left them Ten Commandments and the Doctrine of the Tranſmigration of Souls, which, with the reſt of his Opinion, may be ſeen under his Name. The third is that of Lanthu, a famous Magician, who taught part of Chacabant's Doctrine, and added ſome Precepts concerning Charity and the Care of the Poor. The Tonquinois adore three Things in their Houſes; the Hearth or Houſhold God; the ſecond, an Idol they call Tienſu, which is as the Patron of all Arts and Mechanick Trades; the third, called Buabin, which they invoke to render their Houſes happy. And ſome adore the five Parts of the Earth, for they place a fifth in the middle of the other four; and in worſhipping theſe, they have for each its particular Colour; for when they Sacrifice to the North their Cloaths, Table, Diſhes, and all are in Black; when they adore the South, they are clad in Red; in Green for the Eaſt, and White for the Weſt; and for that in the middle of the World, they wear Yellow. They keep great Solemnities on New-years-day, in honour of thoſe that in their Life-time have done any fine Action or ſhewn Courage, even tho' Fighting againſt their Country. Above 40000 Soldiers Muſter in a great Plain, whither the Princes and Manderins have orders to come; the King alſo is there: After the Sacrifices they burn Frankincenſe before a great many Altars, on which are written the Names of the Captains and illuſtrious Men whoſe Memory they celebrate; then the King, Princes, and Lords of the Court, bow before all, except theirs that rebelled againſt their lawful Prince; againſt which the King ſhoots five Arrows, and this Action is followed with the Diſcharge of the Cannon, and a triple Salvo of the Muſqueteers to put all thoſe Souls to flight. This Ceremony being ended, the Bonzes feaſt on the Meat that was offer'd in Sacrifice: The firſt and laſt days of the Moon are alſo Holy-days with them. Their Bonzes live in Fraternities under a Superior, in their great Pagodes or Temples, follow the Belief of Chacabant, and live on Alms; and all wear Beads of a hundred Grains round their Necks, which they ſay ſix times on thoſe Holy-days: They are ſuffered to marry, but if they do, muſt quit the Monaſtery. When they aſſiſt at great People's Burials, they ſound their Horns and Trumpets, whilſt the Bells of their Pagodes or Temples ring a mournful Peal. They have a particular Veneration for two Magicians called Tay-bou and Tay-phou-Thouy; and for a Witch they call Bacoti. Amongſt their other Superſtition, one is, to help the Moon when it ſuffers an Eclipſe; for they believe it's a Dragon fights againſt it, and endeavours to devour it; therefore they ring Bells, beat Drums, and ſhoot off their Muſquets, to frighten this Dragon away: And when the Eclipſe is over, they make great rejoicing, and are perſuaded, it was they that ſaved her. They give each Hour of Day and Night the Name of ſome Beaſt, as, the Tiger, the Lion, the Bear, Horſe, Dragon, &c. The Days alſo have the ſame Names. When a Child is born, they believe that the Beaſt which the Hour of his Birth bears the Name of, is fatal to the New-born; ſo that the laſt King of Tonquin, born on the Hour called the Horſe, never went abroad on that Hour for fear of being hurt by a Horſe. Tonquin in former Times depended on China, but theſe ſix hundred Years laſt paſt, it has been govern'd by its particular Kings. The firſt King, called Din, a great Robber, having gathered a number of Vagabonds and Malecontents together, became ſo famous for his Valour, and by the many Victories he won, that he eſtabliſh'd himſelf upon the Throne: His two Sons ſucceeded him one after the other; but dying without Iſſue, the Kingdom became divided by Civil Wars; and the weakeſt Party having called the Chinois to their Aſſiſtance, ſoon became the powerfulleſt, and put a Manderin on the Throne, of the Family of Lelequel, who built the ſumptuous Palace of Tonquin. This King left only a Daughter, who married one of the greateſt Mandarins of the Family of Tran; but his Reign was diſturb'd by the Rebellion of his Subjects, who having ſeized his Perſon, put him to Death. After ten Years Diſorders, the Chinois made themſelves Maſters of the Kingdom, and eſtabliſhed Governors in it; but a valiant Commander beat theſe Uſurpers out, and poſſeſſed himſelf of the Crown, which was kept 80 Years in that Family. After this time a great Lord of the Family of Mar uſurped the Throne, but was ſoon diſpoſſeſſed by a Manderin of the Family of Tran, who put him to Death at the Head of his Army. Though this Victorious Prince could, if he were willing, ſettle himſelf on the Throne, yet he would not take the Title of King, but of General of the Troops; and publiſhed over all the Provinces of the Kingdom, that if there was any Prince of the Family of Lé, he would put him in poſſeſſion of the Crown. There happened to be one on the Frontiers, who ſerved as a common Sentinel without making himſelf known; as ſoon as he was diſcover'd, a Royal Equipage was ſent him, and being conducted to Cachao, was declared King of Tonquin; yet the General reſerved the abſolute Command of the Army to himſelf, with the beſt part of the Revenues of the Kingdom: ſo that ſince that time, it may well be ſaid, there are two Kings, whereof the firſt called Bue, has the Name, and makes all the Shew; and the ſecond called Choua, has all the Authority. The King keeps generally within his Palace, goes abroad but on certain Days, and then in a Palanquin too, with Elephants, led Horſes, and ſome Officers on Horſe-back before it, Muſicians, Trumpeters, and Soldiers of the Guard coming after. The King has generally 2000 Soldiers for his Guard, and keeps about 20000 upon the Frontiers, with 50 Elephants trained up for War, and has above 100 great Galleys, with a great number of ſmall Galliots, on all the Rivers which the Enemy can invade his Country by: The Watermen when they Row, ſtand with their Face towards the Head of the Veſſels, quite contrary to our Rowers. The King gives publick Audiences daily, but the Edicts to be of Force, muſt be ſigned by the Choua. The eldeſt Son does not always ſucceed; for the Choua or Conſtable, with the Counſellors of State, have thought it better to leave the Prince the Liberty of naming which Child he pleaſed for his Succeſſor: And aſſoon as he has named his Succeſſor, the Chief Officers of the Army, the Counſellors of State, and Eunuchs, come to ſalute him, and take an Oath to Place him on the Throne after the Father's Death. The other Brothers remain confin'd in the Palace, whence they are not permitted to come forth but four times a Year, and have but ſix Days each time for their Recreation, the Choua's Officers attending them where-ever they go. The Kingdom of Tonquin is divided into eight great Provinces, whereof each has its Governor and Magiſtrates, from whoſe Sentence they can appeal to Court, where there are 100 Counſellors of State to examine all the Appeals of the Kingdom, beſides the 32 Counſellors of the Royal Council which attend the King in his publick Audiences. The King has no Coin, either Silver or Gold; the Tonquinois making uſe in Commerce, of Cakes of Gold, whereof ſome are worth 100 French Crowns, and others 200. They alſo have Silver Barrs, which for leſſer Payments they cut, according to the Sum they are to pay, having each a pair of Seales in his hand that reſemble our Roman Weights, or they pay in foreign Coin for the moſt part in Reals of Spain. They have this Gold and Silver from China and Japan, for their Silks, Muſk, and Lign. Aloes. The Queens of Tonquin have none but Women and Maids to wait on them in their Palaces, no other being permitted there, not the very Eunuchs themſelves. When the Queen goes out of her Palace, ſhe is carried in a Palanquin, with ſix Elephants before it, two abreaſt, and ſeveral armed Officers. Her Ladies of Honour walk behind them, and after them eight Ladies of Quality, which draw a Chariot, into which the Queen is taken when ſhe comes out of her Palanquin or Chair; and then the Officers and Eunuchs withdraw out of her Sight; for it's a great Crime, even ſo much as to look upon her. For the Common People, they are naturally good humour'd, admire the Works of other Countries beyond their own, yet are not curious to Travel, ſaying, they will live at home to honour their Anceſtors. Their Complexion is ſomewhat Olive-colour'd, yet they are better made, and have not the Noſe nor Viſage ſo flat as the Chinois. They wear their Hair as long as it can grow, the common ſort curl and wind it up at top of their Head; but the Gentry, Magiſtracy, and Soldiers, have theirs round their Necks, to hinder it from coming on their Face, and look upon black Teeth to be the moſt Beautiful. They let their Nails grow, holding the longeſt to be fineſt. Their Habit is grave and modeſt, being a Gown that hangs to their Heels, tied round with a Silken Girdle, or mixed with Silver and Gold Thread; but the Soldiers wear theirs but to the Knee, and never have any Shoes or Stockins. The Common People, even the Burgeſſes of Cachao the chief Town of the Kingdom, all People of Handicraft-Trades, ſuch as Joiners, Lockſmiths, Maſons, &c. are Slaves a part of the Year, being all obliged to work three Months for the King's Houſe, two other Moons for the Manderins and great Lords; the reſt of the time is their own, and then they work for thoſe that pay them. This Service they call in their Language Viecquan, that is, Condition of Slave. They take great Delight to live on Water, which in their Country breeds no Crocodiles nor other dangerous Creatures, though there are great Numbers in the Ganges. Their Marriages cannot be concluded without the conſent of the Governor or Judge of the Place. The next Day after this Ceremony, the Husband calls the Wife Siſter, and ſhe him Brother. The Laws of the Kingdom allow the Man to put his Wife away, but the Women are not allow'd the ſame Privilege. They puniſh Adultery with Death. They often viſit, and always with a Train becoming their Condition. The Princes and Manderins ride on Elephants, or are carried in a kind of Chair or Brancar bore by ſix Men; their ordinary Retinue is of 50 or 60 Men, a Number they are not ſuffered to exceed; private Gentlemen and Officers of Court can have at moſt but ſeven Servants. They hold it a great Diſhonour to be bareheaded; none but Criminals, who are ſhaved as ſoon as taken, being ſo among them. They ſit croſs-leg'd, as our Taylors when at work. Great Lords where they receive Viſits, have a kind of Alcove covered with a very fine Mat of Ruſhes, as fine and ſmall as any Thred, which they prefer to the beſt Tapeſtries of either Perſia or the Indies, becauſe they are dearer, and freſher in great Heats, being beſides as ſoft as any Silk, and of that nature, that no Bugs (which are very troubleſom all over the Eaſt,) breed nor lodge in them. The Princes and Manderins ſit upon theſe Mats, and the reſt of the Nobility that wait on 'em, are ſeated round the Chamber upon Cuſhions, with others to their Backs. They neither have Knife nor Fork at Table, all that is ſerved up being cut ſmall before it's brought to the Dining Room; and theſe ſmall Morſels they take with the top of a Gilt Stick. The common ſort content themſelves with Rice boiled in Water, Fiſh dryed in the Air, or ſalted Eggs, and eat but little Fleſh, unleſs it be at their Feaſts. They delight much in Comedies, and are very good at repreſenting Seas, Rivers, and Battels on Water. The Actors and Actreſſes are very richly clad, the Women's Head-Dreſs being a kind of Mitre or Tiara, which becomes them extraordinary well. The only way to come to any Honour or Dignity in Tonquin, is Learning; but what they value moſt, is not the Knowledge of Languages, nor the Philoſophy of Ariſtotle, but the Study of their Laws, Mathematicks, &c. To become Gentlemen, the Youth muſt paſs through three Degrees, viz. that of Sinde, that of Doucum, and the Tanſi: For the firſt, they muſt ſtudy eight Years in what belongs to a Clerk, Attorney, and Counſellor; if they be found capable of theſe upon Examination, then they ſtudy five Years in Aſtrology, Muſick, Poetry, and in learning to make Mathematical Inſtruments. After this, they muſt employ four Years more to learn to Read and Write the Chinois Character, with the Laws and Cuſtoms of that Nation. The laſt Examen is made with much Solemnity in Preſence of the King, the Manderins of Gown and Sword, and all the other Tanſi. The number of the Candidates is ſometimes Three thouſand. There are Scaffolds ſet up in the great Square of the Palace, one for the King and Princes, and eight others for the Examiners and Candidates; and that every one may ſee what paſſes, the Scaffolds are made in the Form of an Amphitheatre: However, the King and the Manderins are preſent only the two firſt of the eight Days, during which this Exerciſe laſts: The laſt Day of the Solemnity, the Names of thoſe who have perform'd to ſatisfaction, are given up to ſixteen of the Principal Manderins; and after the King has given his conſent, theſe Candidates have a Violet Sattin Gown given 'em with the Name of Tanſi, and are Regiſter'd among the Nobility. This being done, every one of the new Tanſi's, has a Liſt of the Towns and Villages given him; upon which the King Aſſigns him an Eſtate or Revenue; and after having been conducted to his Lodgings in a Gilt Chair, carry'd by eight Men, and attended with Trumpets and other Muſick, he comes to Court in order to be inſtructed in State Affairs, and qualifie himſelf for the Poſt and Function of a Manderin. All the Embaſſadors ſent to China and other neighbouring States, are drawn out of the number of theſe Tanſi's. Their Phyſicians ſtudy nothing ſo much as the Nature of Plants, which they apply according to the different Kinds of Diſtempers: They have incomparable Remedies for the Falling-Sickneſs, Purples, and other Diſtempers that are thought incurable in Europe: They do not uſe Bleeding, but often preſcribe Tea for the Head-ach, Gravel, &c. This Herb is brought them from China and Japan, but that of Japan is beſt. They judge of Sickneſſes by the beating of the Pulſe, which they feel in three ſeveral Places and on both ſides, pretending, that by the Artery of the left Wriſts, they can tell the condition of the Heart; by that of the Arm, the Temper of the Liver; by the Temple Artery, the Diſpoſition of the Reins. The Ceremony of the Coronation is magnificent, ficent, the new King's Liberalities very great, and the Number of his Victims to the Falſe Gods almoſt incredible; beſides which, he gives to the Value of a Million in Cakes of Gold, and Silver Bars, Pieces of Silk for the Ornament of Idols, and other things deſigned for the uſe of the Pagodes or Temples. Being ſeated on a very magnificent Throne, he receives the Oaths of Allegiance from the Lords and Officers of his Court, to whom he makes great Preſents. After theſe and other Ceremonies, he expects the Beginning of the New Moon to retire with the Bonzes or Doctors of the Laws, with whom he lives very frugally for a time, viſits Hoſpitals, and pitches upon a Place to build a Pagode, which he Conſecrates to ſome Idol. After this, and his Diverſion by Water, where Sea-Fights, Fire-works, (wherein the Tonquinois excel,) and other Sights are repreſented, he comes to the Palace of Cachao, and viſits the Princeſſes, being accompanied with none but his Eunuchs, &c. Nor is their Funeral-Pomp leſs magnificent; for when the King is dead, his Embalmed Body is laid in a Bed of State, and there ſerv'd for 65 Days as if alive, all the Meat during that time being diſtributed to the Bonzes and Poor. All the Manderins of the Sword and Gown go in Mourning commonly for three Years, the Royal Family nine Moons or Months, the Gentry ſix, and the common ſort three: During theſe three Years all Diverſions ceaſe, beſides thoſe that are performed at the Coronation of the new King; after which the young Prince cuts his Hair off, and wears a Straw Cap; as do alſo the Princes and forty Manderins Counſellors of State, until the King is buried; during which time, the three Bells of the Palace Tower never ceaſe Ringing. The Body is carried to the Deſarts beyond the Town of Bodego, which is about two Days Journey from Cachao, Capital of the Kingdom. But becauſe the new King and the whole Court perform this Journey a-foot, it takes them up fifteen or ſixteen Days. All the Way is covered with a Violet-coloured Linnen-Cloth, and at every Quarter of a League are Huts or Tents with Refreſhments. There is nothing can be imagined more ſumptuous than this Funeral-Pomp and March, which is begun by two of the King's Bed-Chamber, carrying each a Mace, and crying out the Name of the deceaſed King. After theſe walk twelve Officers of the Galleys, drawing the Mauſoleum in form of a ſquare Tower, with the King's Name written thereon. Then twelve Elephants follow, whereof the foremoſt four are rid by Officers that carry each the King's Standard. After theſe come the Gentlemen of the Horſe attended by two Pages, and twelve led Horſes with extraordinary rich Harneſs, the moſt part of the Furniture as well as the Bit, being of pure Gold. Then follows the Chariot that carries the Magnificent Mauſoleum where the King's Body lyes. This Chariot is drawn by eight Red Deer brought up for his uſe. The King, clad in White Sattin, walks a-foot after this Chariot, with his Brothers if he has any, attended with a great number of Muſicians. Next come four Princeſſes dreſs'd in White Sattin, followed by two Ladies of Honour clad in Violet, and accompanied with Haut boys and other Muſick; theſe carry Meat and Drink for the Dead. Next follow the Princes of the Blood clad in Violet Sattin, with Straw Caps; then the Officers of the Crown, the Manderins and Governors of the four principal Provinces of the Kingdom, having each a Battoon upon their Shoulder, with a Bag full of Gold, and variety of Perfumes, which is the Preſent of their reſpective Provinces. And then at laſt, come two Chariots, each drawn by eight Horſes, with great Cheſts full of Cakes, and Ingots of Gold and Silver Bars, rich Stuffs, and other Wealth. And the Proceſſion is clos'd by the Officers of Court and other conſiderable Perſons, who come ſome on Foot and ſome on Horſeback, according to the difference of their Offices and Qualities. The King's Body being come to Bodego, is put into a Galley to be carried to the Deſarts, and there ſecretly Buried; for there are but the ſix chief Eunuchs of Court that know preciſely where it is laid, and theſe ſwear never to reveal it to any one. This Ceremony is perhaps obſerved for ſome Motive of Religion, or that none may go to dig up what they bury along with it, according to the Superſtition of Chacabant, who perſuaded them that the Souls of ſuch as did not exactly obſerve the Law, ſhould paſs into other Bodies for 3000 Years, in which they ſuffer many Inconveniencies, as Hunger, Cold, and Poverty; for which Reaſon they bury ſeveral things with the King in his Tomb, for his Uſe in the other World: There they leave alſo the Meat and Drink the Princeſſes brought to Bodego, the Preſents of the four Provinces, and the two Chariot Loads ſpoken of in the Funeral Solemnity; and what is yet more ſtrange, ſeveral Court Lords and Ladies have buried themſelves alive near him, that they might be at hand to wait upon him where ever he goes. The ordinary Funerals are more or leſs pompous, according to the Quality of the Perſons deceaſed. They have in Funerals a great many Fire-Works, as in their Publick Rejoicings, and put a great Quantity of Meat and Comfitures upon the Tomb, thinking the Dead will make uſe of them; an Error which their Prieſts amuſe them with, and contrive their Buſineſs ſo, that there is nothing left the next Morning. Tavern. Relat. of Tonquin. Hiſtoire du Tonquin du P. Marini. The Reader may ſee more upon this Argument in Dampier's Second Volume of his Voyages, &c.

TONSTALL (Cuthbert) was according to Bale, who was no Flatterer of his Character, born at Hackford in Hertfordſhire, about the Year 1476, of a good Family. He ſtudied firſt at Oxford, afterwards at Cambrige, and from thence removed to Padua in Italy, where he commenc'd Doctor. He was a general Scholar, being perfectly a Maſter in the Latin, Greek, and Hebrew Tongues, and the beſt Mathematician in his time. He was likewiſe a conſiderable Civilian, Canoniſt and Divine; neither was his Life leſs commendable than his Learning: Upon both which Accounts, Cambden in his Britannia, gives him a great Character, as his Friend Eraſmus had likewiſe done before. As to his Preferments; he was made Maſter of the Rolls in 1516, Prebendary of York and Archdeacon of Cheſter in 1519, and Dean of Salisbury in 1521. He perform'd ſeveral Embaſſies, and amongſt others, was ſent by King Henry VIII. into Spain, to the Emperor, to Treat for the Enlargement of Francis of France in 1525. He was Conſecrated Biſhop of London, upon the Death of Biſhop Fitz James, in the Year 1522; and in the Year 1523, he was made Privy Seal, and tranſlated to the Biſhoprick of Durham in 1530; out of which See being ejected, upon the ſcore of Religion, in the time of King Edward VI. He was reſtor'd again by Queen Mary, and ejected a ſecond time by Queen Elizabeth in 1559, in which Year he died. He wrote De Arte Supputandi, lib. 4. Dedicated to Sir Tho. More. In Laudem Matrimonii. De Veritate Corporis & Sanguinis Domini in Euchariſtia, &c. Wharton Hiſtor. de Epiſc. & Decan. Londinenſ. Athen. Oxonien. &c.

TOPAZOS, an Iſland of the Red Sea, about 300 Furlongs from the Land. It's commonly ſo covered with Miſts, that it can hardly be diſcovered; yet it is famous for a great number of Topazes or Chryſolithes. Here was one found that was four Cubits long, which was given to Bernice, Mother of King Ptolomy Philadelphus, who got the Statue of Queen Arſinoe his Wife, made thereof. Pliny, lib. 37.

TOR, or Eltor, a Town and Port of the Red Sea in Arabia Petraa, with a Caſtle, which has a Turkiſh Gariſon. It lyes 40 Leagues from Suez, and is the moſt famous of that Coaſt as well for Commerce, as for the Buildings and Politeneſs of its Inhabitants, who are moſt of them Jacobite Chriſtians. There are alſo ſome Greek Monks in the Monaſtery of St. Catherine, who correſpond with thoſe of Mount Sinai, which is but about 18 Leagues thence. They ſay in this Country, that it was here Moſes croſs'd the Red Sea between Tor and Suez, which is now a barren Deſart without Water. Within three Leagues of Suez, are Wells called Moſes's Wells, and are ſaid to have been made by him after he paſs'd the Red Sea. The Arabians have great Veneration for them, but do not all agree that this is the Paſſage of the Iſraelites; for ſome are of opinion, Moſes paſſed by Corondol, which is 15 Leagues from Suez, and 25 from Tor. Marmol. of Afr.

TORBERNE (Ulric) Governor of the Fortreſs of Copenhagen, in the Reign of Chriſtian King of Denmark, in 1524. Having diſcovered that Febourg, Secretary of State, had done him ſome Diskindneſs, he found means to perſuade the King, that Columbine his Concubine, had a great Kindneſs for this Febourg; whereat the King was ſo enraged, that he ſent him to carry the Governor a Letter, which was an expreſs Command to him to examine the Matter, and condemn the Secretary to Death, if he found him in the leaſt Guilty of the Charge. This Occaſion of Revenge was very welcom to Torberne, who little dreaming that it would come to his own Turn, condemn'd him to be Hang'd. But ſome time after, the Governor himſelf was ſeized at a Feaſt the King invited him to, and in his Examination before the Senate of Denmark, confeſs'd he once wiſh'd he could enjoy Columbine; but becauſe a Thought did not deſerve Death, the Senate abſolv'd him. The King, who had reſolv'd the Governor's Death, found fault with this Sentence, and ſent him to Colberg, where the Judges by Threatning and other Practices, were forced to ſentence him to die. This Severity, or Injuſtice rather, ſtartled the Nobility, who fearing the like Uſage, Revolted; and the Rebellion would have been of very ill Conſequence, had not the King had the Addreſs to perſuade the Lords of the Kingdom, by a certain thing that happened, that Torberne had deſerved what he ſuffer'd. Varillas. Hiſtoire des Revolutions, &c.

TOREDORIX, an Aſiatick Gaul, Native of a Country that was called Toſſopiens. Having gone to ſee Mithridates with ſixty of his Fellow-Citizens, he was received after ſo proud and haughty a manner, that he told his Companions it behoved them all to revenge the Abuſe that haughty Prince offered their Nation. The King was to be in a Park to ſee the Exerciſes that were wont to be done in that Place; and they were to have a ſecond Hearing there. Whereupon Toredorix, being a very ſtrong Man, offer'd to take the King in his Arms, and caſt himſelf with him into a deep place, whence he obſerv'd it was almoſt impoſſible to reſcue a Man's Life; but the King, upon ſome Accident, miſſing to come that day, they were ſent for to his Palace, where all reſolved to ruſh upon him, and tear him in pieces; but the Deſign being diſcover'd, they were condemn'd to have their Heads cut off; and to diſtinguiſh Toredorix his Puniſhment, who was Author of the Conſpiracy, it was ordered, his Body ſhould lye unburied. Plutarch who relates this Story, adds, That a young Woman of Pergamus, which this Gaul had loved, ventur'd, notwithſtanding the Prohibition, to bury his Body; and being diſcover'd, and carried before the King, he pardon'd her, becauſe unwilling to puniſh an Action which Love made her undertake.

TORNE, a Town of Sweden, Capital of Botnia, in which there is a River of the ſame Name.

TORNBURG, in Latin Torda, a Town of the Kingdom of Hungary in the Principality of Tranſilvania, and Capital of a County of the ſame name. This Town is remarkable for the Woman, who having convicted her Husband of Adultery, obtain'd leave of the Judge to cut off his Head in the Publick Square.

TORRINGTON, a Market Town of Fremington Hundred, in the North-Weſt parts of Devonſhire on the Towridge : It gives the Title of Earl, ſince the late Revolution, to Arthur Herbert, late Admiral of their Majeſty's Fleet.

TORSTOCK, a ſmall City in Ruſſia, but well built, which has about thirty Churches within its Walls, ſo that it ſeems at a Diſtance greater than it is. It ſtands upon a River of the ſame Name, which falls by Twere into the Wolga from the North above Twere. Struys.

TORTONE, in Latin Dertona and Terdona, a Town of Italy in Milanois, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Milan ; it's alſo Capital of a little Country called Tortonez. The Town is ſtrong, being defended by a Citadel. The French made themſelves Maſters of it in 1642, but it was retaken the Year following.

TORTOSA upon Ebro, a Town of Spain, between Catalonia, Aragon, and the Kingdom of Valentia, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Terragona. Its Name in Latin, according to Pliny, is Dertuſa ; Dertoſſa according to Strabo, and Dertoſa according to others. It was taken by the French in 1649, but was retaken the next Year after. It has a Quarry of Marble, which for its Redneſs is called Jaſper.

TORTUGA, an Iſland in the Gulph of Mexico, 11 D. 12 M. Lat. fourteen Leagues from Margareta to the Weſt, fifteen from Blanca to the South-Weſt ; ſo ſeated, that in a clear day both Margareta and the Continent of America may be ſeen from it. It lyes in length from Eaſt to Weſt four Leagues, from North to South one Degree and a half ; the greateſt part, eſpecially to the Eaſt, is Rocky and Barren : by the Shoar it has ſome Woods, but the Shoars are Marſhy and Uſeleſs. It has nothing of Worth, but a natural Salt-pan, which furniſhes ſome Ship-loads every Year. Laert.

TOSCANY, a great Dutchy in Italy, between the Tibre, the Sea, and Mount Apennin, yet was formerly far greater under the Name of Etruria, than it is now. The Great Duke is Maſter of a good part, the Pope has the Patrimony of St. Peter, and the Perugin, and ſeveral other Princes have their ſhares in it as well as the Commonwealth of Lucca. The Country is very Fertile, waſh'd with divers Rivers, and well Peopled. The Chief Town is Florence, belonging to the Great Duke, who alſo has Arezzo, Chiuſs, Cortone, Fieſoli, Livourne or Leghorne, Maſſe, Mont-Pulcien, Volterre, Soane, Piſa, Sienna, &c. The Towns of St. Peter's Patrimony are, Civita Vecchia, Aquapendente, Monte Fiaſcone, Nepi, Orvieto, Pirouze, Toſcanella, Sutri, Viterbo. The Family of Medicis obtain'd the Lordſhip of Florence in 1531. Coſme of Medicis was Crown'd Great Duke of Toſcany, as was ſaid before. Cluverius. Leander Alberti Deſcript. Ital. See Florence.

TOSCANELLA, a Town of Italy in the Patrimony of St. Peter, a Province of Toſcany ; it formerly had the Name of Salumbrona, Tyrrhenia, Tuſcia, and Tuſcania, and was very conſiderable, but is not ſo now, being almoſt deſtroy'd by ſixteen Sieges that it has endured.

TOSTATUS (Alphonſus) Biſhop of Avila, liv'd in the 15th Century. Authors of his own Time, give him a great Character both for his Memory and Learning ; it being ſaid of him, that he knew all that was to be known.

Hic ſtupor eſt Mundi qui ſcibile diſcutit omne.

He died in the Year 1454, being no more than 40 Years of Age, which is very extraordinary, conſidering his Works are no leſs than 27 Volumes, Printed at Venice in 1596. Bellarmin de Script. Eccl. Mariana, lib. 4. Hiſt. Spondan. A. C. 1443. &c.

TOTILA, King of the Goths in Italy, was placed upon the Throne about 541, after the Death of Evaric. Theſe People, at that time in an ill Condition, hoped to mend their Fortune under a Prince who had Wit and Experience as well as Valour ; nor were they miſtaken, for Totila retook ſeveral Towns and Provinces from the Romans, made himſelf Maſter of all Lower Italy, and the Iſlands of Corſica, Sardinia, and Sicily ; and a little after of Rome it ſelf, which he abandon'd to his Soldiers Diſcretion, who plunder'd it ſo miſerably, that the chief Ladies, eſpecially the Wife of Boethius, was forced to beg her Bread at the Goths Doors. Totila deſigned to have raſed it quite, but changed his Reſolution upon the Receipt of a Letter from Beliſſarius, contenting himſelf with deſtroying a part of the Walls, that he might return thither again at pleaſure. But Beliſſarius haſtned, after his departure, and made the Walls up with great Stones, without any Mortar or Cement. Totila return'd upon this News, and laid Siege to it, but was forced to retire, yet had ſome Advantages over the Romans, until Narſes ſent into Italy in 552, defeated the Goths, and kill'd him. Procopius, Jornandes, Marius, Victor, Agathias.

TOTNESS, a Market and Borough Town of Colridge Hundred in the South-Eaſt parts of Devonſhire. It ſtands on the Weſt-ſide of the River Dart, about eight Miles North and by Weſt from Dartmouth, formerly honoured with the Title of an Earldom, and laſt of all with that of Viſcount, in the Perſon of Charles Fitz Charles, a Natural Son of King Charles II. who made him Baron of Dartmouth, Viſcount Totneſs, and Earl of Plimouth.

TOUCESTER, or Towceſter, a Market Town of Towceſter Hundred in the South of Northamptonſhire, ſeated upon a ſmall River running Eaſtward from thence into the Ouſe, and beautified with a fair Church, though but a ſmall Town. Cambden takes it for the antient Tripontium, ſo called from the three Bridges it had. About 917, it was ſtrong enough to reſiſt the furious Aſſaults of the Danes. It's 60 Miles from London.

TOUG, in Turkey is a kind of Standard that is carried before the Grand Viſier, the Bachas and Sangiacs. It's a half Pike with a Horſes Tail, and Button of Gold that gliſters at the top. There are three carried before the Great Viſier when he Commands by the Grand Signior's order ; and all the Beglerbegs and Baſſha's of Babylon and Great Cairo, have three before them too within their own Juriſdictions, but when they go farther are allowed but two ; the other Baſſha's never have but two ; the Sangiacs, and ſome other Officers of the ſame Degree, but one. The word Toug ſignifies a Stick or Pike, and properly is underſtood but of the Wood of the Standard ; this they ſay was the origin of this Cuſtom. In a certain Battel, the Standard being taken by the Enemy, the General, or ſome ſay a ſimple Soldier, cut off a Horſes Tail, and having faſtned it to a half Pike, incouraged the Troops, and gain'd the Victory : Wherefore the Grand Signior, in memory of this Action, ordered that they ſhould make uſe of this Standard as a Mark of Honour. This ſomewhat reſembles what the Romans called Manipulus, which was a Pike that had a handful of Hay tied to it. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

TOUL, upon the Moſelle in Lorrain, belonging to the King of France, is a Biſhop's See, Suffragant to Treves. It is the Tullum Leucorum of the Ancients ; the Dioceſe is large, and has a great number of Abbeys, but there is little likelihood that the Town was built by Tullus Hoſtilius, King of the Romans, as ſome Authors have imagined. Here have been ſeveral Synods held, one in 550, on the Subject of St. Nizier of Treves, who had excommunicated ſome Debauch'd Lords ; another in 659, wherein Charles the Bald, attended by his two Nephews Lothaire and Charles, made Complaint againſt Ganelon Archbiſhop of Sens, convicted of Treaſon, for having ſided with Lewis, Brother but Enemy to the King. The Year after, the Biſhops of fourteen Provinces met at Touſi in this Dioceſs, where they made ſeveral Canons againſt thoſe who encroach'd upon the Eſtates of the Church, and plunder'd the Poor.

TOULON, a Town of France in Provence, upon the Mediterranean, with a very fine Port and Biſhoprick, Suffragant of Arles. Its Latin Name is Tolonium and Tolenium. It's hard to judge whether Toulon was built by Telo Martius, who led a Roman Colony thither, as was believed, or whether this Name is deriv'd of Tolon, the famous Mariner, ſpoken of by Lucan in his Pharſalia ; or finally, whether Tolumnus a Gothick Captain, repair'd this Town under Theodoric King of Italy. We can only aſſure, that it is very Ancient, and that its Situation, Port, Commerce and Riches, make it one of the fineſt Towns of Provence. Henry IV. fortified it with very ſtrong Walls, and raiſed two Moles or Heighths, each of 700 Paces, that almoſt encompaſs the Port. The chief Sea-Arſenal is in this Town, which is alſo adorned with fair Houſes and ſeveral Churches. The Cathedral is ſaid to have a great number of Relicks ; the ancienteſt Prelate was Honorius, mentioned in St. Leo's Epiſtle to the Biſhops of Gaul, who had for Succeſſor Cyprian, Author of Ceſarea of Arles his Life. Bouche Hiſt. de Provence. St. Marth. Gal. Chriſt. &c.

TOULOUSE, or Toloſe upon the Garonne, a Town of France, Capital of the Province of Languedoc, with an Archbiſhoprick, Univerſity, and Parliament. It was called diverſely Toloſa, Tectoſagum, Toloſum and Toloſatium, and is one of the fineſt, largeſt and moſt ancient Towns of France. It was Capital of the Tectoſages, Famous for their Conqueſts, by which they had gathered ſuch great Riches in Gold and Silver, that having hid part in the Temple of Apollo, they buried the reſt in Marſhes, where the Conſul Cepio found it in 648 of Rome, to the value of Fifteen thouſand Talents ; the Gold and Silver being in Ingots ; but he had no great luck, nor any that received part of it, which occaſioned the Proverb of Aurum Toloſanum, to mark thoſe to whom their Riches were Fatal. This Town was a Colony of the Romans, as may ſtill be ſeen by ſome Remains of their Magnificence : Afterwards it was under the Goths, when King Clovis took it ; and after ſeveral Changes it had Counts, which dying without Iſſue, King Philip the Bald made himſelf Maſter of it, and the County of Tolouſe in 1271, and King John reunited it to the Crown in 1361. The Metropolis of St. Stephen is in the great place, adorned with a fine Fountain, whereon ſtands an Obelisk curiouſly wrought. This Church is very Magnificent, beſides which there are a great many other well built Churches, with a great number of Convents and Monaſteries. The Franciſcan's Burying-place is famous for preſerving Bodies incorrupted ; and that of the Dominicans for the Body of St. Thomas Aquinas.

The Univerſity is the ſecond in the Kingdom, having ſeveral Colleges, whereof that of Foix is the moſt renowned, and was always much eſteemed for its famous Profeſſors. The Parliament alſo is the ſecond of the Kingdom, begun in King Philip the Fair's time, and eſtabliſhed by Charles VII. There are beſides the Parliament, ſome other Courts of Juſtice, with a Mint, whoſe marking and diſtinguiſhing Letter is M. The Town-houſe is very Magnificent, and is called Capitole, and the Sheriffs or Conſuls have the name of Capitouls. It formerly was govern'd by 24 Capitouls, choſen partly out of the City, and a part out of the Borough; this number was reduced to 12 under Alphonſus the laſt of the Counts of Toulouſe, and confirmed by King Philip the Bald, who ordered by Letters Patents, there ſhould always be ſix of the City, and as many of the Borough; this number has often ſince been increaſed and diminiſh'd; now there are eight for the City and two for the Borough. Near this City, it is ſuppoſed, the dreadful Battel was fought between Attila King of the Huns, and Ætius the Roman Lieutenant, A. C. 451. in which there periſh'd 500000 Men, and Ætius remained Victor. This City and Province being recover'd out of the hands of the Moors by Charles Martel, Charles the Great, in 779, granted it to one Thurſin with the Title of an Earl. It continued under an Earl for eighteen Deſcents, who were particularly famous for aſſiſting the Albigenſes in their Wars, till 1270, when it was reunited to the Crown of France. The preſent King of France had taken up a Deſign to make a Channel for Boats from this City to the Lake of Maquetone, that ſo it might be a kind of Centre of Trade between the Mediterranean and the Ocean. *Cæſar. TOUNESHEND (Sir Horace) of Raynham in the County ty of Norfolk, Baronet, paternally deſcended from an ancient Family of that Name, which had long flouriſh'd in thoſe parts, and by Mary his Mother, Daughter and Coheir to Horace Lord Vere of Tilbury, from the moſt ancient and noble Family of the Veres, Earls of Oxford: For putting himſelf in Arms, fortifying the Haven of Kings Lynne for King Charles the Second's Reception, and preparing conſiderable Forces both by Sea and Land, for the better ſecuring thereof, he was by Letters Patents bearing Date at Weſtminſter, upon the 20th of April in the Thirteenth of that Prince's Reign, advanced to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Touneſhend of Kings-Lynne, and to their Heirs Male of his Body. He firſt married Mary, Daughter and ſole Heir to Edward Lewknore, Knt. by whom he had no Iſſue, and afterwards Mary, the Daughter of Sir Joſeph Athe, in Com. Midd, Knt. by whom he hath Iſſue one Son, called Charles.

TOUR (Henry de la) Viſcount of Turenne, Duke of Bouillon, Sovereign Prince of Sedan and Raucourt, was born at Auvergne, Sept. 28. 1555. At ſeventeen Years of Age, he commanded a Company of Lances at the Siege of Rochelle under Charles IX. but turning Proteſtant afterwards, he headed thoſe who eſpouſed their Cauſe in Perigord about 1575, took part with the Duke of Alençon, who made him Governor of Touraine: And in 1581, he was taken Priſoner by the Spaniards at the Battel of Cambray, and continued ſo for almoſt three Years, and at laſt paid 53000 Crowns Ranſom. In 1585, the King of Navarre imploy'd him againſt the Roman Catholicks in Guienna; and in 1586, he fought the Battel of Coutras: In 1590, he attended him at the Siege of Paris; and in 1591, was ſent to Queen Elizabeth to deſire Aſſiſtance for the Proteſtants. He was firſt Gentleman of the Chamber to the French King, and in 1592 made Mareſchal of France. In October the ſame Year, he defeated the Duke of Lorraine at Beaumont, where he received two Wounds. He took Dun on the Meuſe, Laon and Ivoy, defeated Count Charles at Wirton, and obliged the Spaniards to raiſe the Siege of La Ferte in Luxembourg, in 1595. In 1596, the King ſent him to conclude a League with the Engliſh and Dutch. He died March 25. 1623, after many memorable Exploits. By his firſt Wife, he had Bouillon and Sedan, but no Iſſue; by his ſecond Wife Iſabel, Daughter to William Prince of Orange, and Charlotte de Bourbon Montpenſier, he had the Famous Henry Mareſchal of Turenne, who follows, and Frederick Maurice de la Tour who ſucceeded him; and having ſerved his Apprenticeſhip in the Wars, under his Uncles Maurice and Henry of Naſſau, Lewis XIII. made him General of his Horſe againſt the Spaniards in Brabant, in 1635, and Lieutenant General of his Army in Italy in 1642. He died at Pontoiſe, Auguſt 9. 1652.

TOUR (Henry de la) Viſcount of Turenne, Mareſchal General of the French King's Armies, ſecond Son of Henry de la Tour, Duke of Bouillon, was born at Sedan, September 1611. He made his firſt Campaigns in Holland under Henry Frederic of Naſſau, Prince of Orange, his Uncle by the Mother's ſide; but having paſſed into Lorrain, he ſerved with his Regiment at the Siege of La Mothe in 1634, and at that of Spire; as alſo at the Battels of Meliſſay, Hautrement and Vandervange in 1635; then he threw Succours into the Caſtle of Sancy in Luxembourg, defeated three Regiments of Croats, and was Wounded at the Siege of Saverne in 1636, two Years after he commanded the Rear of the Duke of Weimar's Army at the Battel of Rhinauſe, and at the Fight of Enſiſhin, and aſſiſted at the taking of Briſac. In Italy in 1639, he gave ſignal Proofs of his Valour and Conduct, viz. at the Fight of the Route near Quiers, and at that of Cazal in 1640, at the Paſſage of the Po near Moncallier, where he was Wounded the ſecond of June the ſame Year; as alſo at the Sieges of Colioure and Perpignan in Rouſillon. In acknowledgment of all which Services, the King honour'd him with a Mareſchal's Staff in 1643. After which, he ſerved as Lieutenant General in Germany, and behaved himſelf valiantly againſt the Bavarian Army in Friburg, the third and fifth of Auguſt 1644, and at the taking of Philipsbourg aud Mayence; but had the Misfortune to be beat by General Mercy at the Fight of Mariendal, the fifth of May 1645. he reveng'd himſelf at the Battel of Norlinguen, and contributed much to the Victory gain'd over the Imperialiſts the Third of Auguſt following, took the Towns of Treves and Schorndorft; and ſome time after Aſchaffembourg, Hochſt, Steinheing, and Gernſhein, and had great Advantage over the Emperor's and Duke of Bavaria's Army at the Fight of Sommerhoven, where General Melandre was kill'd the 17th of May, 1648. After this, he led his own and the Swediſh Army into Bavaria, which he ravag'd, after having taken the Towns of Feiſinghen, Muldorf, Landſhout, Papenhoven, Dingerlſingen, and others. The loſs of the Battel of Rethel in 1650, when he ſided with the Princes, during the Troubles of France, occaſion'd his being brought into the King's Favour again, who gave him the Command of his Armies in the Diſorders of the Year 1652. The Battels of Bleneau, and that of the Suburb of St. Anthony, his retreat before the Prince's Army as Villeneuve S. George, gain'd him great Reputation and Honour, to which the taking of Rethel and Mouzon in 1653, the raiſing of the Siege of Arras the Year after, and forcing the Spaniards Lines, and taking Landrecy, Conde and St. Guilain in 1655, added much. The next Year he made an honourable Retreat at the Siege of Valenciene, and made himſelf Maſter of La Capelle. The relieving of Ardres, the taking of St. Venant and the Fort of Mardyck, were the Exploits of the Year 1657, and the next was Glorious for the famous Battel of Dunes near Dunkirk. So many great Services gave him a juſt Right to the place of Mareſchal General, which was given him in 1660. So that the War being renew'd with Spain in 1667, he commanded the Army that took Tournay, Douay, Oudenarde, Ath, l'Iſle and Aloſt. In 1668 he turn'd Roman Catholick. After this, the King having reſolved a War againſt Holland, he followed him in his Voyage beyond the Rhine, commanded the Army which took the Towns of Arnheim and Nimeguen, the Forts of Burich, Knotzembourg, Sken, Bommel, Creve Cæur, Voorn and St. Andrew in 1672, and ended this Campaign in taking up Winter Quarters in the Marquis of Brandenbourg's Territories, and beating the Troops that oppoſed it. In 1673, the Emperor and Elector's of Brandenbourg's Army, that came towards the Rhine to Succour the Hollanders, intended to enter into Weſtphalia to Quarter in the Biſhop of Munſter and Elector of Cologne's Territories. Mareſchal Turenne oppoſed it, and obliged the Marquis of Brandenbourg to raiſe the Siege he laid to Werle, a Town of the Archbiſhoprick of Cologne; after which the Viſcount took the Towns of Ham, Soeſt, Hoextier upon the Weſer, Bilefeld, Ravensberg, and other places belonging to the ſame Elector. And the King being inform'd of the Prince Palatin's Engagement with the Emperor, ſent his Troops to poſſeſs themſelves of Gemerſheim, a League below Philipsbourg, and to demoliſh that Caſtle. It was then that the Mareſchal having croſſed the Rhine at Philipsbourg, defeated Duke Charles of Lorrain, and Count Caprara's Troops, the ſixteenth of June, at St. Zin, in a little Town of the Palatinate, and three Weeks after beat the Imperialiſts and Lorrainers, who being reinforced with ſome Troops of the Duke of Bournonvilles, lay encamp'd upon the Nekre near Ladenbourg. The Duke of Bournonville, who commanded the Confederates Army in Alſace, was worſted by him the Fourth of October following, at a Village called Enſeim, near Saverne. The Confederate Army, reinforced by the Conjunction of the Brandenburghers, intended to enter into the Biſhopricks of Mets, Toul, and Verdun, to attack Champagne; but the Viſcount, though far inferiour to them in number of Men, broke their Meaſures; and afterwards having provided for the Security of Saverne aud Haguenau, he marched his Troops through the Mountains of Vauge, and arrived the 29th of December a little beyond Beffort, a Town of Suntgou, thence advanced towards Mulhauſen, where he defeated the Confederates Cavalry. In 1675, he defeated them again between Turkeim and Colmar, a Town of Upper Alſacia, took the Town of Ruſſac the eighth of January, and obliged the Confederates to repaſs the Rhine and return into Germany. After this Action he came to Court, returned to the Army in May, and engaged thoſe of Strasbourg to obſerve a ſtrict Neutrality: Then paſſing the Rhine at Rhenaw below Strasbourg, the eighth of June, he poſſeſſed himſelf of Vilſtez, an important Poſt, a League and a half from the Bridge of that City; and afterwards encamp'd at Attenheim, where he made a Bridge over the Rhine; then at Botterwir, Biſcheen, always near the Imperial Army, commanded by Count Montecuculi to obſerve the General's Motions, and hinder him of either having Proviſions by the way of Strasbourg, or ſending any of his Troops over its Bridge into Alſacia, and threw many great wooden Cages fill'd with Stones, and bound together with Cables, into the River, to ſtop Boats; but on the 27th of July, being advanced to the Village of Salbach, near the Enemies which he then deſign'd to have Fought; and taking a view of the Ground, with the Sieur of St. Hilaire, Lieutenant of the Artillery, he was killed by a Canon-ſhot from the Enemies Camp at the Age of 64. The King of France, to ſhew his Concern for his Death, and acknowledgment of his great Services, ordered that the ſame Honours ſhould be rendred his Memory, and the ſame Ceremonies uſed, as if he were firſt Prince of the Blood. All which was performed, his Funeral Sermon preach'd, and a Solemn Service kept at Notre Dame at Paris, where ſeveral Princes, and a great number of Perſons of the firſt Quality aſſiſted; and at laſt his Majeſty order'd his Body ſhould be carried and buried at St. Denis, the Burying-place of the Royal Family of France, and raiſed him a ſtately Tomb. Chriſtoph. Juſtel. Hiſt. General. d' Auvergne.

TOURAINE, a Province of France with the Title of Dutchy, belonging to the Government of Orleans, between Anjou, Poitou, Berry, the Country of Blois and Maine. Its chief Town is Tours, the reſt of leſſer Note are Ambois, Loches, Langez, Chinon, Chaumont, &c. This Province is about thirty Leagues long, and as many in breadth. It abounds ſo with all ſorts of Fruit, that it's juſtly called the Garden of France. It's watered with ſeveral Navigable Rivers, which make it conſiderable for Commerce, as the Loire, the Cher, Indre, Indrois, Vienne, &c. The Inhabitants are generally good natur'd, Civil and Ingenious. Papire, Maſſon.

TOURNAMENT, an honourable Exerciſe in which Gentlemen entred the Liſts to ſhew their Dexterity and Courage. This word comes from Tourner, either becauſe they rode round a Ring, or turn'd often as there was occaſion. Theſe Military Exerciſes were in uſe under the ſecond Race of the Kings of France; for Nithard reports, that at the Enterview of Charles the Bald, King of France, and his Brother Lewis, King of Germany at Strasbourg, the Gentlemen of both theſe Princes Retinue fought on Horſeback, to ſhew their Skill. And M. Du Cange takes notice, that theſe Sports were ſo particular to the French, that they were term'd Conflictus Gallici. The Engliſh imitated theſe Military Exerciſes in King Stephen's Reign about 1140; but the uſe of 'em was not fully ſettled till King Richard's time, about 1194. The Germans alſo began to practiſe theſe kind of Sports about 1036. Modius, who pretends they were known before that time, has rather romanc'd than writ a true Hiſtory; the Greeks themſelves acknowledging, that they learned them of the Latins, that is, the French, as their Authors alledge. John Cantacuzenus ſays, that theſe Military Plays were firſt ſeen in the Eaſtern Empire in 1326, at the Marriage of Anne of Savoy, Daughter of Amedeus IV. Count of Savoy, with the young Emperor Andronicus Paleologus; yet Nicetas and Cinamus report, That the Emperor Emanuel Comnenus inſtituted them in imitation of the French, about 1145. As theſe Tournaments were deſign'd to teach Men the Art of War, ſo there were no Arms uſed that might hurt the Combatants, the Points of the Swords and Lances being blunted, as alſo the Edges of the Swords rebated, which for that reaſon were called Courteous Weapons: Yet notwithſtanding theſe Precautions, there often happened great Accidents in the Heat of the Fight, either by chance or through the Malice of the Combatants, ſome taking an occaſion to revenge themſelves of their Enemies for private Grudges. Henry Knighton ſpeaking of the Tournament that was kept in 1274 at Chalon, where King Edward and the Engliſh fought the Count of Chalon and Burgundians, ſays, That ſeveral were kill'd upon the ſpot; ſo that this Tournament was called the little War of Chalon; and Hiſtories are full of ſuch unhappy Accidents. This gave the Popes occaſion to forbid them, and Excommunicate all thoſe that ſhould aſſiſt at them: Secular Princes have alſo prohibited them, by reaſon of the Diſorders they commonly cauſed, or that they wanted the Lords and Gentlemen that aſſiſted at them for other Imployments. And Tillet reports, that King Philip Auguſtus made both his Sons ſwear, that they would not go to any ſuch Sports: Yet ſince his time, ſeveral Kings of France have fought in Perſon, as Charles VI. in 1385, at Cambray; Francis I. in 1520, between Ardres and Guines. And finally, Henry II. in 1559 at Paris, where he received a Wound in the Eye by a Splinter of the Count of Montgomery's Lance, whereof he died eleven days after. There have alſo been Challenges of this Nature, wherein People fought in good earneſt, and which ſeldom ended without ſpilling of Blood, or the Death of thoſe that entred the Liſts. Du Cange. Diſſertation 6. Sur l' Hiſtoire d' S. Lowis.

TOURNAY upon the Scheld, a Town of Flanders belonging to the King of France, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Cambray. It's very ancient, being mention'd in Antonin's Itinerary, and in the Eleventh Epiſtle of St. Jerom. The Town is very ſtrong, and defended by a Caſtle, ſaid to have been built by the Engliſh. The French made themſelves Maſters of it in 1518, but Charles V. retook it from them in 1521. Lewis XIV. made himſelf Maſter of it again in 1667, and kept it by the Peace of Aix la Chapelle. The Cathedral of our Lady is very fine; beſides which there are ten Pariſh Churches, two Abbeys, and ſeveral other Religious Houſes; for the Place is big, rich, and of good Traffick, having 72 different ſorts of Trades in it. It is Capital of a little Country, called Tournaiſis. Lewis Guillart, Biſhop of Tournay, made Synodal Ordinances here in 1520, and Maximilian of Gant in 1643. This City ſtands upon the Scheld, nine Leagues from Cambray to the North, and ten from Gant to the South, in the middle between Dovay and Audenard, and alſo between Valencienne and Courtray in the Borders of Hainault. Guicciardin.

TOURNON upon the Rhone, a Town of France in Vivarez, with the Title of a County, and one of the Eleven Baronies of the Province. The Ancients called it Turononium and Taurodunum. It has a Collegiate Church, and a fine College that belongs to the Jeſuits, with ſome other Religious Houſes. Davity deſcr. de Franc.

TOURNON (Francis de) of the Noble Family of Tournon, Dean of the Cardinals, Archbiſhop of Ambrun, Auch, Bourges, Lions, &c. was ſent Embaſſador into Italy, Spain and England, and afterwards made Governor of Lions, Lionnois, Fovez and Beaujolois; he hindred Francis I. from ſending for Melancton into France, whom he often wiſh'd to ſee, becauſe he was much valued by all People for his Parts. Tournon uſed this Artifice to diſſuade the Prince: As he went to Council, he took St. Irenæus's Book againſt Hereticks along with him, and read it whilſt he expected the King, who when he came, did not fail asking what Book it was he was ſo intent upon; whereupon the Cardinal took occaſion to give him an Averſion to the Tenents of Lutheraniſm, and ſucceeded ſo well, that Melancton was countermanded. Cardinal Francis of Tournon rendred his Church conſiderable Service on this occaſion, ſays Morerey. Thuan. Genebrard. Sainte Marthe.

TOURS upon Loire, a City of France, Capital of Touraine, and an Archbiſhop's See; it was called Turonum, Turonium and Cæſarodunum Turonum. It is big, fair and ancient; its Situation between the Rivers of Cher and Loire, render it very pleaſant and of great Traffick, eſpecially for its Silk Manufactories. The Cathedral of St. Gratian deſerves to be ſeen, Famous for its renowned Prelates. This Archbiſhop has for Suffragants Mons, Angers, Nantes, Rennes, Vannes, Cornouaille, Leon, Treguier, St. Malo, St. Brieux and Dol. Beſides the Church of St. Gratian, there are St. Martins, a magnificent Structure, and ſeveral other ſtately Piles, which with its great Places, large Streets, and fine built Houſes, a Preſidial Generality, and Mint that marks with the Letter E, render it very conſiderable. Clotild King of France, died here in 537, and Carloman in 885. Near this place Charles Martell overthrew an Army of Four hundred thouſand Sarazens, Three hundred ſeventy five thouſand of which periſh'd in that Battel in 726. The firſt Council of Tours was held in 461, in which Leo Biſhop of Bourges, Victor Biſhop of Mans, and ſeveral other Prelates, drew up 13 Canons to revive the Diſcipline of the Church, which was then much decay'd. In 567, there was another Council held at Tours, in which there were 27 Canons made for the Regulation of Eccleſiaſtical Polity: The Prelates of this Synod wrote a Circular Letter to the People, to excite them to Publick Penance. Father Harduin the Jeſuit, has explain'd the Third Canon of this Council, in a Diſſertation printed at Paris in 1689. There was likewiſe a Third Council held here in the Reign of Charlemagne, in which the Fathers made fifty one Canons. That which they call the Fourth Council of Tours, was held in Paris in 849, by the Metropolitans of Tours, Sens, Rheims and Roan, againſt Nemenoius Duke of Little Britain, who had expell'd the Biſhops, plunder'd their Churches, and outrag'd their People. There were ſeveral other Councils held at Tours, particularly that held under Pope Alexander III. with Lewis VII. King of France, 70 Cardinals, 124 Biſhops, and 414 Abbots, in 1153 againſt the Emperor. The Proteſtants of France were firſt called Hugonots in this Town, becauſe they uſed to meet at one of its Gates, called the Gate of King Hugo, or Hugh. It is from this Town too, that the French Money has the Tournois added to it, Sous Tournois, Livres Tournois, &c. becauſe there has been a very conſiderable Mint here formerly. Gregory of Tours, Papire, Maſſon, Du Chaſne.

TOWER of Babel, a famous Building ſpoken of in the Hiſtory of the Old Teſtament, Gen. ch. 12. Nimrod, Grandchild of Cham, one of Noe his Sons, form'd the Deſign of raiſing this Tower to the Skies, not only to render his Memory Eternal, but alſo that it might prove a place of Security ſhould another Deluge happen; and as a laſting Monument of the firſt, he choſe for this prodigious Enterprize a great Plain in the Land of Shinar, known ſince under the Name of Chaldea, and about 170 Years after the Deluge began the Work. The Body of this huge Maſs was Brick, cemented together with Bitumen, which is very common in that Country. Though it is not known preciſely what form it was of, yet common Opinion will have it to have been round. When it was built to a certain highth, God hindred the Continuation, by confounding the Language of them that carried it on, which was before that time one and the ſame. This difference of Tongues forced them to abandon the Enterpriſe, and ſeparate themſelves into as many Companies as there were different Dialects; and ſince that time this Tower was called Babel, that is, Confuſion. Both Greek and Latin Poets having heard this Story confuſedly diſcourſed of, have enlarged it after their manner, and feigned, that Giants deſigning to Dethrone the Gods, put ſeveral Mountains one over another, but that Jupiter directing his Thunder-bolts that way, buried them under the Ruins of that great Bulk. It's eaſie to apply this Fable to the Truth of Hiſtory, for Nimrod and his Subjects are repreſented by the Poets as Giants. The Tower that was to be of a prodigious heighth and breadth, is what they called Pelion and Oſſa, laid one over another. It's ſaid, the Ruins of this famous Tower are ſtill to be ſeen a quarter of a League off the Euphrates towards the Eaſt, the Baſis is much of a ſquare Form, whereof the Circuit is about 1150 Paces. Theſe Remains for the moſt part are Brick dry'd in the Sun, and ſtuck together with Mortar that has Reeds broke ſmall into it, unleſs where it was neceſſary the Building ſhould be more Solid; then the Bricks were bak'd with Fire, and cemented with Bitumen, as Petro della Valle has obſerved, who got the two fineſt Proſpects of theſe Ruins deſign'd, viz. the Northern and Southern, and at his return to Rome, made a preſent of them to Father Kircher the Jeſuit, who cauſed them to be engraven. Some doubt whether theſe are really the Remains of Babel, but others make no Difficulty to believe it, for ſeveral Reaſons; firſt, becauſe it's the conſtant Tradition of the Country, where this great heap of Bricks is, called Babel in the Arabick Tongue. The ſecond, becauſe the Situation of theſe Ruins is the ſame with that of the ancient Tower; and that the Plain of Shinar, where it was built, is in this ſame place. Finally, the Scripture aſſures us, the Building was of Brick and Bitumen, both which are to be ſeen in what is ſtill left. Father Kircher Turris Babel, lib. 2.

TOWER of Leander, a ſmall Fortreſs which the Turks call Khes Calaſi, that is, the Maidens Caſtle, and the Europeans the Tower of Leander, but without any grounds, becauſe it was not here Leander uſed to croſs the Water when he went to viſit his Miſtreſs Hero, but at the Dardanelles. It's ſituated upon a Rock in the middle of the Sea, between the Point of the Seraglio of Conſtantinople and Scutari, on the other ſide in Aſia; the Form is ſquare but well furniſh'd with Canon. Here one may have a very pleaſant ſight of Conſtantinople and all the Neighbourhood, which are ſo very Charming, that ſome Travellers ſaid, when they ſaw them from this heighth, that they believed it an enchanted place. Grelot's Voyage of Conſtantinople.

TOWERS (Seven) call'd by the Greeks, Hepta-pyrgion; and in Turkiſh, Jedicula; is a Caſtle with Seven Towers, built in the South-Weſt part of Conſtantinople, and fronting the Sea of Marmora near the Golden-Gate. Mahomet II. built this Fortreſs in 1458: In theſe Seven Towers, the Priſoners of State, the Grandees of Conſtantinople, whom the Sultan has not a mind to put to Death, together with thoſe who are given in Hoſtage, are confin'd. This Place is very pleaſant, the Apartments fine, and the Priſoners want no manner of Conveniences. In the Year 1648, when the great Sedition broke out at Conſtantinople, the Soldiery being highly diſſatisfy'd with the Conduct of Sultan Ibrahim, Father of Mahomet IV. hall'd this Emperor out of the Seraglio, and drag'd him to the Seven Towers, where he was ſtrangled. Sultan Oſman likewiſe loſt his Life there in the ſame manner, by a Tumult in 1622. The Chriſtian Priſoners who are kept in this Place, are generally in for their Life-time; the Turks being commonly ſo obſtinately haughty, as not to be brought to the Terms either of Exchange or Ranſom. The Revenue of the Moſchs is laid up in the Seven Towers, which makes it a very conſiderable Exchequer; for ſome of theſe Moſchs are worth above a Hundred thouſand Crowns per Annum de claro; this Money is appropriated for a Holy War, i. e. to fight the Chriſtians; it being not to be touch'd upon any other occaſion. Quiclet Voyage de Conſtant. Gilles vie de Mahomet II. &c.

TOURRE, a River of Angoumois, which diſcharges it ſelf into the Charante. It's but four Foot deep, bears Boats of one hollow piece of Wood, if they conſiſt of more, they are pierc'd and eaten in a ſhort time by Worms which breed there. There has been a Book printed at Poictiers in 1567, treating of this River, and of a Tomb that was found Under-ground in it.

TRA-LOS-MONTES, in Latin, Tranſmontana Provincia, part of the Kingdom of Portugal, between Galicia and the River Douro. Its Towns are Miranda de Douro and Bragance.

TRADONIC (Peter) Doge of Venice after John Patriciack, in 836 ſignaliz'd his Prudence and Courage, yet had the Misfortune to loſe ſixty Galleys in a Sea-fight againſt the Sarazens. He was kill'd in St. Zachary's Church at Evening Prayers, after he had govern'd the Commonwealth 28 Years. Illuſt. de la Gaul. &c.

TRAERBACK, a Town upon the Moſelle in the County of Spanheim, eighteen Miles from Luxemburgh, between Trier and Coblentz. The King of France's erecting a new Fort over againſt this place in 1687, occaſioned a great Diſpute in the Imperial Diets, whether it was not a Violation of the twenty Years Truce, though he built it upon the Grounds reunited to his Crown.

TRAGEDIE, a Dramatick Performance upon the Theatre, wherein the Lives and great Actions of Princes and Heroes are repreſented: This in the beginning was but a Hymn of the Pagan Religion, ſung in Honour of Bacchus. Hyginus and Athenæus give this account of the Original of it: Icarius who reign'd in Attica about the Year of the World 2700, having learn'd of Bacchus the Art of Planting Vines and making Wine, found a He-goat in his Vineyard, which fed upon and ſpoil'd his Grapes; having taken it, he Sacrificed it to Bacchus; and during this Ceremony, they that aſſiſted, danc'd together round it, having ſmeared their Faces with the Lees of Wine, and ſinging the Praiſes of that God. They obſerved the ſame Ceremonies yearly, and call'd them Trygodie, that is, Vintage Song; and afterwards Tragodie, which we pronounce Tragedy, from Τράγος, a He-goat, and Ωδὴ a Song: The Athenians added a Chorus and Set-Dances. The moſt conſiderable Poets counting it an honour to compoſe theſe Hymns, which brought 'em often to a Vie with one another: So that then the Name of Tragedy became very Famous; and that which remain'd amongſt the Country People was call'd Comedie, that is, a Village-Song; and as by little and little the Subject which Poets uſed to take for the Praiſes of Bacchus was drain'd, they choſe little Stories and Fables, and took occaſion thence to Praiſe their God. Some will have Epigenes a Sicyonian, to have been the Inventer of Tragedy, that is, that he introduced the Chorus of Muſick, or at leaſt put the Poets upon diſputing the Prize in their Faculty, in Honour of Bacchus, or elſe invented the Fables and Hiſtories ſpoken of. Others are of opinion, that Theognis, who lived about the Year of the World 2880, was the Author of it; and that Auleas added the Muſical Chorus to this Dramatick Repreſentation: Be it how it will, Tragedy remained thus a long time; for People count fourteen Tragick Poets very Famous, and all Succeſſors of one another between this Epigenes and Theſpis, who lived about the Year of the World 3530, and was the firſt that introduced an Actor to repeat ſome Diſcourſe, and gave the Muſicians and Dancers time to reſt; for before Theſpis, the Chorus play'd the whole Tragedy, as Diogenes Laertius obſerves; that is to ſay, Tragedy had no Actors, but was only compos'd of a Chorus. What this Actor, introduc'd by Theſpis, rehears'd, was call'd an Epiſode, i. e. a Poem, coming between two Songs of the Chorus, or if you pleaſe, a Foreign Addition to the Chorus. Having thus begun to change its Form, the Number of Actors increaſed by little and little. Æſchylus, who lived about fifty Years after Theſpis, ſettled two Actors for the Epiſodes, and fitted them with Cloaths and Masks ſuiting the Perſonages they repreſented, as alſo Cothurni or Buskins, to make them ſeem as tall as Heroes. Sophocles, who was both contemporary with Æſchilus, and liv'd 10 or 12 Years after him, added a third Actor, and painted the Scene with Decorations according to the Subjects that were to be repreſented. Theſe Epiſodes were like our Modern Tragedies; for they were repeated between two Songs of the Chorus, as our Acts now between two Conſorts of Muſick or Violins. To diſtinguiſh Tragedies by the Cataſtrophe or Iſſue, there have been two ſorts, ſome were Fatal, and ended by ſome conſiderable Misfortune of the Heroes. Others had more favourable Exits, and ended with the Satisfaction of the chiefeſt Perſonages. Yet ſeveral have imagined, that the Name of Tragedy was proper only to thoſe Dramatick Poems, whoſe Cataſtrophe was always Unfortunate and Bloody; which Error proceeded hence, that the firſt Tragedies had generally ſuch Events, either that Hiſtories fell out ſo, or out of the Poet's Complaiſance to the Athenians, who were taken with Objects of Terror and Pity; but this did not happen always; and we ſee that of nineteen of Euripides's Tragedies, the moſt part had happy Iſſues. Ariſtotle divides the ancient Tragedy into Four Parts, viz. Prologue, Chorus, Epiſode and Exode, or Cataſtrophe; but the new that ſucceeded, was compoſed of Five Acts and ſeveral Scenes, with Interacts, Interludes of Muſick or Symphony. Hygin. Diogenes Laertius, Hedelin.

TRAGI-COMEDIES, a Name that is given to Tragedies which have happy Iſſues, though there be nothing that is Comick in the whole Piece, and that the Perſonages as well as Subject be Tragick, that is, Heroick. Garnier ſeems to have been the firſt that made uſe of this word, as the Title to his Play, called the Bradamante, which ſeveral have imitated; and Plautus has imploy'd the ſame word of Tragi-Comedy in the Prologue of his Amphitryon, but in a very different Senſe from what we give it. Mercury ſays in this Prologue, that he will make a Tragi-Comedy of this Piece, becauſe that Gods and Kings were to act in it; and that he intended to mix the Meanneſs of Comick Diſcourſe with the Dignity of thoſe Perſons: So that it's plain, he made uſe of this word in a railing kind of way, not to ſignifie a Dramatick Poem, whoſe ſubject is always Heroick, and the end happy; but to ſhew a Comedy, wherein great Perſonages are introduced to Buffoon and Ridicule their Greatneſs. In which ſenſe, a great many of Ariſtophanes his Comedies are Tragi-Comedies; for in moſt of them, the Gods and Perſons of Condition mix and place themſelves with Slaves and Buffoons. The name of Tragi-Comedy is improper in the ſenſe we take it; for in all ſorts of Poems there is nothing that reſembles Comedy, all being Solemn and Sublime, and nothing Vulgar and Buffooning. Tragedy and Comedy were always ſuch different Poems, that not only the Perſons and Styles agreed in nothing, but alſo the Tragedians did not act Comedies, nor Comedians Tragedies. Hedelin Pratique du Theatre.

TRAGONARA, a little Town of the Kingdom of Naples in the Capitanata, being a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Benevento.

TRAJAN (M. Ulpius Crinitus) Emperor, Native of Italica, a Town of Spain in Andalouſia, or according to others of Todi in Italy; his Birth did not promiſe this great Dignity which his Vertue and Courage advanced him to; he was very Serviceable to Veſpaſian and his Son Titus, in their Wars againſt the Jews, where he commanded the Twelfth Legion, and afwards ſignaliz'd himſelf on ſeveral occaſions; ſo that Nerva made him his Partner in his Empire barely for his Merit; and after that Prince's Death, the Soldiers ſaluted him Emperor, and dreſs'd him in the Imperial Purple. He wrote immediately to the Senate, that an honeſt Man ſhould never be condemn'd to Death by his order: A Promiſe which he kept very ill in relation to Chriſtians; for though he publiſh'd no expreſs Edict againſt them, yet the Prohibition of night Aſſemblies, and new and foreign Religions, furniſhed the Governors and Preſidents of Provinces with an occaſion of perſecuting the Faithful; the Fury of this Perſecution ceaſed a little upon Pliny the Younger's Advice; but this laſted but a ſhort time. Trajan hearing that Decebalus, King of the Daci, had revolted, march'd his Armies into his Country, and having defeated him twice, reduced Dacia into a Province. After this Conqueſt he return'd to Rome, where he received ſeveral Embaſſies from remote Countries, ſome even from the Indies, though their Name was hardly known at that time. It was then he began to build the famous Pillar that bears his Name, which was finiſhed not till ſeven Years after; it is one of the Maſter-pieces of Architecture; Pope Sixtus V. rebuilt it, and got the Statue of St. Peter put upon it. The Emperor afterwards won great Victories over the Armenians, Parthians, Oſdroenians, Arabians, Aſſyrians, Iberians, and over the Inhabitants of Colchis, and the Perſians, which he ſubdued with a Glory that would have been without Example, had not he ſtain'd it by baniſhing 11000 Chriſtians, which he Disbanded out of his Army, and ſent into Armenia. He was like to have periſh'd in the dreadful Earthquake that happen'd at Antioch in his time, being forced to be drawn out at a Window. After this, he quite exterminated the Jews who had revolted, and died in a Town of Cilicia, then called Selinunte, and afterwards the Town of Trajan or Trajanopolis. His Death happened in 117 of Chriſt, the 64th Year of his Age. Pliny the Younger, ſpoke that excellent Panegyrick to him, which is ſtill extant; but his cruelty and intemperate love of Boys, with his exceſs of Wine, ſhews the great Flattery of his Admirers. Dion. in Traj. Aurel. Victor. Eutropius, &c.

TRAJANOPOLIS, a Town of Thrace, with an Archbiſhoprick. It was called Zernis, but has ſince received that of the Emperor Trajan.

TRAJANOPOLIS, a Town of Cilicia, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Seleucia. It's the Selinus or Selinunte where Trajan died. The Turks call it Iſlenos, as Leunclavius has obſerved.

TRAJANOPOLIS, a Town of Sicily, called Dragina by the Greeks, according to Curopalates his Teſtimony. It was a Biſhoprick in St. Gregory's time, and is thought to be that now called Traina or Troina.

TRAJETO, a Town, Biſhoprick, and Dutchy of the Kingdom of Naples in Terra di Lavoro; it grew out of the Ruins of the ancient Minturnæ.

TRALLES, or Trallis, an ancient Epiſcopal Town of Lydia under the Metropolis of Epheſus, or as others will have it, under that of Sardis: Here has been formerly a famous Temple of Victory, where it's ſaid, a Palm-tree was ſeen grow very green under Cæſar's Statue, about the time of his Victory over Pompey at Pharſalia; but it's now almoſt ruin'd, and what ſtill remains is called Chora. St. Ignatius writ one of his Epiſtles to the Chriſtians of this Town.

TRANCOWITZ, or Matthias Flaccus Illyricus, his right Name was Matthias Trancowitz, called Flaccus or Flacius; and becauſe he was born at Albonne in Illiria, he received the Sirname of Illyricus. He was born in 1520, ſtudied at Venice, where he made great Progreſs in the Sciences; thence came into Germany, imbraced Luther's Doctrin, and with Nicolas Gallus, Amſdorſius, and ſome others of that Party, oppoſed Melancton and others, who had changed ſomewhat in the Confeſſion of Augsbourg, which got the Name of Mild Lutherans, whilſt Matthias and his were called the Rigid. In the mean time Flacius compoſed ſeveral Works to maintain his Sentiments, and made himſelf much admired for his Learning, and then ſettling at Magdebourg, he with John Vigand of Mansfeldt, Matthew Juge, Baſilius Faber, and ſeveral others, undertook the Hiſtory of the Church, known under the name of the Centuries of Magdebourg, which we have in the thirteen Volumes. It was to refute this Work, that Cardinal Baronius compoſed his Annals. Matthias Flacius died at Strasbourg the Eleventh of March 1575, aged 55. This Flacius is by ſome Authors ſaid, to have fallen at laſt into Arianiſm and Manicheiſm; and Schluſſelburg a Proteſtant, puts him in his Catalogue of Hereticks. Thuan. Sleidan, Prateole.

TRANI, Lat. Tranium, Trana, a City in the Province Di Bari in the Kingdom of Naples, which is great and populous, the See of an Archbiſhop, ſituate in a Fruitful Soil upon the Adriatick Sea, where it had heretofore a great Haven, which is now choak'd up with Sand. Frederick II. built a ſtrong Caſtle in it to defend it againſt the Sarazens.

TRANQUILITY, a Goddeſs of Paganiſm, ordered at Rome under the Name of Quies. Its Temple was without the Town near the Gate Collatine.

TRANSCHIN, a Province of Upper Hungary with the Title of County, whereof the chief Town is called Tranſchin. This County is upon the River Vag, between Sileſia towards the North, Moravia towards the Eaſt, the County of Turocz to the Weſt, and the County of Nitrie or Nitrach to the South; it belongs to the Houſe of Auſtria.

TRANSFIGURATION, a Feaſt inſtituted to celebrate the Memory of the day that Jeſus Chriſt appeared in a Glorious State with Moſes and Elias upon a Mountain, whither he led St. Peter, St. James and St. John. As to the Inſtitution of this Feaſt, Baronius proves it very ancient; however, the obſervation of it was made more Solemn by Calixtus III. in 1456. Baronius, Not. in Martyrol. &c.

TRANSILVANIA, a Principality of Europe, part of the ancient Dacia to the Weſt of Hungary, and Eaſt of Moravia, having Mount Carpathus to the North, and Walachia to the South. Its length and breadth are four days Journy each: It had its Name from the Romans, by reaſon of the Foreſts and Mountains that environ'd it; but the Hungarians called it Erdely, and the Germans Sibenburgen, a Name derived from the Seven Towns built there by the baniſh'd Saxons. Several other Inhabitants ſettled in it, but the Saxons, who beſt cultivated the Country, had the firmeſt footing. The Romans afterwards under Trajan, became Maſters of it. It was afterwards united to the Kingdom of Hungary, whence it was ſeparated in 1541; and now the Princes are Tributary ſometimes to the Turk, ſometimes to the Emperor of Germany. The Plains are very fruitful in Corn, the Hills cover'd with Vines and Mountains, well ſtock'd with Silver, Gold, and Salt Mines. They have alſo ſome Bitumen, whereof they make Torches, whoſe Smoak refreſh the Brain mightily. In their Woods they have great Numbers of Red and Fallow Deer, Bears, Bouflers, and Wild Horſes. Their Water is unwholſom, becauſe it paſſes through Mines of Alum and Mercury: But there are ſome that taſte like Wine, others that petrifie and form a hard Cruſt, round Wood, or any thing elſe thrown into 'em. This Principality is inhabited by three ſorts of Nations, viz. Saxons, Bulgarians, and Hungarians; the firſt poſſeſs the Province called The Seven Towns, the Bulgarians dwell on the Banks of Mariſe, the Hungarians poſſeſs the Frontiers of Valachia, and are of the Greek Church. Theſe are divided into Counties, pay no Tribute to the Prince of Tranſilvania, but are obliged to ſerve at their own Expences when he goes to War. The Doctrine of Luther and Calvin were introduc'd here in 1561; for George Blandrata, Phyſician to John Zapol Count of Scepus, and Vaivode of Tranſilvania, made this young Prince embrace the Sentiments of Luther by means of Denis Alexis; but this Man not executing his Orders with care enough, he ſubſtituted Francis David in his Place, who of a Lutheran made the Prince a Calviniſt, and at laſt taught him the the Doctrine of Arius. Stephen Bathori Prince of Tranſilvania, in 1571, afterwards choſen King of Poland, endeavoured to reeſtabliſh the Roman Catholick Religion; and to that end, gave the Government of this Principality to his Brother Chriſtopher Bathori, who caſt David into Priſon, where he died mad. He Founded a College of Jeſuits at Colaſwar; but dying in 1583, his Son Sigiſmond who ſucceeded him, to comply with the Tranſilvanians, was forced to diſmiſs the Jeſuits, but recalled them two Years after. The chief Towns of Tranſilvania are Zebin, Braſſony, Coloſwar, Biſtrich, Zeſwar, Meges, Sebeſte, Alba Julia, and Hermenſtadt. Michael Abafti, the Twenty third Prince from John Huniades, who ſucceeded John Kemani in 1661, by a ſolemn Act given at Hermenſtadt, May 9. 1688, with the full conſent of the States of Tranſilvania, made an entire Submiſſion of this Country to the Emperor and the King of Hungary to laſt for ever; and accordingly he receiv'd Imperial Gariſons into all the principal Places. The ſaid Prince dying Anno 1690, the States in a general Aſſembly reſolved to adhere to the Intereſts of the Emperor and the young Prince, Son to the Deceaſed, he being confirm'd by the Emperor againſt all the Pretences of Count Teckely or the Ottoman Port, according to the Tenor of the ſaid Treaty. And thus they remain entirely Incorporated with the Crown of Hungary under the Protection of the Emperor. Hiſtoire des Troubles de Hongrie.

TRAPANO, or Trapani, in Latin Drepanum, a Sea-Port of Sicily in the Province or Valley of Mazara, upon the Weſtern Coaſt towards the Cape of Marſale, or Coco. Its Latin Name Drepanum, deriv'd from the Greek δρεπανὴ, which ſignifies Falx, ſhews its Situation repreſents a Reaping-Hook. It has near it, towards the South, a ſmall Iſland, or rather a Rock, that advances into the Sea, and is called Colombara, with a very ſtrong Citadel. This Town is built at the Foot of the Mountain formerly called Erix, but now Trapani, where the Ruins of the ancient Town called alſo Erix but now Trapano Vecchio, are to be ſeen. Trapano, ſaith the Nubian Geographer, pag. 173, is an ancient City ſurrounded by the Sea, but joined to the Continent by a Bridge on the Eaſt-ſide. The Haven on the South-ſide of the City is quiet and ſafe. This City was built by Amilcar the Carthaginian, Anno Mundi 3685, of Rome 488, and taken by Atilius Calatinus a Roman General, ſix Years after. It is well Fortified againſt the Moors, and has the Command of a very large Port, which antiently ſerved this Place and Palermo too. The Inhabitants of this Place are now ſaid to be the beſt Sea-men in the Iſland of Sicily. There is alſo a Fiſhery for a Coral, but it is ſmall and ill coloured. The Romans and Carthaginians made great account of this City both for the Port's ſake and their Paſſage into Africa.

TRAU, a Sea-Port belonging to the Venetians in Dalmatia, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant to Spalatro. It ſtands in a ſmall Iſland of the ſame Name, but joined to the Continent by a Bridge 70 Miles from Zara, and 12 from Salona, ſubject to the Venetians ſince 1420.

TRAVADOS, ſo the Portugueſe call a certain ſudden and impetuous Wind or Hurricane, which turns all things topſey-turvy, frevent in the Atlantick Ocean between Braſil and Africa, and about the Cape of Good Hope, where they firſt felt its Fury, to their great Loſs. It's very calm commonly before this Storm, and there appears a ſmall Cloud, which the Mariners call Ox-Eye, over one of the Peaks of the Promontory, which falling lower, covers the whole Summet. The Mariners, as ſoon as they obſerve this Sign, furl their Sails, and make all the haſte they can from the Shore to avoid the Fury of the Tempeſt; for of a ſudden a terrible Wind ruſhes from the top of the Mountain, and deſtroys all Ships within its reach. The Whirlwinds which often ſurprize Travellers in the Deſarts of Arabia, ſeem to be of this nature; for there appears firſt a thick and dark Cloud which darkens the Skies, and is followed by a Storm, which in a moment covers the Earth with ſuch a vaſt quantity of Red Sand, that whole Caravans of 6000 Men have been buried under it. Some think that the Body of the People loſt thus, dried by the Heat of the Sun when the Wind blows the Sand off, are the Arabian and Egyptian Mummies. Becmannus Hiſt. Orb. Terr. Geogr.

TRAVANGOR, a Town and little Kingdom in the Indies in Malabar, on this ſide the Ganges.

TRAVAUX, Labours called in Spaniſh Boia de los Marabaios, and in Latin Sinus Laborum, a Gulf of America Meridionalis, upon the Coaſts of the Magellanick Land, and near the Wiſh'd for Port: Others call it the White Gulf, and the Gulf of St. George.

TRAUSES, ancient People of Thrace, now of Romania near Mount Æmus, upon the Frontiers of Lower Mœtia: They were accuſtomed to lament at the Birth of their Children, and rejoice at their Death. Liv.

TREBELLIANUS (Caius Annius) Prince of Iſauria got himſelf declared Emperor in the 111th Age, and Reign of the Emperor Gallienus. He extended his Conqueſts, and began to become very formidable, until being drawn into the Field, he was kill'd by Cauſiſoleus, Brother to Theodorus, General of Gallienus's Troops. Trebellius Pollio.

TREBELLIUS (Pollio) a Latin Hiſtorian, lived in the time of Conſtantius Chlorus (Conſtantine the Great's Father,) and writ the Lives of the Emperors from the two Philips to Claudius and his Brother Quintillus; of all which Works we have but part of Valerian the Father's Life, that of his Son, with the Lives of both the Gallienus's and the Thirty Tyrants. Vopiſcus praiſes the Exactneſs of this Hiſtorian. Geſner, Voſſius.

TREBISONDE, in Latin Trapezus, a Town of Cappadocia in Aſia Minor, or as People ſpeak now of Anatolia. It's ſo very ancient, that Tacitus, Strabo, Pliny, Pomponius Mela, and divers other Authors, have made mention of it; but it's more famous for being Capital of an Empire to which it gives its Name, which was eſtabliſhed by Alexis Comnenus when he fled from Conſtantinople in 1204. Mahomet II. aboliſhed it in 1460 or 61, after he had taken the Town of Trebiſonde. This State comprehends Cappadocia, Paphlagonia, Pontus, and ſome other Provinces.

TREBONIUS, one of thoſe that murther'd Julius Cæſar, having made his Eſcape into Aſia, was ſurpriſed at Smyrna by Dolabella, and put to a cruel Death. Cicero in Philip.

TREBULA, an ancient Town of the Aborigenes, now called Monte Leone in the Land of Sabins, a Province of the Church Lands in Italy. It has a Caſtle, with the Remains of ancient Inſcriptions and Ruins of a Theatre, which ſhew it has been very conſiderable formerly.

TREGARON, a mean Corporation and Market Town of Pennarth Hundred in Cardiganſhire, govern'd by a Mayor, and beautified with a fair Church; from London 140 Miles.

TREGONEY, a Borough Town and Corporation in the County of Cornwal, in the Hundred of Powder, ſituate on a Creek of Falmouth Haven. It ſends two Burgeſſes to the Houſe of Commons. It's 210 Miles from London.

TREGUIER upon the Sea, or Lantriguet, an Iſle of France in Low Britany, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Tours. This Town is ancient, and was often ruined by the Incurſions of Saxons, Danes, and Normans. The Biſhop is both Spiritual and Temporal Lord thereof, under the Title of Count. The Cathedral is called S. Tudgal, which was the Name of their Firſt Biſhop. It is nine Miles from S. Brien to the Weſt, and thirty from Rheims. Argentre Sainte Marthe Gall. Chriſt.

TREMELLIUS (Emanuel) born at Ferrara. His Father was a Jew, and very learned in the Hebrew Tongue. He came into Germany with Peter Martyr, Vermili, and ſome others, who had privately turn'd Proteſtants: And after ſome ſtay at Strasbourg, he paſſed into England, whence he return'd again after King Edward the Sixth's Death, and taught in the College of Honbach, until he was called thence to be Hebrew Profeſſor at Heidelberg, where he turn'd the Syriack Interpretation of the New Teſtament into Latin, and undertook a New Verſion of the Old out of the Hebrew, aſſociating Francis Junius or du Jon of Bourges, who after Tremellius's Death taking too much liberty in Correcting a Work whereof he was no Author, made it in the Judgment of a great many, not only more obſcure, but alſo more daring and preſumptuous. As to Tremellius's Verſion of the Bible, Father Simon obſerves, that the moſt Learned Proteſtants had no great opinion of it; for which reaſon ſeveral of them have touch'd it over again: He adds, That Tremellius being a Jew, has ſomething ſingular in his Performance; that he often miſtakes the true ſenſe, and that his Latin is affected and full of Faults. Thuan. P. Simon Critiques du Nouv. Teſt.

TREMISSEN, a Kingdom of Barbary, according to Leo Africanus, hath three Provinces under it, the Mountains Tenez, and Algezer or Algier; for, as Bugia, it was ſometimes under this King, and at others under Tunis, as they prevailed. This Kingdom borders on the Weſt on that of Fez, on the Eaſt on that of Tunis, hath on the North the Mediterranean Sea, and on the South Mount Atlas; it's Inhabited by the Arabick Family called Delleg. The River Zha ſeparates it from Chauz, a Province of the Kingdom of Fez. It was called Cæſaria Mauritania by the Romans. In Length from Eaſt to Weſt it is 380 Miles, but in Breadth not above 25. It has two celebrated Ports, Horam or Oran, and Marſa, Elcabir or Merſalcabir, which are both in the Poſſeſſion of the Spaniards. The King then Reigning being baniſhed by his Subjects, becauſe Unfortunate in this, and ſlain by Barbaroſſa the Turk, when he Conquer'd this Kingdom, Abuchemmu his Son was reſtored by Charles V. in 1535. To him ſucceeded Habdulla. Towards the Sea it is Woody; to the South Mountainous, Dry and Barren; and has for many Ages been deſolated by the wild Arabs and dreadful Wars with the Kings of Fez. The Kingdom is now long ſince ended, viz. in 1570, and it is ſubject to the Commonwealth of Tunis, under the Protection of the Turk. Leo African, pag. 216. The City of Tremiſen is called by the Nubian Geographers Telamſam, by Leo Africanus Tlenſin, is a great City, and was formerly the Royal Seat of Kings. It was ſmall, but in the Year of Chriſt 1001, it began to be better Peopled, and under Abu Teſfin it had 16000 Families. Joſeph King of Fez, after this, Beſieg'd it ſeven Years together; and when he had reduced it to great Straits, he was ſlain under the Walls of it by one of his own Subjects; which was followed by the Ruin of his Army. Abulheſes, another King of Fez, 42 Years after took this City, after a Siege of 18 Months, and he carried away the King and ſlew him, and Sack'd the City. It was rebuilt, and encreaſed again to 12000 Families, and had ſtately Moſques, and five Colledges, and Baths, and Inns, two of which were frequented by the Merchants of Genoa and Venice. The Jews had a great ſhare in the Trade, and were once very rich; but in the Year 1514, upon the Death of Abuhabdilla King of Tremiſen, they were all Robbed. The Walls are high and ſtrong, and have five Gates. On the South-ſide ſtands the Royal Palace, which is great and full of pleaſant Fountains, and has Noble Gardens. The Fields about the City are pleaſant and well built, and cultivated, yielding good Figs, Almonds, Peaches, Mellons, and Pome-Citrons. Three Miles to the Eaſt runs the River Sefsif. The Inhabitants for Bravery, excel thoſe of Fez: They are all of them Artificers, Merchants, Scholars, or Soldiers. The Merchants drive a great Trade with the Negroes of Africa.

TREMITI, an Iſland of the Gulf of Venice, upon the Coaſts of the Kingdom of Naples, and the firſt of the Iſlands call'd the Iſlands of Diomedes by the Ancients, gives its Name to ſome others called the Iſles of Tremiti. The firſt has a famous Monaſtery of Canon Regulars of St. John of Lateran.

TREMITUGE, in Latin Tremithus, was formerly an Epiſcopal Town of the Iſland of Cyprus, and very famous for the Miracles of St. Spiridion, Biſhop thereof; but is now but a ſmall Burrough. Some ſay that Nicoſia, now Capital of the Iſland, was built upon the Ruins of that ancient Town. Stephan. Suidas.

TRENT, a noted River in England, by which it is uſually divided into Two Parts, North and South. It riſes in Staffordſhire, near Mowcop Hill toward Cheſhire, runs through the Counties of Derby, Nottingham, and Lincoln, and at laſt falls into the Humber: In the firſt it waters Burton, in Nottinghamſhire Newark, and Gainsborough in Lincolnſhire.

TRENTE upon Adeſſe, a Town on the Confines of the County of Tirol, between Italy and Germany. Its Latin Name is Tridentum. It's Capital of a ſmall Country call'd Tridentin. The Biſhop is Lord of it, and Prince of the Empire, under Protection of the Emperor, as Count of Tirol. This Country is in the Alpes, call'd Tridentines, and the Town ſituated in a Plain, ſurrounded with very fruitful Hills, and water'd by ſeveral Brooks that run thither from all Parts, which make its Situation very agreeable. The Cathedral of St. Vigil, is very conſiderable for its Architecture, but yet more for the Chapter, whereof all the Members are Men of Birth, and have always the Power to chuſe one of their Body for their Biſhop. Beſides the Cathedral, there is a College that belongs to the Jeſuits, a great number of Convents and Monaſteries, with magnificent Palaces, that well deſerve to be ſeen of Strangers. This Town is famous for the laſt General Council, begun in the Year 1545, under the Pontificate of Paul III. being open'd on the 13th of December. The Biſhops at firſt, order'd the manner of Proceeding in the Council, and decreed, that they ſhould not Vote by Nations according to the Precedents of the Councils of Conſtance and Baſil; that Method appearing to 'em unfair, and being the occaſion of Diſorder, 'twas therefore reſolv'd, That every one ſhould have the freedom to Vote in his own Perſon, and that the Matters in Queſtion ſhould be govern'd by the Majority, according to the Practice of the laſt Council of Lateran under Leo X. The Proteſtants, teſtants, ſays our Author, inſiſted upon a Council perfectly independent of the Pope, i. e. they would have had a Meeting without a Head, which was impracticable. They pretended likewiſe, that the Laity ought to have had the liberty of Voting; but to prevent ſuch an Imputation upon the Council, they ſtiled themſelves, The Holy Oecumenical Council, and not the Council repreſenting the Univerſal Church, (which latter was the Form of the Councils of Conſtance and Bazil,) that the Proteſtants might have no pretence of ſaying, That ſince the Laity were Members of the Church Repreſented, they ought alſo to be Members of the Church Repreſenting; which Aſſertion, ſays the Supplement of Morery, is but a poor Sophiſm, and eaſily Anſwer'd, by ſaying, That the Council repreſents the Church, inaſmuch as ſhe teaches and decrees by the Paſtors of it, to whom the Laity are united by their Submiſſion. The Third Seſſion was held February 4. 1546. where there were five new Cardinals, ſix Archbiſhops, thirty Biſhops, and a great many Abbots; here the Creed of Conſtantinople was read: And, that there might be time given for the Biſhops upon their Journey, the fourth Seſſion was Prorogu'd to the 4th of April; at which, there were preſent nine Archbiſhops and fourty one Biſhops. Then, according to the cuſtom of ancient Councils, the number of the Canonical Books of the Old and New Teſtament, and the Traditions convey'd down by the Church, from the Apoſtles to the preſent Age, was ſettled. The Council likewiſe declar'd, that the Vulgar Tranſlation ought to be eſteem'd Authentick. Afterwards the Fathers being deſirous to follow the Method of the Auguſtan Confeſſion, in order to examine it more exactly; for this Reaſon, in the fifth Seſſion they decreed, what was neceſſary to be believ'd concerning Original Sin: The Council declaring amongſt other things, That tho' this Sin be remittted in Baptiſm, yet Concupiſcence, which is the effect of Sin, remains. The ſixth Seſſion, upon the occaſion of ſome Diſturbances in Germany, was adjourn'd to the 13th of January 1547, in which, the Decree concerning Juſtification paſſed, wherein 33 Errors were condemn'd; ſome of which were, the Tenents of the Pelagians, who allow too much to the Will, aſſiſted only by natural Strength: Others of theſe cenſur'd Opinions, were held by the Lutherans, who aſcribe all to the Grace of God, which ſay they, governs and over-bears the Will by an irreſiſtible Force. The ſeventh Seſſion was held on the 3d of March, when they publiſh'd a Decree concerning the Sacraments in general, i. e. concerning the Number, Perſon inſtituting, the Neceſſity, Efficacy, Matter, Form, and Miniſter of the Sacraments. In the eighth Seſſion held on the 11th day of March, a Tranſlation of the Council to Bononia was reſolv'd on, upon the account of a Report of the Plague being at Trent; but this Reſolution being oppos'd by the Biſhops of Germany, who continued to ſit at Trent, after the Italians were gone off, the Council was re-commenc'd, or rather continu'd at Trent the Firſt of May, under Pope Julius III. in 1551. In the thirteenth Seſſion held that ſame Year, October 11. a Decree concerning the Euchariſt was read; in which the Council concluded againſt the Sacramentarians, That Jeſus Chriſt was really preſent in the Holy Sacrament of the Altar; and againſt the Lutherans, they decreed, The Doctrines of Tranſubſtantiation, the Adoration of the Hoſt, and the Preſence of Jeſus Chriſt, at other times beſides that at actual Receiving. They refus'd to define the Point of Communion under both Kinds for the Laity, and the Sacrifice of the Maſs; that the Proteſtant Divines, who ſeem'd very much concern'd in the ſettling of theſe Diſputes, and to whom they had given a ſafe Conduct, might have time to come up, and propoſe the Reaſons of their Opinions to the Council. In the fourteenth Seſſion, begun November 25. 1551. the Doctrine of the Church concerning the Sacraments of Penance and Extreme Unction, were declared: As to Penance, the Council ſet forth the Neceſſity and Inſtitution of this Sacrament, how it differ'd from Baptiſm; and enlarging upon the three Branches of it, viz. Contrition, Confeſſion, and Satisfaction: They likewiſe ſet forth the Inſtitution and Effects of Extreme Unction. In the fifteenth Seſſion, begun the 25th of January 1552, they granted a new ſafe Conduct to the Proteſtants, and adjourn'd till the Firſt of May, to give others time to repreſent their Reaſons to the Council, concerning Communion in both Kinds, the Sacrifice of the Maſs, and the Sacraments of Orders and Marriage. The Divines in the mean time, holding Congregations to ſtate the Diſputes about Marriage, and to form Decrees upon their Concluſions, in order to propoſe 'em in the ſixteenth Seſſion; which being appointed, and ready to commence on the 28th of April, they underſtood that Maurice, Elector of Saxony, having join'd his Troops with thoſe of the Marqueſs of Brandenburgh and Landgrave of Heſſe, in Defence of Lutheraniſm, had made himſelf Maſter of Augsbourg, and ſeem'd to threaten the Security of Trent. This Turn of Affairs oblig'd the Legates to ſuſpend the Council by the permiſſion of Julius III. neither had they any opportunity of ſetting it on foot again during the Pontificates of Marcellus II. and Paul IV. but Pius IV. conven'd it again by his Bull dated the 29th of November 1560, to be held on Eaſter-day the Year following: In this Bull, he did not make uſe of the Term Continuation; that Word being very offenſive to the Proteſtants, becauſe they knew themſelves condemn'd in ſeveral Articles in the former Seſſion of the Synod: However, tho' the Pope forbore the Term, he expreſs'd the Thing, declaring, That the Oecumenical Council being ſuſpended by reaſon of the Wars, he took off this Suſpenſion, and conven'd it in the ſame Town of Trent, with the conſent of the Emperor, Kings, and other Chriſtian Princes. And becauſe, at the time aſſign'd for the new opening of the Council, there was but nine Biſhops arriv'd at Trent; the firſt Seſſion, i. e. the ſeventeenth of the Council, was not held till the 18th of January, 1562; in which a Decree was only drawn up and read, declaring, That the Council intended to Treat upon all thoſe Heads which they thought proper to compoſe the Differences relating to Religion, and which were neceſſary for the Correction of Abuſes, the Reformation of Manners, and for the reſtoring of Peace, and good Order to the Church. In the eighteenth Seſſion, there was a Decree made concerning the Index or Catalogue of prohibited Books; but this Index was not publiſh'd fitting, the Council, that the Proteſtants might not be diſoblig'd, by finding themſelves condemn'd in their Writings: There was likewiſe a Safe Conduct paſs'd, not only for the Lutherans of Germany, but for all other Nations. In the twentieth Seſſion, the Ambaſſadors of the King of France being arriv'd in May, embaraſs'd the Father's Proceedings; for theſe Ambaſſadors not only demanded (like the Imperialiſts) that the Propoſal of the Spaniards ſhould be rejected, who would have had a Declararation paſs, that the Council was only a Continuation of the former, but the French inſiſted on the contrary, That the Council ſhould be declar'd a New one; becauſe otherwiſe, not only the Proteſtants of Germany, but likewiſe thoſe of France, would never own it: To this, the Pope's Legates having reply'd, That they had no Commiſſion to change any thing, and much leſs to make a new Form of Indiction; the Ambaſſadors of the Emperor and France, acquieſs'd at laſt, for fear the Council ſhould break up. And becauſe thoſe who deſir'd the Points of Faith might not be determin'd till the Proteſtants had propos'd their Reaſons; theſe Points, which were to have been ſettled by the twentieth Seſſion, were deferr'd till the twenty firſt. In the mean time, the Ambaſſadors of the Emperor and Duke of Bavaria, thoſe of Hungary and Bohemia, together with thoſe ſent from the French King, deſir'd, That for the gaining of the Proteſtants, Communion under both Kinds might be allow'd: This Matter was diſcuſs'd in ſeveral Congregations; after which, in the twenty firſt Seſſion, the Council made a Decree, That 'twas Matter of Faith to believe, that Communicating in one Kind, as to the Laity and Clergy that do not Conſecrate, is ſufficient for Salvation; and ſo, without ſticking upon this Point any longer, they examin'd the Sacrifice of the Maſs, the Decree concerning which being read in the twenty ſecond Seſſion, ſets forth, That the unbloody Sacrifice of the Euchariſt, is a daily Repreſentation of that upon the Croſs; that 'tis Propitiatory for the Living, and for the Faithful who are Deceas'd; that 'tis offer'd to God alone, tho' ſometimes in honour of the Saints, and out of regard to their Memory. Afterwards having according to their cuſtomary Proceedings, made two Decrees for the Reformation of Manners and Diſcipline, they fix'd the twenty third Seſſion for the 12th of November; but the Emperor Ferdinand and King Charles IX. of France, inſiſting upon a Reformation of the Court of Rome, they were oblig'd to defer it till July in 1563. Now the Pope having ſatisfy'd theſe Princes, by letting 'em underſtand, that he had already begun the Reformation deſir'd, and that his Zeal in this Matter would go on as far as could be reaſonably expected, the twenty third Seſſion commenced on the 15th of July, in which the Council decreed the Doctrine of the Sacrament of Orders, i. e. That there were always Seven Orders in the Church, ſome of which are greater than others: That thoſe only are Prieſts who receive Ordination from Biſhops: That Orders are a Sacrament, &c. In the twenty fourth Seſſion held the 11th of November, the Council declar'd, That Marriage is a true Sacrament; that the State of Marriage ought not to be preferr'd to Virginity or Celebacy, &c. The twenty fifth and laſt Seſſion, was held upon the 3d and 4th of December, in which there were three Decrees publiſh'd concerning Purgatory, Invocation of Saints, and the Uſe of Indulgences. After this, the Council remitted all Diſputes and conteſted Senſes, which might ariſe concerning the meaning of their Decrees, to the Pope's Determination. And thus ended this famous Council, which had been thrice conven'd in the ſpace of Eighteen Years, having continued from 1545 to 1563, under the Pontificates of five Popes, viz. of Paul III. Julius III. Marcellus II. Paul IV. and Pius IV. Thus far Morery's Supplement. Thoſe that would enquire farther into this Matter, may read Father Paul's Hiſtory of the Council of Trent, in which the Reader will diſcover the Politick and Singular Meaſures of this Synod, how the Fathers who preſs'd for Reformation, were over-rul'd by the Paramount Intereſt of the Legates and Court of Rome; and laſtly, what a New Turn was given to Affairs, and how unexpectedly their Debates were precipitated by the ſurprizing compliance of the Cardinal of Lorraine. Maimbourg Hiſtoire du Lutheraniſme, &c.

TRES ECCLESIÆ, or the Three Churches, a famous Place of Armenia or Turcomania, three Leagues from Erivan. They are three Monaſteries at ſome diſtance from one another; the greateſt, as well as the beſt built, is the Reſidence of the great Patriarch of the Armenians; the ſecond is towards the South, about a Muſquet ſhot from it; and the third but a Quarter of a League to the Eaſt, is a Convent of Women. The Armenians call this Place Egmiaſin, that is, Only Son, which is the Name of the chief Church. The Patriarch has 47 Archbiſhops under him, and each of theſe has four or five Suffragant Biſhops, who all live together in Community with the Patriarch, and have ſeveral Religious Perſons to govern. This Patriarch's Revenue is about Six hundred thouſand Crowns, beſides a Poll of five Pence a Head that all the Armenian Chriſtians pay him yearly. He employs part of this Money in relieving the Poor that are not able to pay the Carage, or yearly Tribute they owe their Mahometan Princes; and when any Caravans paſs by, he treats the chiefeſt, and ſometimes the whole Company: At the latter end of the Feaſt, a Biſhop goes round the Tables with Paper in his hand, to mark what each of the Gueſts will beſtow upon the Church, and the Preſents are given the next Day after. The King of Perſia ſuffers them to have Bells and rich Ornaments in their Churches: Before People enter into 'em, each put off his Shoes: The Armenians ſtand for the moſt part, and ſeldom kneel as they do in Europe. They may ſit down all Maſs-time, unleſs at the Goſpel and Elevation of the Hoſt; then they ſtand up, kiſſing the Ground thrice at this laſt, and alſo take off their Toques or Caps, which they wear at all other Ceremonies. Tavernier's Voyages de Perſe.

TREVES upon the Moſelle, a Town of Germany, an Archbiſhop's See, and Electorate of the Empire. It's the Auguſta Trevirorum of the Ancients, who often make mention of it, eſpecially Caſar, Pomponius Mela, Ammian. Marcellin, Salvian, Auſonius, Fortunatus, &c. It was ruined four or five times by the Huns, Vandals, Goths, and French, but always recovered with greater Luſtre; which gave the Emperors that ſtaid any time in Gaul, occaſion to make it their ordinary Reſidence. The Archbiſhop of Treves in that Quality, is Prince of the Empire, and Temporal Lord of his Eſtate, and was formerly Metropolitan of the Biſhopricks of Mayence, Cologne, Liege, Utrecht, Strasbourg, Worms, and Spire; all which are now ſeparated from his Archbiſhoprick; ſo that he has but three Suffragants, viz. Mets, Toul, and Verdun, which are under the King of France. They pretend they have our Saviour's Tunick at Treves, and that leſt it ſhould be ſtoln away, they conceal the Place it's hidden in. The moſt conſiderable Place that belongs now to the Elector, is the Town of Coblentz, and the Caſtle of Ehrenbreitſtein, commonly called Hermanſtein. The Caſtle is ſituated upon a Rock on the Banks of the Rhine over againſt Coblentz, not far from the Place where the Moſelle joins this River, which renders it impregnable on that ſide. The Town of Coblentz has Communication with this Fortreſs by a Bridge of Boats over the Rhine, is environed with ſix good Baſtions, and has another good Stone-Bridge over the Moſelle. The Chapter of Treves has the privilege of chuſing their Archbiſhops, and receive no Princes, nor ſcarcely any Counts in their Prebends or Canonries; the Gentlemen reſerve them for People of their own Rank, as their only means to come to the Dignity of Elector or Prince of the Empire: but the Canons, before they are received, muſt give as good Proofs of their Gentility by Father and Mother, as is required of the Knights of Maltha. The Elector of Treves is great Chancellor of the Empire in Gaul, and in the Kingdom of Arles, but does not exerciſe the Functions of this Charge, becauſe theſe Places are not now under the German Empire; but has Precedency of the Elector of Cologne, and poſſeſſes ſeveral other Advantages, Votes before all the other Electors in the Diets and Aſſemblies of the Electors, in which he has his particular Seat over againſt the Emperor, between the two Benches of the other Electors. The King of France is Maſter of ſeveral Caſtles and Towns in this Archbiſhoprick all along the Moſelle, which makes it his Intereſt to defend him as Metropolitan of the Biſhopricks of Mets, Toul, and Verdun, whereof he is Sovereign, but allows the Archbiſhop the Eccleſiaſtick Privileges. Several Synods have been held here, the chief whereof was that held in 386 upon the Subject of the Priſcillianiſts by Order of the Uſurper Maximus. The Prieſt Ithacius preſs'd ſo much to have theſe Hereticks condemned, that he compaſſed it at laſt; but the Biſhops judging that in this he had violated the Canons, and ſtain'd the Honour of the Church, which abhorred Blood, Excommunicated him with thoſe of his Faction. He made Application to Maximus, who thereupon called a Council, wherein Ithacius was abſolved by the Prelates of his Party. In 948 there was a Council held at Treves, where Hugo, and ſome other Rebels againſt Lewis d' Outremar King of France, were Excommunicated. It was put into the Hands of the French in 1632, to preſerve it, as was pretended, from the Swedes. They kept it until 1645. It was recovered from them in 1675, they having ſeized it a little before. They put a Gariſon into it in 1688. The Electorate of Treves is bounded on the North by Liſall, the Biſhoprick of Cologne, and Weſtrowalt; on the Eaſt by Wateraw; on the South by Lorain; and on the Weſt by Luxemburg. It's of great Extent from Eaſt to Weſt, but very narrow from North to South. The principal Cities and Places in it are Triers, Coblents, Boppart, Oberweſel. and Harmanſtein. It is watered both by the Moſelle and Rhine, and affords all things needful for the Life of Man in great Plenty. The Inhabitants of this Dioceſe are called by the Germans Trieriſhe. Heiſſ. Hiſt. de l' Empire.

TREVICO, or Vico della Baronia, in Latin Trivicus, a Town in the Kingdom of Naples and farthermoſt Principality, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Benevent. It's a great and ſtrong City, ſurrounded on all ſides with Water, and therefore of difficult Acceſs. The Venetians made themſelves Maſters of it in 1339; in 1509 Maximilian the Emperor took it from them, but ſoon after reſtored it. It ſtands 18 Miles from Venice to the South-Weſt.

TREVISA (John) an Engliſh Prieſt, Vicar of Berckley, was a Perſon of Learning and Elocution. He Tranſlated ſeveral Books into Engliſh, the Bible, Higderos Polychronon, and Bartholomæus de Proprietatibus Rerum. He wrote likewiſe Polychronici Continuationes. De memorabilibus Temporum. Geſta Regis Arthuri, &c. He liv'd to the Year 1399, in the Reign of King Richard II. Pits de Illuſt. Angl. Script.

TREVISAN, or Marche Terviſane, a Province of the State of Venice in Italy, ſo called from its Capital Treviſe, which was formerly the Reſidence of the Lombard Marqueſſes who commanded in it. This Country comprehends the Territory of Treviſan Belluneſſe and Feltrin, has Friouli to the Eaſt, the Biſhoprick of Trent to the Weſt. Its Air is very temperate, and its Plains are both pleaſant and abounding in all ſorts of Grain, Fruit and Cattel. Venice was formerly its Capital.

TREVISE, or Trevigi, in Latin Tarviſium, a Town of Italy in the Territories of Venice, with a Biſhop's See Suffragant of Aquileja. It's Capital of the Marche Treviſane, to which it has given its Name. The Emperor Maximilian laid Siege to it in 1509.

TREVOUR upon Sine, a Town of France, Capital of the Principality of Dombes. It has a Collegiat Church, Bailiwick, &c. Its Latin Name is Trevoltium.

TRIBALLI, ancient People of Lower Myſia, now Bulgarians. Ternove was formerly the Reſidence of their Princes, but now Sophia is Capital of the Country, and the Bacha's Seat. Pliny ſays, that there have been ſome amongſt the Triballi that bewitch'd People with their very Sight, and kill'd if they fix'd their Eyes any conſiderable time upon any one, when angry. Niceph. Laonicus. Lazius.

TRIBE. This Name is taken for one of the 13 or rather 12 Families of the Iſraelites, or one of the Provinces of the Land of Promiſe that was divided between thoſe Familes. The Hiſtory of their Deſcent into Egypt, of their wonderful Increaſe in that Country, of their Deliverance and Conqueſts, of their Diviſions in Roboam's time, are ſo well known by the Hiſtory of the Old Teſtament, that there's no need of Repetition: It will be enough to obſerve, that there is a Law mentioned, *Numb.*31. by which Heireſſes of the Tribe of Iſrael were to marry a Man of the Tribe of their Father, and of the ſame Family, that ſo the Inheritance ſhould not paſs from the Houſe. It's hence the Commentators of the New Teſtament infer, that the Bleſſed Virgin being an Heireſs, had married Joſeph, who was of the ſame Tribe and Family: And this was the reaſon why St. Matthew and St. Luke, deſcribing her Genealogy, gave an account of that of Joſeph, which was the ſame. But the Levites were not ſubject to this Law; for they had Liberty from the very Beginning to marry into all Tribes; in which Senſe we read Judg. 19. that a Man of the Tribe of Levi, who inhabited the Mountain of Ephraim, married a Woman of Bethlehem in the Tribe of Juda. Upon the falling off of the Ten Tribes under Jerohobam, and the Idolatrous Worſhip ſet up by that Prince; the Levites, who dwelt among theſe Ten Tribes, refus'd to live with them any longer, and remov'd into the Provinces of Judah and Benjamin.

TRIBE, a certain part of the Roman People, which Romulus divided into three, when he divided the City of Rome into three Quarters. Tarquinius Priſcus the fifth King, ſeeing the Town and Inhabitants much encreaſed, eſtabliſhed ſix, which Number grew greater from time to time; ſo that in 512 of the Foundation of Rome, there were 35, whereof ſome were called Town or City Tribes, and the reſt Ruſtick, or of the Country. And as it happened that the Ruſtick Tribes were the moſt eſteemed, the conſiderableſt Citizens of Rome were ambitious to be of them; whence it came to paſs, that the Word Tribe did not mark the Reſidence of thoſe that belong'd to it, but their Reception into a certain part of the People: ſo that there remain'd but four Tribes of the City, the Suburane, Eſquiline, Colline or Quirinale, and Palatin; the other 31 were Ruſtick, and bore the Name of ſome Place or Illuſtrious Family. Theſe Tribes met to create Magiſtrates of the ſecond Rank, as the Tribunes of the People, the Ediles, Triumvirs, Proconſuls, &c. for eſtabliſhing the Laws they called Plebiſcita, and upon ſuch other Affairs. This Aſſembly was ſometimes in Mars his Field, ſometimes in the Roman Square, but very often in other Places. Roſin. Antiq. Rom.

TRIBUNES of the People, Magiſtrates of Rome, choſen to preſerve the Privileges and ſecure the Liberties of the People againſt the Power of the Nobles. They were firſt ordain'd after the great Difference that happened between the People and Nobles, which was appeaſed by Menenius Agrippa. At the firſt Eſtabliſhment there were but two, but theſe aſſociated three more to them, and this Number was encreaſed to ten by L. Trebonius. Their Authority was ſo great, that they could aſſemble the People and propoſe what they pleaſed, hinder the Deliberations of the Senate, approve or annul its Decrees, ſummon the other Magiſtrates before the People, and alſo their own Collegues and Aſſociates to the Tribunat; in fine, their Authority was ſo great, that they have ſometimes Impriſon'd Conſuls, and Fined their Dictators. Their Power in their Beginning reach'd but a thouſand Paces or Mile out of Rome; but C. Calta made a Law, by which they were impower'd to exerciſe their Authority in the Provinces, and that alſo after Sylla's time, who was ſo averſe to that Dignity, that he order'd they ſhould for ever be excluded from all other conſiderable Offices. Though theſe Tribuns at firſt were choſen amongſt the Common People, yet afterwards the Nobles, Senators, and Patricians, look'd upon the Charge as honourable; and the Emperors themſelves, after Auguſtus, have not diſdained to take the Title of Tribuns. Theſe Officers being inſtituted for the Security of the Meaner People againſt the Power of the Conſuls and Patricians, kept their Doors open Day and Night to receive ſuch as ſought ſhelter with them; nor were they allowed to go out of the City but on certain Days: They weaken'd the Authority of the Conſuls and Senate, and often occaſioned great Tumults.

TRIBUNI MILITUM, or Military Tribuns. Theſe had a Conſulary Power, and were firſt inſtituted 317 Years after the Foundation of Rome, at Canuleius his Requeſt, who made Complaint for the People that they were not receiv'd to the Dignity of Conſul; whereupon a Law was publiſhed, by which theſe new Tribuns were to have the ſame Power and Marks of Honour with Conſuls. There were three created at the firſt Beginning, which Number was encreaſed in proceſs of time to that degree, that Pomponius the Lawyer obſerves, there were 20 created the ſame Year. There were alſo other Tribuns, who had the care of the Treaſury, and judg'd Matters of leſſer Conſequence. Alex. ab Alexand.

TRIBUNI CELERUM, or Tribuns of the Light Horſe, Officers in the Roman Army who were Collonels of Horſe in the time of the Kings of Rome. Theſe Horſe, called Celeres, reſembled our Dragoons, and fought a Horſe-back or a Foot, as they ſaw occaſion. They were but three hundred, which Romulus choſe out of the Nobleſt Families of Rome, and divided into three Companies of a hundred Men, whoſe Captains were therefore called Centurions. Roſin. Antiq. Rom. 1.

TRIBUR, a Royal Manſion on the other ſide the Rhine in Germany, between Majence and Oppenheim, famous for the ſeveral Councils celebrated in it. In 895 twenty two Prelates made 58 Canons for the Reformation of Peoples Lives and Manners here.

TRIESTE, Tergeſte, Tergeſtum, a City of Iſtria, called by the Germans Trieſten, a ſmall but a ſtrong and populous Place, and a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Aquileia, has a large but unſafe Harbour upon the Adriatick, at the bottom of a Bay called Trieſte too. This City was taken from the Venetians in the Year 1509, by the Emperor, and has been ever ſince in his Poſſeſſion. It ſtands 30 Miles from Aquileia to the Eaſt, and 50 from Pola to the North.

TRING, a Market Town of Daur Hundred in the Weſt of Hartfordſhire, bordering upon the County of Bucks. From Lond. 28 Miles.

TRINITARIANS, or Order of the Trinity and Redemption of Captives. St. John de Maltha and St. Fœlix de Valois, were the firſt Patriarchs of this Order, in which the Religious make a fourth, Vow to do their beſt to redeem thoſe Chriſtians who are in Slavery amongſt the Infidels. See St. John de Maltha.

TRINITE, one of the Caribes or Cribe Iſlands in the Northern Sea towards America, and of thoſe called De Sotto Vento. This is by far the greateſt Iſland on the Coaſt of South America. It lyes eight Degrees from the Line to the North; to the Weſt it is ſeparated from Paria by a narrow Channel, which Columbus the firſt Diſcoverer, called Boca del Drago; to the South it has the Branches of the River Orenoque; and to the Weſt the Atlantick Ocean. Oviedo a Spaniard, ſaith, the South Cape of it lyes in 9 Degr. of Lat. and the North in 10. The Dutch ſay 10. 30. and the South 9. 30. It lyes from Hiſpaniola 200 Leagues South, from Domingo, Margarita, and Cubaga 40. In length it is 50 Leagues, in breadth 30. In Form it is Triangular. It is unhealthful, being moſtly cloudy, and covered with a Miſt. It was diſcovered by Columbus in 1498, and carefully viewed by Sir Walter Rawleigh, who Anchor'd near it in 1595; he obſerved the North part was barren and mountainous, the reſt was very fruitful in Mace, Sugar-Canes, and ſuch other things as are common in this Climate. The Spaniards built a Town on the South-Weſt ſide, called St. Joſeph, containing 400 Houſes when Sir Walter took it in 1595. I ſuppoſe (ſaith my Author) it is not much encreaſed ſince, the Spaniards minding nothing here but the Planting Tobacco. It has much Mineral Pitch, but of no uſe, becauſe it melts with the Heat of the Sun. Laert. p. 661. It's very fruitful in Sugar-Canes, which are cultivated there with great care: The Sugar is form'd of a certain Water, which naturally moiſtens the ſpongeous Pith of Reeds or Canes that grow in great abundance in and about this Iſland: There are ſome alſo that grow in the firm Land of America, but their Sap is nothing ſo delicate, no more than that of ſome Iſlands of Aſia. Theſe Canes hardly exceed the height of ſix Foot, and are generally but two Inches thick; thoſe that are more are not ſo good, but both have Knots at a Foot's diſtance one from the other. As for the Plants, they take little Pieces and ſtick them in Land prepared for that purpoſe, where they ripen and come to perfect Maturity in ſix or ſeven Months time, which is known by their Colour that enclines to a Yellow. When they have this Mark they are cut, the Leaves ſhreded off, and the Canes bundled up and carried to the Tripache or Place where the Sugar is made. The Mills which work it have three Rowlers that preſs and break the Canes, which are laid under them by Negroes: The Rowlers bear off what they preſs, whilſt the Juice runs into a great Receiver, and thence by a little Trough into a great Pan, where it's boil'd over a ſlow Fire, and skim'd as there is occaſion: When it begins to thicken, they paſs it through coarſe Linnen, and divide it into leſſer Pans, where it's continually ſtirr'd until its perfectly boil'd, which is known by its Conſiſtence and Thickneſs: Then it's put to cool, and ſtill ſtirr'd until ſome Grains are obſerved in its Syrup that reſemble Sand, which is the Sign that its made: Then it's caſt into Forms and Moulds like Pyramids: And when it's congeal'd and in a Lump, a kind of fat Earth, diſſolv'd in Water, is added, which ſeparates the ſuperfluous reddiſh Water. P. du Tertre, c. 14.

TRIODOS, or Throhodos, a Name by which the Caloyers or Greek Clergy call Mount Olympus in the Iſle of Cyprus.

TRIPOLI, is the Name of two Towns in Africa: The firſt, called Tripoli Vecchia, is the ancient Sabrata upon the Mediterranean Sea, but the Air is ſo unhealthful, that there are hardly any Inhabitants. The other is Tripoli or Barbary, a great Town, Capital of a Kingdom of that Name, and the Retreat of Pyrates. Sanſon thinks it's the ancient Oea, but be it ſo or not, it's very populous and rich. It was formerly taken by the Spaniards, and by them given to the Knights of Maltha; but the Turks depriv'd the latter of it in 1551, and remain'd the Maſters a long time. Now it's a Republick under the Grand Signior's Protection. The Territories of Tripoli are pretty large, lying between the Sea and the Kingdom of Tunis, which it has to the Weſt; but there are but few Towns.

TRIPOLI DI SORIA, Lat. Tripolis, a City in Syria, call'd by the Turks, Tarabolos Scham; in 1289 taken and entirely ruin'd by the Saracens, and after rebuilt by the Franks in a fruitful Plain, defended by a ſtrong Caſtle built upon a Rock. The Town is now in a good Condition, having about 20000 Houſes, and a very convenient Harbour on the Mediterranean Sea. It ſtands 20 German Miles from Damaſcus to the North, and a little more from Famagouſta to the South. In the time of the Holy Wars it had Counts of its own, and is now the Seat of a Turkiſh Sangiack. There are abundance of Mulberry-Trees in the Neighbourhood of this Town, and a great Plain 12 Leagues long, all cover'd with Olive-Trees.

TRIPTOLEMUS, Son of Eleuſis, was the firſt who taught the Invention of Tilling the Earth; whence Poets inferr'd, that he was inſtructed by Ceres who hid him all Night under the Fire, to ſignifie, that the Seed lyes in the Earth and unſeen all Winter. To ſee more of the Name and Laws of Triptolemus, the Reader may conſult the Sixth Tome of the Univerſal Bibliotheque in the Explication of the Fable of Ceres. Hygin, Ovid.

TRISAGION, a little Hymn wherein the Word Sanctus is thrice repeated: The Latins cry, Sanctus, Sanctus, Sanctus Dominus, but the Greeks ſay in their Language, Sanctus Deus, Sanctus Fortis, Sanctus Immortalis, miſerere nobis, which they repeat often in their Orations and Divine Office. Authors aſſure, it was inſtituted in the time of the Emperor Theodoſius the Younger, and the Patriarch Proclus, on the occaſion of an Earthquake that laſted at Conſtantinople four Months, and was appeaſed by this Prayer. Baronius.

TRISMEGISTUS, that is Thrice Great, a Greek Sirname of Mercury, a learn'd Egyptian, called ſo becauſe he was a great Philoſopher, great Prieſt, and great King; for the Egyptians uſed to chuſe their Prieſts out of their Philoſophers, and their Kings from amongſt their Prieſts. See Hermes.

TRISSIANO or TRISSINO (John George) an Italian of a Noble Family of Vicenza: He was both a Mathematician and Poet, having written a Tragedy call'd Sophoniſba, and a Poem Entituled, Italia Liberata, which was the firſt Heroick Poem generally valued by the Italians, being form'd upon Ariſtotle's Rules. He died in 1550, and wrote ſeveral Tracts beſides thoſe above-mention'd, as Bale del Chriſtiano, Colonna della Republica, è Capitulo della vita Humana. Comento delle coſe d' Italia. Orationi. Epiſtolæ. Dialogi Simillimi. Comedia Regale. Rittratti delle beliſſime donne d' Italia. Thuan. Hiſt. Jaques Phil. Thomaſin.

TRITHEMIUS (John) Abbot of Spanheim, was born at Tritenhiem upon the Moſelle in the Dioceſe of Treves. He was extraordinarily Learned both in Divinity and Humanity. He died at Wirtzburgh in 1516. He wrote a great many things, by which the comprehenſiveneſs of his Genius and the depth of his Learning are ſufficiently apparent: The moſt conſiderable of his Works are, De Illuſtribus Scriptoribus Eccleſiaſticis. De viris Illuſt. Germaniæ. De viris Illuſt. Ordinis S. Benedicti. Chronica. Vitas SS. Varios Tractatos Aſceticos. De Polygraphia, lib. 6. De Steganographia, lib. 1. Some Perſons likewiſe make him the Author of a Book, Entituled, Veterum Sophorum Sigilla, & Imagines Magicæ, ſive Sculptura Lapidum aut Gemmarum ex nomine Tetragrammato cum ſignatura Planetarum. He was accus'd of Magick, and unlawful Correſpondence with Spirits upon on the ſuppoſition of his being the Author of this Book, tho' ſeveral Friends of his have endeavour'd to prove it written by another; thoſe who wrote in his Defence, are Jacobus Cohorius, Boiſſardus. Blaſius Viginerius. Adamus Tannerus, and the Abbot Sigiſmond in his Book, call'd Trithemius ſui ipſius Vindex. Thevet. in Elog. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Nandæus Apolog. c. 17. &c.

TRITON, a Sea-God, Son of Neptune, and Amphitrite, or the Nymph Salacia, or according to others, of the Ocean and Thetis. Poets will have him to be Neptune's Trumpet, and repreſent him in the Shape of a Man to the Navel, with the lower part of the Body Fiſh and a Dolphin's Tail, having always a hollow Shell in his Hand, which ſerves him for a Trumpet. Ovid in Dido's Epiſtle to Æneas, ſays, he wore blue Hair. Several Hiſtorians aſſure, that there have been Tritons. Pliny, l. 9. c. 5. reports, That certain Embaſſadors who came from Lisbon aſſured the Emperor Tiberius, that they had ſeen and heard a Triton play on his Shell on the Sea-ſhore. P. Girald, in his Additions to Ælian reports, that being in Albania, there was one taken which uſed to raviſh the Women that came near the Sea, and that it died of Hunger and Grief for having loſt its Liberty.

TRIVENTO, or Moliſſe, in Latin Triventum, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples in the County of Moliſſe, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Benevento. It ſtands in the Borders of Abruzzo upon the Adriatick Sea, 17 Miles from Bojano to the North.

TRIUMPH, a ſolemn Honour done Generals of Armies after they had won great Victories, by receiving them into the Town with great Magnificence and publick Acclamations. There were two ſorts amongſt the Romans; the great, that was ſimply called Triumph, and the little, ſtiled Ovation. They alſo diſtinguiſhed Triumphs into Sea and Land Triumphs, according as the Battels were fought on either. It was generally performed by a ſumptuous Entry into Rome, and ſometimes on Mount Alban. Romulus was the firſt who inſtituted this Ceremony. After he had vanquiſhed Acron, King of the Ceniniens, he took an Aſh, whereon he had tyed that King's Spoils on his right Shoulder, and with a Crown of Laurel on his Head he led his Victorious Army into the Town: Then ſtopping on Mount Capitolin, he marked out the Place where the Temple was afterwards built, and dedicated this Aſh to Jupiter Feretrian. And others ſay, that the Spoils were carried by Men, and that Romulus did but tye them to an Aſh which ſtood upon this Mountain. Denis of Halicarnaſſus aſſures, that Romulus was in a Chariot, and clad in a Purple Gown, though others affirm, that Tarquin the Ancient was the firſt that made his Entry thus. But let this be how it will, it's certain, that ſince Tarquin's Time there were no ſuch Triumphs during the Reigns of the Kings, and that Valerius Publicola, Conſul, was the firſt that received this Honour from the Commonwealth: But there were many ſeen afterwards, for Oroſſius counts 320 from the Foundation of Rome to Veſpaſian and Titus's Reign after the Defeat of the Jews An. Dom. 71. and 824 of the Foundation of the City. Onufrius reckons 30 from Veſpaſian to Beliſſarius. The moſt famous were thoſe of Manlius Volſo, the 281 of Rome, of Marcellus in 531, of Scipio Africanus in 549, of Q. Flaminius in 556, of M. Fulvius in 561, of Paulus Emilius in 586, of Scipio Africanus Junior, in 607, of Mummius in 608, of Marius in 672, and Sylla the ſame Year; of Pompey, when he Triumph'd the third time in 693; thoſe of Julius Cæſar and Auguſtus; and finally, that of the Emperor Veſpaſian, who adorned his with Moſes's Law, and the Ornaments and ſacred Veſſels of the Temple, An. Mun. 71; afterwards in 274 the Emperor Aurelian Triumph'd with extraordinary Pomp, leading Zenobia Queen of the Palmyrenians, and Tetricus who Revolted to the Gauls. The firſt who Triumph'd on Mount Alban, was Papirius Maſo the Year 522 of Rome; for not being able to obtain the Honour of an ordinary Triumph from the Senate, he went out of the Town to Triumph on this Mountain; which Example was followed by ſeveral others. The firſt Naval Triumph was allowed C. Duillius the 493d Year of Rome, when he gained the Victory over the Carthaginians. This Ceremony was allowed none but a Dictator, Conſul, or Prætor; for it was by a particular Privilege that L. Cornelius Lentulus, Proconſul, obtained the Honour of an Ovation in 553, and that Pompey, but a Knight, and but 14 Years of Age, was honoured with a Triumph in 672. The General of the Army that ſued for this Honour, was obliged to quit the Command of the Army, and ſtay without the Town until it was granted him. He writ to the Senate, and gave them an account of the Victory he had won, and then the Members of this Aſſembly met in the Temple of Mars, where they read the Letters, and ſwore the Captains to be aſſured of the Truth of the Contents, and that the Enemy loſt 5000 Men; for that Number was neceſſary to obtain a Triumph. The Senate having conſented, the People were aſſembled, who reſtored to the General his Command, and approved the Triumph. The Ceremonies were as follow: The Triumpher crown'd with Laurel, holding a Branch of the ſame in his Hand, made a publick Speech to the Soldiers and People aſſembled together, then diſtributed his Preſents and a part of the Spoil, whilſt the Pomp began to appear before the Triumphal Gate, the Trumpets marching firſt, then the Bulls ordain'd for Sacrifice, dreſs'd with Ribans, and crown'd with Flowers, and ſometimes their Horns gilt with Gold: After theſe came the Enemies Spoils, carried either by young Soldiers or in Chariots, with the Pictures of the Nations or Towns ſubdued repreſented in Gold or Silver, or form'd of Gold, gilt Wood, Ivory or Wax, with their Names and Inſcriptions in Capital Letters: They alſo carried the Repreſentations of the moſt remarkable Rivers and Mountains of the Places brought by the Triumpher under the Roman Yoke: Then followed the Kings or Captive Generals in Irons, and ſometimes in Gold or Silver Chains, with their Heads ſhav'd as a ſign of their Servitude, accompanied with ſome Players on the Flute or Ghitarrs, and ſome Officers of the Army: Then followed a Buffoon or Jeſter, who play'd upon the Vanquiſh'd, and extoll'd the Fame and Glory of the Romans. At laſt the Triumpher appear'd in an Ivory Chariot, in form of a round Tower, enrich'd with Gold; this in the Common-wealth Times was drawn by four White Horſes, but the Emperors made uſe of Elephants. Pliny ſays, it was Pompey that introduced this Cuſtom, to imitate the Triumph of Bacchus, who when he conquer'd the Indians, had himſelf drawn in a Chariot or Cart by four Elephants. Heliogabalus had his drawn by Tygers, Lions, and Dogs; and the Emperor Aurelian his by Deers, to ſhew the Fear of the Enemy. The Crown at firſt was of Laurel, and afterwards it was Gold; beſides which there were ſeveral others carried before, preſented him by the Provinces for the Ornament of his Triumph. His Gown was Purple, charged with Figures of Palm, embroidered with Gold. He held a Branch of Laurel in his Right, and an Ivory Scepter with a ſmall Eagle of Gold on the top of it, in his Left Hand. The Cart or Chariot was attended by the Senators and Roman Soldiery. When he came to the Capitol, he Sacrificed to Jupiter, and kept a ſumptuous Feaſt, then was conducted into his Palace. Tertullian obſerves, that during the Pomp, an Officer ſtood behind the Triumpher, pronouncing theſe Words aloud, Remember thou art Man, that he might not be over proud or dazled with the Luſtre of his Triumph. The Attendance of this Ceremony was ſometimes ſo great, that it took up ſeveral Days to march through the City, as happened in the Triumphs of Quintus Flaminius, Cæſar, and Auguſtus. Sometimes the Triumpher's Children rid with him in the Cart, as in Paulus Emilius his Triumph. Pliny reports, that the firſt who Triumphed in Rome wore an Iron Ring on their Finger, and a Crown of Gold, after the Tuſcans Faſhion, ſupported by a Slave who walk'd behind, and is ſaid to have had Wings faſtned to his Back: yet moſt People are of Opinion, that it was an Image or Sculpture which repreſented Victory, and held a Crown of Olives in one, and a Branch of Olive in the other Hand. If we believe ſeveral Authors, who ſay Bacchus invented this magnificent Pomp after all his Conqueſts, the Ceremony is very ancient, and was imitated by moſt great Conquerors; for Alexander in his Return from the Indies, order'd all his Soldiers to wear Crowns of Ivy, as Bacchus did. Hiſtory does alſo inform us, that this Cuſtom was practiſed in Europe, Aſia, and Africa too; for Hannibal Triumph'd four times at Carthage before he died; but all agree that the Romans were the moſt magnificent. That of Paulus Emilius, which ſurpaſſed all others in Pomp and Magnificence, may ſerve to give an Idea of all that was moſt ſingular in theſe pleaſant Spectacles, for the other differed only by the Diverſity of the Conqueſts and the Spoils of the Enemy. The firſt day Waggons went by, laden with a great number of rare Statues and Paintings taken from the Conquer'd Towns. The ſecond day were carried the Macedonians fine Arms, which were followed by 300 Men, and 750 Veſſels full of Coin, weighing each three Talents; and others carried rich Cups and precious Veſſels. The third day before Sun-riſe, Trumpeters and other Players upon Inſtruments walk'd towards the Capitol; and behind theſe 120 White Oxen with their Horns gilt, and deck'd with Garlands of Flowers: Theſe Victims were led by Youngmen, who wore work'd Aprons, and carried the Golden Axes that were to be made uſe of in the Sacrifices. Then followed the Officers carrying Gold in 77 Veſſels, whereof each weighed three Talents, and a Cup of Maſſive Gold enrich'd with Pearls, and weighing ten Talents, which Paulus Emilius offer'd to the Gods. Then followed the Golden Veſſels of Perſeus, Antigonus, and Seleucus, with Perſeus his Chariot, wherein was his Arms and Diadem. This unfortunate Prince's Children walk'd after, and after theſe Perſeus himſelf clad in Black, attended by ſome of his Friends who bewail'd his Slavery. Then immediately before the Triumpher were ſeen four hundred Crowns of Gold, preſented him by the Towns of Greece, in conſideration of his rare Vertues, he himſelf appearing after in a magnificent Chariot cover'd with a Cloak richly work'd with Gold, holding a Branch of Laurel in his right hand, and follow'd by Soldiers who alſo had ſome Branches and ſung merry and brisk Tunes. In reſpect of this Pomp it muſt be obſerved, that the Riches of Provinces contributed much to the Magnificence of the ſight: So Pompey's Triumphs had ſomewhat extraordinary in them; for beſides the Elephants, the Silver Statue of Pharnaces, the Silver Chariots, there were thirty three Crowns of Pearl upon Tables of Gold, with an infinite number of other Rarities of an ineſtimable Value. Cæſar's Triumph did not appear much leſs, when he overcame the Gauls. That of Veſpaſian and Titus was yet more Sumptuous, if we believe Joſephus. In the Emperor Aurelian's Triumph were twenty Elephants that went firſt, and two hundred Wild Beaſts of Lydia newly tam'd, with ſix hundred Fencers, and an infinite number of Slaves of all Nations; then followed three Chariots, whereof two were given him by Odenat King of the Palmyrenians, and by the King of Perſia; the third was that Zenobia, Odenat's Queen, deſign'd for her Journy to Rome, whither ſhe went indeed, but not in Triumph as ſhe expected, but a Slave: He had another drawn by four Bucks, which was that of the King of the Goths, it was in this he went to the Capitol to Sacrifice the Deer to Jupiter. Tetricus King of the Goths, walk'd in a Scarlet Cloak, accompanied with his Son, whom he had declared Emperor but a little before. The Queen Zenobia was likewiſe very richly Clad, and in Golden Chains of her own making. This Ceremony had Hunting Matches, Comedies, Fencing, Repreſentations of Sea-fights, and other publick Plays that laſted ſeveral days after it. Of all the Emperors that Triumph'd in Rome, Probus was the laſt; the Senate and People contributed to the Greatneſs of the Ceremony; the Emperor went out of the City near the Temple of Iſis, where having Sacrificed with his Head cover'd, the ſeveral Orders of Prieſts began their March, each having the Images of their Gods carried before them; then followed the Thenſes or Silver Chariots with two Wheels, upon which were the Anciles or ſmall Bucklers, the Palladium and other Sacred things. Their Habits were long Cloaks which trail'd upon the Ground, made of blue Silk with little White Stripes in them, each carried an Ancile or Buckler on his Arm as if they were at a Fight, three or four came out of their Ranks Dancing, and Singing certain Verſes, which were anſwer'd by all the Troop; each Order of theſe Prieſts, as well as they that led the Waggons or Chariots with the Statues and Paintings, had their Muſicians, Pantomimes, Buffoons or Jeſters that diſtinguiſh'd them from one another: There was alſo ſome in Maſquerade that ſhew'd extravagant Poſtures, and play'd on all People. The Veſtals aſſiſted at this Ceremony, accompanied with Women which danc'd and counterfeited Naturals; but the Bacchantes that followed the Prieſts of Bacchus did the ſtranger things; all the People ſtrove by all manner of ways to manifeſt their Joy, thereby to contribute as much as lay in them to the Solemnity of the Triumph. The Title Triumph was call'd Ovation, according to Plutarch, becauſe that after this Pomp they ſacrificed a Sheep, in Latin call'd Ovis. The Honour of this Triumph was obtained when the Enemies were put to Flight, though their Loſs were but inconſiderable; when the War begun, wanted ſomewhat to complete it; when it was declar'd without ſufficient Grounds, and undertaken againſt mean and unworthy Perſons, as Pyrates or Slaves; he who was allow'd an Ovation had Soldiers before him with Olive Branches in their Hands; he wore a Purple Robe, and had a Crown of Myrtle on his Head, and was attended with all manner of Warlike Inſtruments. The firſt who triumph'd thus, was the Conſul Poſthumus Tubertus, after he had overcome the Sabins. Chevreau Hiſt. du Monde.

TRIUMVIRS, Magiſtrates that govern'd the Commonwealth of Rome for ten Years, from the Year 710 of that City to 720. Theſe were Octavian, ſince called Auguſtus, Anthony, and Lepidus, but in 716, Octavian ſeparated himſelf from Lepidus, and made War againſt him; then turned his Arms againſt Anthony, and having overcome him, remain'd Maſter of Rome and the Commonwealth. Roſin. Antiq. Rom.

TROEZEN, a Town of Poloponneſus, famous for the Promiſe and Faith it kept with the Athenians. Its Modern Name is Pleda; according to Gaſtalde, there is alſo a Town of the ſame Name in Meſſenia.

TROGLODYTES, People of Africa, who lived along the Arabian Gulf; their Towns were Suaquem, Eroco and Zeila, now the Country is called the Coaſts of Abex or Abexim, which is the Eaſtern part of the Abyſſinians Country, and has ſeveral Kingdoms; the Gulf Troglodyte is called Golfo di Melinde.

TROGLODYTES, this Name is given People that live in Caves under the Ground, either becauſe they have no other Dwellings, or the better to ſecure themſelves from exceſſive Heats, and other Injuries of the Weather; there are ſome of theſe in the Iſle of Maltha in a Mountain near Boſquet, one of the great Maſter's Pleaſure Houſes; they have their Cabinets and places work'd into the Rock for their Beds, with Stables for Horſes and their Cattel, with Ovens to bake their Bread, and Chimnies that anſwer ſome Cleft of the Rock. The Inhabitants are abroad all day long to Till and Manure the Land, or about their other Occaſions. The Men are luſty, ſtrong, and live a long time; the Women are of good Stature too, and Handſom enough, ſo taken with their Dwellings, that they cannot lye a night out of them. They live of Bread, Milk, Butter and Cheeſe, Onions and other Roots, and ſell their Cattel. Their Language is a pure Arabick; the Religion Roman Catholick; they hear Maſs in the next Village. In the Iſle of Goze, neighbouring on that of Maltha, is another Cavern inhabited by People that differ but a very little from the former, and near Viterbo in the Patrimony of St. Peter in Italy, is a large Cavern under a great Meadow, inhabited by ſeveral Families that live much the ſame way with the Troglodytes of Maltha: And there are others in the Indies in Africa, and elſewhere. But what is moſt admirable is, that there are ſome of theſe People that never ſaw the Sun, becauſe they would not give themſelves the trouble to come out of their dark Habitations. Father Kircher Mundi Subterranei, Tom. 2. P. Martini Atlas Sinicus.

TROGUS (Pompeius) a Latin Hiſtorian born in the Country of the Vocontii, in Gallia Narbonenſis; it appears from the Forty third Book of his Hiſtory that he liv'd in the time of Auguſtus; for in this Book, he tells us, that Pompey the Great made his Grandfather a Denizen of Rome, and that his Father having firſt ſerv'd in the Field under Cæſar, was afterwards made his Secretary and Privy Seal: This Trogus wrote a Hiſtory in 44 Books, which was afterwards abrig'd by Juſtin, in which he neither alters the Title, nor the number of the Books; however, this Abridgment occaſion'd the loſs of Trogus's larger Book. *Voſſius de Hiſt. TROJA, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples in the Capitanata, with a Biſhop's See that depends immediately on the Holy See. Here have been ſome Aſſemblies of Biſhops that have made ſeveral important Ordinances, eſpecially for the Diſſolution of Marriages between Perſons too near akin.

TROJA, Lat. Ilium, Ilium Novum, was built by Alexander the Great after the Battel of Granicus, is ſeated upon the Propontis nine German Miles South of the old City, 25 Engliſh Miles by Ptolomy's Maps. There was before a Village of this Name here, with a Temple of Minerva; after his Death Lyſimachus built a more ſtately Temple and walled the Town. In the times of Antiochus the Great, when the Romans entred Aſia, it was but a Village. In the Mithridatick War Sylla ruin'd this place for denying him Entrance, and pull'd down its Walls, yet he afterwards rebuilt it again. C. Julius Cæſar being deſcended from Iulus the Trojan, enlarged its Privileges; and it was in a Proſperous State in the times of Strabo. Mr. Wheeler, who ſaw its Ruins in 1675, obſerves, that all the Tombs were Roman Works.

TROJES upon Seine, a Town of France, Capital of the County of Champagne, with a Biſhop's See Suffragant of Sens, it's differently named by Authors, Treca, Tricaſſis, Tricaſſium, Auguſta Tricaſſinorum, and Auguſtobona, &c. The Town is very Ancient, and one of the moſt conſiderable of the whole Kingdom for Commerce. The Cathedral of St. Peter very well built; beſides which there are there Collegiate and ſix Pariſh Churches, with an Abby of St. Loup, a College of the Fathers of the Oratory, and a great number of Convents and Monaſteries. It alſo has had many renowned Prelates, whereof St. Loup was the eighth, and the only Man that could diſſuade Attila from ruining the Town, which was afterwards deſtroy'd by the Normans; Count Robert rebuilt it, and the ſucceeding Counts had their Palaces there. Now there is a Bailiwick and Preſidial.

TROILUS, Son of Priamus and Hecuba, had the Raſhneſs to encounter with Achilles, by whom he was kill'd, though he knew that whilſt he could keep himſelf ſafe, there would be no danger of Troy, the Oracle having declar'd, that Troy ſhould never be taken whilſt Troilus liv'd.

TROKI, in Latin Troia and Troium, a Town and Palatinate of Poland with a Fortreſs. The Town was built by Gediminon great Duke of Lithuania, and was taken and almoſt ruin'd by the Moſcovites in 1655.

TROMP (Martin) Admiral of Holland, rendred himſelf famous in this Age, by the Victories he gain'd over the Enemies of that State in 1639. He defeated the Spaniſh Fleet that was coming into the Channel, and with twelve Ships only took twenty of theirs, and burn'd or ſunk the reſt, amongſt which was the Sancte Tereſa, a Ship that coſt 2000000. After this and fifty other Battels, wherein he commanded in Chief, or had one of the beſt Commands, and after his having been beaten by the Engliſh, he died in 1655, and was buried in the Cathedral of Delft, where he had a ſtately Mauſole or Tomb erected for him.

TROODE, or Olympus, a very high Mountain in the Kingdom of Cyprus, upon which is a great green Stone much eſteem'd by the People, who think it was upon it that Noah's Ark firſt ſtop'd; for which reaſon it's carried in Proceſſion, and with much Ceremony to obtain Rain in great Drought. Hiſtoire de l' Liſle d' Cypre.

TROPEIA in Latin Poſtrophæa, and Tropia, and Tropas; a Town in the Kingdom of Naples in Calabria, with a Biſhoprick under the Archbiſhop of Reggio.

TROPHEES, famous Monuments of Victories gain'd over Enemies; the Grecians began to make uſe of them to Honour their Commanders when they had put their Enemies to flight; for they uſed to lop off the Branches of Trees found near or in the Field in which the Battel was fought, and faſtned the Bucklers and Armour of ſuch as either threw them down in their Flight, or were killed in the Battel. Theſe Trophees were taken down when Peace was concluded, that they who then ceaſed to be Enemies, ſhould no farther ſee the Object of their Confuſion; for which reaſon Plutarch blamed the Grecians, who were the firſt that changed this Cuſtom, to erect Statues of Marble and Copper; and the Romans, in the imitation of theſe latter Greeks, erected the like to Eterniſe their Victories, as may be ſeen by the Remains of thoſe of Marius which Sylla demoliſh'd, but were again rebuilt by Cæſar. Felibien Entretiens ſur les vies de Peintres.

TROPHONIUS, Son of Apollo according to the Pagans, to whom they built a Temple at Lebadia, a Town of Greece in Boetia, where the Oracle was conſulted. This place was in a Wood on a Mountain ſurrounded with a Marble Wall two Cubits high that had many braſs Obelisks on it; within this Round was a Cavern dug in the Mountain, that reſembled an Oven; it had no Stairs down to it, but a ſmall Ladder; at the bottom of this was another which was very narrow; here he that went down, having laid himſelf upon the Ground, with two Cakes made up with Hony in his Hands to doſe the Serpents, was pulled in, he did not know how or by whom. He that reſolved to enter into this Cavern or Den of Trophonius, retired for ſome Days with the Prieſts of the Temple, and offered ſeveral Sacrifices, then waſh'd himſelf in three little Rivers that ran near the Temple, and was ſhewn the Idol of Trophonius, which he worſhipped: Theſe Ceremonies ended, he walk'd towards the Cavern in a Linnen Tunick, or Coat girt round him; going into it he heard a Voice, or had ſome Viſion which inſtructed him about what was to come; then being puſh'd out, his Feet forwards as he was drawn in, the Prieſts placed him on a Throne, called that of Mnemoſyne, Goddeſs of Memory, and enquir'd what he had heard; then led him back into a place conſecrated to good Fortune, where they made him write what he had learn'd of the Oracle. They who believe that all this was but a Cheat of the Prieſts, to ſeduce the People, ſay there were ſome Perſons hid in the little Cavern, who drew the People in by the Feet, who were no ſooner in, but they were doſed by the Fumes and Smoak of certain Drugs which cauſed extravagant Dreams. It's ſaid, that they who went down into this Cave never laugh'd after. Van-Dalen de Oraculis.

TROPHONIUS, one of the firſt Architects of Greece, was according to ſome, Brother of Agamedes, who alſo excell'd in the Art, and both were Sons of Erginus, King of Thebes, at leaſt it's very certain they were great Friends, and work'd together with much Reputation about A. M. 2600. Amongſt the Works they made in ſeveral Parts, their Temple conſecrated to Neptune near Mantinea in Peloponneſus, was very conſiderable, much eſteem'd, and they for it; but more for the famous Temple of Apollo at Delphos. Cicero relates, that having ended this, and beg'd of Apollo for Recompence, that he would give them what he thought moſt Beneficial to Man, they were found dead three days after; which does not agree with what Pauſanias writes; for he ſays, that after they had finiſh'd the Temple of Delphos, they work'd at ſeveral other Buildings, and amongſt others they finiſh'd one at Lebadia a Town of Boetia, where Hyricus put his Treaſure, and is thought to be the real cauſe of the Death of theſe famous Architects: For he ſays, that they knowing what the Work was deſtin'd for, they placed a Stone ſo that it might be ſoon drawn out, and as readily replaced, and that they entred ſeveral times by the hole without being ever taken notice of, until at laſt Hydricus obſerving his Money diminiſh, bethought himſelf to lay a Trap in the Veſſels where it lay, ſo that when Agamedes put in his hand, he felt himſelf taken. Trophonius did what he could to bring him off, but finding he could not do it, to keep him from a more ſhameful Death, and to ſecure his own Life, which would certainly be loſt if the other were diſcover'd, he cut off his Head. Pauſanias adds, That he had no ſooner done this but the Ground opened and ſwallowed him alive; and a very deep Cavern was form'd in the very place, where People went to conſult an Oracle thought to be rendred by Trophonius, which was the reaſon his Name was given it. Altars were built him, and Plays kept that were alſo called the Trophonian. They that have travelled into Greece, have ſeen Inſcriptions that mention'd theſe Plays. *Cicero. Tuſc. TROUBRIDGE, a Market Town in Wiltſhire, of good account for Clothing; from London 80 Miles.

TROY, a Town of Aſia Minor in Phrygia, upon the Coaſt of the Egean Sea, now called the Archipelago, towards the Helleſpont or the Streights of the Dardanelles. It ſtood upon the River Xanthus near Mount Ida, three Miles from the Archipelago, 32 German Miles from Smyrna to the North, and as many from Conſtantinople to the South. There are ſtill ſome Remains of it upon a little Hill about a League from the Shore. It's thought Dardanus, who came out of Candia into Italy, built it, and was firſt King thereof about A. M. 2574. His Succeſſors were Erichthonius, Tros, Ilus, Laomedon and Priamus, under whom it was burnt by the Grecians after ten Years War about 2870, ſo that this Kingdom held in all but about 296 Years. Authors, eſpecially Poets, ſpeak very often of this Town. Alexander the Great, built another Town called New Troy or Troas Alexandri, ſome Furlongs from the Ruins of the firſt, which muſt be taken notice of, that ſo we may not fall into their Error who confound both. Some believe the Story of the great Wooden Horſe true, though Hyginus and Tubero aſſure us, it was a Machine or Engine of War that ſerved to beat down the Walls of Towns, as thoſe called Rams and others did; and ſays, that what occaſion'd the Fable, was, that Antenor who betray'd his Country, brought the Grecians into the Town by a Gate that had the Figure of a Horſe drawn upon it. Others ſay, that the Grecians hid themſelves behind Mount Hippius, and that the Name of this Mountain, which is taken from Hippos a Horſe, had given occaſion for the Fiction of the Horſe of Troy. This famous Place is now all overgrown with Buſhes and Trees, the Port ſtop'd up, and all full of Sand. Mahomet IV. cauſed a great many Pillars of the Ruins of Troy, to be taken up for the new Moſque of the Sultan Mother. *Spon. TRUCE, Peace, a Name that was given to a Publick Order made againſt Acts of Violence, publickly committed about 1020; the Laws were then ſo little regarded, and the Magiſtrates ſo very Weak, that each particular or private Perſon pretended it was lawful to right himſelf by the way of Arms, and to make uſe of Fire and Sword againſt the Houſes, Lands, and very Perſons of his Enemies; to remedy in ſome manner a Diſorder that could not be quite aboliſh'd, the Biſhops and Barons, firſt of France, and then of other Countries, made an Order for the abſolute Security of Churches, Monaſteries, Clergy and Religious Women, Merchants, Labourers and Mills, againſt any Violence of this Nature, and this was called Peace. And as for the reſt not comprehended, they prohibited all ſuch Actions from Wedneſday Night to Monday Morning, for the particular reſpect due to thoſe days, which Jeſus Chriſt conſecrated by the laſt Myſteries of his Life, and this was called Truce: They that violated either of theſe Decrees, were declar'd Excommunicated, and afterwards to be baniſh'd or put to death, according to the quality of the Violation. This was confirm'd by four Councils, which added ſomewhat in favour of the Decree. The Council of Clermont in Auvergne, held in 1095, prolong'd the Truce, adding to the four days obſerv'd before, all the time of Advent to the Octaves of Epiphany, all the time between the Septuageſima and Octaves of Eaſter, and the time between Rogation Week to the Octaves of Pentecoſt; ſo that theſe Hoſtilities ſeem'd to be tollerated as lawful out of theſe Times, provided the Enemy was made acquainted with it by a formal Challenge: This laſted 200 Years, until St. Lewis began, and King Philip IV. called the Fair, quite aboliſh'd them by his Edict of Toulouſe in 1305. Maimbourg Hiſtoire des Croiſades.

TRUGILLO, Truxillo, a City in Peru ſeated in the Vally of Chimo, on the Banks of a ſmall River, in an Healthful Air and a Fruitful Soil. The Spaniards have planted Vines, Fig-trees, Oranges, Wheat, and all other Spaniſh Fruits hereabouts, ſo that they have plenty of Proviſions: Its Latitude is 7. 30. to the South, 80 Leagues from Lima to the North. It was one of the principal Cities of Peru, containing 500 Houſes, four Monaſteries, and having in the Neighbourhood 50000 Indians that paid Tribute to the Citizens. Within two Leagues of the City, it has a Port upon the South-Sea, which is not ſafe, yet much frequented. About the Year 1630, this City was inhabited by 1500 Spaniards, and many Indians and Negroes. Laert. p. 428.

TRULLUM, a Council of Conſtantinople, commonly called the Council of Trulle in Trullo, becauſe it was held in a Hall of the Imperial Palace called Trullum, by reaſon it was roof'd in form of a Cup or Cupulo, which ſome Latins call Trulla. This was the third General Council of Conſtantinople aſſembled in 680, under the Emperor Conſtantine Pogonatus, againſt the Hereſie of the Monothelites, who maintain'd there was but one Will in Jeſus Chriſt. But there was another about 692, or according to others in 707, under the Emperor Juſtinian II. called Rhinotmetus: This ſecond Council in Trullo, was held by 147 Biſhops, under pretext of ſupplying what ſeem'd to be wanting in the fifth and ſixth General Council, that is, to make ſome Conſtitutions or Rules for Diſcipline, which the Fathers of theſe two Councils did not meddle with, but only condemning the Hereticks of their Times. For which reaſon, this was called Synodus Quini-ſexta, Πένθεκτη, as much as to ſay, the fifth and ſixth Council; they publiſh'd 102 Canons, which though they were received by the Greek Church, yet they were not altogether approved of by that of Rome, to which the ſixth and thirteenth, not to mention any others, were directly oppoſite, about the Marriage of Prieſts and Saturdays Faſts. Doviat. Hiſt. du Droit Canon.

TRURO, a Market Town and Corporation in the County of Cornwal, and the Hundred of Powder, honour'd with the Election of two Parliament Men. It is ſeated betwixt two Streams that run into Falmouth Haven, and gives the Title of Baron to the Right Honourable Charles Bodvile Roberts, Earl of Radnor. It hath the benefit of Coinage of Tin, and is the place where the Weſtern Seſſions are held; from London 212 Miles.

TRUSHES (Gebhard) Archbiſhop of Cologne, was Son of William, Baron of Varbourg in Suabia, and of Jeanne of Furſtemberg: He was firſt of all Dean of Strasbourg, and afterwards Archbiſhop of Cologne, in 1577, after the Death of John Gebhard of Mansfield, having embraced the Reformed Religion, and married Agnes of Mansfield, Chainoineſs of Geriſheim; he was baniſh'd out of Cologne, whither he had brought his Wife to the Biſhop's Palace; and afterwards having loſt Bon, where he ſubſiſted a pretty long time, he retired into Holland, whence he came back again about 1589 into Germany, where he died a little after. Thuan. Michel Iſſelt. Hiſt. Bell. Colon.

TRUXILLO, or Trughillo, in Latin Turris Julia; a Town and Biſhoprick of America in Honduras, a Province of New Spain. It was taken and deſtroy'd by the Hollanders in 1633, but was ſince rebuilt. It ſtands forty Leagues from Porto de Cavallos to the Eaſt, and ſixty from Valladolid to the North, built upon an Hill between two fine Rivers, within one Mile of the Bay of Mexico, upon which it has an excellent Haven. The Air about it is very Healthful, and their Lands yield large Cattel, and Corn in abundance; their Vines yield two Vintages a Year; and they have plenty of Oranges and all other Fruits. The Biſhop of the Honduras firſt ſettled here, but afterwards removed to Valladolid del Hondura. This Port is called St. Gil; it was ſurpriſed by the Engliſh in 1576, and attempted without Succeſs, in 1596, by reaſon of the natural Strength of it, being ſeated high, and encompaſſed by thick unpaſſable Woods.

TSCHELMINAR, that is, the 400 Pillars, a Name the Perſians gave ſome ancient Ruins near the Town of Schiras in Farſiſtan, a Province of the Kingdom of Perſia; it's generally believed that there was formerly a famous Temple where theſe Ruins lye, built by Aſſuerus upon the Declivity of a Mountain, and that it was part of the ancient Town of Perſepolis. It has a great Platform or Terraſs with a Mountain to the Eaſt, and a great Plain to the Weſt. In this place are alſo ſeveral Pillars that ſupport ſome Remains of Images or Idols, a great ſquare Baſin all of one Stone, and abundance of old decay'd Walls, with Gates and Doors adorn'd with Baſs Relievo's, and extraordinary great Characters that appear to have been formerly gilt, with the Remains of ſeveral Pipes, which carried Water to this place. There are alſo two Caves or Cellars work'd in the Rock, that ſerved as Burying-places; and it's believed, there are above 2000 Figures in Relievo clad in long Robes and flat Caps. This is without doubt one of the fineſt pieces of Antiquity of all Perſia; for though the Figures are not carved with the Art of the ancient Romans, yet they are very curious and well done. *Thevenot. TUBAL CAIN, Son of Lamech by his Wife Sella, was the firſt that uſed Iron and Braſs whereof he made Arms; and it was then Men began to make and adore Statues: According to Philo, he alſo began to uſe other Metals, as Gold, Silver, &c. of which alſo they afterwards made their Idols, according to that Book, pretended to be Enoch's, quoted by Tertullian. It's not improbable, that the Name of the Heathen Vulcan was deriv'd from this Tubal-Cain. Philo. lib. 4. Antiq. Tertul. lib. des Idol.

TUBERO (Ælius) a Roman, had ſeveral conſiderable Imployments in the Commonwealth in Cicero's time: He was a Man of Parts and Wit, and writ a Hiſtory often quoted by Authors. There were other great Men of that Name. Valer. Max. Oroſ. Voſſius.

TUBINGEN, a Town of Germany in the Dutchy of Wirtemburgh, upon the Necker, with an Univerſity founded in 1477, by Eberard Long Beard, Count of Wirtemburg. It's four Miles off Stugard and twelve off Ulm.

TUCCA (Plantius) a Latin Poet, who lived in Virgil and Horace's time, and was much in the Emperor Auguſtus's Favour, who order'd him and Varius to review their Friend Virgil's Æneids, as St. Jerom obſerves in Chron. Euſeb. Olym. CXC.

TUCHET (Thomas) Lord of Merton near Derby, by his Marriage with Joan, one of the Daughters and Coheirs to Nicholas, Lord Audley of Heleigh, had that Honour conferred upon his Iſſue, John his Grandſon bearing the Title of Lord Audley, in 5 Hen. IV. This latter was ſucceeded by Lord James, who was very ſerviceable to the Kings, Henry IV. and V. in their Wars in France. His Son John dying in the ſixth of Henry VII. left Iſſue James his Son and Heir, who was made Knight of the Bath in 1534, upon the Creation of Edward Prince of Wales; and in 6 Henry VII. had a ſpecial Livery of his Lands, and had Summons to Parliament from 1 Edw. IV. to 12 Henry VII. incluſive; but in that Year taking Diſcontent at a Subſidy then granted in Parliament, he join'd with the Corniſh Men in their Inſurrection; whereupon being taken Priſoner in the Battel at Black-Heath, June 22. he was drawn from Newgate to Tower-Hill, with his own Coat of Arms painted on Paper, but reverſed and torn, and there Beheaded. To whom ſucceeded John his Son and Heir, who was reſtored to all his Father's Lands in 25 Henry VIII. left Iſſue George Lord Audley, whoſe Son and Heir Henry accompanied Robert Earl of Leiceſter into the Netherlands, left Iſſue George, who was created Earl of Caſtle-haven in Ireland, 14 Jac. whoſe Son and Heir Mervyn Tuchet ſucceeded him in his Lands and Honours, but being accuſed of certain High Crimes, and by Virtue of a Commiſſion of Oyer and Terminer thereupon arraign'd, had Sentence of Death paſſed upon him, and loſt his Head on Tower-Hill, 7 Car. I. leaving Iſſue three Sons, whereof James the Heir, was in 19 Car. 1. reſtored to the Title and Dignity of Lord Audley, and Earl of Caſtle-Haven, and married Elizabeth one of the Daughters of Grey Bruges, Lord Chandois. Dugdale Baronage.

TUCUMAN, a Country of America Meridionalis belonging to the Spaniards. It lyes in the middle of the Southern Continent, between the River Plata to the Eaſt, and the Mountains and Kingdom of Chili to the Weſt; the Capital of which is S. Miguel de Eſtero. It is 300 Leagues broad, 200 long, and has eight ſmall Spaniſh Cities in it, inhabited by Spaniards, and three Indian Tribes, Tucumans, Jurces, and Diaquits, which are of late much civiliz'd.

TUDBURY or Tutbury, a Market Town in Staffordſhire, in the Hundred of Oſlow upon the River Dove.

TUDDINGTON, a Market Town of Manſhead Hundred in the South parts of Bedfordſhire. It lyes between Ampthill and Dunſtable Southward, about 25 Miles from London.

TUFTON (Nicholas) deſcended of the Noble and Ancient Family of that Name, in the Pariſh of Northiam in Com. Suſſ. was in conſideration of the good Services which his Anceſtors and he himſelf rendred the Crown, Knighted by King James I. at Newcaſtle upon Tine, at his firſt coming into England in 1603, and afterwards by Letters Patents bearing Date the firſt of November, 2 Car. I. advanced to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Tufton of Tufton in Suſſex, and upon the fifth of Auguſt, 4 Car. I. created Earl of Thanet, an Iſle in Kent. John, his eldeſt ſurviving Son ſucceeding him, Married Margaret, the eldeſt of the two Daughters, and Coheirs to Richard late Earl of Dorſet, by whom he had ſix Sons and ſix Daughters. He died in 1664, and was ſucceded by Nicholas his Son and Heir, who Married Elizabeth, Daughter to Richard Earl of Burlington. Dugdale's Baronage.

TUILERIES, a Palace of the King of France, joining the Louvre by a great Gallery that faces the River Seine. This ſtately Building was begun in 1564, by Catherine of Medicis, Charles the Ninth's Mother; it conſiſts of two great ſquare Pavillions, adorn'd with Pilaſters of the Compoſite Order, and a great Pavillion in form of a Dome in the middle, under which is the Hall and Stair-caſe that leads to the Apartments. Henry IV. finiſh'd it, and Lewis XIV. made it very Magnificent. The Front is towards the Garden, begun in 1600, which is alſo called Tuileries, and has its particular Embelliſhments. People go to this Garden to learn the Faſhion for Cloaths, becauſe of the great Reſort of Perſons of Quality to take the Air there. Le Maire Paris Ancien & Nouveau.

TUITZ, or Duitz, Lat. Tuitium, a Town oppoſite to Cologne, on the other ſide of the Rhine in Germany, formerly join'd to it by a Bridge, ſaid to be built by Conſtantine the Great. This Town is famous for a Monaſtery, in which, in the twelfth Century, an Hoſtia is pretended to have remain'd unburnt in the midſt of a Fire. The famous Abbot Rupertus Tuitienſis wrote a Book about this Miracle. Ex. Bibl. Germ.

TULCA XXIX. King of the Goths, he began his Reign in 638, and poſſeſſed all the Qualities requiſite to gain him the Affection of all People. He died at Toledo after two Years and ſome Months Reign, much bemoan'd by all his Subjects. Biblioth. Hiſp.

TULENUS, a very learned Man, who lived in the ſixteenth Age, but was ſubject to ſtrange Extravagancies; for at ſometimes he fancied he was Biſhop of Cambray, at others, was extraordinary enamour'd of a Princeſs dead a long time before; but in his ſober Intervals, by his fine Thoughts, and the Juſtneſs of his Diſcourſe, he was admired by all People. Paſquier. l. 8. c. 8.

TULLE, a Town of France, which the Latins call Tutela or Tutella, Capital of Lower Limoſin. It is watered by two Rivers, whereof one is called Coreze, and the other Soulane. It is not doubted but it's one of the ancienteſt Towns of the Gauls, ſince it's recorded that St. Martialis preach'd the Goſpel there. It's a Biſhop's See, and the Biſhop is Viſcount and Lord of the Town. It's adorn'd with a fine Cathedral, that has as ſtately a Steeple as moſt can be ſeen: It has alſo a Preſidial and Election. It lyes 22 Miles Weſt of Clermont, and 14 South of Limoges. Du Cheſne St. Marthe.

TULLIA, Daughter of Servius Tullius, Sixth King of the Romans, being married to Tarquin the Proud, ſhe put him upon killing her Father, that he might Rule alone himſelf; which being executed, this accurſed Princeſs haſtning to ſalute her Husband King, drove her Chariot over her Father's Body. Livy. Florus.

TULLIA, Daughter of Marcus Tullius Cicero, was ſucceſſively marry'd to Piſo, Furius, and Dolobella; after her Death, her Father was a moſt inconſolable Man, for a great while; during the Exceſſes of his Grief, he had a ſtrong fancy to build her a Temple, and make a Goddeſs of her. Rhodiginus affirms, That the Body of this Roman Lady was found in the Via Appia in the Pontificate of P. Sixtus IV. towards the end of the fifteenth Century: Should this be true, 'twill follow, that her Body was neither burnt according to the cuſtom of the Romans, nor her Aſhes preſerv'd in the Temple pretended; but theſe things are uncertain; however, 'tis ſtrongly affirm'd, that in the middle of the ſixteenth Century, in the Reign of Paul III. there was an ancient Tomb diſcover'd in the Via Appia, with this Inſcription: Tulliolæ, Filiæ meæ, in which there was a Woman's Corps, which, upon the firſt Breath of Air, turn'd all to Aſhes. There was likewiſe a lighted Lamp, which by the Story, muſt have burnt above Fifteen hundred Years, which went out immediately upon the Graves being open'd. Gaſper Sagittarius is poſitive for the Truth of this Relation, in his Hiſtoria vitæ Tulliæ; but this Book is confuted by Ottavio Ferrari, in his Treatiſe De Lucernis Sepulchralibus.

TULLUS HOSTILIUS, Third King of the Romans, ſucceeded Numa Pompilius in 83, of the Foundation of Rome: He was a Warlike Prince, ſet the Temple of Janus open, and made his Guards march before him with Bundles of Rods, to make the People have a more awful regard for his Character and Authority. The Inhabitants of Alba were the firſt that felt his Arms; for after the Fight of the Horatii, Curiatii, and the Death of the Dictator Metius Suffetius, he deſtroy'd the Town of Alba, taking the Riches and Inhabitants along with him to Rome. Afterwards he made War upon the Latins and other People, always with good ſucceſs, until he was deſtroy'd by a Fire from Heaven the 114th of Rome, and 32d of his Reign. Ancus Marcius ſucceeded him. Tit. Liv. Flor.

TULUJAS, Tulugiæ, a Caſtle of the County of Rouſillon in France, a League from Perpignan, famous for a Council held in it in 1050, called Concilium Tulugienſe. Baluz.

TUNBRIDGE, a Market Town of Tunbridge Hundred in the South-weſt of Kent, ſeated upon the Medway, and famous for its Wells, ſo much reſorted unto by the Gentry, for the Mineral Waters that are in its Neighbourhood, at Speldhurſt; from London 28 Miles.

TUNIS, a Kingdom of Barbary in Africa, lying between the Kingdom of Alger and Biledulgerid: The Soil is very fruitful in Grain, Olives, and other Fruits; and alſo very good for Paſture, eſpecially towards the Weſt. Its Capital is Tunis, built out of the Ruins of Carthage. Its Circuit is about five Miles, peopled with 10000 Families; very rich by its great Commerce with the Venetians, Genoiſes, and other Nations. The Town is thought to have been built by the firſt Arabians or Saracens that came to ſettle in Africa. It was at the Siege of this Place that St. Lewis died. It's ſituated in a Plain near the Lake of Goulette, four Leagues from the Sea. Its Figure is almoſt ſquare, defended by a Caſtle built upon an Eminence towards the South. There are above 3000 Linnen and Woollen Drapers Shops, 10 principal Streets, beſides a great number of leſſer ones, all very well contriv'd, and in good order; yet moſt part of the Houſes are but one Story high, but are built of Brick and Stone, imbelliſh'd with Moſaick Work both within and on the outſide: the Floors are done with Maſon's Work, pav'd with poliſh'd Stones for want of Wood; the Roofs are made like Teraſſes, a little ſloping, that the Water may drop off the better into the Ciſterns that lie to receive it, for they have no other in the Town, and are forced to make uſe of this upon all occaſions. It's true, there is a Dabian or Well of Spring-water without the place, but the Water is ſold in the Streets, becauſe it's eſteem'd better than that of the great Ciſterns: ſome few others that are about the Town are kept for the King's and his Officer's uſe. About the middle of the Town there is a great Square, ſurrounded with Shops, where the Merchants commonly meet in great numbers. The Perfumers Shops lie open all night, becauſe it's then Women go to the Baths. They count 300 Moſques at Tunis, beſides 12 Chapels in the Suburbs and Priſons for the Chriſtians, 8 Synagogues of Jews, 24 Cells for their Hermits, 150 Stoves, 86 Schools, and 9 Colleges of ſuch as learn and are kept at the publick Expences, and 64 Hoſpitals for Paſſengers and Strangers: Yet the chief Ornament of the Town conſiſts in a magnificent Moſque, which has a Minaret or Tower very high and well built; and in the King's Palace, which is fortified with Towers embelliſh'd with ſome Portico's, a great Court, fine Gardens, Galleries, Chambers, and curious Halls. The Walls of this Town are flank'd with ſeveral ſmall Towers: There were formerly ſome Ramparts, Baſtions, and good Ditches, which were demoliſh'd by the Turks the laſt time they made themſelves Maſters thereof. Goulette, before Barberoſſa fortified it, was but a ſquare Tower at the mouth of the Canal, by which the Sea enters into the Lake of Tunis. This Canal is about a Musket-ſhot in length, but ſo very narrow, that a Gally cannot row through. The Lake is about three Leagues in length, and two in breadth. Here is a great Port for Ships, a Magazine for Merchandiſes, a Cuſtom-houſe, ſome Priſons for the Chriſtian Slaves, with two Temples or Moſques: it's environ'd with two Walls, with their Ramparts and Baſtions. In 1534 Soliman the Magnificent took this City, and drove the King into Exile. In 1535 it was taken by Charles V. In 1570 it returned under its former King, who was under the Protection of the Crown of Spain, in whoſe hands the Fort of Goulette was; but in 1574 Amurath took it by force, and ſince it is govern'd like a Commonwealth under the Protection of the Turk, but very infamous for Piracies. Davity. Marmol.

TURCOMANIA, or the Armenian Turkey, the Weſtern part of the Modern Armenia, which belongs to the Turks in Aſia near the King of Perſia's Territories. This was the firſt Country the Turks poſſeſſed after they came out of Tartary under Trangrolipix, about A. C. 1037; but the preſent Line was begun by Oſman or Ottoman about 1290, who was a Husbandman or common Labourer, and by his Valour raiſed his Family. See Armenia.

TURCOMANS or Turcmans, People of Turcomania, they follow the Turkiſh Religion as they imitate their Language; and it's ſaid, they were the chiefeſt Inſtruments of the Riſe of the Ottomans: they came along with them out of Perſia, where they were Shepherds or Graſiers, an Occupation they follow ſtill; yet they neither love the Turks nor Arabians, by reaſon of the Tyrannies of the firſt, and the Perſecutions they ſuffer under the latter. The Turcomans live in Tents, and often ſhift their Habitations for the Conveniency of Paſture; and go ſometimes two or three hundred Families in a Company, the better to ſecure themſelves againſt the Arabians their Enemies; and drive ſuch vaſt numbers of Camels, Sheep, and Goats along with them, that the Ground ſeems all covered for above two Leagues together: ſo that they are accounted the richeſt Shepherds of the whole Ottoman Empire. They carry a Bow and Arrow, a Sword, with ſome Fire-Arms; have a Juriſdiction or particular Government amongſt themſelves, independent of the Baſſa; and their Aga or Lord, who is of their own Sect, pays the Sultan but a certain Tribute, according to Articles. Michel Fevre Theatre de la Turquie.

TURFORD, a mean Market Town in Nottinghamſhire, 105 Miles from London.

TURIN upon Po, a Town of Italy, Capital of Piemont, with an Archbiſhop's See. It's the Taurinum, or Auguſta Taurinorum of the Ancients, now the Reſidence of the Dukes of Savoy, one of the pleaſanteſt and ſtrongeſt Towns of Italy. There is the old and new, with Baſtions, Walls, and good Out-works. It's ſituate in a great Plain 20 Miles from the Alps, with the Po on one ſide and the Doire on the other. The Duke's Palace is very ancient and magnificent, eſpecially the Gallery, which is finely embelliſh'd with a great number of Paintings, Statues, Arms, Manuſcripts, and other Rarities. There are alſo ſeveral other beautiful Palaces in the Town, with a great number of Noblemen that form the Duke's Court, which is one of the moſt poliſh'd of Europe. The Houſes are well built, the Churches very magnificent, beſides which there is a Citadel, an Univerſity, with all things elſe that can render a Town flouriſhing. It was taken in 1640 by the Count of Harcourt General of the French Army. Philibert Pingon.

TURKS, People of Turkey: Authors ſpeak differently of their Original; but it ſeems very probable that they are deſcended of the Scythians, who lived between the Euxine and the Caſpian Sea. Ottoman began this Empire in 1298, or 1300 according to others, by taking ſome Places from the Chriſtians, as Natolia, Ancyra, Nice, Pruſſia. Orchanes his Son ſucceeded him, A. C. 1327, and made himſelf Maſter of all the Cities in the Neighbourhood of Nice: His Son Soliman croſſed the Helleſpont, and added to their Acquiſitions. Amurat I. ſubdued Adrianople and other Cities of Thrace. Bajazet I. called the Thunderbolt, ran over Boſnia, Servia, overthrew Sigiſmund King of Hungary, and laid Siege to Conſtantinople, but was afterwards taken Priſoner by Tamerlane. After an Interregnum, Emir Soliman, or Prince Soliman, was killed by his Brother Mula Zelebi, and this by Mahomet I. Amurat II. ſucceeded, the beginning of whoſe Reign was troubled by a falſe Muſtapha. Mahomet II. reign'd after him, ſubdu'd the Empire of Conſtantinople, A. C. 1452, that of Trebeſond in 1460, and in the reſt of his Reign 12 Kingdoms, and above 200 conſiderable Cities, but was beat from before Croy by the famous Scanderbeg, who put a great ſtop to the progreſs of his Arms. Bajazet II. took what he had left untaken of Peloponneſus. Soliman I. ſubdued Syria, Arabia, Ægypt, &c. Soliman II. his Succeſſor, took Rhodes in 1521, and ſeveral places in Hungary. Selim II. took Chios. After theſe reign'd Amurat III. Mahomet III. Achmet I. Ottoman II. ſtrangled by the Janizaries, Muſtapha, Achmet his Brother, Amurat IV. Brother to Ottoman, Ibrahim who was alſo ſtrangled by the Janizaries; then Mahomet IV. who took Candia from the Venetians, Newheuſel from the Crown of Hungary, and Caminiec from Poland. But the Turks, diſcontented at the ill Succeſs of their Arms in this preſent War againſt the Chriſtians, depos'd him November 9. 1687, and placed Soliman his Brother, the preſent Emperor, on the Throne, who is the 12th of Oſman's or Ottoman's Line. The Seat of their Empire at firſt was Burſa in Bithynia, afterwards it was at Adrianople, and is now at Conſtantinople. Their Religion, whereof Mahomet was Author, comprehends ſix general Precepts, Circumciſion, Prayer, Faſting, Alms, Pilgrimage, and Abſtinence from Wine. Circumciſion is the chiefeſt of their Ceremonies, which they ſay has the ſame Effect with Baptiſm; and add, that it's impoſſible to be ſaved without it; wherefore they celebrate it with great Solemnity, and keep Feaſts as the Chriſtians do at their Marriages. Their Prayers are ſhort, but frequent; for they go to them five times a day: Mahomet calls them the Pillars of Religion, and the Keys of Paradiſe: they conſiſt moſt in Proſternations, Geſtures, and Poſtures; and when they come to them they turn to the Eaſt, but more often to the South towards their Prophet's Tomb, and Pray with ſo much Application, that they would not interrupt them ſhould the Sultan command it, or were their Houſes on fire. Friday is their ſolemneſt Day of the Week, which they diſtinguiſh by being a longer time at Prayers on that than other Days. They never enter their Temples or Moſques until they purifie themſelves by waſhing their Bodies. They obſerve an extraordinary Faſt in their ninth Month called Ramadan; this begins with the New Moon, wherefore they get a-top of their Houſes, the ſooner to diſcover this Planet, and acquaint the People therewith; and then they neither eat nor drink but at Nights, live very reſerv'd, and leave off taking Tobacco. Any Turk that neglects or breaks this Faſt, is certainly put to Death. When it happens in Summer, (for their Lunar Year conſiſting of 12 Lunaiſons, has no fix'd beginning, ſo that the Ramadan falls ſucceſſively in all Seaſons,) Labourers ready to drop down for Thirſt, dare not taſte a drop of Water to refreſh themſelves with. They frequent the Moſques Night and Day, ſhun Converſations and Paſtime or Diverſion, and have a greater Abhorrence than ordinary for Blaſphemy. They hold, that during this Month, God opens the Gates of Heaven, and ſhuts thoſe of Hell. They have a ſort of Monks, call'd Dervis, who live a very retired and auſtere Life, obſerving always a profound Silence and Humility, go bare-foot, with a Leathern Girdle round their Body full of ſharp Points to mortifie the Fleſh, and ſometimes beat and burn themſelves with hot Irons. The Turks are very charitable, and ſpare nothing for the Maintenance of their Poor, and keeping their Hoſpitals, which are generally very magnificent Structures. Their Moſques alſo are ſtately Buildings, and their Revenues ſo conſiderable, that they are thought a third of the whole Empire: beſides, all People are oblig'd to contribute the hundredth part of their Wealth towards the Zagat or Alms. This Zagat is not ſo exactly paid by the Rich as by the Poor, the former taking care to conceal their Wealth, which is look'd upon as a ſort of Crime at Conſtantinople. Their Pilgrimage to Meccha is perform'd with much Devotion, for they go ſometimes to the number of 50000, to whom the Grand Signior gives a Commander or Leader, who ſets out with the Caravan, and hinders the Diſorders that might happen. This Officer carries an Alcoran cover'd with Cloth of Gold on a Camel, which at its return is crown'd with Flowers, and exempted from farther Toil all the reſt of its Life: They alſo viſit the holy Places of Jeruſalem, but more out of Curioſity than Devotion; and believe Jeſus is not yet dead: They have much Veneration for the Valley of Jehoſaphat, looking upon it as the Place where the laſt Judgment will be held. Abſtinence from Wine is alſo a Precept of the Alcoran; but the Turks ſay their Legiſlator doubted a long time, whether he had better prohibit it or no, becauſe it's very bad, and even Poiſon when taken to Exceſs, yet it's a great Cordial when uſed moderately; and ſay, that what made him forbid it abſolutely was, leſt it ſhould make Soldiers loſe the Reſpect they owe their Officers, and neglect their Duty, eſpecially Sentinels, on whom the Safety of Towns, and ſometimes of whole Armies, depend. 'Tis often ſeen in Germany, that they have ſo many Carts taken up with Wine, that they ſometimes want them to carry Powder and Ball: But this Diſorder never happens among the Turks; for amongſt them, the next Well they come at is their Cellar. The Mufti is chief Prieſt of the Turks, and has great Authority, but is raiſed and turn'd out of his Place at the Grand Signior's pleaſure. The People have ſuch Veneration for him, that they believe he knows the greateſt Secrets of their Law, and therefore call him the Mind or Underſtanding that gives Life to Religion, looking upon his Deciſions to be as authentick as their very Alcoran: ſo that the Judges in their Proceedings dare not contradict his Judgment, which has paſſed ſo far ſometimes as to ſentence the very Sultan to Death, as Oſman and Ibrahim. However, the Veneration the Turks have for ſo elevated a Station, was not a ſufficient Guard to ſecure the Mufti from the Violence of Amurath IV. who trampled upon the Dignity of the Office, and condemn'd this High Prieſt to be ſtrangled, like a common Criminal. The Saracens and Mameluks profeſs'd the Mahometan Religion, and now it is the governing Religion amongſt the Moors, the Arabians, and Tartars; and there are Schiſmatick Perſians, Azimes, Chiurdes, and others, to the number of 67 Sects, different from that of the Turks; all which allow the Text of the Alcoran, but explain it in different Senſes. This Variety of Opinions has often occaſion'd War between the Turks and Perſians: Theſe laſt follow Hali, one of Mahomet's Diſciples: His Tomb and Omar's, another famous Diſciple of that Prophet, are to be ſeen at Babylon; the firſt in ſuch great eſteem, that thereon the Kings receive the Sword, a Ceremony equivalent amongſt them to the Coronation of Chriſtian Princes; and when they are Maſters of Babylon, they light Lamps before it, and perfume and adorn it richly: and on the contrary, that of Omar is not only profaned, but deſpiſed as a wicked and infamous Place. And when the Turks get the better, and poſſeſs the Place, then is the Scene quite alter'd, and Omar's Tomb has its turn of Reſpect and Veneration. The Government is Monarchical, the Emperor abſolute Maſter of the Life, Honour, and Goods of his Subjects: His Orders are above the Laws, which are but few, and thoſe in favour of Arms, and for the enlarging of the State. The Ottomans believe firmly, that the Sultan's Will is the Will of God; that they deſerve to be crowned Martyrs who die in his Service; but for them that diſobey his Orders, they contemn them as Reprobates. They love the Sultan, but fear him more. He is, as ſome Authors write, the only Heir of all their Poſſeſſions, for their Children and Friends never enjoy them but by his Permiſſion: But this Abſoluteneſs is contradicted by others, as we ſhall ſee by and by. If his Miniſters grow rich they certainly ſuffer, right or wrong, their Wealth being look'd upon as a clear proof of their Guilt. It's theſe Practices that furniſh him with a Fund for his numerous Armies and principal Miniſters.

Of the Grand Signior*'s Seraglio.*

The Seraglio where the Sultan keeps his Court, was built by Soliman II. in the pleaſanteſt place of Conſtantinople, at the Extremity of the Town, towards the Canal of the Black Sea. This Palace has many Gates, whereof there is but one open, and that guarded by a great number of Capigi's or Guards under one of the ten Baſſaes that govern and are oblig'd to lie in the Seraglio; ſome Azamoglans, who are Children of Renegado Greeks, keeping Centinel at Night in the Towers. On the Sea-ſide are ſeveral Field-pieces, to keep off all Ships that ſhould approach the Walls. The Sultan takes the Air now and then in a Cloſet or Chamber, which he built in one of the Towers towards Aſia: There are alſo ſeveral Chroſques or Balconies upon the tops of the Seraglio, from whence the Proſpect is very pleaſant: Lower, by the Sea-ſide, there is a Harbour for the Galliots, Caics or Brigantines, that wait on the Grand Signior when he goes to take his Diverſion upon the Water: there are three great Courts which People are permitted to come into, the reſt are inacceſſible. In the firſt is the Apartment of the Azamoglans on one ſide, and the Infirmery of the Slaves of the Seraglio on the other; the ſecond Court is full of Cypreſs-trees, and the Wings built in form of Portico's, taken up with the Kitchins of the Seraglio, the Grand Signior's Stables, and the Divan, for ſo the great Hall is called where the Vizirs meet about buſineſs. The Haſna or Treaſure-Chamber is likewiſe in this Court; and ſo is the Oda, i. e. the Lodgings of the Icoglans, a Name given to a ſelect number of Children, which are taken as Tribute from the Chriſtians, and made uſe of to ſerve about the Perſon of the Sultan. In the ſame Court is the Chilar Oda, i. e. a ſort of Wardrobe for rich Furniture; the Preſents which Embaſſadors make before their Audience being likewiſe laid up here. In the third Court there is a grand Hall, in which the Grand Signior gives Audience to Embaſſadors: The Throne in this Hall is richly ornamented. Beyond this is the Odaliques Apartment, or that of She-Slaves, reſerved for the Sultan's Pleaſure: What paſſes here cannot be known, but by ſome of the Eunuchs of the Seraglio, or by ſome baniſh'd thence for Miſdemeanor, or married thence to ſome Baſſa. People enter but very ſeldom into the Sultan's Apartment, and never but when he is abſent, ſo great is their Veneration not only for his Perſon, but alſo for all things that he makes uſe of. This faces a great Court all pav'd with very fine Marble, adorn'd with Moſaick Work and a great number of Fountains. The Hall of the ancient private Divan is towards the Eaſt, ſupported with Pillars, and ſurrounded with a Lake which forms 30 Fountains round it. There is a ſmall Brigantine upon this Lake, where his Highneſs diverts himſelf ſometimes with his dumb Jeſters or Buffoons. The Walls of the Chamber where the Grand Signior lies are lin'd with fine Purcelain, and enrich'd with painted Flowers; the Bed generally in form of a Roman Pavillion, of Cloth of Gold, with a Bedſtead or Pillars of Silver, the Mats being likewiſe brocaded. In Winter there are very rich Furs laid upon and under the Bed, and the Boards are covered with Perſian Carpets of Gold Tiſſue. The Sultan lies in a little Turban, and when he lies alone three of his Gentlemen of the Bed-Chamber wait, one at the Door, and the two other near his Bed, to be ready at the leaſt Signal, and put on the Cloaths if they ſhould fall. Near this is the Apartment, where he exerciſes himſelf at ſhooting with Arrows. The Turks ſhew the Marks of his Shots with as much Veneration as the Chriſtians do their moſt precious Relicks. The publick Divan is held to do Juſtice, or to grant ſome favour. Councils are kept in the particular Chambers of the Grand Vizir, where the two Cadileſchers, Chief of the Cadis who profeſs the Law, meet to render Juſtice in the Ottoman Empire of Greece and Natolia: the Teſterdars, Camerlingues, the Reichirap, Chancellor or Recorder, the Secretaries and Niſangi's, who ſeal all the Diſpatches, are alſo there. The Chiaoux Baſſa, Chief of the Chiaoux, who are the King's Meſſengers, is alſo at hand to give Orders to thoſe he commands, to execute ſpeedily what is reſolved on. The Vizirs adviſe or give their Judgment, but have no Vote. When the Aga of the Janizaries, and the Captain Baſſa, are at Conſtantinople, they come to this Meeting, eſpecially when it's neceſſary to inform the Sultan of what relates to the Arſenal or Army. If the laſt has no other Office but that of Captain Baſſa, he ſits in the laſt place; but if he be ſecond or third Vizir, he takes the place due to his Quality. There is no proper Seat in the Divan for the Aga of the Janizaries; but when he comes to the Divan, he is the firſt that comes in and the laſt that goes out. The Clerks ſit upon the Ground with Pen in hand: Thoſe that ſue for Juſtice ſtand, and hold their own Petitions. The Vizirs never ſpeak but when the Grand Vizir asks their Advice. This firſt Miniſter ſometimes refers the leſſer Affairs to the inferiour Vizirs, reſerving the greater to himſelf: And here all Suits and Diſputes about Property are determined by the Bench, without ſuffering any Lawyers to meddle in the matter. The Sultans, from their Apartment, can ſee and hear what is done in the Divan, without being ſeen, which keeps their Miniſters to their Duty, and affords them the Pleaſure of ſeeing and hearing what paſſes in their Interviews with foreign Embaſſadors. When the Sultans themſelves take the Trouble to govern, they take an Account every Sunday and Tueſday of the Reſolutions taken in the Aſſemblies. When the Great Vizir ſpeaks to the Grand Signior, it's with a great deal of Humility, and delivers him the Peoples Petitions in a Silken Purſe; but the reſt, to ſhew their greater Diſtance and profound Reſpect, ſpeak with both their hands joyn'd together. When the Embaſſadors of Crown'd Heads deſire Audience, the Vizir aſſembles the Great Divan: the Baſſas that are in Employment come thither, and in the next Court are the Chiaoux, the Mutiferagaes or Pikes; the Zeis or Armourers, Spahies, and Janizaries, drawn up on both ſides: the Vizir ſends the Chiaoux Baſſa with all his Train to meet the Embaſſador, who is introduc'd into the Divan, and takes place over againſt the Vizir. After the ordinary Compliments on ſuch Occaſions, an Officer gives notice that Dinner is ſerv'd in; the chief Officers and Men of Quality dine with this Stranger, and are feaſted magnificently; for the Sultan allows 1000 Crowns of Gold for each ſuch Dinner. The Dragoman aſſiſts to interpret what is ſaid on both ſides: In the mean time, the Officers of the Embaſſador's Train are Feaſted under one of the Portico's. Theſe Ceremonies ended, the Grand Signior gives notice, That he is ready to give Audience; whereupon the Embaſſador retires until all the Members of the Divan are met to aſſiſt; and the Maſter of the Ceremonies comes to lead him to his Highneſs's Chamber, through the Capigis Baſſaes, who ſtand in order on both ſides; two of theſe take the Embaſſador under the Arms, and carry him to kiſs the Sultan's Hand; after which he retires into a Corner, until the Gentlemen, Secretaries, &c. that have a deſire to ſalute the Sultan, have paid him their Reſpects. Then the Dragoman or Drogerman, is ſent for, who interprets what the Embaſſador gives in Writing. To which the Sultans ſeldom anſwer, or if they do, ſay but very little; but this Brevity of the Sultan is ſupply'd by the Grand Vizier, who makes a Compliment proper to the Occaſion. After this the Embaſſador withdraws, his Gentlemen walking before him; and when he retires, he does not take off his Hat, but only bows his Head, according to the Cuſtom of the Place. The Sultan gives the Embaſſadors and chief of their Retinue Veſts, before they come to their Audience. Miniſters of leſs conſiderable Princes, are received according to the Quality of their Maſters; ſome are not Feaſted at all, others ſtand or ſit before the Vizir; all which is regulated by Cuſtom; for the Turks keep very exact Regiſters of the Formalities and Diſtinctions uſed on ſuch Occaſions, according to the Rank of the Princes from whom theſe Miniſters come; and theſe they obſerve without the leaſt Innovation. Extraordinary Embaſſadors are furniſh'd with Money to bear their Charges, and the Turks preſent them ſometimes with Hangings for their Chamber.

Of the Womens Seraglio.

There are about 5000 Officers employed within the Serrail, and about 3000 Women, conſiſting of young Maids, who are there for Education, the grave Matrons that govern, and the Slaves that wait upon and ſerve them. Here are ſome of moſt Countries. The Tartars ſend the Choice of thoſe they take in their Incurſions; and if in any conquer'd Country there is found any extraordinary Beauty, or any one of great Qualifications, ſhe is reſerved for the Sultan: When ſhe begins to grow out of date, ſhe is ſent into the Old Seraglio. Let their Religion be what it will, they are all thought Turks that are in the Seraglio; nor is there any other Ceremony requiſite to this, but to lift up a Finger and cry, La Allah illa Alla Mochammed reſoul Allah, There is but one God, and Mahomet is his Prophet. When they come to the Serrail, they are received by an Old Woman called Chejaca Cadun, the Women's Governante, or Mother of the Maids. They live retir'd in theſe Apartments, ſleep in Dormitories, eat in long Refectories, always attended by their Old Matrons who never loſe ſight of them. They have their Baths, their fine Gardens, and Miſtreſſes to learn them the Tongue, and to work ſome Curioſities for Diverſion. The Sultan diverts himſelf with none but thoſe the Checaja Cadun preſents him: ſhe makes 'em dance before him, play upon Inſtruments, and do what elſe they are beſt verſed in: When he goes away, he throws his Handkerchief to her he likes beſt, as a token of his Deſign: In the Morning he changes his Suit, and leaves that he wore, with all the Money in the Pockets, to his Bedfellow; and if he thinks her deſerving of his Love, he makes her more conſiderable Preſents. She that has the good Fortune to Conceive, is honoured with the Title of Aſſechi Sultana, that is Sultan Queen, a Title that is confirm'd upon them, if they happen to bring a Prince; but if it be a Daughter, they are only called plain Sultaneſs; yet they have particular Apartments given them, with all that is neceſſary to ſupport their Honour; and their Daughters are married to the principal Baſſas, who have ſuch great Veneration for them, that they look upon themſelves as unworthy of poſſeſſing them. Theſe Ladies wear always a Dagger enrich'd with Pearls, as a Mark of their Authority. The Sultaneſſes are jealous of each other, and omit nothing to gain their Point over their Rivalleſſes. All their Happineſs depends of Iſſue Male; but if they out-live the Children, they loſe the Title and Honour they had by them. There have been Sultans formerly married ſolemnly, the Ceremony being perform'd in Preſence of the Mufti; but that Cuſtom is now aboliſhed, to ſpare the great Portion amounting to Five hundred thouſand Sequins per Annum, which Selim I. aſſigned them, to ſupport their Rank, and enable them to build Moſques, Hoſpitals, and do other charitable Works: Now whether they are declar'd Wives or no, they are called Sultaneſſes Queens when they are brought to Bed of Princes. The Chiſlar Agaſi, Chief of the Black Eunuchs, guards the Great Sultaneſs's Doors with thirty of his Moors. The Sultaneſſes never go abroad but when the Grand Signior carries them to walk, and then they are not ſeen neither; and when they accompany the Court in any long Journey, they travel in ſuch cloſe Coaches, that it's impoſſible any but their Black Eunuchs ſhould ſee them. The Old Matrons examine all that is brought them; the leaſt Fault is ſufficient to have them ſent to the Old Seraglio; and when they are convinc'd of Witchcraft, or any other conſiderable Crime, they are ſown up in a Sack, and thrown into the Sea.

Of the Azamoglans.

There are ſeven or eight hundred Azamoglans, brought up from the Age of 12 to 30 Years in the Serrail; theſe are Sons of Renegado Chriſtians, and Children levy'd by way of Tribute, in the Provinces of the Ottoman Empire. The Boſtangi Baſſi, or chief of the Gardeners, looks after and employs them in what he thinks 'em moſt fit for. They are always ready at a Call, and it's they execute the Grand Signior's Sentences of Death upon the moſt conſiderable of his Baſſas. The Janizaries, Azamoglans, and Agalares, according to the firſt Inſtitution, were to be no other than the Children of Renegado Chriſtians; but of late natural Turks have been receiv'd. Theſe Young-men are under the Direction of the White Eunuchs, who perſuade them from their Infancy, that nothing is ſo glorious as obeying the Grand Signior's Orders, and ſacrificing themſelves in the Execution; that if they die by his Hand or Orders, they are aſſuredly happy; which falſe Maxims have made ſuch Impreſſions upon ſome Turks, that there have been very many conſiderable Baſſas known, to have look'd upon their Fortune as imperfect if they could not crown their Life by dying by the Hand or Order of the Sultan, and ſo render themſelves worthy of the Glory of Paradiſe. They keep a Regiſter of the Name and Country of theſe Agalares; a White Eunuch having the charge of the Youth among them, whom he teaches to Read, Write, and ſpeak the Turkiſh Language: Their Books are all Manuſcripts, for the Turk ſuffers no Printing. The Agalares having ſtaid a competent time at his School, are remov'd into another, where they write and ſpeak more correctly, and where the Perſian, Arabick, and Tartar's Languages are taught; they likewiſe ſpend five Years in Learning to Draw the Bow; to Wreſtle, throw Darts; to Run, and handle the Sabre; till having reach'd the Age of full Strength, and then they are ſent to a Third Apartment, where they repeat the ſame Exerciſes, and learn to Vault and Ride: And beſides this, every one of 'em are taught ſome neceſſary Trade or Employment, for the Service of the Sultan; and after ſeveral Tryals and Proofs that they have quite forgot their own, and are fix'd in the Mahometan Religion, they are promoted to Offices according to their Deſerts and Capacities. They that are about the Sultan's Perſon may come to theſe following Charges, to be Beglerbegs of Greece and Natolia, Agas of Janizaries, Chief of the Spahies, Governors of the Provinces of the Empire, and to ſeveral other leſs conſiderable, about the Sultan's Perſon, as Barbers, Bathers, Secretaries, &c. And they were ſome of theſe that were formerly ſent in Quality of Embaſſadors and Chiaoux, to carry the Princes of Valachia, Moldavia, and Tranſilvania the confirmation of their Principalities; but now the Capigis Baſſis, who are for the moſt part Sultan's Sons, are employed on theſe Occaſions. The Agalares are not ſuffer'd out of the Seraglio until they are 30 Years of Age, and then neither appear in Publick until their Beard is grown, a Sign of Maturity and Judgment amongſt the Turks. Beſides Jeſters, Buffoons, Wreſtlers, Dancers, and Players upon Inſtruments, there are Mutes of both Sexes, who expreſs their Meanings as well by Signs as if they could ſpeak, and are of extraordinary Diverſion to the Grand Signior.

Of the Eunuchs.

There are White and Black Eunuchs in the Serrail; the White guard the Sultan's Door, the Black the inward Seraglio of the Women. The moſt conſiderable of all, is Capi Aga, chief of all the White; the ſecond is Caſnadar Baſſi, Great Treaſurer; the third Chilergi Baſſi, who takes an Account of what is laid out, and how; the fourth is Serrai Agaſi, Warder of the Seraglio. Theſe four, who are generally pretty well in Years, are in great Conſideration, eſpecially the firſt, who does the Office of firſt Groom of the Bed-chamber: He follows the Grand Signior where ever he goes, and accompanies him to the very Door of the Womens Apartment: His Pay is 10 Sultanins a day, and his Place is of great Perquiſites, beſides in Cloaths, Jewels, and Preſents, becauſe all that is done in the Serrail, or without, goes through his Hands. The Caſnada, who has care of the Caſna or Treaſury, keeps one Key, and the Sultan another; and when any preſſing Buſineſs of State obliges them to draw any Sum, or valuable Thing thence, it's only upon condition to return it thither again; for the Treaſurer keeps an exact Regiſter of the leaſt pretious Stones that are taken in or out of the Treaſure. The Chilergi Baſſi looks after all the rich Furniture, Jewels and Plate that belong to the Crown: This Officer has 1000 Aſpers a day, which amount to 10 Crowns. There is another Apartment called the Exchequer, where they put all the rich Furniture they take from the Baſſas that are Strangled by the Grand Signior's Orders, unleſs theſe before their Death diſpoſe of them in favour of ſome Moſque. The Serrai Agaſſi, the fourth of theſe Eunuchs, has the Guard of the Seraglio, which he never goes out of when the Grand Signior is abſent.

His Salary amounts to eight Crowns a day, beſides his other extraordinary Advantages. Theſe four Officers wear Turbans, and becauſe they are privileg'd by their Places to be about the Grand Signior's Perſon, are much reſpected. There are about 100 Eunuchs in the Serrail, which ſometimes are raiſed to great Offices, as, to be Baſſas of Cairo, Governors of Provinces, Vizirs, and have the Reputation of being very Faithful, and for that reaſon are intruſted with the Money and Women. The Black Eunuchs that ſerve the Sultaneſſes come from Cairo; they take the Name of ſome Flower or precious Stone, as, Diamond, Jacinthe, Perle, Coral, Roſe, &c. The Black ſpeak ſometimes to the Grand Signior when they carry him a Meſſage from his Favourites: They never go out of the Serrail, without the expreſs Permiſſion of the Sultan Queen. The White dare not come into the Womens Apartment, but each keeps to his Poſt, and do their particular Offices.

Of the Sultaneſſes and their Children.

Young Mooriſh Maids are employed in the Sultaneſſes Service, and no Men enter their Apartment but ſuch Officers as are indiſpenſably called thither by their Employment; for the chief Phyſician cannot viſit any without the Sultan's Leave; and when he does, all the other withdraw whilſt he is led into the Sick Perſon's Chamber by the Black Eunuchs: She lyes all cover'd to a little part of her Arm, where he feels the Pulſe: If it be the Sultan Queen, or any other Sultaneſs, ſhe has her Hand and Arm cover'd with a very fine Veil, that the Doctor may not touch her Skin; and he withdraws immediately after he has preſcrib'd her the Remedies he thinks fit. The young Princes, if they be of the ſame Mother, are brought up together by Nurſes taken from without the Serrail; but if the Sultan has different Favourites they are brought up in ſeparate Apartments, and each Mother takes care of her own Children. The Sultan's Daughters are alſo brought up with great Care, but not with ſo much as the young Princes, who have a Chozza who inſtructs them from the Age of five to eleven Years. Formerly the preſumptive Heir to the Crown being pretty big, was Circumciſed according to their Law; and when the Prince that govern'd thought fit, he had leave to come out of the Serrail, and had a Houſe given him, with one of the chiefeſt Eunuchs, to be his Governor, and a good number of Officers out of the Seraglio for his Train; then was he ſent to Magneſia a Town of Aſia, where he Commanded under his Father: The other Princes of the Blood whoſe Lives were ſpar'd, had alſo their Apanages and truſty People plac'd about 'em to keep 'em within due bounds, and hinder their Communication with any who might raiſe their Ambition, or move them to ſuch Diſorders as in theſe laſt Ages were like to be the utter Ruin of the Empire. They choſe rather to ſend theſe Princes to Aſia than into Europe, that they might be the farther remov'd from the Chriſtian Princes. But now the Turks have changed that ancient Cuſtom, and keep the Princes always in the Serrail; that ſo being conſtantly under their Fathers Conduct, they might be the more ſubmiſſive, and leſs lyable to ill Impreſſions from Strangers.

Of the Grand Signior.

The Sultan gets up betimes, and generally eats four times a day. He ſits upon Pillows, and has his Meat ſerv'd upon a kind of Stool a little from the Ground: He holds his Napkin upon his Arm, has another Cloth upon his Knee, with his Legs acroſs, the Turkiſh way. He keeps no Taſter, as our Chriſtian Princes do, and ſeldom drinks more than once. Selim and Amurat IV. who were not very zealous obſervers of their Law, drank much Wine; and the laſt uſed to call the Vine the Tree of Life. The Grand Signior has his Buffoons and Mutes about him, who act a dumb Comedy by extravagant Geſtures, whilſt he is at Dinner. The Sultan's Plate at Table, is Maſſie Gold; the Baſin alſo in which he waſhes his Hands, is of the ſame Metal, and ſet round with pretious Stones. During the time of the Ramadan, which is the Turkiſh Lent, the Sultan eats in yellow China, and only at night; it being unlawful for the Turks to eat in the day-time, till the Ramadan is over: But, notwithſtanding this Seaſon of Abſtinence, there is Fleſh ſerv'd up always at Table; for the Sultan never eats any Fiſh, unleſs it be for his Fancy. There's little Spice us'd in the Seraglio, becauſe 'tis apt to make one very Thirſty: As to the Places whence the Proviſions come, Ægypt furniſhes Dates; Moldavia, Valachia and Tranſilvania, Honey: And Oil comes from Coron and Modon in the Morea; but the Oil from Candia is counted the beſt. The Sultan's Butter comes up the Black-Sea, and the Gardens about Conſtantinople, ſupply him with Fruit. When he deſigns any of his Agalares a conſiderable Honour, he throws him a piece of Bread, which the other takes up with profound reſpect, breaks it ſmall, and diſtributes it to the other that are preſent, as if it were ſome precious Relick. After the Meat is taken away, the Prince quits his Gravity, and plays with his Mutes and Buffoons, to whom he gives Money, that they may ſuffer what he does to them with the more Patience. When he takes the Air in his magnificent Saiques, the Agalares and chief Offices of the Serrail that accompany him, ſtand; but the Boſtangi Baſſi, who is behind, and ſteers at the Helm, has the Privilege to ſit, and diſcourſes with him. When the Sultan goes a Hunting, or to the Moſque on Fridays, which are their Holy-days, he rides out of the Serrail, accompanied with the Baſſas and other principal Officers, which together make a great Squadron. Some Officers walk behind, to receive the Petitions the People preſent as he goes by; the meaner ſort that never go to Court, nor dare approach their Sovereign, burn Straw upon their Head whilſt they hold out their Petitions: This is done for two Reaſons, the firſt, that the Sultan might take notice of them, and order their Memoirs to be taken; the ſecond, to put him in mind that his Soul would burn ſo in Hell, if he refuſed to liſten to the juſt Complaints of his Subjects: This keeps Officers in awe, and hinders their abuſing the People. The Sultan has a thouſand choice Horſes in his Stables, which the Maſter of the Horſe furniſhes thoſe with that attend him when he rides abroad. He has very fine Studs in Magneſia, and at Adrianople, beſides other Places. The Number of his Mules is very great too; for when he marches in Perſon to the Field, there are Twelve thouſand that attend him. He appears in Publick on the Feaſt of Bairan or Eaſter, in all his Magnificence, ſeated upon a rich Carpet of Perſian Tapeſtry, gives the Baſſas leave to kiſs his Hand, and receives his Subjects Homage. The Vizir that ſtands by, names ſome, and acquaints him when they that make profeſſion of the Law, or the great Men of the Port come, that he may receive them with ſome Diſtinction. This Ceremony ended, he marches in State to St. Sophia, and then returns to his Apartment, where he treats thoſe that accompany him, and preſents the Sultaneſs and Grand Vizir with Jewels, Veſts, &c. At Night they light Torches, repreſent the Taking of Towns, with ſeveral other Diverſions, which laſt three Days; during which, Perſons of Quality of both Sexes, ſtrive for the Favour of their Prince by the great Preſents they make him. Whilſt all Conſtantinople is thus in Mirth, the Chriſtians are forced to keep within their Houſes, from the Inſolence of the Turks, and Inſultings of Soldiers and drunken Men, that ask Money, and put all manner of Affronts upon 'em.

The Old Seraglio.

This Serrail, ſurrounded with very high Walls, is conſiderable for its Buildings, Fountains, and Baths. The Grand Signior has an Apartment furniſh'd in it, whither he comes when he Viſits any Sultan's Queen that retires thither after the Death of her Sultan. This Serrail is about a Mile round, and was built by Mahomet II. in one of the fineſt parts of the Town. It has but one Gate or Door to it, and that kept by Eunuchs: No Men enter but they who carry Proviſions, and they make no ſtay neither, nor ſee any Women. The Women that are out of date in the other, that are caſhier'd, grow old, or have forfeited their Prince's Favour by ſome conſiderable Crime, are ſent hither, under an old Matron that governs them with much rigour. The Sultan Queen and other Sultaneſſes, have their Apartments, and keep no Communication with the inferiour Women; theſe laſt are ſo ill provided for, that they ſometimes want Neceſſaries, wherefore nothing afflicts them more than when they are order'd to be ſent hither: All their Comfort is, that they are ſuffer'd to Marry: The Eunuchs are their Agents, and take care to provide them Husbands. Their Portion is no more than what they ſav'd and hoarded up during their Proſperity, which they uſe to hide leſt it ſhould be taken from them.

Of the Turks Marriages.

There is no other Ceremony uſed in this, but a Contract made in Preſence of the Cadi, Preſident of the Law, which mentions the Portion and Conſent of Parties. Sometimes there are Witneſſes call'd; but there are ſo many falſe ones at Conſtantinople, that this Formality is but of little uſe. The very Deſcendants of Mahomet, diſtinguiſh'd by their Green Cloaths, are eaſily corrupted for Money. The Turks are allowed four Wives, and as many Slaves as they can or will maintain. Their Children inherit equally, and amongſt People of the higheſt Rank, eſpecially if allied to their Sovereign, the Slave's Children fare beſt; Jealouſie, or ſome Reaſon of State, hindring them to advance the other, leſt Birth ſhould make 'em Pretending and Troubleſom. And this is the reaſon the Legitimate Children are frequently Topp'd upon by the Baſtard Sons of Slaves. Husbands may be divorc'd from their Wives, for ſeveral Cauſes mentioned in the Alcoran, eſpecially when their Humours do not agree. They that are thus Divorced, take their Portion with them; and if in their ſecond Marriage they have ſtill the ſame Misfortune, they have the Liberty to return to their former Husbands. The Slaves that bear them Children, cannot be ſold, but are look'd upon as incorporated in the Family, which is therefore obliged to maintain them; but if they are barren, they may ſell them at Market. The Turks can have Wives or Slaves of all Religions, and may do what they pleaſe with them except taking away their Lives. Chriſtians and Jews are not allowed to buy Mahometans, but only Women of their own Religion. There is no Puniſhment inflicted on thoſe that debauch Slaves, but they are ſeverely dealt with that have any infamous Correſpondence with thoſe that are Free. The Traffick made of Slaves in Turkey, differs in nothing from that of Cattel amongſt Chriſtians; they are examin'd, their Age and Diſpoſition of their Bodies conſider'd, and a Price ſet according to the Strength and Quality of the Perſon: Children with or without the Mother: Young Girls are the deareſt Commodity; theſe are examin'd by Matrons, and if they diſcover any Cheat the Seller is obliged to return the Price agreed upon, and mark'd in his Journal, which is as faithfully kept, and as formal, as for any other Merchandize whatſoever. The Cuſtoms and Ways of the Turks are very different from ours. The Left is the Upper-hand with them. They Bury in the dark, and carry the Dead out with their Head forward. In Chriſtendom, Criminals are put to the Queſtion, or Rack'd, to draw 'em to Confeſſion; but in Turkey, they convict People only by Teſtimony. Chriſtians keep good Tables, they but very ordinary, yet are very magnificent in the Equipage of their Horſes. Chriſtians retrench themſelves in their Camps, but they not until of late. We have ſtrait Swords, their Sabres are crooked. They neither make uſe of Pikes or Armour. Our Battalions are cloſe and deep, theirs are large and take up much ground. Though it's generally thought they ſet no Value upon Learning, yet there are Profeſſors at Cairo and at Conſtantinople that teach Aſtrology, Aſtronomy, Geometry, &c. the Arabick (which is the Language of the Learned, as Latin amongſt us) and the Perſick. They ſuffer no printed Books, but have a great many Manuſcripts. The Grand Signior has a very curious Library, in which it was believ'd there was a perfect Copy of Titus Livius, for which the Library-Keeper was proffer'd conſiderable Sums, but he always anſwer'd, He could not find it. There is a Bazar or Market of Manuſcript-Books upon different Subjects in the Turkiſh, Arabian, and Perſian Tongues at Conſtantinople; but Chriſtians are not permitted thither, becauſe the Turks would believe Books profaned if ſold to them. There are Hiſtorians now at this preſent hir'd to write the Annals of this Empire, which are already in five or ſix great Volumes that coſt 200 Crowns. M. Batz a Scotchman, who travelled four or five Years in this Country, ſays he bought a great many curious Books, as that of Chek Bouny an Egyptian, of the Efficacy of Divine and Humane Words, with a great number of Lines and Figures, by which this Author pretends to ſhew fine things; another that teaches the Speculation of this Cabaliſtique Science, a Turkiſh and Arabick Dictionary, Turkiſh and Perſian Grammars, Alphabets of all Tongues, and Ephemerides of the Increaſe and Decreaſe of the Nile, a Treatiſe of Chiromancy, more curious than thoſe of John Baptiſto Porta, in which the Author pretends, that the Lines of the Hands are Letters, whereof he ſhews the Alphabet; with ſeveral other. The ſame Mr. Batz aſſures, that he ſaw a very ancient Aſtronomy-Book at Conſtantinople, that ſuppoſed the Uſe of the Needle, but did not apply it to Navigation but to other Aſtronomick Uſes; all which ſhew, that the Turks are not ignorant. But they apply themſelves moſt to uſeful Sciences, without troubling their Heads with ſuch as amuſe the Underſtanding, and content a vain Curioſity. J. Spon. Voyage of Italy, &c. in 1575.

TURKY, or Empire of the Turks, comprehends many Provinces in Europe, Aſia, and Africa, ſo that it's with reaſon the Sultan is called Grand Signior; for it's obſerved he poſſeſſes from Eaſt to Weſt all that lyes between Belis of Gomere or the Weſtern Extremity of the Kingdom of Algier, which is tributary to him, to Balſora, which is at the Extremity of the Perſian Gulf, and is at leaſt 800 Leagues from North to South from Caffa or Taurica Cherſoneſus, or rather from the Tanais above the Palus Meotis to Aden at the Mouth of the Red Sea or Straights of Babelmandel, is alſo 700 Leagues. In Europe he has Romelia, that comprehends Greece, Macedonia, Albania, Thrace, with the Iſlands of the Egean Sea, Sclavonia, in which are Servia, Croatia, Bulgaria, and a part of Hungary, &c. In Aſia, Natolia, Sourie Soriſtan, or Syria, Turcomania, Diarbech, and the three Arabias, which comprehend a great many large and fair Provinces. In Africa he has the Kingdoms of Barca and Egypt, with the States of Tunis, Alger, and Tripoli, under his Protection. The Princes of Tranſilvania, Moldavia, Valachia, and Commonwealth of Raguſa, paid him Tribute. The Leſſer Tartars depend on him as their Protector. To give the Reader a more perfect Idea of this Empire, we muſt obſerve, That it is divided into 25 Governments, of which there are ſeven in Europe, ſeventeen in Aſia, and Egypt makes one by it ſelf: Two of theſe Governments have Beglerbegs at the Head of 'em; the other are manag'd by Baſha's with Sangiacs or ſubordinate Governors under 'em. Moſt of theſe Countries are fruitful, but neglected through the Lazineſs of the Turks and the Oppreſſions the Chriſtians lye under, who chuſe rather to let the Land lye untill'd, than to cultivate it for others. It's thin of Inhabitants, an Effect of the frequent Contagion and continual Wars which conſume great Numbers of Turks. Theſe are for the moſt part robuſt and well-limb'd, their Temperance contributing much to the ſtrength of their Conſtitution; naturally more ſincere and better than the Renegadoes. Though they are allowed four Wives, yet this Number is rare amongſt them: It's but ſeldom alſo they repudiate their Wives. They are much accuſed of wicked and deteſtable Practices, Men with Men, and Women with their own Sex. Several have publiſhed great Miſtakes, in ſaying the Grand Signior was Proprietor of all the Land in Turky, and that Fathers cannot diſpoſe of any in favour of their Children; for not only Turks, but the very Grecians, inherit their Parents and Relations Poſſeſſions, paying the Grand Signior only 3 per Cent. more or leſs upon every change of Heir. There is an Officer call'd Beit-Elmal-Emini, in each Town, to receive this Tribute. Their chief Merchandize is Silks, Cottons, and Oil. They are warlike and very ſtout. Their Troops conſiſt in Janizaries which are the Chriſtian Children levy'd for Tribute, in Spahi's which are their Horſe, and in Zains and Timariots, that hold Land during Life, to ſerve in the Army at their own Charges. The Timariots have leſs than the Zains, and differ as the Commanders of Maltha from the Grand Prior. Northern Turky in Europe, though it lyes in the middle of the Temperate Zone, yet the Air is not pure and healthful in all its Parts, eſpecially Hungary, which does not agree at all, or but very little, with Strangers; the Land is Hilly, and full of Mountains to the North, and Plains to the South; the Mountains have ſeveral good Mines, eſpecially of Quickſilver, and the tops are cover'd with Foreſts full of wild Beaſts: The Wine is delicious, eſpecially that of Tokai in Upper Hungary: The Plains of Lower Hungary and Tranſilvania bear the beſt Wheat in Europe, and their Rivers abound ſo in Fiſh that the Country People attribute their Inundations to the great quantity of 'em. The Tranſilvanians and Hungarians are not ſo tall as the Moldavians and Valachians, but have a frightful Eye, and Fury always painted in their Faces, and are of an irreconcilable Humour, bold and barbarous: The deſire of Liberty is ſo natural to them, that their daily Study is how to defend themſelves againſt the Turks. The greateſt part of 'em who live in the Country, conquer'd by theſe Infidels, neglect the Improvement of their Land, and deprive themſelves of the Conveniencies of Life, making it their choice to live underground in Caves, into which they are forc'd to creep upon their Bellies, rather than dwell in open Air and commodious Houſes, in which they would be oblig'd to Quarter the Turks and their Horſes. The Women are handſom enough, but generally ill Dreſs'd, and Slatterns. Continual Wars have made the Country very poor, and deſtroyed moſt of thoſe that uſed to work in the Mines. They have been always Warlike, ſufficiently known by what they have done under Attila, and by their putting ſo long a ſtop to the Turks Encroachments in theſe latter Ages; and were it not for the Diviſions and unhappy Quarrels of ſome of the chief amongſt them, the Infidels had found it a very difficult matter to come into their Country. In the Imperial Hungary, the Roman Catholique is the ſwaying Religion, and the Endeavours of ſuppreſſing Calviniſm by taking away their Churches, has occaſion'd the Bloody War that is ſtill on foot. In the Mahometan Hungary, there are Turks, Greeks, Jews, Roman Catholicks, and ſome few Calviniſts. This Kingdom in its flouriſhing Days was Elective, but ſince Tekeli's Rebellion, and that the Emperor obtained from the States in 1687, that it ſhould be hereditary, he has almoſt reconquer'd Hungary, and had puſh'd his Conqueſts as far as Belgrade, but loſt this laſt Place in 1690. Valachia, Moldavia and Tranſilvania, have their Vaivodes, Hoſpodars, or Princes, who pay Tribute to the Turk, and who are plac'd and diſplac'd at the Sultan's Pleaſure; but lately, the Prince of Tranſilvania has renounc'd the Grand Signior, and put himſelf under the Protection of the Emperor, and the King of Hungary. *Chalcondylas Hiſt. TURNEBUS (Adrianus) one of the moſt Learned Criticks of the 16th Century, was born at Andely, near Rohan in Normandy. His Skill in the Belles Lettres, the Languages, and the Civil Law, made him admir'd by all the Learned in Europe. He publiſh'd ſeveral Treatiſes both in Proſe and Verſe, which were extraordinarily valued. He profeſs'd the Law both at Toulouſe and Paris; at the latter of which Places, he died in 1565, being 53 Years of Age. Thuanus. Lipſius. Barthius. Roſinus. La Croix du Maine, &c.

TURPIN or TULPIN, a Monk of St. Denys, of the Iſle of France, was nominated to the Archbiſhoprick of Rheims, by the Emperor Charles the Great, in 769. The Book, Entitul'd, Hiſtoria de Vita Caroli Magni & Rolandi, goes under his Name; but this Hiſtory, or rather Romance, belongs to another Monk, who took the Name of John Turpin. Holtoman, Franco-Galliæ, cap. 5. Edit. 1665. Flodoard. lib. 1. cap. 5. & lib. 2. cap. 17.

TURQUESTAN, a Province between Great Tartary and the Kingdom of the Great Mogul. Several Moderns think, there is no ſuch Place as Turqueſtan, and that this Country is the Kingdom of Tibet, but it's hard to determine the Truth.

TURRECREMATA. See John de Turre-cremata.

TURRIANUS (Francis) born at Herrera in the Dioceſs of Valencia in Spain, was a Divine, and very well acquainted with Eccleſiaſtick Antiquity. He died at Rome in 1584 Father Paul takes notice, That Turrianus being at the Council of Trent, behav'd himſelf with a great deal of Heat and Indecency againſt thoſe that mov'd for Communion in both Kinds. His principal Works are, De ſummi Pontificis ſupra Concilium Auctoritate. Dogmaticus de Electione Divina & de Juſtificatione: De votis Monaſticis: De Cœlibatu: De Matrimoniis Clandeſtinis: De Hie-

TURSELIN (Horace) a Jeſuit, Native of Rome, where he taught for 20 Years, and died in 1609, having writ a Latin Abridgment of the Univerſal Hiſtory, with ſome other Works.

TUSCANY. See Toſcany.

TUSCULUM, now Freſcati, a ſmall Town of Campagnia de Roma in the Church Lands, is the Seat of a Biſhop, who retains the Name of Tuſculanus Epiſcopus, and is always one of the ſix ancient Cardinals. This Town was deſtroyed in Pope Celeſtine the Third's time, becauſe its Inhabitants ſuccour'd the Imperialiſts, and Freſcati was built upon its Ruins, now about 500 Years ago. There are a great number of Palaces and Pleaſure Houſes to be ſeen in it. Baud.

TUSCUS (Dominicus) a Cardinal born at Reggio, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples in the farther Calabria. He was a Perſon of great Parts and extraordinary Memory. He went out Doctor of Laws in his own Country, and after having practis'd at the Bar ſometime at Rome, he was made Auditor of the Rota; in which Function, his Learning and Abilities appearing to Advantage; he had a Cardinals Hat given him by Clement VIII. and had been choſen Pope upon the Death of Leo XI. if Cardinal Baronius had not oppos'd the Election, being diſoblig'd by ſome Freedoms of Converſation, which were cuſtomary enough in Tuſcus; upon this Diſappointment, Tuſcus follow'd his Studies with greater Application, and publiſh'd eight Volumes, in which all the Learning and Caſes in the Civil and Canon Law, are rang'd in Alphabetical Order, and in a very eaſie and intelligible Method. Theſe he dedicated to Pope Paul V. and died in 1620. Thomaſini Elog. Vir. Illuſt.

TUTULINA, a Goddeſs ador'd by the ancient Gentiles, and invok'd for the Preſervation of their Harveſt when at home in their Rick Yards, that it might thenceforth be kept ſafe, that is, Tuto; whence comes the Word Tutuline and Tutelaris: There is ſtill this Inſcription in the Palace of the Vrſins, Diis Tutelaribus. Nonius. Macrobius. St. Auguſtin. De Civit. Dei. l. 4.

TWEDE, the fartheſt River of England in Northumberland, and that which parts it from Scotland, at the Influx whereof into the Sea is ſeated Berwick, called from this River Berwick upon Twede. Noted for a good Salmon-Fiſhing.

TWERE, or Twerſco, a Province of Ruſſia, bordering to the Weſt on Livonia, to the North on Ingraim, to the Eaſt on Smolenſco, and to the South on Litaw. In it riſeth the Dwina, which falls at Riga into the Baltick Sea. The Capital City of the ſame Name is ſeated on the Wolga, 200 Ruſſian Miles from Moſcow to the North, and 250 from Smolenſco North Eaſt. This City is a Biſhop's See. It was the Capital of a great Principality before it ſubmitted to the Ruſs. It has the Right of a Mint with Moſcow and two others. In 1569 John Baſilovitz ſuſpecting the Inhabitants of this City, Great Novogrod and Pleſcow to encline to the Poliſh Government, he ſurprized this City, and cruelly deſtroyed all the Inhabitants of it, without reſpect of Sex or Age. Guagninus.

TWITNAM Park, a ſtately Houſe in Middleſex, juſt over againſt Richmond, belonging to the Right Honourable the Lord Cardigan.

TYCHES, a domeſtick God of the Egyptians. See Anachis.

TYDEUS, Son of Oeneus King of Calydon in Ætolia, being baniſh'd his Country for his Misfortune in killing his Brother Menalippus, he withdrew to Adraſtus King of the Argives, who gave him his Daughter Deiphila in Marriage. Polynices who had married Argia Siſter to Deiphila, having ſent Tydeus to perſuade Eteocles to deliver him the Kingdom of Thebes according to their Agreement. Tydeus upon his Diſappointment and ill Reception, challeng'd Eteocles and all his Retinue in all ſorts of Fights, and overcame them. The Thebans enraged at his Succeſs, to the Number of 50, under Meon and Lycophron, way-laid him at his Return, but Tydeus kill'd them all except Meon, whom he ſpared to carry Eteocles the News: But coming with Adraſtus and Polynice before Thebes a little after, he received his Deaths Wound from one Menalippus, after he had given ſignal Proofs of his great Strength and Valour. Statius Theb.

TYNDARO, in Latin Tyndarus, a Borough of Sicily, in the Valley of Demona, between the Towns of Patti and Melaſſe, where there is a Tower and Town dedicated to our Lady, call'd S. Mary of Tyndaro. It was formerly a Biſhoprick under the Metropolis of Saragoſſa. Strabo, lib. 6.

TYNDARUS, King of Oebalia, Husband of Leda, and ſuppos'd Father of Helena, Caſtor and Pollux; from whence they are call'd Tyndarides. See Caſtor.

TYPHON, or Typheus, Son of Hell and the Earth according to Heſiod, or rather of Juno alone; for Homer ſays, that this Goddeſs being enraged that Jupiter had brought forth Minerva without Aſſiſtance, beat the Earth with her Hand, and received the ſtrong Vapours that aroſe thence; whence this Typhon ſprung, who was of ſuch extraordinary Bulk that with one Hand he touch'd the Eaſt, with the other the Weſt, whilſt his Head rais'd it ſelf to the Stars; both his Eyes ſeem'd Fire, and he vomited Flames out of his Mouth and Noſtrils; his Body was feather'd, and his Thighs and Legs reſembled two great Dragons. This Monſter came with the other Giants to Fight and Dethrone the Gods, who were ſo frighted at his Preſence, that they fled into Egypt and changed their Forms; but at laſt Apollo kill'd him with his Arrows, or according to others, Jupiter ſtruck him dead with a Thunderbolt, and buried him under Mount Gibel. Ovid deſcribing his incredible Bigneſs, ſays, that he reaches under the three Capes or Promontories of Sicily, having the Cape Feloro or Cape de Faro upon his Right-hand, the Pachino or Cape of Paſſaro upon his Left, the Lilybeans or Cape of Coco upon his Thighs, and Mount Gibel upon his Head. Some ſay, Typhon was King of Egypt, who being very cruel, kill'd his Brother Oſiris to uſurp the Kingdom, but was at laſt overcome and puniſh'd by Iſis, Oſiris's Wife. Dr. Dickinſon thinks, that Python and Typhon are the ſame, and that they are the Greek Name of Og, King of Baſhan, who was overcome by Apollo or Pœan, that is, Joſhua. See Delph. Phœniciz. Naturaliſts apply this Fable of Typhon to the Nature of the Winds which blow from Eaſt to Weſt, and riſe to the Skies; the Feathers mark their Quickneſs, the Serpents the damage they do in Hurricanes and Whirlwinds, which reſemble the Windings of thoſe venomous Beaſts; the Fire which he caſts out at his Mouth and Eyes, ſhews the Quality of the Exhalations which are hot and dry. That they would Dethrone the Gods, is but a vulgar Opinion, which takes the Clouds for the Skies; and becauſe the Wind is at times ſo violent that it drives the Clouds along with great Force, Poets have feign'd, that it troubled the Gods in their Seats: And becauſe the Heat and Beams of the Sun or Jupiter, i. e. the good Temper of the Weather, does often appeaſe this Violence, they ſaid Apollo kill'd him, or that Jupiter ſtruck him dead with a Thunderbolt: Finally, Becauſe there are many Caverns and hollow Places in Sicily where there are abundance of ſubterranean Winds and Fires, and that theſe ſometimes cauſe Earthquakes, and caſt Flames and boiling Water out of the Earth, they took Subject thence to ſay, Typhon was laid under this Iſland. Nat. Comes. Strab. lib. 13. Heſiod. in Theog. Ovid Metam.

TYPICON, is the Name of a Liturgical Book of the Greeks, which contains the Form of Officiating in all their Publick Prayers for the whole Year; it anſwers to that which in the Latin Church is call'd, Ordo Recitandi Divini Officiis, as Allatius has obſerv'd in his firſt Diſſertation, De Libris Eccleſiaſticis Græcorum; for as there are ſtill variety of Rites in the Weſtern Churches, and which were much more different before the Office of the Roman Church was receiv'd; ſo likewiſe, this Typicon of the Greeks is not every where the ſame, each Church having generally ſomething of peculiarity and difference in their Forms; however, that which is moſt valued and made uſe of, is the Typicon of Jeruſalem taken from the Monaſtery of St. Sabas. Father Simon.

TYPOT (James) a Learned Lawyer and States-man, of an ancient Family in Brabant: After having Travell'd to moſt of the famous Univerſities of Europe, and profeſs'd the Law in Italy, he ſettled himſelf in Wirtzburgh in Franconia, from whence John III. King of Sweden, invited him to his Court, and beſtow'd a great deal of Wealth and Honour upon him: This good Fortune drew the Envy of ſome great Men of that Kingdom upon him, who falſly accuſing him of ſeveral Crimes, prevail'd ſo far upon the Princes Credulity, as to get him impriſon'd; however, theſe Enemies were ſoon after puniſh'd for their Injuſtice, and loſt their Lives in a very remarkable manner: Typot having languiſh'd out this Reign in Durance, was upon Sigiſmond's, the next Succeſſor's coming to the Throne, ſet at liberty, and employ'd in Buſineſs of the greateſt Truſt and Importance; but Sigiſmond being choſen King of Poland, Typot withdrew to the Court of the Emperor Rodolphus II. who did him the honour to make him his Hiſtoriographer. He died very old at Prague in 1604. His moſt conſiderable Works are, Orationes ad Chriſtianos, &c. Symbola Divina & Humana, Pontificum, Imperatorum, Regum cum Iconibus. Hiſtoria Gothorum. Hiſtoria Rerum in Suecia Geſtarum. De Monarchia. De Fortuna. De Salute Rei-Publicæ. De Juſto, ſive De Legibus, &c. Thuan. Hiſt. Valerius Andreas Bibl. Belg.

TYRE, now called Sur, a Town of Phœnicia, in Latin Tyrus. Its Antiquity and frequent Changes of Fortune have rendred it very famous. Some ſay, Agenor built it, and that Phenix and Cadmus Reign'd after him: But Joſephus is not of this mind, for he thinks the Town of Tyre was built 240 Years before the Temple of Solomon, that is, about the Year of the World 2783. Its eldeſt King within our Knowledge is Abibalus, Hiram's Father, and Friend to David and Solomon. They who pretend this Town is more ancient, think the Proof is eaſie by the 14th Chapter of Joſhua and 23d of Iſaiah. This is certain, it has kept not only the Neighbouring Seas, but alſo all the others where its Arms have reached, under its Dominion; and if we may credit Report, the Tyrians were the firſt Inventers of Letters. Alexander the Great deſtroyed it when he made himſelf Maſter thereof, after ſeven Months Siege. It was afterwards Repaired, and the Emperor Adrian made it Metropolitan of Phœnicia, in favour of Paulus Reteur, Native of Tyre. It was an Archbiſhop's See under the Patriarch of Antioch, and afterwards under him of Jeruſalem; this was after the Chriſtians had Conquer'd the Holy Land. Now it's but a mean Borough under the Dominion of the Turks. This is allowed to be one of the moſt ancient and celebrated Cities of Paleſtine, ſuppoſed to be older than the coming of the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt; but certainly at the lateſt built A. M. 1793, 240 Years before Solomon's Temple. It flouriſhed, and had the Trade of the whole Mediterranean Sea, and ſettled Colonies on all its Coaſts as far as the Weſtern Ocean; and among the reſt Founded Carthage. Nebuchadnezzar took and burnt it A. M. 3371. Alexander the Great took and ruin'd it the ſecond time A. M. 3618. In the latter Ages it was often taken from the Chriſtians by the Saracens. In 335 a Council aſſembled here by the Order of Conſtantine the Great, in which the Arian Biſhops being the majority, Athanaſius was accus'd of a great many Crimes; and notwithſtanding, in his Defence, he detected the Injuſtice of his Enemies, and purg'd himſelf ſufficiently; he was Condemn'd, Depriv'd of his Biſhoprick, and Baniſh'd from that City. In 448 Ibas Biſhop of Edeſſa, accuſed of Neſtorianiſm, was acquitted by another Council at Tyre. Guliel. Tyreus who wrote a Book De Bello Sacro, was Biſhop of this City. Joſephus, lib. 3. Antiq. Euſeb. in Chron. Quint. Curt. lib. 4. Strabo, lib. 17. Socrates, &c.

TYRN, Dyrn, or Tyrnaw, a Town of Upper Hungary, upon a River of the ſame Name in the County of Tranſchin: The Archbiſhops of Strigonia make it their Reſidence ſince Strigonia was taken by the Turks. In 1414 twelve Jews and two Women exerciſed an unheard-of Cruelty upon a Chriſtian Child in this Town; for having entic'd him into their Houſe, they opened his Veins, and receiving the Blood, drank ſome, and laid the reſt up for other Uſes; then cut the Body in pieces, and buried it in a Cellar: Yet notwithſtanding this Precaution, their Wickedneſs was diſcovered; for the Officers of Juſtice making a ſtrict ſearch in the Street of the Jews where the Child was laſt ſeen, found ſome drops of Blood in ſeveral Parts of the Houſe, and thereupon ſeized all that liv'd in it, who being convicted of the Crime, were condemned to be burnt alive. When they were put to the Torture, they were ask'd, What put them upon ſuch a horrible Cruelty? They anſwered, It was becauſe they were taught by their Anceſtors, That the Blood of a Chriſtian was a powerful Remedy to ſtop the Blood in Circumciſion; ſecondly, becauſe it was a Philtre which created Love in them that eat Meat ſteep'd in it; thirdly, that it did ſtop the overflowing of the Hemmorrhoids; fourthly, that it was to obſerve their ancient Cuſtom of offering the Blood of a Chriſtian to God yearly, adding, that the Inhabitants of that City were enjoined to perform their Sacrifice about that time. Bonſin. lib. 4.

TYRONE, Lat. Tyronenſis Comitatus, the County of Tir-Oen, or as the Iriſh call it of Thieroghain, in the Province of Ulſter in the Kingdom of Ireland, between the County of Antrim to the Eaſt, Londonderry to the North and Weſt, and Fermanach and Armagh to the South. There is no Town or City of any Note in this County, which heretofore extended farther to the Weſt than now it doth, a part of it being taken into the County of Londonderry.

TYRTEUS, a Poet, and excellent Player upon the Lute, Native of Athens, or of Miletum according to others, was choſen, by Advice of the Oracle, to be Chief of the Lacedemonians in their War againſt the Meſſenians. This Choice was very happy, for this Poet animated the Soldiers ſo with his Verſes and Tunes, that the Lacedemonians won the Day. Plato de Legibus. Plutarch. Juſtin. &c.

TYRWHIT (Sir John) of Stamfield in Lincolnſhire, Barr. Son of Philip Tyrwhit, Eſq; by Penelope his Wife, Daughter to Sir Eraſmus de la Fountain of Kirby-Bellers in the ſame County. The Tirwhits are conſiderably ancient, as appears by their being High Sheriffs of Lincolnſhire in 22 of Edward IV. and of Yorkſhire in 14 of Henry VI. Their Arms are, Gules, Three Pewits, Or. Fuller's Worthies.

TZERCLAS, Count of Tilly, General of the Troops of the Empire, Bavaria, and the Catholick Union or League; after he had ſignaliz'd himſelf in Hungary againſt the Turks, he was made Commander of the Troops of Bavaria under Duke Maximilian, and in 1620 diſtinguiſhed himſelf at the Battel of Prague: Afterwards he took Elbogen, defeated Count Mansfeld, one of the chief of the Proteſtant Generals, and forced him out of the Upper Palatinate: And in 1622 having defeated the Marqueſs of Baden at Wimphen, he routed Mansfeld's Army near Armſtad, and beat him quite out of Germany. Before this, he aſſiſted the Arch-Duke Leopold at the taking of Breda; and afterwards took Heidelberg, Capital of the Palatinate of the Rhine. He was honoured with the Title of Count at the Diet of Ratisbonne, in 1623, and afterwards defeated the Army of the Duke of Halberſtad at Statlo, killing 2000 upon the Place, and making 4 or 5000 Priſoners, amongſt whom was the Duke of Weimar, the Duke of Altembourg, with ſeveral other Princes, and above 300 Colonels and Captains, and made himſelf Maſter of all their Baggage; all this with the loſs of 200 Kill'd and 100 Wounded. He gained another glorious Victory a little after, and then took Munden and ſeveral other Places, obliging the Landgrave of Heſſe to perform his Promiſe to the Empire. He defeated the Danes at Lutter in the Dutchy of Brunſwick in 1626, and made himſelf Maſter of 22 Pieces of their Canon, 80 Colours, and of all their Baggage in 1627. Having paſſed the Elbe, he took ſeveral Places, but was Wounded before Pinneberg; and in 1629 went to Lubec, as Plenipotentiary, to conclude a Peace with Denmark. In 1630 he was made chief General of the Army in Walſtein's Place; then having ſuccour'd Francfort upon Oder, againſt the Swedes, he took Brandenburg by Storm, then Magdebourg, which was Plunder'd by his Soldiers, and almoſt burned to the ground; and having ſtruck Terror over all Thuringia, took Leipſic in 1631, but was defeated three Days after by the King of Sweden; yet he rallied his Troops, took ſome Towns of Heſſe, and beat Horn chief of the Proteſtant Party, but was afterwards mortally wounded, defending the Paſſage of the Lech, and died at Ingolſtad in 1632. He made great Gifts at his Death to our Ladies Church of Ottingen, and left 60000 Crowns to ſome old Regiments that were under his Command. *Julius Bellus. Maurea Auſtriaca. Petrus Lotichius. V.

V. THIS Letter is a Conſonant, as in Naviſa, Gaviſus: In ancient Lawyers b and v are taken for one another; and the Gaſcoins to this day, pronounce vivere bibere and bibere vivere; which made Scaliger joak upon them, ſaying, Felices Populi quibus vivere eſt bibere.

VABRES upon the Dourdan, a Town of France in Rovergue, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Abi. It's called Vabra, Vabrincum, Caſtrum Vabrenſe and Vabrium. It was a famous Abby of St. Bennet's Order, changed by Pope John XXII. into a Cathedral Church in 1317. The Prelates have the Title of Biſhops and Counts of Vabres.

VACCIA, Wacca, a City in the Upper Hungary, ſeated between Gran and Peſt upon the Danube, which is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Gran. The Hungarians call it Waizen. The Germans took this Place from the Turks in 1596. Bethlem Gabor put it again into their Hands by a Treaty in 1622, and it was retaken in 1686 by the Germans in their March to Buda.

VACUNA, the Labourer's Goddeſs, which they invoked as propitious to thoſe that ſought their Quiet. They celebrated her Feaſts in Winter, that they might reſt after their Harveſt.

VADIANUS (Joachim) born at St. Gall in Switzerland, was an eminent Doctor of Phyſick, and a great Traveller; and upon his return Home, was made a Senator, and ſeveral times Conſul. He was, beſides his own Profeſſion, a Learned Mathematician, Geographer, Philoſopher, Poet, and Divine. Joſeph Scaliger counted him one of the beſt Schollars of his time in Germany; but Voſſius the Younger ſpeaking of Vadianus's Commentaries upon Mela, cenſures them as being unpoliſh'd; his Words are, Rus & ſtivam Olent. He wrote ſeveral Books; the moſt conſiderable of thoſe which are Printed, are, Commentaria in Libros Pomponii Melæ de ſitu Orbis. Epitome Aſiæ, Affricæ, & Europæ. Scholia in ſecundum C. Plinii Librum, Naturalis Hiſtoriæ, &c. Thuan. Hiſt. Melchior Adam. Joſ. Scaliger. Vadianus died in 1551.

VAFERINE, a River that runs from the Valley of Cheſiris in Bugey, under Pont des Oules below Chatillon of Michaille, and at the foot of the Mountain of Credo, then under the Bridge of Bellegarde, and joins the Rhine on this ſide Pont Leucey. It parts Savoy from the Country of Michaille in Bugey. The Pont des Oules is called thus, becauſe the River Vaferine working it ſelf a way through the Rocks, has formed many of them into the ſhape of Pots, called in Latin Ollæ. Guichenon. Hiſt. de Breſſe.

VAG, Lat. Vagus, a River of Upper Hungary, which has its Source in the Carpathian Hills in the Borders of Poland, and running North-Weſt, watereth Trenſchin, Freiſtadel, Leopolſiadt, Schinta, and Scheliz, between Comora and Presburgh; and falls from the North into the Danube. Whilſt Newheuſel was in the Hands of the Turks this was the Boundary on that ſide between the two Empires.

VAGITANT, was a certain God whom the Pagans believed to preſide over the firſt Words which Children pronounced. The Name was deriv'd from his Office; for Vagitus ſignifies a Child's Crying: This God had Altars erected for him at Rome. Feſtus.

VAISON upon Louveze, a Town of the County of Venaiſſin in Provence, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Avignon, belongs to the Pope, and is the Vaſio Vocontiorum, that Ptolomy, Pliny, Pomponius Mela, and other ancient Authors ſpeak of. It was formerly far more conſiderable than now, being often deſtroyed by the Goths, Vandals, and Saracens, but was rebuilt ſince upon the ſide of a Hill. Its ancient Situation being in a Plain, where there is ſtill our Ladies Church that was the ancient Cathedral; that in the Town has a Chapter with four Dignities, and the Canons are become Seculars, but were formerly of St. Auguſtin's Order. Ptol. Plin. Pomponius Mela. St. Marthe.

VAL DES ECOLIERS, an Abby in the Dioceſe of Langres, Head of the Congregation of Canon Regulars under St. Auguſtin's Rule. William Richards, with ſome other Doctors of Paris, retired into this Solitude with the Biſhop's leave, where they were ſoon followed by a great number of the Scholars of the ſame Univerſity, which gave the Place the Name of Val des Ecoliers or Scholars Valley. In the mean time their Eſtabliſhment encreaſed, ſo that in leſs than 20 Years they had 16 Houſes. St. Lewis founded that of St. Catherine at Paris, whilſt others were founded in France and the Low Countries. Clement Cornuot, Prior General of this Congregation, obtained the Title of Abbot of Paul III. for him and his Succeſſors; and afterwards in 1653, this Order was united to the Congregation of Canon Regulars of St. Genevieve in France. Alberic in Chron. S. Marthe.

VAL DE GRACE, formerly called Valprofond, an Abby founded in the Pariſh of Bievre le Chapel, three Leagues from Paris, thence removed to the Suburb of St. James in that City. The ancient Abby was founded in the ninth Age, and continued in its Splendor until 1300, or thereabouts; but then falling into Diſorder, and continuing to decline, Lewis XIII. named an Abbeſs there in 1618, to re-eſtabliſh a regular Obſervance according to St. Bennet's Rule; and to facilitate the Reform, Queen Ann of Auſtria removed them to Paris in 1621, buying the Hotel or Palace of Little Bourbon for their Uſe. Some Years after this, the Nuns began to build a Monaſtery, where the Queen laid the firſt Stone in 1624; but the King dying then, ſhe being left Regent, reſolv'd to build a ſtately Church: The Foundations were laid open the 21ſt of February 1645, and Lewis XIV. then but ſeven Years old, laid the firſt Stone: It was not fully finiſhed until 1665, nor were 20 Years too many to be employed in ſo accompliſh'd a Work, whether the Structure, the Figures, the Marble Pillars, Reliefs, curious Paintings, or the Riches it contains, be conſidered. The chief Altar repreſents a Stable, environ'd as it were with twiſted Marble Pillars, in the middle whereof is the Child Jeſus in the Manger, between the Virgin and St. Joſeph: All the Ornaments of the Sculpture are of Marble, or Braſs gilt; the Paintings of the Dome admirable, and the fineſt Piece in France, done by the famous Mignard, call'd the Roman. The Building was continued and finiſh'd by Gabriel le Duc, the King's Architect, and the chief Sculptures done by Michel Anguierre; in St. Anne's Chapel, on one ſide of the great Altar over againſt the Nuns Grate, the Queens, the Princes, and Princeſſes of the Royal Families Hearts are depoſited. Le Maire Paris ancien & nouveau.

VALACHIA or Valaquia, a Principality that depended formerly on Hungary, and whoſe Vaivode or Prince is now Tributary to the Grand Signior. The Turks call it Carabogdana, that is, The Land of Black Corn. The Plains would bear extraordinary Corn, were they well look'd after. There is hardly any Wood in the whole Province, which makes them burn Hemp and dried Cow-dung: Their Sand in Rivers is mix'd with ſeveral Grains of Gold, and they have good Mines in their Mountains, had they People to work in them; the frequent Incurſions the Turks make, obliging them that began it to abandon the Deſign. Valachia is divided into thirteen Counties, promiſcuouſly inhabited by Saxons, Hungarians and Natives; the Vaivode has 10000 Crowns by his Tithes of Honey and Wax, a great Commodity in that Country; and his Cuſtoms upon the Malmſie of Candia, carried through his Lands into Germany, brings him a great Sum too. He has but three conſiderable Towns, Zernowits where he lives, Briel and Treſlor. There is a certain Salt in Valachia, that is as hard as any Marble, and of a kind of Violet Colour, but when pounded ſmall looks white. The People are Inconſtant and Wild; their Tongue inclines ſomewhat to the Latin, which makes ſome think, they are deſcended from the Romans. In the Ceremonies of their Religion, which is that of the Greeks, they make uſe of the Lingua Franca, uſed almoſt over all the Orient. The Vaivode generally pays the Port 70000 Ducats, but is ſometimes obliged to pay 100000 to maintain himſelf in his Principality. He can raiſe Ten thouſand Horſe and a thouſand Foot. Hiſtoire des Troubles de Hongrie, dans la Preface.

VALAIS or Walais, in Latin Valleſia, a County of Europe, Confederates of the Swiſſers ſince 1553, bordering upon a part of the Alps. The Germans call it Valliſſerlandt, and it was the Habitation of the ancient People of Gallia Narbonenſis called Seduni and Veragri. It lyes between Swiſſerland, Savoy and Milanois; the chief Town is Sion; the others Martinach, Saint Maurice, &c. The Country is Fruitful enough conſidering its Situation; has Mineral Waters, ſeveral ſorts of Wild Beaſts, and ſome Mines. Cluverius, &c.

VALASCA, a famous Princeſs of Bohemia, that conſpir'd with the other generous Women of that Country to baniſh the Men, and form a new Republick of Amazons, that ſubſiſted ſeveral Years: The young Men Warr'd againſt them, and they defended themſelves with much Courage and Conduct; yet this Heroine was at laſt ſurpriſed by a Stratagem, and lived to ſee the Fall of her Commonwealth. Æneas Sylvius. Hiſt. Bohem, &c.

VALCKEMBOURG, which the French call Fauguemont, is a little Town in the Dutchy of Limbourg in the Low-Countries, two Leagues from Maeſtricht; the King of France took it in 1676, and in 1679 reſtor'd it to the Spaniards by the Treaty of Nimeguen.

VALCKEMBOURG, a little Borough a League from Leyden in Holland, has the Title of a County, and is conſiderable for a great Horſe-Fair kept there every Year.

VALDRADE, Siſter of Gontier, Archbiſhop of Cologne, and Niece to Thiedgaud Archbiſhop of Treves; by the Favour of theſe Prelates, and her own Beauty, ſhe gain'd Lotharius, King of Lorrain, Son to Lotharius I. Emperor, who married her after he had turned Thietbert Duke Hubert's Daughter away. Nicholas I. having aſſembled a Council at St. John of Lateran, excommunicated all thoſe that had aſſiſted at this laſt Marriage, and forced Lotharius to put away his ſecond, and retake his firſt Wife, which he did, but abuſed her, and then paſſed into Italy, and perſuaded Adrian II. Nicholas's Succeſſor, that there was a very good Underſtanding between him and Thietbert, and that he had quite forſaken Valdrade: This he confirm'd with an Oath, and thereupon was received into the Communion of the Church, but was ſoon after puniſhed for his Perjury by a ſudden Death. Valdrade was Mother of Hugo the Baſtard, that called the Normans into France, had his Eyes put out by Charles the Groſs, and was then cloiſter'd in the Monaſtery of St. Gal, in 885. Fiſen Hiſt. de Liege.

VALENCE or VALENCIA, a Town and Kingdom of Spain, between Catalonia, the Mediterranean, New Caſtille, Arragon and Meurcia. It was the Country of the ancient Edetani and Conteſtani, and one of the beſt Parts of Spain along the Mediterranean Sea, with good Ports and conſiderable Towns, whereof Valence, that gives it the Name, is Capital; the other are Segrove, Orighuella, Xativa, Elche, Alicant, &c. The Country is well Water'd with fine Rivers, which render it extraordinary Fertile in Fruit and Grain. There is alſo great quantity of Silks and Salt made in it. Valence, in Latin Valentia Conteſtinorum, is upon the River of Guadalaviar, half a League from the Sea, with a Biſhoprick and Univerſity, the Reſidence of the Vice-roy, and of moſt of the Gentry of the Country. It's a place of conſiderable Commerce, and one of the richeſt of Spain; it is round in Form, and encompaſſed with Walls, but no Ditch. The Town-Houſe, the Palace of Ciuta, the Vice-Roy's, St. Jerom's Monaſtery, the Cathedral, and ſeveral Colleges, deſerve to be ſeen. It has five Bridges upon the River Guadalaviar, Pope Alexander VI. founded an Archbiſhoprick in it in 1492. The Kingdom of Valence was eſtabliſh'd by the Moors: The Famous Ruis or Rodrigues was call'd Le Cid, and recover'd the Town from them about the end of the 11th Century; they retook it ſometime after, but were diſpoſſeſſed again by James I. King of Arragon, about 1239, who Peopled this and the reſt of the Country with ſeveral Chriſtian Families. The Kingdom of Valencia is the moſt Fruitful and moſt Pleaſant and Temperate of all Spain, much like that of Naples; their Silk and Wool are the beſt in the World; their Sheep were firſt brought thither from Coltſwold in England, in 1465, by the imprudent Courteſie of Edward IV. In ſhort, the Plenty, Delicacies and Pleaſantneſs of this Kingdom, has effeminated its Inhabitants, and made them leſs able to defend it. Philip II. baniſh'd 22000 Mooriſh Families out of this Kingdom. Merula, Mariana.

VALENCE upon the Rhone, a Town of France in Dauphine, Capital of a Country called Valentinois, with an Univerſity and Biſhoprick Suffragant of Vienne. The Latins call it Valentia, Julia Valentia and Segalaunorum Urbs. It's very ancient, being firſt a Roman Colony; now Valence is divided into the Town and Borough, is large and well built, with a Citadel, a Cathedral, a Collegiate Church, the Abby of St. Ruf, Head of the Order, and a great number of Religious Houſes, an Univerſity, Preſidial and Election. It ſuffered much during the laſt Civil Wars. The Valentinois that firſt had the Title of County, and afterwards of a Dutchy, is divided into Upper and Lower, the firſt from Iſere to the Droume, along the Rhone; and the Lower from the Droume to the County of Venaiſſin. St. Marcellin. Romans, Montelimar, &c. are its Towns, beſides Valence the Capital ſpoken of before. After the Death of Count Lewis, this County fell to the Crown of France, and was united to Dauphine by Lewis XI. Lewis XII. made it a Dutchy, and gave it to Cæſar Borgia, Son to Pope Alexander VI.

VALENCE, which thoſe of the Country call Valenza, a Town of Italy in the Milanois, near the Po, was taken by the French in 1657, and ſurrendred by the Pyrenean Treaty. After the Duke of Savoy had made a ſeparate Peace with France in 1696, he in conjunction with the French Troops laid Siege to it; during which, the Neutrality for Italy was agreed on, and ſo the Siege raiſed.

VALENCE, a Town of the Kingdom of Portugal upon Minho, often attack'd by the Spaniards during the laſt Wars, but to no purpoſe.

VALENCE of Alcantara, a ſtrong Town of Spain in Eſtremadure upon the Savar: The Portugueſe made themſelves Maſters of it about the middle of the ſeventeenth Age, but reſtor'd it again by the Peace of Lisbon in 1668.

VALENCIENNES upon the Sheld, a Town of the Low-Countries in Hainault that is very ancient and pleaſant: It's thought our Ladies Church there was built by King Pepin. There are ſeveral other conſiderable enough, which with the Colleges and Town-houſe deſerve to be ſeen by Strangers. The Inhabitants are noted for Commerce and Riches. The Latin Name of this Town is Valentianæ or Valentincanæ. It was beſieged in 1656 by the French, under the Command of Turenne and la Ferte Senneterre; but Don John of Auſtria, who commanded in the Spaniſh Netherlands, back'd by the Valour of the Prince of Conde, raiſed the Siege, and took Mareſchal de la Ferte Priſoner. Lewis XIV. having laid Siege to it in 1677, carried it by Aſſault; and to ſave it from Plunder, forc'd the Inhabitants to be at the charge of building a Citadel.

VALENS (Flavius) Emperor, Son of a Rope-maker, named Gratian, born near Cibale in Pannonia. His Brother Valentinian aſſociated him to the Empire in 364, and gave him the Government of the Eaſt, but Procopius's Rebellion frightned him ſo much, that he had thoughts of quitting the Empire. He had better Succeſs the Year after; for he defeated his Enemy, and ſent his Head to Valentinian; the Goths that aſſiſted Procopius were ſtill formidable; ſo Valens reſolving to march againſt them, made great Preparations; was Baptized by Eudoxius of Conſtantinople, an Arian, who obliged him by Oath to ſupport his Errors; his Wife alſo being of that Sect, contributed toward it; ſo that he had no ſooner made Peace with the King of the Goths, but he iſſued an Edict to baniſh all Catholick Prelates, which was executed, and went in Perſon to Ceſarea of Cappadocia to baniſh St. Baſil; as alſo to Antioch, from which laſt he baniſhed Meletius to Edeſſa, perſecuting the Orthodox whereever he went, but was more commendable in puniſhing ſome Philoſophers, who pretended that his Succeſſor would be a Man whoſe Name begun by theſe Letters Theod, and expected that a Perſon of great Quality, called Theodore a Pagan, was called to the Empire: Some aſſure he was worthy of it, and perhaps upon this Prediction had thoughts of it; but Valens having notice thereof, buried him alive, cut off the Prophets Heads, and made all thoſe away whoſe Names begun with Theod. In the mean time he permitted the Goths to ſettle in Thrace, who being followed by ſeveral Barbarians, when that Province became too little for their Support, they encroach'd upon their Neighbours. Lupicinus, General of the Roman Army, endeavouring to beat them back, was worſted; and Valens, though he came in Perſon, could not effect it, but thereupon withdrew to Conſtantinople; the Goths purſuing their Incurſions to the very Suburbs of that City, which made the People Murmur openly, and accuſe him of Negligence and want of Courage, which put him upon taking the Field a ſecond time. The Goths offer'd to come to a Peace, which being refuſed, a Battel was fought near Adrianople, where the Emperor's Army was defeated, and he himſelf wounded with an Arrow in the Retreat, which made ſome of his Men put him into a Cabin upon the Road; the Enemy not knowing he was there, ſet Fire to it, and burn'd him with it, in the fiftieth Year of his Age, and 378 of our Redemption. Ammian. Marcellin. Rufin. Socrat. Sozom.

VALENS (Publius Valerius) Proconſul of Achaia, was proclaim'd Emperor by his Legions in Gallian's time, and ſoon after defeated Lucius Calpurnius Piſo, who was ſent againſt him; at laſt he was Maſſacred by his own Soldiers. Trebellius Pollio.

VALENTIA (Gregory de) a Spaniſh Jeſuit, counted one of the moſt celebrated Divines of his Order. He publiſh'd a Folio of Controverſie at Lions in 1591, and two more afterwards at Ingolſtadt. He wrote likewiſe four Volumes of Commentaries upon Thomas Aquinas's Sums. Pope Clement VIII. had a great value for him, and invited him to Rome, but immoderate Study threw him into an ill Habit of Body, and brought him to his end in 1603. The Hiſtory of the Congregation, De Auxiliis, written by a Janſeniſt, affirms, That Valentia, being before this Congregation, fell down in a Swoon, upon his being diſcover'd to have falſify'd a Teſtimony from St. *Auguſtin. VALENTINE (Pope) a Roman by Nation, ſucceeded Eugenius II. but died forty days after his Election in 824. Baronius.

VALENTINUS an Hereſiarch, chief of the Valentinians, ſpread his Errors in the eleventh Age: He was an Egyptian, Learned, Eloquent, and made Profeſſion of Plato's Philoſophy. It's reported, that his Diſſatisfaction that another was preferred before him to a Biſhoprick, made him quit his Faith, and collect his Dreams of certain Gods to the number of Thirty, which he call'd Æones, that is, Ages, out of the Poet Heſiod's Fables: He would have Fifteen of the Thirty to be Male, and the other Fifteen Female; and ſaid, our Saviour ſprung like another Pandora out of their Correſpondence: And added, that he paſſed with a Body brought out of Heaven through the Virgin, as a Conduit or Pipe, and that all Men would not riſe to Life again. His Diſciples followed alſo the Errors of the Gnoſticks, and took their Name. Valentine publiſh'd a Goſpel and Pſalms: He came to Rome, and abjur'd his Errors, but it was but for a ſhort time; for he relaps'd and maintain'd them with more Head-ſtrongneſs than before. St. Irenæus and Tertullian both writ againſt him. Theodoret. S. Epiphan. Hær. 31. Euſeb. Philaſtrius, &c.

VALENTINIAN I. of this Name, was born in Pannonia near Cibale; Gratian, a Rope-maker by Trade, was his Father; but his Valour and good Qualities raiſed him to the Throne: After Jovian's Death in 364, he left his Brother Valens the Government of the Eaſt, and kept that of the Weſt himſelf: He made a ſucceſsful War againſt the Germans, and ſubdued ſeveral Barbarians that diſturb'd the Quiet of the Empire: All Authors acknowledge, he had great Parts; but add, his Anger was almoſt a Madneſs, and ſtain'd theſe glorious Advantages. It's reported, that the Quadi having ſent to him for Peace, he was much ſurpriſed at the Meanneſs of their Embaſſador's Equipage, and awkard Mien; but when he underſtood they were the nobleſt and handſomeſt Men of their Nation, he cry'd, The Romans Condition was very Unhappy, to be troubled with the Rebellions of ſuch People ſo far unworthy of them. With that he he fell into ſuch a Rage, that the Violence of his Paſſion broke an Artery in his Body of which he ſoon died. This hapned in 375, after eleven Years and ſome Months Reign. He left Gratian by his firſt Wife Severa, and of his ſecond he had Valentinian II. and three Daughters, Galla Theodoſius's Wife, Grata and Juſta that both died ſingle. Ammian. Marcellinus, Proſper, Oroſius.

VALENTINIAN II. Son of the Firſt, was ſaluted Emperor in the Town of Anicium in Pannonia; in 375, Gratian his eldeſt Brother, that was before his Father's Death declar'd Auguſtus, appeared firſt of all againſt his Proceedings, and term'd them raſh, but afterwards conſented. Valentinian was then but ten Years old; after Gratian's Death he ſent St. Ambroſe to ſtop the Uſurper Maximus; but this not ſucceeding, he retired with his Mother to Theſſalonica, to implore Theodoſius the Great's Aſſiſtance; who when he had defeated the Tyrant, ſettled Italy, Gaul, Spain and England upon Valentinian, and made him ſenſible withal that he was to blame, for blindly following his Mother's Opinion, that was an Arian. After which time St. Ambroſe was his Adviſer. One Arbogaſtus a French Man, gave ſuch great Proofs of his Courage, that he gain'd the Emperor's Love ſo far, that he did nothing without his Approbation; he engaged him in a War againſt the French; but when he found he intended to follow other Meaſures, he ſtrangled Valentinian at Vienne in Dauphine. He was then but a Catecumen, and expected St. Ambroſe to be Baptized by him. This hapned in 392. Marcellin. Socrates, Rufin.

VALENTINIAN III. Son of Conſtance and Placidia, at ſeven Years of Age, received the Purple ſent him by Theodoſius the Younger, after the Defeat of the Tyrant John, and was declar'd Emperor over all Italy in 427. His Army was afterwards defeated by the Goths and Gauls; and Attila coming into Italy, frightned him ſtrangely, and made him make uſe of Pope Leo to ſtop his Proceedings; which he did for a time, whilſt the Emperor became enamour'd of a Roman Lady, Wife to Maximus, without being ever able to obtain the leaſt Favour; but being at Dice with her Husband, and winning all his Money, and his Ring, he ſent the Ring as a Token from her Husband to have her come to the Palace, where he forced her: The Lady made Complaint to her Husband, who reſolving Revenge, contrived his buſineſs ſo well, that the Emperor by his Perſuaſions, made Aetius away, the only Man that could oppoſe his Enemies Deſigns, and then got him Murther'd in the Campus Martius in 455, the Thirty ſixth Year of his Age. Caſſiodorus, Marcellin. Evagr. Procop.

VALERIA, a Roman Lady, Siſter of Publicola, was much honoured and beloved at Rome, becauſe ſhe ſaved it from the Arms of Marcius Coriolanus her Son; for being in the Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, when Marcius, General of the Volſci, was preparing to deſtroy the Town he then laid Siege to, ſhe went out to meet him, followed by Volumnia, Vergilia, and other Ladies, and by her Intreaties and Tears, diſſuaded him from the Enterpriſe. Plutarch.

VALERIAN, was ſaluted Emperor by the Roman Legions after Gallus's Death; in 244 he aſſociated his Son Gallienus, and both reign'd together ſix or ſeven Years: He pretended great Love for the Chriſtians in the beginning of his Reign, and his Palace was always full of them, until being deluded by an Egyptian that profeſſed Magick, he committed all manner of Impieties, making no Difficulty to offer Human Victims to Devils, and cut up Children to know things to come: Then he raiſed a crueller Perſecution againſt the Church than it had ever ſuffered before; but God puniſhed theſe Crimes, in ſuffering Macrinus, one of his Captains, to betray him to Sapor King of Perſia, who kept him Priſoner; and to add to his Servitude, made uſe of his Back to get upon his Horſe, and at laſt got him flead alive. This hapned in 260. Aurelius Victor, Eutropius, Euſebius, Oroſius.

VALERIO (Vincentino) a famous Ingraver that imitated the Ancients; he wrought a Cryſtal Cabinet for Pope Clement VII.

with the whole Hiſtory of Chriſt's Paſſion engraven on it; when this Pope came into France, he preſented this to the King, who in Return gave him a Ring of great Value, and a very rich Suit of Arras: Beſides this, Vincentio repreſented ſeveral Hiſtories upon Cryſtal for the ſame Pope, who made Preſents of them to other Princes; engraved the twelve Emperors, and made ſo many Medals and other Works, that it's ſtrange one Man could ever compaſs them, conſidering the Difficulty and Tediouſneſs of the Work. He died in 1546, leaving an only Daughter that alſo engraved extraordinary well. Felibien. Entretiens ſur vies des Peintres.

VALERIUS (Cato) tho' manumis'd by Burſinus, was born Free, as may be ſeen in his Piece, intituled Diræ, or Imprecations, but was deprived of his Patrimony in the Wars of Sylla: He taught Grammar with Reputation, and was eſteemed the beſt Maſter of Rome for Poetry. He compoſed ſeveral Works that were much eſteemed by the Learned, eſpecially his Lydia and Diana, whereof the firſt was called the Delight of the Learned, the other The Glory of its Age. Suetonius ſays, This great Learning did not ſhelter him from the want that attends moſt Men of Parts, for he was forced to make over his Houſe at Tuſculum, to ſatisfie his Creditors. Sueton. de Illuſtr. Gram.

M. VALERIUS CORVINUS, or Corvus, was called by this Name, becauſe a Crow help'd him to overcome a Giant-like Gaul, who had challenged the Romans to fight. Aurel.Victor.

M. VALERIUS CORVINUS MESSALA, a Roman Citizen, famous for his Birth, Parts and Wit. Appian tells us, that the Triumvir dreaded him when but very Young, and that he was afterwards Conſul with Auguſtus, and had the conſiderableſt Imployments of the Commonwealth. Both Pliny and Seneca report of this Corvinus, That his Memory was ſo entirely gone two Years before he died, That he forgot his own Name. Plin. lib. 7. cap. 24. Seneca, Sueton.

VALERIUS CYPRIANUS, a Proteſtant Author, who publiſh'd a Spaniſh Verſion of the Old and New Teſtament from the Originals. The Old Teſtament part on't, is commonly made uſe of by the Portugueſe-Jews at Amſterdam. Father Simon obſerves, That this Valerius may be ſaid rather to have publiſh'd a Second Edition of Caſſiodorus de Reina's Bible, than to have made a new Tranſlation of his own, and that he has left Reina's Faults uncorrected. Father Simon Hiſt. Crit. Old Teſt.

C. VALERIUS FLACCUS, a Latin Poet of Sezzo or Setia, a Town of Campagnia di Roma, lived in the Emperor Domitian's time, and was much beloved by Martial; he compoſed a Poem of the Argonautes in Eight Books. Quintilian complains of the misfortune of their being left imperfect.

VALERIUS MAXIMUS was of Rome, thought to be of the Family of the Valerians by the Father's, and of the Fabians by the Mother's ſide. The firſt part of his Life was ſpent in the Study of the Belles Lettres; and afterwards he followed Sextus Pompeius to the War: At his Return, he reſolved to write the Actions and moſt remarkable Sayings of the Romans and other great Men, which he executed in the Work which we have of his in Nine Books, dedicated to the Emperor Tiberius; other Works are attributed to him, but it's not known when he died: Several Learned Men believe, that Valerius Maximus is not properly the Author of the Work that has paſſed ſo long under his Name. It's certain that in Tiberius's time, that famous Roman collected in ſeveral Books, the Examples and memorable Actions both of the Greeks and Romans; but as this Work was very large, though otherwiſe written with all the Exactneſs of that Age, yet it was neglected, and would have been loſt altogether as well as the Hiſtories of Trogus, and ſeveral Decads of Titus Livius, if Nepotian of Africk had not taken the Pains to abridge them. P. Cantel. in Commentar. Voſſius, lib. 10. de Hiſt. Lat.

P. VALERIUS PUBLICOLA, a Roman Conſul, who with Brutus triumph'd over the Veji and the Volſci; he was called Publicola, becauſe he was altogether Popular; for being ſuſpected of deſigning upon the Publick Liberty, becauſe he was building an Houſe upon one of the Mountains in form of a Fortreſs, he preſently raſed it down, and built it in the Plain. He was four times Conſul, yet died ſo poor, that People were forced to beg Money for his Burial. Aurelius Victor. de vir. Illuſt. Livy. Florus.

VALESIUS, an Arabian Hereſiarch, who has given his Name to the Hereticks called Valeſians. They made all their Followers Eunuchs, either by force or fair means, and often ſerved other People ſo too, when they could light of them handſomly; they alſo maintain'd other Errors, rejecting the Law and Prophets. Epiphanius Hær. 58. St. Auſtin Hær. 37.

VALETTE, a Town of the Iſle of Maltha, Reſidence of the great Maſter of St. John of Jeruſalem. See Maltha.

VALETTE (Pariſot John of) the 48th great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem; the Convent reſiding at Maltha during his Reign, the Knights Gallies took above fifty Turkiſh Ships in leſs than five Years time, which enraged Soliman II. ſo, that he reſolved to lay Siege to Maltha, and drive the Knights thence as he did before out of Rhodes in 1522; for that end he made Muſtapha Baſſa General of the Land, and Piali Baſſa Commander of the Sea Forces, which ſet out from Conſtantinople the 4th of April 1565, and arrived at Navarin the 11th of May, where the Fleet conſiſted of 150 Gallies, nine great Men of War, nine Maones, and three Caramousſtats or Ships of Burthen; the 20th of May they built two Forts at the Mouth of the Port of Maltha, and put fourteen Pieces of Canon in them; then the Army moved to a place called Sancte Marguerite, where after hot Skirmiſhes the Turks were forced to retire to la Marte, where they encamped the 27th of May; the Baſſa battered the Fort of St. Elme, and after five Aſſaults took the Caſtle the 23d of June, but with the loſs of 4000 of his beſt Men, amongſt whom was the famous Pyrate Dragut. The 28th Muſtapha laid Siege to the Iſle of St. Michel or City of Sengle, and the next day raiſed his Batteries againſt the Borough, which the great Maſter had reinforced with 600 Men, who were the chief cauſe of the Preſervation of the Iſland. The Turks continued their Batteries, and gave a general Aſſault the 21ſt of Auguſt, gain'd the Walls, and planted ſeven Standards over the Gate de Bonne Enſeigne: But the great Maſter ſo encouraged the Knights with his Speech and Example, that they beat them off again with great Slaughter: Muſtapha made ſeveral other Efforts, until the 13th of September, that 49 Chriſtian Gallies arrived with Succor, and then he embarked with great Precipitation, and went off at night. The Siege was ſo terrible and bloody for the four Months it laſted, that moſt of the Fortifications were ruin'd, there being above 70000 Shot made againſt them. The Turks loſt 20000 Men, and of the Chriſtians there died of their Wounds and of Sickneſſes about 9000, ſo that the great Maſter had but 6000 againſt 80000 when the Turks went. He loſt no time, but ſeeing all deſtroy'd reſolv'd to build the City new, which was called Valette from his Name. The firſt Stone was laid with much Ceremony the 18th of March 1566, and leſt the Enemy ſhould trouble the Deſign with any new Enterpriſe, Pope Pius V. commanded they ſhould go on with the Work Holy-days and all. The great Maſter alſo repaired the Borough, which was ſince called the Victorious City, and fortified the Caſtle of the Iſle of Goze, omitting nothing to put all in a poſture of Defence: The ſame Pope ſent him an Expreſs, with an offer of a Cardinal's Hat, but he returned this Anſwer, That he did not look upon that Dignity to become the Profeſſion of Arms he had ſpent his Age in. To facilitate Payments, he made ſome Braſs Pieces, with the Arms of the Order and great Maſter on one ſide, and on the other the Mark of Valour, with theſe Words round it, Non Æs ſed Fides, and made all good again to Merchants and Workmen, paying the Value they paſſed for in Silver or Gold. He kept Eight thouſand Men continually at Work, until he died in 1586. Boſio Naberat, &c.

VALETTE (John Lewis de la) de Nogarett, Duke de Eſpernon, & de Villebois, Peer and Admiral of France, Governor of Provence aud Guyenne, Collonel General of the French Infantry, &c. was born in 1554. He made his firſt Campaigns under the Sieur de Caumont at the Siege of Rochel in 1573; ſometime after, he followed the Fortune of Henry King of Navarre, but continued not long in his Intereſt: And the War being declar'd againſt the Hugonots, he ſerv'd under the Duke de Alençon, and diſtinguiſh'd himſelf at the Siege and Taking of la Charite d'Iſſeire, and de Bouage, and became a great Favourite of King Henry III. who ſent him to the Duke of Savoy to accommodate the Difference about Geneva, and made him Duke and Peer of France in 1582. In 1587, upon his going from Court to Angouleſme, he eſcap'd a dangerous Conſpiracy againſt his Perſon. Afterwards he took Gargeau, Eſtampes, Montereau, and Pontorſe, from the Leaguers, and was at St. Cloud when the barbarous Aſſaſſination of King Henry III. happen'd; upon which Accident, he quitted the Service of King Henry IV. contrary to the Advice of his Friends: Some time after he return'd to Court, and was in danger of his Life at Corbie, and the Siege of Pierre Fonſe. During the Diſturbances at Court, which happen'd after the Death of the Mareſchal d'Ancre, he aſſiſted Queen Mary de Medicis, in her going off from Blois, and was ſerviceable in the Reduction of Bearn, which had Revolted: He likewiſe defended the Fort of the Iſle of Rhee againſt the Engliſh, and died at Loches in 1642, being 88 Years of Age. See the Hiſtory of his Life, written by his Secretary Monſieur Girard.

VALIERE (le Chevalier de la) wrote a Book, call'd Pratique & Maximes de la Guerre, printed in 1667. He was very fit to write upon that Subject, having ran through the Principal Commands in the Army, and always ſhew'n great Conduct as well as Courage.

VALLA (Laurence) a Roman, a Canon of St. John of Lateran, was in great eſteem in the fifteenth Age, for his Works and Learning; he compoſed ſix Books of the Elegances of the Latin Tongue, three of the True and as many of the Falſe; a Book of the falſe Donation of Conſtantine, three of Ferdinand King of Arragon's Reign; and Tranſlated Herodotus and Thucydides out of Greek into Latin. The Learned look upon him as the chief Man that reſcued the Latin Tongue from the Barbarity it had contracted from the Goths, and brought it back to its former Beauty: Yet he was accuſed in the Inquiſition, of ſpreading Errors about the Myſtery of the Bleſſed Trinity and Free Will, and of ridiculing Nuns where-ever he was. This ſevere Tribunal condemned him upon the Accuſation, and he had accordingly been burn'd had not Alfonſus King of Naples, interceded for him; yet it's ſaid, he was whip'd round the Dominicans Cloiſter at Naples; at leaſt Poggius of Florentine, who writ ſharp Satyrs againſt him, reproaches him with all theſe Miſadventures. Laurentius Valla came back to Rome, where he died in 1495. the fiftieth Year of his Age. Paul. Jov. Eraſm. Voſſius.

VALLADOLID, a Town of Spain in New Caſtille, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Toledo. It's call'd in Latin Vallis Oletum, and by others Pintia, and is one of the fineſt Towns in Spain, and has been the Reſidence of ſeveral Kings. Philip IV. built a magnificent Palace, and embelliſh'd it with fine Gardens. There are conſiderable Churches, amongſt the reſt that of the Dominican Friars, who have alſo a College here. It is ſixteen Spaniſh Leagues from Burgos to the South-Weſt, and twenty from Salamanca to the North-Eaſt. This City was built by the Goths, A. C. 625. made a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Toledo in 1591. Chriſtopher Columbus, the firſt Diſcover of America, died here in 1506. Philip II. King of Spain, by the Perſuaſion of Mr. Parſons an Engliſh Jeſuit, erected a Seminary for Engliſh in this Town, in 1589.

VALLADOLIT, or Camayagua, a Town of America Septentrionalis in New Spain, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Mexico, ſince the Year 1558. It's in the Province of Honduras.

VALLEY of Jehoſaphat, to the Eaſt of Jeruſalem between the Town and Mountain of Olives, is about 2000 Paces in length from North to South, which is the length of that City, to which it ſerves as a Ditch, lying about 250 Paces lower than the Town, which of that ſide is built upon the Mountains of Moria and Sion. It's called of Jehoſaphat, becauſe a King of this Name had his Tomb built there; or according to others, becauſe it's the Place the Univerſal Judgment is to be kept in; for Jehoſaphat ſignifies the Lord's Judgment. It alſo is called the King's Valley in Holy Scripture, becauſe King Solomon had a very fine Garden at the foot of Mount Scandale, which is the third ſmall Hill of the Mountain of Olives, and it is called the Valley of Cedron, becauſe the little River Cedron runs through it. At the foot of the Mount of Viri Galilæi, which is a Hill of the Mountain of Olives towards the North, is our Ladies Tomb in a Church built by the Chriſtians. The Form is ſquare, and the top of this Building flat, the Door adorn'd with ſeveral ſmall Marble Pillars; thence fifty Steps downwards, about the middle of which are two Altars upon the two Tombs of St. Joachim and St. Anne, and at the left hand another Chapel with two Altars upon the Tombs of St. Joſeph and Simeon; theſe four Tombs are Marble; at the foot of theſe Stairs is another Altar that belongs to the Armenians, near the Church-door. This Church is built in form of a Croſs, being about forty Paces in length and about thirteen wide. Our Ladies Tomb, like that of our Saviour's, is in form of a little Chapel wrought in the Rock. There is an Altar cover'd with a Marble Table that lyes upon the place where the Body lay, and about twenty Lamps burning round it: Behind this, at the end of the Church towards the Eaſt, is the head Altar that belongs to the Greeks, with another leſſer one on the Goſpel-ſide, as they always have in their Churches. Over againſt the Sepulchre on the left-hand-ſide is the Jacobites Altar; and on the other ſide a Moſque for the Mahometans, that have a great reſpect for this Holy Place. At the other end of the Church, towards the Weſt, is the Abyſſins Altar; the whole Church receives no other Light but what it has by the Door and a Window in the Roof over the great Altar. People hold, that this Church was built in 326 by the Empreſs Helena. Godfrey of Bouillon, King of Jeruſalem, beſtow'd it richly endow'd, upon Monks which he ſettled there. Queen Meliſinda, Daughter to Baldwin II. Wife to Foulque and Baudovin the Third's Mother, all three Kings of Jeruſalem, was buried there in St. Joachim's Chapel. In this ſame Valley of Jehoſaphat, is the Garden of Olives, and ſome Remains of the Wall that environ'd it; and a little farther towards the South and the Bridge of Cedron, are four Tombs, Works well worth being ſeen; the firſt is that of Jehoſaphat King of Judah, who gave his Name to all this Valley, it's cut in a Rock in form of a little ſquare Room with a Portal. That of Abſalon is the next, wrought in a great Rock that is ſeparated from the Mountain, with a Roof of a Pyramidal Form. It's adorn'd on the outſide with twelve half Pillars which inviron it, and all full of Stones within, that the Paſſengers, as well Chriſtians as Turks, throw into it, to ſhew how much they deteſt that young Prince's Rebellion and Perfidiouſneſs againſt his Father David. Abſalon himſelf had this Place made, but his Body was not buried in it; for he being killed by Joab in the Foreſt of Ephraim, it was caſt into a Ditch and cover'd with Stones, as unworthy of Burial. Not far from thence is the Grotto of St. James, which was a Tomb, but is called thus, becauſe St. James the Leſs, firſt Biſhop of Jeruſalem, retired thither, when our Saviour was taken in the Olive Garden: A little way thence is the Prophet Zacharias's Tomb wrought in a Rock, with Pillars and Chapiters curiouſly done. Doubdan's Voyage de la terre Sainte.

VALLIA or Wallia, King of the Goths in Spain, ſucceeded Sigeric in 416. His Subjects were in hopes he would continue the War againſt the Romans, but he choſe rather to come to an Agreement with them; and offered his Aſſiſtance to drive the other Barbarians out of the Parts of Spain they had poſſeſſed themſelves of: Theſe were the Alani, the Vandals and Suevi, who ſettled there about the Year 400. So having received the Town of Toulouſe and Aquitania Secunda, from Conſtantius in Honorius's Name, he came to live in Gaul. Idace & Iſidore in Chron.

VALLONA, a large Town in Albania, recovered out of the hands of the Turks by the Forces of the Republick of Venice, Sept. 18. 1690. There were in it 130 Pieces of Canon.

VALOIS, a Dutchy in the Iſle of France that reaches as far as Picardy. It was formerly but a County, being an ordinary Appenage of the Children of France, from Charles of Valois, Brother to Philip the Fair, and Father to Philip of Valois, King of France. The chief Town is Creſpi.

VALOIS (Henry) Hiſtoriographer of France, was born at Paris in 1603, made great Progreſs in Learning, as may be ſeen by the ſeveral Works he publiſh'd, viz. A new Edition of Ammianus Marcellinus, with Notes: The Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory of Euſebius Biſhop of Ceſarea, tranſlated by him out of Latin, and enrich'd with Learned Commentaries, which he dedicated to the Clergy of France: The Hiſtory of Socrates and Sozomene, tranſlated into Latin, with Obſervations, which he preſented to the preſent King. The Hiſtory of Theodoret, and that of Evagrius Scholaſticus, done into Latin with Notes, which he dedicated to Colbert, firſt Miniſter of State. In all which Works, appears a great depth of Learning and Judgment. Andrian Valois.

VALOMBRE, an Abby in Tuſcany, Head of the Order, founded by John Gualbert under St. Bennet's Rule.

VALPON, a Town of Hungary, which a famous Lady, Peter Piren a Captain of Pannonia's Wife, defended three whole Months againſt all the Efforts of the Mahometans, no Officer either of Germany or Hungary coming to her Aſſiſtance. Hilarion de Coſte des femmes Illuſt.

VALTELINE, part of the ancient Rhetia, between the State of Venice, the Milanois, Tirol and the Griſons, to whom it belongs. It takes its Name from the Town of Teline, in Latin Telina Vallis or Volturena. It's the ancient Country of the Vennonetes at the foot of the Alps, and is divided into three Parts, Terzero di Sopra, Terzero di Mezzo, and Terzero di Sotto. It's Towns are Tirano, Sondrio, Morbendo and Bormio, which belong to the Griſons, as was mention'd, before the Spaniards uſurp'd them; but the French, at Pope Urban VIII's Solicitation, diſpoſſeſſed theſe, and gave it to their ancient Maſters.

VAN, anciently Arciſſa, a great Lake of Armenia or Turcomania, which is the Sea of Van or of Armenia, calling it Sea by reaſon of its ſalt Waters. It's between the Sea of Bacha and the Tigris, in the Aſian Turkey; People report that nothing ſinks in it, the heavieſt Bodies ſwimming a-top. It has near it a Town of the ſame Name that was formerly called Artemita, and is under the Turks, but moſt part of the Inhabitants are Chriſtians. Plinie. Baudrand.

VANCARA, a Kingdom in Africa, which has the beſt Mines of Gold in the World; it has Lamlenc on the Weſt, and is an Iſland made by the Niger 300 Miles long and 50 broad, which in Auguſt is overflow'd, and then the Inhabitants are forced to remove out of it, but return upon the falling of the River, and find much Gold. The principal Cities of it are Tirca, Ghanara, Maraſa and Reghebil. Nub. p. 11. by the Poſition this ſhould be Guangara.

VANDALES, ancient People of Germany, that lived along the Baltick Sea, but joining with the Alains and other Barbarians, in the fifth Age they quitted their Country, and ſpread themſelves in Gaul and Spain, but were not always Succeſsful; for King Godigeſile with 20000 of his Men, were killed by the Gauls in 405, and their whole Body had been quite deſtroy'd, had not the Alains come timely to their Aſſiſtance. After this they paſſed into Spain, and breaking their Promiſe with the Sueves, beat their King in 420, and in 422 defeated the Romans in the Betick Spain, which from that time has been called Vandalouſia or Andalouſia. Geiſeric their King, paſſed into Africk, where he eſtabliſhed the Kingdom of the Vandals. Count Boniface invited him thither, and was ſucceeded by Huneric, Gunthamond, Thraſimond, Herderic and Gilimer, in whoſe Reign they loſt it in 533. They were Arians, and the Zeal they ſhewed for their Sect, or rather their natural Cruelty, put them upon perſecuting the Orthodox. Idacius & Iſidore in Chron. Procop. de Bello Vand.

VANDER LINDEN (Johannes Antonides) Profeſſor of Phyſick at Leiden, was born at Enkhuiſen, in January 1609. He Practiſed in his Faculty, with great Reputation; and was no leſs Eminent in the Chair, which he held till his Death, which happen'd in 1664. He wrote a great many Books: As, Univerſæ Medicinæ Compendium, &c. Medulla Medicinæ partibus quatuor comprehenſa. Medicina Phyſio-logica, nova Curataq; Methodo optimis quibuſq; Auctoribus, contracta, & propriis Obſervationibus locupletata. Selecta Medica & ad ea Exercitationes Batavicæ. Diſſertatio de Lacte. Meletemata Medicinæ Hippocraticæ. De Scriptis Medicis Libri duo; quibus præmittitur Manuductio ad Medicinam. This laſt Book run through ſeveral Editions in the Author's Life time, having Additions made to every Impreſſion; and after his Death, one Merklinus a German, has enlarg'd it to a thick Quarto, and printed it under the Title of, Lindenius Renovatus.

VANDER PIED (Baldwin) born at Ghent, profeſs'd the Law in the Univerſity of Doway, and was very Eminent for his Practice and Writings. He died in 1604. His Works are: De

Fructibus. De Duobus Reis. De Emptione & Venditione. De Pignoribus & Hypothecis. Valer. Andreas Bibl. Belg.

VANDYCK (Anthony) a famous Painter, born at Antwerp in 1599, ſerved his firſt Apprenticeſhip under Henry Van Balen, until ſeeing the admirable Performances of Rubens, he devoted himſelf altogether to that Able Maſter, who made it his chief buſineſs to render him Perfect. His particular Inclination to draw from the Life, made him apply himſelf wholly that way. His Maſter adviſed him to go into Italy; at his Return he wrought a great many fine Pieces in Flanders and Holland, whence he paſſed into England, where he ſoon received the Marks of the King's Eſteem, in being made Knight, and preſented with a Chain of Gold of great Weight; and with his own Portrait enrich'd with Diamonds, and aſſign'd great Penſions: So many Favours made him ſtick very cloſe to his Work, inſomuch that in a ſhort time he furniſh'd the King's Palace, and other Publick Places of London, with rare Pieces of his Invention: This drew him more and more Wealth, whereof he ſpent a great part in his Love Intreagues, and in Chimiſtry, yet left his Wife to the Value of 100000 Crowns at his Death, which hapned at London in 1641. See the Modern Maſters in Painting, at the end of Dryden's Tranſlation of Freſnoy.

VANINI (Lucilio) an Italian, Native of Naples, taught Atheiſm in France about the beginning of the ſeventeenth Age, and being convicted at Toulouſe, he was condemned to die. He inſpir'd his deteſtable Maxims under colour of Philoſophy. It's ſaid, that being deſir'd to make publick Penance, and ask God, the King, and Juſtice pardon: He anſwer'd, He did not believe there was a God: Added, That he never offended the King; and as for Juſtice, That he wiſh'd it to the Devil. He confeſſed they were twelve that parted in company from Naples, to teach their Doctrin in all the Provinces of Europe. His Sacrilegious Tongue was firſt cut out, and then he was burned the 9th of April 1619.

VAR, in Latin Varus, a River of France in Provence, which it ſeparates from the County of Nice. It has its Source in Mount Camelione in the Maritime Alps, paſſes at Entrevaux or Glandeves; then, increaſed by the Waters of ſeveral Torrents, it empties it ſelf into the Mediterranean Sea near Nice. Pliny, Strabo, Cæſar.

VARANES, or Warranes, firſt of this Name, King of Perſia, ſucceeded Hormiſdas I. in 274. He formed great Deſigns againſt the Romans, but died before he could execute any.

VARANES II. Son of the firſt, whom he ſucceeded, and reigned ſixteen or ſeventeen Years. The Emperor Carus, aſſiſted by Numerian, defeated the Perſians in Meſopotamia, and diſpoſſeſſed them of the Towns of Seleucia and Cteſiphon, which they had taken from the Romans. This was about 283, and Varanes died in 294, without being Succeſsful or Powerful enough to repair the Loſs. Varanes III. Son of Varanes II. was ſirnamed Seganſa, reign'd but four Months. Varanes IV. called Kerman, was crown'd King of Perſia after Sapores III. in 389, and reigned eleven Years. His Son Iſdigerdes ſucceeded him.

VARANES V. Son of Iſdigerdes King of Perſia, began to reign in 420, and is very famous in the Hiſtory of his time, for the cruel Perſecution he raiſed againſt the Chriſtians throughout all his Dominions, occaſioned by the indiſcreet Zeal of a Biſhop that burned a Temple where the Perſians adored Fire. After this Perſecution he turned his Arms againſt the Romans, who under the Command of Ardaburus, Theodoſius the Younger's General, defeated him ſeveral times; after which, there was a Peace made between the two Crowns. Varanes died in 441. Socrates, lib. 7. Thedoret. Procopius.

VARGAS (Francis) a Spaniſh Lawyer, and Embaſſador for his Catholick Majeſty at the Council of Trent. He wrote De Epiſcoporum Juriſdictione, & Pontificis Maxima. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

VARIUS, a Latin Poet, Friend to Virgil and Horace, was much in the Emperor Auguſtus's Favour: He compoſed Tragedies, and is by ſome confounded with the Varius that Virgil ſpeaks of, but this is he ſo often mention'd by Horace; ad Aug. Ep. l. 2. Serm. 6. de Art. Poetica.

VARNA, Lat. Dionyſiopolis, Barna Tiberiopolis, a City of Bulgaria, which is an Archbiſhop's See, and has a Port upon the Euxine Sea at the Mouth of the River Zyra now Varna; it ſtands between this River to the North, the Sea to the Eaſt, and the Lake of Devina to the South, ſtill a place tolerably well Peopled, ſeven German Miles from Moſomber, and the Borders of Thrace to the North, moſt taken notice of upon the account of a great Defeat the Chriſtians received here under Vladiſlaus King of Hungary, in 1444.

VARRERO or VARRERIUS (Gaſpar) a Learned Portugueſe, who was particularly remarkable for his Skill in Geography. He wrote ſeveral Books, as, Commentarius de Ophyra Regione, in Sacris Literis Commemorata. Cenſura de Beroſo. De Megaſthine. Quinto Fabio Pictore, & M. Porcio Catone, ſuppoſititiis Auctoribus. Bibl. Hiſp.

VARRO (M. Terentius) the moſt Learned of all the Romans, was born the 638th of the Foundation of Rome, and died the Year 726, Ninety Years of Age. His Learning conſiſted chiefly in the Knowledge of Grammar, Hiſtory and Philoſophy. Some affirm, that he has writ near 500 Volums: He dedicated that of the Latin Tongue to Cicero: He compoſed one de re Ruſtica, a Treatiſe of Hiſtory, Annals of Famous Men, Roman Families, and a great number of others: Verranius Maurus writ his Life, and collected the Titles of his Works, as alſo thoſe of Cicero, Aulus Gellius, Nonnius, Fulgentius, Macrobius, Servius, St. Auguſtin, Jerom, Priſcian, and divers others. The Curious may conſult this Piece, and thoſe of Scaliger, Turnebius, Voſſius, Geſner, &c. where they mention Varro.

VARRO (P. Terentius) was born at Attace upon the River Aude, in the Narbonoiſe Province; at the Age of 35 he learn'd the Greek Tongue, and was an excellent Poet; for he compoſed a Poem De Bello Sequanico, and one in four Books of the Argonautes. This Varro, ſirnam'd Atacinus, lived in Julius Cæſar and the Triumvirs time. Pliny, Seneca, St. Jerome, &c. ſpeak of him as well as Geſner in Bibliot.

VARRO (Marcus Terentius) Collegue to Lucius Æmilius Paulus, in the Conſulſhip after Fabius's Dictature. Varro, a Man of no great Birth, obtain'd this Place by his Intreagues and Money; Fabius was againſt his having it, and foretold Æmilius, that he would trouble him more than Hannibal ſhould; and adviſed him not to engage the Carthaginians, whom he did not queſtion but his unexperienc'd Collegue would be for Fighting. Æmilius intended to follow his Advice, but it did not lye in his Power; for Varro having the Command in his Turn, engaged at the Battel of Cannæ the 538th Year after the Foundation of Rome. He himſelf commanding the Left Wing, Æmilius the Right, and Cecilius the Reſerve. The Succeſs ſhew'd how much Fabius was in the right; for Æmilius with 40000 Romans, were kill'd upon the Spot. Terentius Varro that was the cauſe of this Diſgrace, made his eſcape with fifty Horſe, and diſperſed the Remains of the Army the beſt he could into the neighbouring Poſts. When he came to Rome, the People welcomed and rendred him Thanks, becauſe that great Loſs did not make him deſpair of the Safety of their Commonwealth. Tit. Liv. Flor.

VARSOVIE or Warſovie, a Town of Poland, Capital of Mazovia, and the ordinary Reſidence of the Kings of Poland; at which the Diets are generally conven'd: It's built upon the Viſtula, and commonly divided into four Parts, which are the Town, the New Town, the Suburb of Cracovia, and the Prag; which have all of them their Beauties, but are moſt conſidered for the Market-place, the Arſenal, Palace, Caſtle and Royal Garden. This Town was taken by the Swedes in 1665. This City is about three Poliſh Miles diſtant from Leſſer Poland, about 24 from Lanſchil, as many North-Eaſt of Lublin, 29 South-Eaſt of Thorn, 33 Weſt of Gueſna, and 40 to the North-Eaſt from Cracow and Poſnau; it lyes in the 43 Degr. of Longitude, and 52 of Northern Latitude.

VARUS (Quinctilius) a Roman Proconſul, a Man of a mild and peaceful Temper: He had firſt the Government of Syria, and afterwards that of Germany, where obſerving the People to be Good-natur'd and Rational, he imagin'd they might be gain'd by Acts of Juſtice, and in thoſe Thoughts ſpent all the Summer in giving Orders in quality of a Magiſtrate, and not as a Commander. Arminius, Chief of the Cheruſci, ſeeing a favourable Occaſion to recover his Country's Liberty, communicated his Deſign to his Friends, who altogether fell upon, and entirely defeated the Roman Troops. Auguſtus ſhew'd a great deal of Concern for the loſs of his flouriſhing Army. Velleius Paterculus, l. 2. Hiſt. Florus, Tacit. Virgil.

VASARI (George) Native of Azezo in Tuſcany, rendred himſelf equally Famous by his Pen and Penſil. He ſhewed from his very Youth a particular Inclination for Painting, and exerciſed himſelf continually in Deſigning; and after he had perfected himſelf under Michael Angelo and Andrew Delſaro, he imploy'd almoſt all his Life in Travelling, leaving in all Places the Marks of his Induſtry and Wit. Hannibal Caro aſſures, that his Hiſtory of Painters was writ with much Exactneſs and Judgment; though Filibien denies it, ſaying, he miſtook in many things; and that having writ when ſeveral of whom he ſpeaks of lived, he ran more upon their Praiſe than true Merit, always affecting to raiſe thoſe of his own Country over Strangers. He died at Florence in 1574, being then 68 Years of Age.

VATABLUS (Francis) or Guaſtebled, according to St. Martha Profeſſor of Hebrew, was Native not of Amiens as Thuanus believed, but of Gamache a little Town in Picardy. He flouriſhed in Francis the Firſt's time, and had ſuch perfect Knowledge of the Hebrew, that the very Jews, who often came to his publick Lectures, admir'd him very much; he was alſo well verſed in Greek, and applied himſelf mightily to the Study of the Holy Scripture, which he explained with a great deal of Erudition; yet Robert Stephens's Collection of his Notes was condemn'd by the Gentlemen of the Sorbonne. Vatablus writ alſo a Latin Tranſlation of Ariſtotle's Books, Intitul'd, Parva Naturalia. The Bible called Vatablus's, contains the Vulgar, and that of Læon of Juda in two Colums. As for the Notes, it's ſaid, Bertin who ſucceeded him as Royal Profeſſor of the Hebrew Tongue, collected them as Vatablus pronounced them in his Auditory. Vatablus died in 1547. Melchior Adam. P. Simon.

VATICAN, a Hill of Rome near the Tiber, joyning to the Janiculum where St. Peter's Palace is. It has this Name from the Anſwers or Oracles, in Latin Vaticinia, which the Roman People formerly had there, according to Varro; for he ſays there was a God in this Place that was called by that Name, and therefore thought to be Author of Childrens firſt Words Va va, whence ſome think the Word Vatican was formed. Gellius, lib. 6.

VATIENUS (Cneus) a certain Roman, who was condemned to perpetual Impriſonment, and to have all his Goods forfeited becauſe he cut off his Left-hand fingers leſt he ſhould be forced to go to the Italick War. Cœlius Rhodigin. lib. 10. cap. 4.

VATINIUS, a Roman Citizen, ſo odious to the Roman People, that it gave place to the Proverb to call all irreconcilable Hatred Vatinian. Catull.

VAUCLUSE, ſo called quaſi Vallis Clauſa, is a Fountain in the Valleys of the Country Venaiſſin, at a Leagues diſtance from the Territory of Gordes in Provence. It runs out of a very great Cavern, as deep as any Well, at the foot of a Mountain, round which is a great number of leſſer ones, which furniſh ſo much Water, that it forms the River formerly Salga, but now called Sorgues, which made Petrarck call it the Queen of Fountains. It nouriſheth a great number of Trouts, Crabs, and other Fiſh, and is become very famous becauſe Francis Petrarck reſided near it when he writ his Works about 1300. Bouche de Chorog. de Provence, lib. 1.

VAUDOIS, or poor Men of Lions, a Name given the Followers of Peter of Vaud or Valdo, a rich Merchant of Lions about 1160, who ſeeing a Friend of his die ſuddenly at a Feaſt, began to think ſeriouſly of Eternity, and ſtudy the Holy Scripture. He diſcovered the Errors of the Roman Church, and acquainted his Friends and the Poor who continually received the effects of his Bounty and great Charity with them; but had no Thoughts of making himſelf Chief of the Sect, until the Clergy Excommunicating him, and Perſecuting ſome of his Diſciples, they retired into the Valleys of Piedmont, where they found ſome ancient Chriſtians that were alſo called Vaudes. The Lyonnois that were capable to Preach were Ordained by theſe ancient Miniſters, and ſpread themſelves thence into Italy, France, and Germany. I will not deny but in this Diſperſion there have been ſome irregular Ordinations; but I may ſafely affirm they were occaſioned by the Rigour and Cruelty of the Roman Clergy. See Leger and Morland in their Hiſtory of the Valleys. Dr. Allix's Remarks upon the ancient Churches of Piemont.

VAUGE, formerly Vogeſus or Voſagus, is a Mountain that reaches very far upon the Confines of the Franche County, Lorrain, and Alſace. It's in that the Moſelle and Soane ſpring. There is alſo a Foreſt of this Name.

VAUGELAS (Claude Favre) ſixteenth Son of the famous Preſident Favre of Chambery in Savoy, became a great Ornament to the French Academy, whereof he was a Member. Cardinal Richelieu having ſettled a Penſion upon him to engage him to help to carry on the Dictionary of that Academy, ſaid to him in a Joak, Sir, you will take care not to forget the Word Penſion in your Work: No, my Lord, anſwer'd he, that I will not, and much leſs the Word Acknowledgment. His Remarks upon the French Tongue, and his Tranſlation of Quintus Curtius, upon which laſt he ſpent 30 Years, are eſteem'd by all People. Balzac ſpeaks thus in praiſe of the Tranſlation; the Alexander of Quintus Curtius is invincible, that of Vaugelas inimitable. Peliſſon.

VAUGHAN (John) Son and Heir to Walter Vaughan of Golden Grove in Com. Caermarthen, Eſquire; was, for his good Service in Ireland, Knighted by Robert Earl of Eſſex, Lord Lieutenant of that Kingdom in Queen Elizabeth's Reign; and in the 18th of King James I. was raiſed to the Degree of Baron of that Realm, by the Title of Lord Vaughan of Molingar; as alſo by King Charles I. to the Dignity of Earl of Carbery. Richard, his Son and Heir, was made Knight of the Bath at the Coronation of King Charles I. and by him conſtituted Lieutenant General for the Counties of Caermarthen, Pembroke, and Cardigan, in the Civil Wars; and for his Service in that Station, advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm by the Title of Lord Vaughan of Emlyn, by Letters Patents bearing date at Oxford Oct. 25th, 19 Car. I. He married, firſt, Bridget Daughter and Heir to Thomas Lloyd of Llanlleer in the County of Cardigan Eſquire, by whom he had Iſſue four Sons, who died in their Infancy; ſecondly, Frances one of the Daughters and Coheirs of Sir John Altham of Oxbey in the County of Hertford, Knight; by whom he had Iſſue three Sons; viz. Francis, who married the Lady Rachel one of the Daughters and Coheirs to Thomas late Earl of Southampton, but died without Iſſue; 2. John, who married Mary Daughter and Heir to Humphry Brown of Green Caſtle in the County of Caermarthen, Eſquire; 3. Altham; and ſix Daughters, whereof Frances and Althamia are now living, the reſt died young. To his third Wife he had the Lady Alice, Daughter to John late Earl of Bridgwater, but by her hath no Iſſue. Dugd. Baron.

VAUX, in Latin Romana ditio, a little Country in Swiſſerland, that formerly belonged to the Duke of Savoy, and now to the Canton of Berne. It's between Mont Jura and the Lake of Geneva. Its Towns are Lauſane, Yverdon, Moudon, Nion, &c.

VAUX (Anne of) has done ſuch glorious Actions, that they well deſerve the publiſhing. She was born in a Village near L'Iſle in Flanders. Reflecting on the miſerable Condition of her Country, and the Danger ſhe ſaw her ſelf continually in, her Honour and Life being expoſed to the Fury and Violence of the Soldiers, took theſe Meaſures to preſerve both: She liſted her ſelf in a Company of Foot under the Name of Anthony Atis, and call'd her ſelf Bonne Eſperance or Good Hope; a Companion of hers that ſhe acquainted with the Deſign following her Example, and calling her ſelf Jeuneſſe or Youth. They behaved themſelves ſo well, that they were taken into the Horſe, and Bonne Eſperance was made Lieutenant in the Baron of Merci's Regiment. She was in ſeveral Engagements, viz. at Etampes, the Suburb of St. Anthony, where ſhe was deſperately Wounded and taken Priſoner. Some time after returning into Flanders with about 30 Soldiers, they were met and ſtrip'd by a Party of Lorrainers, who diſcovering her Sex, carried her firſt to Pont-a-Mouſſon, and thence to Nanci, where ſhe was kindly received by the Mareſchal of Seneterre, who offer'd her a Company, with a Promiſe of concealing her Sex: ſhe anſwer'd, That the Conſideration of her Honour put her firſt upon taking Arms, and that ſhe ſhould forfeit that in fighting againſt her Prince. The Mareſchal commended her Generoſity, and gave her her Liberty. She came home in 1653, and became Nun in the Abbey of Marquette. Parival Hiſt. de ce Siecle de Fer.

VAUX de Cernay (Pierre des) a Ciſtertian Monk, living in the beginning of the XIII. Century. He wrote the Hiſtory of the Albigenſes, entertainingly enough, which is lately publiſhed in the Bibliotheca Patrum. He begins with the Expedition which Simon Montfort made againſt theſe People in 1209. The moſt correct Edition of this Work, is that printed by Nicholas Camuſatus in 1615. Charles de Viſch Bibl. Ciſterſ. Mireus. Camuſat.

VAYVODE, the Name of the Sovereign Princes of Valachia, Moldavia, and Tranſylvania in Hungary; whereof the two firſt pay the Grand Signior Tribute. This was alſo the Name that was given Governors of Provinces when they were under the King of Hungary. The Dukes or Governors of Provinces in Poland, and the particular Governors of Towns under a Baſſa in the Turkiſh Empire, are called Vayvodes; wherefore the Princes of Tranſylvania, Moldavia, and Valachia, chuſe rather the Title of Deſpote that ſignifies Lord, than that of Vayvodes. Ricaut.

UBBO (Emmius) Rector of the Univerſity of Gronenghen, was a good Grecian, Hiſtorian, and Chronologer. He wrote a Hiſtory of Freizland; De Republica Græcorum; ſeveral Chronological Tracts; and died in 1625. Valerius Andreas Bibl. Belg.

UBERLINGHEN, in Lat. Uberlinga, a Town of Germany in Suabia. It's an Imperial Town, ſituate upon the Lake of Conſtance; but is neither ſo ſtrong nor ſo rich as it was before the Wars of Germany, in which it ſuffered very much, being often taken and re-taken.

UBIENS, in Latin Ubii, People of that Part of Lower Germany which now makes the Archbiſhoprick of Cologn and Dutchy of Juliers. There is ſtill a Place called Ubich, which keeps its ancient Name: Its Plains are remarkable by the Battel that Clovis the Great won there, in which, whilſt Victory was doubtful, he made a Promiſe to become Chriſtian if he Conquer'd. Duplex. Paul Emilius. Ortelius.

UBIQUITARIES. It's thus moſt of the Lutherans are called, who, to maintain the Real Preſence, ſay with James Fabri of Eſtaples, that our Saviour's Body is every where as well as his Divinity. From this Ubique they derive their Name. Florimond.

UDALRIC I. was the 20th Duke of Bohemia, and govern'd very well, though he uſurped the State from his Brother Hiaromirius, whoſe Eyes he cauſed to be put out. He married Beatrix a Peaſant's Daughter, but very vertuous, by whom he had Bretiſlas. He had not govern'd very long when he begun to repent him of the Injuſtice he did his Brother, and ſought means to reſtore him again; for which end he employed Helicardus Biſhop of Prague, who reconcil'd them: but Hiaromirius would have his Brother Udalric Govern with him. And it was about this time that Bretiſlas, Udalric's Son, firſt poſſeſt Moravia in Quality of Marqueſs. The Father died ſoon after of a Fever, on which Occaſion Hiaromirius ſhew'd what a Brotherly Love could do; for ſtretching his hands over Udalric's Body, Let me feel the laſt time, ſays he, for him that I cannot ſee. And afterwards having led his Nephew Bretiſlas to the Throne, Mount, ſaid he, whence I deſcend, and Reign happier than your Father or I. After that time Hiaromirius liv'd like a private Man, and did not appear at Court. Julius Solimanus. De Elog. Ducum Regum, & Interreg. Bohemiæ.

UDALRIC II. was the 7th that govern'd Bohemia during the Interregnum. He was Son of Sobeſlas I. The Emperor Frederic made him take the Government of Bohemia after Uladiſlaus II's Death, to put an end to the Differences of ſeveral Princes that pretended to that Crown. This Prince ſoon after yielded it up to Sobeſlas his eldeſt Brother, in which he gained more Credit than by commanding the Emperor's Army in Italy, for his over-eaſineſs to the Soldiers occaſioned its entire loſs; ſo that he returned but with eight of the whole Body, the reſt having either killed one another, or turned Highway-men. Julius Solimanus.

UDINE, in Latin Utinum, a Town of Italy, Metropolitan of Friuli, built, according to ſome, by the Huns, or by the Dukes of Auſtria, according to others. The Patriarch's See was removed hither when Aquileia was deſtroyed. The Republick of Venice keep a Governor here. It's above five Miles in compaſs, and has about 15000 Inhabitants. Magin.

VECCUS (John) firſt Keeper of the Records and Charters of St. Sophy, and afterwards Patriarch of Conſtantinople, flouriſhed in 1270, under the Emperor Michael Paleologus. He was a profound Scholar, and one of thoſe that laboured moſt for the Re-union of the Greeks and Latins at the Emperor's Solicitation: but not being a Man that could change with the Times, he was baniſhed under the Emperor Andronicus. Nicephor. Maimbourg.

VEGA (Andrew) a Spaniſh Monk of the Order of St. Dominick, was a Perſon of Conſideration for his Learning, and one of the Divines that aſſiſted at the Council of Trent. He wrote, De Juſtificatione, Gratia, Fide, Operibus, & Meritis. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

VEGA (Lopez of) or Lopez Felix, or Vega Carpio, a famous Spaniſh Poet. He was Native of Madrid, and of a Gentleman's Family; was Secretary to the Biſhop of Avila, to the Count of Lemos, Duke of Alva and others, and bore Arms with Reputation. He died in 1635, at 72 Years of Age. The Spaniſh Theatre was much oblig'd to him for his Ingenuity, for it's ſaid he left a Collection of Comedies in 25 Volumes, each Tome containing 12 Plays. Lorenzo Craſſo.

VEGETIUS (Flavius) of Conſtantinople, lived in the 4th Age, under the Emperor Valentinian: He writ a fine Treatiſe of the Roman Diſcipline, which is very uſeful for the Knowledge of the Order the Romans obſerved in their Wars. Geſner.

VEGLIA, an Iſland and Town upon the Coaſts of Dalmatia, with a Biſhoprick. It belongs to the State of Venice. The Latins call it Vegia; and the Sclavonians, Kirk.

VEJES, an ancient Town that was near Rome. Cluvier thought it was built in the ſame Place that Scrofano is now in; but Lucas Holſtenius holds that it ſtood over-againſt the Borough of Iſola that belongs to the Houſe of Farneſe: but be it how it will, we know Romulus warr'd againſt the Vejentins, and triumph'd upon that Victory. In 177 of Rome thoſe of Vejes killed 300 Men of the Family of the Fabii: of which Ovid,

Una dies Fabios ad bellum miſerat omnes:
Ad bellum miſſos perdidit una dies.

And afterwards M. Furius Camillus, Dictator, having defeated the Faliſci, took the Town of Vejes after a Siege of 10 Years. This was about the 358th Year of Rome. The Tenths of its Spoils were dedicated to Apollo Pythius by the Conquerors, who had taken Oaths from their Soldiers never to riſe from before it until they had taken it. Florus. Tit. Liv.

VEJOVIS, or bad Jupiter, a God of the ancient Romans, whom they adore not out of hopes of any Favour, but that he ſhould do 'em no Miſchief: This his Statue ſhew'd; which, according to Aulus Gellius, reſembled a Youngman holding Arrows in his hand, and ready to ſhoot; whence People conjectured, that by Vejovis they underſtood the Sun, which by its Beams, as by ſo many Darts, ſends us ſeveral Sickneſſes. Cic. de Natura Deor.

VELAY, or Veluwe, a Country of the Dutchy of Guelderland, in the Low Countries, belonging to the United Provinces, Its Towns are Arnhem, Harderwick, &c. and it was here the Marſacians liv'd formerly. This Country contains all the Lands between the Rhine, the Vahal, and the Zuider Sea, which took this Name from the Barrenneſs of the Soil, which ſignifies a Heath or Wilderneſs. This Earldom is mentioned in the Year 1196, but the Names of the Earls loſt. It belonged after this to the Biſhop of Utrecht, who granted it in Fee to the Dukes of Brabant, from whom it came to the Dukes of Guelderland under Otho I. and at the time of the Holy War belonged to Godfrey of Bovillon, who reſigned it for Money to manage that War; and marrying Seynara his Daughter to Henry I. Earl of Guelderland, he quitted all his Claim and Right of Redemption to him. Yet his Poſterity were moleſted by the Biſhop of Utrecht till the Emperor Henry VI. put an end to the Controverſies between them.

VELAY, a Country of France, depending on the Province of Languedoc; this is the Place which the ancient People called Velauni lived in. Its Situation is between Auvergne, Vivarets, Gevaudan, and le Foreſts, which makes it be divided commonly into the Country on this ſide and on the other ſide of the Foreſt; the great Mountains of Mezeres, Pertuis, and Meigal covered with Woods making this Separation. The chief Town is Puy, beſides which are Montfauleon, Moniſtrol, &c.

VELETRI, or Veltri, a Town of Italy in Campagnia di Roma, with a Biſhoprick, that was united to that of Oſtia. Titus Livius, Dionyſius of Halicarnaſſus, Suetonius, and other Authors, ſpeak often of it, but now it's but very inconſiderable.

VELLEIUS (Paterculus) a Latin Hiſtorian, lived in Tiberius's time. His Grandfather was in a conſiderable Poſt amongſt Pompey and Claudius Nero, Tiberius's Fathers Friends, whom becauſe he was not able to follow into Sicily, whither he retired during the Civil Wars, he kill'd himſelf for Grief. His Father ſerved in Germany as Colonel of Horſe, and he ſucceeded him in the Employment: Afterwards he commanded a Legion, then was made Queſtor, and at laſt Tiberius's Lieutenant General in the Armies of Germany and Hungary, and had as Collegue Magius Celer, Vallejanus's Father. Afterwards Velleius applied himſelf to an Abridgment of Hiſtory, in two Books, whereof we have loſt a great part: He is very exact in marking the time when things happened, and has a good Stile, but is blamed for praiſing Auguſtus's Party too much, and to have given ridiculous Commendations not only to Tiberius, but alſo to Sejanus, whom he ſpeaks of in two Places, as a Man of the greateſt Merit of the whole Commonwealth. Voſſius, Aventin. lib. 1. Annal.

VENAFRO, a Town and Principality of the Kingdom of Naples, in Terra di Lavoro, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Capua. Strabo.

VENAISSE, or County Venaiſſen, a Country belonging to the Holy See, lying between Provence, Dauphiné, Roan, and Durance. Its chief Town formerly was Venaſque, and ſince that Carpentras: This is a fruitful and fine Country: It has an Archbiſhoprick, three Biſhopricks, and 68 Towns and Villages. Avignon is not in this County, as is commonly believ'd, though it ſtands near it.

VENANTIUS (Fortunatus) Biſhop of Poictiers, liv'd in the 5th Century. He was, by Birth, an Italian, and ſtudied at Ravenna. Poetry was his principal Profeſſion in his Youth. His Works are printed in Quarto, by Chriſtopherus Browerus a Jeſuit. There is amongſt 'em a Poem, in four Books, of the Life of St. Martin, to thank him for curing his Eyes, by vertue of his Interceſſion. There are likewiſe ſeveral other Poems, as, The Life of St. Hilary of Poictiers, &c. The Author's Life is prefix'd to his Works. Gregor. Turon. Bede lib. 1. *Hiſt. Ecclef. VENCE, a Town of France in Provence, with a Biſhop's See Suffragant of Ambrun. It's the Vidantiorum of Pliny, called Ventium, Vencia, or Vinienſium Urbs. It's not great, but very ancient; for it was a Roman Colony, as appears by ſome Inſcriptions. It has bred ſeveral famous Prelates, amongſt whom Euſebius is the ancienteſt we know of. Anthony de Godeau, famous for his Piety and Writings, govern'd this Church, in which he was ſucceeded by Monſieur Thomaſin. The temporal Juriſdiction of the City is divided between the Biſhop, and the Baron de Vence. Pliny lib. 3. cap. 5. Bouche's Hiſt. of Provence, &c.

VENCESLAS, or Venceſlaus, I. ſirnamed The One-ey'd, becauſe he loſt one at Hunting; he ſucceeded his Father Prezmiſſas, and after ſeveral Adventures died in 1253, which was the 47th of his Age, and 24th of his Reign. He left Ottocare II. and Venceſlas II. called the Saints Father, who ſucceeded him in 1278, under the Guardianſhip of Otho the Long, Marqueſs of Brandenbourg, being then but eight Years of Age. He was Crowned at Prague in 1237, and afterwards married Andrew King of Hungary's Daughter. The Polanders much taken with his Merit, choſe him King in 1300. He died five Years after. His Son Venceſlas III. King of Bohemia, was Murthered at Olmurs in 1306, as he was going to take Poſſeſſion of his Kingdom of Poland. Venceſlas IV. Emperor and King of Bohemia, was Son to Charles IV. who willing to have him enjoy the Crown after his own Death, motion'd it to the Electors, and had him Crown'd King of the Romans by paying each 100000 Crowns. So Venceſlas ſucceeded his Father in 1378; but being by his Negligence in Buſineſs, and the many Vices he was given to, thought unworthy of the Place, he was deprived thereof, and Frederick Duke of Brunſwick, and afterwards Robert, choſen in his Place. In the mean time Venceſlas withdrew to Prague, where he continued his idle and debauched Life until he died of a Palſie in 1419. Paul Stanki.

VENCESLAS, or Venceſlaus, Duke of Bohemia, who ſucceeded his Father Uratiſlas in 916, being then but eight Years of Age, and under his Mother Diahomires Care. Venceſlas became a very pious Prince, and was killed by his Brother Boleſlas at a Feaſt in 929.

VENCESLAS, or Venceſlaus, (Adam) Duke of Teſchen, a Town of Bohemia in Sileſia, he ſucceeded his Father in this Kingdom in 1569, was brought up at the Court of Saxony, and gave the firſt Marks of his Courage in the War againſt the Turks. In 1617 he was created Governor and Captain General of Sileſia.

VENDOSME, in Latin Vindocinum, a Town of France to the Weſt of Beauſſe upon the Loire, and Capital of a little Country called Vendomois between Touraine le Perche, Anjou, and the reſt of Beauſſe. There is an ancient Caſtle in the Town, a College of the Oratorians, with ſome Religious Houſes. Vendomois had formerly the Title of a County, and was afterwards erected into a Dutchy, and Charles of Bourbon made the firſt Duke by Henry IV. Ronſard the Poet was of Vendomois.

VENEZUELA, a Province in the South America, diſcovered by Oreda a Spaniard in 1499, (the Name ſignifieth the little Venice) and was firſt attempted to be Conquered in 1528 by the Germans. On the Eaſt it is bounded by Maracapana, and to the Weſt by Cape de la Veba, in Length 200 Leagues. There was ſcarce a Year after this to that of 1553, but there was an Expedition made by the Germans or Spaniards for the Conqueſt or Diſcovery of this large Province, as is related by Laert. lib. 18. cap. 8, 9, 10. To the North it has the Bay of Mexico, and the South Orenoque, and the Provinces upon it. The principal Place in it is called Coro, Corana, and ſometimes Venezuela.

VENILLE, a Nymph, Wife of Faunus, and Siſter to Amata Wife to King Latinus. She was alſo thought Neptune's Wife, and to have been called Salacie before ſhe was named Venille, from the Latin Venire that ſignifies to come, becauſe the Sea goes and comes by its Ebb and Flow.

VENICE, in Latin Venitiæ, in Italian Venitia and Vinegia, a Town and conſiderable Commonwealth in Italy, begun according to the common Opinion in 421; and if we believe the Venetians, it was the 25th of March, which ſome will have the Day of the Creation of the World and Incarnation of Jeſus Chriſt; this Epocha ſerving to render that Foundation more auguſt and conſiderable. The Town conſiſts of 72 Iſlands, which for 300 Years were ſeparated from one another, and govern'd by a particular Tribune that each choſe after its own Way, and changed Yearly; ſo that then, it neither was the ſame Town nor the ſame Commonwealth, but only a Confederation of ſeveral neighbouring Iſlands united together by common Intereſt, to oppoſe the Barbarians that ravaged all Italy: And as each Iſland had a ſpiritual Paſtor as well as a Tribune, ſo the Town has now ſeventy two Pariſhes. The Towns that belong to this Commonwealth are of two ſorts, ſome in Lombardy that compoſe the Firm Land State, the reſt are Maritime and called the Sea State. The Firm Land State comprehends the Treviſe or Marchea Treviſana, where the Biſhopricks of Cenedu, Belluna, Feltri, Uderzo, whence the Biſhop's See was removed to Ceneda, Padua and the Padouan, Vincenza and the Vincenti, Verona and the Veronois, Bergamo and the Bergamaſque, Crema and its Chanel, Breſcia and the Breſſan, the Poleſin, otherwiſe called Il Contado di Rovigo, and Friuli which they call Patria del Friuli, where the famous Fortreſs Palma Nova is their Bulwark againſt the Imperialiſts Incurſions and the Turks Invaſions, that have entred ſeveral times into their Territories by that way. There are three Towns of Friuli that belong to the Emperor as Archduke of Auſtria, Aquileia, that is almoſt uninhabited, Trieſte, which according to ſome Geographers, is rather a part of Iſtria than Friuli, and Goritz, that has a pretty conſiderable Territory. The Sea State comprehends the Province of Venice, called Il Dogado, that is, the Dutchy of Venice compoſed of ſeveral Towns, and the Iſlands of Chiozza or Chioggia, whoſe Situation reſembles that of Venice, Paleſtrina; Malamocco, which is properly the Port of Venice; Muran, whence our fine Venice Glaſs is brought, Torcello, Buran, Majorbe, Caorte, and ſeveral others, whoſe Number amounts to 60 added to the Dogado, part of Iſtria of Dalmatia, Albania, the Iſles of Corfu, Zante, Cefalonia, Cerigo, and ſome others; beſides which, the Venetians are Sovereigns of the Adriatick Sea, commonly called The Gulf of Venice, and which Andrew Moroſini, a Noble Venetian, terms Reipublicæ Domum in his Hiſtory. The yearly Ceremony of wedding the Sea in Preſence of the Embaſſadors of Crown'd Heads, and particularly of the Emperors, is a publick Proof that they are Sovereigns of that part of it, ſince the Dogat of Sebaſtien Saini, which was about the end of the 12th Century. This Ceremony is performed thus on every Aſcenſion Day: The Doge goes aboard the Bucentaure, a very fine Ship, and throws a Gold Ring into the Sea, pronouncing theſe Words, Deſponſamus te, Mare, in ſignum veri & perpetui Dominii. Some Hiſtorians write, that becauſe Pope Alexander III. ordered the Doge Zani to perform this Ceremony yearly in theſe Words: Take here this Ring of Gold, and by giving it unto the Sea oblige it unto thee; a Ceremony which on this Day, the Aſcenſion Day, ſhall be yearly obſerved both by thee and thy Succeſſors, that ſo Poſterity may know that you have purchaſed the Dominion thereof by your Valour, and made it ſubject to you as a Wife to her Husband; that ſucceeding Ages might know, that tho' the Command of the Sea belong'd to them by the Right of Conqueſt and Arms, yet it was the Pope that gave the Venetians the actual Sovereignty of the Adriatick Gulf: But this is a popular Error; for he that was never Maſter of it himſelf, could not give any Right in it to others: Beſides, it appears by the Embaſſador Donati's Anſwer to Pope Julius II. that the Commonwealth does not at all found its Right to it in the Pope's Gift; for when Julius asked Donati in a way of Raillery, If he had the Evidences of the Right the Commonwealth pretended to the Gulf? He made Anſwer thus, That if his Holineſs were pleaſed to find the Original of Conſtantine's Gift to Pope Sylveſter, he would ſee there his Gift of the Adriatick Sea to the Venetians. The General or Governor of the Gulf is the ancienteſt Sea-Officer that belongs to the Commonwealth, and for this Reaſon has always the Van in their Fights, with this Prerogative, that when the Generaliſſimo falls ill, he fills his Place before any other until the Senate names a General. The charge of Governor of the Gulf is perpetual, and that of Generaliſſimo ceaſes with the War. The Governor is changed every three Years, and it's always a Noble Venetian of a great Family that has the Place. It cannot be preciſely mark'd when the Commonwealth began to create a General of the Gulf, becauſe all Titles of Chancellary were burn'd by chance in 1230; but ſince this time, we find an uninterrupted Succeſſion of Governors of the Gulf. As for the Government of Venice, it was Democratick at firſt, under Conſuls and Tribunes, which Caſſiodorus calls Maritimorum Tribunos. The Doges ſucceeded, the third whereof was Aſſaſſinated by the People for his Tyranny; and thereupon enſued an Interregnum of five Years, in which the State was committed to certain Officers every new Year chang'd and elected; and from 697 to 1177, they had about 34 or 36 Sovereign Doges. Since 1298, the Government is Ariſtocratick, the whole Authority being in the Hands of a certain number of Families written in the Golden Book, the Regiſter of the Venetian Nobility. The Doge, who is the ſame with him that at Rome was Prince of the Senate, has only Precedency before the other Magiſtrates; but his Robes and Habits are ſo rich and diſtinguiſh'd, that they give him a majeſtick Air in Publick Ceremonies, if the Sword which the Senate orders to be carried behind him were not a mark of his Dependance. This ſlender ſhare of Authority is recompenſed by the continuance of his Dignity, which is during Life, with this Reſtriction, that if Old Age or Sickneſs render him incapable of performing his Function, the Senate has Power to Depoſe him, as they did Francis Foſcarini, to whom they refuſed the Satisfaction of dying Doge, though he was 84 Years of Age, and that his Dogat had been very ſucceſsful to the Commonwealth. Venice has three principal Councils, the firſt called the Great, becauſe it comprehends all the Nobility, chuſes Magiſtrates, and makes all the Laws that are thought neceſſary for the Conſervation or Reformation of the State. The ſecond, called Pregadi, is what we call the Senate of Venice, that decides what concerns Peace and War, Confederacies and Leagues, &c. The third is the College, conſiſting of 26 Lords that give Audience to Embaſſadors and acquaint the Senate with their Demands, who alone have the Power to make Anſwer to them. There is ſtill a very conſiderable Council, call'd the Council of Ten, who are Judges of all Crimes committed againſt the State; theſe Ten are inexorable Judges, and are chang'd every Year: Three of this Body are choſen monthly in their Turns, to enquire into the State; and this Triumvirat has ſuch an abſolute Authority, that they can condemn even the Doge to Death, without acquainting the Senate with it, ſo that they all three agree; for if any one of the three ſhould diſſent, then the Ten muſt be call'd to ſentence him. What is moſt particular in this Government, is that all the Nobles that turn Eccleſiaſticks, are excluded for ever from any Charge in the State; ſo that it's impoſſible for the Court of Rome to form any Intelligence that may ſerve it to come to the Knowledge of any of the Commonwealth's, or Senate's Secrets. As for Spirituals, Venice is govern'd by a Patriarch, who ſtiles himſelf Divina miſeratione Venetiarum Patriarcha, without adding what all other Prelates of the Church of Rome do, viz. Sanctæ ſedis Apoſtolicæ gratia, as if he were no Member of it. He is Primate of Dalmatia, and Metropolitan of the Archbiſhops of Candia and Corfou, and of the Biſhops of Chiozza and Toriello: But the Ducal Church of St. Mark does not own him, becauſe it has as it were a particular Biſhop call'd Primicerius, who officiates with Mitre, Croſier, and Ring, gives Benediction, confers the four leſſer Orders. The Patriarch is nominated by the Senate, and the Primicerius by the Doge. The Patriarch and this Primicerius are always noble Venetians, as are alſo the Archbiſhops of Candia and Corfou, and the Biſhops of Treviſa, Padua, Vincenza, Verona, Breſcia and Bergamo: The Commonwealth has alſo another Patriarch in their Lands, viz. of Aquileia whoſe Seat is at Udina in Friuli. The Town of Aquileia belongs now to the Emperor, who for that Reaſon pretends to the Right of Naming to the Patriarchate: But the Venetians have found out a way to hinder its being vacant, in impowering the Patriarch to chuſe a Coadjutor, which the Senate confirms immediately under the Title of D' Eletto d' Aquileia. The Patriarch of Aquileia is Primate of Iſtria, and Metropolitan of the Biſhops of Treviſa, Ceneda, Belluna, Feltri, Concordia, Padoua, Vicenza, Verona, Como and Trente. The Senate had formerly the naming of all theſe, and the other Biſhops and Abbots of its Lands, but it renounced this by the Peace with Pope Julius II. in 1510, to ſeparate him from the League of Cambray, yet they endeavoured to have that Privilege back again, and made uſe of the favourable Occaſion of the Vacancy of the Church of Treviſa, which happen'd when Pope Clement VII. was kept Priſoner by Charles V. who when he was ſet at Liberty again, diſpatch'd the Biſhop of Siponto to Venice, to demand the Revocation of the Decree that was made the Year before touching the Nomination of Biſhops. The Difference held until 1530, when the Venetians renounced their Pretention. Some of the Senators being of Opinion, that it was not the Commonwealths Intereſt to confer Biſhopricks, becauſe the Noble Venetians coming to enjoy thoſe Dignities, might poſſibly neglect the Service of the Commonwealth; whereas had they no hopes of ſuch Dignities, they would turn all their Care to the Adminiſtration of the State, whence they ſhould expect their Preferments. The City of Venice is built upon Piles, the Streets watered with Channels that have Houſes on both ſides, which appear as ſo many Palaces. St. Theodore was its firſt Patron, but ſince St. Mark's Body was brought thither from Alexandria, it choſe that Evangeliſt for its chief Protector. The Church conſecrated to him is built of Marble, and divided into five Domes all cover'd with Lead, the Pavement of Jaſpar and Porphyry, wrought in Moſaick Work, is extraordinary rich; the High Altar is ſupported by four great Pillars that have the Hiſtory of the Old and New Teſtament done in imboſs'd Work upon them. The Chapel of the Holy Sacrament is ſupported by great Alabaſter Pillars, ſaid to have been made uſe of in Solomon's Temple. It's in this that St. Mark's Body is kept, with many Relicks enrich'd with Pearls, Diamonds, and other precious Stones.

This Church has five Doors all Caſt-metal, towards the place of St. Mark, over the chiefeſt of which are four Horſes of gilt Braſs, of the ſame bigneſs and Workmanſhip, made upon the Model of thoſe that drew Nero's Triumphal Arch, when he returned Conqueror over the Parthians. This Church has 24 Canons. St. Mark's Square is environed with three great Marble Palaces, much admired for their Symmetry and Architecture. The Doge's Palace, and that of the Library, are on the Churches ſide, and on the other is the Port of Malamoco, that ſhews very finely. Upon the Shore are ſeen the two Pillars brought from Conſtantinople in Sebaſtien Zani's time, upon one of which is St. Theodore's Statue, and upon the other St. Mark's Lion. The Doge's Palace, whoſe chief Entry is joining to St. Mark's Church, deſerves the Praiſes commonly given it: Its Portico ſupports a Lion with Wings, with Duke Foſcaro's Statue upon it: It has a great Court, three great Apartments, a Stair-caſe all Marble, with two Coloſſes, one of Mars, the other of Neptune. After this is the Prince's Apartment, the College-Hall, where they treat of the Affairs of the Commonwealth, that of the great Council, where Magiſtrates are choſen, that of the Council of Ten, and another with Arms for 1500 Men: It's ſaid theſe Fire-Arms are all loaden, and that there are 600 Matches that take Fire in a moment by means of a Wheel. Nothing can be imagined ſo great as the Arſenal is, there being 40 great Halls, and 2000 Men continually at work in 'em. In the 72 Iſlands comprehended in this Town, are 140 Palaces, 17 Hoſpitals, 72 Pariſhes, 54 Monaſteries for Friars, 26 Convents of Nuns, 165 Statues of Marble, 25 of Braſs, with an infinite number of other Rarities, that manifeſt the Wealth and Greatneſs of this City, which has always preſerv'd its Liberty, gain'd very conſiderable Battels, and oppoſed the Turks, thoſe formidable Enemies of Chriſtendom. The Gulf of Venice, in Latin Adriaticus or Illyricus Sinus, and Mare Adriaticum, is 50 or 55 Miles wide at the Mouth of it, between the Cape of Otranto and that of Enqueſta near Valonna; and 700 long. The Places that are all along it on Italy ſide, belong either to the Pope, to the King of Spain, or the States of Venice, beſides Trieſte and Dulcigno that depend on the Emperor as Archduke of Auſtria. The Coaſt of Dalmatia has alſo its ſeveral Princes; the ſmall Commonwealth of Raguza has its State; the Turks poſſeſs Caſtelnovo, Narenza, &c. yet the Venetians are Maſters of the beſt part, viz. Zara, Zelenico, Spalatro, Cataro, &c. with the neighbouring Iſlands. If we count the Beginning of the Government of Venice from 421, they were Conſuls from Padua that then govern'd this State; for the Padovans, who were Maſters of the Lagune Iſlands and had a Port in that of Rialto, deſigned to make it a conſiderable Place to ſecure their Commerce at Sea; for which end, their Senate ſent three Conſuls thither in 421, and had Rialto proclaim'd a place of Refuge for all that ſhould retire thither, which got it peopled in a ſhort time, as well by thoſe that lay ſcatter'd in other Iſlands as ſeveral Inhabitants of the Firm Land: And in 453, when Attila King of the Huns ravag'd a great part of Italy, the great Numbers that fled from him not only peopled Rialto, but alſo the reſt of the Iſlands, whereof the Town conſiſts now. The Senate of Padua continued to ſend Tribunes or Governors for a time, until each Iſland choſe its own Governor. In 709, the Tribunes of the 12 principal Iſlands reſolved to compoſe a Commonwealth, and to chuſe one amongſt them to be chief: But as they owned ſtill the Right the Town of Padua had to the Iſlands, they deputed ſome of their Members to the Emperor and Pope for their Leave to chuſe a Duke or Doge. Theſe reign'd abſolutely, and ſometimes conſtituted their Children and Brothers, their Collegues and Succeſſors. In 1172, the powerfulleſt Citizens aboliſh'd the Election that uſed to be made by all the People, and eſtabliſh'd a Sovereign and Independent Council, whence the Electors were choſen. This Council conſiſted of 240 Citizens, choſen indifferently amongſt the Nobles, the Burgeſſes and Tradeſmen, and they created twelve Tribunes at the ſame time, that were impower'd to oppoſe the Prince's Ordinances, if they appear'd unjuſt. This kind of Government held 117 Years, i. e. till 1289, when the Doge Peter Gradenigo undertook to eſtabliſh an Ariſtocracy, in reducing the Council to a leſſer number of certain Citizens and their Deſcendants, to the Excluſion of all other. The Venetian Nobility is divided into four Claſſes; the firſt comprehends the Families of the twelve Tribunes that choſe the firſt Doge, who by a ſort of Miracle, have continued from the Year 709 till now. Theſe are the Contarini, Moroſini, Badovari, Tiepoli, Micheli, &c. After theſe are four other, almoſt as ancient as the firſt, having ſign'd in 800 to the Contract of the Foundation of the Abby of St. George Major, with the 12 other Families. Theſe four are the Juſtiniani, Cornari, Bragadini, and Bembi, and are called the four Evangeliſts, as the firſt 12 are term'd the 12 Apoſtles. The ſecond Order of Venetian Nobility are thoſe Families that began to be inſerted in the Golden Book, when the Doge Gradenigo eſtabliſhed the Ariſtocracy in 1289; and theſe Families, being 400 Years ſtanding, are much eſteem'd. The third Order comprehends about 80 Families that have bought their Nobility, by helping the Commonwealth with 100000 Ducats in its preſſing Neceſſities and Wars with the Turks. The fourth ſort, is what the States confer upon Princes and Perſons of great Merit. Henry III. and IV. of France, were of this Body; and moſt of the Princes of Italy covet to be received into it. Beſides theſe, there are Citadins that are good Families of Burgeſſes, that form a middle State between the Nobility and People: Theſe are of two ſorts, ſome being originally ſo, becauſe deſcended of the Families that before the Eſtabliſhment of the Ariſtocracy in 1289, were concerned in the Government, and are in the Order of Citadins, only becauſe they were excluded out of the Council when it was reduced to a leſſer number. Many of theſe Families have the ſame Names, and give the ſame Coats of Arms with the Noble Venetians of the firſt Claſs. The Citadins of the ſecond Order have obtained this Title either by their Merit or Money; both enjoy the ſame Privileges, and have Places and Employments allotted them. The Doge preſides in all the Councils of the Commonwealth, but is acknowledged Prince only at the Head of the Senate, in the Tribunals where he aſſiſts, and the Ducal Palace of St. Mark. On other Occaſions he has leſs Authority than any private Man; for he is to concern himſelf in no Buſineſs: He muſt not quit the Town before he begs the ſix Counſellors of State leave; and when he does ride out, he has no exterior Mark that diſtinguiſhes him from the other Nobles. The current Coin bears his Name; but inſtead of his Image, repreſents a Doge clad in his Ducal Apparel, and upon his Knees before St. Mark, to ſhew he is ſubject to the Commonwealth, whereof that Saint is the Emblem. The Doge has the Precedency of all other Princes except Crown'd Heads, and appears at publick Solemnities in a very pompous manner. To chuſe a Doge, there is a great Council or Meeting of the Nobles, where none is admitted under the Age of 30. The Names of theſe being call'd over; the like number of little Bowls all white, beſides 30 that are gilt with Gold, are put into a Baſin appointed for this uſe; each having drawn one, the 30 that happen to have the gilt Bowls, go into another Hall, where they reduce themſelves to Nine, by drawing other thirty Bowls, whereof there are but nine gilt; theſe nine chuſe 40, and the 40 reduce themſelves to 12; the 12 chuſe 25, and theſe are again brought to nine, who chuſe 45 that are brought to 11; and it's theſe chuſe the 41 Electors of the Doge: Thus they break Parties and Factions, and give all the Satisfaction of contributing to the Election of their Prince. After the 41 Electors are approved in the Great Council, they are ſhut up in St. Mark's Palace, and are not let out until they chuſe a Doge, which for the moſt part is ſoon over, though ſometimes they happen to be five or ſix Months before they have their number, becauſe of 41 there muſt be 25 that Vote for the Doge. During all the time of their Confinement, they are obſerved narrowly, and treated much the ſame way the Cardinals are in the Conclave of Rome, when ſhut up for the Election of a Pope. The firſt thing the Doge does after his Election, and having taken the uſual Oath upon ſuch Occaſions, is, to ſhew himſelf to the People: For this purpoſe, he gets into a Machine, called The Well, that is kept in the Arſenal for this Ceremony, and carried on ſuch Occaſions by 200 Maſters of the Arſenal. The Doge ſeated in this Machine, has one of his Children, or next a-kin that ſtands behind him, and throws pieces of Gold and Silver amongſt the People whilſt he is carried round St. Mark's Square. This Cuſtom of throwing Money was introduc'd in 1172, by the famous Doge Sebaſtien Zani, to make the People ſome amends for the loſs of their Right to chuſe the Prince of the Commonwealth, which they enjoyed for ſeveral Ages.

The Procurators of St. Mark.

Theſe are the Executors of all charitable Legacies, the Tutors of Orphans, and Protectors of Widows, have the Management of the Riches left to St. Mark's Church, and to the Poor; they diſtribute Purſes yearly to marry poor Young-women, and allow them and others their Lodgings gratis in ſeveral Houſes that depend on their Procuracies. This Employment is look'd upon to be ſo honourable, that ſeveral Noble Venetians purchaſe it by vaſt Sums; but theſe are diſtinguiſh'd from the Nine that poſſeſs the nine ancient Procuracies, and are called Procurators by Merit: All that are ſo, wear a Ducal Veſt with Sleeves hanging to the ground.

Of the Great Chancellor.

This Officer keeps the Seals of the Commonwealth, and aſſiſts at all that is treated of in the Senate. He reads in the Great Council all that is to be tranſacted by allotting, and is Chief of the Citadins, as the Doge is of the Nobility. He has precedency of all other Magiſtrates, excepting the Counſellors of State and Procurators of St. Mark; wears a Purple Ducal Veſt, and has the Title of Excellency.

Of the Great Sages.

Theſe are they that conſult about all that's to be moved in the Pregadi or Senate: They are ſix in number, and each has his Week to wait upon the Senate with the Reſult of their Conſultations. They wear a Ducal Veſt of a Violet Colour, and the Commonwealth ſends no Embaſſador to the Emperor, Pope, or Grand Signior, but has this Quality. The five Sages of the Firm Land have almoſt as much Authority in the College as theſe other, for they conſult with them upon all Matters: They wear the ſame colour'd Veſt, and have the Title of Excellency. The Commonwealth gives the Quality of Sages of the Firm Land to the Embaſſadors that it ſends to Kings and other Sovereign Princes; but they have no Vote in the Aſſemblies of the Senate where they aſſiſt.

Proveditors,

Are the Governors which the States ſend into the Provinces, with abſolute Power in the Affairs relating to Peace and War. The Proveditor General of Palma Nova, is he that governs the Province of Friuli. There is alſo a Proveditor General of Dalmatia, and the three Iſlands of Corfou, Zante, and Ceſalonia.

Of the Inquiſitors of the Firm Land.

Theſe are different from the Inquiſitors of State, and are ſome of the chiefeſt Senators, ſent every five Years into the Provinces to examine the Proceedings, and ſee Juſtice done. They are to exerciſe this Commiſſion with much Rigour, which makes them unwelcom where they come, and in danger in Places beyond the Sea, ſo that no Senators will venture to go now.

Of the Officers the States ſend into the Provinces.

The Commonwealth of Venice ſends two Nobles, one in Quality of Podeſtat to adminiſter Juſtice, the other with the Title of Captain of Arms, to command the Soldiers in the conſiderableſt Towns of its Dominions, with Proveditors ſpoken of before.

Of their Forces by Sea and Land, and their Revenues.

All the Standing Forces that the States have kept on Foot, ſince its Peace with the Turks, after the loſs of Candia, to its League with the Pope, the Emperor, and King of Poland, did not exceed 6000, both Horſe and Foot; whereof a part was kept in Dalmatia under the Command of the Proveditor General of that Province, and a foreign General, the reſt under Captains of Arms in the Towns of the Firm Land, and eſpecially in thoſe upon the Frontiers of Milan. The Foot they keep in time of Peace, conſiſt moſt of Capelets, that is, Sclavonians, Morlaques, and Albanois, arm'd with long Swords and Carbines, and great Enemies to the Turks. The Cavalry is compoſed in part of theſe Capelets, and in part of Italians, and Ultramontains, that is, Germans and French. When the States engage in any War, they chuſe ſome Foreign Prince General of their Army, but give him two General Proveditors as Aſſiſtants, who leaving him the Title of Generaliſſimo, are generally Maſters of the Reſolutions and Undertakings relating to the Army. They have no certain Naval Army in time of Peace, but can Arm and fit out 25 Gallies upon a ſhort Warning; and have for the moſt part, a Squadron of ſix Gallies, with ſome Galiots and Brigantins in the Gulf, cruiſing againſt the Corſairs. Theſe Ships are commanded in chief by a Noble Venetian of the firſt Rank, that has the Title of General of the Gulf: The States never truſt the Command of their Fleet to any Stranger in War-time, as they do their Land-Forces. The conſtant Revenues of the Commonwealth ſcarce amount to above fourteen or fifteen Millions of Livres, whereof the City of Venice pays the one half in Cuſtoms and other Impoſitions; the other half is raiſed the ſame way in the Iſlands and Provinces. There are ſeveral other things that augment the Standing Revenues, as the Caſualties of Court, the Sale of Offices, Confiſcations, &c. The Salt made at Corfou brings two Millions, and that of Chioſa a Million yearly. In the War-time they raiſe the Cuſtoms, Tax thoſe that live moſt at eaſe, eſpecially the Jews and Clergy, by the Pope's conſent, ſell the Title of Nobility to the richer ſort, and by ſuch Practices ſupport the Burthen to the Admiration of all Europe. It's now very Flouriſhing by its late Conqueſts under Moroſini, who has ſubdued all Morea, the Iſle of Negropont, with ſeveral other important Places. The Venetians affect a great deal of Gravity in their Actions, ſpeak very little at Table, are very ſevere where they have Authority, and many times to Exceſs: And yet ſuch is the conſtant Temper of their Government, and their Impartiality in doing Juſtice, that they are very well obey'd, and generally well belov'd of all their Subjects; eſteem'd in former times good Soldiers both by Sea and Land, maintaining Wars continually with the Turks in Paleſtine, the Emperors of Conſtantinople, the Genoeſe by Sea, and their Neighbours of Italy in the Continent; but of late times they have more ſtudied to preſerve than inlarge their Dominions, and that too rather by Expence of Money than Blood; ſo Fortunate in this laſt kind of Practice, that Machiavel obſerved of them, that whatever they loſt by War, they recover'd by Treaty. It's impoſſible to take Venice but by an Army which can ſtretch 150 Miles in compaſs: By Rialto runs the grand Canal, 1300 Paces in length, and 40 in breadth, adorn'd on both ſides with ſtately and magnificent Palaces, and cover'd with an incredible number of Boats call'd Gondolo's very neatly built, and vail'd over with Cloth. Each Pariſh Church hath its Market-place and Well belonging to it. The Church of St. Mark is eſteem'd the richeſt Church in the World, of admirable Work both within and without; this laſt being adorn'd with 148 Pillars of Marble, and eight of Porphyry near the Door, beſides 600 Marble Pillars of a leſſer ſize, which carry up an open Gallery round about the Church, for the Magiſtrates and principal Citizens to behold ſuch Shews as are preſented in the Market-place adjoining to it. For private Houſes there are above 200 along the grand Canal, capable to entertain or lodge the greateſt Prince in Chriſtendom: Their Arſenal is a Prodigy, there being always 200 Gallies in a readineſs, 100000 Arms of all ſorts, amongſt which are 1000 Coats of Plate, garniſh'd with Gold and cover'd with Velvet, fit for the Uſe and Wearing of the greateſt Princes. Sannazarius, a late Italian Poet, gives us this Epigram upon Venice.

Viderat Adriacis Venetam Neptunus in undis
Stare urbem & toto ponere jura Mari:
Nunc mihi Tarpeias quantumvis Jupiter arces,
Objice, & illa tui mænia Martis ait:
Si Pelago Tibrim præfers urbem aſpice utramque,
Illam homines dices, hanc poſuiſſe Deos.

In Engliſh thus:

Neptune ſaw Venice in the Adrian ſtand,
And all the Sea brought under her Command:
Now Jove, ſaid he, thy Roman Towers object,
And thoſe proud Walls which Mars did once protect:
Before the Sea, if Tiber thou prefer,
Behold both Cities and thou wilt aver,
That Men built Rome, and Gods plac'd Venice there.

The Doge's Revenue is as little as his Authority, being allow'd out of the common Treaſury no more than 40000 Ducats a Year towards his Expence and Entertainment. This Commonwealth has laſted longer under one Form of Government than any Republick in the World, either Greek or Roman, and is juſtly accounted one of the ſtrongeſt Bulwarks of Chriſtendom againſt the Incroachments of the Turks, and one of the beſt Supporters of the Arms of Europe. The greateſt Evidence of the Power they can make at Sea, was the great Fleet ſet out againſt the Grand Signior for the War of Cyprus, Anno 1570. in which they manned out one great Gallion, 11 great Gallies, 25 tall Ships, and 150 Gallies of leſſer Burthen, being in all 187 Sail fit for preſent Service. They held a War by Sea and Land for ſeven Years together, againſt all the Princes of Chriſtendom, excepting England, confederated againſt them by the League of Cambray, in all which time they neither wanted Men nor Money, and in the end were the leaſt loſers by the Bargain. Venice ſtands 260 Miles from Rome to the North, 280 from Vienna to the South, 100 from Ravenna to the Weſt, 15 from Milan to the Eaſt. *Pierro Bembo Hiſt. VENIERO (Francis) a Noble Venetian, was a Perſon of the greateſt Genius, and the beſt Philoſopher and States-man the City of Venice ever produc'd: Being but young, he wrote ſeveral Treatiſes, Of the Will, Of the Soul, and of Deſtiny, all in Italian. Afterwards he behav'd himſelf with great Prudence and Integrity in ſeveral conſiderable Employments. He liv'd to a great Age, and died when he was concern'd in recovering the Intereſt and Splendor of the Univerſity of Padua; having ſometime before publiſh'd his Book of Generation. Ghilini, Teat. d' Huom Letter. pars prima.

VENIUS (Octavius) a Dutch Painter of a conſiderable Family of Leyden, where he was born in 1556. The Prince of Parma and Archduke Albert gave him good Imployments, which did not hinder him from uſing the Pencil and compoſing Books. The King of France made him great Offers to come to France, but he could never be prevail'd upon to leave his Country or his Prince's Service. He publiſh'd Bellum Batavorum cum Rom. ex Cornelio Tacito, lib. 4. & 5. cum iconibus Hiſt. Hiſp. Infantum latæ cum iconibus. Concluſiones Phyſicæ & Theologicæ notis & figuris diſpoſitæ, &c.

VENNES, a Town of France in Britany, with a Biſhop's See Suffragant of Tours. It's ſpoken of in ancient Authors, under the name of Venetiæ and Dariorigum Venetorum. The Wars have deprived it of part of its ancient Luſtre, but it begins now to flouriſh again ſince Lewis XIV. has removed the Parliament thither from Rennes. It lyes but two Leagues from the Sea, which Ebbs and flows there, by means of the Canal called the Morbithan. The ancient Caſtle of Hermine, that was formerly the Palace of the Dukes of Britany, is ſeen there ſtill; as alſo the Cathedral of St. Peter, which has a conſiderable Chapter, with ſeveral other Churches. Strabo, Pliny, Cæſar, du Cheſne, St. Martha.

VENOSA upon Ofanto, a Town and Principality of the Kingdom of Naples in the Baſilicate, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Matera, united to that of Cirenza. Its Latin Name is Venuſia or Venuſium; it's ancient and famous for being Horace's Birth-place.

VENTIDIUS (Baſſus) a Roman of mean Birth, being a long time nothing but a Muleteer, became ſo famous in the Army, firſt under Julius Cæſar, and afterwards under M. Antonius, that he riſe to all the great Offices of the Roman Government; for he was Tribune of the People, Pretor, High-Prieſt; and at laſt a Conſul; defeated the Parthians thrice, triumph'd, and after his Death was buried very honourably. A. Gell. lib. 15.

VENUS, which the Ancients made Goddeſs of Love, was Daughter of Jupiter and Dione; others ſay, ſhe was formed of the Froth of the Sea, and will have it that there was another Venus, ſirnam'd Urania or Celeſtis. Venus was married to Vulcan, but had no Children by him, though ſhe is called the Mother of Hymeneus, of Love or Cupid, of the Graces, and ſome others. She loved Adonis and Anchiſes paſſionately, and was particularly adored at Paphos, and in the Iſle Cithera. Ovid Metam. Hygin.

VER SACRUM, was a ſolemn Sacrifice which the Romans offer'd their Gods upon very important Occaſions, and when the Commonwealth was hardeſt preſt: In this Sacrifice they offer'd every thing that was brought forth during one Spring, throughout their whole Dominions. 'Tis believ'd, that the Sabins begun this Practice in their War againſt the Umbrians; in which, having been ſeveral times beaten, they made a Vow to Mars, that upon condition they got the Victory, they would Sacrifice every Animal to him that was produc'd the enſuing Spring. It happen'd, that they gain'd a conſiderable Victory, and to make good their Vow, they ſacrific'd all the Bruit Animals the Spring ſent 'em; but upon Reflexion, that their Vow run in general terms without exception, they were afraid their Children were comprehended in it; ſo that between Religion and natural Affection, they found themſelves in great Perplexity: At laſt, they found out an Expedient to diſentangle the Difficulty in ſome meaſure, which was done by Conſecrating all their Children to Mars, that were born the firſt Spring after the Vow was made. Theſe Children were order'd to ſerve in this pretended Deity's Temples, till they were 20 Years of Age, and after that, all of 'em of both Sexes, were turn'd out of the Country to ſeek their Fortune; theſe poor Wretches, being thus deſerted, were forc'd to ſubmit to Servitude in the Neighbouring Commonwealths; and becauſe they were born in the Spring-time, they were call'd Vernæ from Vere nati. The Error which the Sabins had committed in wording their Vow too generally, made the Romans more cautious afterwards; which made Fabius Maximus, when he was choſen Dictator againſt Hannibal, be very nice and explicite in this Matter, who in a full Aſſembly before the People, declar'd, That 'twas his Intention to ſacrifice to the Gods all the Lambs, Pigs, Calves and Kids, that ſhould be produced the next Spring-Seaſon in all Italy. In the Year 536 of Rome, the length of the Spring was determin'd, during which time, all the Animals brought forth, fell under the Vow; and this Term the Pontifex Maximus decreed, ſhould begin upon the firſt of March, and end the laſt of April excluſively. Liv. lib. 23. cap. 29. & Lib. 34. cap. 43. *Plutarch. in Fabio. VERA-CRUZ, a Maritime Town of the Province of Tepeaca in Mexico, or New Spain in America. It's ſaid, this Town is Peopled by 200 Spaniſh Families, moſt of them Mariners or Factors that receive Merchandizes from Spain, and Ship that Country Goods for Europe. The great Rains that fall here often from the Month of April to November, make it Unhealthful; but from November to the end of March, it does not Rain at all; and then the Northern Winds do ſo temper the great Heat, that the Air is as pure and good as in any Town of New Spain. The Inhabitants load and unload Ships from April to Auguſt, and then withdraw into the Country far from the Sea, to preſerve their Health. This is the only Port in the Gulph of Mexico, and is called St. Juan de Ulva: The Town ſtood before five Leagues from the Port, but now it is removed nearer to it. Sir John Hawkins in 1578, entred this Port, and might have deſtroy'd twelve rich Spaniſh Ships, but truſting to the Spaniſh Faith, loſt moſt of his own. This was the firſt place Ferdinando Cortez, the renowned Conqueror of Mexico, landed at on Good-Friday, in 1519, with 500 Spaniards, and immediately burnt all his Ships, to let them ſee they muſt Conquer or Die. In 1632, Mr. Gage eſtimated the Inhabitants at 3000, but the Houſes were all built with Timber and covered with Boards, and has been often burnt down to the Ground. It has a Caſtle built on a Rock a Musket-ſhot from the Town, with a ſmall Garriſon for its Defence. Le Laet. Hiſt. du Nouveau Monde.

VERA-CRUZ (Alphonſus de, or Alphonſus Guterez) born at Caſpuenio in the Dioceſe of Toledo, in Spain; liv'd in the 16th Century. He was Divinity Profeſſor at Salamanca, and afterwards turn'd Auguſtinian Monk, and by his Merit run through the moſt conſiderable Stations in his Order. He died in 1564. His Works are, Curſus Artium. Speculum Conjugiorum ſive de Sacramento Matrimonii, &c. Nicholas Antonio Bibl. Hiſp. &c.

VERAGUA, the moſt Eaſtern Province in the Circuit of Guatimala in America, bounded on the Weſt by Coſta Rica, on the Eaſt by the Circuit of Panama, having to the North the Bay of Mexico, and to the South the South Sea. It ſtretcheth from Eaſt to Weſt 50 Leagues, from North to South, where it is leaſt, 25 Leagues; the Soil for the moſt part is Mountainous, and cover'd with Woods, yielding no good Paſture, nor any plenty of Maze, and no Corn, but it has Mines of Gold and Silver. The Inhabitants are Valiant, and oppoſe the Spaniards to the utmoſt. Chriſtopher Columbus diſcover'd this Province in 1502, when the Inhabitants gave the Spaniards the Value of 90 Marks in Gold, for 36 Braſs Bells; and ſaid, there was much Gold in the neighbouring Provinces. This is the moſt Southern Province of North America.

VERA-PAZ, a Province of New Spain in the great Government of Guatimala; it was called thus, becauſe it did not come under the Spaniſh Yoke by the Force of Arms, but through the Preaching of the Friars of St. Dominick's Order. It lyes upon the Frontiers of Guatimala and Hondura, part of the Savages have embraced the Chriſtian Religion, but there are ſome that are not yet ſubdued. The chief Town is Vera-Paz, the Seat of a Biſhop that is Suffragant to the Archbiſhop of Mexico. The Country is full of Mountains and thick Foreſts, that are daily cut down to render the Air the Purer, and the Plains Fruitfuller. The Savages were formerly of Opinion, that the Devil appear'd under the Shape of a Tiger, therefore they ador'd them all as Gods, but now that they are diſabuſed, they purſue them with their Arrows. In the Eaſtern part of Vera-Paz, is the Sweet Gulf or Golfo Dolce, call'd ſo from the Sweetneſs of its Waters: Some Adventurers endeavoured to find a Paſſage by it to the Pacifick Sea, or at leaſt to the Coaſt of Guatimala, but the Endeavour proved Fruitleſs; for having advanced above thirty Leagues in the Gulf, they learn'd of ſome Savages, that the Southern Sea was above 20 Leagues from the Extremity of it; and that the way towards the Coaſt was full of Mountains and inacceſſible Woods. It Rains exceſſively here for nine Months; they have plenty of Corn and Cattel, and Reeds as large as Trees, which ſerve for Building. The Country is poor, having no Trade with any of its Neighbours. De Laet. Hiſt. du Nouveau Monde.

VERCEIL, a Town and Lordſhip of Italy, belonging to the Duke of Savoy; it makes part of Piemont, ſituate upon the River Seſſe, has a Caſtle, a Citadel, fine Churches, and a famous Hoſpital. Verceil flouriſh'd under the Romans, but has had ſeveral Maſters ſince their time; for it has been a Commonwealth, afterwards under the Dukes of Milan, and ſince under thoſe of Savoy. The Spaniards took it from the latter in 1638, but it was reſtor'd again by the Peace of the Pyrenees. The Country is Fertil and well Peopled, lying between Montferrat, Ivree, and Milaneſe; beſides Verceil, it has Biele, Sautia, &c. Pope Leo IX. celebrated a Council here againſt Berengarius, Archdeacon of Angres, who was cited, but did not appear at the ſame. This Town is a Biſhop's See Suffragant of Milan.

VERCINGENTORIX, the famous Gaul that Warr'd againſt Cæſar, was of Auvergne, and had great Credit amongſt his Country-men; his Father had alſo great Authority amongſt the Celtes, but was Aſſaſſinated by his Citizens, becauſe he deſign'd to make himſelf King. He that I ſpeak of, form'd a powerful League againſt the Romans, but it being diſcover'd, he was baniſh'd out of Clairmont; but not concern'd at this Diſgrace, he gather'd ſome Vagabonds together, and encouraged them to take Arms for their Liberty, and with their Aſſiſtance entred the City, and turned them out that had ſerved him ſo before; afterwards he got himſelf declar'd King, and General of almoſt all the Gauls, who had taken Arms. After ſeveral Fights, wherein Cæſar had generally the Advantage, he threw himſelf into Alexia, and held out two Months expecting Relief, but was at laſt forced to Surrender. Cæſar, Strabo, Oroſius.

VERDE (or Velverde,) a City of Peru in a moſt pleaſant Valley of the ſame Name, ſix Leagues in length, planted for the moſt part with Vines, which yield great Plenty of moſt generous Wines, the chief Riches of this Place. The City is beautifully built, very Wealthy, and in 1630 contain'd 500 Spaniſh Inhabitants, one Church, three Monaſteries and an Hoſpital; the Air is Pure aud Healthful, and the Women the moſt Beautiful in Peru: The Governor is nominated by the King of Spain. It ſtands 35 Leagues from Lima to the South, and ſix from the South Sea. South Lat. 14. 10. Laert. p. 436.

VERDIER (Antoine du) Sieur de Vauprias, a French Author, born at Montbriſſon in Foreſt, liv'd in the 16th Century; and is famous for his Bibliotheque, which he wrote of French Authors. He likewiſe made a Supplement to Geſner's Bibliotheque. Memoirs Hiſtoriques.

VERDUN upon the Meuſe, a Town of Lorraine belonging to the King of France, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Treves; Authors call'd it differently Virdunium, Verodunum, Vereduna. Our Ladies Church the Cathedral has a fine Chapter; it had famous Prelates, that ſtil'd themſelves Counts of Verdun, and Princes of the Holy Empire. It's one of the biggeſt, ſtrongeſt, and beſt ſituate of Lorraine; the Meuſe forming ſeveral Iſlands there, that contribute to render it very pleaſant. King Henry II. took it in 1552. St. Marthe.

VERGASILLAUNUS, an Auvergnian Lord, near Kinſman of Vercingentorix, was one of the four Commanders that led the Army of the States of Gaul to the Succor of Aleſia, now called Aliſe. The greateſt Advantage the Gauls had was at his Attack; for his Soldiers forced all the difficult Paſſes that lay in their way to the very Retrenchments; but Cæſar having detach'd a part of his Horſe, and order'd 'em to charge the Enemy in the Rear, whilſt they were charged in the Front by Labienus, they were utterly defeated. Sedulius that headed the Limoſins, was killed, and Vergaſillaunus taken Priſoner in the Retreat. Jul.Cæſar. de Bell.Gall. lib. 7.

VERGERIUS (Peter Paul) a Lawyer, and afterwards Biſhop of Capo d' Iſtria. Pope Paul III. imploy'd him to treat ſome important Buſineſs in Germany, where he imbrac'd the Proteſtant Religion at the very time the Pope deſign'd to make him Cardinal; he perſuaded his Brother that was alſo a Biſhop, into the ſame Belief. He died at Tubingen in 1565. He wrote ſeveral Books againſt the Church of Rome. Paulus Jovius in Elog. Volaterran in Arthr. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 3. *Spondan in Annal. A. VEGERIUS, or DU VERGER DE HAURANE, (Johannes) Abbot of St. Cyran, or rather Siran, in Latin Sigiranni; was born at Bayonne in 1581, and of a Noble Family. He ſtudied firſt in France, and afterwards at Louvaine, where he grew acquainted with Lipſius, who gives him a great Character. He wrote againſt the Calviniſts; but the Book which made him moſt famous, was that which went under the Name of Petrus Aurelius, &c. which he wrote againſt the Jeſuits, in defence of the Hierarchy: This Book was Printed at the charge of the Clergy of France; in the Preface of which, there is honourable mention made of the Author, who was ſo modeſt as to conceal his Name. Lipſius, *Cent.*4. Ep. 62. & 92. & Cent. 5. Ep. 41. *St. Marthe Gal. VERMA, a Kingdom of the Continent of India, beyond the River Ganges, which has its Capital of the ſame Name. There are a great number of Mines of Precious Stones in this Kingdom; the People go Naked, only hang a piece of Cotton or ſome other Stuff before, to cover their Nakedneſs. Davity de l' Aſie.

VERMANDOIS, a Country of France in Picardy, with the Title of a Dutchy; it formerly had Lords of its own, but now is united to the Crown. Its Inhabitants were the Veromandui of the Ancients. The Capital was Vermand upon Oumignon, called Auguſta Veromanduorum, but now it's but an Abby, and St. Quintin is the chief Place of the Dutchy.

VERNEVIL, Lat. Vernelium, a City in the Upper Normandy, ſituate on the River Aure in the Borders of La Perche, ſometimes called Vernevil au Perche, eight Leagues from Dreux to the Weſt, and ſeven from Seez and Eureux to the South, famous for the Overthrow the Engliſh gave the French in 1424, killing 4500 upon the Place; they took alſo the Earl of Narbonne Priſoner, whom they Hang'd for aſſiſting at the Maſſacre of John Earl of Burgundy.

VERNON, a Town of Upper Normandy upon the River Seine, in the Dioceſe of Evreux. The Royal Palace called Verno, or Vernum, or Palatium Vernis, muſt be underſtood of Vernon, and not of Vernueil, a caſtle of the Iſle of France in the Neighbourhood of Oiſe, and is called in Latin Verniolum.

VERON, a little Borough near the Town of Sens in France, there is a clear Fountain that runs by its Walls, and leaves the ſmall Gravel it brings along with it amongſt the Mud and Moſs, which turns it into Stone, ſo that ſometimes part is obſerved to be quite petrified, whilſt the reſt is but diſpoſed to receive the like Form. Paſquier.

VERONA, a Town of Italy in the State of Venice, and Capital of a little Country called the Veronois, with a Biſhop's See Suffragant of Aquileia or Udina. It's called Verona in Latin, and is one of the biggeſt and faireſt Cities of all Italy. The River Adige runs through it, over which are two Bridges to go into St. Thomas's Iſland, all inhabited by a great Number of Silkweavers. There are three Caſtles, a Circus and an Amphitheatre, with ſeveral other famous Monuments, that ſhew the Town is very Ancient. It has had famous Prelates, whereof St. Zeno, to whom the Cathedral is dedicated, was the moſt famous: Pope Lucius the Third's Tomb, with ſome other of ſeveral Biſhops, and the admirable Steeple, deſerve to be ſeen. There are other Churches, magnificent Palaces, a very regular Townhouſe, great Squares, and a thouſand other things well worthy the Curioſity of Travellers. The moſt remarkable Curioſity, and the moſt Noble Antiquity in Verona, is the old Roman Amphitheatre, the moſt entire within-ſide of any now ſtanding, and one of the firſt Magnitude when it was built; the Deſcription of which deſerves a Volume by it ſelf, the Building being beyond imagination Glorious. Theſe wonderful Structures were firſt raiſed by the Romans, for the more convenient Preſenting of Shews and Fights to the People; and theſe Fights were either between Beaſts and Beaſts, Men and Beaſts, or between Men and Men. The Fights between Beaſts and Beaſts are ſtill continued; for the Gentlemen of Verona take that care of this ancient, venerable Building, that there is not at preſent one Stone wanting of all the Seats within; and when they would ſee any ſtrange Hunting, Fighting or Baiting of Beaſts, they preſently enter their own old Amphitheatre, where at this time three or four and twenty thouſand Perſons may ſit and ſee diſtinctly every Action. *Leandre Alberti deſcr. VERONICA, a Name commonly given to Berenice, a Jeweſs, who put a Handkercher upon our Saviour's Face, (when he carry'd his Croſs to Mount Calvary,) to wipe away the Sweat and Blood. Some ſay, the Veronica is properly the Pourtraict of our Saviour's Face, which remain'd imprinted upon this Handkercher, ſo call'd from the two Words Vera, Icon, i. e. True Likeneſs; and by corruption, Veronica: 'Tis believ'd by ſome of the Church of Rome, That this Handkercher lay in three Folds, and our Saviour's Face was taken by all three of 'em; one of which is kept at Rome, another in Spain, and a third at Jeruſalem. Pope Boniface VIII. had this Relique carried from the Church of the Holy Ghoſt to that of St. Peter. There are now ſeveral Copies taken from it. *Baron. VERRES, a Roman Citizen, who after having exerciſed the Charge of Pretor in Sicily, with all the Violence and Injuſtice imaginable, was accuſed by the Sicilians of Extortion. Cicero made them fine Orations againſt him, which we have under the name of Verrem.

VERROCHIO (Andrew) a famous Carver of Florence; he lived in the Sixteenth Age, and carv'd ſeveral Statues, much eſteem'd at Rome, Florence, and Venice, where he died, at 56 Years of Age.

VERSAILLES, a Town and Royal Caſtle, four Leagues from Paris: This ſtately Palace lyes in the middle of a Valley, and all the Avenues open into Countries for Game; ſo that this was but an indifferent Building in Lewis the Thirteenth's time, being then only a Rendezvous for Hunting Matches; for there was but a ſingle Building, with a Front, two Wings with four Pavillions at the end of 'em, and this with a Park and Menagerie belonging to it. But Lewis XIV. intending to keep his Reſidence with a great Court here, begun in 1661 to environ the old Caſtle with one far more Magnificent, and built Hotels or great Houſes for Perſons of Quality, at ſome diſtance from it; and upon the Aveaue of Paris, is built a very regular Borough, both for the Plan and uniform Diſpoſition of Houſes: Though the old Caſtle had its Paintings, and was enrich'd with other Embelliſhments, yet the King not judging it proportionable to the Magnificence of the New, pull'd down the back part in 1678, which has much graced the New, there being now a fair ſight of the Beauty and Symetry of its Apartments, embelliſh'd with the fineſt Paintings and Sculpture of the ableſt Maſters of our Age. Each Apartment has its particular Beauty, and deſerves a larger Deſcription than we can allow to make. The Park of this magnificent Caſtle is of an extraordinary Bigneſs, and comprehends a leſſer with Gardens, where the Fountains play in abundance of agreeable Figures: There being great numbers of Marble and Copper Statues that ſpout up the Waters under ſeveral Forms, into Baſins of moſt curious Workmanſhip; ſo that all the Walks have their particular Beauties. At the coming in on the left hand of the Caſtle, are ſeen the Grotto, the Baſins of the Crown, the Baſin of the Mermaid, the Fountain of the Piramide, the Caſcade of the Water-Alley, the Water-Alley, the Triumphal Arch, the Dragon Fountain, the Pavillion Fountain, the Water-bower, the Fens, Theatre, Baſin of Ceres, the Water-Mountain, the Baſin of Flora, the Banquetting Hall, Apollo's Baſin over againſt the great Canal, the Iſland or great Piece, the Baſin of Saturn, the Thickets or Groves, the Baſin of Bacchus, the Baſin of Latona, the Labyrinth, and the Water Parterre. On the right of the Caſtle is the Orangerie, and on the left ſide of the Canal the fine Pleaſure-houſe Trianon, the out-ſide done all with Porcelaine; over againſt this fine Place, and on the other ſide of the Canal, is the Menagarie, where all Outlandiſh Animals, rarely to be ſeen, are kept. In 1678, the King having a mind that the chief Officers of the Crown ſhould lodge near his Perſon, began to build upon the ſide of the Caſtle towards Paris, two Pavillions of very magnificent Structure, the Roofs of which were ornamented with Feſtons, and gilt Conſoles. The Ground between theſe two Wings, makes the firſt Court. At that ſame time the great and little Stables were built, the firſt towards the left of the Caſtle of Paris ſide, the other on the right; it's thought there are no Buildings in Europe that equal theſe, either for Symmetry or Conveniency; there are generally Five hundred Horſes in them, which are the King's Pads and Hunters. In 1681, another great Building was raiſed on the right of the Caſtle, which is exactly the ſame with the Front of the Caſtle that looks towards the Garden.

VERTICORDIA, according to the Latins, and Apoſtrophia according to the Greeks, the Sirname of Venus call'd Vrania or Celeſtis, Worſhipped by the Antients to get rid of their Laſcivious Paſſions, and give themſelves altogether up to the Pleaſures of the Underſtanding. The Romans dedicated her a Temple in Marcellus's time, by Advice of the Books of the Sybils, and called her Verticordia, becauſe ſhe turn'd the Hearts of Debauch'd Women, and excited them to a more honeſt Life. Young Girls went thither to offer certain little Babies that they play'd with in their Infancy. Pauſ. lib. 9.

VERTISCUS, General of the People of Rheims, though unable to ſit a Horſe, through his great Age, yet ſo far from ſhunning the Fight, that he ſought it; being a thing cuſtomary amongſt the Gauls, to endeavour to end their days in ſuch honourable ways. Hirtius de Bello Gall.

VERTUE, Goddeſs of the Ancients. Her Temple at Rome joyn'd that dedicated to Honour, and was contriv'd ſo, that there was no coming into the latter but by the firſt, to ſhew that Vertue was the way to true Honour. She was painted ſeveral different ways; ſometimes as a Gentlewoman of Quality, to ſhew the Veneration that People ought to have for her: ſometimes as a Man all arm'd, to ſhew her Courage and Conſtancy: But Lucian draws her a quite different way; for he deſcribes her, in his Dialogues, Melancholy, ſore Afflicted, ill Clad, and abuſed by Fortune, ſo that ſhe was forbid appearing before Jupiter, that is, ſhewing her ſelf before great Perſons, or aſpiring to Honours. She had two Temples built her at Rome, one by Caius Marius, the other by Marcellus in the time of his firſt Conſulſhip. Amongſt the different ways ſhe was repreſented, there was that where ſhe appear'd like a grave and modeſt Woman, clad in a plain White Apparel, and ſeated upon a ſquare Stone, to ſhew her Candor, Simplicity, and Conſtancy. She alſo appear'd in the Shape of a venerable Old Man, with a long Beard, leaning upon a Staff, and covering himſelf with a Lyon's Skin. The Beard mark'd Wiſdom, that is generally the Daughter of Experience: the Club denoted the Strength and Firmneſs, and the Lyon's Skin the Generoſity of Mind. All this learns Men that they cannot be juſtly called Vertuous, without being Maſters of all theſe Qualities.

VERTUMNUS, God of Gardens, called ſo becauſe he chang'd his Form in all Seaſons. Poets will have him to be the Husband of Pomona Goddeſs of Fruits. He is called Protheus by the Greeks. See Protheus.

VERTUMNALES, Feaſts celebrated at Rome in Honour of the God Vertumnus, which ſome believ'd was called ſo from the Latin Word Vertere, to turn, change, &c. becauſe they made him preſide over Commerce and Traffick where Merchandiſes are exchang'd. Others think he preſided over Mens Thoughts, which are unconſtant and changeable; but the commoneſt Opinion was, that he was God of Gardens, and as another Proteus, aſſum'd what Form he pleaſed. Theſe Feaſts were kept in Autumn, becauſe that being the time Fruit was gathered, they thank'd this Deity for preſerving them to perfect Maturity. Alexander ab Alexandro, l. 6. c. 8.

VERUE, a Town of Piemont in the County of Aſt upon the Frontiers of Montferrat, and the Banks of the Po, 16 Miles from Turin towards Caſal. It ſtands upon an Eminence, and is well Fortified. The Spaniards laid Siege to it, but to little purpoſe, in 1625.

VERVINS, a little Town of Tierache in Picardy a Province of France. It's famous in Hiſtory for the Peace concluded there in 1598, between the Kings of France and Spain. The Antients called it Verbinum. It lies between Capelle and Male, from which it is but 4 Leagues diſtance. Baud.

VERULAM, Lat. Verolamium, an ancient Roman City and Colony, mentioned by Tacitus and Ptolomy, in Hartfordſhire, the Royal City of Caſſibelanus a Britiſh Prince, Contemporary with Julius Cæſar, by whom this City was taken 52 Years before the Birth of our Saviour in his ſecond Expedition into Britain, and under Diocleſian had one famous Martyr called Albanus. In 429 there was a Britiſh Synod held here by S. German Biſhop of Auxerre in France againſt the Pelagians. Soon after it fell into the hands of the Saxons about 465, but was retaken by Vther Pendragon, who began his Reign in 498, and reign'd 18. Again retaken by the Saxons, and entirely ruined. In 975 Offa King of the Mercians, built on the other ſide of the little River which waſh'd the Walls of it, a goodly Monaſtery in honour of St. Alban. It became a great Town. King James I. revived the Memory of this place, when he made Sir Francis Bacon, then Lord Chancellor of England, Lord Verulam, in 1620; who dying without Iſſue, the Title failed.

VESAL or Veſalius (Andrew) a famous Phyſician and Anatomiſt, who flouriſhed in the 16th Age. He was born at Bruxelles, was Phyſician to Charles V. and afterwards to his Son Philip. He died at his Return from the Holy Land, being caſt by a Storm upon the Deſarts of the Iſle of Zanthe. The occaſion of his Voyage to Jeruſalem was this: Having a Spaniſh Gentleman under Cure who after ſome time appear'd to him to be really dead, he ask'd his Friends leave to open him; which being granted, he no ſooner put his Razor in the Body, but he obſerved ſome ſigns of Life; and having open'd his Breaſt, ſaw his Heart beat. The dead Man's Friends hearing of this ſad Accident, not only proſecuted Veſal as a Murtherer, but accuſed him of Impiety before the Inquiſition, hoping he might be puniſhed with more Rigour by the Judges of that Tribunal. Theſe would have him puniſhed according to the nature of the Crime; but the King of Spain, partly by his Authority, and partly by his Intreaties, got him acquitted, upon condition, that to expiate the Crime, he ſhould go in Pilgrimage to the Holy Land. Thuanus relates another very particular thing of him, viz. That having foretold Maximilian of Egmont Count of Bure in Guelderland the Day and Hour of his Death, this Lord order'd a very ſplendid Feaſt, loaded the Table with all his Plate, invited his Friends, ſat down with them, preſt them to be merry, diſtributed his Treaſures liberally amongſt them: then having taken his Leave, without any Emotion in the leaſt, laid him down, and died the ſame Hour that Veſal had foretold.

VESEL, a Hanſe Town, with a Citadel, upon the Rhine, belonging to the Dutchy of Cleves in Germany, is a ſtrong place, often taken and retaken both by the Spaniards and Hollanders, who were Maſters thereof from 1629, until the French, under the Prince of Conde, took it in 1672, after two days Siege; and having demoliſhed the Fortifications, gave it two Years afterwards to the Duke of Brandenburgh, to whom it belongs now. It was formerly a Free Imperial Town; but the Emperor Rodolphus I. gave it to Thierry VIII. Count of Cleves. It's ſituate near the Confluence of the Lippe and Rhine, four German Miles from the Town of Gueldre, and thirteen Northwards of Juliers. Baud.

VESPASIAN (Titus Flavius) Emperor, of the Family of the Flavians, which was in no very great eſteem before his time. Through Narciſſus's Favour he got the Command of the Armies of Germany and England, where he overcame the Barbarians, and ſubdued two powerful Nations and 22 Towns: He govern'd Africa with much Integrity, yet he was forced to quit Rome in Nero's Reign, who was enraged to ſee him ſleep whilſt he repeated Verſes. It's ſaid there was a Prophecy all over the Eaſt, that the Maſter of the World ſhould come out of that Country; whereupon the Jews interpreting it in their own Favour, revolted; Nero who had recall'd Veſpaſian a little before, diſpatched him with an Army to bring them back to their Duty. His Succeſs here was very great; he defeated the Jews in ſeveral Rencounters, took Aſcalon, Japha, Joppa, Gamala, and divers other places, and had thoughts of laying Siege to Jeruſalem. In the mean time Nero being dead, and Galba, Otho, and Vitellius, his Succeſſors, not out-living him long, Veſpaſian was ſaluted Emperor by the Army the 1ſt of July 69. He in the beginning made ſome Difficulty to accept of the Dignity, but the Soldiers forced him to it, and the Senate approved their Choice. He was received at Rome with great Acclamations and Joy, all People conceiving great hopes to ſee all things re-eſtabliſh'd under a Prince eſteem'd as Prudent as he had ſhewn himſelf Valiant. He ſent his Son Titus into the Eaſt, who put a happy end to the Jewiſh War, by taking the Town of Jeruſalem, and received the Honour of Triumph with his Father. Veſpaſian baniſh'd the Philoſophers out of Rome, becauſe they gave themſelves the liberty of cenſuring all things. After this he built the Temple of Peace, and died the 24th of July 79, being then 69 Years of Age. He was a great Prince both in War and Peace, nothing but Avarice ſtaining the Luſtre of his Actions. Dion reports, That when Veſpaſian was in Alexandria, two Men came before him, the one Blind, and the other wanting the uſe of his Hand, and deſir'd he would render them their Sight and Health. The Emperor would not hear them at firſt, but being much importun'd, put ſome of his Spittle in the Blind Man's Eyes, and paſſed his Foot over the other's Hand, as they had deſir'd; whereupon the firſt recover'd his Sight, and the other the free uſe of his Hand. Dion adds, That both theſe declar'd they came in Obedience to the Oracle of Serapis, which had given them this Advice. This Serapis was the firſt or chief of the Falſe Gods ador'd by the Egyptians. Sueton. Aurelius Victor. Joſephus.

VESPRIM, in Latin Veſprimum, and Weisbrun in High Dutch, a Town of Hungary, with a Biſhop's See Suffragant of Strigonium, or Gran. It belongs to the Houſe of Auſtria, and is Capital of a pretty conſiderable County, to which ſhe has given her Name. It was taken by the Turks, and retaken by the Emperor in 1565.

VESPUCIUS (Americus) famous for his Voyages and Diſcoveries in the New World called America: He was an Italian, and Native of Florence; his Father being a Merchant, bred him ſo too, which gave him occaſion to ſail to Spain and elſewhere. He was Witty, Patient, Courageous, and Undertaking. Chriſtopher Columbus's Diſcovery of a New World in the Atlantick Sea, gain'd ſuch great Reputation to Ferdinand and Iſabelle Kings of Caſtile and Aragon, who furniſh'd him with Ships, that they reſolved to ſend thither again. Americus Veſpucius then in Spain, preſented himſelf, and went as Merchant in Alfonſo de Ojeda's ſmall Fleet: he ſail'd from Spain in the Month of May 1497, and went all along the Coaſts of Paria, then thoſe of the firm Land, to the Gulf of Mexico, and return'd into Spain the 15th of November, 1498. He pretended to be the firſt that diſcover'd the Firm Land that is of the other ſide the Line, and had the Honour to have his Name given to all the great Countries of the Weſt-Indies of America, not only to the Northern or Mexicane, but alſo to the Southern or Peruane, which was not diſcover'd till 1525, by Francis Pizarro, a Spaniard. A Year after this firſt

Voyage, Veſpucius went a ſecond, and commanded ſix Ships, with which he was at the Antilles, and afterwards upon the Coaſts of Guinea and Venizuela, then return'd to Cadiz in the Month of November 1500. The Spaniards did not much conſider nor acknowledge their Obligation for his Pains, whereat he was much troubled. In the mean time Emanuel the Great, King of Portugal, through a ſecret Emulation of Ferdinand and Iſabelle's great Fame, had ſent and diſcover'd ſome Places too; and underſtanding Veſpucius's Diſcontent, invited him into his Kingdom, and gave him three Ships to undertake a third Voyage into the Indies: Americus accepted the Offer, ſet out from Lisbon the 13th of May 1501, went along the Coaſts of Africa as far as Sierra Liona, and the Coaſt of Angola: afterwards ſail'd along the Coaſts of Braſil, which he diſcover'd all to that of the Patagons, and beyond the River Plata, whence having repaſſed towards Sierra Liona, and the Coaſt of Guinea, he return'd into Portugal the 7th of September 1502. King Emanuel, very well ſatisfied with this Expedition, gave him the Command of ſix Ships, with which he parted the fourth time on the 10th of May 1503, went along the Coaſts of Africa and Braſil in the Deſign of diſcovering a Paſſage by the Weſt to the Molucco's, which has been found ſince. He was at the Bay of All-Saints, as far as the Abrolhos, and the River of Curubabo. But having taken Proviſions only for 20 Months, whereof he was forced to ſpend five upon this Coaſt that he had diſcover'd, deſpairing of being able to go through, by reaſon of the contrary Winds and bad Weather, he reſolved to return to Portugal, where he arriv'd the 18th of June 1504, and was receiv'd with great Joy, becauſe he brought a great quantity of Braſil Wood, and other rich Commodities. It was then he writ his Relation of theſe his four Voyages, and died ſoon after. Lat. Herrera Dec. 1. lib. 1. & 6. Matth. Hiſt. Indiar. lib. 2. &c. Voſſius lib. 3. Hiſt.

VESTA, Goddeſs of the Earth, conſider'd ſometimes as the Mother, and at others as the Daughter of Saturn. Numa Pompilius, ſecond King of the Romans, conſecrated to her an Everlaſting Fire, and to keep it, eſtabliſh'd Prieſteſſes call'd Veſtales, who were priviledg'd to marry after they had paſſed thirty years in this Office: They were puniſh'd rigorouſly when they let it go out, for it could not be lighted but by Fire from Heaven, or with the Rays of the Sun. They were buried alive when they ſinned againſt Chaſtity. Tit. Liv. Plutarch.

VESTALIA, Feaſts the Romans celebrated in the Month of June, in Honour of the Goddeſs Veſta. They kept their Feaſts in the Streets before their doors, and choſe ſome Meſſes which they ſent to this Goddeſs's Temple: They led about the Town ſeveral Aſſes crown'd with Flowers, and having Collars of certain bits of Paſte, in form of little round Cakes: The Mills were alſo adorn'd with Noſegays; and there was no Work done that day. The Roman Dames went bare-foot to the Temple of Veſta, and to the Capitol, where there was an Altar dedicated to Jupiter Piſtor, that is, the Baker. It's obſerved in Hiſtory, that Brutus made himſelf Maſter of Spain on the day of this Feaſt, and that M. Craſſus was defeated by the Parthians on the ſame day. Dempſter, Sigonius.

VESULE, now Mont-viſo, a Mountain near the Alps, between Dauphine to the Weſt, and Piemont to the Eaſt; where the Po has its ſource from two fine Fountains.

VESUVIUS, a Mountain in Terra di Lavoro in the Kingdom of Naples, eight Miles from the Town of Naples, and near a Caſtle called Somma, wherefore the Italians call it, Il Monte di Somma. This Mountain caſts up Fire from time to time, and deſtroys all round it: There were five of theſe Inundations of Flames before Auguſtus's Reign, and fifteen ſince; the firſt in 81 after the Birth of Chriſt; the ſecond in 243, the third in 421, the fourth in 685, the fifth in 983, the ſixth in 993, the ſeventh in 1036, the eighth in 1038, the ninth in 1138, the tenth in 1139, the eleventh in 1430, the twelfth in 1500, the thirteenth in 1631, the fourteenth in 1660. It's manifeſt, by the difference of theſe times, that the Conflagrations are very irregular, there being an Interval of almoſt 300 Years between ſome, as fourth and fifth, and ſcarce a whole Year between others, as the ninth and tenth. The laſt of all began the 14th of Auguſt 1682, and cover'd all the Country of Maſſe that lies about it with Aſhes of a very bad ſmell; the Flames reach'd as far as the Woods of Otajano, where they did great damage; the 16th there were great Rains; the 20th an Earthquake that laſted for three hours, and was felt as far as Naples; the 22d, towards night, the Mountain caſt a great quantity of Aſhes and Smoak towards Mandaloni, and afterwards a ſhower of ſmall Coals, whilſt in the mean time the Earth ſhook, and a frightful Noiſe was heard: a little after there appeared Flames of the colour of Blood, and it Thunder'd enough to frighten the moſt Reſolute. The 23d it rain'd ſo that it was believ'd it would quench the Fire, but yet that continued, and raiſed Aſhes, which were carried ſo far, that the City of Naples was full. In fine, on the 24th the Mountain threw up white Aſhes, and then all was over. Recupiti.

VETRANIO, General of the Roman Army under the Emperor Conſtantius, got himſelf declar'd Emperor in Pannonia in 350. Magnentius having revolted about the ſame time, the Emperor took the Field againſt both; but to go on with more ſecurity, he gain'd Vetranio from the others Friendſhip, and then ſpoke his Soldiers ſo fair, that they forced the Uſurper to quit the Purple, and reſolve to live a private Life. Ammian. Marcellin. Socrates.

VETURIA, Mother of Coriolanus, accompanied with Volumnia, and ſeveral other Roman Ladies, viſited him in his Camp, when he laid Siege to Rome, and by their Tears prevail'd with him to raiſe the Siege. Volumnia, Coriolanus's Wife, carried two of his little Children along with her, which made an Impreſſion upon him. The Senate, to honour the Memory of thoſe Noble Ladies, built a Temple to Fortune, wherein Women ſacrific'd on the day the Enemy drew off. Tit. Liv.

VEXIN, a Country divided into two; viz. Vexin François, or French Vexin, and Vexin Normand. The firſt is in the Province of the Iſle of France, between the Rivers of Oiſe and Epre, where are the Towns of Pontoiſe, Mante, Meulan, Magni, &c. the ſecond in the Province of Normandy, between the Rivers of Epte and Andelle, where are the Towns of Gilots, Andely, Aumale, Eſtrepagny, S. Cler upon Epte, &c. All this Country is very fertile, and bears Corn in abundance. Baudrand.

VEZELAY, in Latin Vezeliacium and Vizeliacum, an Abbey upon the little River of Cure, in the Country of Moruane and Dioceſe of Autun. Pope Eugenius III. celebrated a Council there in 1145, to recover the Holy Land.

UGENTO, or Vgenti, a Town of Italy in the Land of Otranto, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Otranto: Its Latin Name is Vxentum.

UGURLIMEHEMET, or Gurlumameth, eldeſt Son of Vſſuncaſſan King of Perſia, having brought the Town of Schiras, one of the biggeſt and moſt flouriſhing of the Kingdom of Perſia, under his Subjection, took Arms againſt his Father, who forced him to flee with his Wife and Children to Conſtantinople, where the Grand Signior received him kindly, and gave him an Army to return with to Schiras, and war againſt his Father. In the mean time Vſſuncaſſan got it ſpread abroad, that he himſelf was taken ill, and ſome time after, that he was dead, ſo that Funeral Solemnities were performed all over the Kingdom for him, which made Vgurlimehemet conclude he was really dead; upon which he goes to Tauris, to take Poſſeſſion of his Father's Kingdom, but was ſtrangely diſappointed, for he found his Father ſtill living, who ſoon put him to Death. Meſſer, Ambro, Contarin. His Voyage to Perſia, Giovan, Maria Angiolello.

VIBIUS VIRIUS, Citizen of Capoua, Head of the Revolt in that City in favour of Hannibal, General of the Carthaginians; but finding that his was the weakeſt Party, and that the Town was ready to Surrender to Fulvius who Commanded the Roman Army, he retir'd to his Houſe, accompanied with 27 Senators of his Confederacy, where after a great Feaſt, having drank to Exceſs, to deprive them of any ſenſe of Pain, they took Poiſon, and having embraced one another, ſome ſtaid to be burn'd together upon the ſame Funeral Pile, others return'd to their Homes, where they died before the Town was Surrender'd. Tit. Liv. l. 6.

VICENZA, or Vincenza, in Latin Vincentia, or Vicentia, or Vicetia, a Town of Italy in the State of Venice, and Capital of a little Country called Vicentin, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Aquileia. It has ſeveral fine Palaces, with a great Square, adorn'd with Porticos for Turnaments. The Cathedral is alſo very magnificent, and no ſmall Ornament to the Town, which is one of the moſt ancient of Italy, being built by the Euganei, inhabited by the Heneti, and enlarg'd by the Gauls. After this it was ſubject to the Romans and Lombards, and after great Revolutions and divers Wars fell to the Venetians. It lies ſo amongſt Rivers, that the Situation is advantageous and pleaſant, and its Soil is ſo fruitful, that it deſerves the Name of the Garden of Venice. Its Inhabitants are accuſed of being revengeful, and are generally ſtiled the Aſſaſſines of Vicenza. The Vincentin is between Tirol, la Marcha, Treviſana, le Veronois, and the Padouan. Vicenza is the Capital; the other Towns are Moroſtico, Lonigo, &c. It has at this day more of its old Liberty than any Town under the States of Venice, which appears in the Riches of their Palaces and Churches, many of which are new built: It has alſo a Modern Theatre, built in imitation of the ancient Roman Theatres. This Town lies eighteen Miles from Padua, in a Country like a Garden. Burnet. Dr. Brown obſerved, that its Biſhoprick is eſteemed at 12000 Ducats a Year, and ſaith, by reaſon of ſome very near Hills, it can never be made ſtrong, and therefore has been forced to ſubmit to all that have attempted it, and at laſt ſubmitted to the States of Venice freely of its own meer Motion, in the Year 1404. It was taken by Maximilian I. in 1509, and reſtored in 1516. It is double walled, four Miles in compaſs, with its Suburbs; it has eight Gates, ſeven Bridges, and above 30000 Inhabitants, as Schottus computes them.

VICH, or Vique, a Town of Spain in Catalonia, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Terragone.

VICHY, a Village of Bourbonnois upon the River Allier, where there are ſix Fountains whoſe Mineral Waters are eſteemed very wholſome, as appears by M. Fouet's Obſervations upon their Nature and Effects.

VICO de SORRENTO, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples in Terra di Lavoro, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Sorrento. Its Latin Name is Vicus Æquenſis.

VICTIMS, Beaſts offer'd up in Sacrifice to the Gods, the Barren to the Infernal, and Fruitful to the Celeſtial. To Jupiter were ſacrificed Oxen and white Cocks, to Juno a Cow or Sheep, to Diana a Doe, to Ceres and Cybele a Sow, to the God Pan a Goat or Dog, to Mars a mad Bull, to Neptune a Horſe, a He-goat, or a black Bull, to the God Terminus a Lamb, to Apollo a Horſe, to Minerva a Mare, to Venus a Pigeon or a Turtle, to Iſis a Gooſe, to Bacchus a Kid or a He-goat, and to ſome Deities were offer'd nothing but Fruit, Liquors, and other things of that Nature, as, to the Nymphs Wine ſweetned with Honey, Metheglin, or Milk: but theſe Liquors were likewiſe expended upon the Victims which were offer'd to the other Gods. Macrobius, Aul. Gellius.

St. VICTOR Martyr, was put to Death under the Empire of Diocleſian, his Body being ordered to be laid under a Mill-ſtone that cruſh'd it to pieces: this happen'd in 302. John Caſſian, ſo famous for his Collationes Patrum, built a Monaſtery upon the Tomb of this Saint, which is now that famous Abbey of St. Victor of Marſeille of St. Bennet's Order. Colomeſius has printed the Paſſion of this Saint, reviewed and corrected, at the end of Dr. Cave's Chartophylax. Lond. 1685.

VICTOR, the firſt of this Name Pope, an African by Nation, ſucceeded Eleutherius in 193. There was a great Diſpute in his time about the Celebration of the Feaſt of Eaſter : Victor held a Synod, wherein it was ordered, it ſhould be kept the firſt Sunday after the fourteenth of the Moon of March. The Biſhops of Aſia were for celebrating it as the Jews did, and writ to this Pope about it; who looking upon their Decree to be contrary to the Apoſtolical Tradition, and the general Cuſtom of the Church, return'd a ſharp Anſwer, and ſeparated them from his Communion. This rigorous Proceeding diſpleaſed ſeveral Prelates, and St. Irenæus of Lions reprehended him for it in one of his Letters, but it had no ill Conſequence: and Victor was Martyr'd under the Emperor Severus, July 28. 201, Euſeb. Baronius.

VICTOR II. called Gebehard before, Biſhop of Aichſter in Germany, was put in the Throne after Leo IX. He was choſen at Mayence, led to Rome by the Emperor Henry III. and crown'd 1055. He died at Florence two Years after. Baron. in Annal.

VICTOR III. Prieſt, Cardinal, was choſen after Gregory VII. in 1086, his Name was Didier, Native of Beneventum, and Abbot of Mount Caſſin. It's ſaid his Piety and Learning raiſed him to all theſe Dignities. He died at Mount Caſſin in 1087.

VICTOR de Tmuis, or of Tununes, Biſhop in Africa in the 6th Age, compoſed a ſuccinct Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory from the Beginning of the World to the Emperor Juſtin: He was engaged in the Defence of the three Chapters, whereupon the Emperor baniſh'd him into Egypt; but was recalled again to Conſtantinople, where, becauſe he ſtill maintain'd his former Opinion, he was ſhut up in a Monaſtery, where he died in 566. The part we have of his Chronology begins in 444, where that of Proſper ends. S. Iſidore, Baronius, Voſſius.

VICTOR of Utica, or Uticenſis, as he is commonly call'd, though Rhenanus and Chiffletius call him Vitenſis, was Biſhop in Africa in the fifth Age. He writ the Perſecutions of Africa under the Vandals, in three Books; the beſt Edition of this Work is a Volume in Quarto printed at Dijon by the care of Father Chifflet. Victor himſelf ſuffer'd in this Perſecution of Huneric, but out-liv'd the Tyrant, as appears in his third Book, where he talks of his Death, which was much the ſame with that of Arius. Voſſius, Poſſevin, Baronius.

VICTOR-AMEDEUS, Duke of Savoy, ſucceeded his Father Charles Emanuel in 1630, and gave proofs of his Courage on ſeveral Occaſions: He was Wounded at the Siege of Verrue, and was General of the Armies of France in Italy. He died in 1637, leaving by his Wife Criſtina of France, Daughter of Henry the Great, his Royal Highneſs of Savoy, Charles Emanuel II. with ſeveral other Children.

VICTOR, of Capua, Biſhop of that City in Italy, liv'd about the middle of the 6th Century. He was eminent for Learning and Piety. He tranſlated into Latin Ammonius's Book, call'd Harmonia Evangelica, which Victor miſtook for a Compoſition of Tatian's. He wrote likewiſe, Cycli Paſchalis, in which he diſputes againſt the Paſchal Canon of Victorius, and proves, that for the Year 455 Eaſter was to be kept on the VIIth of the Kalends of May, and not upon the XVth, according to the Computation of Victorius. Catena in quatuor Evangelia ex veterum Scriptis conſarcinata. Beda lib. de Temp. cap. 49. Biblioth. Patrum. Bellarmin. de Script. Eccl. Feuardentius, &c.

VICTORIN MARCUS PIAVONIUS, was aſſociated to the Empire by Poſthumus Uſurper of Gaul, and on ſeveral Occaſions ſhewed he neither wanted Courage nor Conduct. One of his own Party, call'd Aterianus, whoſe Wife he had violated, got him aſſaſſinated. His Son Victor, whom he had placed upon the Throne, periſhed at the ſame time, and both were buried at Cologne. Trebellius Pollio.

VICTORIN (Caius) or Fabius Marius, an African by Nation, lived in the fourth Age, and taught Rhetorick at Rome, where he was much eſteemed. The moſt conſiderable Senators, who were his Scholars, for a publick Acknowledgment of his great Merit, erected him a Statue in the publick Place of Rome : he was then a Pagan, but being converted in his latter days, writ ſeveral Books: St. Jerom cites them againſt the Arians : it's true they were obſcure, and his Commentaries upon St. Paul's Epiſtles did not very well agree with that Apoſtle's Senſe; but this may be excuſed in him who had not applied himſelf to the reading of Scripture until he was very crazy. St. Jerom, St. Auguſtin, Bellarmine, Baronius.

VICTORINA, or Victoire, Wife or Mother of that Victorin whom Poſthumus aſſociated to the Empire: She was very troubleſome to the Emperor Aurelian in Gaul, having perſuaded Tetricus to uſurp the Empire: She was called the Mother of Armies, and had nothing of the Temper of her Sex, but her Natural or Violent Death deliver'd Aurelian from the Fear her Wit and Courage put him in. Trebellius Pollio.

VICTORINUS (Petabionenſis) Biſhop of Petaw in the Upper Pannonia, liv'd in the 3d Century, and was a Martyr in the beginning of the 4th. He wrote Commentaries upon a great Part of the Scriptures, as we may learn from St. Jerom, who ſays of him, That his Senſe was great, though his Elocution was but ordinary. He has been charg'd as a Favourer of the Doctrine of the Millenaries; but Sixtus Senenſis clears him of this Imputation. St. Jerom. De vir. illuſt. cap. 74. In Epiſt. in Ezech. Gelaſius in Decret. Bed. Uſuardus. Ado-Vien. & Baronius in Martyr. Sixtus Senenſis lib. 6. Bibl. S. Annot. 347.

VICTORIO, or Victorius Marianus, born in Aquitania, and one of the beſt Mathematicians of his Time. Pope Hilarius, being ſatisfy'd of his Capacity, and conſidering that the Paſchal Cycle made by Theophilus of Alexandria was almoſt run out, puts Victorius upon making a new one, which he perform'd, beginning at the Paſſion of our Saviour, and making it reach to the Year 532. This Work was done in the Year 464 or 465. Gennadius in Catal. cap. 48. Iſidor. lib. 6. Orig. cap. 17. Beda lib. de ſex Ætat. & Rat. Temp. cap. 48. Baronius, &c.

VICTORIUS or Victor (Peter) born in the 15th Century, and extracted from a noble Family of Florence. He was a great Maſter in the Belles Lettres, as appear'd firſt by his Reviſion of Tully's Works. Afterwards, he made Remarks upon the Remains of Cato, Varro, and Columella. He likewiſe gain'd great Reputation by publiſhing his 25 Books Variorum Lectionum, &c. by his Commentaries upon the Politicks and Philoſophy of Ariſtotle. Theſe Performances made Victorius very much courted, both by the Italian Princes and others. Coſmo de Medicis employ'd him in ſeveral Embaſſies to Pope Julius III. who, to ſhew the Value he had for him, Knighted him firſt, and then made him a Count. To conclude with him, his Life was both proſperous and long, reaching to the Age of 87, dying in the Year 1585.

VICTORY, a Goddeſs ador'd by the Ancients, and eſteem'd by Varro Daughter of Heaven and Earth. The Romans, during their Wars with the Samnites, built her a Temple under the Conſulſhip of L. Poſthumius and M. Attilius Regulus, and dedicated to her the Temple of Jupiter in the Capitol. After the Defeat of Cannæ, according to Titus Livius, L. Sylla eſtabliſhed Plays in her Honour. The Athenians did alſo conſecrate a Temple to her in their City, and painted her without Wings, that ſhe might not fly away from them, as the Lacedemonians had Mars chain'd to keep him always with them. But ſhe was commonly repreſented in the ſhape of a young Woman with Wings, holding in one hand a Crown of Laurel or white Olive, and in the other a Branch of Palm, adorn'd with Trophies: and ſometimes ſhe was repreſented arm'd, with a briſk Countenance, all in a Sweat, and cover'd with Duſt, diſtributing with bloody hands the Spoil and Priſoners to the Victorious. The Egyptians in their Hieroglyphicks repreſent Victory by an Eagle, becauſe he ſurpaſſes all other Birds in Vigour and Courage; for which reaſon alſo the Romans had one in their Standards. Victory is eſteemed a Goddeſs, Daughter of Heaven and Earth, becauſe all the Victories and Conqueſts upon Earth are through the Favour of Heaven: She is painted Young and Fair, to manifeſt her Vigour, and the charming Luſtre of her Glory: Her Sex and Wings denote the Inconſtancy and doubtful Succeſs of Wars: The Laurel, by its perpetual Verdure, intimates the eternal Renown of the Victorious; and the Palm ſignifies invincible Courage, becauſe this Tree ſtrives and raiſes it ſelf, though never ſo much preſſed down, and becauſe its Wood is not ſo ſubject (if at all) to Corruption, as that of other Trees.

VIDA (Marcus Hieronymus) born at Cremona in Italy, was Biſhop of Alba, a Town in the Dutchy of Montferrat; and was famous for his Learning and Probity: to be a little particular, He was very conſiderable in the polite part of Learning, an excellent Poet and a great Divine: There are admirable ſtroaks in his Poem Of the Art of Poetry. His Chriſtiados has a great deal of Wit and Piety in't: and his Poem of Cheſs is remarkable both for Thought and Expreſſion: but his Maſter-piece is that upon the Silk-worms. This Prelate, after having behav'd himſelf to advantage in his Epiſcopal Function, died in the Year 1566. Beſides the Poems abovementioned, he wrote Hymni, Bucolica, Epiſtola ad Johannem Matheum Gibertum. Dialogi de Reipublicæ Dignitate. Carmen Paſtorale in obitum Julij 2*dæ. Conſtitutiones Synodales Martyrium Sancti Dalmatij. Liber de Magiſtratu. Thuan. Hiſt. Lil. Girald.*

VIDAMES, Officers under the Biſhops of France, for the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, and preſerving the Rights of the Church. This Name comes from Vice-Dominus, which ſignifies a Lord's Subſtitute or Deputy. 'Tis thought that theſe Vidames reſembled the ancient Oeconomy, whoſe buſineſs it was, to take care of the Temporalities of the Biſhoprick: In proceſs of time theſe Offices became hereditary, being made Fees, held of their reſpective Biſhops, from whoſe Sees they take their Titles, as the Vidame of Rheims, Amiens, &c. Du Cange Gloſſar. Lat.

VIDOMAR, Viſcount of Limoges, having found in his Lands ſome Statues of Gold that repreſented an Emperor ſitting at Table with his Wife and Children, he fairly gave the one half to Richard King of England and Count of Poitou, his Lord, who pretended that the whole was his Right: The Viſcount refuſing to deliver the reſt, drew a War on himſelf, that ended in the Siege of Chalus; for after ſome Aſſaults given and ſuſtained, there were Propoſals of Agreement made, which being rejected by King Richard, a Gentleman called Bertrand of Gourdon, then in the Caſtle, ſeeing the King at the Head of the Forlorn Hope, took his Aim, and wounded him mortally with an Arrow. This hapned in 1196. Deuplix, Paulus Æmilius, &c.

VIENNA upon the Danube, which the Germans call Wien, and the Latins Vienna, and formerly Flaviana, Juliobona, and Flavianum, a Town of Germany, Capital of Auſtria, with a Biſhop's See Suffragant of Saltzbourg. The Name Vienna is deriv'd of that of the little River Vien, that joyns the Danube at this Town. It belongs to the Arch-duke of Auſtria, and is own'd Capital of all Germany, becauſe the Emperor keeps his Reſidence in it. Soliman II. Emperor of the Turks, laid Siege to it the 26th of September 1529, with an Army of 200000 Men; but his Cannon being ſunk and made uſeleſs by the Governor of Presbourg in their way up the Danube, after two general Aſſaults in vain, and the News of the March of the Emperor Charles V. to its Relief, he raiſed the Siege October 14. The Turks Beſieged it again in 1532, and 1543, and a fourth time in 1683, when having reduc'd it to great Extremities, it was reliev'd by John III. King of Poland, on the 10th of September (the Anniverſary whereof is religiouſly obſerved here) after it had been violently batter'd from the 14th of the foregoing July by an Army of 100000 Turks, who loſt all their Tents, Baggage, Mortars, and Cannon, which amounted to 180 Pieces, whereof ſome were marked with the Arms of the Emperor Ferdinand I. and Rodulph II. the Standard of the Ottoman Empire, engrav'd with theſe Words, There is but one God, and Mahomet is his Prophet. The Creſcent and the Star, the Ottoman Arms, till this had continued engraved upon the higheſt Pinnacle of the Tower of St. Stephen's Church from the Year 1529, when the Citizens placed them there in Acknowledgment of Soliman's Generoſity, in ordering no Shot ſhould be made againſt their Cathedral: but this being not obſerved by the Turks in the laſt Siege, a Croſs was immediately advanced in the place of the Creſcent. Its firſt vigorous Reſiſtance ſhews that it was ſtrong at that time; and yet it was regularly fortified ſince. It's not very big, but the Emperor's Court renders it rich and magnificent. The Prince's Palace is very ſtately, and his Cloſets well furniſhed with Curioſities. The Cathedral, Abbey of St. Gregory, the Jeſuits two Houſes and Colleges, are conſiderable, and well worth being ſeen. There is alſo an Univerſity, founded by Frederick II. in 1237, and re-eſtabliſhed by Albert III. Arch-duke of Auſtria, in 1363. Guy, Cardinal-Legat of the Holy See, celebrated a Council there in 1267. We have the Acts in 19 Canons or Ordinances. The Suburb of Leopolſtad, before the laſt Siege, did almoſt equal the Magnificence of the Town. Le Maiſon des Favourites, and the ſtately Church of the Scots, were the chief Ornaments, beſides which the Court Lords had their fine Palaces there; but all theſe were burn'd during the Siege in 1683. The Cathedral of St. Stephen is famous for its Spire, one of the fineſt in the whole World, adorn'd with Statues and other curious Embelliſhments of Architecture: the Steeple is accounted about 465 foot high. Our Ladies Church is alſo very conſiderable, both for its Bigneſs and the Beauty of its Pillars. The Town is environ'd with 12 good Baſtions, which with the conveniency of the Danube to bring it Proviſions, and the great number of its Inhabitants, render it very ſtrong. The Danube forms the Iſle Preter before the Gates, where a conſiderable Army may lodge conveniently for its Defence. Dr. Brown, in his Travels, gives the following Account of this Place. Vienna is not ſeated upon the main Stream of the Danube, but by a Branch thereof, for the River running through a low Country, it is divided into ſeveral Streams, and makes many Iſlands; a ſmall River named Wien runs by the Eaſt part of the City, and enters the Danube below it. The City is now ſeparated from the Suburbs by a fair Eſplanade or open Ground, above a Muſket-ſhot over; ten of its Baſtions are towards the Land, and two towards the Water, ſo very large, that a great part of the Militia of the City may be muſter'd on any of them; the Ditch is large and very deep, into which although they can let in the River, yet it is commonly kept dry, leſt they ſhou'd incommode their deep Cellars. The whole compaſs, taking in the Suburbs, makes a very large circuit; but the City it ſelf, which is walled in, may be about three Miles in Circumference, and is exceeding populous, and as full of Strangers, for the bigneſs of the place, as moſt in Europe, eſpecially in time of Peace; Turks, Tartars, Grecians, Tranſylvanians, Sclavonians, Hungarians, Croatians, Spaniards, Italians, French, Polanders, Dutch, &c. being ſeen there all in their proper Habits. The City is fairly built of Stone, aud well paved; many Houſes are ſix Stories high, and ſomewhat flat-roof'd, after the Italian way. The Imperial Palace is very noble, ſubſtantial, and Princely furniſh'd, conſiſting chiefly of two Courts; at the Entrance, over the Gate, are ſet in Capital Letters the five Vowels, A, E, I, O, U. whereof Men fancy various Interpretations, as, Auſtriæ eſt Imperare Orbi Univerſo; and Alles Ardreich eſt Oſterreich Untherthan; i. e. all the World is ſubject to Auſtria. Vienna ſtands 26 German Miles from Lintz to the Eaſt, 6 from the Borders of Hungary; 50 from Cracow, 34 from Buda. Long. 39. 10. Lat. 48. 22. The Curioſities of the Emperor's Cloſet are mention'd at large by Dr. Brown in his Travels.

VIENNE upon the Rhone and Gere, a Town of France in Dauphine, Capital of Viennois, with an Archbiſhoprick. It's the Vienna or Vienna Allobrogum of the Ancients, call'd ſo becauſe it's probable the Allobroges were the Founders thereof: But let this be as it will, it's certain Vienne was ſince that time a Roman Colony, Seat of the Senate, and perhaps the Reſidence of the Lord Lieutenant of the Gauls, which made the Romans ſpare no Coſt to render it conſiderable. The Remains of their Buildings to be ſeen there to this very day, are proofs of this Truth; for there are few Towns in France where there have been ſo many. Vienne became Capital of the Kingdom of the Bourgundians, in the fifth Century; but this State being ſhook by Clovis's Victories, and quite overthrown by his Children's Arms, the French were Maſters of it until Lewis the Liſper's time. Boſon, Brother in Law to Charles the Bald, had the Kingdoms of Burgundy and Arles. There have been ſeveral great Changes ſince that time, and Vienne has ſuffer'd very much, eſpecially in the laſt Civil Wars; ſo that it was not without reaſon that ſome ſaid it was buried in its own Ruins: however, it lies now between ſeveral Hills along the Banks of the Rhone: its Length is conſiderable, from the Gate of Lions to that of Avignon; but the Breadth bears no proportion to it. The Metropolis of St. Maurice is a very ſtately Building, and its Archbiſhop takes the Title of Great Primate of the Gauls. The Suffragants are Valence Die, Grenoble, Viviers, St. John of Morienne and Geneva. This Town is Capital of the Country called Viennois, which lies between the Rhone and Iſere. This Situation got it the Name of the Iſland of the Allobroges; and afterwards it was called the State of the Dauphins of Viennois. There have been ſeveral Councils held at Vienne; amongſt others, that wherein the Templer's Order was aboliſh'd, and Pope Boniface VIII's Proceedings againſt Philip the Fair revok'd. Hither Pilate, and Archelaus the Son of Herod the Great, were baniſhed: Valentinian the Younger was here murther'd by Arbagaſtus a treacherous Courtier in 392. Pope Clement V. held a Council here in 1311, which made the Feaſt of Corpus Chriſti inſtituted before by Pope Urban IV. to be univerſally obſerved. In 474, or 477, the Biſhop of Vienne held a Council for the ſettling the Faſts of Rogation-Week. In one held in 1112 the Emperor Henry V. was Excommunicated, and the Treaty betwixt Pope Paſchal II. and him touching Inveſtitures, made null. St. Marthe, Du Cheſne, Genebrard, Bzovius.

VIENNE, in Latin Vigenna, a River of France, that has its Source in Limouſin: It paſſes by Limoges, Confolant, Chauvigni, Chaſtelleraut, enters Tourane, waters Chinon, and empties it ſelf into the Loire at Cande.

VIESTE, in Latin Apeneſtæ and Vieſtæ, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples in the Capitanate, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Manfredonia.

VIETUS (Franciſcus) Native of Fontenay in Poitou, was an excellent Mathematician: He diſcover'd many Faults in the Lilian Calendar, and made a new one conformable to the Feaſts and Rites of the Church of Rome. During the Diſorders of the League, the Cypher made uſe of by the Spaniards conſiſted of 500 different Characters, ſo that though their Letters were often intercepted, they could never be decypher'd, until they were ſent to Vietus, by the King's Orders: he read them, and all the other ſent him afterwards; which ſo diſappointed the Spaniards Deſigns for two Years, that they publiſhed at Rome and other places, that the King had recourſe to Magick to read their Character. This great Man died in 1603. Vietus's Eſſay upon Apollonius was ſo much valued, that ſeven Years after, in imitation of him, Marinus Gellandus, an excellent Mathematician of Raguſa, publiſh'd a Book call'd Apollonius Redivivus, with a Supplement of Apollonius Gallus. Thuan. Voſſius.

VIGAND (John) a German Miniſter, and excellent Divine: He was one of thoſe that help'd Flaccus Illyricus to compoſe his Centuries of the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory; and when he had done, was made Biſhop of Pomerania in Pruſſia. He exerciſed this Charge 12 Years, and died in 1587: His chief Works are, De Deo Methodus, De imagine Dei in hominibus; De Libero hominis arbitrio, de Legibus Divinis. Hiſtoria de Alce vera de ſuccino de Sale, Catalogus Herbarum in Pruſſia naſcentium.

VIGEVANO, or Vigeve, in Latin Viglebanum, a Town of Milan upon the Teſin in the County Vigevano. It has been lately made a Biſhop's See under the Metropolis of Milan, whence it is but 20 Miles. It was the pleaſanteſt Reſidence theſe Dukes had, though it lies in a very barren place. Hermolaus, Barbarus, Merula.

VIGILANTIUS, a Gauliſh and no Spaniſh Prieſt, as moſt Hiſtorians thought, that took Calaguri or Calahorre, a Town of Spain in Old Caſtile, for Calaguri a little Borough near the Town of Cominges. This Vigilantius taught that People ſhould render no Honour to the Relicks of Martyrs, calling thoſe Idolaters that worſhipped them, and ſaying, Their pretended Miracles were real Illuſions and Cheats. He added, that People ſhould ſhun their Converſations that frequented Churches dedicated to Martyrs: That none ſhould Pray for the Dead; and that it was an unwarrantable Folly to light Candles and Lamps in Churches in the day time. He alſo condemn'd Faſting, Watching, and Vows of Virginity. The Learned Dr. Cave repreſents the Charge objected againſt Vigilantius, as follows, viz. He affirm'd, That the Relicks of Martyrs were not to be over-worſhipp'd; and that the Miracles wrought at the Places where they were lodg'd, might be taken for Diabolical Illuſions; that the Celebacy of the Clergy was not more acceptable to God than the State of Marriage; that the Commands of our Saviour did not oblige a Man to ſell his Eſtate, and diſpoſe of it all at once to the Poor; that the uſe of Candles, in the Day-time in Churches, and the cuſtomary Obſervation of Vigils were indefenſible. St. Jerome, who had formerly been an acquaintance of Vigilantius, had a warm Diſpute with him about theſe Points: But notwithſtanding St. Jerome's Vehemence, 'tis certain, even by the Confeſſion of this Father, that after this Controverſie was begun, Vigilantius was not eſteem'd unworthy of Communion even by his own Biſhop. Cave Hiſtor. Liter. pars prima. Baronius, Godeau, Gennad.

VIGILIUS (Pope) a Roman by Nation. Before his Pontificate, when but Deacon, Pope Agapetus ſent him to Conſtantinople; where Theodore, Wife of the Emperor Juſtinian, was ſo taken with his Parts, that ſhe promiſed ſhe would ſettle him in St. Peter's Chair, upon condition he would engage to annul the Acts of a Council held at Conſtantinople againſt the Schiſmatick Prelates whom ſhe ſupported. Vigilius promiſed he would; ſo return'd into Italy laden with Preſents, but found Silverius choſen, which broke all his Meaſures; yet he neither loſt Courage nor the Hopes of compaſſing his Deſigns; a favourable occaſion preſented it ſelf ſo, that he perſuaded Beliſarius to baniſh Silverius, and got the Clergy that durſt, or could not reſiſt his Authority, to chuſe him; but after Silverius died in his Exile in 540, he depoſed himſelf, and was choſen a ſecond time, and became a new Man, acquainted Juſtinian that he condemn'd all the Hereticks whom that Prince ſupported; and going to Conſtantinople, excommunicated the Empreſs Severa, and all the Acephali. He defended the three Chapters, but afterwards for Peace-ſake condemn'd them again. This anger'd the Biſhops of Africa who ſeparated themſelves from him, as well as the Deacons of his own Church, whom he excommunicated. In the mean time the Emperor finding that Vigilius refuſed to come to an Aſſembly of Biſhops, baniſh'd him; but his Exile was not long; and as he had leave to return into Italy, he died of the Stone at Syracuſe in Sicily, in 555; his Body was carried to Rome. We have eighteen Epiſtles of his. Platina ſays, That the Empreſs Theodora, enraged that Vigilius broke his Promiſe, ſent Athemius to Rome, who ſeiz'd and conducted him to Conſtantinople; and adds, that the Romans at his paſſage down the Tyber, followed him with Curſes, pelting him with Sticks and Stones; and that upon his obſtinate Reſolution of not complying with the Empreſs, and his ſaying, that he was come to a Diocleſian, not to a Juſtinian, he was roughly handled, beaten and dragg'd from St. Euphemia's Church, whither he fled for ſhelter, by certain rude People, who put a Halter about his Neck, and led him like a common Criminal publickly through the City till the Evening. Liberat. in Brev. Evag. lib. 4. cap. 18. Niceph. lib. 17. Baron. in Annal. Cyacon, &c.

VIGILIUS TAPSENSIS, Biſhop of Tapſus or Thapſus in Barbary, flouriſh'd about the Year 484, being ſummon'd to Carthage by Hunnerick King of the Vandals, to give an account of his Religion: He ſubſcrib'd Eugenius, Biſhop of Carthage's Confeſſion of Faith, and maintain'd the Catholick Belief with great Conſtancy. The Perſecution of the Arian Vandals growing ſevere, he went to Conſtantinople, where he wrote againſt Eutiches. This Vigilius has been often miſtaken for Vigilius Biſhop of Trent. His Writings were publiſh'd under other Men's Names which Chiffletius believes; was done by himſelf, either to avoid the ill Uſage of the Arians, or elſe to recommend his Works the better, by their paſſing under Authors of Reputation. The Creed which goes under the Name of Athanaſius, was moſt probably drawn up by this Vigilius, and publiſh'd under Athanaſius's Name. Chiffletius has now Collected his Works, and Publiſh'd 'em under the Name of the right Author. Chifflet. in Edit. Illius Operum. Cav. Hiſtor. Liter. pars prima.

VIGILIUS, Biſhop of Trent, lived in the fourth Age, and gave great Proofs of his Piety and Learning. He writ to Simplicienus of Milan, or to another Biſhop of this Name, an account of the Martyrdom of Siſinnius Martyrius, and Alexander Maſſacred by the Pagans near Trent. Afterwards he came to the place of Execution, and broke Saturn's Idol that was worſhipp'd there; which ſo enrag'd the Idolaters, that they ſton'd him to Death. Uſuard ſpeaks of Vigilius, as of one that had ſuffer'd under the Conſulſhip of Stilicon, that is, in the Year 400 and 405. Voſſius.

VIGILIUS DE ZUICHEM, a famous Lawyer of the Low-Countries, flouriſh'd in the 16th Age: He printed the Greek Inſtitutes of Theophilus, which he had drawn out of Cardinal Beſſarion's Library, and after ſeveral important Imployments which he had gone through, died of Grief; that the Duke of Alva and Don John of Auſtria, inſtead of following his mild Advice, by their rigorous Meaſures, threw the People into a Rebellion. He was buried in the Cathedral of Gant, whereof he was Biſhop.

VIGNACOURT (Alof of) 53d great Maſter of St. John of Jeruſalem's Order, ſucceeded Martin de Carcez in 1601, being before that, great Hoſpitaller, and chief of the French Nation: during his Reign there were no troubles in the Order, and far from loſing any thing by the Turks; the Fortreſſes of Lepanto, Lango, Chaleau-roux in Greece, the Mahometan in Barbary, with ſeveral other Places, were taken and plundred, and a great number of Turks made Slaves. He built ſeveral Towers and Fortreſſes round the Iſle of Maltha upon the Coaſts, and made a fine Fountain in the middle of the City Valette. He died in 1622. Naberat.

VIGNES (Peter of) a German Lawyer, and Chancellor of the Emperor Frederick II. was in great Eſteem in the Thirteenth Age. He was Witty, Eloquent and Learned, and ſerved his Maſter in the important Affairs between him and the Popes Gregory IX. and Innocent IV. He writ ſeveral Treatiſes upon this Subject, as De Poteſtate Imperiali, ſix Books of Letters, &c. Yet was accuſed of perſuading Frederic's Phyſicians to poiſon him. The Intreague being diſcover'd, the Phyſician was hang'd, the Chancellor condemn'd to have his Eyes put out, to be led in this condition through the Town, and then to be deliver'd to the Inhabitants of Piſa his cruel Enemies: But all this was not executed, becauſe this unhappy Man haſtned his own Death, by knocking out his Brains againſt a Pillar, to which he was bound. This hapned in 1249. Several Authors affirm, that his Accuſation was Unjuſt, and that he was treated ſo ill in the Priſon of Capua, that he knock'd his Brains out againſt the Walls for Deſpair. Volateran, Sigonius, Sponde.

VIGNIER (Nicholas) a Burgundian of a good Family, practiced Phyſick with great Reputation in Germany in the Sixteenth Century; ſo that coming into France, he was choſen to be one of the King's Phyſicians, and honour'd with the place of Hiſtoriographer of France. He was accuſed of want of Reſpect to the Pope; but commended for his Skill in his Calling, and his French and Latin Works, as his Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, his Hiſtorical Bibliotheque, his Summary of the Hiſtory of France, his Faſti of the ancient Hebrews, Greeks and Romans, Rerum Burgundiarum Chronicon, his Diſcourſe concerning the Original of the Royal Family of the Capets, &c. Thuan.

VIGNOLE (James de) a great Maſter in Architecture, living in the Sixteenth Century. He went to Rome, and improv'd himſelf by ſtudying the Remains of Antiquity there, and by reading Vitruvius. He was employ'd by Francis I. King of France, in caſting of Statues in imitation of the Originals of the Ancients. Accad. des Arts.

VIHITZ, or Bigihon, a Town of Hungary, Capital of Croatia, belongs to the Turks; its Latin Name is Vihitza, but it's believ'd it was formerly called Auſantala. It was taken by the Turks in 1592, after a ſtout Reſiſtance, and the Garriſon baſely Murther'd contrary to Articles.

VILAINE, in Latin Vindana or Vidana, a River of Britany; it paſſes by Rennes, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Sea, between Vennes and the Mouth of the Loire.

VILIMER, or Gilimer, Nephew of Huneric King of the Vandals; his Ambition to Reign made him take Arms againſt King Hilderic, and got himſelf choſen King by the Vandals, keeping Hilderic Priſoner, whom he afterwards put to Death; he reign'd over the Vandals for three Years. Procopius.

VILLA FRANCA, the principal Town in the Tercera Iſland, being very Beautiful, and rich in Wine and Corn: It was taken by the Engliſh without Reſiſtance in 1597, and plunder'd, to the great inriching of the Army.

VILLARET (Foulques) 25th great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, whoſe Convent during his Reign reſided in the Iſle of Cyprus and Rhodes; in 1308 he ſucceeded William of Villaret, and ſoon after his Election reſolved to quit Cyprus, that he might give no Jealouſie to the King thereof, and form'd the Deſign of the Conqueſt of the Iſle of Rhodes, whereof the Sarazens had made themſelves Maſters. To ſpeed the better in this Undertaking, he went to the Emperor Andronic II. who willingly gave him the Inveſtiture of the Iſland, which being confirm'd by Pope Clement I. reſiding then at Avignon, he equip'd a ſtrong Fleet, beat the Sarazens out of Rhodes in 1309, and ſeiz'd ſeveral other Iſlands in the Archipelago. Hiſtory does not give us the particulars of this Conqueſt, but there are Repreſentations of Aſſaults, Fights, Scaling of Walls, &c. in the ancient Tapſtries that belonged to the great Maſter of Aubuſſon. Though ſome are of opinion, that Rhodes was taken by a Stratagem, ſeveral valiant Knights covering themſelves with Sheepſkins, and mixing with a Flock of Sheep that was driven into the Town in the Dark; they were no ſooner got in, but falling upon the Guards, they ſecur'd the Gates for their Army. The Convent was removed thither, and the Hoſpitallers, called Rhodians or Knights of Rhodes. Othoman I. Emperor of the Turks, beſieged it in 1310, before the Town was well fortified, but the Great Maſter defended it vigorouſly, and with the aſſiſtance of Amedeus IV. Count of Savoy, forced the Turks to raiſe the Siege. A little after this, Pope Clement V. gave the Knights of Rhodes all that belonged to the Templers, whoſe Order was aboliſh'd at the Council of Viene in Dauphine, in 1311. The ſame Pope had united before the Hoſpital of St. Samſon of Conſtantinople, that was in the Town of Corinth in Greece, to the Order of the Knights of Jeruſalem; but this was done at the requeſt, and by the free conſent of the great Maſter and the Brothers of that Hoſpital, who yielded all their Spiritual and Temporal Poſſeſſions to the great Maſter of Villaret and his Succeſſors. After ſo many great Actions, this good Man was accuſed of neglecting the Intereſt of the Order, and labouring to enrich himſelf. The Diſobedience broke out into open Rebellion to that degree, that the Knights met of their own Authority, form'd a Chapter, depoſed the great Maſter, and choſe Maurice de Pagnac in his place; upon this Conteſtation of both Parties, the Pope took to himſelf the Dignity of great Maſter, and nam'd Gerard de Pins his Vicar General. The Suit held five Years, until Maurice de Pagnac's Death, which hapned in 1321, and then the great Maſter of Villaret was reſtor'd again; but he abdicated two Years after, and return'd into Provence, where he died in 1325. His Succeſſor was Elion de Villeneuve, choſen in 1323. Boſio, Naberal.

VILLEBRIDE (Peter of) 18th Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, whoſe Convent reſided then at Ptolemais or St. John of Acre, ſucceeded in 1248 Bertrand de Comps. During his Reign, St. Lewis of France croſs'd himſelf for the Conqueſt of the Holy Land, and arrived in the Iſle of Cyprus in September 1248. The great Maſter accompanied him to the Siege, took Damiata in 1249, and the Year after was taken Priſoner with him and the King of Cyprus, the great Maſter of the Templers, and ſeveral other Princes, in a Battel fought againſt the Souldan. A Truce being agreed upon for 10 Years, this great Maſter not only paid his own Ranſom, but would contribute to the Payment of the King's, which the Templers being againſt, the Door of the Treaſury was broke open, and 30000 Crowns, the Sum the King wanted, taken out. After giving great Proofs of his Courage and great Prudence in the Government of his Order, this great Maſter died in 1251. Boſio. Naberat.

VILLE FRANCHE, a Town of France, Capital of Beaujolois. It has a Collegiate Church, and an Academy that conſiſts of ſome learned Members. There are ſeveral other Towns of this Name in France, but leſs conſiderable; one in Perigord, one in the County of Nice, which is a Sea-Port, &c.

VILLE GAGNON (Nicholas Durant of) Knight of Maltha, Native of Provence, propoſed the Deſign he conceived of eſtabliſhing a Colony in Southern America to Admiral Coligni, and told him that amongſt other Advantages that would accrue thence to the Kingdom, it would prove a ſafe Retreat for the Proteſtants. The Admiral lik'd the Project, and with the King's leave equip'd three great Ships, on which Villegagnon, with a great number of Calviniſts, embarqued themſelves; and about the latter end of November 1555, enter'd into the River of Janeiro upon the Coaſts of Braſil; and landing, built a Fort, which he called Coligny from the Admiral's Name, and ſent back two of the Ships laden with Merchandizes and the Rarities of that Country, and deſir'd Succour to ſettle himſelf, and put things into a Poſture of Defence againſt the Barbarians and Portugueſe, who had made themſelves Maſters of moſt Places upon the Coaſt of Braſil. The Admiral ſent him three other Ships the next Year after, in which, amongſt a great number of Proteſtants, were two famous Miniſters of Geneva, Peter Richer and William Chartier; theſe arrived in America in the Month of March 1558, and celebrated the Lord's Supper, according to the Diſcipline of Geneva. But the Calviniſts happening to fall out among themſelves, occaſion'd a great deal of Diſturbance, inſomuch that Villegagnon was ſo far ſhock'd at it, that he openly declar'd himſelf a Roman Catholick, which the Admiral underſtanding, refus'd to ſend him any more Succours; ſo that, not being in a condition to reſiſt the Portugueſe and Natives, he was forc'd to quit the Fort of Coligni, and return into France, where he wrote againſt Calviniſm. Maimbourg Hiſt. du Calviniſme.

VILLE NEUVE (Elias of) 26th Great Maſter of St. John of Jeruſalem's Order, whoſe Convent reſided then at Rhodes, ſucceeded Foulques de Villaret in 1323. The firſt thing he did was to clear the Order, then much in Debt; and for that end, raiſed the Taxes paid by the Commandaries for the Profit of the common Treaſury of the Order, and ſold the Pope for 2500 Crowns, ſome Places that belonged to the Order at Cahors in Quercy: Then he held a General Chapter at Montpelier, wherein many Abuſes were reformed, and new Laws and Ordinances made; but notwithſtanding his care, ſome envious People writ to the Pope about 1340, that the Knights of Rhodes being then become very rich, began to follow the Diſorders of the Templers, and that it would do far better if their Poſſeſſions were divided between two Orders, that ſo by a conſtant Emulation they ſhould keep to their Duties; but neither the Complaint nor Advice was liſtned to; and the Great Maſter of Ville Neuve, to ſhew his Zeal, armed ſix Galleys to aſſiſt the League of the Chriſtian Princes, and omitted nothing to prove his Inclinations were bent to the good of Chriſtendom. His good Conduct appeared in reducing the Iſle of Lango that had revolted againſt the Order, and in the great Treaſure he left for the propagation of Religion, his Magnificence in the Church he built at Rhodes, and the Caſtle that was called by his Name. He died in 1346, and had for Succeſſor Deodat de Gozon. Boſio. Naberat.

VILLERS. That this Family, originally of French Extraction, hath been of great Antiquity in Leiceſterſhire, is clear enough from what Mr. Burton, in his Hiſtorical Work of that County, under the Title of Brokesby, their Seat, hath well obſerved; of which was Sir George Villers Knt. a Perſon of eminent Note, who by his firſt Wife, had Sir William Villers Knt. and Bar. Father of Sir George Villers, now of Brokesby Bar. and Sir Edward Villers Knt. from whom the now Viſcount Grandiſon in Ireland is deſcended, and by Mary his ſecond Wife had three Sons, John afterwards Viſcount Purbeck, George who by his great and high Advancements to Honor added no ſmall Luſtre to this worthy Family. This George, born at Brokesby 1592, 34 Eliz. was bred up to, and became ſo great a Proficient in all manly Exerciſes, and in the French Tongue, during three Years that he continued in France; that King James was preſently taken with his graceful Deportment, and firſt entertained him as Cupbearer, afterwards gave Order to ſwear him of the Bed-chamber, inſtalled him Knight of the Garter, advanc'd him to the Degree of Baron of this Realm by the Title of Lord Whaddon in the County of Bucks, and in 1616 created him Earl of Buckingham, advanc'd him in 1617 to the Title of Marqueſs of Buckingham, made him High Admiral of England, Ireland, and Principality of Wales; and having heap'd other Favours upon him, ſent him with Prince Charles into Spain, to accelerate the Marriage then in Agitation. They ſet out the 18th of February 1623, with diſguiſed Beards, and under the borrowed Names of Thomas and John Smith; they arrived at Paris the 22d of February, and having ſpent a Day there to view the City and Court, they got to Bayonne the utmoſt Town of France in ſix Days, and in four Days thence to Madrid, viz. the 5th of March, where it's ſaid he was diſreliſh'd for his height of Spirit, French Garb, and taking upon him over-much Familiarity with the Prince: However, before his Departure thence, he obtained another Patent from King James, bearing Date the 18th of May 21 Jac. whereby he was created Earl of Coventry and Duke of Buckingham. That Match being broke, it's ſaid, he drew the Prince to cloſe with thoſe of the Privy Council and Nobility, who were moſt oppoſite to Spain and beſt lik'd by the Puritans; and that thereupon he projected the Calling of a Parliament, to gain the greater Credit with the People; which ſo incenſed the Spaniard, that their Embaſſadors aſperſed him with a Deſign to take off King James, and diſpoſe of him to his Country-Houſes and Paſtimes, the Prince having Years and Abilities ſufficient for Publick Government; and thereupon adviſ'd the King to rid himſelf of this Captivity. King James dying ſoon after, he was ſent to treat with the United Provinces and Miniſters of the Confederate Princes, for the Recovery of the Palatinate; at which time, he purchaſed a choice Collection of Arabick Manuſcripts, gain'd in remote Countries through the Induſtry and Diligence of Erpenius a famous Linguiſt; which Manuſcripts were, after his Death, beſtowed on the Univerſity of Cambrige, whereof he was Chancellor. Being King Charles his chief Favourite, he was ſent to conduct the New Queen from France, and afterwards ſent to make a League with the United Provinces againſt the Emperor and the King of Spain: Notwithſtanding all which, the Commons, in two ſubſequent Parliaments fell upon him ſharply, as the prime Cauſe of all publick Miſcarriages; and the Earl of Briſtol exhibited Articles againſt him, but nothing was done by reaſon of the Diſſolution of the Parliaments. Some time after, his Majeſty being provok'd by the King of France's obſtructing the Landing of Count Mansfield's Army, deſign'd for the Relief of the Palatinate, and his ill Treatment of his Proteſtant Subjects, and Seizure of 120 Engliſh Ships with their Merchandize and Artillery, rais'd conſiderable Forces, and made this Duke General of them, as alſo Admiral of his whole Fleet, to the end he might demand juſt Reparation therein. He landed in the Iſle of Rhe in Aid of the Rochellers, then Beſieged by the French; in which, finding two ſtrong Forts, he fruitleſly attempted one of them; and after three Months ſtay, diſcerning freſh Forces brought in by the French, he made a diſorderly Retreat, wherein he loſt 200 brave Gentlemen, and near 2000 of his Common Soldiers, e'er he could reach his Ships: This was imputed to his imprudent Conduct; and the enſuing Parliament voted his great Power to be the Cauſe of all the Evils that befel the Kingdom. This touching him ſo nearly in point of Honour, he intended by a ſecond Expedition thither, to do his utmoſt to regain what he had loſt in that unhappy Attempt. Having made large Preparations, he came to Portſmouth in Auguſt the enſuing Year, where he was ſtabb'd by John Felton, Lieutenant of a Foot Company in Sir James Ramſey's Regiment in 1628, in the 36th Year of his Age. It's ſaid, Felton was mov'd to this wicked Act by the Duke's denying him a Captain's Place upon a Vacancy: He acknowledged that he had bought the Knife he killed him with, in an obſcure Cutler's Shop on Towerhill, for 10 Pence; and that he fix'd the Sheath to the Lining of his Pocket, that he might draw it with one Hand, his other being maim'd: Alſo that he haſtned to Portſmouth, partly on Horſeback and partly on Foot, being indigent of Money. This Duke of Buckingham had three Sons, James, George, and Francis who was born after his Death; James died young, George ſucceeded in the Honours, was made Knight of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter by King Charles II. Maſter of his Horſe, and Lord Lieutenant for the County of York: He died without Iſſue. Francis was killed in a Skirmiſh with the Parliament Forces at Kingſton, An. 1648, intending to reſcue King Charles I. out of the Iſle of Wight. Dugdale.

VILLICUS (Joſſelinus) born at Reſel, a Town of the Province of Wermerland in Pruſſia. He taught Youth at Franckfort upon the Oder, and read upon Virgil's Eclogs when he was but 15 Years old: Sometime after he was made Greek Profeſſor there, and Rector of the Univerſity; and laſtly, having profeſs'd Phyſick with great Reputation, he died of an Apoplexy in 1552, being 51 Years of Age. He was a Perſon of a great compaſs of Learning, as appears by his Works; the Principal of which are, *Compendium Artium. De Formando Studio in quolibet Artium genere. De Locuſtis Dialogus. Explicatio de Zytho ſuccino, &c. Magirica. Commentarius Anatomicus. Conſilia Medica. Obſervationes in Lactantium de Opificio Dei. Expoſitio in Evangelia. VILLIERS (John of) 22d Great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, was of the French Nation, and choſen after the Death of Nicholas de Lorgue in 1288, Reigned three Years in the Iſle of Cyprus, and was the laſt great Maſter of the Order in Syria; for in his time all the Towns that were left the Chriſtians were taken by Melac Seraf, Souldan of Egypt, who made himſelf Maſter of Ptolemais or Acre in 1291. Henry of Luſignan, King of Jeruſalem and Cyprus, the Great Maſter Villiers, and the chief of the Militant Religious, made Head againſt the Enemies until all the Chriſtians were embarked; then yielding ground by little and little, fought to their Veſſels. The King of Cyprus gave the Town of Limiſſon to the Hoſpitallers and Templers, where the Great Maſter Villiers ſeeing no likelihood of Succour to return into the Holy Land, applied himſelf to regulate the Affairs of his Order; and for that purpoſe, kept two general Chapters, wherein it was order'd, That all the Knights ſhould come to the Convent with their Equipage, to defend the Iſle of Cyprus againſt the Souldan. It was he eſtabliſhed the Form of Electing the Great Maſter, almoſt as it is obſerv'd now, as may be ſeen by the Statutes he made. He died of Age and Grief in 1294, and had for Succeſſor Odon de Pins. Boſio Naberat.

VILLIERS ILE ADAM (Philip of) 43d Great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, ſucceeded Fabrice of Carette in 1521. He reign'd almoſt two Years at Rhodes, eight Years without any Settlement, and three and a half at Malta. Before his Election he was great Hoſpitaller, chief of the French Nation, and Embaſſador from the Order to their King. He arrived at Rhodes in the Month of September, the ſame Year of his Election, fortified the Town againſt the Siege it was threatned with; but whilſt he was employed to preſerve this Bulwark of Chriſtendom, a Jewiſh Phyſician gave the Turk an Account of all Things, by the means of a Grecian of Scio that carried his Letters to Conſtantinople; beſides Andrew of Amarat, Prior of Caſtille, and afterwards Chancellor of the Order, a great Enemy to Villiers, becauſe he was preferr'd before him to this Dignity which he pretended to, gave private Inſtructions to the Grand Signior by a Turkiſh Slave, whom he ſaid he ſent to get Money for his Ranſom, but inſtead of that brought him back Letters from Soliman, as was diſcovered ſince. In the mean time the Turkiſh Fleet appear'd before Rhodes in June 1522, which made in all 400 Sail, with 200000 Men, whereof 60000 were to work in the Mines; and during the Siege, new Succors arriv'd that made above 100000 Men. All this did not ſhake the great Maſter's Courage, who reduced the Turks ſo low, that they ſent to the Grand Signior to come in Perſon if he deſign'd to take the Place; when come, ſeeing his Men ſo vigorouſly repulſed in their Aſſaults, he deſigned to have raiſed the Siege, had not his freſh Advice from the Traitors in the Town made him alter the Reſolution. This Treachery being diſcover'd, Amarat was Beheaded, and the Jew Hang'd and Quarter'd; but at laſt the Chriſtian Princes ſending no Succor during a Siege of ſix Months, the great Maſter was forced to Surrender the Town and Iſland upon Compoſition the 24th of December 1522. This Conqueſt coſt Soliman immenſe Sums, and above 100000 fighting Men. The Great Maſter left Rhodes the 1ſt of January 1523, with about 50 Sail that carried his Knights, and about 4000 Inhabitants; and having paſſed the Winter in Candia, arrived at Meſſina in Sicily about the end of April: Thence he continued his Voyage to Rome, where he was at Pope Adrian VI. his Death, and was made Guardian of the Conclave when Julius of Medicis was choſen, who was Knight of the Order, Great Prior of Capoue, Cardinal, Nephew to Pope Leo X. and nam'd Clement VII. This new Pope gave him the Town of Viterbo until a better Place offer'd, where the Knights might be more ſerviceable againſt the Infidels. The Great Maſter held a General Chapter in 1527, wherein it was reſolved they ſhould accept of the Iſle of Malta, which the Emperor Charles V. offer'd the Order: And thence he went to Saragoſſa in Sicily, where he received this Donation of Malta, Goze, and Tripoli of Barbary, by Letters Patents from this Emperor. He arrived at Malta in the Month of October, and gave the neceſſary Orders for this new Eſtabliſhment. And having thus ſignaliz'd his Reign by his Courage, Prudence, and Piety, he ended his Days as he was fortifying the Iſle of Malta and Town of Tripoli: This happen'd in 1534. His Succeſſor was Perrin de Pont. See Rhodes. Boſio. Naberat.

VINCENNES, a Caſtle ſomewhat Eaſtward from Paris. Philip of Valois laid the Foundation of it in 1327. King John raiſed it to the third Story; and Charles V. finiſh'd it. Queen Mary of Medicis begun the fine Gallery on Paris ſide in 1614, and King Lewis XIV. put it in the Condition it's now in, in 1660. This ſtately Palace has a ſtrong Caſtle join'd to it, which ſerves for a Priſon for Perſons of Quality. In the Court of this Caſtle is a Chapel, that was founded in 1379 by Charles V. with a Treaſurer, a Singer, ſeven Canons, four Vicars, and two Clerks. This Caſtle of Vincennes is environ'd with a great Park, which Philip the Auguſt walled in, in 1183: There was then a Caſtle, which the ſame Philip demoliſhed to build it a-new. King Charles V. was born at Vincennes in 1338, and three Kings of France died there, viz. Lewis X. in 1316, Charles IV. called The Fair, Charles IX. in 1574, and Henry V. King of England, in 1422. Le Maire Paris ancien & nouveau.

S. VINCENT, Deacon and Martyr, liv'd about the end of the third Age, under the Reign of the Emperors Diocleſian and Maximian. Decian, theſe Emperors Lieutenant in Spain, having formed a Deſign of exterminating and rooting out Chriſtians, took Valerius Biſhop of Saragoſſa, and Vincent Deacon of the ſame Church, and led both to Valentia, where, after many vain Endeavours to ſhake their Conſtancy, he baniſhed Valerius becauſe he was old and crazy, and kept Vincent to make him undergo all the Torments his Fury could invent; firſt putting him upon a Rack, then upon a Grid-iron with Fire under it; and at laſt ſtretching him out upon broken Pots: But when he found this Rigour would not do, he had him put into a good Bed, hoping to gain more by that apparent Mildneſs; but was diſappointed, for the Saint expired immediately. This happened the 22d of January 305. S. Auguſtin. Metaphraſtus.

S. VINCENT's Rock in Somerſetſhire, is of Note for its great ſtore of Diamonds, which are known by the name of Briſtol Stones: Theſe for a bright Luſtre, come little ſhort of thoſe of India; and had they their Hardneſs, might eaſily paſs for the ſame. At the Foot of the Rock is a hot Well of Medicinal Water.

VINCENT (de la Louppe) was originally of Perche, of a very antient and noble Family: He was likewiſe conſiderable for his Learning, as appears by the Tracts written by him; the moſt conſiderable of which are, his Annotations upon Tacitus, his Book of the French Magiſtracy, and his Hiſtory of the Hoſpital General of Chartres, Founded in 1556.

VINCENT (Victor) an African, was a Donatiſt, but counterfeited himſelf to be Orthodox. About the Year 415, he publiſh'd a new Error about the Origin of Souls, which he ſaid were Parcels of God's Subſtance, and not created by him out of nothing. He writ two Letters in Defence of this erroneous Opinion, which St. Auguſtin confuted ſo clearly, that the new Donatiſt confeſs'd himſelf overcome.

VINCENT (Elizabeth) Daughter of John Vincent of Uffington in the County of Lincoln, a very Loyal Gentleman, (Wife of Henry Carrington of Barneſley in Yorkſhire, Gent. whoſe Father was an Officer under Sir George Wentworth, in King Charles the Firſt's Army, and ſuffer'd very ſeverely for his Loyalty in the late Rebellion; his Father was a Phyſician, deſcended from the Carringtons in Cheſhire, a very antient Family;) which ſaid John Vincent was Lineally deſcended from Richard Vincent of Bernake near Stamford; from whom deſcended Sir Thomas Vincent Knt. who exchanged the Eſtate of Bernake near Stamford aforeſaid, with Thomas Cecill Earl of Exeter, for other Lands in Surrey; Father of Sir Francis Vincent Knt. and Bar. (now living) Father of Sir Anthony Vincent of Stoke-daberton in Surrey, Knt, John Vincent of Uffington above-mentioned, had for his Arms, Gold upon a Pile Blew, three quarter Gules pierc'd Silver, and for his Creſt on the Helm a Bear's Head Silver, colour'd Black, out of a Crown Gold, thereunto adding Mantelles of his Colours, viz. Azure lined Argent.

VINCENTIUS (Samotule) Palatin of Poſnania, being enraged againſt Uladiſlaus King of Poland, who deprived him of the Government of Great Poland to give it his Son Caſimir, ſollicited the Knights of Pruſſia to break their Truce, entred with the German Troops into Poland, defeated Prince Caſimir, and plundred and burn'd ſeveral Towns; but being reconciled to Uladiſlaus, he turned his Arms againſt the Germans, gave them Battel with Uladiſlaus near the Caſtle of Bleme, where 20000 Germans were killed. Bibl. Hiſt.

VINCENTIUS (Lirinenſis) a Gaul by Birth, and of a very Noble Family. His Father's Name was Epirochius, and his Brother Lupus, 'tis ſaid, was Biſhop of Troyes in Champaigne. He follow'd the Profeſſion of Arms in the firſt part of his Youth, but ſoon quitted this way of Living; and going to Lerinum in Provence, turn'd Monk, and went into Prieſts Orders. He died in the Year 550, in the Reign of Theodoſius and Valentinian. He wrote under the counterfeit Name of Peregrinus, Adverſus Hereticos, Commonitorium duplex, in a very clear and entertaining Stile; but the latter part of it was ſtole from him; for which reaſon, he makes a kind of Summary of it at the end of his firſt: The laſt Edition of this Work was printed at Cambridge in Twelves, in 1687. Gennad. in Catal. cap. 64. & 80. *Baron. in Annal. VINCI (Leonard of) a Painter of the State of Florence, flouriſhed about the latter end of the 15th and beginning of the 16th Age. He was one of the greateſt Genius's of his time, and beſt furniſhed with Perfections both of Body and Mind; was an excellent Sculptor and Architect, a skilful Muſician, an admirable Poet, very expert in Anatomy and Chymiſtry, and throughly Learned in the Parts of the Mathematicks: He alſo underſtood Riding, Fencing, &c. So ſtrong withal, that he could bend a Horſe-ſhoe as if it was Lead. All theſe were accompanied with honourable and generous Inclinations. Lewis Sforza called the Moor, gave him the Direction of the Academy of Painters and Architects, which he had eſtabliſhed; and knowing he was a good Engineer, and well skill'd in Mathematicks, put him upon making a Canal to bring Water from the River Adda to Milan, which had appear'd almoſt impoſſible until that time. When the Inhabitants of Milan deſired him to make ſome extraordinary Thing upon Lewis the Twelfth's Entry into their Town. He made the Figure of a Lion, contrived ſo, that after it walk'd before the King in the Hall of the Palace, it turn'd ſhort, open'd its Breaſt, and ſhew'd the Arms of France. The Duke of Milan being defeated and led Priſoner into France in 1500, Leonard de Vinci retir'd to Florence, and there in 1503 painted the Great Council Hall. He ſtayed here until 1513, and became a great Enemy to Michael Angelo, who was then in great Reputation. This Enmity, firſt cauſed by Emulation, encreaſed at Rome; ſo that Leonard came to France, where he was very well received by Francis I. it's ſaid, he fell ill in this Country, and the King coming to viſit him, he forc'd himſelf up from his Bed, to ſhew his Obligation for that Honour he received, and became ſpeechleſs, and died in that Monarch's Arms. This happened about 1520, the 75th Year of his Age. He was bred up under Andrea Verroccio, but ſo far ſurpaſs'd him, and all other his Predeceſſors, that he is own'd to have been the Maſter of the Third, or Golden Age of Modern Painting. Felibien Entreatien des Pientres. The Appendix to Dryden's Tranſlation of Freſnoy.

VINDEX (Julius) a famous Gaul, who having perſuaded the Gauls into a Rebellion againſt Nero, made Offer of the Empire to Galba, who was then in Spain. Nero hearing of this, made his Complaint to the Senate, bidding a great Sum to any that ſhould bring Vindex's Head. Whereupon, Vindex promiſed a greater to any that brought him Nero's. Sueton in Galba.

VINDICIUS, a Roman Slave, enfranchis'd by the People for diſcovering the Conſpiracy of ſome Citizens who deſigned to re-eſtabliſh King Tarquin. He was the firſt Slave that was made Citizen by the People with Power to Vote in Elections: But afterwards Appius, to gain the Peoples Favour, eſtabliſhed a Law by which he gave all thoſe that were made Free the Privilege of Voting in Elections: And this Law was called Vindicta from this Vindicius, the firſt that was made Free. Plutarch. in Poplic.

VINIERI (Sebaſtien) a Noble Venetian, commanded in the Iſle Corfou with Sovereign Authority, when he was choſen General of the Venetian Fleet in 1571, being then 70 Years of Age, Auguſtin Barbarigo was given him for Collegue; yet it was obſerved, that during the Battel of Lepanto, no other General ſhew'd more Courage or Conduct than did this vigorous Old Man. After that Victory, he endeavour'd to make himſelf Maſter of the Iſle of St. Maure near the Weſtern Coaſts of Epirus; but did not ſucceed: Whereupon James Sorannico, one of the Proveditors of the Fleet, who was no Friend to Vinieri, writ to the Senate, that he had blemiſh'd the late Victory by his Slowneſs and Imprudence. The Senate obſerving by this that Sorannico aim'd at his Place, puniſh'd his Ambition by their choice of James Foſcarini; and that Vinieri might not have the diſcredit of being depos'd, they confirmed the Title of Proveditor General on him, with the care of the Coaſts of the Gulf of Venice, enjoining Foſcarini to obey him when they ſhould happen to be together. Vinieri added ſo much to his Fame after the Victory of Lepanto, that he was nam'd Doge after Mocenigo's Death, by the unanimous conſent of all the Electors, the very firſt Day of their Meeting. Gratiani Hiſtoire de Cypre.

VINISAUF (Geoffery) a Norman, or as others ſay, an Engliſhman, living in 1199. He was much eſteem'd for his Talent in writing both in Proſe and Verſe. His Works are, *Itinerarium Regis Anglorum Richardi, & aliorum in Terram Hieroſolymarum. De Statu Curiæ Romanæ. De Poetria Nova. De Rebus Æthicis. De Arte Dicendi. De Vinis & Fructibus conſervandis. VINTIMILLE, or Ventimiglia, a Town of Italy upon the Coaſts of Genoa, with a Biſhoprick. Its Latin Name is Vintimilium, Albintimilium, and Albintemelium.

VIO (Thomas of) ſirnam'd Cajetan, becauſe he was Native of Cajeta, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples, became a Dominican, and was one of the greateſt Ornaments of that Order, being made Doctor at 22 Years of Age. He taught Philoſophy and Divinity at Paris and Rome, then explain'd Scripture; and having paſs'd through the other chief Charges of his Order, exercis'd that of General for 10 Years; afterwards was made Prelate of Palermo, and then a Cardinal by Pope Leo in 1517, who ſent him Legat a little after into Germany, to oppoſe Luther that began to ſpread his Doctrin. He was alſo employ'd on ſeveral other Occaſions, until he died in 1534, the 65th of his Age. Bellarmin. Bzovius. Sponde in Annal.

VIRBIUS, otherwiſe Hippolytus, Son of Theſeus and Hippolyte, Queen of the Amazons; his Hatred for Women made him give himſelf altogether to Hunting. Phedra, his Step-Mother, fell ſo much in love with him, that ſhe could not forbear diſcovering him her Paſſion; but upon his Refuſal to ſatisfie it, ſhe pretended an Abhorrence of what ſhe was ſo much for, and accus'd him to her Husband of having endeavour'd to corrupt her. Theſeus gave credit to the Accuſation, baniſh'd Hippolytus with a Curſe, and pray'd Neptune, whoſe Son he ſaid he was, to puniſh that Treachery. Hippolytus flying his Father's Anger, took his Chariot, and met by the Sea Coaſts as he was Travelling, a Sea Monſter, which ſo frightned his Horſes, that they ran over the Rocks, and threw Hippolytus down, who in the Fall entangled himſelf ſo amongſt the Reins that he was torn and batter'd to pieces: But becauſe he was a lover of Hunting, Diana obtain'd of Eſculapius to reſtore him to Life again; and in Deifying him ſhe chang'd his Name, and called him Virbius, as if ſhe had ſaid Twice-born: Withal, ſhe deſired he would keep in the Foreſt of Aricienne near her Temple. Some ſay, he was removed thence, and placed in Heaven; and add, that he is the Sign we call Carter or Charles's Wain. Ovid. Eurip. Hippol. Coron, &c.

VIRET (Peter) Native of Orbe in Swiſſerland, ſtudied at Paris, where he became acquainted with Farel; both went afterwards to Geneva, where they aſſociated themſelves to Calvin, and baniſhed the Roman Catholicks out of the Town in 1535. In the mean time Viret was Miniſter at Lauſane; but when Calvin went to the Conference of Worms, he was called to preach at Geneva: After this he lived five Years at Lions, and died at Pau in 1571, being 63 Years of Age. He was very Eloquent, which gain'd him great Eſteem among thoſe of his Party. Melchior Adam. Sponde.

VIRGIL, Biſhop of Saltzburg, was of a Noble Family of Ireland. He came to France, and was in great credit at Pepin's Court; afterwards he went into Bavaria, where he differ'd with Boniface about a Formula an ignorant Prieſt made uſe of in Baptizing; for inſtead of In nomine Patris, & Filii, & Spiritûs Sancti; he always ſaid, In nomine Patria, & Filia, & Spiritua Sancta: Boniface pretended, that Baptiſm under this Form of Words was invalid; Virgil maintain'd the contrary. In 754, the Diſpute came to Pope Zachary's Ears, who decided it in favour of the latter. It's ſaid, that Virgil after his being made Biſhop, built a fine Church, and dedicated it to St. Rupert his Predeceſſor; and that it was he who converted the Carinthians. He died in 784. Andreas Brunner.

VIRGILIUS (Publius Maro) the moſt excellent Latin Poet, was born at Mantua the 15th of October in (as is generally ſuppos'd) the 683d Year of Rome. His Father, according to the moſt probable Opinion, was a Servant or Aſſiſtant to a wandring Aſtrologer, who practic'd Phyſick: This Man had the good Fortune to marry his Maſter's Daughter, by whom he had Virgil; this Wife of his by the Mother's ſide, ſeems to have been of good Extraction, being nearly related to Quintilius Varus. Virgil paſs'd the firſt ſeven Years of his Life at Mantua, from thence he remov'd to Cremona, a Noble Roman Colony, and afterwards to Milan; in all which Places, he proſecuted his Studies with great Application. He read over all the beſt Latin and Greek Authors, frequented the moſt eminent Profeſſors of the Epicurean Philoſophy; but finding no ſatisfaction in that Syſteme, paſs'd over to the Accademick School, to which he adher'd. Virgil likewiſe underſtood Phyſick, and was a great Mathematician: He was alſo a good Flow'riſt, Naturaliſt and Geographer. The Story of Tully's admiring his Eclogues, is inconſiſtent with the truth of Chronology; it being certain, that theſe Paſtorals were not written till after the Triumvirate of Octavius, M. Antonius, and Lepidus; in which 'tis well known, Tully was Proſcrib'd and Murther'd. As to the Temper of this Poet, he was exceeding good natur'd, and free from Envy and Vanity, which made his contemporary Poets, how much ſoever diſſatisfy'd with each other, generally love him. He was a Perſon extremely difficult to pleaſe himſelf in his Compoſitions, which made him review what he had written, altering and correcting with great ſeverity of Cenſure. His Eclogues and Georgicks are the only finiſh'd Pieces he left. As for his Æneis, notwithſtanding the Nobleneſs of the Poem, he look'd upon it as imperfect, and deſign'd to have ſpent three Years in touching it over again; and therefore in his laſt Sickneſs, when he found the Diſeaſe too ſtrong for him, he call'd earneſtly for his Scriptoire, that he might burn his Æneis; but Auguſtus not permitting this to be done, the Poet oblig'd Tucca and Varius to add nothing, nor ſo much as to fill up the Breaks which he left in his Poem. He died at Brunduſium, now Brindi in Italy, in the Fifty third Year of his Age, and was buried at Naples. To conclude, he was, beſides his admirable Genius and great Learning, a Perſon of extraordinary Judgment, which always govern'd the Heats of his Imagination, and made even his Silence conſiderable. *Donatus. VIRGINIA, a Roman Lady, of a Noble Family, who marrying a mean Man, built a Temple of the Plebeian Pudicity or Chaſtity. See Pudicity.

VIRGINIA, part of Northern America; has for its Southern Limits, Carolina; for its Eaſtern, the Atlantick Ocean; for its Northern, Mary-land; and for its Weſtern, that vaſt Tract of Land which runs into the South Sea: It is divided into Southern and Northern Virginia; the firſt reaches from the 37th to the 39th Degree of Latitude, and the other from 33 to 36. This Southern America is a pretty temperate Climate, the Summer as hot as in Spain, and the Winter cold as in France. The Heats reign in the Months of June, July, and Auguſt, and are temper'd by an Eaſterly Wind which the Spaniards call Briezes, and by other Winds that blow there from the Sea. The Cold is often very ſevere from September to March, not conſtantly, but at times, and Thunders far more frequent than in Europe. People enter into this Country by a large Gulf that lyes between two Capes or Promontories, whereof the Southern is called the Cape of Henry, the other Charles's Cape, from the Prince of Wales and Duke of York, who was afterwards King Charles I. of England. The Mid-Land is very fruitful and pleaſant: The Natives are but few; for though the Soil wou'd produce all things in abundance, yet it cannot nouriſh many Inhabitants, becauſe it's not cultivated. The Savages are ſtrong, nimble, and witty withal: They never ſteal, becauſe they believe the Witches can diſcover the Theft and ſeize the Offender. They wear the Skins of wild Beaſts, and ſome have Cloaks curiouſly wrought of Turkey-Cocks Feathers. They paint their Hands, Face, Arms, Thighs, &c. to appear finer: Their Ears are pierc'd in three ſeveral places, whence hang Shells inſtead of Pearls; ſome have a Bunch of Feathers upon their Head, others the Skin of a Hawk, Kite, &c. The richer ſort have a Plate of Braſs at their ſides, and ſome carry a dry and ſhrunk Hand of ſome Enemy they have overcome, as a ſign of their Man-hood. The Women waſh their new-born Children in Rivers, rub 'em over with Drugs and Paint to harden the Bodies againſt Cold and other Injuries of the Air. The Men Hunt, Fiſh, and go to the Wars, while the Women do all the reſt, Till the Ground, and look after the Family Affairs. Their Religion is no other but a Worſhip of what they fear, as Fire, Water, Thunder, Cannons, Horſes, but chiefly the Devil whom they call Oke: They have his frightful Images in their Temples, and offer him Blood, and the Fat of their wild Beaſts with ſome Tobacco, when they return from the War or Hunting. As for Southern America, it was diſcovered in 1584 by Sir Walter Raleigh, who called it Virginia in Honour of Queen Elizabeth. The Indian Wheat which the Natives call Pagatovu, grows here in abundance; the Stalk bears three or four Ears laden with five or ſix hundred Grains, ſome Yellow, Red, and of ſeveral other Colours. There are alſo great Numbers of Deer, Rabbets, Squirrels, Bears, and Lions, with many Turkey-Cocks, Partridges, and other Land and Water-Fowl, a great many Otters and other Beaſts, whoſe Furrs are in great Eſteem; and ſome Engliſh aſſure there are Civet Cats. There are alſo Pearls ſeen amongſt the Savages, but it's not known where they have them. Their Cabins are along the Shore. They call their Governors Weroans, and theſe they think command ſeveral Gods; yet they have a light Knowledge of a ſovereign God, Creator of the World, and of the other meaner Gods. Their Prophets are Magicians, who conſult the Devil to fortel their Idolaters what will happen. They believe the Immortality of Souls, that they enjoy eternal Happineſs with the Gods, or are puniſh'd in burning Wells, which are, ſay they, at the end of the Earth, towards the Weſt, in a Place called Popoguſſo. The People, when this Place was firſt diſcover'd, uſed Snake-Skins of ſix foot long for Girdles, and were more afraid of two Engliſh Maſtiffs than of 20 Men. Now the Land is much cleared of its Woods, the Climate agrees very well with the Engliſh, and but very few die of the Country Diſeaſe, called Seaſoning. The Soil is ſo fruitful, that an Acre yields 200 Buſhels of Corn. Here is plenty of Fowl, and amongſt others, wild Turkeys which uſually weigh 6 Stone, and Mock-Birds which counterfeit the Noiſe of all other, and wild Beaſts of all ſorts, Tygers, Buffeloes, Musk Rats, flying Squirrels. The Commodities of the Country, are Hemp, Flax, Hops, Rape-ſeed, Anniſeed, Wood, Madder, Pot-Aſhes, Honey, Gums, Balſams of ſovereign Vertues, rich Furs, Elk Skins, Tobacco, &c. The Number of the Engliſh here, is between 30 or 40000. The chief Town James Town. The Laws are agreeable with thoſe of England for the Deciſion of all Cauſes both Civil and Criminal. Theſe Laws are made by the Governor with the conſent of his Council and the Burgeſſes choſen by the Freeholders. The Virginians are not born ſo ſwarthy as they appear, but uſe an Ointment that makes 'em look ſo. They are of a ready Wit, very ſubtile and treacherous, Lovers of their Eaſe, and much given to Hunting. They wear their Nails long to flea their Deer: Their Houſes are no better than our Engliſh Hogſties; and their Diet but very mean. De Laert. Hiſtoire du Nouveau Monde.

VIRIATUS, Captain of the Luſitanians in Spain, now the Portugueſe. Of a Huntſman he became Captain of a Troop of Robbers, and afterwards General of an Army; with which having made himſelf Maſter of Portugal, he over-ran and ravag'd with Fire and Sword, for 14 Years, all the Country on both ſides the Rivers Ebro and Tagus, beat the Prætors M. Ventidius, Cl. Vnimanus, and Cn. Plancius, ſo that the Romans were forced to ſend a powerful Army under the Command of a Conſul to reſiſt him; and at laſt Cepion the Roman Conſul was forced to have recourſe to Treachery, and get him murther'd. Viriatus was much lamented, and honorably buried. Tit. Liv.

VIRIDOMARE of the Country of Eduens, now Autun, commanded the Horſe jointly with Eporoderix before Gergovia. The Affection his Countrymen had for the Romans, being changed by the Practices of the Vergobletus or Sovereign Magiſtrate, he withdrew his Troops from that State under Pretext of preventing Litariquus, and ſecuring the Country; but his real Deſign was, to paſs into Vircingentorix his Army, whom he never obeyed for all that but with Reluctancy. Jul. Cæſar.

VIRIDORIX, of the Country of Vuellians in Lionneſe, General of the Rebels that aſſembled from all Parts of Gaul againſt the Romans. He often offer'd Battel to Titurius Sabinius, Cæſar's Lieutenant: But he who ſought to overcome him with ſome Trick or Stratagem, effected it at laſt. He laid his Plot thus; He ſent a Gaul to Viridorix's Army, to tell that his own was ready to decamp, and all in Diſorder, whilſt at the ſame time his Men were drawn up in good Order, and ready to receive the Gauls, who had a great height to mount before they could attack them. Cæſar ſays, that Viridorix and the other Commanders were much againſt Fighting with that Diſadvantage, but that the fiery Gauls forced them to it. Jul. Cæſar, lib. 3. de Bell. Gall.

VIRIPLAQUE, Lat. Viriplaca, a Word compounded of Vir a Husband and Placare to Appeaſe, was a Goddeſs adored by the antient Romans, who believed ſhe preſided over the good Underſtanding and petty Quarrels of Man and Wife, and took care to reconcile and bring them to Peace when they happen'd to be at any Variance. The Temple of Viriplaque was on Mount Palatin; there did the Husband and Wife meet, and there diſcourſed and laid open the Occaſion of the Difference, and having pleaded each for themſelves, laid their Grievances at the foot of this Goddeſſes Altar, and went home good Friends. Val. Max. lib. 2.

VISANDER, a Gothiſh Soldier, who ſignalized his Valour in the Battel fought by the Goths againſt Beliſarius, ſtanding to the laſt, notwithſtanding his great and continual loſs of Blood out of his many Wounds. He fell amongſt the Dead, and lay ſo for three Days, until the Goths returning to bury their Soldiers, found that he breath'd, and carried him into their Camp, where he was cured of 13 Wounds, and acquired much Reputation. Procopius de Reb. Gothor.

VISAPOR, or Viſapour, a Kingdom in Decan towards the Weſtern Coaſts of the Peninſula of the Indus, on this ſide the Gulf of Bengala. The King of Viſapor is the moſt potent of all Decan, which makes him be often called King of Decan. The Capital, Viſapor, has given its Name to the Kingdom, and is four or five Leagues round, all environ'd with a ſtrong double Wall well furniſh'd with Canon. The King's Palace in the middle of the Town, has a deep Ditch, full of Water round it, wherein are Crocodiles. The King that reign'd in 1666, was an Orphan adopted by the former King and Queen for their Son, and after the King's Death, by the Queen's Intriegue and Credit, placed upon the Throne; but becauſe he was but young, ſhe her ſelf was declar'd Regent of the Kingdom. M. Thevenot Voyage des Indes, Tom. 3.

VISIGOTHS, that is, Weſtern Goths. See the Article of Gothia.

VISITATION, a Religious Order, Founded by St. Francis of Sales and Mother Chantal. In the beginning they made but ſimple Vows in the firſt Convent of the Inſtitution at Anneſſi in Savoy. See Francis of Sales.

VISSAN, or Eſſen, according to ſome Sea-men, was formerly Iccius Portus; now it's a little Caſtle with a Port upon the Coaſts of the Britanick Sea in the Engliſh Channel, three Leagues and a half from Calice, and four from Bologne. The Promontory which the French call les Mottes Noires, the Flemings Swarteneſs, and which the Romans call'd Icium Promontorium, is near this, upon the ſame Coaſt. Cæſar in Comment.

VISTULA, or Weſiel, a River of Poland, is the Viſtula of the Latins, which Pliny calls Viſtullus, Ptolomy Iſtula, Pomponius Mela Viſula, Ammianus Marcellin. Biſula, and the People of the Country Veiſſel. It has its Source at the foot of a Mountain of the Country of Teſcheu in Sileſia upon the Frontiers of Hungary; thence being increaſed by the Waters of ſome Rivers, it enters Poland at Zalor, runs by Cracovia, &c. and afterwards having received other more conſiderable Rivers, it waſhes Warſaw, Plosko, Vladiſlaw, enters into Pruſſia, paſſes by Thorn, Chulme or Herzegovina, and Graudentz, and at laſt under the Fortreſs of Heuft divides it ſelf into two Branches, whereof one enters into the Gulf of Frunh Haff, and the other into the Baltick Sea near a Caſtle called Weiſel Munde by thoſe of the Country, being at its Fall one of the nobleſt Streams in the World, but ſo ſhallow, that a great Ship cannot come up to the City.

VITALIN (Pope,) Native of Seigin in Champagne in Italy, was choſe after Eugenius I. in 655. He laboured much for the Good of the Church as well with the Emperor Conſtans II. as againſt the Prelates of Ravenna; ſent Miſſioners into England, and held ſeveral Councils. He died in 669. He regulated Singing in the Church, and introduced Organs to be uſed with the Vocal Muſick. In his time Cæſarea the Perſian Queen, attended only with a few of her Confidents, and without the Knowledge of her Husband, came to Conſtantinople in 683 to be Baptized. The King her Husband having Intelligence hereof, ſends Embaſſadors to Conſtantinople to demand her; to whom the Emperor anſwered, That it was in her Choice either to go or ſtay, and bid them to know her Pleaſure. The Queen being asked, made Anſwer, that ſhe would never return into her Country unleſs the King would become a Chriſtian; who being acquainted herewith, came in a peaceable manner with 40000 to Conſtantinople; where being received by the Emperor with all Expreſſions of Kindneſs, he, together with his Soldiers, were Baptized, and then he returned with his Queen into his own Country. Ciaconius. Du Cheſne. Poſſevin. Platina.

VITALIAN (an Uſurper) was a Scythian by Nation, and to ſettle himſelf the better upon the Imperial Throne, made Profeſſion of the Orthodox Faith which the Emperor Anaſtaſius perſecuted, but at bottom was as bad as the other, and ſet on work only by his boundleſs Ambition. He made himſelf Maſter of Thracia, Scythia, and Mœtia, came to the Gates of Conſtantinople with a powerful Army of Huns, Bulgarians, and ſome Roman Troops, who waſted and deſtroyed all things in their March. Anaſtaſius ſeeing himſelf unprovided of Men, made uſe of Money to remove Vitalian, and promis'd he would recall the baniſh'd Prelates. This laſt dazled with the Money, and deceiv'd by the Promiſes, withdrew, and diſmiſs'd his Army: Whereupon the Emperor ſoon found means to turn him out of his Military Employment. But Juſtin, who came to the Crown a little after, knowing him to be an ill Man, and miſtruſting ſome Deſign againſt himſelf, invited him to Conſtantinople, made him Conſul, and afterwards got him killed in the Palace. This happen'd in 520. Marcellin. in Chron. Evagrius, lib. 3. & 4.

VITALIS of Africa, maintain'd that God's Concourſe or Aſſiſtance depended ſo much on us, that, if we will, God's Operation has its Effect in us; but that if we do not conſent, 'tis altogether unprofitable. That to conſent to the Preaching of the Goſpel, we want no other Grace beſides the Preaching. S. Auguſtin. Baronius.

VITEBSK, a City and Palatinate in Poland, upon the Dwina, a great and Navigable River, which runs by Riga in Livonia. This City is great, built all with Timber, and has two large, ſtrong, well-ſeated Caſtles; the loweſt ſtands in a Plain, and is as big as a ſmall City; the higher is leſs, but they are both built with Timber, Earth and Stone mix'd together, and well ſtor'd with Cannon. The Dwina runs on the Eaſt-ſide of the City, and above it receives the Viczba. This City is the ſtrongeſt Fortreſs in Lithuania, and the Defence of that Province againſt the Incurſions of the Ruſſians. It lyes 80 Poliſh Miles from Vilna, and was once an independent, free State. In the Palatinate are alſo Orſha, Surras, Vla, Turowla, Suſza, Cruſniki, Sienno, Lepto, Ciotcza, Craſſne, Woroniec, Strzyow.

VITELLESCHI (John) Cardinal-Archbiſhop of Florence, was of Cornero, a Town of Tuſcany. He was very witty, bold in Undertaking, and a great Diſſembler. All theſe Qualities help'd to raiſe him to the great Dignity he came to. His firſt Preferment was, to be Secretary to a little Uſurper of Italy, call'd Tartaille; but he being beheaded by Pope Martin the Fourth's Orders, Vitelleſchi took new Meaſures, came to Rome, got into Pope Eugenius IV. Martin's Succeſſor's Favour, and did him conſiderable Service in delivering Rome and all Italy from its Tyrants, and re-eſtabliſhing Peace and Quiet in all Parts: So, beſides the Pope's good Will, he won the Hearts of all the People. The Pope rewarded him with the Biſhoprick of Recanati, Patriarchſhip of Alexandria, Archbiſhoprick of Florence, and at laſt made him Cardinal in 1437. His Favour increaſed daily, until he began to form Deſigns that diſpleaſed his Benefactor, who got him cunningly ſurpriz'd and kept in the Caſtle of St. Angelo. This unexpected Change troubled the Cardinal to that Degree, that he died of Grief in 1440. Roſcio. Platina. Ciaconius.

VITELLIUS, was ſaluted Emperor by the Soldiers, after Otho's Death. He inſinuated himſelf by baſe Flattery into the Favour of Caligula, Claudius and Nero. In Claudius's Reign, he uſed to carry one of Meſſalina's Shoes in his Gown, and kiſs it as a moſt ſacred Thing. Theſe mean Cringings got him conſiderable Employments; for he was Proconſul in Africa, where he behav'd himſelf pretty well; but was not ſo moderate in his Place of Overſeer of the Works and publick Buildings of Rome, for he is accus'd of rifling the very Temples. His Advancement to the Empire ſerv'd only to ſatisfie his Paſſions, whereof that of Intemperance was the moſt predominant: He uſed to feaſt himſelf four times a day, and ſpend 10000 Crowns in each Meal. Suetonius is our Author for this, who alſo ſpeaks of a Feaſt made by Vitellius's Brother, wherein were 2000 different ſorts of Rarities in Fiſh, a Paſty of Pheaſant's Tongues, Peacock's Brains, and of the Livers of Foreign Birds, which he ſent for from the remoteſt Part of Spain: 'Tis ſaid, it coſt 25000 Crowns, and that by reaſon of the Bigneſs, he call'd it Minerva's Buckler. His Cruelty equall'd his Gluttony, it reach'd even to his very Friends and Servants; and ſome will have it that he did not ſpare his Mother. Theſe Proceedings made the Armies revolt in Pannonia, Moeſia, Judea and Syria, where Veſpaſian was choſen Emperor. Vitellius endeavour'd to puniſh the promoters of theſe Rebellions, but was always worſted; and becauſe he continued his Debauches and wicked Life, he was torn in pieces by the Soldiers, and thrown into the Tiber by the People. This happen'd in 69. the 57th Year of his Age, and the 9th Month of his Reign. Sueton. Tacit. Hiſt. lib. 2, 3. Eutropius, &c.

VITERBO, Lat. Viterbium, a Town of Italy, Capital of the Province called St. Peter's Patrimony, with a Biſhop's See; remov'd thither from Ferente, and depending immediately on the Holy See. 'Tis one of the beſt Towns of the Eccleſiaſtical State, has a Mountain behind it, and is water'd by ſeveral Fountains. In the Cathedral are the Tombs of four Popes, and in other places very magnificent Palaces, with all that can contribute to the Imbelliſhment or Conveniency of a Town. Leander. Albert. Guicciardin.

VITERICUS, King of the Viſigoths in Spain, mounted the Throne by Leva's Death, whom he aſſaſſinated about 603. He reigned till 610. Mariana Hiſt. Hiſp.

VITIGES, who was Maſter of the Horſe to Theodat, King of the Goths in Italy, got himſelf put in his Place; and being lifted upon a great Shield, haſten'd to Rome with 4000 Men, and receiv'd the Oaths of the Inhabitants. In the mean time he put away his Wife to marry Maraſuonta, Daughter of Amalaſontha, and ſeiz'd upon the Exchequer of his Predeceſſor. But the Romans hearing of Beliſarius's Approach, open'd him their Gates; which ſo enrag'd Vitiges, that he came to beſiege them with 50000 Men in 537. This Siege laſted a Year and 10 Days, and then the Gothiſh King rais'd it to re-take Rimini, taken from him by ſome of the Roman Forces. He did not ſucceed in this Undertaking; neither had Beliſarius better Luck in his Attempts upon Milan, Nouaro, Bergama, &c. In the mean time Vitiges being forced to raiſe the Siege of Rimini, retired to Ravenna, where he was attack'd, and forced to yield to Beliſarius, who ſent him, with his Wife, and all the Perſons of Quality of his Court to Conſtantinople, where, of a King, he became a Partrician. Procop. de Bell. Goth.

VITIZA, King of the Viſigoths in Spain, reign'd five Years with his Father Egica, and afterwards govern'd alone from the Year 701 to 710. 'Tis ſaid, he was a very Tyrannical and Debauch'd Prince, and that fearing the Revolt of his People, who gave broad Signs on't, he Fortify'd his Great Towns by way of prevention. Mariana Hiſt. Hiſp.

VITOLDUS, Great Duke of Lithuania; ſo careful of what regarded the Good of this State, that he gave Audience to Embaſſadors as he ſate at Table, and judged the Differences of ſuch as ſought Juſtice. Gaguin. in Deſcript. Lithuan.

VITOLDUS, Tyrant of Lithuania, was ſo cruel, that at his Command his Subjects did any thing, even killed themſelves for fear of incurring his Diſpleaſure; becauſe if any did diſobey, he had him ſow'd up in a Bear's Skin, and expoſed to be torn in pieces by wild Beaſts. When he travelled in the Country he always carried a Bow full bent, to kill any that went otherways than he would have them: And this was his ordinary Paſtime. Æneas Silvius Hiſt. Bohem.

VITRI-LE-FRANCOIS, a Town of France, in Champaigne: Its Latin Name is Victoriacum. Francis I. whoſe Name it bears, built it upon the Maen, in the Neighbourhood of that called Vitri the Burnt, which was formerly a conſiderable Caſtle.

VITRUVIUS (M. Pollio,) a famous Architect, lived in the Reign of the Emperor Auguſtus, to whom he dedicated his excellent Work of Architecture, divided into 10 Books. We have ſeveral Editions, but that which William Philander procured in the laſt Age, and dedicated to Francis I. is much the moſt eſteem'd; but not ſo much as the Tranſlation by Claude Perrault, of the Royal Academy of Sciences, and Doctor of the Faculty of Phyſick at Paris; who being equally learned in Humanity, and expert in Mechanicks, has done it perfectly well, and enriched it with Notes. Poſſevin.

VITUNE, a certain God of Paganiſm, which was believed to give Life to Children in their Mothers Wombs; and was called by that Name from the Latin Word Vita. Auguſt. de Civit. Dei. lib. 7.

VITZIPUTZLI, a monſtrous Idol, with a Lion's Head at the Belly, Bat's Wings at the Shoulders, and Goat's Feet. The People of Mexico in America ador'd this Idol, and celebrated its Feaſt about May. The Prieſts of the Temple of Mexico made an Idol of Paſte like this of Wood, and carried it in Proceſſion; and when they came back young Maids preſented Garlands of Flowers, and certain pieces of Paſte in form of great Bones, which the Prieſts lay at the Feet of the Idol, and afterwards diſtributed them to the People as the Fleſh and Bones of Vitziputzli. The Temple where this Statue ſtands, has a great Cloiſter about it, where about 20000 Perſons meet during the Feaſts, to Dance, and act their ſuperſtitious Ceremonies. And there was a great Walk of Trees, loaded with the Heads of Men that were ſacrificed, according to the barbarous Cuſtom of that Country. Jovet Hiſt. des Religions.

VIVARAIS, a Country of Languedoc, between the Rhone, Le Foreſts, Velai, and Geraudan. The Land in ſome places is full of Hills, and produces little but Rye and Wine, and nouriſhes great Numbers of Cattel: But in the Plains, eſpecially along the Rhone, there is Corn, Fruit, excellent Wines, all ſorts of Pulſe, and a great quantity of Hemp. The chief Town is Viviers, in Latin Vivarium, or Vivario Albienſicum. 'Tis a Biſhop's See, which has 150 Pariſhes in it, and depends on the Archbiſhoprick of Vienne.

VIVES (Lewis John Ludovicus) of Valentia in Spain, one of the learnedſt Men of his Time, lived in the 16th Century. He ſtudied Philoſophy at Paris, whence he afterwards went to Louvain, where he taught with great Applauſe. He went hence to England, and there he had the Honour to teach the Princeſs Mary (afterwards Queen of England) Latin. His Freedom in ſpeaking his Thoughts concerning the Divorce, occaſion'd his being impriſon'd by King Henry's Order. When he was ſet at liberty he croſs'd the Seas to Spain, and married at Burgos; whence being return'd to Bruges in Flanders, he died in 1536. ſuſpected by his Party to be tainted, as they call it, with new Opinions. He wrote Commentaries upon St. Auguſtin, De Civitate Dei, and ſeveral other Tracts; printed at Bazil in two Volumes in Folio, in 1555. Paul. Jov. Valerius.

VIVIERS, near the Rhone, a Town of France in Vivaret, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragant of Vienne. Its Latin Name is Vivarium. But it has not always been Epiſcopal; for the Biſhoprick was at Abs, in Latin Abba Helviorum, until this was deſtroyed by Crocus King of the Germans, in 430. Now there is a Chapter, with ſeveral other Churches; and the Biſhop takes the Title of Count of Viviers, and Prince of Douſere and Chateau-neuf. This Town is Capital of the ſmall Province of Vivarets, a Country that ſtretches along the Rhone, which parts it from Dauphine to the Eaſt; the River of Ardeche parts it from Languedoc to the South, Lionnois and the Foreſts are to the North, and Velai to the Weſt. Its Length is about 22 Leagues, and its greateſt Breadth 17. 'Tis generally divided into Vpper and Lower, the River Erieu parting both. With two Bailywicks, or Royal Seats; one at Annonay for the Vpper Vivarets, and the other at Ville Neuve de Berg for the Lower. The other Towns of this Country are, Privas, Tournon, Aubenas, Le Bourg, Andance, Seriere, St. Marthe Columbi.

VIZIR, (Great) in the Turkiſh Empire, is Firſt Miniſter of State; they call him Vizir Azem: Vizir ſignifies him that bears, and Azem very great, becauſe 'tis he is charged with the whole Burthen of the State. He is alſo ſometimes called the Grand Signior's Lieutenant, or the Vicar of the Empire, becauſe he is truſted with its whole Strength and Power. The Ceremony obſerv'd in creating a Great Vizir, is, to put the Prince's Seal into his Hands; this has the Emperor's Name engraven in it; the Vizir carries it always in his Boſom. It was Amurath I. third Emperor of the Turks, that eſtabliſhed this Charge in 1355. when paſſing into Europe with his Governor Lala Schachin, he made him Chief of his Council, and gave him the Command of his Army. Since which time the Emperors have always made uſe, and do ſtill, of the like Officers; and call them Lala in familiar Diſcourſe. In publick Solemnities they wear very coſtly Turbans. He aſſiſts four times a Week in the Divan, viz. Saturdays, Sundays, Mondays and Tueſdays; and the other Days, except Fridays, holds the Divan in his own Palace. He is chief Judge and Chancellor of the Law, and annuls the Cadilesker's Sentences when he pleaſes. In fine, He is ſole Diſpoſer of his Maſter's Power, only cannot put a Baſſa to Death without an expreſs Order ſign'd by the Grand Signior; nor puniſh a Spahi or Janiſary, without the conſent of their Officer. But if it happens that they refuſe to do any one Juſtice, then that Party can appeal to the Grand Signior: To come to his Hearing, he puts a lighted Match upon his Head, and then none dares hinder him from going into the Seraglio. Sir Thomas Bendyſh, an Engliſh Embaſſador at Conſtantinople, did what was much of this nature; for, having tied Pots with Fire in them to the Maſts of Eleven Engliſh Ships, he went to caſt Anchor near the Seraglio. The Great Vizir being acquainted with it, ſent to the Embaſſador to put out the Fire, leſt the Grand Signior ſhould ſee it; promiſing he ſhould have Juſtice done him. Sir Thomas had juſt Reaſon to do what he did, becauſe ſome conſiderable Officers of the Port took ſome Goods that belonged to Engliſh Merchants, and upon pretence that what they did was by the Grand Signior's Order, refuſed to pay for them. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

VIZIR, in Perſia, a Name given to the Governors of conſiderable Towns.

VIZIRS of the Bench, or ſix Vizirs that ſit with the Great Vizir in the Divan, or Council, to try Cauſes. They have no Authority in the Government of the Empire, and ſpeak but when the Great Vizir pleaſes. Theſe are grave Perſons, and very learned in the Law. Each of them has the Privilege of writing the Grand Signior's Name at the top of his Orders; and here it is the cuſtom of the Country, to put the Turkiſh Emperor or King of Perſia's Mark, conſiſting of ſeveral Letters wrought into a Cypher, called Togra or Autogra, which is put at the top of Patents, to Authorize them; and not at the bottom, as the Seal of the Kings of France. The Vizirs of the Banc are ſometimes admitted into the Cabinet-Council with the Great Vizir, the Mufti, and Cadileskers; eſpecially when important Matters are under conſideration. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

VIZZEGRAD, or Plindenbourg, Lat. Viſegradia, a ſmall, but ſtrong City in Hungary, upon an Hill near the Danube, three Miles from Gran, and eight from Buda. It was one of the Country-Palaces of the Kings of Hungary; and has a Caſtle which Matthias Corvinus, King of Hungary, very much beautified. Lewis King of Hungary, died here in 1382.

UKRAINE, or the Country of the Coſſaques, is the Southern Part of the States of Poland, comprehending the Provinces of Podolia and Volhinia; to which ſome add Black Ruſſia. The Turks have taken the Palatinate and Town of Caminiec in Podolia from the Polanders, and the Moſcovites poſſeſs ſome Places about Kiour in Volhinia; all the reſt of this great Country belongs to the Polanders. The Country of Okrania, or Vkraine, is a Province of the States of Moſcovia to the South, and upon the Frontiers of Little Tartary. The Moſcovites have built ſome Forts in it againſt the Incurſions of the Nogais Tartars.

ULADISLAUS I. King of Bohemia, received his Title and Crown of Bohemia from the Emperor Frederick Barberoſſa, for his good Government of Germany, whilſt that Prince was in Italy. Notwithſtanding this Degree of Honour, he ſtill retain'd his Warlike Inclinations, and fought with great Succeſs for Frederick and Stephen Geza, for whom he retook the Dutchy of Milan. He made Alliance in Hungary, with Emanuel Emperor of Conſtantinople: And what he did in time of Peace, did not contribute leſs to his Glory than his Exploits in War; for he join'd the old Town of Prague to the new Town, by a Bridge of 24 Arches, which he built upon the River Moldaw; and founded ſeveral Monaſteries; among others, that of Strahow, where his Tomb ſtands. Julius Solimanus.

ULADISLAUS II. King of Bohemia and Hungary, was Son to Caſimir King of Poland. Matthias Hunniades diſputed the Crown of Bohemia with him, and his Brother Albert that of Hungary; but his Merit carried both. When he was ready to fight his Brother, he called to Peter Sternbergius, who commanded his Troops, and bid him remember his Brother was in the other Army, and then left the Camp with Tears in his Eyes. He fought with ſuch Succeſs in Hungary againſt the Turks, who ravag'd all Boſnia, that theſe Infidels were never able to ſtand the firſt Shock. He died after he had reigned 45 Years, a great Prince. Julius Solimanus de Elog. Ducum, Regum, & Interregum Bohemiæ.

ULADISLAW, a Town of Poland upon the Viſtula, Capital of the Province of Cujavia. It has a Biſhoprick founded ſince 1173. and ſuffragant to Gneſna.

ULM, an Imperial City, Capital of the Province of Suabia, is very well inhabited, and of good Commerce; the Fortifications regular, and the publick Places imbelliſh'd with a great Number of fine Fountains. It was firſt of all but a Burrough, given by Charlemaigne to the Abby of Richenaw, from which the Inhabitants purchaſed their Liberty and Independency, and afterwards obtain'd it ſhould be put in the Number of the Imperial Towns; ſo that at laſt it became the chief of the Province of Suabia. Roman Catholicks have but two Churches in it, the Proteſtants are Maſters of all the reſt. The Senate is compoſed of 41 Magiſtrates; whereof the two Antienteſt, with the firſt Five, make up the Privy Council, where no Papiſts are admitted. Heiſſ. Hiſtoire de l' Empire, lib. 6.

ULPHILAS or GULPHILAS, Biſhop of the Goths, who liv'd in Moeſia, part of Dacia. He flouriſh'd about 370, under the Empire of Valens. 'Tis thought he invented the Gothick Letters; at leaſt, 'tis certain he was the firſt that tranſlated the Bible into the Gothick Language; and this perhaps, was the Reaſon they attributed to him the Invention of the Letters, becauſe few were acquainted with them before this Traduction. Sozomen, Socrates.

ULPIAN, a famous Lawyer, was Tutor, afterwards Secretary and Counſellor to the Emperor Alexander Severus. His Merit raiſed him to the Dignity of Præfectus Prætorio, the conſiderableſt then of the Kingdom. His great Love for Pagan Superſtitions inſpir'd him with a very deep Hatred againſt Chriſtians, whom he perſecuted ſeverely: But God puniſh'd this unjuſt Averſion, by making him a Prey to his own Soldiers. Dion. & Lampridius.

ULSTER, Lat. Vltonia, the moſt Northern of the four Provinces of the Kingdom of Ireland; called by the Iriſh, Cui-Gulli; by the Engliſh, Vlſter; by the Welſh, Witw; bounded on the North by the Ocean, on the Weſt by Connaught and the Ocean, on the South by Leinſter, and on the Eaſt by the Iriſh Sea. 'Tis in length, from North to South, 100 Miles; in breadth, from Eaſt to Weſt, 130; in circumference 420. Though it lyes ſo far to the North, yet it is not ſubject to any Extremity of Weather; the various Winds cooling it in Summer, and frequent Rains mollifying the ſharpneſs of the Air in Winter. The Soil is fruitful in Corn and Graſs, and affords great plenty of Timber and Fruit-trees: It abounds with Lakes and Rivers, which are well ſtored with Fiſh and Fowl; and of ſufficient depth for carrying Boats and Veſſels. It wants not excellent Harbours, either on the Iriſh Sea, or Ocean. It contains Dunghall or Tyrconnel, Vpper Tyrone, Lower Tyrone, Fermenagh, Cavan, Managhan, Colrain or London-Derry, Antrime, Downe, Ardmagh and Louth. The capital City is Ardmagh; the others of Note are, London-Derry, Dungal, Downe and Knock-fergus.

ULTZEN, a ſmall Hanſe-Town of Germany, in the Dutchy of Lunenburg, in the Lower Saxony; built upon the River Ilmenow, five German Miles from the Town of Lunenburg towards the South, and as far from Daneberg towards the Eaſt.

ULBA, one of the Scotiſh Weſtern Iſlands, about five Miles long, and very fruitful in Corn and Paſturage. It hath an Haven very commodious for Gallies or Long-boats. Buchan.

ULVERSTON, a Market-Town in Lancaſhire, in Lonſdale-Hundred, upon a Stream falling into an Arm of the Sea near Leverſand; 147 Miles from London.

ULYSSES, King of Ithaca, was forced to the Siege of Troy, where he continued 10 Years; and after this, was 10 Years more wandring on the Sea; when, after many Dangers, he at laſt came to his own Houſe; but being aſſur'd by the Oracle, that he ſhould be kill'd by one of his Children, he reſolv'd to withdraw into ſome ſolitary place to avoid that unlucky Accident. But before he could execute his Deſign, Telegonus his Son by Circé, arriv'd at Ithaca; and being denied Entrance, killed Vlyſſes without knowing him. Ovid. Homer.

UMBRIATICO, Lat. Vmbriaticum, or Bruſtacia, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples in the hithermoſt Calabria, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragant to Santa Severina.

UMEQUINAIBE, a Town of the Province of Cutz in the Kingdom of Fez, in Africa, between the Rivers of Mulvia and Eſacha. The Inhabitants being perſuaded, that if they do not Dance in going up a Heighth near the Town, they will fall into a Fever, leap and caper always when they have occaſion to go that way; as they do in Italy when bit by the Tarantula. Marmolo.

UNDERWALD, or UNDERWALDEN, Lat. Sylvania, or Sylvanienſis, and Vndervaldenſis Pagus, one of the 13 Swiſs Cantons. 'Tis altogether Roman-Catholick. The chief Town is Stantz. It is divided on the North from Schwitz by the Lake of Lucerne, on the Eaſt it has the Canton of Vri, on the South that of Berne, and on the Weſt Lucerne. This is one of the leſſer Cantons: A Wood or Foreſt called Kernwaldt, or The Oak-Foreſt, divides the Canton in the midſt; and from thence it has its Name. This Canton became free about 1260, ſo that it was admitted into the general League in 1307. From thenceforward they have had the 6th Place in the Roll or Liſt of the Cantons. See Suiſſe.

UNESLAUS, the Eighth Duke of Bohemia, ſucceeded his Brother Vogenus; and tho' 'twas in his Power to have reign'd alone, yet took his Brother Vratiſlaus to govern with him. It was in his Time Charlemaigne warr'd againſt the Bohemians, and render'd them tributary. And during his Reign, happen'd a terrible Storm that laſted two Months, blew Trees up by the Roots, and threw down Houſes. This was followed with a Famine; during which, this Prince help'd his Subjects whilſt his Exchequer laſted. What happen'd after this was really very ſurprizing: There were Gold Mines diſcover'd; and Corn became ſo plentiful, that they ſold Horſe-Loads out of the Country for ſome few Pence. Julius Solimanus de Elog. Ducum, &c. Bohemiæ.

UNGHWAR, a Town in Vpper Hungary, Capital of a County of the ſame Name, far more conſiderable for its Situation and natural Strength, than by any other Advantage. It lyes at the Foot of Mont Crapack, water'd with the little River called Wngh, upon the Frontiers of Red Ruſſia. The Hungarian Hiſtorians pretend, that this Town or River gave its Name to their Kingdom. Count Tekeli is now Maſter of this Place; and 'tis here he keeps his Treaſury, with the beſt Things he has, becauſe he thinks it impregnable by its Situation. Hiſt. de Honga.

UNITARIANS. The Name given to the Anti-Trinitarians, call'd alſo Socinians, from Fauſtus Socinus, the Head of the Party. At the end of the Catalogue of the Bibliotheca of their Authors, printed at Amſterdam in 1684, there is added a ſhort Hiſtory of theſe Vnitarians, written by one of their Clergy: Their firſt Settlement was in Poland, where they declar'd, that they admitted no other Creed but that of the Apoſtles, rejecting that of Nice, and the other aſcrib'd to St. Athanaſius; and in a word, all thoſe that were drawn up by General Councils, pretending them not agreeable to the Word of God, meaning God the Father. They deny the ſecond Perſon of the Trinity to be the ſupreme Being; 'tis true, they acknowledge him to be God, but hold him inferiour to the Father, as being created by him and dependent on him. The Catechiſm of theſe Vnitarians was printed in 1619, in which their Doctrine is explain'd intelligibly enough: The Title of this Syſteme, is Catecheſis Racoviana, or Catecheſis Eccleſiarum Polonicarum, Vnum Deum Patrem, illiuſque Filium Vnigenitum Jeſum Chriſtum, unà cum Spiritu Sancto ex Sacra Scriptura confitentium: The beſt Edition is that of 1680, Revis'd, Corrected and Enlarg'd, with Notes, by Crellius, Schlictingius, Ruar, and Wiſſovats. The Text of this Catechiſm is almoſt all taken out of the Works of Socinus; and to ſpeak generally, there is no great Learning to be met with in the Books of the Vnitarians; and tho' they have made the Holy Scriptures very much their Study, yet none of 'em appears to have underſtood the Oriental Languages: But then they are great Logicians, and in rejecting all manner of Authorities excepting that of the Scriptures, they ſeem to make Divinity nothing more than a Critique upon the Bible. Father Simon affirms, that they are unacquainted with Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory and the Writings of the Fathers, and that they are ſatisfy'd with learning juſt ſo much Hebrew and Greek as is neceſſary to qualifie 'em to conſult Concordances and Dictionaries: He obſerves farther, That the Vnitarians make uſe of ſome Latin Verſions of the Bible, Tranſlated from the Hebrew and Greek, and a few literal Commentators; that when they meet with any Difficulty, they run immediately to the Concordance, and interpret the obſcure Words by others which appear more clear, and which make for the Senſe they are willing to find; and if it happens that theſe obſcure Paſſages are explain'd by others more intelligible, which will not comply with their Prejudices, they let them alone, and only make choice of thoſe that favour their Opinion. R. Simon's Anſwer to the Divines of Holland, and his Critical Hiſtory upon the Old and New Teſtament. See alſo the Sentiments of ſome Dutch Divines upon his Critical Hiſtory of the Old Teſtament.

UNIVERSITY, a Place where Liberal Sciences are publickly taught, and where the Degrees of Maſter of Arts, Batchelors, Doctors in Divinity, Law and Phyſick, are conferr'd. There are ſome where all theſe Degrees are given; as Oxford, Paris, &c. Others that are eſtabliſhed for ſome particular Science only; as, Orleans for Law, Montpellier for Phyſick and Law, &c. There are 24 Univerſities in France, 18 in Italy, 30 in Germany, comprehending Tranſilvania, 20 in Spain, three in Portugal, two in England, four in Scotland, one in Ireland, ſeven in the Low Countries, four in Poland, four in Swedeland, one in Denmark, two in Switzerland, five in America, and one in Goa in Aſia. To ſay ſomething of the Univerſity of Paris, and particularly of the Sorbon: The Degrees of the Faculty of Divinity in this College, are thoſe of Batchellor, Licentiate and Doctor. After a Maſter of Arts of the Univerſity has ſtudied Divinity three Years, he offers himſelf to the Examination of four Doctors, whoſe Oppoſition he is oblig'd to Anſwer, upon thoſe Subjects which he has heard treated by the Profeſſors during that time. After this Examination, if he is thought ſufficiently qualify'd, he keeps an Act, or defends a Theſis, which they call A Tentative, becauſe 'tis the firſt Eſſay or Tryal of thoſe who pretend to any farther Degree; if he comes honourably off in this Exerciſe, he is made Batchellor of Divinity. And to go on to farther Degrees, the Batchellor muſt qualifie himſelf for a Licentiate; this Degree is given every two Years; before the granting of which, the Candidates paſs through a ſtrict Examen; the Tryal of their Sufficiency being made upon the Scriptures, Councils, and Scholaſtical Divinity. During theſe two Years of Probation, the Batchellors of Divinity keep ſeveral Acts: Theſe Acts are Theſes, which they call Le grand Ordinaire, Le Petit Ordinaire, and La Sorbonique; this laſt Exerciſe is ſo call'd, becauſe 'tis always perform'd in the Sorbon, and laſts from ſix in the Morning till ſix at Night. Beſide theſe Theſes, thoſe that have a mind to be of the Hoſpitality of the Sorbon, keep another Act which they call Robertine, from Robert Sorbon the Founder. The Licentiates keep another Act, call'd the Veſperies, where they defend Queſtions upon the Holy Scriptures, Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory and Morality; which Performance continues from three in the Afternoon till ſix; and here the Doctors diſpute againſt them: After this Exerciſe, they have the Privilege of receiving the Doctor's Cap from the Chancellor of the Univerſity at Noſtredame in Paris. The Act which they keep at this Solemnity, is call'd the Aulique, becauſe 'tis kept in the Hall of the Archbiſhop's Palace. Some Years ſince, there was an Order made by the Faculty of Divinity, That the Doctors, ſix Years after their taking their Degree, ſhould be oblig'd to keep an Act, call'd the Reſumpta, i. e. a Recapitulation of all the Subjects of Divinity. The Faculty of Civil and Canon Law in this Univerſity of Paris, have their Schools in the Street, call'd La Rüe de St. Jean de Beauvais. There are ſix Profeſſors who Read publickly, three in the Morning and three in the Afternoon. In the Faculty of Phyſick, ever ſince the Year 1646, there has been four Profeſſors in the College of Phyſicians, i. e. one for Phyſiology, and another for Botanicks, both which Read in the Morning. The third and fourth concern themſelves with Pathology and Chirurgery, and have their Lectures in the Afternoon: Beſides the Lectures of theſe four Profeſſors, thoſe of Phyſiology and Pathology are oblig'd to make a Publick Diſſection every Year, where the Profeſſor of Chirurgery ſhews the Operations of that Art. As to the Profeſſor of Botanicks, the cuſtom is for him, to carry his Scholars into the Fields in the Spring-time, to make 'em underſtand the different ſorts of Plants, together with their Properties and Virtues: Beſide theſe four Profeſſors, whoſe principal Buſineſs it is to Read in the Phyſick Schools, there are two others who do not concern themſelves in Publick Lectures, being only choſen to examine thoſe who are Candidates for the Employment of Apothecaries, and to inſpect the Druggs in the Apothecary Shops of Paris. Memoirs Hiſtoriques.

UNNA, an Hanſe-Town in the County of Mark in Weſtphalia in Germany. It was once very conſiderable, but is now much decayed. It is ſubject to the Elector of Brandenburg, 10 Miles Eaſt of Dartmund, and as many South of the Borders of Munſter.

VOCONIUS (Victor) an excellent Poet, of a very Noble Family of Spain: His Father was of Rome, his Mother of Saguntum, now called Morvedre. Martial eſteem'd him ſo acute and judicious, that he ſent his Verſes to be corrected by him. He flouriſh'd about 240, under the Emperor Adrian, by whom he was eſteem'd for his Learning. Biblioth. Hiſpan.

VODOMARUS, King of part of the Gauls in the Fourth Age. The Emperor Conſtantius ſollicited him to make War againſt Julian the Apoſtate. He promiſed Compliance; but his Letters fell unfortunately into Julian's Hands, who thereupon ſent him Priſoner into Spain without farther Puniſhment. Ammian. Marcellin.

VOETIUS (Giſbert) a famous Profeſſor of Divinity in the Academy of Utrecht, aſſiſted at the Synod of Dort, and ſince that time was a zealous Defender of Calvin's Opinion. This raiſed his Paſſion againſt Des Cartes's Philoſophy, and againſt John Cocceius and his Diſciples: Nor did he ſpare Samuel Deſmarets, or Mariſius, who indeed had writ a Perſonal Satyr againſt him. He writ ſeveral Books of Divinity. The Holland Divines are divided, ſince the Diſputes of Voetius and Cocceius, into Voetians and Cocceians; but theſe are rather Names of Factions than Sects. Des Cartes Epiſt. Mareſius in Voetium.

VOGENUS, the ſeventh Duke of Bohemia, ſucceeded his Father Mnata, who left him young, under the Guardianſhip of Rohovitius of Warſaw; but he refuſed him the Poſſeſſion of Bohemia when he came of Age. This put Vogenus upon taking of Arms. Rohovitius put himſelf in a poſture of Defence, and raiſed Soldiers too, but no ſooner ſaw Vogenus's Troops appear but he fled into a well-fortified Town; wherein being beſieg'd, he was taken Priſoner in a Sally. When he was carried before Vogenus, he begg'd he might not die by the hand of the common Executioner: The Prince granted this, but upon condition he ſhould hang himſelf publickly, which the Uſurper did accordingly. His Death put an end to the Civil Wars: But ſoon after, the Miſniens and Moravians began to make War againſt Bohemia: Vogenus defeated them near the River Elbe, and purſued his Victories as far as Moravia, where he burnt and plunder'd Lipniſia and Butoria, the two Fortreſſes of the Country. Theſe Victories augmented the Number of his Citizens, ſo that he was forc'd to make the Town of Prague bigger. Julius Solimanus.

VOITLAND, a Country of Germany, comprehended in Miſnia, and belonging to the Elector of Saxony, between Bohemia to the Eaſt, and Franconia to the Weſt. Its principal Places are Swukaw, Plauwen and Gratz.

VOITURE (Vincent) born at Amiens, but brought up at the Court at Paris; where his good Parts, notwithſtanding his Birth was not very pretending, got him the Acquaintance and Love of Perſons of the higheſt Quality. He travell'd into Spain, went twice to Rome, and carried the News of Lewis the Fourteenth's Birth to Florence. His Employments were conſiderable at Court, being at the ſame time Steward of the King's Houſehold, and Maſter of the Ceremonies to the Duke of Orleans. The Academy of Humouriſts of Rome, ſent him Letters of Incorporation into their Society. He died very old; and a Volume of Letters and Poetry made by him, were publiſh'd after his Death. The Piece intituled his Funeral-pomp contains a great part of his Adventures. Peliſſon. Hiſt. de l' Acad.

VOLDEMAR II. of the Name, Elector Marquis of Brandenburg, Nephew and Succeſſor of the two Electors, John III. and Voldemar I. quitted his Country in 1320, (after having been Elector three Years,) with Reſolution to go to the Holy Land, and left John IV. his Brother, in poſſeſſion of his Eſtate. To perform this Pilgrimage with more Piety, he diſmiſs'd his Train, taking but two Servants along with him, without acquainting any with the Way he took, or giving any Inſtructions how to hear from him. His Brother died 24 Days after his Departure, and Lewis of Bavaria, then in poſſeſſion of the Empire, diſpos'd of this Electorate as a vacant Feoff, inveſting his own eldeſt Son in it. Voldemar was 25 Years out of his Country, and return'd in 1343. Some Authors ſay, this was an Impoſtor, and was therefore condemn'd to be burnt alive, and that the true Voldemar died at a certain place called Korchei, or according to others, Stenduil, in 1322. Others affirm, that this Elector died at Deſſaw in 1354, nine Years after his Return; and that he was buried in the Chapel of the Holy Ghoſt, the Burying-place of the Princes of Hainault. Their Reaſons for this are, Firſt, That the Princes of his Family own'd him, the Teſtimony of the Archbiſhop of Magdeburg, of Charles IV. and ſeveral other Princes that declar'd for him. Secondly, The adverſe Party do not agree in their Objections; ſome publiſhing, that he that appear'd in 1345, was a Miller of Sendeſlaw; and others, that he was of Belziz. De Recolos les Impoſteurs inſignes.

VOLFEMBEUTEL, a Town and Fortreſs of Germany, in Lower Saxony. It is the Reſidence of the Dukes of Brunſwick. See Wolfembutel.

VOLGA, or Wolga. See Rha.

VOLHINIA, which thoſe of the Country call Volhin, Lat. Volhinia, a Province of Ukrania, ſometimes comprehended under the Dependences of the great Dutchy of Lithuania, is divided into the Upper, or Palatinate of Luſuc, and Lower, or the Palatinate of Kiow. It often lay expos'd to the Incurſions of the Coſſaques and Moſcovites, who have poſſeſſed themſelves of Kiow, Liuko, &c. Volhinia is poſſeſſed by a valiant and hardy People. It is of large Extent, and great Fertility. The Woods are full of Wild Beaſts for Hunting, and Lakes for Fiſh. It belonged antiently to the great Dukedom of Lithuania, and with it was united to the Kingdom of Poland. The Inhabitants of it came from the Walga, or Wolga, a great River, dividing Ruſſia from Tartaria, to inhabit here, and called it Vulgaria or Volgaria; and by length of Time that Name was changed into Volhinia. They ſtill retain the Ruſſian Speech, Manners and Religion. It is divided into three Diſtricts; 1. Luczko. 2. Wolodomira. 3. Crzemenec. The other principal Places are, Chabno, Owrickzi, Olewsko, Zithomir, Koreck, Caminiec and Sharaſz. Guagninus, Tom. 2. pag. 78.

VOLO, a Fortreſs that gives its Name to the Gulf of Theſſaly, to the North of the Negropont. The Antients called this Town Pagaſa, and the Gulf Pagaſicus Sinus. The Fortreſs has a good and ſpacious Port; and it was here the Turks kept the Magazins which they gather'd in the neighbouring fruitful Provinces. General Moroſini reſolv'd in 1655, to paſs to Volo, to poſſeſs himſelf of the Proviſions the Turks had laid up there: He batter'd the Place, and then mounted the Aſſault. The Baſſa that commanded in the Place, retir'd to a corner of the Town that was pretty well retrench'd, but at laſt quitted that Poſt. Moroſini found above four Millions of Pounds weight of Bisket, with other Proviſions, and 27 Pieces of Cannon, which when he had Shipp'd, he ſet Fire to the Magazins, Houſes and Moſques; and before he parted, beat down all the Walls to the Ground. P. Coronelli.

VOLOGESES, King of the Parthians, ſeeing his Brother Tiridates baniſh'd out of Armenia, and Tigranes ſet up in his place by the Romans, reſolv'd to revenge this Affront, and maintain the Grandeur of the Family of the Arſacides; but the great reſpect he had for the Romans, his Allies, and the War which the Rebellion of Hyrcania engag'd him in, put a ſtop to the Deſign, until he heard that Tigranes had ravag'd the Province of the Adiabenians; and not content to make his Incurſions into the Frontiers, had deſtroy'd all the Country with Fire and Sword. This Affront irritated him more and more, ſo that at laſt he undertook a War, which had different Succeſs. This was in Nero's Reign, and Vologeſe's Son made War againſt the Romans under Mark Anthony. Tacit. Jul. Capitolin in M. Anton.

VOLSCI, the antient People of Latium in Italy, who inhabited part of the Country call'd Campagnia di Roma. They were often beaten by the Romans. The Conſul T. Sicinius overcame them in 257 of Rome, Q. Capitolinus in 316, the Dictator A. Poſthumus Tubertus triumph'd in 323. The War was afterwards renew'd, and Camillus compell'd them to ſubmit in 365. Tit. Liv. Their Country now makes a part of Campagnia di Roma.

VOLTERRA, Lat. Volaterræ, a Town of Italy in Thuſcany, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragant of Florence. 'Tis ſituate upon a Mountain, and has ſeveral antient Statues. The Soil is fruitful, and abounds with Mineral Waters, and ſeveral Quarries of fine Stone, much ſought for. Leander. Albert.

VOLUMNUS, was the Name of a certain antient God of the Pagans, which, they ſaid, ruled Men's Deſires and Paſſions, and inclin'd them to Good. There was alſo a Goddeſs that did the ſame Function to Women. Both were ador'd together by the Romans as favourable to Matrimony, in maintaining a good Correſpondence between Man and Wife. Tit. Liv. S. Auguſtin de Civit. Dei.

VOLUMNIUS (Lucius) was a Roman Citizen, famous for his Merit tho' but a Plebeian. He was Conſul in 447, and afterwards in 458, both times with Appius Claudius, ſirnam'd Cæcus; who ſtanding upon his Quality, was much troubled ſuch a Plebeian ſhould be join'd with him. Nevertheleſs, Volumnius had all the Honour of the Defeat of the Thuſcans and Samnites during his ſecond Conſulſhip: This troubled his Collegue to the Heart. L. Volumnius married Virginia, of the Blood of the Patricii; and ſhe built a Temple to Plebeian Chaſtity. Tit. Liv.

VOLUMNIUS (P.) ſtuck to Brutus and Caſſius, and writ an Account of the Battel they loſt at Philippi. There were other great Men of this Name.

VOLUPTAS, the Goddeſs of Pleaſure, to which the Romans built a Temple near the Gate Rumona. Her Statue was a Queen ſeated upon a fine Seat, with Vertue at her Feet. Lil. Girald.

VOLUSIAN, aſſociated to the Empire by his Father Gallus, was kill'd by the Soldiers.

VOPISCUS (Flavius) a Latin Hiſtorian, liv'd in the time of Diocleſian and Conſtantius Chlorus. He was a Sicilian, Native of Syracuſa. He writ the Life of Aurelian, Tacitus and Florianus; and having afterwards compoſed that of Probus, which he dedicated to Celſus Rufus, he added the Lives of the four Uſurpers; Firmus, Saturninus, Proculus and Bonoſus, and then the Lives of Carus, Numerian and Carinus. The Order he has obſerv'd is very commendable. He intended to write the Life of Apollonius Tyanæus, as may be ſeen in his Life of Aurelian, wherein he very much commends this famous Impoſtor. Voſſius.

VORTIGERN, a Britiſh King, reigned in the Fifth Age, and was the chief, rather than the ſole Monarch of Britain, upon the Romans quitting this Iſland, which happen'd about 447. He was a proud and unfortunate Prince, neither skill'd in War, nor witty in Counſel; covetous, luſtful, luxurious; in a word, prone to all Vice; careleſs of the common Danger, unapprehenſive of his own. He waſted the publick Treaſure in Riot and Gluttony; therefore well beloved of the People, becauſe his Vices ſuited with theirs: But being threatned with an Invaſion from their troubleſom Neighbours the Scots and Picts, they addreſſed him from all Parts for Relief, and at laſt made him ſummon a General Council of the Nation, to provide againſt their approaching Ruin. The Saxons, then a People of Germany, barbarous in their Principles, and Heathens in their Religion, were noted for their Piracies by Sea, and Robberies by Land, to Britain particularly, where the Roman Emperors, when poſſeſſed of this Iſland, were fain to maintain a Military Force purpoſely againſt them, under a ſpecial Commander, whoſe Title was, Count of the Saxon Shoar in Britain. Theſe the unwary Britains fix'd upon for a Refuge, who had been ſo long a Terrour to the whole Nation. Therefore King Vortigern, in the Name of all the Britains, ſent Embaſſadors to them, with great Gifts. The Saxons, having firſt conſulted their Gods, whoſe Anſwer was, That they ſhould long enjoy the Land whereto they went, did readily comply with the Britains Deſire. All things being fairly agreed on both ſides, and the Iſle of Thanet in Kent, beſtowed upon them for their greater Encouragement, they landed in the Iſland An. 450, under the Conduct of two Brothers, Hengiſt and Horſa, who ſhortly after encounter'd the invading Picts, then advanced as far as Stamford in Lincolnſhire, and put them to flight more than once. Thus the Britains under King Vortigern, rid themſelves of the Picts, by the help of the Saxons: But theſe having now a Footing in ſo rich and fruitful an Iſland, pick'd Quarrels with the Britains, which broke out into Wars, and ended at laſt in a total Overthrow and Ruin of the Natives. Vortigern, nothing better'd by theſe Calamities, grew at laſt ſo obdurate as to commit Inceſt with his Daughter, by whom he got Fauſtus, (who prov'd a religious Man:) For which Inceſt he was cenſured, condemned and depoſed in a Synod of Clerks and Laicks. Whereupon he retired into Wales, and built there, by Merlin the Prophet's Advice, a ſtrong Caſtle in Radnorſhire. His Son Vortimer reigned in his ſtead, who bore a ſtrong Hand againſt the Saxons; but he dying before his Father, Vortigern, by the power of his Faction, re-aſſumed the Government. He had two Wives; one of them Daughter of Hengiſt, which eaſily diſpoſed him, when reſtored to the Crown, to a new Treaty with his Father-in-Law; in order to which, a place is agreed upon, whither both Parties were to repair without Weapons. But Hengiſt's Deſign being to murther, not to treat, ordered his Men to be ſecretly arm'd, and gave them the Watch-word for Execution; ſo that a Quarrel being deſignedly raiſed, his Men upon the Signal, fell to work, and ſtabb'd each his next Man; ſo that no leſs than 300, the chief of thoſe that could act againſt him, either by Counſel or Arms, were ſlain by this Treachery. Indeed, they ſpar'd the Life of Vortigern, but they bound and kept him in Cuſtody till he granted Hengiſt for his Ranſom thoſe Provinces which were afterwards called Eſſex, Suſſex and Middleſex: Hengiſt had already got the whole Province of Kent upon the Marriage of his Daughter. At laſt, being retired to his Caſtle in North-Wales, he was burnt there with Fire from Heaven. Speed. Daniel.

VORTIMER, a Britiſh King, who reigned in the Fifth Century. He was the Son of Vortigern, and prov'd a Scourge to the Saxons, with whom he fought ſeveral ſucceſsful Battels, inſomuch that he drove them thrice to their proper Bounds within the Iſle of Thanet: But his Death ſoon alter'd the Scene; for his Father being re-inthron'd upon it, gave an opportunity to the Saxon King Hengiſt, not only to keep what he was poſſeſſed of, but to enlarge his Dominions, by the Addition of Eſſex, Suſſex and Middleſex; as may be ſeen farther in the foregoing Article.

VOSSIUS (Gerard) Provoſt of Tongres, was Couſin to the other famous Voſſius. He underſtood Greek very well, and publiſhed the Writings of ſeveral Fathers; amongſt others, thoſe of St. Gregory Thaumaturgus, and St. Ephrem. He died in 1525. Swvert. Athen. Belg.

VOSSIUS (Gerard John) of Ruremonde, was one of the moſt laborious and learned Men of this Age, in Hiſtory and Humanity. He was born in 1577, and ſtudied at Dort with the learned Ericius Puteanus. He was afterwards Regent of the Colleges of Dort and Leiden; after which, he was promoted to the Place of Profeſſor of Hiſtory in this laſt; whence he was called into the great School of Amſterdam, where he continued his Place. One may ſee ſeveral Circumſtances of his Life, in his Letters printed at London in 1590. He was a Man of very great Reading. His chief Books are, De Idololatria. De Hiſtoricis Græcis, Latinis; Poetis Græcis & Latinis. De Scientiis Mathematicis. De quatuor artibus popularibus, Hiſt. Pelagiane. Inſtitutiones Rhetoricæ, Grammaticæ, Poeticæ. Theſes Chronologicæ & Theologicæ. Etymologicon Linguæ Latinæ, de vitiis Sermonis, &c. He died in 1650. Here follows his Epitaph:

Hoc tumulo plorat pietas & candida virtus,
Et luctu Pallas Saxea diriguit:
Invida mors ridet, ridet quoque Voſſius illam,
Dum Calamo mortem vincit & ingenio.

This great Man had five Sons, all very learned Men, eſpecially the youngeſt, called Iſaac Voſſius, who was Canon of Windſor in England. He publiſhed the Epiſtles of St. Ignatius, more correct than they appear'd before; writ in favour of the Septuagint, whom he believ'd inſpired; compoſed ſeveral Diſſertations of Philology and Philoſophy, made Obſervations upon Pomponius Mela, and Notes upon Catullus. He was alſo a good Critick in Greek, Latin, and in Hiſtory. He had a very fine Library, very valuable for a great many Manuſcripts, which the Univerſity of Leyden bought after his Death at Windſor, in 1688. The French King preſented him with a conſiderable Sum of Money, which was ſent to him by Monſieur Colbert, with the following Letter;

> SIR, Though the King is not your Sovereign, yet he is willing to be your Benefactor, and has commanded me to ſend you the incloſed Bill of Exchange, as a Mark of his Eſteem, and Pledge of his Protection. All Men know how worthily you follow the Example of the great Voſſius, your Father; and that having receiv'd from him a Name which his Writings have render'd famous, you continue its Glory in yours. His Majeſty being no Stranger to thoſe Things, takes pleaſure to gratifie your Merit: And I take the greater Satisfaction in the Orders I received from him to acquaint you with it, becauſe they give an Occaſion to aſſure you, that I am your humble, and very affectionate Servant,

VOUT, or VOET (Simon) a famous Pariſian Painter, flouriſh'd in the 17th Century, and left very fine Pieces in the Louvre, the Houſe of Luxemburg, and the Caſtle of Ruel, &c. Felibien Entret des Paint.

UPLAND, a Province of the Kingdom of Swedeland. The chief Town is Upſal, with an Archbiſhoprick and Univerſity. It lyes upon the River Sall, that empties it ſelf into the Lake of Ekolen; and has a Fortreſs.

UPPINGHAM, a pretty, compact, and well-built Market-Town in Rutland, accommodated with a very good Free-School, and an Hoſpital. It is 64 Miles from London.

UPSAL, an ancient Town of the Kingdom of Swedeland, in the Province of Upland. It was formerly the Reſidence of the Kings, who were Crowned in its Cathedral, the Archbiſhop's See. It ſtill has a famous Univerſity, a fine Citadel, with a Clock of very admirable Work. The Cathedral is covered with Braſs, and has ſeveral magnificent Tombs of the Kings of Swedeland in it. And it was in the Royal Palace of this Town, that Queen Chriſtiana abdicated the Crown in 1654. Henr. Lomen.

UR, a Town of the Chaldeans, the native Country of Tharé, and his Son Abraham. Geneſis 11.

URANIA, one of the Nine Muſes, whoſe Name ſignifies Heavenly, to ſhew it rais'd the Learned to the Heavens. She is repreſented generally in Cloth of Azure Colour, crowned with Stars, and bearing a great Globe in both her Hands, to ſignifie ſhe teaches the Way to Heaven.

URANISBOURG, a little place built by Ticho-Brahé II. a Daniſh Baron, with an Obſervatory, in the Iſle of Ween, betweeen Zelande and the Province of Sckone, or Schonen. He alſo built a Dungeon, called Stalle Borgo, with Looking-glaſſes and Cryſtals all round. He uſed to ſit here, and obſerve the Stars in all Seaſons.

URATISLAUS I. was the 14th Duke of Bohemia. Borivorius, after the Death of his eldeſt Son Spirigneus, gave the Government of Bohemia to his Second, who neglected nothing that could equal him to the beſt of Princes. The Hungarians that begun to diſturb the Quiet of his Subjects, ſoon experienced his Valour, being forced to lay down their Arms, and receive the Conditions he propoſed them. Dragomira, Daughter of the Governor of Loket, promiſed to become a Chriſtian to marry this young Prince; but the Marriage was no ſooner over, but inſtead of ſtanding to her Word, ſhe endeavoured to oppreſs that Religion. Julius Solimanus.

URATISLAUS II. was the firſt King of Bohemia, ſetled upon the Throne by the Emperor Henry IV. who endeavoured to gain him to his Party by this new Honour. He was no ſooner crowned in 1086, but he was forc'd to raiſe an Army againſt his two Brothers, Gerard and Conrade: Gerard died of a Fever before the Fight; and Conrade being beſieg'd in Brinn, was received into Favour upon his Wife's Tears and Interceſſion. The King, during this Siege, without thinking on't, made his Son Bretiſlaus his Enemy. Dieder, or Deſiderius, one of the moſt conſiderable Courtiers, having made a good lively Jeſt upon Bretiſlaus, the King could not forbear laughing; which made the Prince conceive ſo implacable an Enmity againſt both, that having contrived Didier's Death, he took Arms againſt his Father, and had given him Battel, had not Conrade hinder'd it. The King would have pardon'd and receiv'd him into his Favour again, but he choſe rather to retire to Ladiſlaus, King of Hungary's Court. Vratiſlaus died ſome time after, being the 7th Year of his Reign, depriv'd his Son of the Succeſſion, and left the Crown to his Brother Conrade. He lyes buried in the Church of Viſſegrade founded by himſelf, and dedicated to the Apoſtle St. Peter. Julius Solimanus de Elog. Ducum, &c. Bohemiæ.

URBAN, the firſt Pope of this Name, was choſen after Caliſtus I. in 225, and was beheaded in 231, under the Empire of Alexander Severus. Urban, by his eminent Piety and Learning, proſelyted Multitudes to the Chriſtian Faith, ordain'd that the Church might receive Eſtates in Land and Houſes given and bequeathed to her by any of the Faithful; and that the Revenues of them ſhould not be any ones Property, but for the common good be diſtributed among the whole Clergy, to every one his ſhare. Platina, Baron. Annal, &c.

URBAN II. call'd Odo or Eudes, a French-man, Native of Chatillon upon Marne, was Monk of Cluni. Pope Gregory VII. made him Cardinal and Biſhop of Oſtia. He was choſen Pope after Victor III. in 1088, the Church of Rome being then divided by the Schiſm of the Anti-Pope Guibert. Urban ruled with great Prudence. Being forc'd out of Rome by the Schiſmaticks that made the ſtronger Party, he retir'd to Puglia, and thence came to France, where he held ſeveral Councils, whereof the moſt conſiderable was that held at Clermont in Auvergne for the Recovery of the Holy Land. Being returned into Italy, he died at Rome in 1099, Baronius in Annal.

URBAN III. called Lambert Crivelli before, Archbiſhop of Milan, was choſen after Lucius III. reigned but one Year and ten Months. He died in 1187, of Grief it's thought, upon the News of the taking of Jeruſalem by Saladin whilſt he was ſending freſh Succours to the Chriſtians of the Holy Land. Du Cheſne: Papire Maſſon. in vit. Pontif.

URBAN IV. a French-man, Native of Troyes in Champagne, was but a Cobler's Son, yet raiſed himſelf by his Learning and Merit to the Dignity of Pope, after Alexander IV. in 1261. He was a good Divine, well vers'd in the Canon Law, was Archdeacon of Liege, then Biſhop of Verdun, and afterwards Patriarch of Jeruſalem, when he was choſen Pope. He created eight Cardinals, and publiſhed a Croiſade againſt Mainfroy that uſurp'd the Kingdom of Sicily. Soon after he went to Orvieto, whence he ſent to Charles, Count of Anjou and Provence, to come into Italy, to receive the Crowns of both Sicilies. He inſtituted the Feaſt of Corpus Chriſti in 1264, and died the 20th of October the ſame Year. Poſſevin. Papire Maſſon. Platina.

URBAN V. a French-man, Native of the Dioceſe of Mende in Gevaudan. His Name before the Election was William of Griſac, Son of the Baron of Griſac, &c. He became Monk of St. Bennet's Order, took his Degree of Doctor in Canon Law and Divinity, and profeſs'd publickly at Montpellier and Avignon, where after he was made Abbot of St. Germain, of Auxerre, &c. he was choſen Pope after Innocent VI. in 1362. at Avignon. The firſt thing he did was to condemn Barnabon Tyrant of Milan, and ſome other Lords of Italy, that exercis'd unheard-of Cruelties upon the People. His Arms were very ſucceſsful againſt theſe; who being defeated, Italy began to enjoy ſome Peace. This, with ſome other Reaſons, mov'd the Pope to take a Journey to Rome, where having order'd things to his mind the two Years he ſtaid there, he embarqued for Marſeilles, and return'd to Avignon, where he died on the 19th of December 1370. Bzovius. Ruffi. Du Cheſne. Spondan.

URBAN VI. that was called before Barthelemi Pregnani, Archbiſhop of Barri, was a Neapolitan. After Gregory the Eleventh's Death, the Romans fearing if they choſe a French Pope, he would remove the See to Avignon, forc'd the Cardinals to chuſe one of their own Nation, came inſolently to the Conclave, crying, Volemo un Papa Romano, O vero Italiano, and threatning to put fire to the Fagots they had heaped under the Conclave if they had not their Will. The Cardinals proteſted againſt this Violence, and choſe the Archbiſhop of Bari, though no Cardinal, thinking he himſelf, ſo well vers'd in the Canon Law, would diſapprove of an Election carried on againſt the uſual Form. This happen'd the 8th of April 1378. He was Crowned on the Eaſter-day following, upon the Steps of St. Peter's Church, and took Poſſeſſion according to Cuſtom. Seeing himſelf thus acknowledged by all the People, he began to be very haughty and ſevere; which when the Cardinals obſerv'd, they put him in mind that his Election was not legal; and then retiring to Agnani, and thence to Fondi, they choſe Cardinal Robert of Geneva, who took the Name of Clement VII. This occaſion'd a long and troubleſom Schiſm: Clement retir'd to Avignon after being at Naples, where he was very well receiv'd by Queen Joan. This diſpleaſed Urban, who having Excommunicated this Princeſs, deſir'd Lewis King of Hungary, to ſend Charles of Duras to invade the Kingdom of Naples, which Joan, by her laſt Will, had bequeath'd to Lewis Duke of Anjou, who was thereupon Crowned by Clement VII. at Avignon in 1382; and on the other ſide, Urban had procur'd the ſame Honour for Charles the Little, but upon ſome Difference excommunicated him afterwards; whereupon Charles takes Arms, which made Urban retire to Genoua, where in 1386, he put five Cardinals to Death. This alienated all thoſe from him that had any Inclination to be of his Party. He ſoon after return'd to Rome, inſtituted the Feaſt of the Viſitation, reduced the Jubile of 50 Years to 33, and died the 15th of October 1389, after a Reign of 11 Years and 6 Months, being very little lamented. Platina ſays, that the French Faction hated him becauſe he ſought to diminiſh their Grandeur: He forbid them to take Bribes, to promote unjuſt Suits, or be guilty of Simony; and knowing themſelves guilty of robbing the Church's Treaſure after the Death of ſeveral Popes, they withdrew, and choſe Cevennes for Anti-Pope. In Urban's time was that terrible War betwixt the Venetians and Genoeſe, which Urban did not endeavour to appeaſe as he ought, being intent to revenge himſelf upon Joan Queen of Naples, who favoured the Anti-Pope. He had alſo a Difference with the King of Naples, for refuſing to make his Nephew Prince of Campania: And having eſcaped that King who came to Beſiege him in Nocera, he took ſeven Cardinals from thence, and putting five of them into Bags, drowned them in the Sea. This Pope created 29 Cardinals in one Day, three whereof were Romans, and the reſt Neapolitans. Platina.

URBAN VII. a Roman, called John Baptiſt Caſtanet, Cardinal of St. Marcel, famous for Learning. Platina adds, that his Learning conſiſted chiefly in the Canon and Civil Law; that he was intruſted in ſeveral great Employments by the Popes, Paul IV. Pius IV. Pius V. Gregory XIII. and Sixtus V. during whoſe Reign, not only he himſelf, but all the Princes and People, deſign'd Urban for his Succeſſor: So that after Sixtus's Death he was unanimouſly choſen: He took the Name of Urban from his courteous Diſpoſition. Ciaconius. Sponde.

URBAN VIII. called Maffeo Barberin of Florence, Cardinal of the Title of St. Bibiene, was choſen in 1623, after Gregory XV. He was a very active old Man, reunited the Dutchy of Urbin to the Holy See, reconcil'd Princes, maintain'd Wars, &c. beſides, he was a great lover of Learning, and as great a Protector of Learned Men. He compoſed Hymns, and ſeveral Pieces in Latin and Italian Verſe. He died in 1644, after he had held the See 21 Years. Du Cheſne. Sponde. Sir Paul Ricaut in his Continuation of Platina, adds, that he was choſen contrary to the Expectation of all, being but 56 Years of Age, and of a vigorous Conſtitution. He had been promoted by Sixtus V. Gregory XIV. Clement VIII. Leo XI. and Paul V. who made him Cardinal and Protector of the Scotch Nation; and Gregory XV. made him Patron of the Greek and all the Oriental Nations. The Romans extremely rejoiced at his Election, and the World expected great Things from his Learning and Ability. He was particularly devoted to the Worſhip of the Angel St. Michael, whoſe Image he erected in St. Peter's Church, with himſelf on his Knees before it, uttering theſe Words, Te mane, te veſpere. He confirm'd Pius the Fifth's Decree againſt Alienation of Church-Lands, as alſo of the Towns, Mannors and Demeſns. He inſtituted a new Order of Knights, call'd by the Title of The Conception of our Lady, the firſt of which were Charles Gonzago and Vladiſlaus IV. King of Poland: Of the whole Order were 70, whoſe Banner was a Red Croſs, carrying a Flag faſtned to it with a golden Chain, repreſenting a bright Image of the Bleſſed Virgin, with the Devil under her Feet, and this Motto, Vince hoc Inſigne vere noſtro. He alſo appointed Viſitors of Monaſteries, Colleges, and Hoſpitals, and exhorted Biſhops and Cardinals to reſide in their reſpective Dioceſes. He ſolemnized a Jubile in 1625, and among other Embaſſadors who made their Tenders of Obedience during this Solemnity, that of King Philip of Spain's Embaſſador is remarkable, which he expreſs'd to this effect: King Philip doth offer and preſent to you, moſt Holy Father, all that Duty and Obedience which may evidence the Subjection and Reverence due to Your Holineſs and Apoſtolical See, and therewith ſubjects all his Kingdoms, Provinces, Seas and People, as a moſt obedient Son, and offers them at your Holy Feet, adoring thee on his Knees, acknowledging thee to be Vicar of Chriſt, Succeſſor of St. Peter, Head of the Catholick Church, and of all the Chriſtian Commonwealth, vowing to ſend all his Force, Riches and Strength, in Defence of the Apoſtolical See and Orthodox Religion. He promoted his Nephew Francis Barbarino, making him Cardinal-Patron, and Protector of Arragon, Portugal, England, Scotland, &c. Library-Keeper and Vice-Chancellor of the Church, and ſent him Legat à latere firſt into France, and then into Spain, in 1626. He conſecrated the great Baſilicon of St. Peter's Church, which was firſt erected by Conſtantine the Great, and adorn'd the Apoſtolical Sepulchre with the Corinthian Braſs taken from the Roof of the Pantheon built by Agripina, and of the remainder caſt a huge Cannon; which gave occaſion to that Libel put into the hands of Paſquin, Quod non fecerunt Barbari fecerunt Barberini, meaning the Deſtruction of that noble Monument of Antiquity. In 1627, he concluded the Wars about the Valtolin; and in 1631, he beſtowed the Title of Eminence upon the Cardinals. He alſo declared, that the Commonwealth of Venice was a Crown'd Head, and was to be treated with Royal Dignity. He eſtabliſhed a Peace betwixt France and Spain about the Dutchy of Mantua, by the Mediation of Cardinal Mazarin his Nuncio. He alſo re-annex'd the Dutchy of Urbin to the Patrimony of the Church without Arms, in 1623. He made his Nephew Thadeo Prætor of Rome, which Officer was of great Authority in the Time of the Cæſar's; and the Nephew relying on the Greatneſs of his Uncle, would thereupon take place of the Embaſſadors of Princes, which occaſion'd a general Diſtaſte: The Embaſſador of Venice, who paſs'd this Prætor without receiving a Complement, was order'd by the Venetians to leave Rome, and they ſuſpended the Nuncio from Audience, which with other Things had like to have ended in a Rupture; but by the Mediation of the French Embaſſador, it was brought to an Accommodation in 1633. Centini, a Cardinal's Nephew, to make way for his Uncle by Urban's Death, attempted it by Witchcraft, faſhioning the Pope's Image in Wax, and wounding it with Pins and Needles; for which, with a Friar his Aſſociate, he was Executed. In the Great Hall of the Vatican, there was a Picture repreſenting the Hiſtory of Alexander III. with a Commendation of the Venetians, by whoſe Aſſiſtance he had overcome the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa, which Urban cauſing to be blotted out, occaſion'd new Diſturbances; ſo that the Venetians recall'd their Embaſſador, and denied Audience to the Nuncio. In 1640 he was engag'd in a War with Edward Duke of Parma, through the Arbitrary Proceedings of his Nephews, who afterwards raiſed an Army, and invaded Caſtro, which that Duke holds of the Pope, and took the City of that Name. The Great Duke of Tuſcany, Vice-Roy of Naples, and the Republick of Venice, took part with the Duke, and the French with the Pope, promiſing to aſſiſt him to drive the Spaniards out of Italy, and ſettle the Crown of Naples on his Nephew. In the mean time the Prince of Parma being Excommunicated, the Miniſters of Venice and Florence did mediate for a Peace; which not taking effect, they took Arms, and enter'd into a League with the Duke of Modena, to aſſiſt the Duke of Parma; whereupon the latter enter'd the Eccleſiaſtical State with 3000 Horſe, without Foot or Cannon, which the Confederates look'd upon as a raſh Attempt, and their Men as loſt; but he had better Succeſs; for Bologna it ſelf, and other great Towns, ſubmitted to him, and Rome was in great Conſternation, which induced the Pope to come to a Treaty, but his Terms were rejected. The Duke of Parma being diſappointed in his Deſign of retaking Caſtro, entred Ferrara, and took La Stellata, and Things went on with various Succeſs, ſo that they came to a Treaty, and a Peace was concluded, and Caſtro reſtor'd. Urban was chiefly blam'd for being too fond of his Nephews, and too indulgent to his whole Family, which he was reſolved to make rich and great. At nine ſeveral Creations, he made 74 Cardinals, three of which were his Nephews. Ricaut's Continuation of Platina.

URBANEA, a little Town of Italy in the Dutchy of Urbin. It was formerly but a pitiful Village called Caſtrum Durantium and Tifernum Metaurum, until Pope Urban VIII. made it bigger, gave it his own Name, and founded a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Urbin.

URBIN, a Town and Archbiſhoprick of Italy, Capital of a Dutchy of the ſame Name in the Eccleſiaſtick State. The County which the Inhabitants call Lo Stato has Romandiola and the Adriatick Sea to the North, the Marcha Aconitana to the Eaſt, Ombria to the South, and Tuſcany to the Weſt. It comprehends the Dutchy of Urbin, the County of Montfeltro, the County and Territory of Gubio, the Lordſhip of Pezaro and Vicariat of Sinigaglia. The Capital City is Urbin. The others are Pezaro, Gubio, Sinigaglia, Urbanea, Cagli, &c. The Country is fruitful, and has fine Towns, three Sea-Ports, ſeven or eight Fortreſſes, and near 350 Boroughs. The State of Urbin was poſſeſs'd by the Houſe of Rovere; but that Family failing, it fell to the Popes under Urban VIII.

URBIN (Blamante of) a learned Architect of Rome, was born in 1444 at Caſtel Durante in the Dutchy of Urbin, whence he took his Name. Having ſtudied Mathematicks, he learn'd to deſign and paint; but deſpairing of ever reaching the Fame of thoſe of that Profeſſion then flouriſhing in Italy, he applied himſelf to Architecture, wherein he became very famous by the many Works and Deſigns he left at Rome; amongſt others, that of our Lady of Loretto, and of St. Peter's Church, which he began, and was continued by Raphael of Urbin, Julian of St. Gall, and ſeveral others after them; who not able to hit the Perfection of Bramant's Deſign, form'd new ones that differ'd very much from that great Man's. He died at Rome in 1514, at 70 Years of Age. Acad. des Arts.

URBINO, is a great and flouriſhing City near the Fountains of the River Foglia, in a very rich and pleaſant Soil, and built in the form of a Mitre. Franciſco Ubaldi, the firſt Duke, built in it a noble Palace, and a ſtately Library, which in the Time of Cæſar Borgia was wholly diſperſed and embezzel'd. Polydore Virgil was a Native of this City.

URGEL, called by the Inhabitants La Seu de Urghel, upon the Segre, a Town of Catalonia, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Tarragone. Authors have nam'd it diverſly Orgelum, Orgia, Orgella, and Urgela. It's five Leagues South from the Borders of France, 28 from Barcelona, and nine from Perpignan. It had Counts of great Power under the ſecond Line of the Kings of Arragon. Peter de Marca in Marca Hiſpanica.

URI, Urienſis Pagus, one of the 13 Swiſs Cantons. They are all Roman Catholicks that live in it. It lyes at the Foot of the Mountains along the Ruſs. The principal Borough is Altorf.

URIAH, Prieſt of the Jews, who in complaiſance to King Achaz, took the Altar conſecrated to God out of the Church to build another in its place, according to the Model that impious King ſent him, which was that of the Altar of Damaſcus. See Bathſheba.

URIAS, or Urie, the Prophet that foretold the Deſtruction of Solomon's Temple, and the Miſeries that were to befall the Jews. King Joakin order'd his Servants to apprehend him and put him to Death; which Urias having notice of, fled into Egypt; but being taken, was brought back to the King, who order'd his Death, and that his Body ſhould be thrown upon the Dunghill. Torniel, A. M. 3426.

URIM and THUMMIM. We know nothing certain of the Urim and Thummim of the Hebrews, but that they were certain Ornaments belonging to the High Prieſt's Habit, by which he gave Oracular Anſwers to the People. The Word Urim ſignifies Light or Explanations. The High Prieſt of the Jews conſulted God in the moſt important Affairs of their Commonwealth, who acquainted them with his Pleaſure by the Urim. Dr. Spencer pretends, that what was call'd Urim was nothing elſe but the antient Theraphims, or little humane Figures which the Prieſt carried hid in the Folds of his Robe or Gown, and by which God anſwer'd their Queſtions. This he explains by the Example of Laban; whence he concludes, that the uſe of theſe prophetick little Images was common in antient Times. He believ'd moreover, that Urim and Thummim were two diſtinct Figures. The Septuagint tranſlated the Word Thummim, Truth; which agrees very well with the like Ceremony much in uſe with the Egyptians, as has been obſerved by Diodorus Siculus, and ſome other Greek Authors, who tell us, That the principal Miniſter of Juſtice amongſt the Egyptians, carried an Image of precious Stones hung at his Neck, and this he call'd Truth; whence it's probable the Septuagint deliver'd the Word Thummim, Truth. Monſieur le Clark believes it very probable, that the Urim and Thummim were a Collar of Pearl and Carbuncles. See Le Clark Comment. Philolog. in Exod. 28. M. Simon.

UROOM (Henry Corneille) a Dutch Painter, born at Harlem in 1566, was the firſt who excell'd in painting Navigations. Amongſt ſeveral Pieces of this nature, he drew his own Shipwreck upon the Coaſts of Portugal, and the Rocks called Los Barlengos, and the general Rout of the Invincible Armado in 1588, by Thomas Howard, Admiral of England. Vaſari, &c.

URSACIUS, Biſhop of Singidon in Meſia, made himſelf much talk'd on in the Fourth Age, by his Defence of the Errors of Arius, and his Perſecution of the Orthodox. He and Valens of Meurſia in Pannonia, who had alſo been brought up in Arius his Doctrine, join'd Euſebius of Nicomedia, all Abettors of Arianiſm. They appear'd at the Council of Tyre againſt St. Athanaſius, and afterwards at that of Sardica, where they were depos'd. They retracted at the Council of Milan, but ſoon renew'd their Errors, and were again depos'd in the Council of Rimini; but upon a feign'd Recantation were re-eſtabliſh'd by the ſame, and continued their Arianiſm in Illyrium, till they were excommunicated at Rome by Damaſus. Theodoret, lib. 2. Socrates, lib. 2. Baronius.

URSIN (Joſeph) the Name of a monſtrous Child found by Huntſmen in 1661, in the Foreſt of Lithuania in Poland, where he liv'd amongſt Bears. The Huntſmen purſuing their Prey, diſcover'd a great many Bears together, and obſerv'd two little ones in humane Shape amongſt the reſt. This made them follow ſo cloſe, that they took one of the two, though it defended it ſelf with its Nails and Teeth. They brought him to Varſovia, before the King, Queen, and Gentry, that flock'd from all parts to ſee this ſtrange Child, which ſeem'd to be about nine Years old. Its Skin and Hair were extraordinary white, the Members well proportion'd and ſtrong; the Viſage fair, and Eyes blue; but his Senſes were ſo abrutis'd, that it ſeem'd to have no more of Man than the Body; it could not ſpeak, and all its Inclinations held altogether of the Beaſt. Yet he was Chriſten'd by the Archbiſhop of Poſnania, and call'd Joſeph, the Queen of Poland ſtanding Godmother, and the French Ambaſſador Godfather. Afterwards there was great care taken to tame his fierce Nature, and learn him ſome Principles of Religion: But he could never be brought to ſpeak, though there appeared no fault in the ſhape of his Tongue; yet it was obſerv'd, the time was not altogether loſt that was employed in his Inſtruction, for at the Name of God he learn'd to lift his Hands and Eyes to Heaven. The King beſtow'd him upon one of the Lords of Poland, who took him into his Houſe to ſerve him; but he could never be brought to leave the natural fierceneſs that he had learn'd amongſt the Beaſts; yet he learn'd to go upright, and upon his Feet only, and went where he was ſent. He lik'd raw as well as boil'd Fleſh, could ſuffer no Cloaths on his Back, nor ever wear Shoes, nor any thing upon his Head. Sometimes he wou'd ſteal to the Woods, and there ſuck the Sap of Trees, when he had torn off the Bark with his Nails. It was obſerved, that he being in the Wood one day when a Bear had kill'd two Men, that Beaſt came to him, and inſtead of doing him any harm, play'd, and lick'd his Face and Body. Redwiz Carm. Alc.

URSIN, or Fulvius Urſinus, a Roman, flouriſh'd in the 16th Century, was a good Linguiſt and Philologer. He died at Rome in 600, being 70 Years of Age; and left a Treatiſe, De Familiis Romanorum, Comment de Triclinio Romanorum; and wrote Notes upon Tully, Varro, Columella, Feſtus Pompeius, &c. *Mireus de Script. URSINE, Wife of Guy Torello, firſt Count of Guaſtalle, a Town of Italy in the Dutchy of Mantua. She ſhew'd extraordinary Courage againſt the Venetians that Beſieg'd the Town in her Husband's Abſence; for ſallying at the Head of her Troops, ſhe defeated a great Body of 'em, killing many with her own hand. Fulgos, lib. 3. cap. 2.

St. URSULA, Daughter (as 'tis ſaid) of a Prince of Great Britain, was martyr'd near Cologne upon the Rhine, with a great number of other Young Women that accompanied her. The Story runs thus: Maximus being ſaluted Emperor in 382, by his Army in Great Britain, paſs'd into Gaul to eſtabliſh his Throne, and diſpoſſeſs the Emperor Gratian. One of his Commanders, call'd Conan, a Britain Prince and Chriſtian, ſignaliz'd himſelf ſo in this Expedition, that to recompence his great Service, Maximus gave him the Government of Armorica or Little Britany. Conan having eſtabliſhed his Reſidence in Nantes, ſent Deputies to Great Britain to demand Vrſula for him in Marriage of her Father Dunnat, a Britain Prince, or according to others King of Cornwal, with as many other Young Women of that Iſland as wou'd bear her Company, for the Britains that had accompanied him into Little Britany. Theſe Embaſſadors being well receiv'd, the Princeſs took Ship with the reſt of her Companions at London; but the Fleet being caſt by Storm on the Coaſts of Gaul Belgick, they made Tiel, a Port towards the Mouth of the Rhine in the Country call'd now the Dutchy of Gueldres, and advanced thence towards Cologne upon the Rhine. The Huns commanded by Gaunus, then in the Field for the Emperor Gratian againſt the Tyrant Maximus, obſerving theſe Veſſels to belong to the Britans their Enemies, attack'd and ſoon became Maſters of them, they being of no great Force. Theſe Barbarians would have forc'd the Women; but they being exhorted by Vrſula to die rather than ſtain their Honour, made ſuch Reſiſtance, that the Huns, not able to ſatisfie their Luſts as they would, maſſacred them all moſt barbarouſly: Nor did they ſpare any of their Retinue or Guards. This happened in 383. It's not eaſie to determine how many were kill'd, for Vſuard that liv'd in the 8th Age, ſays only, that the Number was very great. Sigibert who lived in 1110 writes, that 11000 Virgins were ſlain; though others affirm, there were but Eleven in all; which Opinion they ground upon antient Titles, wherein this Number is marked in Roman Figures thus, XI.M.V. which they will have to ſignifie Eleven Martyr'd Virgins: They add, that the antient Arms of the Town of Cologne were eleven Flambeaux, becauſe being Beſieg'd in 1205 by the Swedes, theſe Virgins (ſay they) preſented themſelves for its Defence with each a Flambeaux; but they that follow the common Opinion ſay, that each Flambeaux repreſent a thouſand. Archbiſhop Vſher in his Antiquitates Eccleſiarum Britannicarum, confutes this Story of the 11000 Virgins.

St. URSULA, or the Vrſulines, a Religious Congregation of Young Women and Widows, that follow St. Auguſtine's Rule under Biſhops. Angele of Breſſe eſtabliſh'd 'em firſt of all in Italy, where they were approv'd in 1572 by Pope Gregory XIII. at the Sollicitation of Charles Borromeus Archbiſhop of Milan, and Paul Leon Biſhop of Ferrara. Afterwards Madelain Lullier, a Nun of S. Beuve, founded the Vrſulines in 1611 in France: Pope Paul V. approved this Eſtabliſhment and the Conſtitutions. The firſt Monaſtery was that of Paris, but now there are many other in the Kingdom; they teach Young Girls, which is one of the chiefeſt Ends of the Inſtitution. Spond. Hilarion.

USBECK Tartars, Sogdiana and Bactriana, a ſingle Province now of the Kingdom of Perſia, to the North-Eaſt, the chief Cities of which are Balk, Samarkand, and Bocarra. Tavern. pag. 142. This Province is not ſo much ſubject to the Perſians, but that the Kans of the ſeveral Cities ſend Embaſſies, and make War and Peace, without conſulting the King of Perſia. The Country yields excellent Apples, Pears, Raiſins, and Mellons, which are ſent as far as Dethi; excellent Camels, and gallant Horſes, with which they ſerve both Indoſtan and Perſia. They are a very covetous and naſty Nation, and ſo ignorant, that they know not the Confines of their own State. This Kingdom was erected by Tuxius Son of Chingues, Cham of Tartary, about the Year 1200, and left by him to his Son Badu in 1232, who Conquered Comania, Ruſſia, Poland, Sileſia, and Hungary. If this be Mr. Jenkenſon's Oſveke, its Lat. is 51.40. Tavern.

USCAN, the Armenian Biſhop's Name that printed the whole Bible in the Armenian Tongue, with ſeveral other Books, at his own Expences, in Holland, in 1664, and who afterwards came with the French King's leave to ſettle at Marſeilles, where he printed many Books for his Nation, and there died. He was Biſhop of Vuſchavanch, a Place ſituated at the foot of Mount Aracos, where there is a Monaſtery of S. Sergius, and was deputed in 1662, by his Patriarch that reſides at Egmiazin, to come to Europe, and print the Armenian Bible and ſome other Books, for the conveniency of their Churches; and likewiſe ſome Tracts of the Hiſtory of his Nation. Mr. Simon has printed a Notitia of the Churches which depend upon the Patriarch of Armenia, who reſides at Egmiazin: This Liſt was dictated by the Biſhop of Vſcan, but being printed in Holland, there are ſome Miſtakes made in the proper Names of the Churches. *R. USCOQUES, People of the Imperial Croatia, that is, of that that belongs to the Houſe of Auſtria. The firſt of theſe People fled out of Dalmatia, to be out of the reach of the Turk's Tyranny; whence ſome derive the Word Scoco a Fugitive. The moſt conſiderable Place they choſe, was the Fortreſs of Cliſſa, built above Spalatro; but this being taken by the Turks in 1537, they fled to Segna, a Town ſituate over againſt the Iſle Veglia, which then belonged to Count Frangipani; but the Emperor Ferdinand united it to the Crown, becauſe this Lord was not ſtrong enough to defend it againſt the Mahometans, and gave it to the Vſcoques; who being a fierce kind of People, accuſtom'd to run through Woods and over Rocks, ſeem'd to promiſe great Service againſt the Turks, as indeed they did for a time; but ſoon afterwards changed the creditable way of fighting fairly in the Field againſt the Infidels, into Theft and Robbery, not ſparing the very Chriſtians; which made them odious to all, and drew the Venetians upon them. Though in the beginning, their Number of Fighting Men hardly amounted to 600, yet it's incredible how troubleſom they were to the Turks in their Marches, and ſometimes made Incurſions to their very Houſes, returning commonly with Priſoners and Booty. This made the Turks oppoſe them with another kind of People worſe than themſelves, called Marteloſſes. There are three ſorts of Vſcoques; Citadins, Stipendaries, and Adventurers. The Caſalins or Citadins are they that are born in the Town of Segna, and have a fix'd Manſion from Father to Son. The Stipendaries are ſuch as receive Pay, and are divided into four Companies, conſiſting each of 50 Men under four Commanders: There are other Officers that arm each a Barque to turn Pirate with. The Adventurers, Vagabonds, or Fugitives of Turkey and Dalmatia, join theſe laſt. Theſe Barques have generally 30, and ſome 50 Men in them, and go out at ſeveral times of the Year, eſpecially at Eaſter and Chriſtmaſs; Then the Vſcoques of Vinadol join thoſe of Segna, who leave the Town guarded only by antient People, Women and Children, Prieſts and Friars, &c. Sometimes they have good Succeſs, not ſo much by their Valour, as the conveniency of the Iſlands, Rocks, and deſerted Ports that the Gulf of Venice abounds with, very proper to lye hid in. Theſe Peoples Arms are Firelocks, Battle-Axes, and Bajonets. For Religion, they are Roman Catholicks; but we cannot ſay they are good Chriſtians, becauſe their Profeſſion is Robbery and Plunder. Amelot. de la Houſſaye Hiſt. des Vſcoques.

USHER (James) Archbiſhop of Ardmagh in Ireland, was born in Dublin in 1580, of an antient Family, whoſe ſirname was formerly Nevill; but one of his Anceſtors being Uſher to King John about the Year 1200, chang'd the Name of Nevill into that of his Office. His Father Arnold Vſher, one of the ſix Clerks of Chancery, ſent him to the Univerſity of Dublin, ſetled in that condition it was, chiefly by the Intereſt and Application of Henry Vſher his Uncle, Archbiſhop of Ardmagh; where he made great Progreſs in Learning, and gave extraordinary proof of his Parts and Capacity at 18 Years of Age. In 1615, there being a Parliament and Aſſembly of the Clergy at Dublin, he drew up Articles about Religion and Church Diſcipline, which were approv'd of by King James, though they differ'd ſomewhat from the Tenets of the Church of England; upon which account, he was by ſome, charg'd of Puritaniſm: But their Suggeſtions avail'd nothing, for King James gave him the Biſhoprick of Meath in 1620, and the Archbiſhoprick of Ardmagh in 1626. Five Years after he publiſhed the Hiſtory of Godeſcalc, a Monk of the Abby of Orbay; and about the latter end of that Year came into England, and publiſhed a Treatiſe of the antient Religion of Ireland. He came into England again in 1640, and ſent for his Library, thinking it unſafe to return into a Country ſo embroil'd in War and Troubles as that was then. The Univerſity of Leyden invited him to Holland, offering him a conſiderable Penſion, and the Title of Honorary Profeſſor: Cardinal Richelieu ſent him his Picture in a Medal, promiſing him alſo a great Penſion and free Exerciſe of his Religion, if he would be pleaſed to come to France: But he preferred ſtaying in England, where he continued to compoſe ſeveral learned Works. Whilſt the Parliament kept the King Priſoner in the Iſle of Wight, and was reſolved to aboliſh Epiſcopal Government, he propoſed this Expedient for Agreement between both, to moderate the Power of the Biſhops, rendering them only Moderators or Preſidents of the Synods of their Dioceſes; which made ſome call him Enemy of Hierarchy. He was extremely ſenſible of the King's Misfortune, inſomuch that ſeeing his Execution from the Counteſs of Peterborough's Houſe near Whitehall, he ſwooned away, and being carried to his Bed, is ſaid to have propheſied what happened in England ever ſince. Cromwel ſent for him in 1655, promis'd to make him Satisfaction for his Loſſes in Ireland, and order'd that the Epiſcopal Clergy ſhould not be moleſted, but did not keep his Word. The Archbiſhop ſickned a little after, and died of a Pleuriſie the 21ſt of March 1655. Cromwel knowing he was well belov'd by the People, had him ſolemnly buried at Weſtminſter, in St. Eraſmus's Chapel, and made his Library be ſold for much leſs than it was worth, to beſtow it upon the Univerſity of Dublin, and to diſappoint the King of Denmark and Cardinal Richelieu, who would fain have bought it. His own Works are full of Erudition, eſpecially his Chronological Hiſtory or Annals, which has been abridg'd by thoſe who have added the Chronological Tables that are at the end of the Latin Bible of Vitre. We have a valuable Collection of the Epiſtles of St. Ignatius, St. Barnabas, and St. Polycarpus, compil'd by him, with ſome Remarks upon them. He publiſh'd Antiquitates Eccleſiarum Britannicarum, or De Præmordiis Eccleſiarum Britannicarum, wherein he prov'd, that the Chriſtian Religion was receiv'd in this Iſland ſoon after our Saviour's Death. His Syntagma de Editione LXX Interpretum, is a very learned Piece; but there are ſingular Opinions in't, to the diſadvantage of that Verſion; which the Learned Valeſius has confuted, in a Letter of his to the Archbiſhop. He wrote likewiſe ſeveral other Tracts both in Latin and Engliſh. Rich. Parr. M. Simon Biblioth. Univerſ. Tom. 2.

USK, a Market Town in Monmouthſhire, the Capital of an Hundred, ſituate upon a River of its own Name; over which it hath a Bridge. It's well built, large, and Fortified formerly with a Caſtle now in Ruins. The antient Burrium of Antonius is ſuppos'd to have ſtood here. The Duke of Beaufort poſſeſſes a Noble Seat, call'd Ragland Caſtle in the Vicinage of this Place, from London 108 Miles.

USUARDUS, a Benedictine, living in the 9th Century. He wrote a Martyrology, which he Dedicated to Charles the Bald of France. Sigebert, cap. 58. De Vir. Illuſt. Trithamet, Bellarmin. de Script. Eccl. &c.

USUM-CASAN, otherwiſe called Ozun-Aſembec, of the Family of the Aſſembeies, was Son of Alibec, and became King of Perſia. Some affirm, he deſcended of Tamerlan of the Faction of the White Ram, there being another that was called the Black Ram actually reigning. Vſum-Caſan that was Governor of Armenia revolted, and kill'd King Jooncha, with his Son Acen Hali, both of this laſt Faction, put himſelf upon the Throne of Perſia, made War againſt the Turk, and, though a Mahometan, married the Daughter of the Emperor of Trebizonde, then a Chriſtian. He alſo join'd the Chriſtians againſt the Turks; but though he did great Exploits, yet they profited the others but little. He died in 1572. Angiolel. Chalcondilas.

UTENHOVE (Charles) born at Ghent in Flanders. He was a Perſon of Birth and Learning. He Travelled into France, where he made an Acquaintance with Turnebus. From thence he Travelled into England, wrote ſeveral Things in Defence of Queen Elizabeth, and was taken Notice of, and gratify'd by her. Beſide Greek and Latin, and the Oriental Tongues, he underſtood moſt of the Languages of Europe. He died at Cologn in 1600. The moſt conſiderable of his Works are, Epigrammata, Epitaphia, Epithalamia Græca & Latina. Xeniorum Liber. Epiſtolarum Centuria Mythologia Æſopica Metro Elegiaco, &c. Thuan Hiſtor. Melchior Adam. Valerius Andreas.

UTILO, or Odilon, Duke of Bavaria, ſucceeded his Father Theodon, and made War a long time in Italy. He died in 565, 10 Years after the Goths were driven out of Italy by the Eunuch Narſes. And. Brunner.

UTILO II. Duke of Bavaria, ſucceeded Hugibert in 739, and in 741 join'd Charles Martel againſt the Saracens that then threatned all Chriſtendom. He gave great Proofs of his Valour in the Battel wherein theſe Infidels were defeated. He married Hiltrude, Charles Martel's Daughter, that ſame Year, and took the Name of King, which he was afterwards forced to quit by Carloman and Pepin his Brothers-in-Law. He built ſeven conſiderable Monaſteries. And. Brunner.

UTRECHT, a Town and Lordſhip of the Low Countries, one of the 17 Provinces, with an Archbiſhoprick. It was of the Circle of Weſtphalia, but it's now Capital of one of the ſeven United Provinces. The Antients called it diverſly, Vltrajectum, Trajectum inferius, Vtricenſium, and Antonina Civitas. It lyes upon the antient Channel of the Rhine, in a convenient and fruitful place. It has a Caſtle that was built by Charles V. who in 1546 kept a Chapter of the Order of the Golden Fleece there; beſides which, there were four Collegiate Churches, two Commanderies, and ſeveral Abbeys. The firſt Biſhop was Willebrod about the end of the 7th Age, and then the Biſhoprick was Suffragant of Cologne; but in 1557 it ſelf was erected into an Archbiſhoprick, and had for its Suffragants Harlem, Middleburg, Daventer, Leerwarden, and Groningue. Its firſt and laſt Archbiſhop was Frederick Schenck. This place was taken by the French in 1672, but they quitted it two Years after. The Province of Vtrecht lyes between thoſe of Holland and Gueldres. The other Cities beſides the Capital, are Wyck, Amersfort, Montfort, &c. It was powerful in former times, the Prelates being Lords thereof, until one Henry of Bavaria, baniſh'd thence by its Inhabitants, made his Right to it over the Emperor Charles V. Several of the Emperors of Germany reſided, and ſome died here, amongſt whom are reckon'd Conrad II. in 1039, and Henricus V. in 1122. The Inhabitants were ſo jealous of their Privileges, that they would not ſuffer any of their Biſhop's Officers to have any ſhare in the Government of this City; nor would they ſuffer the Biſhop to enter the Town with more Men than they allow'd him, or to ſtay in it above five or eight Days. They maintain'd this Liberty, though it was ſorely envied, and laid at by John Count of Holland in 1297, and William Count of Holland in 1324, till in 1327 he paſs'd over his Right to Charles V. who being a potent Prince, eaſily reduced this City under his Obedience, and built a Caſtle in it. In 1577, this Town with the reſt of Holland, revolted from the Spaniards. In 1636, the States made it an Univerſity, having beautified it before with a fair Piazza or Market-place, and a Pall-Mall that has five Rows of Trees on each ſide. Guicciardin. Valer. Andr.

UTTOXITER, a pretty large and indifferent well built Market Town in Staffordſhire, ſituate amongſt excellent Paſturages. Its Market is ſaid to be the greateſt in that part of England, for Cattel, Butter, and Dairy Commodities. From London 104 Miles.

VUIST, one of the Scotch Weſtern Iſlands, about 30 Miles long, and ſix broad. The Tide flowing into this Iſland in two places, makes a Repreſentation of three Iſlands; but at the Ebb they appear to be but one. There are many Lakes of freſh Water in this Iſland, and particularly one which is three Miles long, into which the Sea hath made it ſelf a Paſſage, and cannot be kept out though the Inhabitants have endeavoured it by a Bank of 60 foot high. In this Lake, there are Fiſhes taken reſembling a Salmon in every reſpect, ſave that his Belly is white, and his Back black. There are five Pariſh Churches in this Iſland. Buchan.

VULCAN, look'd upon to be God of ſubterranean Fire, and to preſide over Metals, Son of Jupiter and Juno. It's ſaid, his Father angry to ſee him ugly and ill-ſhap'd, kick'd him out of Heaven, and that his Fall on the Earth made him lame. He married Venus, but ſhe could never abide him: Poets have ſeveral other things of him. Vulcan was Prince of Sicily, and his care in digging Mines and preparing Metals, gave ſubject to theſe Fables. Heſiod. Ovid. Plut. Natalis Comes.

VULFRAN, or Wulfran, Biſhop of Sens, Native of Milly in Gaſtinois, accompanied with ſome Friars of the Abby of St. Vandrille, went to Frieſland to preach the Goſpel, where he Converted a great number of Idolaters. He Baptiz'd amongſt others, Duke Radbod's Son, who died in his white Garment, which was worn then by all Converts a Week after Baptiſm. After Vulfran had preach'd five Years in Frieſland, he return'd into France, and became Monk of the Abby of St. Vandrille; went back again into Frieſland, but died in his Abby in 720. P. Mabillon. Act. Sanct.

UZANGUE, General of the Emperor of China's Army; in 1644 he was ſent againſt the Tartars that were making Incurſions into China; but whilſt he defended the Frontiers of the Kingdom, a Chinois Captain, called Licungs, revolted, and ſurprized the Town of Peking. The Emperor fearing to fall into his hands, fled out of his Palace into the Gardens, and hang'd himſelf upon a Tree. Vzangues having an Account of this Rebellion, of the Emperor's Death, and the taking the Town of Peking, ſent to the Tartars for Help againſt the Rebels: Whereupon Tſumte King of Tartary, march'd with 80000 Horſe, and was followed with 200000 Foot to join him. The Tartars being admitted into the Country in this vaſt number, forc'd Vzangue and his whole Army to ſhave, according to the Tartars Cuſtom. But in 1674, Vzangue, though he accepted the Title of Vice-Roy of Quangſi, ſought an Occaſion to ſhake off their Yoke; therefore let his Hair grow, declared againſt them, and in a little time made himſelf Maſter of the four great Provinces to the Weſtern-ſide, and drew the Vice-Roy of Fokien, whoſe Lands lay to the Eaſt, and Vice-Roy of Canton that commanded in the South of China, to his Party in 1676; but theſe Allies ſoon ſubmitted, and he ſtill maintains himſelf in the Poſſeſſion of Quangſi and Huquan. Relations de la Chine.

UZERCHE, or Vſarcha, Vſarchia, or rather Vſarcha upon Vezere, a Town of France in Low Limouſin, with a Caſtle and Abby. Its Situation is advantageous. The Town depends on the Abbot, who is Lord thereof.

UZES, upon the little River of Eiſent, a Town of France, in Lower Languedoc, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Narbonne. It's the Vſelei, or Caſtrum Vſelicenſe, of the Antients: It was firſt a Barony, then a Viſcounty, and at laſt made a Dutchy and Peery in favour of Anthony of Cruſſol. The Biſhop has the Title of Count, the King is alſo Lord of it, and has a Caſtle there as well as the Biſhop and Duke. The Town is rich in Traffick, and noted for the Manufactories and Cloth made in it. It ſuffered very much in the 16th Age, during the Wars about Religion.

W. THIS Letter is only uſed by the Germans, and thoſe who imitate their Dialect; as, the Engliſh, &c. whoſe Languange is originally Saxon.

WAIGATS, a Chanel or Streight between the Country of Waigats and the Firm Land of Moſcovia. The Current of the Water lyes from Weſt to Eaſt, and it's by this that the Seas of Moſcovy and Tartary join or communicate. The Hollanders diſcovered this famous Streight in 1594, when they endeavour'd to find a Paſſage to China by the North, and were ſtop'd by the Ice. They landed in two Iſlands, whereof they call one that is to the Eaſt of this place, Staten Eyland, and the other to the Weſt Maurice. They met with nothing in either but Rocks and Lakes, with great Numbers of Swans, wild Ducks, Falcons, &c.

WAINFLEET, or Waynfleet, a Market Town in Lincolnſhire, in Lindſey Diviſion, and Hundred of Candleſhow, upon a Waſh in a Fenny Ground, which empties it ſelf into the Sea not far from hence; made famous by giving Name and Birth to William of Waynfleet, Biſhop of Wincheſter, the Founder of Magdalen College in Oxon, and of a Free-School in this Town. It's 102 Miles from London.

WAKEFIELD, a Market Town in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire, in Agbridge Hundred, upon the River Calder, over which it has a fair Stone Bridge. King Edward IV. adorn'd it with a ſtately Chapel. It's now a large Town, well built, of great Antiquity, and drives a good Clothing Trade. From London 133 Miles.

WALA (Prince) Couſin to Charlemagne, and Abbot of Corbie. His Life was writ by Paſchaſius Radbertus his Diſciple, under borrow'd Names, becauſe there were ſeveral ſecret important things relating to the Depoſition of Lewis the Meek in 835, not ſafe to be ſpoken in that Emperor's nor his Son Charles the Bald's time, when Paſchaſius wrote. This Hiſtory informs us, that Wala was married to the Daughter of William Duke of Septimania, and became General of Charlemagne's Army; that he afterwards retired into the Monaſtery of Corbie; and left it again to take care of Lothaire's Education, and to govern the Kingdom of Italy for him. Some think he had a hand in Depoſing Lewis the Meek, and others hold he was very much againſt it. Acta ſſ. Ordinis. S. Benedict.

WALACHIA, or Valaquia, a Principality of Europe, was formerly part of the antient Kingdom of Hungary. It lyes between Bulgaria, Moldavia, Tranſylvania, and the modern Hungary. It is not very long ſince it was divided into Great Valachia or Ciſalpina, the preſent Moldavia, and Little Valachia or Tranſalpina, the which is now only called Valachia. It has Mines of Gold, Horſes the moſt eſteemed of Europe, and a great number of Rivers. The chief Town is Tarvis or Tergowisk. The Prince, who takes the Name of Vaivode, that is, Chief of the Troops, is tributary to the Turk, and pays 120000 Livres a Year. Corban, a Greek by Religion, had Valachia from the Grand Signior in the 17th Age. See Valachia.

WALCHEREN, or Walachia, an Iſland of the Low Countries, in Zealand. Its principal Towns are Middlebourg, Fluſhing, Vere, Armuide, &c.

WALCHEREN, or the New Walcheren, an Iſland of Northern America, otherwiſe called Tobago.

WALDECK, a County of Germany, in the Landtgraviat of Heſſe, rich in Corn and Wine, and Mines of Gold, Silver, Braſs, Quickſilver, Iron, Lead, Salt, and Allum. The Prince of this Name, who was Field-Marſhal to the States-General, a Proteſtant, and good Soldier, but not reckon'd very ſucceſsful, died in 1692.

WALDEN, a Market Town of Uttlesford Hundred in the North-Weſt part of Eſſex, ſeated on an Aſcent, water'd by the River Grant, amongſt pleaſant Fields of Saffron; whence it's alſo called Saffron Walden. From London 35 Miles.

WALDERSWICK, a Sea Town in the County of Suffolk, and Hundred of Blithing, near Southwould Bay, adorned with a remarkable, high, and fair Church.

WALES, once a Kingdom, and now a Principality, is a Country on the Weſt of England, bounded on all ſides with the Sea, except on the Eaſt, where it joins to England. Antiently it extended Eaſtward as far as the Severn, till Offa the Great (King of Mercia, in the time of the Heptarchy) drove the Welſh out of the plain Countries beyond that River, to the Mountains; where he cauſed them to be ſhut up, by making a Dike, called Offa's Dike, which parted England from Wales. And a Law was afterwards made by Harold, that if any Welſh man was found with a Weapon on this ſide of the Ditch, he ſhould have his Right-Hand cut off. This Dike reach'd about 100 Miles, from the Fall of the Wye into the Severn, not far from Chepſtow, to Cheſter, and is in many Places to be ſeen at this Day. This Country, by the Natives called Zambre, in Latin Cambria, or Cambro-Britannia, got the Name of Wales among us, from the Saxons Wallis; who, conſidering the Welſh or Britains as deſcended from the antient Gauls, might call it ſo inſtead of Gallis, it being uſual with the Germans to uſe in ſome Caſes a w where the French uſe a g or gu, as in the Words Warden and Warre, in French Gardien and Guerre. And that which makes the Thing moſt probable, is, that Wales is to this Day called by the French Galles or le Païs de Galles. The antient Inhabitants hereof, in the time of the Romans, went chiefly under theſe three Names, viz. the Silures, Dimetæ, and Ordovices, who poſſeſſed all that Tract which lyes on the Weſt of the Severn. To this Country fled the antient Britains, driven out of their Native Seat (the Kingdom we live in) by the invading Saxons. Wales hath many goodly Rivers, the principal whereof are the Dee, Wye, Tivy, Tovy, Usk and Conway. And as for Harbours, no Country can boaſt of a ſafer and more capacious than that called Milford Haven in Pembrokeſhire. The Inhabitants being the Off-ſpring of the antient Britains, are look'd upon as Men of honeſt Principles, but much inclined to Choler. Always very troubleſom to the Engliſh during their Subjection to them, ſeldom keeping themſelves within the Bounds of true Allegiance, till the Reign of Henry VII. who being born in this Country, calmed their reſtleſs Spirits, being pleaſed to ſee themſelves under a King of their own Nation. A People, ſaid Henry II. in a Letter he wrote to Emanuel Emperor of Conſtantinople, ſo adventurous, that naked they dare encounter with armed Men, ready to ſpend their Blood for their Country, and pawn their Life for Praiſe. The Truth is, that ſince their Incorporating with the Engliſh, they have ſhewed themſelves very hearty and affectionate Subjects of the State, and as ready to defend their Laws, Liberties, and Religion, as the beſt of their Fellow-Subjects. Their Language is the old Britiſh, the leaſt mix'd with foreign Words of any in Europe; but, by reaſon of its many Conſonants and Guttural Letters, not very pleaſing to the Ear, nor much regarded by other Nations. But, as Barren as this Country is, it has yielded ſome Men of good note: And (to paſs by Merlin, who lived at the latter end of the 5th Century, of whom ſtrange Things are reported) here was born Gildas, for his great Knowledge ſirnamed Sapiens, or the Wiſe, Geofrey of Monmouth who lived in the 12th Century, Giraldus Cambrenſis, and of latter Times Sir John Price the Antiquary, Owen the Epigrammatiſt. Formerly this Country was divided into three principal Parts, viz. North-Wales, Powis-Land, and South-Wales, each of them under its own Princes. The firſt being the moſt barren and unfruitful part of Wales, contained the Counties of Merioneth and Caernarvan, the Iſle of Angleſey, and the greateſt part of Denbigh and Flint Shires. Powis-Land, a more fruitful part, contained the Counties of Montgomery, Radnor, all Shropſhire beyond the Severn, and the reſt of Denbigh and Flint Shires. South-Wales, the greateſt and moſt fruitful part of the three, comprehended the Counties of Monmouth, Glamorgan, Caermarthen, Cardigan, and Brecknock. But ſince Monmouthſhire and all Shropſhire were taken out of Wales, and reckoned as part of England, the whole Country has only been divided into two Parts, to wit, North-Wales and South-Wales; and each of them ſubdivided into ſix Counties, viz. Flintſhire, Denbighſhire, Caernarvanſhire, Merionethſhire, Montgomeryſhire, and the Iſle of Angleſey in North-Wales; Cardiganſhire, Radnorſhire, Brecknockſhire, Glamorganſhire, Caermarthenſhire, and Pembrokeſhire, in South-Wales. So that the length of the Whole from North to South, may be reckoned 120 Miles; from Eaſt to Weſt 80, where it is broadeſt. Theſe 12 Shires are again contracted or ſubdivided into four Circuits, for the Adminiſtration of Juſtice. The firſt of which contains the Counties of Montgomery, Flint, and Denbigh; the ſecond, thoſe of Caernarvan, Angleſey, and Merioneth; the third, thoſe of Caermarthen, Cardigan, and Pembroke; the fourth, thoſe of Glamorgan, Brecknock, and Radnor. For the Church-Government, the whole Country is divided into theſe four Biſhopricks, of St. David's, Landaff, St. Aſaph, and Bangor; all four belonging to the Province of Canterbury. In theſe 12 Shires there are reckoned 1016 Pariſhes; amongſt which, 4 Cities, 55 Market-Towns, and 41 Caſtles of the old Erection. The Cities (ſays Heylin) ſmall, poor, and inconſiderable. The Market-Towns, thoſe eſpecially on the Marches and Out-parts of the Country, both fair and ſtrong; as being not only built for Commerce and Trade but fortified with Walls and Caſtles to keep in the Welſh, and were ſo employed, till the Incorporating of Wales with England took away all Occaſion for Hoſtilities. As for the Inland Caſtles, the very Ruins of them are now brought to Ruin, partly by the Force of Time, but chiefly by the Policy of the Kings of England, who would not ſuffer any Places of Strength to remain in a Country almoſt inacceſſible, and amongſt Men apt to take all the Advantages which offered. When, upon the Saxon Invaſion, the Natives were forced to make this Country their Place of Retreat (at leaſt the main Body of them) then was Cadwallader their King; who, ſometime after being wrought upon by a ſuperſtitious Zeal, travelled in Pilgrimage to Rome, there to receive the Habit of a Religious Order from the Hands of Pope Sergius: And, upon his Departure, Ivor an Intruder, took upon him the Government; but kept it only till Idwallo, Son of Cadwallader, was reſtored unto his Father's Throne; which happened Anno 690, the next Year after his Father's Death at Rome. But then the Title of King of Britain began to be diſus'd, and that of King of Wales to be taken up; which continued for almoſt 200 Years, till Roderick II. thought fit to divide his Kingdom, how ſmall ſoever it was, amongſt his Sons, who were three. To Amarawd the eldeſt, he gave North-Wales; to Cadel his ſecond Son, South-Wales; and to Merwin his youngeſt Son, Powis-Land: But with this Proviſo, That the two younger Sons, and their Succeſſors, ſhould hold their Eſtates in Fee of the Kings of North-Wales, and be Homagers unto them. And ſuch was the Influence of Roderick's Example, that ſome of his Succeſſors ſubdivided their Eſtates alſo, though ſmall enough, into ſmaller Parcels; inſomuch that of the eight Tributary Princes which rowed King Edgar on the Dee, five of of them were Princes of Wales. In ſhort, theſe Princes grew ſo weak, that ſo early as the Reign of the Saxon King Ethelſtan, they paid to the Crown of England a yearly Tribute of 20 Pounds of Gold, 300 Pounds of Silver, and 200 Head of Cattel. A Tribute afterwards exchanged for a certain number of Wolves; which made the Welſh ſo skilful in Wolf-hunting, that they cleared England of them. They reſiſted indeed for the ſpace of 400 Years, not only the private Undertakers and Adventurers of England, but even the Forces of ſeveral mighty Kings, whoſe Attempts they frequently balked by retiring into the Heart of their Country, and leaving nothing for the Engliſh to encounter with but their Woods and Mountains. Yet when the fatal Period of their Liberty was come, they were forced at laſt to ſubmit; which hapned Anno 1282, under the Reign of King Edward I. who had the Fortune, by the Force of his Arms, to add this Principality to the Crown of England. King Edward having thus effected this great Buſineſs, took all imaginable care to ſecure Wales to the Crown. In order to which, he gave the Engliſh Barons, and other Gentlemen of Note who had ſerved him in this Expedition, many fair Eſtates, as well to reward them for their Service, as to engage ſo many able Men both in Purſe and Power, for the perpetual Defence and Subjection of it. And, as he placed an Engliſh Lieutenant in every Shire, ſo he was very deſirous to have one general Engliſh Vicegerent over the whole Body of the Welſh. But the Welſh not liking of it, he ſent for the Queen, then great with Child, who was deliver'd of a Prince at Caernarvan. Upon the News whereof, the chief Men amongſt them being ſent for to the King, he offered to name them a Governor born in Wales, who could not ſpeak one word of Engliſh, and whoſe Life no Man could except againſt. Such a one they all ſwore to obey. And then he named unto them his young Son Edward, who was upon this created Prince of Wales; a Title ever ſince appropriated to the eldeſt Son of the K. of England. But, notwithſtanding all the care of King Edward to fix this Peoples Loyalty to him, ſtill the deſire of Liberty made them reſtleſs, and willing to embrace any Opportunity for the Recovery of it. In the Reign of Henry IV. they Rebelled again under the Conduct of Owen Glendower their Leader, and the King found it a hard Task to ſuppreſs that Rebellion. In ſhort, till the Reign of Henry VII. who was born in their Country, they could not brook their Subjection to this Crown. But in the Reign of his Succeſſor King Henry VIII. their Loyalty was throughly fix'd, when of Aliens they were made by Act of Parliament one Nation with the Engliſh, ſubject to the ſame Laws, capable of the ſame Preferments, and privileged with the ſame Immunities; ſo that the Name and Language excepted, there is now no difference betwixt the Engliſh and the Welſh. By the ſaid King Henry VIII. a Court was eſtabliſhed at Ludlow, for the conveniency and eaſe of his Welſh Subjects; which is kept after the manner of the King's Courts of Weſtminſter: And for the general Command of the Militia, a Preſident of Wales, who is uſually one of the Nobility. Here are alſo two Vice-Admiralties, one for North-Wales, the other for South-Wales.

WALGRAVE (. . . . Lord) Son of the Right Honourable James, created Baron Walgrave of Cheuton in Sommerſetſhire, by King James II. in 1685. His Lordſhip's Arms are, Party per Pale, Pearl and Ruby.

WALLACE (Sir William) the great Champion of Scotland in the Reign of John Baliol, when the Kingdom was overrun by the Engliſh. He was a Gentleman of very low Fortune, but Noble Birth, great Spirit, and ſtrong Body; ſo that he performed Things beyond Belief. Having, when very young, ſlain an Engliſh Nobleman who inſulted over him, he was forced to hide for ſeveral Years, which inur'd him to Hardſhip; but growing weary of this kind of Life, he reſolved to attempt ſomething conſiderable, though never ſo hazardous; and gathering to him a great number of Men of like Fortune, he fell upon the Engliſh where ever he found them, though ſuperior to him in number; and having Succeſs by his Conduct and Boldneſs, his Fame did quickly ſpread, and his Number increaſed; ſo that having formed a conſiderable Army, they proclaim'd him Regent: And though he had no other Authority but from the promiſcuous Multitude who followed him (the Nobles being either ſlothful, or moſt of them having ſubmitted to the Engliſh,) yet he acted as lawful Vice-Roy for Baliol, who was then retired to France. The firſt thing he performed with his Army, was the Seiſure of Lanerk, killing the Engliſh Governor, and reducing the Weſt of Scotland; after which he reduc'd the North, and took moſt of the Engliſh Garriſons. Whereupon Edward I. who thought he had ſecur'd that Kingdom by making himſelf Maſter of all their Strongholds, and carrying moſt of the Nobility whom he ſuſpected, Priſoners to England, wrote to Henry Piercy Earl of Northumberland, and William Latimer, to raiſe Forces and join Creſſingham, who was ſtill in Scotland, to fight Wallace; who meeting them at Sterlin Bridge, gave them a total Overthrow, killing their General the Earl of Warren with a vaſt number of his Men, Sept. 15. 1297; after which he took the reſt of the Garriſons, and in a little time left not an Engliſh-man in the Kingdom, as Buchanan reports, but ſuch as were Priſoners. And the Country being ſo long harraſs'd with War, that a Famine and Peſtilence both enſued; Wallace entred England with his Army, and ſtaid there from the firſt of November to the firſt of February without having Battel offer'd him, and returned loaden with Spoil and Honour. This Expedition, as it increaſed his Fame, did alſo procure him the Envy of the Nobles, who hated that another ſhould perform what they had not the Courage to attempt. Edward I. underſtanding the Buſineſs to be too great to be managed by Deputies, return'd from France, and levying a great Army, march'd againſt Wallace, who met him in Stanmore; and the Camps being within half a Mile of one another, King Edward, who had formerly deſpiſed Wallace's Hoſt as a Band of Rovers, perceiving their Courage and Diſcipline, did like an experienc'd General, make an honourable Retreat; whilſt Wallace, knowing his Conduct, and dreading an Ambuſh, kept in his Trenches. This glorious Succeſs of Wallace increaſed his Enemies Malice, ſo that they falſly accuſed him of aſpiring to the Crown; and therefore gave out, that if they muſt be Slaves, they had rather be ſo to a great and mighty King than a new Upſtart: And thus did they derogate from Wallace's Authority. Edward being informed of this, levied a great Army next Summer; and being join'd by the Scots who adher'd to him, he attack'd the Scottiſh Army, conſiſting of 30000 Men, near Falkirk, and juſt as he was about to Engage them, Cummin, Stuart and Wallace, contending for the Poſt of Honour, he obtain'd an eaſie Victory, July 22, 1298. Cummin retir'd with his 10000 in a cowardly manner, without ſtriking one ſtroke: Stuart, with moſt of his 10000 was cut off; and Wallace with his, after a gallant Fight, made a noble Retreat beyond the River of Carron. Robert Bruce, who was Baliol's Rival for the Crown, preſſed hard upon him, but being much taken with his Valour and Conduct, deſired to ſpeak with him, which he agreed to; and ſtanding on the Banks of the River which ran betwixt them, Bruce ſpake to him thus: That he wonder'd how the Applauſe of the Vulgar ſhould influence him to make War againſt the moſt powerful King of his time, who was alſo aſſiſted by a great number of Scots; adding, That if he ſhould overcome, he muſt never think to have the Crown; and if he ſhould be conquered, he had no Refuge but in the Mercy of his Enemy. Wallace replied, That as his Fortune was not capable, neither was his Mind ambitious of the Crown, which was never the ſcope of his Undertaking; but ſeeing his Country deſtitute of Governors, and expoſed to the Butchery of a cruel Enemy, by the Slothfulneſs of him to whom it did of Right belong, he had eſpouſed their Cauſe, which he had deſerted, and would never forſake it till Life forſook him: But as for you, ſays he, who love Servitude with Security rather than Liberty with Hazard, hug the Fortune which you eſteem ſo highly; as for me, I will willingly die in my Country, which I have often defended, and my Love to it ſhall laſt as long as my Life: And ſo the Conference ended, each of them returning to their Forces. Some of the Scottiſh Hiſtorians ſay, That Bruce and he underſtood one another ever after; but Wallace was unfortunately betray'd e'er Bruce could make his Eſcape. Upon this unhappy Battel Wallace march'd his Army to Perth, where he diſmiſs'd them; and at the ſame time finding himſelf overpower'd by the Nobility, he laid aſide his Title of General, but never ceaſed, with ſuch of his Friends as adher'd to him, to infeſt the Engliſh. February 24. 1302. the Scots obtained three Victories over the Engliſh; to blot out the Memory whereof, Edward levied a greater Army than ever he had done before, and ravaged the whole Kingdom, no Man daring to oppoſe him but Wallace, who ſat continually on his Skirts, and cut off abundance of his Men. Whereupon he ſought to bring him over by great Promiſes, but all in vain, his conſtant Anſwer being, That he had devoted his Life to his Country, to which it was due; and if he could do it no other Service, yet he would die in its Defence: And ſo he was the only Perſon of Note that held out againſt King Edward, and did not ſwear Allegiance to him in a Parliament which he called at St. Andrews after that Expedition: And being afraid that the Envious and Treacherous Nobility would have deliver'd him up, he retired to Places of Security; but was at laſt betray'd by his intimate Friend John Menteith, who was brib'd by the Engliſh; and being ſent to London, was wofully butcher'd by Edward's Command, and his Limbs hanged up in the moſt noted Places of London and Scotland. This Fate had William Wallace the famouſeſt Man of his time, and comparable to the greateſt

Heroes of Antiquity, both for his Courage in Undertaking Dangers, and Wiſdom and Valour in overcoming them. For Love to his Country he was ſecond to none; and when others were Slaves, he alone was Free: neither could he be induced by Rewards or Threats, to forſake the publick Cauſe which he had once undertaken. And his Death was the more to be lamented, becauſe he was not Conquer'd by his Enemy, but betray'd by his Friend. Buchanan.

WALLINGFORD, a Market and Borough Town of Morten Hundred in Barkſhire, ſituate upon the Thames. 'Tis a Place of great Antiquity, and was formerly of great Strength. This is it which by the Ancients was call'd Gallena or Caleva Atrebatum, the chief Town of the Arabatii, and afterwards of the Saxons that inhabited this County. It was then above a Mile in compaſs within the Walls, fortified with a ſtrong Caſtle, and had 12 Pariſh Churches. But in 1348 was ſo deſolated by Peſtilence, that there is now but one Church left, hardly Inhabitants enough to keep that in Repair, and little or nothing of the Walls but their Ruins; yet it retains the Honour of the Election of two Members to repreſent it in the Houſe of Commons. It's 38 Miles from London.

WALLISSERLANDT, Lat. Valleſia, a great Canton in Switzerland, between the Canton of Schwitz to the North and Eaſt, the Dukedom of Milan and Aouſte to the South, and Savoy to the Weſt. Its Capital is Sytten or Syon, and the other principal Cities Martigny and S. Maurice. This Canton was united to the reſt in the general League in 1533. Its Extent from Eaſt to Weſt is almoſt 100 Miles, its Breadth between 15 and 30. The Religion profeſs'd here is the Roman Catholick. It's a pleaſant fruitful Valley, abounding with Saffron, Corn, Wine, and delicate Fruits, enrich'd with Meadows and excellent Paſtures, ſurrounded every way with craggy and unpaſſable Rocks and Mountains, which afford but one Entrance into it; and this is alſo defended by two Gates and a Caſtle. Theſe Mountains are at all Times cover'd with Ice and Snow, not to be paſs'd by an Army, nor eaſily by a ſingle Perſon.

WALSINGHAM (Sir Francis) deſcended of the flouriſhing Family of Chiſelhurſt in Kent, was bred in Kings College in Cambrige, and afterwards travell'd into Foreign Countries, where he improv'd himſelf ſo much, that at his Return he was employ'd in the chiefeſt Affairs in State, being firſt ſent Embaſſador into France, and afterwards made Secretary of State at home, for which Place he had all the neceſſary Qualifications, a quick Apprehenſion, a ſolid Judgment, an inſinuating and reſerv'd Converſe, with this Maxim, that Knowledge could not be too dear bought. He out-did the Jeſuits in their own Bow, and over-reach'd 'em in their Equivocation, never telling a Lye, but warily drawing out and diſcovering Truth, this Spaniſh Proverb being very familiar with him, Tell a Lye and find a Truth; and this, Speak no more than you may ſafely retreat from without Danger, or fairly go through with without Oppoſition. He could overthrow any Buſineſs by undertaking it, and move it ſo that it muſt fall. He maintain'd 53 Agents in foreign Courts, and 18 Spies; for two Piſtoles an Order, he had all the private Papers of Europe. He would cheriſh a Plot ſome Years together, admitting the Conſpirators to his own and the Queen's Preſence familiarly, but dogging 'em out watchfully. His Spies waited upon ſome Men every Hour for 3 Years, and leſt they could not keep Counſel, he diſpatch'd them to foreign Parts, taking in new Servants. The Q. of Scots Letters were all carried to him by her own Servant, and decypher'd to him by one Philip, and ſeal'd up again by one Gregory. Video & Taceo was his Saying before it was his Miſtreſſes Motto. In fine, he was a ſtudious, temperate, and publick-ſpirited Man. He left extraordinary Books of Politicks. Fuller's Worthies.

WALSINGHAM, a Market Town of Greneboe Hundred in the North of Norfolk, otherwiſe call'd Great Walſingham, to difference it from Old Walſingham a ſmall Town two Miles North from it. Here was formerly a College of Canons, and a continual Concourſe of Pilgrims, who came hither to pay their Devotion to the Bleſſed Virgin at a Chapel near the two Wells, call'd to this Day the Virgin Mary's Wells. It's 89 Miles from London.

WALSTEIN (Albert) a Baron of Bohemia, and Duke of Fridland, having no Inclination for his Studies, was made Page to the Marquis of Burgan, Son to the Archduke Ferdinand of Inſpruck, where falling out of a high Window that he lay aſleep in, he became Roman Catholick. Having left his Place of Page he travelled Spain, France, England, and Italy. He ſtop'd at Padua, betook himſelf again to his Studies, and apply'd himſelf moſt to Politicks and Aſtrology. After this he return'd home, and married. His Wife being dead, he made Offer of his Service to the Archduke Ferdinand, againſt the Venetians. At the Siege of Gradiſca in Friuli he gain'd this Prince's Friendſhip, who made him Colonel of the Militia of Pomerania. In the Troubles of Bohemia he offer'd his Service, with 30000 Men, to the Emperor, on condition that he ſhou'd be made General; under which Title he ſubdued the Dioceſe of Alberſtat and the Biſhoprick of Hall, ravag'd the Lands of Magdebourg and Anhalt; He firſt defeated Count Mansfield alone, and afterwards him and Bethlem Gabor who had join'd him, and drove him out of Germany; He retook all Sileſia, with the Reinforcement of Tilly's Troops, defeated the Marquis of Urlach, ſubdued the Archbiſhopricks of Bremen and Holſace, made himſelf Maſter of all that lies between the Ocean, the Baltick Sea, and the Elbe, leaving no more but Glukſtadt to the King of Denmark, whom he drove out of all Pomerania, and rendred it uſeleſs till the Treaty of Lubeck. After this Treaty, came out a Proclamation of the Imperial Court againſt thoſe who were Accomplices in the Revolt, which chiefly affected the Duke of Mecklenbourg, whoſe Poſſeſſions and Titles being confer'd upon Walſtein, he grew ſo very proud, that he would be treated with the Title of His Highneſs. About this time the Emperor's Declaration for the Reſtitution of the Church-Lands, and other Procedure againſt the Proteſtants, did ſo alarm them, that they call'd Guſtavus Adolphus, King of Sweden, to their Succor. The Emperor being frighted at this, did, at the Duke of Bavaria's Requeſt, in Conjunction with the Council of Spain and moſt part of Germany, ſet Walſtein aſide, and ſent only Tilly againſt Guſtavus then in Pomerania. Walſtein ſubmits, being flatter'd with the Hopes which his Aſtrologer John Baptiſta Seny gave him of a greater Riſe of Fortune afterwards. Tilly, a great General, but too much dependent on the Councils of Vienna to perform any conſiderable Exploits, is beat by the Swedes at Leipſick; and then the Conqueror over-running all Germany, the Emperor was forced to recall Walſtein, and give him the Poſt of Generaliſſimo, and left him at Liberty to make Peace or War at diſcretion. It was now that Walſtein, ſeeing himſelf neceſſary, began to have Thoughts of ordering Things ſo that he ſhould have no farther Occaſion of Fear. He takes the Field againſt the King of Swedeland, whom he had the vanity to ſay he would have whip'd out of the Field, had he been in Commiſſion ſoon enough. He beat the King of Sweden, and was beaten again, took Prague, and had ſometimes good, ſometimes bad Succeſs, untill the Battle of Luzzen, Novemb. 26. 1632. where the Fight was maintained by the Duke of Weymar notwithſtanding Guſtavus's being ſlain at the very beginning of the Battel, and Walſtein was defeated; This great Prince being dead, and Walſtein, having no ſuch formidable Enemy upon his Hands, began to act Politickly for himſelf, and draw out the War into unneceſſary lengths, pretending his prividege of Independency, and refuſing to obey, or be guided by the Council of Vienna in his Enterpriſes, made the Emperor ſuſpect his integrity, who thereupon declar'd his Commiſſion void, and conferr'd it upon Galas. Walſtein being alarm'd at this, receives an Oath of Allegiance from all his Officers at Pilſen, January 12. 1634, whereof Picolomini, one of his Confidents, acquainted the Emperor by Galas and Aldringuer, which made his Imperial Majeſty take the laſt Reſolutions againſt him. Walſtein then unmask'd his Inclinations for the Proteſtants, and ſent to engage them on his ſide; and at the ſame time thought no Place ſo ſure as Egra, a ſtrong Town ſituated upon the Frontiers of Bohemia and Saxony, whereof Gordon his Creature, and Lieutenant-Colonel to his Brother the Count of Tersky, was Governor. Gordon, acquainted with his Deſign by Galas and Colonel Butler his Friends, and flatter'd with hopes of great Reward, plotted Walſtein's Death with Butler, Walter Leſley Serjeant-Major to Gordon, Robert Fitz-Gerald Serjeant-Major to Butler, Captain Debbrock, and ſeveral others, whom, for the Execution of the Deſign, he invited to a Supper with Tersky, Kingsby, Illo, and Newman, all particular Confidents of Walſtein, who was glad of this Occaſion to be alone, and at leiſure to conſider of his Meaſures. Between 9 and 10 at Night, Gerardin and Debbrock, who were not at Supper, came in, each with 10 or 12 ſtout Men, well arm'd, and ask'd, Qui vive? To which Gordon, Leſley, and Butler, anſwer'd, Vive Ferdinand & la Maiſon d'Auſtriche, and then joining Debbrock and Girardin, they fell upon and maſſacred Tersky, Kingsby, Illo, and Newman. Gordon ſtaid to guard the Caſtle, Leſley went to the Market-place to hinder Diſorder, whilſt Butler and Debbrock went to Walſtein's Apartment: they broke open the Door, and finding him at the upper end of the Stairs in his Shirt, where the Story was too high to get out at a Window, Debbrock run him through the Body with his Pike. This happen'd the 15th of February 1634, Walſtein being not then full 50 years of Age. Spond. Puffendorf.

Sir WALTER Rawleigh, Son of Walter Rawleigh Eſquire, by Catharine his Wife, Daughter of Sir Philip Champernoon Kt. was born at Budeley in Devonſhire: though brought up in the Univerſity, and in the Inns of Court, he was through the ſtraitneſs of his Circumſtances forced to expoſe himſelf in the Land-Service of Ireland; where the Lord Grey, under whom he ſerv'd, and he differing, both were ſent for to be heard before the Council-Table. Rawleigh ſtated his Cauſe with that Clearneſs, urg'd his Arguments with ſuch Evidence and Reaſon, and manag'd himſelf with that Diſcretion, that the Queen took particular notice of him. He had a good Preſence, a handſome and well-compacted Perſon, a ſtrong natural Wit, and a better Judgment, with a bold and plauſible Tongue; and to theſe he had the Adjuncts of ſome general Learning, which his Diligence enforced to great Perfection, being an indefatigable Reader whether by Sea or Land, and a great Obſerver both of Men and Times. His Motto was, Either die nobly, or live honourably. Five Hours he ſlept, four he read, and two he diſcours'd, allowing the reſt to his Buſineſs. There was not an expert Soldier or Sea-man but he conſulted, not a Printed or Manuſcript Diſcourſe of Navigation, of any value, but he perus'd, ſaying, That there was nothing of greater Conſequence for the advancement of Learning, than to find out thoſe particular Advantages which there are for the ſhorteſt way of knowing and teaching Things in every Profeſſion. With theſe Qualifications he gain'd Queen Elizabeth's Favour, and kept it by his ſucceſsful Services for her both by Sea and Land, being very active againſt the Armado in 1588, and joint Commander with the Earl of Eſſex when he ſack'd Cadiz. She made him Captain of her Guards, Warden of the Cinque-Ports, Governor of Virginia, a Place of his own Diſcovery; leaving the Arrear of Recompenſe due to his Merits to be paid by her Succeſſor. But Rawleigh falling into his Diſpleaſure in the very beginning of his Reign, by combining with the Lords Cobham and Grey, Sir Griffin Markam, George Brook Eſq; and ſeveral others, to ſubvert the State, and ſet up the Lady Arabella Steward, he was Arraign'd, Found Guilty, and Condemn'd: But King James unwilling to ſtain the beginning of his Reign with Blood, contented himſelf with his Impriſonment, which continued for above 13 Years; during which time he writ that elaborate Work intitled, The Hiſtory of the World. At laſt, deſirous of his Liberty, he propos'd the obtaining of a rich Mine of Gold, which he himſelf had formerly diſcover'd by the Information of the Indians in the Country of Guiana. His Propoſition was condeſcended to by the King; but he commanded him to give him down not only the Country, but the very River by which he was to enter it; as alſo, to name his Ships, Number, Men, and Artillery: which being known to Gundamore, Embaſſador then from the King of Spain, Letters were ſent to all Parts of the Indies to provide for his Coming; ſo that his Voyage proved unſucceſsful. At his Return into England, Gundamore ſo exclaim'd againſt him to the King for breach of Peace, that he re-committed him to the Tower, where expecting every hour to be ſacrific'd to the Spaniſh Cruelty, he ſent for Mr. Burre, who formerly printed his firſt Volume of The Hiſtory of the World, and ask'd him how that Work of his had ſold? Mr. Burre anſwer'd, That it ſold ſo ſlowly it had undone him: at which Sir Walter ſtepping to his Desk, took the other unprinted part, and fetching a Sigh ſaid, Ah my Friend, hath the firſt Part undone thee, the ſecond Volume ſhall undo no more; this ungrateful World is unworthy of it: Then immediately going to the Fire-ſide, he threw it in, and ſet his Foot on it till it was conſumed. He writ a very pathetick Letter to King James to give him his Life, or a Commiſſion to die honourably in his and his Countries Service; and at the place of Execution, with a chearful Countenance and undaunted Look made a Speech, wherein he denied ſeveral Things laid to his Charge, and prayed God might blot him out of the Book of Life if either he ſpoke or thought a Thought hurtful or prejudicial to the King, as he was accus'd by a French-man whom he had entertain'd for his Jeſts. He own'd he endeavour'd his Eſcape, but not out of any ill Intent, or conſciouſneſs of Guilt, but barely to ſave his Life, which he was aſſured the Spaniſh Faction thirſted for. He farthermore confeſt, that he had feign'd himſelf ſick at Salisbury, and by Art made his Body full of Bliſters, but ſaid it was thereby to defer his coming before the King and Council, and to gain time for his Friends to endeavour to obtain his Pardon; and brought an Example out of Scripture for his Warrant, viz. That in caſe of Neceſſity, and for the Safeguard of his Life, David feign'd himſelf Fooliſh and Mad, yet it was not imputed to him for Sin. Then having ſaluted the Company, he ſubmitted his Neck to the Axe. Beſides his Hiſtory of the World, he writ ſeveral other Pieces, as, The Cabinet Council, containing the chief Arts of Empire, and Myſteries of State; An accurate Account of his Catholick Majeſty's Power and Riches; the riſing and Ruin of the Saracen Empire; of Mines, and Tryals of Minerals: The Prerogative of Parliaments in England, &c. Inſtructions to his Son and his Poſterity. Divers Speeches and Arguments in ſeveral Parliaments, &c. Townſend's Hiſtor. Collat. Athen. Oxon.

WALTER of Brienne King of Sicily, third of that Name, the Son of Erard II. ſignaliz'd his Courage in the Defence of the City of Acre againſt the Saracens in 1188. Afterwards he was made King of Sicily and Duke of Puglia by his Marriage with Mary, called Alberia, Siſter to William, the third of that Name, King of Sicily, and Son of Tancred the Baſtard. He neglected nothing to aſſert his Wife's Right; in defence of which he died of a Wound receiv'd before the Caſtle of Sarno in Puglia in the Year 1205.

WALTER of Brienne, his Poſthumous Son, ſirnam'd The Great, was under the Tutelage of John his Uncle, who reſtored to him the County of Brienne. After which he went into the Holy Land, and was made Count of Joppa. He ſignaliz'd his Courage upon ſeveral important Occaſions, againſt the Saracens, by whom he was at length taken Priſoner in 1244, and put to a moſt cruel Death in 1351.

WALTER of Brienne, Duke of Athens, and Conſtable of France, was the ſixth of that Name of the Family of Brienne, and Son of Walter V. He was Lieutenant-General to Charles Duke of Calabria, who ſent him inveſted with that Character to Florence in 1326. The next Year he was ſent by Robert the Wiſe, King of Naples and Sicily, to oppoſe the Emperor Lewis of Bavaria, deſigning to invade the Kingdom of Naples. In 1331 he attempted to recover the Dukedom of Athens; and then returning into France, ſerv'd Philip of Valois in the Years 1340 and 1350. After which, he was made Lieutenant-General of Florence a ſecond time: but his Ambition reaching after the Sovereignty of that City, he was expell'd from thence. Upon which returning into France, his Services procur'd him to be made Conſtable of that Kingdom, conferr'd upon him by King John in the Year 1356; toward the end of which Year he was kill'd at the Battel of Poictiers by the Engliſh.

WALTER of Bruges, Biſhop of Poictiers, being depoſed by Clement V. whom he had Excommunicated before he came to be Pope, held a Paper in his hand upon his Death-bed, with which he was alſo buried at firſt, out of the Pale of holy Ground, wherein he appeal'd from the Pope's Sentence to the Tribunal, or Judgment-Seat of Heaven: Which the Pope hearing of, made a Journey to Poictiers, cauſed his Body to be taken up, and finding the Appeal in his Hand, order'd his Body to be remov'd to a more ſacred place. Thuan. lib. 131.

WALTHAM-ABBEY, a Market-Town of Waltham Hundred, in the fartheſt Weſt parts of Eſſex. It ſtands on the Eaſt Side of the River Lea, which parts this County from Hertfordſhire; and was of great Note in the Times of Popery for its rich Abbey. It is 12 Miles from London.

WALTON (Dr. Bryan) a learned Engliſh Divine, who, towards the latter end of his Life, was promoted to the See of Cheſter, gain'd great Reputation by his Edition of the Poliglot Bible. Beſide the great number of Oriental Verſions which are in this Work, there is in the beginning ſome Diſſertations upon all theſe Bibles, which are commonly call'd Walton's Prolegomena. Father Simon obſerves, that this preliminary Diſcourſe before the Engliſh Poliglot, is not only larger, but more exact than any other which had been publiſh'd on that Subject: That Walton was both judicious enough to make uſe of the beſt Authors who had written before him, and likewiſe ſo far unbyaſs'd as not blindly to follow the Prejudices of ſome Proteſtants who had handled that Argument. Father Simon adds, That Dr. Walton's Moderation in this matter was owing to his being of the Epiſcopal Perſuaſion, thoſe of that Party having a greater Veneration for the Fathers and the ancient Traditions of the Church, than the Presbyterians. He died in 1661. Father Simon, &c.

WANDSDIKE, a famous Ditch of old, in Wiltſhire, ſuppoſed by the Vulgar to be the Work of the Devil; whereas ſuch Ditches were uſual in the time of the Heptarchy, and ſerv'd for Limits betwixt two neighbouring Kingdoms. Such another is The Devil's Ditch in New-Market Heath. 'Tis like Wandſdike got its Name from the Saxon God Woden; from whence is deriv'd Wedneſday, being a Day ſet apart by the Heatheniſh Saxons for his Worſhip.

WANTAGE, a Market-Town of Wanting-Hundred, in Berkſhire, in the Weſtern Parts of the County, ſituate upon a ſmall River that runs into the Ock, and noted for being the Birth-place of the learned and moſt judicious King Alfred, the Scourge of the Danes in England. 'Tis 50 Miles from London.

WARADIN, or Wardin, ſituate upon the River Kerez, in the Borders of Tranſylvania; to which Principality of latter Times it belonged: And it is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Crolocza, defended by a ſtrong Caſtle. In 1660. it was taken by the Turks; before which the Crim-Tartars took it in 1242. In 1290 Ladiſlaus King of Hungary built the Cathedral Church. 'Tis defended by a Caſtle that ſtands on the Eaſt, and Ramparts, with five Royal Baſtions, and a good regular Ditch, which may be fill'd, upon occaſion, by the River-water. Within there is another Incloſure of five Baſtions, and an high Wall, which may ſerve inſtead of a Citadel. This City ſtands 22 Miles North of Giula, 80 Weſt from Weiſſemburg, and 100 Eaſt of Buda. It has been recover'd by the Imperialiſts, from the Turks, after a Siege and Blockade in 1692.

WARD (Humble) Son and Heir to William Ward, a wealthy Goldſmith in London, and Jeweller to the Queen, deſcended from an ancient Family of that Name in Norfolk: For his ſeaſonable Supplies to King Charles I. having married Frances, the Niece and Heireſs to Edward Lord Dudley, was by that Prince made Knight at Oxford in the 19th Year of his Reign, and ſoon after advanced to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Ward of Bremingham in the County of Warwick. By which noble Lady he had Iſſue two Sons, Edward and William; and three Daughters. Edward ſucceeding him in his Honours, married Frances, Daughter to Sir William Brereton, late of Hanford, Baronet; and by her hath had three Sons, John, William, and Ferdinando; and two Daughters, Catherine and Humbletta. Dugdale.

WARCHAM, a Market and Borough-Town of Winfrith-Hundred, in the South-Eaſt Parts of Dorſetſhire, commodiouſly ſeated betwixt two Rivers, the Frome and the Biddle, near their Fall into the Sea, with Stone-Bridges over them; formerly a place of good Trade, and full of rich Inhabitants, incloſed with a ſtrong Wall, and defended by a goodly Caſtle; but the Haven is now choak'd up, the Caſtle fall'n to Ruin, and moſt of the Churches pull'd down and demoliſh'd. It is 90 Miles from London.

WARE, a Market-Town in Hertfordſhire, in Branghing-Hundred, upon the River Lea; from whence a Chanel of the New-River Water is cut for ſerving of London. It is 21 Miles from London.

WARHAM (William) Archbiſhop of Canterbury, extracted from a good Family, was born at Oakley in Hantſhire; bred firſt at Wincheſter School, and afterwards at Oxford, in New-College, where he was choſen Fellow. He went out, ſome time after, Doctor of Civil Laws, was made Law-Profeſſor, and Maſter of the Rolls, by King Henry VII. And acquitting himſelf in his reſpective Employments to general Satisfaction, he was ſent Embaſſador, by that King, to Philip Duke of Burgundy, and at his Return was made Biſhop of London, and ſoon after Lord Chancellor of England: which Office he executed ſeveral Years after his Tranſlation to the See of Canterbury. He had a great value for Eraſmus, who dedicates his Edition of St. Jerom to him, and gives him a great Character. He died in the Year 1532. *Antiquit. Britan. Godwin de Præſul. Angliæ. WARRINGTON, Lat. Rigodunum, a fair and large Market Town of Weſt-Derby Hundred, in the utmoſt South Parts of Lancaſhire. It ſtands on the North-ſide of the River Merſey, over which it hath a fair Stone Bridge, leading to Cheſhire. Since the late Revolution it was dignified with the Title of an Earldom, in the Perſon of the Right Honourable Henry Booth, Earl of Warrington, and Baron De la Mere. Here the Scotch Army, under Duke Hamilton, was defeated by the Parliamentarians in 1648. It is 90 Miles from London.

WARSAW, ſee Varſovie.

WARWICK, Lat. Varvicum, Verovicum Præſidium, the chief Town of Warwickſhire, lies about 70 Miles North-weſt from London. 'Tis pleaſantly ſeated on a Hill riſing from the River Avon, over which is a fair Stone-Bridge; the Streets and Houſes well contrived, with a Market-houſe of Free-ſtone, ſupported with Pillars. For the Education of Youth here is a Free-School, for poor decayed Gentlemen a well-endowed Hoſpital, and for publick Devotion two Pariſh-Churches, whereof St. Mary's is the chief: But the chief Beauty of it is the Caſtle; a ſtately piece of Building. Nor is it leſs memorable for having been dignified, during ſeveral Ages, with eminent Titles of Honour: firſt, in the Reign of William the Conqueror, by whom Henry de Newburg was made Earl of Warwick, in 1076, which Title continued in five more of his Name: from whom it paſſed through ſeveral Families, either through Marriage or Blood, allied to the former; till at laſt the Title was turn'd into that of Duke in the Perſon of Henry Beauchamp, the Favourite of King Henry VI. This Title died with him, and that of Earl was renewed in the Perſon of Richard Nevil, upon his Marriage with Anne, the Duke's Siſter. Richard dying without Iſſue Male, the Title went to George Duke of Clarence, who married his Daughter; and, after his Deceaſe, to Edward Plantagenet, his Son. Anno 1547 the Title was conferr'd upon John Dudley, deſcended from the Lady Margaret, Daughter of Richard Beauchamp Earl of Warwick; but went no farther than Ambroſe, his Son. In 1618 K. James I. reviv'd it upon Robert Lord Rich; in whoſe Line it continued, till Charles, his great Grandſon, died without Iſſue. Upon whoſe Death, Robert Rich, Earl of Holland, his Couſin-Germain, ſucceeded in the Earldom of Warwick, and ſo enjoy'd both Titles: which fell, by his Death, to his Son Edward Rich, the preſent Earl of Warwick. The laſt thing I am to obſerve about this Town is a Place near it call'd Guy-cliff, from that Hercules of England, Guy of Warwick; who, having left off his noble and valiant Exploits, betook himſelf (as the Story ſays) to this place, ſhaded with Groves, and water'd with freſh Streams, where he liv'd an Hermit, and built a Chapel, wherein he was interr'd.

WARWICKSHIRE, Lat. Varvicenſis Comitatus, an Inland County, is bounded on the North with Staffordſhire, on the South with Oxford and Gloceſter Shires, Eaſtward with Leiceſter and Northampton Shires, and Weſtward with Worceſter Shire. Its Length, from North to South, is about 33 Miles; its Breadth, from Eaſt to Weſt, 25; the whole divided into five Hundreds, wherein are 158 Pariſh-Churches, and 18 Market-Towns; anciently inhabited by the Cornarii, being a Province of the Kingdom of Mercia in the time of the Heptarchy, and now making part of the Dioceſe of Lichfield. As this County is ſeated near the Heart of England, ſo it participates with her in the beſt, both for Air and Soil. The South Parts from Avon, which runs through the midſt of it, are the moſt fruitful for Corn and Paſture, being made Champain. The North Parts, called The Woodland, anciently Arden, are chiefly commendable for their Plenty of Woods, wherein grows excellent Aſh for Plough-Timber and Houſhold Utenſils. At Bedworth, in Knightlow Hundred, are Coal-Mines, which yield Plenty of Coals. There have been three great Battels fought in this County: the firſt in 749, wherein Cuthred King of the Weſt-Saxons ſlew Ethelbald King of the Mercians at Seckington near Tamworth; the ſecond in 1468, at Edgcote, in which the then Earl of Warwick defeated Edward IV. and took him Priſoner: the third in 1642, at Edgehill, in which Charles I. had the better of the Parliament Forces under the Earl of Eſſex. The principal Town in this Shire is Coventry; which, and Warwick the Shire-Town, are the two only privileg'd Places in the whole County to ſend Burgeſſes to Parliament.

WASILIGOROD, Lat. Baſilii Caſtrum, a ſtrong Caſtle, built by Baſilius Great Duke of Ruſſia, in 1523. at the Influx of the River Sura into the Wolga, eight Miles below Novigorod, Niſi, which was erected as a place of Arms, or Magazin, againſt the Tartars of Caſan, who had, not long before, invaded Ruſſia, and carried into Captivity 300000 Ruſſians. In 1669. it was become a ſmall Town, ſeated on the Weſt Side of the Wolga, without Gates or Walls, and built moſtly with Timber. The Sura is a ſmall River, but very rapid, guſhing with Violence and Noiſe into the Wolga. Lat. 35. 50. Struys; pag. 162.

WASSI, or Vaſſi, upon the River Bloiſe, Lat. Vaſſeum, a little Town of Lower Champagne, with a Caſtle, and Royal Seat. It is of the Dioceſs of Charlon upon the River Marne, and in the Bailywick and Preſidial of Chaumont in Baſſigni. The Situation of this Town is very pleaſant, and the Soil fruitful. 'Tis famous by the Occaſion it gave to the firſt Civil War for Religion, under Charles IX. for the Duke of Guiſe marching through as the Proteſtants were at Church, there happen'd to be a Fray between the Duke's Men and the Hugonots, in which ſeveral of the latter were kill'd. Mezeray. Davila.

WATERFORD, Lat. Waterfordia, Manapia, a Town and County in the Province of Munſter, on the South of Ireland. The Iriſh call it Phurtlairgee. 'Tis Capital of its County, and, next Dublin, the greateſt Place in that Kingdom; having a very large and ſafe Haven, under the Protection of a ſtrong Fort, called Duncannon-Fort; and conveniently ſeated for a Trade with any part of the World; built by the Norwegians in a bad and barren Soil, at the Mouth of the River Shour. Ever ſince it came into the Hands of the Engliſh it has continued very loyal to the Crown, and has on that Score obtain'd many ſignal Privileges from it. In 1649. they forc'd Oliver Cromwell to draw off, when he was Maſter of the greateſt part of Ireland; yet, when Reſiſtance was in vain, it ſurrender'd, Aug. 20. 1650. on good Terms: As alſo to King William, both Town and Fort, in 1690. The County of Waterford is bounded on the Eaſt by Wexford, on the North by Tipperary, on the Weſt by the County of Cork, and on the South by the Sea; the River Sewer incircling it on the North and Eaſt, and the Nore on the Weſt. The North-Parts of it are over-ſpread with the Ridge of Mountains, called Slewbloymin. It is from Eaſt to Weſt 27 Miles, from North to South 15. At this place landed Strong-bow, the Conqueror of Ireland, Aug. 23. 1171. with 200 Knights, and 1000 Archers: A ſhort time after which, he took this City, when he had been twice vigorouſly repuls'd. Then he married Eva, Daughter of Dermond King of Leinſter, and by that Match had the Grant of Waterford, which has ever ſince been Engliſh. Octob. 18. 1172. Henry II. arriv'd here with 400 Knights and 4000 Soldiers; and here Dermond Mac-Carthy King of Cork voluntarily ſubmitted to him, and ſwore Allegiance: after which, all the Archbiſhops and Biſhops of Ireland did the like, ſubmitting to him and his Heirs, as their King for ever. Cox, p. 22. Yet in 1175 the Citizens rebell'd againſt the Engliſh, and maſſacred all they could catch: but a Party ſav'd themſelves in Reginald's Tower, and reveng'd the Murther of the reſt on the Inhabitants.

WATFORD, a large and well-inhabited Market-Town in Hertfordſhire, 15 Miles from London.

WATSON (Sir Lewis) of Rokingham-Caſtle in Northamptonſhire, Knight and Baronet, being a Perſon of noble Deſcent and ample Fortune, and active in the unhappy Troubles in King Charles I.'s Reign, was, in conſideration thereof, advanc'd to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Rokingham of Rokingham in the County of Northampton. He firſt married Catherine, Daughter to the Lord Willoughby of Eresby; but by her had no Iſſue: And afterwards Eleonora, Daughter to Sir George Manners of Haddern in Darbyſhire, Knight, Siſter to John Earl of Rutland; by whom he had Iſſue Edward, his Son and Heir, and ſix Daughters. Edward ſucceeding him, took to Wife the Lady Ann, eldeſt Daughter to Thomas late Earl of Strafford; and by her had Iſſue four Sons, Lewis, Edward, Thomas and George; and four Daughters, Eleonora, Arabella, Ann and Margaret. Dugdale.

WATTCHET, a Sea-port and pretty good Harbour in Sommerſet-ſhire, frequented by ſome Veſſels who bring Coals; for which there is an indifferent good Trade. 'Tis 126 Miles from London.

WAYNFLEET (William) ſo call'd, according to the cuſtom of thoſe times, from Waynfleet in Lincolnſhire, the Town where he was born; was Son of Richard Patten Eſq; by his Wife Margery, Daughter of Sir William Breroton of Cheſhire, was Provoſt of Eaton in the Reign of Henry VI. and upon the Death of Cardinal Beaufort, nominated by that Prince to the See of Wincheſter. This Biſhop was the Founder of Magdalen College in Oxford; in which, according to the Foundation Statutes, there is one Preſident, forty Fellows, thirty Demies, four Chaplains, eight Clerks, and ſixteen Choriſters; which number is not to be encreaſed. He had the Reputation of a good Prelate, and was a Perſon of great Abilities. Fuller's Worthies and Church Hiſtory. Godwin de Præſul. Angl. Hall in Henry VI. &c.

WEDDERBURN. The Seat of a very antient Family of Home or Hume in Scotland, deſcended from Sir Thomas Home of Home, who marry'd Nicholas Pepdie, Heireſs of Dunglaſs, by whom he had two Sons; from the Eldeſt of which, the Earl of Home's Family is deſcended. His other Son was Sir David Home of Thurſton, who in the Year 1396, purchas'd the Lands of Wedderburn of Archibald the Second of that Name, and Third Earl of Douglaſs: From this Sir David, Sir Patrick Home of Renton is deſcended: Sir David Home had two Sons, David and Alexander: David was marry'd to Mary Carmichall, Siſter to one Peter Carmichall, by whom he had Iſſue George and Patrick : George ſucceeded to David his Grandfather, and marry'd Mary Sinclair, one of the Co-heirs of John Saintclaire of Polwort, Eldeſt Son of Sinclair of Hermiſtoun and his Lady Jane Polwort, in whoſe Right he became poſſeſs'd of half the Lands of Polwort ; and his Brother Patrick marry'd the other Siſter and Coheir, and ſo became Owner of the other Moiety : George above-mention'd had Iſſue by his Wife two Sons, David and John : David ſucceeded to his Father's Eſtate, and marry'd a Daughter of Gallaſheels, by whom he had Iſſue eight Sons ; George the Eldeſt, who in the Year 1513, was ſlain with his Father at the Battel of Flowden ; upon which, David the ſecond Son became Heir to his Father, and marry'd Lady Aliſon Douglaſs, fourth Daughter, to George Maſter of Angus, who was kill'd at Flowden. The ſaid David's third Son was Alexander Home, the firſt Laird of Manderſton, who had ſeveral Sons; George the Eldeſt, who was Knighted, Patrick, &c. Sir George had alſo ſeveral Sons, Sir Alexander the Eldeſt, and the ſecond Sir George Home, who was afterwards Earl of Dunbar. Sir Alexander laſt mention'd, had two Sons, Sir Alexander and Sir George. Sir Alexander (who was Maſter of the Houſhold to the Princeſs of Orange, and of the Bed-chamber to King Charles II.) dying without Iſſue, his Nephew Alexander, Son to his Brother Sir George, is now Heir Apparent to Manderſtoun. Patrick Home above-mention'd, ſecond Son of the firſt Laird of Manderſton, marry'd Jennett Ellein, in whoſe Right he became poſſeſs'd of the Lands of Renton, ſhe being ſole Heir to her Father David Ellien of Butterdean. This Patrick had ſeveral Sons; Alexander the Eldeſt, who ſucceeded to the Eſtate of Renton, marry'd Margaret Cockburn, Daughter of Sir Richard Cockburn of Clarkenton, Lord Privy Seal. This Sir Alexander had ſeveral Sons; Sir John Home the Eldeſt, ſucceeded to the Eſtate of Renton, was Lord Juſtice Clerk, one of the Lords of the Seſſions, and was marry'd to Margaret Stewart, eldeſt Daughter to John Stewart, Lord Coldingham. Sir Patrick Home, by his Mother Margaret Stewart, Daughter to the Lord Coldingham above-mention'd, is deſcended from Francis Stewart Earl of Bothwell, natural Son to King James V. Sir Patrick marry'd Margaret Baird, Daughter to Sir Robert Baird of Sauchton-Hall, by whom he has Iſſue ſeveral Sons and Daughters.

WEEDON (Cavendiſh) of Lincoln's Inn Eſq; a younger Son of Tho. Weedon of Weedon in the County of Bucks, Eſq; by Frances his Wife, Daughter of Sir Henry Crook, Son of Robert Crook of Chilton, Barr. which Sir Robert was twice Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, and died one of the Judges of the Court of King's-Bench. Mr. Weedon firſt mention'd, procur'd the ſetting up Seats at the Barrs of the Courts of Chancery and King's-Bench in Weſtminſter-Hall, for the conveniency of thoſe of the long Robe (whereof he is a Member,) who till then always ſtood. He was alſo the firſt Inhabitant of the New Square, call'd Searle's Court in Lincoln's-Inn, and contriv'd the Stone-Walks, Pillar, Fountain, and Viſto in the Gardens, with the Clock-Dial-Work, and other Conveniences and Ornaments in the ſaid Square; which Project he ſet on foot, by a Contribution liberally began by himſelf, and promoted amongſt his Fellow-members of the ſaid Society; with whom he has alſo prevail'd for Subſcriptions (to the value of many Hundred Pounds) for an Organ to be ſet up in the Chapel of Lincoln's Inn, with an Eſtabliſhment for Anthems every Sunday : And has alſo ſince ſet on Foot a much Nobler Deſign of beautifying Great Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, in a moſt extraordinary manner, according to two curious Plans by him already Deſign'd and Publiſh'd, by Palliſading in the ſeveral Walks, and by Erecting Fountains and Water-works in each Quarter; and more eſpecially, by building a fine Chapel in the Centre of the ſaid Fields; in which, according to the Projected Deſign, there will be on every Holy-day in the Year, and every firſt Thurſday in the Month, a Sermon preach'd upon the Attributes of God, and in Honour of his Providence, with Anthems ſuitable to the Subject; all which to be promoted and ſettled by way of voluntary Contribution : And to make this Work better underſtood and encourag'd, the ſaid Mr. Weedon has procur'd the Model of the Chapel to be finely Carv'd, and plac'd in the Library of Lincoln's Inn.

WEEK, the ſpace of Seven Days. This way of reckoning Time, is ſuppos'd to come from the Jews at firſt, who kept the Sabbath every Saturday, and from thence it probably paſs'd to the Greeks and other Nations, as to the Period of Computation, tho' not to a Sabbatical Reſt. However, it is the Opinion of ſome, that the Heathens diſtinguiſh'd Time into Weeks, either upon the account of the Seven Planets, or the four Quarters of the Moon, conſiſting of Seven Days each Quarter. And here it may not be improper to obſerve, that the Heathens gave the Name of one of the Seven Planets to each Day of the Week, calling the firſt day Sunday, in preference to that principal Planet. The reaſon of the Order of the Planets in the Days of the Week, i. e. why Monday follows Sunday, and ſo of the reſt, goes upon the ground following. The Day being divided by the Heathens into four and twenty Hours: Every Planet had an Hour of the Day aſſign'd him in his Turn, beginning with the Sun; and thus, to explain the Matter more particularly, The firſt Hour of the firſt Day being aſſign'd the Sun, they reckon'd the Planets downwards, giving Venus the ſecond Hour, Mercury the third, and the Moon the fourth; then they continue their Reckoning upon the higheſt Planets, according to the Order of their Situation; and thus, The fifth Hour falls to Saturn, the ſixth to Jupiter, and the ſeventh to Mars. This Order being carried on, the eighth Hour belongs to the Sun, and ſo does the fifteenth and the two and twentieth, upon the courſe of the Computation; from whence it follows, that Venus makes the three and twentieth Hour, and Mercury the four and twentieth; and thus the firſt Day is run through. Now Mercury having the laſt Hour of Sunday, or the firſt Day aſſign'd him, 'twill follow, that the firſt Hour of the ſecond Day, will of courſe belong to the Moon, which is the reaſon why Monday follows Sunday : And the ſame Computation makes Tueſday follow Monday ; and ſo of the reſt. Macrobius Lib. Saturn. Selden de Jure Gentium. Petav. de Doct. Tempor.

WEEKS, (Daniel's Seventy) the Number of the 70 Weeks of Years, i. e. 70 times 7 Years, which make Four hundred and ninety : This Myſterious Number was by the Angel Gabriel, reveal'd to the Prophet Daniel, to foretel the time of the Birth and Death of our Bleſſed Saviour. By this Revelation we are to underſtand, that the Meſſiah was to die in the middle of the ſeventh Week; i. e. between the third and fourth Year of it. The beginning of theſe ſeventy Weeks, is by the Learned, fix'd to the time Jeruſalem was rebuilt by Nehemiah, with the permiſſion of Artaxerxes Longimanus, King of Perſia : And here they take Notice of two Beginnings of Artaxerxes Longimanus's Reign; the firſt, when he was taken into the Government, and reign'd jointly with his Father Xerxes, commences in the 281ſt Year of Rome, (which make the Three thouſand five hundred eighty firſt of the World;) and the other after the Death of his Father, and falls on the 287 of Rome, i. e. the 3587th of the World : This ſecond Reign laſted forty Years. The Learned obſerve farther, That we are not to take theſe Years for pure Lunary ones, becauſe 'tis not to be ſuppos'd that the Angel Gabriel meant any other ſort of Year than that which was in uſe among the Jews, and indeed among almoſt all other Nations of the World, who either computed by proper Solary Years of 365 Days, or elſe by Lunary ones adjuſted to the Solary, by Eboliſmes : Theſe grounds being laid, it will follow, that Jeruſalem was re-built the 20th Year of Artaxerxes Longimanus, reckoning from the time that he began to Reign jointly with his Father Xerxes, which was the 300 of Rome, the 3600 of the World, and 454 Years before our Saviour; now from this 20th Year of Artaxerxes Longimanus, to the 30th Year of our Lord, when our Bleſſed Saviour was Baptiz'd by John the Baptiſt, and began to Preach and make himſelf Publick; there are 483 Years, which make 79 Weeks of Solar Years. In the middle of the 7th Week, the Meſſiah was crucify'd in the 33d Year of his Age, and three Years and three Months after his Baptiſm : And thus, to conclude, The end of the laſt Week falls upon the 37th Year of our Lord, three Years and ſome Months after his Crucifixion. *Petav. de Doct. WEILL, Lat. Vuila, a City in the Dukedom of Wirtemburg, Free and Imperial by the Conſtitution of Frederick II. ſituate upon the River Wurm, two Miles from Stutgard to the Weſt, and Spire to the South, and three from Tubingen.

WEIMAR, or WYMAR (Bernard Duke of) a German Prince, was one of the greateſt Commanders of his time. Lewis XIII. of France, made him General of the Army he ſent into Germany. The Duke won great Victories, took Saverne, and having join'd the Cardinal Valette, beat the Imperialiſts out of Burgundy, and made himſelf Maſter of Joinville in Franche Comté. In 1638, he forc'd Reinsfeldt, after defeating 6500 Imperialiſts that came to its Relief, and taking the Commanders, John de Wert, the Duke of Savelli, and Enkenfort. Being re-inforc'd with 6000 French, under the Command of the Count of Guebriant, he made himſelf Maſter of a Paſſage upon the Rhine, took Friburg in 13 Days, with 2000 Men; then laid Siege to Briſac, and carried it in ſpight of the Succours of the two Imperial Armies, under the Conduct of Goeutz and Savelli. He attack'd them at One in the Afternoon, and fighting until Ten at Night, defeated them entirely; taking 800 Priſoners, 80 Colours and Standards, 11 Pieces of Cannon, with all their Baggage, 6000 Sacks of Corn, and a great quantity of Powder, which they intended to put into the Town. Of 3000 that were kill'd in this Fight, there were but 4 or 500 of the Duke's Men. Having added theſe new Conqueſts to Alſace, which was given this Prince by Lewis XIII. he became ſo very powerful, that the King of France writ to him to come to Court, but he excus'd himſelf, and ſent Colonel Erlach, whilſt he himſelf ſecur'd his Conqueſts, and endeavour'd to take up Winter-Quarters in Franche Comté, where he defeated the Enemy's Van-Guard, commanded by Prince Francis, Duke Charles's Brother; and made himſelf Maſter of Morteau, Pontarlier, Nozeray, Joux, and ſome other Places. His Conqueſts had gone farther, had not he died at Newburg in 1639. He diſpos'd as Sovereign, of what he believ'd his own; declar'd his Brothers unworthy to ſucceed him in his Conqueſts, if they did not continue Allies with France ; and, as a Sign of his great Eſteem of the Valour of Count Guebriant, he left him his Sword, Armour and charging Horſe. His Body was carried to Briſac, and there buried with great Magnificence and Military Pomp; for, being a Proteſtant, he was not allow'd the Solemnities of the Roman Church.

WEISMAR, Lat. Vimaria, a City of Thuringia in Germany, ſituate upon the River Ilm, three German Miles from Erford to the Eaſt, and five from Naumburg; once the Seat of Otho, Emperor of Germany, now under a Duke of the Houſe of Saxony.

WEISMAR, Lat. Weiſmaria, one of the Hanſe-Towns of Germany, in the Dukedom of Mecklenburg, which has an Harbour on the Baltick Sea, and a new ſtrong Caſtle. It ſtands between Roſtock to the Eaſt, and Lubeck to the Weſt, ſeven German Miles from either; built about 1240, by a Count of Swerin. In 1262, it was almoſt entirely ruin'd by Fire. In 1266, the Duke of Mecklenburg gave it great Privileges, to encourage the re-building of it. By the Peace of Munſter, it was aſſign'd to the Swedes; but being taken by the Danes in 1679, tho' by the Treaty in 1679 they were to reſtore it, yet that Crown has not perform'd that Article.

WEISSEMBURG, Lat. Weiſſemburgum, a Free Imperial City of Bavaria, in the Territory of Aichſtadt, near the Fountains of Redmitz; four German Miles from Donawart to the North, ſeven from Norimberg, and five from Newburg.

WEISSEMBURG, a City of Alſatia, in the Territory of Waſgow, towards the Borders of the Palatinate of the Rhine; called Cron Weiſſemburg, to diſtinguiſh it from the former. 'Tis ſituate upon the River Luter, four German Miles from Hagenaw to the North, and ſix from Stratsburg. Dagobert King of France, built here a celebrated Monaſtery in 623, which in 1496, was chang'd into a College. By the Peace of Munſter this Place was granted to France; and in 1673, ſuffer'd much by the Germans, but is now re-building.

WEISSEMBURG, Lat. Alba Julia, a Town of Tranſylvania, which the Hungarians call Giula Fejervar; with a Biſhoprick, ſuffragant of Colocz. Alba Julia is ſituate upon the River Marize, which the Inhabitants call Marons, and the Germans, Meriſch. The antient Kings and Princes of this Country made it their ordinary Reſidence, until Bethlem Gabor's Time. It has been much greater than now it is, as may be ſeen by its rare Roman Medals, Coins and Inſcriptions; evident Signs of Antiquity and Grandeur. Long. 47. 00. Lat. 46. 05.

WELAND, a River which riſes upon the Borders of Northampton and Leiceſterſhires, and bending its Courſe Eaſtward, parts thoſe two Counties, as it does afterwards Rutland from Northamptonſhire; then running North-Eaſtward through Holland in Lincolnſhire; there it empties it ſelf, with ſeveral leſſer Streams, into the Sea. In Leiceſterſhire it waters Harburg; in Lincolnſhire, Stamford, Marketdeeping Crowland and Spalding.

WELSH-POOL, a Market-Town of Yſtrad Hundred in the Eaſtern Parts of Montgomeryſhire, ſituate near the Influx of a ſmall Stream, called Leding, into the River Severn.

WELLINGBOROUGH, a Market-Town of Hamfordſhoe Hundred in the Eaſtern Parts of Northamptonſhire, pleaſantly ſituate upon an Aſcent, on the Weſt Banks of the River Nine; being a large and populous Town, enjoying a good Trade, beautified with a fair Church, and having the conveniency beſides of a Free School. It is 65 Miles from London.

WELLINGTON, a Market-Town in Milverton Hundred, in Somerſetſhire, ſituate upon the River Tone. It is 111 Miles from London.

WELLS, Lat. Wellæ, Belgæ, or Theorodunum, a City in Somerſetſhire, which together with Bath, gives to the Dioceſan the Title of Bath and Wells. It ſtands about 15 Miles South and by Weſt from Bath, at the Foot of an Hill, and amongſt Springs and Wells; whence it got the Name of Wells: A ſmall City, but well inhabited, and grac'd with fair Buildings, both publick and private. The Cathedral, which is its chiefeſt Ornament, was built by Ina King of the Weſt-Saxons, Anno 704, and dedicated to St. Andrew: But that being ruinated, the Church which now ſtands, a ſtately Building, was built moſt part, by Biſhop Robert, the 18th Biſhop of this See; and finiſh'd by Joceline, ſirnamed De Wells: Adjoining to which is the Biſhop's Palace, built in the manner of a Caſtle; and on the other ſide are the Prebendary's Houſes, &c. The Market-houſe, ſupported by Pillars, is alſo a neat Building. The Biſhop's Seat was originally at Wells, from whence this Church is called by ſome Writers, Foulanenſis Eccleſia: And it was made a Biſhop's See in the Reign of Edward the Elder, An. 905. Adelmus, before Abbot of Glaſtenbury, being the firſt Biſhop hereof. How the Style of Bath came in, ſee under the word Bath.

WEM, a Market-Town of North Bradford Hundred, in the North of Shropſhire. It ſtands on the River Rodden, which from hence runs into the Terne, and with it into the Severn. It gave the Title of Baron to the late Lord Chancellor Jeoffreys, which is now enjoy'd by his Son John. It is 121 Miles from London.

WENCESLAUS. See Venceſlas or Venceſlaus.

WENDOVER, a Market-Town and Corporation in Buckinghamſhire, in the Hundred of Ailesbury; having the Honour of the Election of two Parliament Men. It is 39 Miles from London.

WENLOCK, or Great WENLOCK, a Market and Burrough Town of Wenlock Hundred in Shropſhire; near which, a rich Copper Mine was found in the Reign of Richard II. 'Tis repreſented in the Houſe of Commons by two Burgeſſes. It is 143 Miles from London.

WENTWORTH (Sir Thomas) Son and Heir to Sir William Wentworth of Wentworth-Woodhouſe in Yorkſhire, Baronet, was firſt choſen by King Charles I. of his Privy Council, and in a ſhort time after, by Letters Patents bearing Date the 22d of July, in the 4th Year of his Reign, firſt advanc'd to the Title of Baron Wentworth of Wentworth-Woodhouſe; next, upon the 10th of December following, to that of Viſcount Wentworth; and afterwards conſtituted him Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; and upon the 12th of January advanc'd him to the farther Dignities of Baron of Raby, by reaſon of his Deſcent from that great Family of Nevill, ſometimes Lords of that place, and Earl of Strafford; and laſtly, elected him into the honourable Society of Knights Companions of the Noble Order of the Garter. Yet the Parliament in 1641, paſs'd a ſpecial Bill for his Attainder, with this particular Clauſe, that the like ſhould never be drawn into practice again; and, having got the King's Aſſent thereto, cut off his Head at Tower-hill the 12th of May the ſame Year. He married three Wives: Firſt, Margaret, Daughter to Francis Earl of Cumberland, by whom he had no Iſſue: Secondly, Arabella, Daughter to John Earl of Clare; by whom he had Iſſue one Son, called William, and two Daughters; the Lady Ann, married to Edward Lord Rockingham; and the Lady Arabella, to Juſtin Macarti, Son to Donagh, Earl of Clancarti: And laſtly, Elizabeth, Daughter to Sir Godfrey Rhodes of Great Houghton in Yorkſhire, Knight; by whom he had Iſſue one Daughter, called Margaret. William, his Son and Heir, ſucceeded him, and married the Lady Ann, Daughter of James Earl of Derby; and was, after King Charles the Second's Reſtoration, honour'd by him with the moſt Noble Order of the Garter. Dugdale's Baronage.

WESEL, a ſtrong City in the Dukedom of Cleve, and an Hanſe-Town, which has a Caſtle belonging to it. 'Tis ſituate upon the River Rhine, at the Confluence of the Lippe, 12 German Miles from Cologne to the North, and 5 from Dorſten to the Weſt; taken by the Hollanders, from the Spaniards, in 1629, from them by the French in 1672, who left it in 1674, to the Elector of Brandenburg, after they had diſmantled it.

WEST (John) Lord La-warr, deſcended from an Antient and Noble Family: To begin with Thomas de Weſt, who in 17 Edward II. marry'd the Daughter and Heir of Sir John de Cantilupe of Snitterfield in Com. War. Knt. and ſerv'd in Parliament for that County. He was Knighted in the 4th of Edward III. and made Governor of the Caſtle of Chriſt-Church in Com. Southamp. In this Reign he went in the Expedition againſt the Scots, and made a Campaigne in Flanders, with William Montacute, Earl of Salisbury; and another with Lawrence de Haſtings, Earl of Pembroke, in France: And behaving himſelf to Advantage in theſe honourable Poſts, was ſummon'd to Parliament among the Peers in 16th of Edward III. He was ſucceeded by Sir Thomas Weſt his Son and Heir, who had a creditable ſhare in the Wars of France and Scotland, and diſtinguiſh'd himſelf remarkably at the Battel of Poictiers; in which Battel he is ſaid by ſome Writers, to have taken King John of France Priſoner; and to confirm the Credit of this Hiſtory, he is painted with this Circumſtance of Honour in St. George's Hall at Windſor. This Sir Thomas died ſeiz'd of Twenty one Mannors in the Counties of Gloceſter, Dorſet, Warwick, Devon, Southampton and Wilts, and left Iſſue Thomas his Son and Heir, who accompany'd Edward Duke of Albemarle into Ireland, for the Defence of that Realm, and was ſummon'd to Parliament in the 2d and 5th of Henry IV. and died ſeiz'd of fifteen Mannors. He was ſucceeded by his Son and Heir Thomas, who marry'd Ida, one of the Daughters and Co-heirs of Almerick de St. Amand, and was with King Henry V. in the Wars of France. Reginald, Brother and Heir to this Thomas, was Knighted, ſerv'd in the Wars of France, and was made Governor of St. Lo, and Captain of the Caſtle of de la Mote in Normandy. And 5 Henry VI. upon the Death of Thomas Lord La-warr, had Livery of the Lands of his Mothers Inheritance, ſhe being Siſter and Heir to the ſaid Lord Thomas. In 8 Henry VI. he ſerv'd the King in France with 30 Men at Arms, 70 Archers; and from 5 Henry VI. forward, was ſummon'd to Parliament as Lord La-warr, and died ſeiz'd of forty three Mannors, leaving Richard his Son and Heir. This Richard was a vigorous Abettor of the Lancaſtrian Intereſt; and therefore when the Houſe of York prevail'd, he procur'd a Licenſe to Travel; and notwithſtanding the Turn of Affairs, died ſeiz'd of twenty eight Mannors. Thomas his Son and Heir ſucceeded him, and was ſo much in favour with Henry VII. that he obtain'd a Grant from this Prince of the Caſtle, Barony, Honour, &c. of Brembre in Com. Suſſ. and of ſeveral Mannors, Parks, &c. in that County. In this Reign he was likewiſe one of the chief Commanders of the Army ſent into Flanders, in Aid of the Emperor Maximilian againſt the French: And had likewiſe a conſiderable Poſt in the Troops rais'd for Suppreſſing the Corniſh Inſurrection. In 5 Henry VIII. he attended the King in his Voyage Royal to Therouene and Tournay, and the next Year waited on the King's Siſter, the Lady Mary, in order to her Marriage with King Lewis XII. Thomas his Son and Heir, ſucceeding him in his Honour and Eſtate, ſubſcrib'd with the reſt of the Peers in Parliament, that Declaration to Pope Clement VII. by which they let him underſtand, his Supremacy would be in danger, unleſs he comply'd with King Henry in the Buſineſs of the Divorce. This Thomas having no Iſſue, was ſucceeded by William his Brother's Son, who ſerv'd in the Engliſh Army at the Siege of St. Quintin, 4 Mariæ; and having been attainted 2 Edward VI. procur'd a Reſtoration in Blood in 5 Eliz. After his Deceaſe his Honour deſcended to Thomas his Son and Heir, who, upon his Petition to Queen Elizabeth, was reſtor'd to the Place and Precedency of his Anceſtors. This Thomas marry'd Ann, Daughter to Sir Francis Knowles, Knight of the Garter, and Treaſurer of the Houſhold to Queen Elizabeth; and by her had Iſſue, beſides ſix Daughters, two Sons, Robert who died without Iſſue, and Thomas who ſucceeded to the Honor, was made Captain General of all the Colonies then planted and to be planted in Virginia; to which place, ſailing with three Ships and 150 Men, he died in the Voyage, leaving Iſſue by Cicely his Wife, Daughter to Sir Thomas Sherly Knt. beſides ſix Daughters, Henry his Son and Heir; which Henry married Iſabel, Daughter of Sir Thomas Edmonds Knt. Treaſurer of the Houſhold to King Charles I. and had Iſſue by her Charles his Son and Heir, who married Ann, Daughter of John Wilde of Dort-Wych in Com. Wigorn, Serjeant at Law; which Charles had Iſſue two Sons, Charles and John, and Cicely a Daughter. John laſt mentioned, being the preſent Lord La-warr, and Groom of the Stole to his Royal Highneſs Prince George of Denmark, married ——— the ſole Daughter and Heir of John Freeman of London, Merchant, and by her has Iſſue John. His Lordſhip's paternal Arms are, Pearl, a Fez Daucittè Diamond. Hollinſhead. Pol. Virg. Dugdale Baron. &c.

WESTBURY, a Market and Corporation Town of Wiltſhire, upon the River Broke, near its Fall into the Avon. 'Tis Capital of its Hundred, and honour'd with the Election of two Parliament Men. It is 80 Miles from London.

WESTMINSTER, Lat. Weſtmonaſterium, anciently call'd by a Saxon Name, Thorney; is a diſtinct City from London, as to its Name, Foundation and Government; but, ſince they became contiguous, 'tis generally look'd upon as part of London, and ſwallow'd up in that Name: It lyes Weſt from it; and, reckoning all the Suburbs that properly belong unto it, is of a very conſiderable Extent. Remarkable, amongſt other Things, Firſt, For the Royal Palace of White-Hall, the uſual Reſidence of our Engliſh Monarchs. Secondly, For the Parliament-Houſe. Thirdly, For that ſtately Hall, called Weſtminſter-Hall, where ſit the Civil Courts of Judicature, during the four Terms of the Year. Fourthly, For the Abby-Church at Weſtminſter, and the ſtately Chapel adjoining to it; in the firſt of which the Kings of England are crown'd, the laſt being the uſual Place for their Sepulture. Laſtly, For being chiefly inhabited by the Nobility and Gentry of England, who for the moſt part, dwell here in ſtately Houſes. The Parliament-Houſe is part of an ancient Palace of the Kings of England, which was moſt burnt down in the Reign of Henry VIII. Here the two Houſes meet; the Lords in a Room, called The Houſe of Lords; the Commons in another from them, called The Houſe of Commons. Adjoining to it, is that ſtately Fabrick, Weſtminſter-Hall; for its Dimenſions not to be equall'd by any in Chriſtendom; being 270 Foot in Length, and 74 in Breadth, without the Support of one Pillar; and all finely pav'd with Free Stone. This was erected, as ſome ſay, by William Rufus, but more probably by Richard II. And were it deſcrib'd according to its Greatneſs, and the Dignity of the Courts that are kept there, it might paſs for one of the moſt remarkable Buildings in Europe. But the Glory of Weſtminſter is the Abby-Church there, made Collegiate by Queen Elizabeth. Formerly here ſtood a Temple of Apollo, out of the ruins of which, King Sebert, the firſt Chriſtian King of the Eaſt Saxons, erected a Church, and dedicated it to St. Peter; as was that before: And, whereas the former was commonly call'd St. Peter's in Thorney, the Name of Weſtminſter-Abbey prevail'd for this with the Common People, as ſtanding Weſtward of St. Paul's: But, being grown ruinous in Tract of Time, it was re-built by Edward the Confeſſor, who liberally endowed it, and furniſh'd it with Monks, remov'd hither from Exeter. Afterwards King Henry III. taking down the Fabrick, erected it as now it ſtands; except the Enlargements towards the Weſt, made by ſeveral Abbots; and the ſtately Chapel, built at the Eaſt End thereof by Henry VII. Upon the Diſſolution of this Monaſtery by King Henry VIII. (then valued at 3471 l. per Annum;) that King firſt erected here a Deanry, Anno 1539. Two Years after, he made it a Biſhop's See in the Perſon of Thomas Thirleby, who having dilapidated the Patrimony to this See allotted, and Robb'd St. Peter to pay St. Paul, as the Saying is, was tranſlated to Norwich, Anno 1550. Thus ended this Biſhoprick, having continued but nine Years; and Middleſex, which was the Dioceſe thereof, was reſtor'd to London. Queen Mary afterwards made it an Abby again, which ſhe beſtow'd upon John Fechnam. But her Siſter, Queen Elizabeth, diſſolv'd that Foundation, and made it (as it is now) a Collegiate-Church; conſiſting of a Dean, and Twelve Prebendaries; beſides ſeveral Petty-Canons, and others belonging to the Choir. 'Tis obſervable, that the Abbots here had Archiepiſcopal Juriſdiction within their Liberties, the keeping of the Regalia, a chief Service in the King's Coronation, and a Place in Parliament: In all which Rights, ſave that of Parliament, the Deans have hitherto ſucceeded them. The Chapel adjoining to this Church, and commonly called from the Founder of it, Henry the Seventh's Chapel, is admirable for its Artificial Workmanſhip, both within and without; but chiefly for the Tombs and Monuments of ſeveral of our Kings, and particularly that of King Henry VII. being of Braſs ſo delicately wrought, that it is not to be parallell'd. Here is alſo a famous Free-School, conſiſting of 40 Scholars, maintained by the Revenues of this Church, and taught ſo much of Human Learning as to make them fit for the Univerſity: To which purpoſe, there is a yearly Election for the Ableſt to be ſent, ſome to Chriſt's Church in Oxford, and others to Trinity College in Cambrige; where they have good Allowances. But this is not all that Weſtminſter affords worth our taking notice of: The Copper Statue of King Charles I. at Charing-Croſs, the New-Exchange, and Exeter-Change in the Strand, the Savoy once a famous Hoſpital; ſeveral Noble-men's Houſes, (particularly, Montague, Berkley, and Northumberland-Houſes;) and thoſe ſtately Squares, fill'd up with Nobility and Gentry, are things which redound very much to the Glory of this City. To which add the vaſt New Buildings, rais'd from York, Arundel, Worceſter, Eſſex, Newport and Albemarle-Houſes: And others upon new Grounds; ſuch as thoſe of Sohoe, which alone might make a good large City; and many more, too numerous to inſiſt upon. By theſe vaſt Additions of Buildings, all ſince the Reſtauration, Weſtminſter is become a City of a large Extent, and makes up with London, the greateſt City in Europe. For the particular Government whereof in Civil Matters, there is, firſt, an High-Steward, who is uſually one of Prime Nobility: Next, a Deputy Steward, a Bailiff, and two High-Burgeſſes; theſe choſen every Year. Cambden. Brit. Monument. Weſtmonaſt. &c.

WESTMORLAND, a County in the North-Weſt Parts of England, lyes between York-ſhire on the Eaſt, Cumberland on the Weſt and North, and Lancaſhire on the South. From North to South it reaches in length 30 Miles, in breadth from Eaſt to Weſt 24. The whole divided into four Wards, called Kendale, Langdale, Eaſt and Weſt Wards; wherein are contained 26 Pariſhes, and eight Market Towns: Whoſe ancient Inhabitants were part of the Brigantes, the Country making part of the Heptarchy Kingdom of Northumberland; and now, with part of Cumberland, making the Dioceſe of Carliſle. The Name of Weſtmorland is got, partly from its Weſtern Situation, and partly from its Moors (or Fells) unmanur'd, which make up a good part of it. 'Tis one of the worſt Counties of England, a part of of its Soil being barren: But the Southern Parts contain many fruitful Valleys, Meadows, Arable and Paſture Grounds. The Air is ſharp, piercing and healthful. The chief Rivers that water it, are, the Eden, Lon and Ken; the firſt running Northward, and the other two Southward. Weſtward are two large Meres; the one call'd Ulles, and the other Winander-Mere; that bordering upon Cumberland, and this upon Lancaſhire. Of all its Market Towns, Appleby is the only Place privileg'd to ſend two Burgeſſes to Parliament. This County was firſt dignified with the Title of an Earldom in the Reign of Richard II. by whom Ralph Nevil, Lord of Raby, and Earl-Marſhal, was created Earl of Weſtmorland, Anno 1398; which Title continued in his Family almoſt 200 Years, till it fail'd on the Death of Charles Nevil, in 1584. But it was reviv'd by King James I. in the Perſon of Francis Fane, eldeſt Son of Mary, deſcended from the Nevils; who, An. 1624, was created Baron of Burgherſh, and Earl of Weſtmorland: From whom the Title is now devolv'd upon the Right Honourable Charles Fane, the preſent Earl of Weſtmorland.

WESTPHALIA, one of the Ten Circles of the Empire of Germany, between the Lower Saxony and the Low Countries. It comprehends ſeveral Places, whereof the moſt conſiderable belonging to the Church, are, the Biſhopricks of Munſter, Paderborn, Oſnabruk, Minden, Liege and Firden; the Archbiſhopricks of Utretcht and Cambray; the Abbies of Stavlot, St. Cornelius Munſter, Corvey, Echternach, Eſſen, Werden and Hervorden. Amongſt the Laicks are, the Dutchies of Juliers, Cleves and Berg, or Mons; the Earldoms of Ooſt-Friſe, or Eaſtern Friſe, of La Marck, Ravenſperg, Sain, Naſſaw, Dillemburg, Runckel, Lingen, De Mœurs, Brunckhorſt, Sommerauff, Vinnemberg, Diephole, Schawenbourg, Lippa, Aremberg and Reitberg. There are alſo the Imperial Towns of Collen, Aix-la-capelle, Dortmund, Herford, Weſel, Duisbourg, Soeſt, Brakel, Warbourg, Lengour, Duren and Cambray. There is alſo a Dutchy of Weſtphalia that belongs to the Elector of Collen.

WESTRAM, a Market Town in the County of Kent, in Sutton Lath, upon the River Darent.

WEXFORD, a County in the South of the Kingdom of Ireland, called by the Iriſh, Loghagrarm. It is the South part of the Province of Linſter, bounded on the North by the County of Waterford, cut off by the River Barrow. It takes its Name from a great Sea-Port Town on the South-ſide of the River Shemalyn, not far from the South-eaſtern Point of Ireland, about 20 Miles Eaſt of Waterford. This City was the firſt place of Strength the Engliſh took in Ireland, under Robert Fitz-Stephens Aſſiſtant to Richard Earl of Chepſtow in 1170: nor was it taken without Reſiſtance by the Grant of Dermond King of Leinſter. It was made the firſt Engliſh Colony.

WEYMOUTH, a Market and Borough Town of Culliford Hundred in the South of Dorſetſhire, upon the Chanel called Weymouth, from the ſmall River Wye, on the Mouth whereof it is ſeated. It's join'd to Melcomb Regis, on the other ſide of the ſame River, by a fair Timber Bridge, ſince the Incorporation of both Towns by Act of Parliament in Queen Elizabeth's time into one Body. Yet each is diſtinctly repreſented by its Burgeſſes in the Houſe of Commons, and Weymouth has the Honour to give the Title of a Viſcount to the Right Honourable Thomas Thynne, created Viſcount Weymouth by King Charles II. See Thynne. For good Harbours upon the Chanel, Falmouth is of note in Cornwal, Plymouth in Devonſhire, and Weymouth in this County.

WHARTON, the Simame of a Family of great Antiquity, taking Denomination from a fair Lordſhip of that Name upon the Bank of the River Eden in the County of Weſtmorland, which together with Wharton-Hall, is ſtill in the poſſeſſion of the Right Honourable Philip Lord Wharton. The firſt of this Family who was advanced to the Dignity of Peerage, was Sir Thomas Wharton Knight, Governor of the Town and Caſtle of Carliſle, and Warden of the Marſhes, who in 34 Hen. VIII. upon an Invaſion of 15000 Scots, being aſſiſted by Sir William Muſgrave, and appearing but with 300 Men, put them into ſuch an apprehenſion that the Duke of Norfolk with his whole Army were at hand, preſently fled in Diſorder, and the Earls of Caſſils and Gleancarn, with others of note, were taken; for which remarkable Service, he was, in the 35th of Hen. VIII. created Baron of Wharton in the County of Weſtmorland. In the 36th of Hen. VIII. he march'd with the Lord Dacres and others into Scotland, aſſiſted at the taking of Dumfriez, bringing off a great Booty, forcing the Scots to a Treaty, and to give Hoſtages for performance of Articles. In the 1ſt. of Edward VI. being Warden of the Weſt Marches, he entred Scotland again with the Earl of Lenox, Grandfather to King James I. who was then diſobliged by the Court of Scotland, and invaded the Country with 5000 Men, and won the Church of Anan. In the 7th of Edward VI. he had an Augmentation of Arms granted by the ſaid Prince in conſideration of his Services, in the following Terms.

Edward VI. by the Grace of God King of England, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. and in Earth, of the Church of England and Ireland Supreme Head: To all and ſingular Nobles and Gentlemen, Kings of Arms, Heralds, and other Officers of Arms unto whom theſe Preſents ſhall come, greeting. Foraſmuch as anciently from the beginning it hath been deviſed and ordained, that the valiant and vertuous Acts of excellent Perſons ſhould be commended to the world with ſundry Monuments and Remembrances of their good Deſerts, amongſt the which one of the chiefeſt and moſt uſual hath been the bearing of Signs and Tokens in Shields, called Arms, the which are none other things than Evidences and Demonſtrations of Proweſs and Valour, diverſly diſtributed according to the Qualities and Deſerts of the Perſons, that ſuch Signs and Tokens of the Diligent, Faithful, and Courageous, might appear before the negligent Coward and ignorant Subject, and be an efficient Cauſe to move, ſtir, animate, and kindle the Hearts of Men to the Imitation of Vertue and Nobleneſs. We, not minding the Derogation, or taking away of any part of the Authority of ſo antient an Order, but rather tendring the maintenance thereof, Will the ſame continually be obſerved, to the intent that ſuch as have done commendable Service to their Prince and Country, either in War or in Peace, may both receive due Honour in their Lives, and derive the ſame ſucceſſively to their Poſterity after them: Willing alſo, as a thing moſt expedient and neceſſary, that from time to time the Officers and Heralds of Arms, to whoſe Office it is appropriate, to procure, aſſign, and ordain for all ſuch Perſons, Signs and Tokens, according to their Qualities and Deſerts, and do digeſt and regiſter the ſame in their Books of Record, to the intent that Honour juſtly won may not be forgotten and drowned in Oblivion. And hereupon conſidering the high and commendable Service of Our right-truſty and well-beloved Sir Thomas Wharton Kt. Lord Wharton, done in a Service upon and againſt Our ancient Enemies the Scots, at a Road by him made at a Place called Solemmoſſe, being on S. Katherine*'s Eve in the* xxxiiij Year of the Reign of our dear Father King Henry the Eighth, of moſt famous Memory; whereas through his noble Governance and valiant Chevalry, the chiefeſt of all the Nobility of Scotland were either ſlain or taken Priſoners, to Our great Honour and Glory. In Conſideration whereof, We, by the Advice and good Report of Our right truſty and right entirely beloved Couſin and Counſellor John Duke of Northumberland, Knight Marſhal of England, intending to have the ſame notified by Signs and Tokens of Nobility ſet forth in due order; We have aſſigned Our well-beloved Servant William Harvey Eſq; alias Norrey, Our principal Herald and King at Arms of all our North Parts of England, to aſſign unto and for our ſaid right truſty and well-beloved Sir Thomas Wharton Kt. Lord Wharton, and to his Poſterity, in perpetual Memory of his aforeſaid worthy and commendable Service, an Augmentation of Signs and Tokens unto his old and ancient Arms, as followeth; (that is to ſay) To his ſaid ancient Arms a Border engrailed Gold, rempliſed with Lyons Legs in Saltire, raſed Gules armed, Azure, as more plainly appears in the Margent: which Augmentation, in conſideration aforeſaid, we have aſſigned, given, and granted, and by theſe Preſents do give, aſſign, and grant unto and for Our ſaid right truſty and well beloved Sir Thomas Wharton Kt. Lord Wharton, and to his Poſterity, to uſe, bear, and ſhew for evermore in Shield, Coat-Armour, or otherwiſe, at his Liberty and Pleaſure, without any Impediment, Lett, or Interruption. In witneſs whereof, we have cauſed theſe Our Letters to be made Patents. Witneſs Our Self at Greenwich the xxiij Day of April, the ſeventh Year of Our Reign. Norrey.

The Honourable Henry Wharton Eſq; third Son of the ſaid Marriage, died without Iſſue in Ireland, being a Colonel in their Majeſties Army. And the Right Honorable Thomas Wharton Eſq; eldeſt Son and Heir apparent to the Lord Wharton, is now Comptroller of their Majeſties Houſhold, hath diſtinguiſh'd himſelf for his Service to his Country in Parliament, and was one of the firſt of Quality who joined his preſent Majeſty King William after his Deſcent upon England when Prince of Orange. He hath been twice married, the firſt time to Anne, one of the two Daughters and Coheirs to Sir Henry Lee of Dichley Com. Oxon. Bar. who died without Iſſue, and left him a great Eſtate; and the ſecond time to —— Daughter to the Lord Lisburn, who was kill'd by a Cannon-Shot in the Camp before Limerick.

WHICHCOTE, A Family of great Honour and Antiquity; heretofore of Whichcote in Com. Salop; from thence denominated at firſt de Whichcote, and ſo written for ſeveral Generations, as appears by two Inquiſitions poſt mortem: one taken 2 Edw. II. the other 44 Edw. III. concerning the Deſcendants from a collateral Line, then Inheritors of certain Lands at Sutton magna and Sutton parva in the ſame County. The principal Seat of this Family, for almoſt 300 Years laſt paſt, has been at Harpeſwell in Com. Linc. and belongs now to George Whichcote Eſquire, Grandſon to Sir Hamond Whichcote Kt. as Sir Hamond was to another Hamond Son and Heir to Tho. Whichcote Eſquire: Which George Whichcote was Son and Heir to William Whichcote Eſquire (Lieutenant-Colonel to the Lord Viſcount Molineux, in the Service of K. Charles I.) by Margaret his Wife (Relict of Sir John South Kt. and afterwards married to Robert Lord Hunſdon) eldeſt Daughter to Sir Gervaſe Clifton of Clifton in Com. Notting. Knight of the Bath and Baronet, by Frances his ſecond Wife, Daughter to Francis Earl of Cumberland. The ſaid George hath Iſſue two Daughters (Eleanor and Frances) by Frances his firſt Wife, Daughter of Sir Francis Bointon of Barmſton in Com. York Baronet, and Thomas Whichcote his Son and Heir apparent by a third Wife, one of the Daughters of Sir Tho. Meeres Knight; himſelf being before the only ſurviving Male of the firſt Houſe. The remaining Branches are the Deſcendants of Edw. Whichcote of Stoke within the Pariſh of Burford in Com. Salop Eſquire; of Chriſtopher Whichcote Gent. a Spaniſh Merchant at London; and of Sir Jeremy Whichcote Baronet, Sons to Chriſtopher Whichcote of Stoke aforeſaid, Eſquire; who was Son to Chriſtopher Whichcote of the City of London, a younger Son to Thomas Whichcote before mention'd, the Son of John Whichcote of Harpeſwell junior, Son and Heir to John Whichcote Eſquire, of Harpeſwell, in right of his Wife Elizabeth, Daughter and Coheir of John Tirwhit of Harpeſwell, Gent. ſecond Son of Sir Robert Tirwhit of Kettleby in the ſame County of Linc. Knight, (ſometime a Juſtice of the Common Pleas, and afterwards of the King's Bench) Son to Adam Tirwhit of Kettleby Eſquire, by Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter of Ralph Lord Lumley and Eleanor his Wife, Siſter to Ralph Earl of Weſtmorland, and Daughter of John Lord Nevill, by Maud his Wife, Daughter to Henry Lord Percy, Anceſtor to the Earls of Northumberland.

WHICHCOTE (Benjamin) D. D. ſometime Provoſt of Kings College in Cambrige, and Vice-Chancellor of the Univerſity, afterwards Rector of Milton (alias Middleton) near Cambrige, (a Donative belonging to the ſaid College) and Vicar of St. Lawrence Jewry in London; was fifth Son to Chriſtopher Whichcote of Stoke in the County of Salop Eſq; aforemention'd, by Eliz. his Wife, Daughter to Edw. Fox of Greet in the ſame County Eſq; by Katherine his firſt Wife, Daughter of Lewis Crowther of Ludlow, Gent. He marry'd Rebecca, Daughter to Thomas Jordan, and Relict of Richard Glover, as before him of Matthew Cradock (Merchants at London) and died without Iſſue May 13. An. 1683. ætat. ſuæ 74. leaving a plentiful Eſtate (beſides 1000 l. bequeathed in pious and charitable Legacies) to his three Executors, Benjamin and Jeremy Whichcote of London Merchants, Sons to his Brother Chriſtopher, and Chriſtopher Whichcote a younger Son to Sir Jeremy Whichcote following. See his Character, together with the Hiſtory of his Life and Death, in his Funeral Sermon, preach'd by the Reverend Dr. John Tillotſon (Dean of Canterbury) at the Church of St. Lawrence Jewry aforeſaid: where he lieth interr'd in the Chancel.

WHICHCOTE (Sir Jeremy) of the Inner-Temple, Lond. and Hendon in the County of Middleſex, Baronet; one of the Juſtices of Peace and Deputy-Lieutenants, as alſo Colonel of the Militia for the ſaid County, Brother to the aforeſaid Dr. Benjamin Whichcote; was born Sept. 28. 1614. at Stoke in the County of Salop, and departed this Life June 22. 1677. This Sir Jeremy Whichcote married Anne, eldeſt Daughter to Joſeph Grave Citizen of London, by Anne his Wife, Daughter of John Brereton of Namptwich in the County Palatine of Cheſter, and Amie his Wife, Siſter to Sir Paul Pindar of London Knight, ſometime Embaſſador at Conſtantinople. By which Anne Lady Whichcote (ſtill ſurviving) he had Iſſue 7 Sons and 2 Daughters; (1.) Sir Paul Whichcote of Queye-Hall in the County of Cambrige, Knight and Baronet. He was ſometime a Fellow-Commoner in Kings-College in Cambrige; afterwards a Student in the Inner-Temple, London. Then travelled through France, Italy, and Portugal, for ſeveral Years together: After his Return, was admitted Fellow of the Royal Society, and reſident again at the Inner Temple, till his Marriage with Jane Daughter and Coheir to Sir Nicholas Gould of London Baronet, by Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter to Sir John Gerard of Lammer in the County of Hertford, Baronet. This Sir Paul Whichcote was Knighted in the Bed-chamber by King Charles II. in 1665. (2.) Francis Whichcote, ſometime a Turkey Merchant. (3.) Benjamin Whichcote, who died young. (4) Chriſtopher Whichcote of London, Merchant. (5.) Henry Whichcote of London, and Finchley in the County of Middleſex, a Turkey Merchant, married to Gertrude Daughter of Sir John Lawrence Kt. ſometime Alderman and Lord Mayor of London, and Relict of Richard Pecok of Finchley aforeſaid Eſquire. (6.) Samuel Whichcote, who died in his Infancy. (7.) Matthew Whichcote of the Inner-Temple, Barriſter at Law, lately deceas'd. Anne, eldeſt Daughter, married to Sir Francis Pemberton Knight, Serjeant at Law, ſometime Lord Chief Juſtice of the Kings-Bench and Common-Pleas, and one of the moſt Honorable Privy Council to King Charles II. Elizabeth, ſecond Daughter, marry'd to Richard Osburn of the Inner-Temple, utter Barriſter. Sir Jeremy for many Years, to his Death, held the Proprietary Wardenſhip of the Fleet; which he purchaſed, at firſt, in order to promote the Royal Intereſt: and for that purpoſe officiated ſometimes himſelf, during the Exile of K. Charles II. whereby he did His Majeſty great Service, in ſheltering his Agents, and particularly once preventing a treacherous Deſign laid againſt His Majeſties Perſon: Upon whoſe Reſtoration he was honoured with the Title of Baronet, by Letters Patent, bearing Date at Bruxels April 2. 1660. in the 12th Year of His Majeſty's Reign. He was ſometime Sollicitor-General to the Prince Elector Palatine, who always retain'd a kind Remembrance of his good Services.

WHITBY, a Market and Sea-Port Town in the North Riding of Yorkshire, at the Fall of the River Esk into the Ocean. It hath many Veſſels belonging to it, a good Bridge over the River Esk, a Cuſtom-Houſe, and of conſiderable Trade for Allum and Butter.

WHITCHURCH, a Market Town in Shropſhire, in the Hundred of North Bradford, towards Cheſhire: Alſo a Corporation in Hantſhire, in Evinger Hundred, upon the River Teſt, honoured with the Election of two Members of the Houſe of Commons. It's 49 Miles from London.

WHITEHAVEN, a Market Town of Allerdale Diviſion in Cumberland, upon a Creek of the Sea, which affords it a convenient and well-frequented Harbour. It trades principally in Salt and Coal. It ſtands 227 Miles from London.

WHITGIFT (John) was deſcended of an ancient Family, ſeated at Whitgift in Yorkshire. His Grandfather was John Whitgift, Gentleman. His Father Henry Whitgift was bred a Merchant at Great Grimsby in Lincolnſhire, where John firſt mention'd was born in the Year 1530. He was firſt inſtructed by his Uncle Robert Whitgift, an Abbot of Wellow in Lincolnſhire, from whence he remov'd to London, and thence to Pembroke-Hall in Cambrige; where he was choſen Fellow, and after other Degrees, commenc'd Doctor of Divinity in the Year 1569. He was alſo choſen Maſter of Pembroke-Hall, and Margaret and Queen's Profeſſor: and having a great Reputation for Preaching, he was ſent for up to Court, where the Queen heard him with ſuch Satisfaction, that ſhe made him her Chaplain, and prefer'd him to the Maſterſhip of Trinity College in Cambrige. At this time Thomas Cartwright was Fellow of that College, who being not ſufficiently conſider'd, as he thought, at a Univerſity-Exerciſe before Queen Elizabeth, grew diſcontented, and began to oppoſe the Ceremonies and Government of the Church; in defence of which Singularities, he appear'd more open and vigorous after his coming back from Geneva: and being ſupported by ſeveral Abettors, was the occaſion of great Diſturbances in the Univerſity, for which he was afterwards expell'd. Not long after, Cartwright and the Diſciplinarians publiſh their Admonition to the Parliament, to which Whitgift wrote a learned Anſwer: To lengthen this Controverſie, Cartwright replies; and Whitgift defends his Anſwer. Dr. Whitgift's next Promotion was to the Deanry of Lincoln, and then to the Biſhoprick of Worceſter, where he was likewiſe made Vice-Preſident of the Marches of Wales. And here, both with reſpect to his Eccleſiaſtick and Civil Station, he had the reputation of a good Governor, and was extremely valu'd for his Prudence, Integrity, and good Temper. The Queen being highly ſatisfy'd with his Character, offer'd him the See of Canterbury, tho' not then vacant; which he refus'd to accept till Archbiſhop Grindal's Death; which happening in 1583, he was then Tranſlated to Lambeth, where in the Year 1584, at the Inſtance of ſome of the Privy-Council, the two Archbiſhops, and the Biſhop of Wincheſter, condeſcended to hear the Diſſenting Miniſters Reaſons againſt Conformity, which being publickly debated, and ſufficiently anſwer'd, thoſe of the Council ſeem'd ſurpriz'd to find the Objections of the Non-Conformiſts ſo trivial and weak: however that Party had Friends enow at Court to give the Archbiſhop a great deal of trouble, till he had ſtrengthen'd his Intereſt by being better known to the Queen, and ſworn of the Privy Council. On the Death of Sir Thomas Bromley, Lord Chancellor, the Queen proffer'd him the Seal, which he declining, recommended Sir Chriſtopher Hatton, who afterwards aſſiſted him in checking the Puritan Faction: And Cartwright, the Head of that Party, having run a great length of Irregularity, was pardon'd, at the inſtance of the Archbiſhop. The Queen, being now ſo fully ſatisfy'd with the Archbiſhop's Conduct, throws the care of the Church entirely upon him, giving him a Power to diſpoſe of all Biſhopricks and other Eccleſiaſtical Promotions in her Majeſty's Nomination. To throw in a Word or two more of his Character: He was a great Lover and Encourager of Learning and Vertue both at home and abroad, and treated both the Recuſants and other Diſſenters with great Mildneſs and Moderation; by which Uſage he brought off a great many Roman-Catholicks in his Dioceſe of Worceſter. He was a firm Friend to the Earl of Eſſex, till convinc'd of his Diſloyalty; and then he Arm'd threeſcore of his own Family, and ſent them to White-hall for the Queens Security. Theſe Men were the firſt that enter'd Eſſex-houſe, and made good their Poſt till the Earl ſurrender'd himſelf. When Queen Elizabeth died, the Archbiſhop was the chief Mourner at her Funeral: He likewiſe, after the coming of King James I. to the Crown, aſſiſted at the Conference between the Biſhops and Non-Conformiſts, at Hampton-Court: Soon after which he died, in the 74th Year of his Age, and was bury'd at Croyden in Surrey, where he had built and endow'd a Free-School and an Hoſpital. Sir Geo. Paule's Life of this Archbiſhop.

WIBOURG, a Town and Port of Swedeland, in Finland. There is another of this Name in Jutland in Denmark. It is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Lunden, and ſtands in the middle of that Promontory, at an equal diſtance from the German and Baltick Seas, eight Miles from Alburg to the South.

WICKHAM, a Market Town of Buckinghamſhire, in Burnham Hundred, in a low and fruitful Vale, upon a Stream that falls into the Thames. It is a large fair Town, ſends two Members to Parliament, and is the Place where the Aſſizes for the County are commonly kept. It's 32 Miles from London.

WICKHAM (William of) was born at a Town of that Name in Hantſhire. One of his firſt Preferments was that of Surveyor of King Edw. III.'s Buildings; afterwards going into Orders, he was made Parſon of St. Martin's in the Fields, Archdeacon of Lincoln, &c. beſides which, he was made Principal Secretary, Keeper of the Privy-Seal, Maſter of the Wards and Liveries, Biſhop of Wincheſter, and Lord Treaſurer of England. The Money which he expended upon Religion, Learning, Charity, and the Publick Good, was almoſt incredible; for he beſtow'd 20000 Marks in Repairing Houſes belonging to the Biſhoprick; Diſcharg'd all Priſoners in his Dioceſe that lay in Execution for Debt under 20 Pounds; Repair'd all the High-ways from Wincheſter to London, on both ſides the River; Founded New-College in Oxford, and another College at Wincheſter; in which latter there is a large Revenue ſettled for the Maintenance of a Warden, 10 Fellows, 2 Maſters, 70 Scholars, &c. This Biſhop died in the 4th Year of Henry IV. Cambd. Brit.

WICKLIFFE (John) an Engliſh-man, Doctor of Divinity in Oxford, and Parſon of Lutterworth in Lincolnſhire, maintain'd ſeveral Erroneous Opinions in the Reigns of Edw. III. and Rich. II. and was ſupported in his Oppoſition to the Church, by John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaſter, Henry Lord Percy, and ſome others. Some of his Tenents are ſaid to be as follow; viz. "That Princes may take away the Church's Temporalities, when "they are not rightly made uſe of. That God cannot give a "Man and his Heirs a Right to Govern by perpetual Succeſſion. "That Deeds invented for the conveying of perpetual Inheritan-"ces are impracticable. That a Man cannot be Excommunica-"ted by the Church, unleſs he is firſt Excommunicated by him-"ſelf. That every Prieſt rightly Ordain'd has a Power (inde-"pendently of his Superiors) to Adminiſter the Sacrament, "and, by conſequence, of Abſolving from all kinds of Sin. "That Chriſt meant the Pope, by the Abomination of Deſolation "ſtanding in the Holy Place. That Biſhops Benedictions, Confir-"mations, Conſecrations of Churches, &c. are but Tricks to "get Money. That Deacons and Prieſts may Preach without "Licence from the Biſhop. That Prieſts of bad Life forfeit "their Character and Authority, or ceaſe to be Prieſts. That the "Church conſiſts only of Perſons predeſtinated. That 'tis no "Sacrilege to take away Things conſecrated to Religion. That "People ought not to pay Tythes to immoral Pariſh-Prieſts. And many others of this kind, too long to mention. Spelman's Councils, Vol. 2. Fuller's Church-Hiſtory, &c.

WICTERIC XXII. King of the Goths, uſurped the Kingdom in 603, from Limba II. He underſtood how to Fight, but not ſo well how to Conquer. He had ſeveral Wars againſt the Romans, though he reign'd but 6 Years and 10 Months; for as he had kill'd Limba to aſſure himſelf the Kingdom, ſo this Prince's Friends watch'd an opportunity of Revenge, and kill'd him as he ſate at Dinner.

WIDDRINGTON (Sir William) of Widdrington Caſtle in Com. Northumb. Kt. and Bar. for his Service in the beginning of the Troubles in K. Charles I.'s Reign, was by that Prince, by Letters Patent bearing Date 10 Nov. 19 Car. I. advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Widdrington of Blantney in Com. Linc. Continuing likewiſe in Arms till all was loſt, he ſuffer'd in the general Ruin: And after that joyning with the moſt noble James Earl of Derby in Auguſt 1651, to make Paſſage for King Charles II. with his Army out of Scotland then marching towards Worceſter, being encountred by numerous Forces ſent by Cromwel under the Command of Colonel Lilburn, loſt his Life in a ſharp Skirmiſh near Wiggan in Lancaſhire, leaving Iſſue by Mary his Wife, Daughter and ſole Heir to Sir Anthony Thorold of Blankney Kt. ſeven Sons and two Daughters. William, his Son and Heir, ſucceeding him, married Elizabeth the Daughter and Heir to Sir Peregrine Bertu of Eveden in Com. Linc. Kt. a younger Son to Robert late Earl of Lindſey, and by her hath Iſſue. Dugd.

WIDIN, Vidin, in Latin Bydena and Viminiacum, is a City of Servia, which is an Archbiſhop's See, and the Seat of the Turkiſh Governor: It ſtands upon the Danube (where it receives the Lon) nine German Miles from the Borders of Thrace to the Weſt, and fifteen from Riſſa to the North. It was taken by the Imperialiſts, after a Defeat of 10000 Turks that were poſted near it, Octob. 1689. and re-taken by the Turks in four days, Sept. 1690.

WIER (John called Piſcinarius) was born in 1515 at Grave, upon the Meuſe, in the Dutchy of Brabant. He began his Studies in Germany under Cornelius Agrippa, and after he had continued them at Paris he travelled in Africa and Candia, where he aſſures us, in his Book of Witches, he ſaw a Thing which ſeems altogether incredible; viz. That a Country Fellow voided, by the Fundament, the Iron of an Arrow that he was wounded with in the Back ſome Years before. At his Return into his own Country, the Duke of Cleves took him to be his Doctor; in which Office he behaved himſelf with great Reputation and Succeſs for 33 Years. He was very learned, undertook the Protection of the Witches againſt the Judges that condemn'd them to be Burn'd, and pretended to make it appear, that all who were accus'd of that Crime were People whoſe Brains being diſturb'd with Melancholy, imagined, but without Reaſon, and againſt Truth, that they held a Correſpondence with the Devil; ſo that they were really more worthy of Compaſſion than Puniſhment. Bodin, in his Demonomaniæ, pretends, that Wier favoured Witches for no other end, but to encreaſe their Number; that his Opinion was full of Impiety, and led the way to Atheiſm: He founds his Opinion on this, That Wier teaches the Words, Invocations, Circles, Figures, and Characters, uſed by that ſort of People: moreover, he gives the Inventory of the Monarchy of Hell, with the Names and Sirnames of 572 Princes of Devils, and of 7405926 leſſer ones. He counts the little ones by Legions, allowing 5666 to each one, adding their Qualities and Properties; and acknowledges that having found the Steganographia of Trithemius in Agrippa's Cloſet, with the Names of the Devils, and the Prayers to be uſed in invoking their Aſſiſtance, he had tranſcrib'd it all. From all which, Bodin makes no difficulty to conclude, that Wier was no mean Wizard himſelf. He died at Tecklembourg in 1588, being 73 Years of Age. Thuan.

WIGAN, a Market and Borough Town of Weſt Derby in the South of Lancaſhire, ſeated on the River Dowles which runs into the mouth of the Ribble, and inhabited by divers ſorts of Tradeſmen, whoſe Manufactures find vent at home and abroad. About this Town are the choiceſt Coals in England, called Cannel; but a greater Wonder is the Burning-Well near it. It's 195 Miles from London.

WIGHT, The Iſle of Wight, Lat. Vectis, is a conſiderable Iſland belonging to Hampſhire, from which it ſeems to have been divided, the Paſſage betwixt it and Hurſt Caſtle on the oppoſite Shore being very narrow, and the Name of it intimating ſome ſuch Diviſion; for by the Britains, ſays Heylin, it was anciently called Guith, which ſignifies a Breach or Separation, from whence the Engliſh have their Wight, the turning of Gu into W being familiar with the Saxons and other Dutch People. From Eaſt to Weſt this Iſland reaches 20 Miles, and from North to South 12. On the Eaſt ſide it makes a Peninſula commonly called Binbrige Iſle, and on the Weſt another by the Name of Freſh-Water Iſle. Southward, eſpecially where it looks towards France, 'tis in a manner inacceſſible, by reaſon of the ſteep and craggy Rocks wherewith it is naturally fenced; nor is it much leſs ſafe on the North-Weſt, where the Rocks call'd the Needles and Shingles make the Paſſage very dangerous, except to ſingle Ships under the Conduct of Pilots well acquainted with the Courſe of the Chanel. North-Eaſtward 'tis more flat and level. This Iſland, anciently inhabited by the Belgæ, and now being in the Dioceſe of Wincheſter, is divided into 2 principal Parts, called the Eaſt and Weſt Maden, wherein are 36 Pariſhes, 4 Market Towns, and 4 Caſtles. An Iſland much commended for being a healthful, pleaſant, and fruitful ſpot of Ground; Northward well provided with Meadows, Paſtures, and Woods; Southward with good Corn Fields, ſo that it yields plenty of Graſs and Corn, breeds great ſtore of Cattel, beſides Conies, Hares, Partridges, Pheaſants, Sea-Fowl, and Fiſh. The Market Towns are Newport, the chief Place of the Iſland, Newton, Yarmouth, and Sandham-Caſtle, the firſt three whereof ſend two Burgeſſes to ſerve in Parliament. The Caſtles are, Sandham, Cowes, Cariſbrook, and Yarmouth Caſtles. The principal Bays are, Compton, Sandham, and Thorney Bay; the firſt South-weſtward, the ſecond South-eaſtward, and the third North-weſtward. Here is alſo St. Helens Eaſtward, Cowes Northward, and betwixt Portſmouth and this Iſland, Spithead; three noted Stations for our Fleets. Laſtly, this Iſland, as well as the Iſle of Man, has had the Honour of being advanced to the Title of a Kingdom, Henry Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, being Crowned King of Wight by K. Henry VI. An. 1445. but the Title ended with him 2 Years after. Richard Widevil, Earl of Rivers, his Succeſſor, had it from Edw. VI. with the Title of Lord of Wight. Sir Reginald Bray took it from Henry VII. in Fee Farm, at the Rent of 300 Marks.

WIGHTON, a Market Town in the Eaſt Riding of Yorkſhire, in Harthill Hundred, 147 Miles from London.

WILBROD (St.) was born in Northumberland in 658. His Father's Name was Ulgil. He was educated, at firſt, in the Abbey of Rippon, of which St. Wilfrid was then Abbot. At the Age of 20 Years, having ſome time before turn'd Monk, he went into Ireland to St. Egbert, who being perſuaded of St. Wilbrod's Capacity and Qualifications, ſent him to attempt the Converſion of the Friſons in the Low-Countries, he being at that time about 30 Years old, and in Prieſts Orders. He took St. Suidbert, St. Adelbert, and in all 8 or 9 Miſſionaries along with him, and arriv'd in Weſt-Frieſland in 690, being a little after the time that Pepin Maire of the Palace under Thierry III. had Conquer'd part of this Country from Radbod King of the Friſons. To make his Enterprize more practicable, he apply'd himſelf to Pepin, who receiv'd him into his Protection, and ſent him to Rome to Pope Sergius, for his Apoſtolical Benediction. Wilbrod, upon his Return, ſpent 3 or 4 Years in inſtructing the Friſons in K. Thierry's Dominions, and converted a great number of them. Upon this Succeſs he took another Journey to Rome, with Letters of Recommendation from Pepin; upon which Pope Sergius made him Archbiſhop of the Friſons, and gave him the Pall. Being return'd to France, Pepin granted him ſome Lands in the Town of Utrecht for him to reſide on: Here he built St. Saviour's Church, and fix'd his See. Sometime after, St. Wilbrod preach'd in that Part of Frieſland which belong'd to Prince Radbod; but notwithſtanding all his Zeal and Arguments againſt Heatheniſm, he was not ſo ſucceſsful as to convert that Prince. He went afterwards upon the like charitable Employment into Denmark; but was in agreat meaſure, by the Obſtinacy of the People, diſappointed in this Place alſo. Upon his coming back to the Low-Countries, he baptiz'd Pepin, Son of Charles Martel, and foretold his future Greatneſs. He died in the Year 730, and had his Life written in Proſe and Verſe by Alcuinus, who liv'd in the Reign of Charles the Great. Mabillon Act. Sanct.

WILFRID (Saint) Archbiſhop of York, born at Rippon; was a general Scholar, and particularly an eminent Divine. He went into Scotland, and in a Council conven'd there by Oſwin King of Northumberland, he confuted the Miſtakes of Colman a Scotiſh Biſhop. He was Preceptor to King Alfred, and at laſt preferr'd to the Archbiſhoprick of York. He wrote the four Goſpels in Letters of Gold, and died in 710, at 75 Years of Age. Bede and ſeveral other Authors give him a great Character.

WILLIAM I. the firſt Norman King of England, had the Sirname of Conqueror from his Victory over King Harold, which procur'd him at one Blow the Crown of England, Anno 1066, whoſe Claim to it was a pretended Donation from his Couſin King Edward the Confeſſor. He was the baſe Son of Robert Duke of Normandy, by Harlot, a Skinner's Daughter; preſently after he was born, he took up Ruſhes, and held them faſt in his hands: which was taken for a Preſage of his future Greatneſs. When he landed here, 'tis ſaid, that as he was ſtepping out of the Boat, he fell by a ſlip of his Foot, upon his Hand, which ſeemed an ill Omen; but a Soldier ſtanding by corrected the Omen, by ſaying, that their Duke had by that taken poſſeſſion of the Land. Being landed, he gave ſtrict Orders for his Army not to waſte and ſpoil, for that they ought (ſays he) to ſpare what was their own: But theſe Things being related of Alexander and Cæſar, 'tis like enough the Monks borrowed them to embelliſh their own Story. As to the Time and Place, with other Circumſtances of the Battel he fought with King Harold for the Crown, I refer you to the latter part of the Reign of that King. If you enquire how the Engliſh upon this ſingle Victory, came to lay down the Cudgels for good and all, and ſubmit to a foreign Power, when they had ſtrugled with the Danes about 200 Years, and that with great Effuſion of Blood, before they would ſubmit their Necks to a foreign Yoke? It muſt be confeſs'd a matter of Amazement, ſeeing the Engliſh had then with them a hopeful young Prince, the right Heir to the Crown; viz. Edgar Atheling, Son of Prince Edward, the Son of King Edmund Ironſide; a Prince who might have been powerfully aſſiſted by Malcolm King of Scots, who had married Margaret his Siſter. Beſides that, Aldred then Archbiſhop of York, and many of the Nobles, with the Londoners, would have ſet up this Prince as the right Heir, and were preparing to fight in the Defence of his Right. But Morcar and Edwin, Brothers of King Harold's Widow, not liking the Choice, becauſe each of them expected to be choſen before him, withdrew their Forces, and returned home: Thus the Deſign was prevented, and the Way ſmoothed for the Victorious Duke to come and take Poſſeſſion of the Crown. Duke William ſeeing ſuch a Calm after a moſt bloody Fight, and no Preparations for any farther Reſiſtance, marches up to London, ſome ſay in a Hoſtile, others in a Regal manner. At Barkhamſtead he was met by Prince Edgar, with the Nobles, Biſhops, Citizens, and at length Morcar and Edwin, for whoſe Ambition Edgar was now laid aſide by his Party. There they ſubmitted to the Duke, gave him Hoſtages, and ſwore Fidelity; to which he anſwered by bare Promiſes of Peace and Defence. Being come up to London with all his Army, he was on Chriſtmas-Day ſolemnly Crowned in Weſtminſter Abby by Aldred Archbiſhop of York, having firſt taken his Oath at the Altar in preſence of all the People, to defend the Church, well to govern the People, to maintain Juſtice according to Law, and to prohibit Rapine and unjuſt Judgment. Thus the Engliſh, whilſt they could not agree about the choice of their Native King, were fain to ſtoop under the Yoke of an Outlandiſh Conqueror. The Fore-runners of which Servitude, are openly and fairly laid out to this Effect by William of Malmsbury. Many Years, ſays he, before the Normans came in, and even in Edward the Confeſſor's Days, the Clergy had loſt all good Literature, and almoſt all Senſe of Religion. They were ſcarce able to read and underſtand their Latin Service. He was a Miracle to others who had skill in Grammar. The Monks went clad in fine Stuffs, and made no difference what they eat; which, though in it ſelf no Fault, yet according to their Conſciences was a piece of Irreligion. The Great Men were addicted to Gluttony and diſſolute Life, made a Prey of the Common People, abuſed their Daughters whom they had in Service, then turned them off to the Stews. The meaner ſort uſed to tipple Night and Day, ſpent all they had in Drunkenneſs, attended with ſuch other Vices as did effeminate Mens Minds. Whence it came to paſs, that being carried on with Fury and Raſhneſs more than any true Fortitude or Skill of War, they gave to William the Conqueror ſo eaſie a Conqueſt. And William on his part, whatever his Pretence was of a Will and Deſignation of Edward the Confeſſor, took upon him to Rule as Conqueror, not ſparing his Engliſh Subjects to gratifie his Followers. Biſhopricks, Monaſteries, Cities, and Corporations, he deprived of their antient Privileges, and put them to redeem the ſame at his own rate. Moſt of the antient Laws of the Land he abrogated, in lieu whereof he ſubſtituted his Norman Laws in the Norman Tongue. To which he took ſuch care to bring up Youth, that he ſet up Norman Schools every where, as if he had deſigned to rob the Nation of their very Language. To ſtrengthen himſelf againſt Inſurrections, he built the Tower of London, and ſeveral Caſtles in the Country, as at York, Durham, Nottingham, Lincoln, and Haſtings. To prevent Nightly Meetings, he commanded every Houſholder to put out Fire and Candle at 8 a Clock at Night; therefore he cauſed a Bell to be rung at that Hour, called in his Language Couvre-feu, that is Cover-fire. That the Land-Taxes might turn to good Account, he ordered an exact Survey to be taken of the whole Kingdom, what Proportion of Land every one had, and for every Hide (or 100 Acres) of Land, he exacted ſix Shillings. The Book made of it is to this day kept in the Exchequer, by the Name of Doomſday-Book. In the very Place where the Battel was fought betwixt King Harold and him, he erected an Abby, called Battel-Abby: But this piece of Devotion was more than over-ballanced by his great Impiety in deſtroying for his Pleaſure no leſs than 36 Pariſh Churches; for being a great Hunter, and finding Hampſhire a fit Place to gratifie his Inclination, he cauſed many Towns and Villages, with 36 Pariſh Churches, to be all pulled down, that he might have the more room for his Sport, which from that time was called the New-Foreſt. But two of his Sons Lives went to expiate his Crime, viz. Richard his ſecond, and William his next Succeſſor to the Crown of England; the firſt being gored by a Deer, the other accidentally ſlain by an Arrow levelled at a Deer, and both in the ſame Foreſt. Malcolm King of Scots, did Homage to him for what he held in England, and Griffith the laſt King of Wales, did Homage to him for Wales. But, as his Reign was ſevere, ſo it proved turbulent. Whilſt he was here, Normandy rebelled; when he went thither, England did the ſame. Scotland had a Fling at him, Ireland another; ſo that neither could his Subjects love him, nor his Neighbours endure him. 'Twas in his Reign that Biſhopricks were erected into Baronies; and that the Archbiſhop of York, by a Decree of the Pope, came to be ſtiled Primas Angliæ, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Primas totius Angliæ. And whereas heretofore publick Writings were only Signed, now Sealing came into uſe. At laſt King William grew very corpulent, and uneaſie with it. Being at Rouen in Normandy, he confined himſelf to a ſtrict Diet, in order to extenuate his Body: Which Philip I. King of France, hearing of (who was at ſome odds with him) rally'd upon him, and ask'd, when there would be an end of King William's Lying-in. This coming to William's Ear, he ſent him word, That at his firſt going out he would go and viſit him with Ten thouſand Lances: And he proved as good as his word; for he was no ſooner able to get up on Horſeback but he fell upon the French King's Dominions, over-run that part of the Iſle of France called Le Veuxia Francois, and burnt the Town of Mante. But he was ſo much fatigued in the Siege of that Place, that in his Return to Rouen he fell ſick, and died upon it Sept. 19. 1087; from whence his Body was removed to Caen, and buried in St. Stephen's Church, which himſelf had Founded. By Maud his Wife, Daughter of Baldwin V. Earl of Flanders, he left three Sons; Robert, ſucceeded in the Dukedom of Normandy; William and Henry, his next Succeſſors in England. From King William begins that new Account of the Kings of England, by Firſt, Second, and Third, &c.

WILLIAM II. ſirnamed Rufus, King of England, ſucceeded next to William the Conqueror, whoſe third Son he was; Richard the Second being dead, and Robert the eldeſt Son, Duke of Normandy, prevented by William as to the Crown of England. He was Crowned at Weſtminſter, Sept. 26. 1087, by Lanfrank Archbiſhop of Canterbury. But Odo Biſhop of Bayeux, and Earl of Kent, their Uncle, ſiding with Duke Robert, adviſed him to come over, and recover his Right, with Promiſes of his Aſſiſtance. Accordingly Duke Robert Landed at Southampton, but was ſoon pacified by King William's Promiſe to pay him 3000 Marks yearly, and to reſign the Kingdom to him or his Heirs at his Death. Odo, reſiding in the Caſtle of Rocheſter, was Beſieged, and the Caſtle taken, Himſelf baniſhed, and his Goods confiſcated. There was a great Conteſt between this Prince and Anſelm, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, about Pope Urban II. The King refuſing to allow the Archbiſhop to acknowledge any Pope without his leave firſt obtain'd; however, Anſelm ſtuck to his Point, and deſir'd the King's permiſſion to quit the Kingdom, but the Liberty was deny'd him: During this Controverſie, the King treated privately with Pope Urban to have Anſelm remov'd from his See; but this Archbiſhop's unexceptionable Life making that Requeſt impracticable, he was conniv'd at by the King, continued in the Government of his Province, and had the Pope's Pall ſent him, which had been one of the things diſputed between him and the King. He built Weſtminſter-Hall, and raiſed Carliſle from Ruins, which had been laid in Aſhes about 200 Years before by the Danes. Several Hoſpitals were by him founded, and the Biſhop's See of Selſey in Suſſex transferred to Chicheſter. 'Twas in his Reign that the Sea overflowed a great part of thoſe Lands in Kent which had been Earl Goodwin's, and are to this day called Goodwin's Sands. Having Reigned almoſt 14 Years, he died without Iſſue, being accidentally killed in the New Foreſt, by an Arrow levelled at a Deer by Sir Walter Tyrrel. His Body was buried in the Cathedral of Wincheſter. Speed. Eadmar Hiſt. Nov. Antiq. Brit.

Eccl. pag. 116. Spelman's Councils, Vol. 2. &c.

WILLIAM III. of England, and Second of Scotland, and Third of the Name Prince of Orange, now King of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, is Son to William II. Prince of Orange by Mary Stuart, eldeſt Daughter to Charles I. King of Great Britain, and was born on the 4th of Nov. 1650, eight days after his Father's Death, and had for his Godfathers the States of Holland and Zeland, with the Cities of Delft, Leyden, and Amſterdam. The States General, in an Aſſembly which commenced Jan. 18. 1651, concluding from his Father's Deſign on Amſterdam, what might be expected from a ſingle Governor; reſolved, that for time coming, the Choice of all Officers and Magiſtrates ſhould be in the Power of the Cities, and that all Soldiers, the Prince's Guards not excepted, ſhould take an Oath of Fidelity to the States, notwithſtanding of all the Oppoſition which the Princeſs his Mother made thereunto in favour of her Son, who in his Cradle ſuffered by the Intreagues of Barnevelt's Party, then the De Witts. He bore all with incredible Patience, till the French King's having almoſt deſtroyed that flouriſhing Republick, contributed to the Prince's being reſtored to thoſe publick Employments and Dignities; as if Heaven, ſays my Author, had deſigned to convince the World, that the Family who founded that Republick was only capable of reſtoring it. The Calamities of that time, and the Reſentments of the People, being improved againſt the De Witts by the Princeſs Dowager, Grandmother to his Highneſs, and thoſe of her Party, ſhe accompliſh'd her Deſigns with great Dexterity. The Prince, after having viſited ſome Fortifications in 1672, was unanimouſly choſen General by the States, and Feb. 24. took the Oaths, and entred on his Office. It being remarkable, that the Peaſants of Weſt-Frizeland who make excellent Soldiers, would not take Arms till they were admitted to ſwear to be true to the Republick, and to obey the States and his Highneſs the Prince of Orange; who immediately repaired to the Army at Nieu Rop, where all he could do in his preſent Circumſtances againſt the French, commanded by Lowis XIV. in Perſon, was, to keep his Poſt, which he performed with ſo much Conduct, that Lowis could find no Advantage, but was forced to retire with Loſs, and abandon his Works, when he thought to have forced the Prince out of his Trenches: But in the mean time, the Frontier Towns and Gariſons of Holland fell daily into the Hands of the French; which occaſion'd the Peoples ſuſpicion of Treachery. The Inhabitants of Dort were the firſt who took Arms, and ſent to know of their Magiſtrates, whether they reſolved to defend the City, or ſit ſtill? They anſwered, That they were ready to do all that could be expected from them. The People demanded at the ſame time to ſee the Magazines; but the Keys being miſſing, they cried out of Treachery, and that they would have the Prince of Orange to be their Head and Governor, threatning Death to the Magiſtrates if they did not comply. Hereupon the Prince was ſent for, and though he told them the danger of his leaving the Army, they would not be denied. The Magiſtrates conducted him with Solemnity to the Town-Hall, and requeſted that for the Satisfaction of the People, he would viſit their Fortifications and Stores; which he did accordingly: But the People at his return, ſuſpecting that the Magiſtrates had deceived him and them both, went boldly to his Coach, and ask'd him, but with much reſpect, Whether the Magiſtrates had made him their Governor or not? Upon his modeſt Anſwer, That he had as much as he could deſire, and was content with the Honour they had done him already, they unanimouſly declared, that they would not lay down their Arms till they had choſe him Stadtholder, which the Magiſtrates were at laſt conſtrained to accompliſh, and declared him Stadtholder, Captain and Admiral General by Sea and Land, with all the Power and Authority which his Anceſtors had enjoyed; which the Prince refus'd till they Abſolv'd him of the Oath which they oblig'd him to take when he was only made Captain General. Upon this the City rang with Joy, and the Prince's Arms were immediately fix'd on the Towers and Ramparts; Cornelius De Witt, a Burghermaſter, being the only Man who refuſed to aſſent. The Example of Dort was followed by moſt of the other Cities, which was confirmed alſo by the States-General, who Abſolv'd him from his firſt Oath, created him Stadtholder, &c. and inveſted him with all the Dignities which had been enjoyed by his Predeceſſors. From this moment the People were inſpired with new Courage, repulſed 5000 French from before Ardemburgh, killed a great number, and took 500, amongſt whom were ſeveral Officers and Perſons of Quality. And all this, to the perpetual Infamy of France, was effected by 200 Burghers, with the Aſſiſtance of the Women and Boys. Thoſe of Groningen did at the ſame time oblige the Biſhop of Munſter, who had Beſieged them with 20000 Men, to retire with the loſs of near half his Soldiers, after a prodigious Expence of Arms and Ammunition for the Undertaking. In the midſt of this Zeal which the People ſhewed every where for the Prince, it happened that a Chirurgeon accuſed Cornelius De Witt, Bailiff of Putten, for having promiſed him 300000 Franks, and given him 6 Ducatoons in hand, to kill or poiſon the Prince. Whereupon De Witt being brought to his Tryal, the Court of Holland diveſted him of all his Employments, and baniſh'd him their Territories: But the People thinking that he had deſerv'd a greater Puniſhment, took Arms and ran to the Priſon, at the ſame time that John De Witt, his Brother, came in his Coach to have taken him out; whereupon one of the Burghers dropping theſe Words, Now the Traitors are together, and it's our Fault if they 'ſcape us; the incenſed Multitude broke up the Priſon, dragg'd out the two Brothers, murthered and cut them to pieces, crying out, Behold the Traitors that have betrayed their Country. Thus fell the De Witts, ſworn Enemies to the Houſe of Orange; John being ſaid to be the Author of Excluding his Highneſs from all his Offices, &c. Miin Heer Fagel ſucceeded that Penſioner in his Place. The Elector of Brandenburg writ a Letter to the States at the ſame time, in favour of the Prince, whom he commended as inheriting all the Vertues of his glorious Predeceſſors, proteſting, that he thought himſelf obliged to aſſiſt him in recovering what his Anceſtors had purchaſed with their Blood; but ſince he heard of his Re-eſtabliſhment, he doubted not but Heaven would proſper a Reſolution ſo advantageous to the Publick. The Prince about this time chas'd the French advanc'd Guards as far as their Trenches before Utrecht, being diſheartned with the Loſs of their Men before Cronenburg. Suſpected Magiſtrates being changed in moſt of the Cities, the Prince applied himſelf to reform Military Diſcipline, puniſh'd ſeveral Officers for Cowardiſe and Treachery, laid Siege to Narden, repulſed the Duke of Luxemburgh who came to relieve it with 9000 Men, as he did alſo a ſecond time, killing 2000, with above 50 Officers; though in the mean time the Duke, by the Treachery of ſome Peaſants who conducted him by ways full of Water, threw 3000 Men into the Town, and kill'd about 700 Dutch, with Colonel Zuleſtein and a Lieutenant Colonel; but the French were ſo much diſheartned with this Action, that the Officers would always caſt Lots when they were to go out in Parties againſt the Prince of Orange, who perceiving that the City had received a conſiderable Relief, retired to his Quarters, with the honour of a complete Victory, having defeated near five entire Regiments, killed or wounded moſt of their Officers, and repulſed an old General thence. After this the Prince march'd with 24000 Horſe and Foot to the Country of Liege, and at his approach the Count De Duras retired higher with his Army towards the Roer, and avoided all Occaſions of coming to a Battel, though the Prince inveſted Tongres, took the Caſtle of Valcheron with abundance of Proviſions, and inveſted Charleroy to bring him to it; but the Weather being violently cold, the Prince could not open his Trenches, but took Bins, with 3 Captains and 300 Soldiers, pillaged and demoliſh'd the Town, and put his Army into Winter-Quarters; which was all performed in nine days time, with the loſs of very few Men. During this Expedition the Duke of Luxemburg having got together 40000 Horſe and Foot, reſolved to Conquer the Province of Holland, and enrich himſelf and his Men with the Plunder of Leyden and the Hague; for which end, he deſigned to march upon the Ice, with the Flower of the French Army; but was prevented by the Waters which were riſen high; ſo that only 3500 Foot could paſs, and the reſt were obliged to retire to Naerden. This Party was repulſed by the Peaſants at Nieucrop; but the Soldiers at Swammerdam having abandoned it, the French committed all manner of Barbarities there, as in all other Places which fell into their Hands, raviſhing the Women, ſtripping and wounding young and old, and throwing Children into the Fire. This deſperate and unexpected March of the French put the Country into a mighty Conſternation; but nothing was more vexatious to them than Colonel Painvin's abandoning his Poſt at Niewerburg, by which the Enemy had a free Paſſage to go home; whereas the States endeavoured to cut off their Retreat, and ſo they muſt either have periſhed in the Water, or ſurrender'd at Diſcretion. The Prince returning with incredible Diligence to Alfen, re-eſtabliſh'd all things as before. And ſo Luxemburg finiſhed this bold and dangerous Enterprize, having loſt 600 of his beſt Soldiers, and eſcaping narrowly with his own Life, having fallen from his Horſe into the Water; whence his People ſav'd him, but not without great difficulty. The taking of Coevoerdon, which had been left ſo ingloriouſly to the Biſhop of Munſter in 1672, made amends for the Loſſes ſuſtained by the French Army, it being one of the ſtrongeſt Cities of the Low Countries, and the Key of Frieſland and Groningen. This Garriſon, though conſiſting of 900 Men well provided, was taken by M. Rabenhaut with 960 Men in an Hours time, though Verdugo had Beſieg'd it in vain for 31 Weeks; and yet the Dutch loſt but 60 Men, whereas the Enemy loſt 150, beſides the Officers ſlain at the Aſſault, and 430 Priſoners, whereof 6 were Captains, 11 Lieutenants, and 14 Enſigns; the reſt ſaving themſelves by Flight, and leaving a prodigious Quantity of all Warlike Ammunitions behind them. The taking of this ſtrong Place did much encourage the Hollanders, and diſcourage the French, that they abandon'd ſeveral other Poſts; all which the People did aſcribe to the Conduct and Bravery of the Prince. After this he compoſed the Differences between the new and old Magiſtrates of Frieſland and Zeland, viſited the Frontier Gariſons, and at Ardenburg the Keys of the City were delivered him in a Silver Baſon by the Young Maids of the City all dreſs'd up in Flowers. The Spring being well advanced, the Hollanders were attack'd on one ſide by the French King in Perſon at the Head of a powerful Army, and the Duke of Luxemburg and Prince of Conde were at the Head of another at Utrecht, and by Sea they were vigorouſly attack'd by the Engliſh and French Fleets; ſo that the Prince could not ſtir abroad, but kept his Poſt, having an Eye to prevent the Deſcent of the Engliſh from Sea, and to obſerve the Motions of the French by Land. June 10. 1673. the French King, with 42000 Horſe and Foot, ſat down before Maſtricht, which was Gariſon'd with 4000 Foot and 8 or 900 Horſe, and under the Command of their brave Governor Farjaux, held out near three Weeks; nor had he Surrender'd then neither, though his Men were fatigued, and that he was but ill provided with Ammunition, had it not been for the repeated Inſtances of the Magiſtrates, and the Treachery of ſome Romiſh Eccleſiaſticks: However, it coſt the French King 9000 of his beſt Men, all his Musketeers except 7, and a great Number of gallant Officers; and the Prince was ſo well pleas'd with the Governor's Conduct, that he made him Major-General of his Army. The Town being taken, the French King ſent part of his Army to join Turenne, who ravaged the Country of Triers, and the reſt to reinforce his Army in Holland. The French Army being thus diſperſed, and the Engliſh Fleet after the Engagement having left the Coaſts of Holland, the Prince found himſelf more at liberty, join'd the Troops in Zealand to the reſt of the Army, and Beſieged Naerden on a ſudden with 25000 Men; and though Luxemburg advanced within ſight of his Trenches with 10000 Men and 4000 Munſter Horſe, he took the Counterſcarp by Aſſault, and forced the Town next day to Capitulate. The Governor as he paſſed by, ſaluted his Highneſs with a profound Reverence, and is ſaid to have told him, That he doubted not but to juſtifie ſuch a ſpeedy Surrender to his Maſter; however, he was degraded at Utrecht, and condemned to perpetual Impriſonment: And thus the Prince in four days time, carried the Town, tho' very well fortified, and ſufficiently provided, the Gariſon being 2930, with the loſs of 100 Men killed and 200 wounded, whereas the Enemy loſt abundance more, contrary to what happens in moſt Sieges; but the Prince's expoſing himſelf both on the Batteries and Trenches, did ſo animate the Soldiers, that nothing was too hard for them. The States having entred into a ſtricter Alliance with the Emperor and Spaniards, the Prince march'd his Army to Roſendael in Brabant, where he joined the Count de Monterey, who immediately yielded him the Pre-eminence: but finding that the Prince of Conde had entrench'd himſelf ſo as it was impoſſible to attack him, he joined the Imperial Army commanded by Montecuculi between Andernack and Bonne, taking Rhinebeck in his March by Storm, and hanging the Burgher who adviſed them to make Oppoſition. After they were joined he attack'd Bonne, a City upon the Rhine, 4 Leagues above Cologne, which had 2000 Men in Gariſon well provided, and 24 Cannon mounted on the Ramparts. The Prince of Conde ſent 5000 Horſe to oppoſe them, under Humiers, 100 of which entred the Town on pretence that they belonged to the Duke of Lorrain, another 100 attempting the like were diſcovered and cut off, which obliged 500 who had hid themſelves in a neighbouring Wood on the ſame Deſign, to retire with Precipitation; and General Spork being detach'd with 5000 Horſe againſt Humiers, obliged him to retire to Utrecht. The Beſiegers having finiſhed their Batteries, made their Approaches, and laid three Mines which were ready to ſpring. They prepared for the general Aſſault; but being willing to ſpare their own Men, and to reduce the Place by gentler Methods, they ſummon'd the Governor afreſh, deſired him to ſend ſome of his own Men to ſee what readineſs they were in, and threatned to put all to the Sword in caſe of farther Reſiſtance; which did ſo effectually frighten the Beſieged, that they ſurrender'd on the ordinary Terms, and march'd out 1500 Men, the reſt being either ſlain or wounded; and ſuch as were Germans, deſerted immediately, and liſted themſelves under the Emperor. The Prince commanded both his own and the Imperial Camp after the Duke of Montecuculi's Departure to Vienna till the Duke of Bournonville's Arrival, marched lower, and took the Caſtles of Brevel and Seebuich, the latter of which in 1642, had been Beſieged for ſix Weeks by the Duke of Weimar and Landtgrave of Heſſe's whole Army with extraordinary Vigour, but in vain. The Gariſon conſiſted of 200 French commanded by a German, who finding that they deſigned to hold it out to the laſt, commanded them down to defend the Lower Court, and then drew the Draw-Bridge upon them, which obliged them to ſurrender. Turenne, though he would fain have raiſed the Siege of Bonne, durſt not move, becauſe the Duke of Lorrain obſerved him on the Banks of the Moſelle. The mighty Multitudes of French being by this time reduced by their prodigal Effuſion of Blood, they could not keep the Field without draining their Gariſons, and abandoning their Conqueſts in the Low Countries, rather than ſuffer the Confederates to take the Towns of the Rhine, Meuſe, and Moſelle; ſo that they quitted Warden, Harderwick, the Fort of Cræveœur, Bommel, Utrecht, &c. as their Confederates the Munſterians did Elburg, Gampen, Huttem, &c. diſmantling ſome, plundering others, and exacting great Sums from all, on condition to preſerve their Fortifications, &c. ſome of which they did nevertheleſs undermine in a treacherous manner. In conſideration of this unexpected Change, which was entirely owing to the Prince's Conduct and Courage, the States in gratitude, confirm'd him Stadtholder, and entail'd that Dignity upon the Heirs of his Body lawfully begotten, by an Inſtrument dated Feb. 2. 1674. The States of Zeland did the ſame, and declar'd him chief Nobleman of their Province. This being effected, the Prince went to Utrecht, ſetled the Government there upon its ancient Foundations, and received the ſame Honour from that Province that he had done from the others. At the ſame time General Rabenhaupt, with the Militia of Frieſland and Groningen, took and Gariſon'd Nerthem, repulſing the Munſterians, who attack'd him in it, with conſiderable loſs; after which he took Nienhuys by Capitulation; and then the Biſhop of Munſter, though his Troops had retaken the Town, made Peace with the Emperor; which did ſo mightily alarm the French, that they abandoned all the Towns in Overyſſel, after extorting Money from them in the uſual manner: So that that Province was alſo ſetled on its ancient Foundations by the Prince; and the French King, to cover his Weakneſs, baniſhed the Mareſchal de Bellefond from Court, though he had Order for what he did. And thus the Prince, like another Scipio, by carrying the War into his Enemies Country, did in leſs than two Years force all the French Hanibals to quit his own. The French King endeavouring in the mean time to gain in one Place what he had loſt in another, entred Franche Comté with a prodigious Army, and joining the other under the Prince of Condé, took Beſancon, Dole, &c. Theſe Armies being joined, the Prince of Orange marched with his to Malines, and kept on his Guard in Brabant while the French King was in the Neighbourhood, and till he returned to Paris, having loſt abundance of brave Officers and Soldiers in his New Conqueſt. The Imperialiſts took Namur and the Caſtle, with Dinant, opened the Paſſage of the Meuſe, and joined the Confederates by the end of July, who being then 60000 Men, prepared to attack the Prince of Condé that was on the other ſide of Pieton with 50000 Men, and marched ſtraight towards him; but he would by no means quit his Poſt: Whereupon the Prince of Orange decamp'd from Seneff, reſolving to attack ſome important Place to bring Condé out of his Poſt. Thus the Prince marched ſtraight on the ſide of Bins; and the Prince of Condé knowing perfectly the Difficulty of the Ways through which the Confederates were to paſs, drew out of his Trenches, and when the main Body was too far advanced to return ſoon enough, he attack'd the Rear, which occaſioned a bloody Battel; and the Confederates being unhappily ſtraitned for want of room, had viſibly the Diſadvantage every where, though all their Leaders, but eſpecially the Prince of Orange, behaved themſelves with the very height of Courage and Conduct; the latter expoſing himſelf every where at the Head of his Troops, that it was a wonder how he eſcaped being kill'd or taken, as were the Duke of Holſtein, the Prince de Solms, and Monſieur Langerac, beſides a great many other Perſons of Quality taken and ſlain. The Prince de Vaudemont, Duke de Villa Hermoſa, and Count Waldeck, did Wonders in this Action; and the latter, if he had been ſeconded, had certainly defeated the French; but being over-power'd, all over bloody with Wounds, and having ſlain two of the Enemy who ſet upon him particularly, he rallied his Troops, and drew off in good Order: And the Prince of Orange to encourage the frightned Troops, rode up and down before them with his Sword in his Hand, giving all Proofs imaginable of an undaunted Courage, but could not ſtop the Troops till they met a Body of Spaniſh Horſe. The Marquis d'Aſſentar with the Spaniards, renewed the Battel; but being Wounded in ſeven Places, he fell at the Head of his Troops. The French did alſo make themſelves Maſters of the Dutch Baggage; and if the Prince of Conde's natural Impetuoſity and Ambition had not ſpurr'd him on farther, he might have carried away all the Advantages of a Victory; but having advanced with the reſt of his Army towards the main Body of the Confederates commanded by the Prince of Orange, Prince Maurice, the Rhinegrave, and Major General Vane, General Souches who led the Van, having notice of what paſs'd, had by that time joined the main Body, and the Fight was renewed more furiouſly than ever. The Duke of Luxemburg Commanded the Right of the French, and the Duke de Noails the Left; ſo that Honour, Hatred, Revenge, Hope and Deſpair, animating the Courage of both Parties, they reſolved to Conquer or Die. The Prince of Orange ſhew'd himſelf every where, ſometimes throwing himſelf into the midſt of his Enemies, to the apparent hazard of his Life; and the Soldiers, encouraged by his Example, ſtrove to out-do one another. So that the Prince of Condé being fruſtrated of his Hopes, would have wheel'd about to the Left, but was obliged to retire by the Dutch Major General Farjaux and Count de Chavagnac, who commanded a Squadron of Imperial Horſe. Count Souches, with his Forlorn Hope, broke into the Enemies ſtrongeſt Quarter, and the Prince of Lorrain, Prince Pio, the Marquis de Grana, and Count Staremberg, with Count Souch's Sons, behaved themſelves with ſo much Gallantry, that the French Suiſſers were not able to gain any ground upon them. The Prince of Conde in the mean time, charged the Confederates on the Right, but without Succeſs, being bravely repulſed by Prince Maurice and the Rhinegrave, the latter having no ſmall ſhare in the Victory. Thus the Armies fought till Night, ſometimes Battalions on the one ſide, and ſometimes Battalions of the other ſide, giving ground, and rallying again by the noble Conduct of their Commanders, amongſt whom the Prince of Orange was chief, being all along in the Heat of the Battel, encouraging his Men by his own Example, and was all the while accompanied by the young Prince of Frieſland, The Prince of Conde having loſt moſt of his Infantry, and not being able to perſuade the reſt to another Engagement, he retreated, leaving the Victory and the Field to the Prince of Orange. The French had 7000 killed on the Spot, and left above 1500 wounded in the Neighbouring Villages; the loſs of the Confederates, including the Wounded, Priſoners and Deſerters, were not above 6500. The Prince of Conde was ſo broken, that he durſt not venture a ſecond Battel. An infinite Number of Officers of Note were ſlain, amongſt whom were 4 Marqueſſes, 3 Counts, and 447 others, without including Subalterns. Among ſeveral other Standards taken by the Confederates, there was one white one, carried to Bruſſels, and hung up in the Carmelite Church, being embroidered with Gold and Silver, and bearing a Sun in the Zodiack, with theſe proud Words, Nihil obſtabit eunti. The Day after this Battel of Seneff the Prince of Orange put his Army into Quarters; and in the mean time General Rabenchaupt Beſieg'd Grave, which beſides its ſtrong Situation had a Gariſon of 4000 Foot, and 9 Troops of Horſe, with 450 Cannon, 100 of 'em mounted on the Ramparts, beſides a vaſt quantity of Ammunition and Proviſion, which they had brought thither from all the Places which they had abandoned. The Siege was puſh'd on with great Vigour, and the Town defended with as great Gallantry. The Prince of Orange in the mean time attack'd Oudenard, and carried the Counterſcarp when the Prince of Conde advanced with 40000 Men to raiſe the Siege. The Prince of Orange was of opinion, to march and give him Battel while fatigued with his March, but was prevented by General Souches being out of the Way, and obliged to raiſe the Siege by the ſaid General's quitting his Poſt; ſo that he drew off, left the Command of the Army to Count Waldeck, and came to the Siege of Grave, where his Preſence was ſo neceſſary, and receiv'd it on honorable Conditions, Oct. 25th 1674. The Year 1675 began with the Addreſſes of the Burghers, thanking his Highneſs for delivering them from under the Tyranny of a Foreign Enemy; in conſideration whereof, they offer'd him the Sovereignty of the Dutchy of Gueldres and Earldom of Zutphen: But to convince the World of the Sincerity of his Intention, and that he did not aim at his own Granduer by this War, he refuſed it, contenting himſelf with being Hereditary Governor of this Province. The French King having given out that he would open the next Campaign in Perſon, the Prince made all neceſſary Preparations to oppoſe him, and aſſiſted at all Conferences about Military Affairs; he went to Cleve to confer with the Elector of Brandenburg, who treated him with extraordinary Magnificence: At his Return he fell ill of the Small-Pox, which mightily alarm'd the States and all the Confederates, becauſe that Diſtemper had been fatal to his Family; but by the care of an able Phyſician, and the help of ſome Remedies ſent by the Elector of Brandenburg, he recover'd. After which he went to the General Rendezvouz, and march'd to relieve Limburg; but the French King covering the Siege, it could not be effected: However, he prevented his becoming Maſter of Louvain. So that he returned to Paris, leaving the Prince of Conde to command the Army, till Turenne's Death obliged him to go to Alſace: And then the Duke of Luxemburg ſucceeded, whom the Prince did hinder to ravage Triers, and took Bins before his Face with 350 Men in Gariſon, and abundance of Proviſions, the Duke not daring to offer him Battel; after which the Prince demoliſh'd it, put his Army into Winter-Quarters, and returned to the Hague. The Calamities of War having rendred Europe miſerable, ſeveral Princes being moved with Compaſſion, endeavoured a Peace; but this Deſign advanced ſlowly, till King Charles II. of Great Britain made Peace with Holland, and offer'd his Mediation for one amongſt all Chriſtian Princes: So that in the Beginning of 1672, the Plenipotentiaries met at Nimeguen, for a Treaty. However, both Parties continued their Preparations for War; and before Mid-April the French put part of the Spaniſh Netherlands under Contribution, and had taken Conde before the Prince could come up to its Relief, though he had advanced as far as Granville, as they did alſo Boucham a little time after; but the Prince put a ſtop to their Ravaging of the Country, and had certainly attack'd them if the Town had held out one day longer. In the beginning of June the Prince ſat down before Maeſtricht; and Humiers to divert him, Beſieg'd Air, a Place of very great Strength, with 15000 Men, and carried it, the Burghers having offered to Capitulate without the Governor's Privity. The Prince continued the Siege of Maeſtricht, and the Engliſh under the Colonels Fenwick, Widdringdon, and Aſhly, having petition'd for a particular Poſt, ſignaliz'd themſelves by their extraordinary Valour: But the River being low, that the Cannon could not come up in time, the Lunenburgers and Munſterians not coming to his Aſſiſtance, and Scomberg being advanc'd as far as Tongres to its Relief, the Prince drew off by the Advice of a Council of War, and at his Return gave the States an account of the Campaign; with which they were ſo well ſatisfied, that they congratulated his happy Return, and thank'd him for the extraordinary Pains and Fatigues which he had undergone for their Safety. The Preliminaries for the Treaty of Nimeguen not being agreed upon that Winter, the French in the depth of it, being the beginning of 1677, had in a manner block'd up Valenciennes, Cambray, and St. Omers, and Beſieging the firſt with near 60000 Men, under the Duke of Luxemburg and the Count de Montal, they carried it, the Gariſon being 2000 Foot and 1000 Horſe. A little after, the French King carried Cambray, which had 1400 Horſe, and 4 Regiments and 2 Companies of Foot in it; but the Governor taking Advantage of the Ceſſation of Arms, had provided the Caſtle, which held out ſtill. This Succeſs of the French King's alarmed the States ſo, that the Prince of Orange took the Field before the reſt of the Confederates could join him, and march'd againſt the Duke of Orleans, who then Beſieged St. Omers; but being deceived by his Guides as to the Ground, he was at a Diſadvantage: However, after a gallant Fight, wherein the French were ſufficiently galled, he retired in good Order; Prince Waldeck who commanded the Right Wing, having galled the French ſo, that they did not care to purſue him: And this was the Iſſue of the Battel of Mont Caſſel; after which the Caſtle of Cambray and Town of St. Omers were both Surrendred to the French, having loſt abundance of their beſt Officers before the latter. They acted Defenſively all the reſt of the Summer, and declined Battel, though it was offered unto them very often. The Confederates were alſo unſucceſsful in the Siege of Charleroy, and the Prince thinking fit to raiſe it, return'd to the Hague, and ſatisfied the States as to the Procedure of the Campaign; for which they thank'd him, and deſired he would continue his Zeal for their Intereſt. A little after his Return, his Uncle King Charles II. deſired his Preſence in England, as that which would contribute to the Peace, (yet Sir William Temple in his Memoirs ſays, that he was apprehenſive of his Arrival:) And having taken leave of the States on the 17th of October, he ſet out for England in one of his Majeſty's Yachts; and Landing at Harwich on the 19th, the Duke of Albemarle, and the Maſter of the Ceremonies attended him to the King and Duke of York at Ipſwich, who receiv'd him with all the Teſtimonies of a particular Kindneſs and Affection, and on the 23d he came with them to White-Hall, and on the 1ſt of November King Charles acquainted the Council that he deſigned to Marry the Prince of Orange to the Duke of York's eldeſt Daughter; whereupon both of them were Complemented by the Council and Nobility. The Prince acquainted the States with it, who were highly ſatisfied, and immediately gave their Conſent, which they teſtified by a publick Edict in Terms full of Joy. Their Anſwer arriving at London, Nov. 4. 1677, his Highneſs's Birth-day; the Marriage was Celebrated at 11 a Clock that Night; at which, the People gave all publick Demonſtrations of Joy next Day. But the Prince knowing how neceſſary his Preſence was in Holland, left London on the 29th, and arriving with his Princeſs at Terhyde, was received at the Hague with extraordinary Magnificence. In the beginning of 1678, the French King's Preparations for War alarm'd all the Confederates; whereupon the King of Great Britain ſent the Earl of Feverſham with Propoſals of Peace, which he would not hearken to: Whereupon King Charles II. ordered his Embaſſador at Nimeguen to make a ſtrict Alliance with the States, ſent the Lord Mountague into France to preſs that King to accept his Terms, and gave Commiſſions for Raiſing an Army. The French King continued obſtinate; upon which King Charles recall'd his Troops in the French Service, who beſides other ill Treatment, were ſent home without their Pay. He held firm to his Reſolution, called a Parliament, and demanded Money for carrying on the War, proteſting, That he was reſolved to bring the French King to a Peace: And accordingly Money was granted for the Fleet and Army. In the mean time the French King ſate down before Ghent, which had not above 500 in Gariſon, with above 80000 Men, and carried it by Surrender, after 9 Days: Then he attack'd Ipres, but drew off again with a conſiderable loſs of Officers, put his Army into Gariſon, and returned to Paris. Much about the time when the Duke of Monmouth arrived at Bruges with 3000 Horſe and Foot to reinforce the Prince of Orange, the Parliament of England petition'd for an open War againſt France, and gave the King a Poll to carry it on: And as he was about entring a League with the Empire, Spain, and the United Provinces, the French King ſent a Project of Peace to his Embaſſador at Nimeguen, which was debated a long time; the Dutch and Engliſh conſented to it, and the Spaniards by the neceſſity of their Affairs, were obliged to do the like: But the French King having deceitfully come on with new Propoſals, the Dutch complained of it, and in the Prince of Orange's Preſence, reſolv'd to continue the War, and entred into a League with the King of Great Britain, who ſending part of his Army over into Flanders, and giving the French King a ſhort time either to Sign the Treaty or Declare his farther Pretenſions, that Prince conſented to the former, and the Treaty was Signed on Aug. 11. at Midnight: But the French King's Delay, and refining on his Politicks, had well-nigh coſt him the loſs of his Army under the Duke of Luxemburg, who had reduc'd Mons to the laſt Extremity by marching near it with his Army to prevent its having any Relief: Whereupon the Prince of Orange having march'd with his Army in the beginning of Auguſt, purſued Luxemburg, oblig'd him to riſe from Dinner, and retire in ſome Diſorder, though he had reckon'd himſelf very ſecure, becauſe his Camp was in a manner inacceſſible. But the Prince, and Duke of Monmouth who fought all day by his ſide, ſurmounting all Difficulties, and the Generals Collier and Delvick mounting the horrible Precipices with invincible Courage, routed the Enemy on the ſide of the Cloiſter; and Count Horn approaching with the Cannon, made a terrible Slaughter amongſt the French Battalions in the Valley. Thence the Prince advanced to Caſtvan, and forced the Enemy to quit the Place; his own Regiment of Foot-Guards led the Van, and were ſeconded by the Engliſh and the Duke of Holſtein's Regiment: They continued in Action with the French about five Hours, and purſued them a quarter of a League through Fields and Precipices; ſo as it is hardly to be credited that Men could make ſuch brave Efforts in Places ſo extremely diſadvantageous, there being few in the World which are naturally more ſtrong. The Earl of Oſſory with the Engliſh, did Wonders in this Action. But the Prince of Orange, in the heat of Battel, advanced ſo far, that he was in great danger of being loſt, had not Monſieur Overkirk killed an adventrous Captain juſt as he was about to let fly a Piſtol at him. The Unevenneſs of the Ground rendred the Cavalry uſeleſs, ſo that the whole lay upon the Foot and Dragoons. Night put an end to the Battel, and Luxemburg retired towards Mons without Noiſe, leaving the Field, with the greateſt part of the Wounded, and a vaſt Quantity of Ammunition, Tents, and Baggage. On the News of this Victory the States ſent to Congratulate the Prince; and to teſtifie how much they valued his Preſervation, they preſented Monſieur Overkirk, who had ſo generouſly reſcued him with a Sword, whoſe Handle was of Maſſy Gold, a pair of Piſtols ſet with Gold, and a whole Horſe Furniture of the ſame Metal. The Prince had doubtleſly reliev'd Mons, but word was brought him, as conſulting it, that the Peace was concluded betwixt the French and the States. This Victory haſtened the Treaty betwixt France and Spain, which was concluded on the 17th of September. After this the Prince had ſome liberty to breath, and the People to enjoy the Peace, which he had hewn out by his Sword. But Matters were not ſo entirely adjuſted betwixt France and Spain; the former's demanding whole Provinces under the Name of Dependencies, was like to have renew'd the War; but by the unwearied Mediation of the States, a Treaty was Signed at the Hague, June 29. 1684, and a twenty Year's Truce agreed betwixt the Emperor, France, and Spain. In the midſt of all theſe Negotiations, when every one minded his own particular Intereſts, the Prince preferred the Welfare of the Country to his, though he might juſtly have expected Reparation for the great Loſſes he ſuſtain'd in his own Demains in Brabant, and the Sale of his Lands, Furniture, and Goods in Franche Compte, by the Prince of Iſenguyn, who being ſupported by the Authority of France, expoſed them by Sound of Trumpet; and though the Provinces of Guelderland, Zealand, and Utrecht, made great Complaints in his Highneſs's Name, yet they obtained no Satisfaction: Nor did he ſuffer leſs Injuſtice in the Principality of Orange, where the French diſmantled his Capital City, disfranchiz'd the Univerſity, plunder'd the Inhabitants, all contrary to the Faith of the Treaty; which being repreſented by the States, the French anſwered, That they had good Reaſons for what they did. The Truce being confirmed, the States were of Opinion that they might Disband their ſupernumerary Forces, but were ſoon perſuaded to the contrary by his Highneſs, to keep their Troops on foot as long as the Neceſſity of their Affairs requir'd it. So that from the concluſion of the Peace till 1688, we have nothing remarkable in the Prince's Hiſtory. But many of the Nobility and Gentry of England, having in the beginning of that Year importun'd his Highneſs to come and reſcue their Liberties and Religion from the utter Ruin which threatned them by the Arbitrary Proceedings of King James II. as appears by the States Manifeſto; the Prince reſolved to go over and oppoſe thoſe Deſigns; and accordingly, he publiſhed his Declaration of the Reaſons inducing him to the Expedition, viz. for preſerving the Proteſtant Religion, and reſtoring the Laws and Liberties of England, Scotland and Ireland, publiſh'd at the Hague, Oct. 10. 1688. And an Additional Declaration to the ſame purpoſe, was publiſh'd there on the 20th of the ſame Month. King James, who would not believe hitherto, that the Preparations in Holland concern'd him, though the French King had given him notice of it on the 26th of Auguſt before, was now fully convinc'd, providing to reſiſt him both by Sea and Land; and to pleaſe his Subjects, diſſolved his Commiſſion for Eccleſiaſtical Cauſes, reſetled the Fellows which he had expelled from the Colleges in Oxford and Cambrige, and reſtored all the Charters of Corporations which had been ſeiſed in his Own and his Brother's Reign. He ſent for all the Forces which could be ſpared from Scotland and Ireland, equipp'd out 43 Men of War and 10 Fire-ſhips under the Earl of Dartmouth, and prepared an Army of 30000 Men. Skelton, who had been his Envoy in Holland, was impriſon'd for conſenting to the publiſhing of the French Memorial there, which diſcovered the ſtrict Alliance betwixt King James and Lewis XIV. And his Majeſty of Great Britain did declare, that he would ſtand by the Treaty of Nimeguen, and furniſh his Quota of Men to oblige the French King to do the like: But thoſe Compliances were all too late, and the viſible Effects of Conſtraint, and conſequently had no effect. The Biſhops being ſent for, gave the King their Advice in ſeveral Things, and particularly, that they might be admitted to uſe Arguments with him for his returning to the Church of England: To which he gave only general Anſwers. However, they publiſh'd a Form of Prayers during their Apprehenſions of an Invaſion, on the 11th of October, 1688. The Prince in the mean time, put to Sea on the 19th of October, accompanied by many of the Engliſh and Scotch Nobility, with 65 Men of War and 10 Fire-ſhips, beſides a multitude of Tranſport-ſhips, Vice-Admiral Herbert leading the Van; but they were put back again with conſiderable loſs: On News of which, King James demurr'd as to the Reſtitution of ſome of the Maſters of the Colleges. The Prince would not ſuffer his Men to Land, having about 15400 and odd aboard, beſides Volunteers. He ſail'd again on the 1ſt of November, and on the 5th, being the Day of England's Deliverance from the Powder Plot, and the next after that of his Highneſs's Birth, he Landed his Army at Torbay, where many People flock'd to him from all parts, with Proviſions in abundance, though King James had diſcharged the ſame by ſtrict Proclamations. The Prince hereupon advancing to Exeter, publiſh'd his Declarations above-mentioned. The Biſhop of Exeter did hereupon leave the City, for which King James preferred him to the Archbiſhoprick of York. He ordered his Army to march Weſtward, promiſing ſpeedily to follow; in the mean time having ordered ſeveral Perſons who were ſaid to be privy to the Birth of the Prince of Wales, to make their Affidavits thereupon, which were Regiſtred in Chancery, but gave little Satisfaction to the People. Several of the Nobility join'd the Prince daily; and the Lord Lovelace, as going to him with 70 Horſe, was after a ſtout Reſiſtance taken at Cirenceſter, but reſcued afterwards. A little while after the Lord Delamere declar'd for the Prince in Cheſhire, as did the Earls of Devonſhire, Danby, and others in Yorkſhire. The Lord Cornbury carried off three Regiments from the King's Camp at Salisbury, to the Prince; and not long after the King was alſo deſerted by Prince George, the Duke of Grafton, Duke of Ormond, Earl of Drumlanrick, Lord Churchill, and others, who went over to the Prince at Sherburn. The Princeſs Ann and the Biſhop of London did much about the ſame time, retire from Court to thoſe who were in Arms againſt the King in the North, and then advanc'd as far as Nottingham. All theſe Misfortunes coming upon King James together, his Noſe fell a bleeding; and being alarmed that the Prince was advancing upon him at Salisbury, he left that place and his Army in Diſorder, and on the 26th of November return'd to London, the Prince of Wales being ſhipp'd off for France beforehand. What befell King James afterward, and how his Crown came to be devolv'd upon the Prince, it's needleſs to repeat here. See King James. The Prince being ſetled on the Throne, did in the firſt place, aboliſh the Chimney-Tax, which was grievous to the People; for which, the Parliament were ſo grateful, that they Voted him 1200000 l. per An. for maintaining the Houſhold and Government, and promis'd to ſpare no Charge to carry on the War: And Their Majeſties were ſolemnly Crowned at Weſtminſter April 21. having beforehand order'd part of the Fleet to Cruiſe on the Iriſh Coaſts, to prevent the Arrival of Succours from France to the Earl of Tirconnel, who held out for the late King. The firſt who commenced Hoſtilities againſt King William in Great Britain, was the Duke of Gordon, who held out the Caſtle of Edenburg againſt him: And not long after a part of the Earl of Dumbarton's Regiment revolted in England, but were quickly obliged to ſubmit. About this time the late King James arrived in Ireland, where he quickly had an Army of 30000 Men, with which he over-run the Kingdom, there being no Reſiſtance made to him but in the North, which is moſtly inhabited by Scots; and they who aſſembled againſt him being neither well arm'd, nor diſciplin'd, nor unanimous amongſt themſelves, were quickly diſperſed. The Viſcount of Dundee, though he had kiſſed King William's Hand, had a favourable Reception, and ſate in the Convention of Scotland which was called by the Prince of Orange, did deſert the ſame when he ſaw his violent Deſigns againſt the ſaid Convention diſappointed, and broke out in Rebellion. In April 1689, the Iriſh Proteſtants were forced to quit Colrain and Kilmore, and retire to Londonderry, before which the late King ſate down on the 29th of the ſame Month; the Beſiegers having killed many of his Men in their Sallies, and Colonel Murray having killed the French General Mamont. See Londonderry. In June following, a Plot in favour of the late King, was diſcovered in England, and the Lords Preſton and Griffith, and Colonel Legg taken up upon it. On the 13th the Duke of Gordon Surrendred the Caſtle of Edenburgh. A Conſpiracy was diſcovered in Scotland, and the Supremacy and Epiſcopacy were aboliſh'd by the Parliament there, much about the ſame time: And then alſo the Inneskilling Men began to ſignalize themſelves in Ireland againſt the late King. July the 6th was the Battel betwixt General Mackay and the Viſcount of Dundee, in Scotland; the Rebels being more numerous, the Fight was ſharp; and though part of the King's Forces fled, being betray'd by the Athol Men, yet the Remainder of them were laſt in the Field, and Dundee, the General of the Rebels, was kill'd. Another Body of them was defeated at St. Johnſton: And they had a third Defeat at Dunkell by the Earl of Angus's Regiment, tho' they were four to one; 300 of the Rebels were killed, and not above 30 of the King's Men, but amongſt them was the gallant Lieutenant Colonel Cleland and Major Henderſon. Aug. 19. Londonderry was Reliev'd, and the late King's Army drew ſhamefully off, burning the Country as they went. The Inneskilling Men a little after, defeated the Duke of Berwick, the late King's Natural Son, at Ralfmulling, Colonel Hamilton at Liſnack; and being commanded by Colonel Woolſley, defeated a great Body of the Rebels near Necolin-Butler, killing 2000, taking their Cannon with 300 Priſoners, amongſt whom was Lieutenant General Mackarty, and 50 Officers. The 22d Mareſchal Schomberg landed near Bangor in the County of Down, with Forces from England, without any Oppoſition, was join'd by the Country, and Knockfergus Surrendred a few Days after. In this Month the Engliſh Biſhops who refuſed to take the Oaths of Allegiance to Their Majeſties, were deprived. In a little time after, Duke Schomberg forced the Iriſh from Newry-Paſs, though the late King James lay within a few Miles with 30000 Men. One Du Pleſſis, a French Captain, with other French Papiſts, intended to have betray'd Duke Schomberg's Army, but were prevented, and thereupon expelled the Army. In October, the Inneskilling Men under Colonel Lloyd, though not 1000, defeated 5000 of the Rebels at Boyhen, killing and wounding about 800, among whom were 3 Colonels and 15 Captains, and took 3 Colonels with 200 Priſoners, not loſing above 30 themſelves. About this time new Conſpiracies were diſcovered in England againſt King William, and abundance of Letters intercepted from the Lord Griffin and others, directed to the late King, whoſe Forces in Ireland, commanded by Sarsfield, made themſelves Maſters of Sligo, but not without great loſs. The Iriſh made an Attempt after this upon Newry, but were repulſed. A Plot was about this time diſcovered, to have ſet Glaſcow in Scotland on Fire, and a Correſpondence betwixt the Highland Rebels and ſome in Edinburg found out. The Parliament of England did not long after annul all the Proceedings of the pretended Parliament of Ireland held by King James. In the beginning of 1690, many of the Scotch Epiſcopal Clergy, of whom Paterſon late Archbiſhop of Glaſcow was the Ringleader, pray'd publickly for the late King James, having always refuſed to pray for Their preſent Majeſties; and the Rebels of that Country attack'd Innerneſs, but were beat off with great loſs, and the Earl of Seaforth's Uncle, one of the chief of them, taken: But being reinforced from the late King, and ſome of the ſeditious Preachers abovementioned, they ſtill kept up the Rebellion. The Inneskilling Men in Feb. 1690, made themſelves Maſters of Belturbet. The Parliament of England meeting on the 30th of March, the King acquainted them with his Deſign of going for Ireland, the neceſſity of Money for carrying on the War, and recommended to them an Act of Oblivion, and an Union with Scotland: Upon which, Money was readily granted. The Biſhop of Oxford took the Oaths and his Place in this Parliament; but the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, with the Biſhops of Bath and Wells, Peterborough, Gloceſter, and Norwich, ſtill refus'd In March following, Colonel Woolſley, with 700 Foot and 300 Horſe and Dragoons, defeated 4000 Iriſh under the Duke of Berwick at Cavan, killing 500, and taking 200; the Duke of Berwick being alſo wounded. The Inneskilling Men thought they had got a great Treaſure among the Booty, but it proved only to be of King James's Braſs Money. That ſame Month another Conſpiracy was diſcovered in Scotland, wherein the Counteſs of Errol, the Biſhops, &c. were found concerned. The Parliament of England in the Seſſion above-mentioned, granted the King a Million and 200000 l. Sterling for his Iriſh Expedition, declar'd all thoſe who ſerv'd the late King James in Ireland, guilty of High Treaſon, and recogniz'd King William and Queen Mary's Title. On the 15th of April the Parliament of Scotland met, and about that time the Highlanders made barbarous Ravages as far as Innerneſs, murthering the People where they went. May 13. Charlemont in Ireland ſurrendred to Duke Schomberg, who found 17 Braſs Cannon and 2 Mortars in the place: And Colonel Woolſley took the Caſtle of Balingarvy much about the ſame time: And not long after, Sir Thomas Levingſton defeated 1500 of the Scotch Rebels, who were come down as far as Strathſpey in the County of Murray, killing betwixt 4 and 500, and taking 100; amongſt whom were 4 Captains, 3 Lieutenants, and 2 Enſigns: He took the Caſtle of Lethindey at the ſame time. The Parliament of Scotland did in this Month reſtore the Presbyterian Miniſters who had been caſt out in 1661. And Their Majeſties Forces were alſo Succeſsful in the Foreign Plantations, having Landed in the Iſlands of St. Martin, and Mary Gallant, belonging to the French, ruin'd their Plantations, took a Fort in the latter, nail'd their Cannon, and return'd with great Booty, having ſent five hundred Priſoners to St. Chriſtophers. On the 24th of June, King William Landed at Carickfergus in Ireland, where he was receiv'd with great Acclamations; and on the 29th he march'd with his Army to the Plains of Dundalk, General Douglas leading the Van. In the mean time a dangerous Conſpiracy, wherein divers of Quality were ſaid to be concerned, was diſcovered in England, and the French Fleet was upon the Coaſts to have favoured the Deſigns of the Conſpirators; whence happened that unhappy Sea-Fight on the 10 of July 1691, by the Engliſh and Dutch, under Arthur Earl of Torrington, againſt the French, Commanded by Tourville; but at the time of Battel there were none but 22 Dutch Ships, and a very few Engliſh, that engaged 82 of the French: The Dutch, and thoſe Engliſh who engaged, did all that Men could do, and fought with extraordinary Gallantry; but Torrington never coming up with the reſt, they were forced to retire with great loſs, being very much diſabled; the Dutch having loſt Admiral Frakel and 2 Captains, with a Great Ship called the Frieſland: But the States ordered 14 new Men of War to be rigg'd out in 15 Days. See Herbert Earl of Torrington. To return to King William: On the 7th of July he Encamp'd at Dundalk, which the Enemy had quitted. On the 9th he march'd to Ardee, and on the 10th arrived on the Banks of the Boyne; the late King's Army being Encamp'd on the other ſide, to defend the Paſs. While his Majeſty King William was viewing the Fords of the River and the Enemies Army, he received a Wound upon the Shoulder with a Cannon Bullet of 6 pound, which did only raze the Skin ſlightly: His Majeſty being nothing daunted, mounted again as ſoon as his Wound was dreſs'd, and continued in Action four hours after, before he retired to his Tent. Next Morning Count Mainard Schomberg paſſed the River three Miles higher, in view of eight Squadrons of the Enemy, who diſputed the Paſs, but were beat from it. The Count having drawn up his Men, ſent notice to the King, who thereupon ſwam his Horſe and march'd his Foot up to the Arm-pits through the River, where the Enemies ſtood to receive them on the other ſide, firing and puſhing with their Pikes; but the King's Troops fired ſo briskly upon them from the Water, that they forc'd them to retire, leaving one of their Colours behind. His Majeſty and the Prince of Denmark paſſed the River, and he appeared at the Head of his Troops in the heat of the Action, while King James ſtood aloof, deploring the ill condition of his Affairs. The Danes, with Hanmore and Melionere's Brigades, paſſed on the Right, being attack'd by the Enemies Cavalry and Dragoons; and 30 of the late King's Guards being advanced too far into the River, were cut off: Here Duke Schomberg received two Cuts in his Head with a Sword, but did notwithſtanding, drive the Enemy beyond one of the Villages on the other ſide the River, where the Cavalry commanded by Lauzune were poſted, and fir'd briskly, and there the Duke was killed by a Piſtol Shot. The Dutch Guards, who ſuffered moſt in paſſing the River, loſt only one Captain and ſome inferiour Officers, and had ſome few wounded: A French Colonel, with two Captains, and a Brandenburg Captain, did alſo loſe their Lives. The whole Army being paſt the River, the King march'd up with his Horſe and 17 Battalions to ſuccour his Forces which were engaged, whereupon the Iriſh retired in Confuſion; and then Lauzune, with the French and Swiſs, retired in good order. In the heat of the Fight a Cannon Bullet carried away a piece of the King's Boot, and broke the Leg of a Horſe next to him. Fifteen hundred of the Enemy fell in this Battel, beſides a great many taken Priſoners, amongſt whom was Lieutenant General Hamilton, and ſeveral others of Note. The Foot purſued about four Miles, and the Cavalry till Night; and Drogheda ſurrendred on Summons next Day. The late King poſted to Dublin, and from thence to Waterford, cauſing the Bridges to be broken down after him; and there Shipp'd for France. Hereupon the Proteſtants ſeized the City and Caſtle of Dublin, and ſent King William Notice, who immediately diſpatched the Duke of Ormond thither, and on the 15th entred the City himſelf, being every where received with loud Acclamations. In two Days after he publiſh'd an Act of Oblivion to all that had ſubmitted or ſhould ſubmit by the 11th of Auguſt; which Clemency had a very good Effect. King William having after this reduced Waterford and Duncannon, march'd to Limerick, where the Enemies had their greateſt Strength. They had entrench'd themſelves about a Mile from the Town, on the other ſide of the River, but quickly retir'd on King William's Approach. The Trenches were opened before it on the 21ſt of September; but the Convoy, with the Great Guns, being ſurprized by Sarsfield and ſome Iriſh, it retarded the Siege, though they were purſued and defeated before they could do any thing elſe than burn ſome of the Carriages, and nail two of their Guns. His Majeſty in the mean time carried the Fort of Connel near Limerick, on Diſcretion: But the Seaſon being far advanced and rainy, and the Gariſon ſtrong, His Majeſty thought fit to raiſe the Siege. But ſome Forces being ſent from England under the Earl of Marlborough, landed in the River of Cork, did quickly reduce the City with incredible Valour, Oct. 8. 1690. The Duke of Grafton being a Volunteer in this Expedition, received a mortal Wound, whereof he died: However, the Gariſon were all made Priſoners of War, amongſt whom was the Earl of Tirone. On the 12th the Earl of Marlborough ſet down before Kinſale, and quickly took the Old Fort; moſt of the Gariſon which conſiſted of about 400 Men, being kill'd, and the New Fort ſurrendred upon Conditions. The Parliament of England did at the ſame time Addreſs both Their Majeſties in a very thankful manner for what they had done for the good and welfare of the Nation, had rais'd 1800000 l. for the Fleet, and 2294560 l. for the Army. Much about the ſame time arrived the Count de la Tour, Envoy from the Duke of Savoy, who addreſs'd Their Majeſties with very elegant Speeches. The Government began now to be ſetled in Ireland, and a Deſign of the Papiſts was diſcovered to have burnt the City of Dublin, while Colonel Sarsfield was to ſurprize it with part of the Iriſh Army; but 300 being Impriſon'd, the Deſign was prevented, and General Ginkle march'd againſt the Enemy. On the 19th of December, Torrington's Trial came on, as to his Management of the Fleet, and he was Acquitted; but next Day the King ſent for his Commiſſion, denied him the Honour of Kiſſing his Hand, and turned out ſome of thoſe concerned in his Trial. A little after the Parliament granted the King

670000 l. to build 30 New Men of War. In the mean time a Conſpiracy was diſcovered in Scotland, to be managed by Nevil Pain and another in England; upon which, the Lord Preſton was taken as going to France, and Letters were ſeiſed from the Biſhop of Ely to King James, though he had been one of thoſe Impriſoned for Petitioning that King againſt the Declaration for Liberty of Conſcience. On the 14th day of January following, the Earl of Tyrconnel landed in Ireland, with Money and Cloaths for the Iriſh. Colonel Brewer having about four Days before beat 3000 Iriſh out of their Entrenchments within a Mile of Lamburgh, though much inferiour in Number, killd 300 of them, and poſſeſſed himſelf of the Town. That ſame Month the Lord Preſton and Mr. Aſhton were condemned after Trial, and the latter Executed Jan. 28. but the former Repriev'd on Promiſe of a Diſcovery. About this time General Ginkle obtained a ſmall Victory over the Iriſh. On the 30th of January, His Majeſty after a dangerous Voyage came in ſight of the Coaſt of Holland, and putting himſelf into a Shallop, made toward the Shore, notwithſtanding the inexpreſſible Danger from Shoals of Ice; His Majeſty was thus expoſed for ten Hours to the coldneſs of the Air and the injury of the Waves, which ſometimes entred the Shallop; but was nothing daunted, though all the Company and the Seamen themſelves were at their Wits end, it being in the Night-time and during a great Fog. However, he arrived happily in an Iſland by the Morning; and having refreſh'd himſelf in a poor Cottage, put to Sea again in his Shallop, to which two Fiſhermen carried him through the Ice; and landing at Orange Polder, did afterwards arrive at the Hague, where his Entrance was nobly ſolemnized with Triumphal Arches (containing the moſt memorable Actions of his Life,) the ſtatelieſt and moſt magnificent that have perhaps been in Europe ſince the time of the Roman Cæſars. His Majeſty was every where received with the Acclamations of the People, and honoured with the company of the Electors of Bavaria and Brandenburg, with ſeveral other Sovereign Princes and Embaſſadors, who came thither to confer with him about carrying on the War; whence this Interview was called the Congreſs. His Majeſty going from the Hague to the Loo, had Advice there of the French's ſitting down before Mons with 60000 Men. King William did all that was poſſible to aſſemble an Army for its Relief; but all things being unprovided on the Confederates ſide, the Gariſon not being ſtrong enough, nor ſufficiently provided, and the Governor the Prince de Berg, being forc'd to ſurrender by the mutinous Eccleſiaſticks and Citizens, he Capitulated on the uſual Terms, Apr. 8. and carried ſix Pieces of Cannon with him, after having made a gallant Defence, which reduc'd his Gariſon of 7000 to 4500; ſo that the French were ſurpriſed, conſidering the Party which they had made in the Town, that it ſhould have held out ſo long. King William finding his Preſence no farther neceſſary in Flanders at that time, went for London, where he arrived Apr. 24. And having born a long time with the Obſtinacy of the Non-jurant Biſhops, did at laſt fill up their Sees with other Perſons; and having ſetled Affairs, ſet out again for Holland on May the 11th, and on the 13th arriv'd at the Hague, as he did on the 12th of June at the Army, two Miles above Bruſſels. And in the mean time his Forces under General Ginkle carried Ballimore in Ireland by Surrender, the Gariſon conſiſting of 830 Diſciplin'd Men, and 259 Rapparees. Then the Army marched for Athlone; and having oblig'd the Iriſh to retire from Lainsborough Bridge, and beat them from ſome Out-Works before the Town, they cloſely Beſieg'd it, made themſelves Maſters of the lower part of the Town firſt, and after ſeveral Attacks the King's Forces waded the River to their Armpits (while the Iriſh fired upon them) beat them out of their Entrenchments, and in leſs than an Hour, became Maſters of the Town, putting all to the Sword who reſiſted; ſo that about 1000 were killed, and 300 taken. The Generals Mackay and Talmaſh ſignaliz'd themſelves in this Action, being carried over the River on their Soldiers Shoulders, and expos'd to the Enemies Fire. General Ginkle having given Orders to Fortifie the Town, advanc'd towards the Enemies Army, who were poſted very Advantageouſly near Aghrim, having two Bogs before them, and Entrenchments on the Right and Left. Monſieur St. Ruth, the French General who Commanded them, encourag'd them all that he could; but notwithſtanding of this, and that they were more numerous than the King's Forces, and fought behind their Entrenchments with more Courage and Conduct than they had done during the War, they were totally Routed, St. Ruth their General kill'd, with 7000 Men on the ſpot, and 500 taken, with 150 Officers, and all their Tents, Baggage, Cannon, Arms, &c. with 32 Colours, and 12 Standards. The King's Army loſt 378 Soldiers, 2 Colonels, 3 Lieutenant Colonels, 5 Majors, 12 Captains, and ſome inferiour Officers, with about 800 wounded. After this Victory abundance of Caſtles ſurrendred, and in July his Majeſties Forces did alſo make themſelves Maſters of Gallway by Compoſition. In the mean time the Scotch Highlanders being perſuaded to a Truce, did break it, which was quickly revenged by his Majeſties Officers, who kill'd and took abundance of them. Sept. 1. His Majeſties Army inveſted Limerick: And during all the laſt Month, the King was facing Luxemburg in Flanders, having by a miraculous Providence, eſcap'd being kill'd by a Cannon Bullet as he ſate under a Tree, after he had viewed the French Camp; and the Ammunition Waggons narrowly eſcap'd being blown up by a traiterons French-man, who was hang'd for his pains. Limerick being Inveſted as above-mentioned, the Enemies Army was defeated in the Neighbourhood; and after a vigorous Defence, the Town was Surrendred on Conditions, October 14; as was Sligo much about the ſame time. And thus was Ireland intirely Reduc'd. On the 29th of that Month, his Majeſty arriv'd in England from beyond Sea: His Parliament teſtified their Zeal for him, by raiſing ſuch Supplies as he deſired; but the Obſtinacy of many of the Epiſcopal Party in Scotland render'd the Face of Affairs not ſo ſmooth there. In May 1692, the late King James publiſh'd his Declaration from St. Germains, inviting his Subjects in Britain and Ireland to join him in recovering his Crown, and came to La Hogue with an Army, as if he had intended a Deſcent upon his former Dominions; while his Majeſty King William was at the Head of the Confederates in Flanders, having left as formerly, the Adminiſtration in the Hands of his Royal Conſort Queen Mary, againſt whom a damnable Conſpiracy was diſcovered by the Conduct of the Lord Secretary Johnſton for the Kingdom of Scotland; and by an extraordinary Providence a Plot of the French Court to cut off his Majeſty by the Hands of Ruffianly Aſſaſſinates, Dumont, Lavendael, Gramont, &c. In the mean time the Engliſh Fleet put to Sea, and a Proclamation was publiſh'd for apprehending about 22 diſaffected Noblemen, Gentlemen, &c. And the Jacobites having given out that the French King had an Intereſt in the Fleet, the Flag Officers being inform'd thereof by her Majeſties Order, acquainted all the Captains; whereupon they did unanimouſly Sign an Addreſs, aſſuring her Majeſty of their unſhaken Loyalty. The Engliſh and Dutch, conſiſting of 99 Men of War, with 37 Fire-ſhips and Frigats, under the Conduct of Admiral Ruſſel, did hereupon Sail in queſt of the French Fleet, which had enter'd the Channel to favour the Deſcent, but receiv'd a remarkable Overthrow on the 19th of May. The French attack'd Ours about 11 in the Morning, and the Fight continued till half an hour paſt 5 in the Evening, when the French Tow'd away with all their Boats: About 6 another Engagement happened betwixt part of the French and Blue Squadron, but in ſhort they were beaten, and ſteered off for Conquet Road, having the advantage of a Fog; the Engliſh and Dutch purſuing, and the Enemy running among the Rocks for Shelter, whither they could not be ſafely purſued. Admiral Delaval burnt the French Admiral of 104 Guns, one of 102, one of 80, and three of a leſſer Rate, and took ſeveral Priſoners, who declared that during the Fight they loſt five of their biggeſt Ships. Admiral Ruſſel in the mean time purſued 15 of their Men of War, and on the 23d and 24th burnt 13 of them, with ſeveral Tranſport Ships, and ſome Veſſels with Ammunition; while the Enemy fired upon them from the Shore, and the late King James beheld it with his Army. The French loſt about 6000 Men in this Action, and the Engliſh and Dutch but very few, and of thoſe of Note only Colonel Haſtings and Rear-Admiral Carter. On the 25th of May, the French Inveſted Namur in Flanders; the Town ſurrendred in a little time, but the Caſtle held out longer, though both of them were delivered up by Treachery, while King William attempted their Relief. On the 2d of Auguſt his Majeſty attack'd Luxemburg in his Camp at Steenkirk, and about 10 in the Morning the Cannon began on both ſides, about 1 in the Afternoon they were fully Engag'd, and Colonel Douglas of the Prince of Wirtemberg's Brigade, took ſome of their Cannon; but Boufflers joining Luxemburg with a freſh Body, and we having the Diſadvantage of the Ground, King William Commanded to draw off, which was done in good Order. The loſs of the French was greater than ours, which cannot indeed be accounted ſmall, conſidering the Fall of General Mackay, the Earl of Angus, Colonel Douglas, and Lieutenant Colonel Fullerton, and Major Ker, &c. His Majeſty here, as in all great Actions, expos'd himſelf to the greateſt of Dangers, but was ſtill preſerved by the Power of the Almighty. And a little after the Duke of Bavaria hang'd one of his Muſicians for betraying his Majeſties Deſign of Attacking the French. King William having left the Camp, the French attack'd Charleroy, but on his Majeſty's Return they abandon'd the Deſign: So that he purſued his Voyage for England, and Landed at Yarmouth, Oct. 18. And meeting his Parliament on the 29th, they in ſome time after granted him 1926516 l. 10 s. for the Charge of the Navy for 1693, 750000 l. to ſupply the Defect of the Poll Bill, and 2 Millions 90563 l. 19 s. 6 d. for the Land Forces for that Year. At the ſame time new Orders were iſſued againſt the Epiſcopal Clergy who refuſed to Pray for Their Majeſties in Scotland. The Parliament of Ireland did then alſo Recognize his Majeſties Title, and paſſed an Act inviting Strangers to go and Plant there. In January 1693, the Parliament granted his Majeſty an Exciſe upon Beer, Ale, &c. as a Security to ſuch as ſhould advance 1000000 l. to carry on the War againſt France. On the 24th of March, the King ſet forward for Holland, and on the 2d of April Landed at Orange Polder. On the 25th the Parliament of Scotland met, granted his Majeſty 45000 l. Sterling, appointed an Oath of Aſſurance, or to Abjure the late King and all other Pretenders, and made all Correſpondence with France High Treaſon. In this Seſſion they alſo Enacted a Comprehenſion, for taking in ſuch of the Epiſcopal Clergy as would take the Oaths of Allegiance and Aſſurance, promiſe not to ſubvert the Preſbyterian Government, and evidence themſelves to be Orthodox and Moral. A Plot was alſo laid open before them by my Lord Secretary Johnſton, evincing, that there were Deſigns carried on againſt the Government by divers of the Epiſcopal Party, under other Pretences, as appears by Nevil Pain's Letters, which are ſince Printed, and he himſelf was thereupon Examin'd, but his Tryal deferred. About the middle of July our Merchants had the bad News of the Miſcarriage of their Turkey Fleet, which fell in amongſt the French Fleet near Lagos Bay. However, the Engliſh eſcap'd better than the Dutch, though both of them had a very conſiderable Loſs; and a Committee is now ſitting to enquire into the Cauſe, whether it was by Treachery or otherwiſe. His Majeſty being at that time in Flanders, detach'd about 20000 Men under the Duke of Wirtemberg, who forc'd the French Lines 'twixt Ipres and Courtray, the Earl of Argile's Regiment, with others of the Engliſh and Scotch, having particularly ſignaliz'd themſelves in that Action, and raiſed ſeveral Millions of Contribution: The French in the mean time having taken Huy, did alſo threaten Liege; upon which his Majeſty ſent another Detachment thither: and Luxemburg taking the Advantage while the Army was thus diminiſh'd, attack'd him in his Camp 'twixt Neerwinden and Landen, July 29, with double the Number of Men, but was receiv'd with ſo much Gallantry, and repulſed ſo often, that though the Fight continued from 5 in the Morning till near 5 in the Afternoon, they had perpetually the Diſadvantage, till at laſt having gain'd a Paſs into his Majeſty's Camp, they overpower'd him by their Numbers, and ſome of our Horſe not acting their part. His Majeſty perceiving Things in Diſorder, did valiantly attempt to renew the Battel; and ſeeing that it could not be performed, commanded a Retreat, which was obeyed by the two Wings in very good Order; but the Body being in confuſion, ſuſtain'd conſiderable loſs, eſpecially at paſſing the River Geete. His Majeſty continued ſo long in the Field, that he had much ado to re-paſs that River, but accompliſh'd it at length, having behav'd himſelf, during the whole Action, with inimitable Courage and Conduct, and expos'd himſelf to a thouſand Dangers; yet by the Protection of the Omnipotent, and that peculiar Providence which takes care of his ſacred Life, he came off, without any other hurt than a ſmall Contuſion on the Side by a Musket Bullet, and having a piece of his Scarf ſhot away. The Elector of Bavaria perform'd alſo Wonders during the Fight: But the Gallantry of moſt of the Engliſh and Scotch, particularly Ramſey's Brigade, during the whole Action, is ſcarcely to be parallel'd. In ſhort, the French could brag of nothing but being Maſters of the Field; for it cannot be denied that King William carried off the Honour, having kill'd at leaſt two for one of his Enemies, and, proportions conſidered, took as many of their Standards as they did of ours. The Loſs on the French ſide is reaſonably computed about 18000, and that of the Confederates not above 6000. The chief of thoſe who fell on the Confederates ſide was Count Solmes, Lieutenant-General; and the Duke of Ormond, with many other Officers of note, were taken, but ſince redeem'd. The French loſt alſo Lieutenant-General Monchevreuil, with ſeveral Princes, Dukes, Marquiſes, Counts, and many Field-Officers; though, according to the Cuſtom of Lewis XIV, they diminiſh'd their own Loſs, and magnified ours. His Majeſty having Rendezvouz'd his Army at Malines, the French were ſo ſtunn'd with their great Loſs in the Battel, that for a conſiderable time they did not ſtir; but having ſent a Party to exact Contributions, a Detachment from his Majeſty did quickly oblige them to retire: After which the French beſieged Charleroy; of the Succeſs of which, and of his Majeſties Detachment into Flanders to give the French a Diverſion, we have not yet any account. In this ſame Month we had Advice, that our Forces under Sir Francis Wheeler had deſtroyed the French Iſland of Martinico; but our Men growing ſick they could not attack the Fort, and ſo withdrew. Our Fleet, in conjunction with the Dutch, put twice to Sea this Summer; but not meeting with the Enemy, returned into Port.

WILLIAM, commonly called The Lion, the 93d King of Scotland, ſucceeded his Brother Malcolm IV. about the latter end of December 1165. The firſt thing he undertook was, to demand Reſtitution of Northumberland from Henry King of England, who commanded him to come and do Homage for the Counties of Cumberland and Huntington that he held in England, according to Cuſtom; which was performed. But Henry alledged, that he could not reſtore Northumberland without Conſent of the States, and therefore, that he ſhould expect Juſtice in the next Parliament: and though William expected no Reſtitution, yet to cut off all Pretenſions from Henry, he reſolved to wait for its meeting, and in the mean time accompanied Henry, though againſt his Will, to the War againſt France, where profiting nothing by his daily Solicitations, he obtained a Convoy, and returned; and having ſettled Things at home, ſent Embaſſadors to demand Northumberland, and denounce War in caſe of Refuſal. Henry did hereupon reſtore part of Northumberland, which William took; but entring his Claim to the reſt, King Henry was ſo incenſed at it, that he order'd his Troops to invade the Scots Borders, which began the War: and the Scots, by way of Retaliation, levied an Army, and waſted their Borders with Fire and Sword. Next Summer he march'd into England with a great Army again; whereupon they ſent Embaſſadors to his Camp, proffering a great Sum for a Truce, and ſuggeſting that things ſhould be accorded amicably. William being a plain-hearted Man, gave Credit to their fallacious Promiſes: and in the mean time they made all neceſſary Preparations for War; and finding the Scots negligent on confidence of the Truce, they took Scotch Arms and Enſigns, plac'd the greateſt part of their Army in Ambuſh, and with 400 nimble Horſe march'd about the third Watch of the Night toward the Scots Camp, where they found all things in greater Security than they expected, the moſt of the Horſe Foraging, and the King himſelf with 60 Horſe riding about as if it had been in the time of greateſt Peace; ſo that they took and carried him off, with ſome others who were rouzed on the Alarm, and came up to his Aſſiſtance; and ſent him Priſoner to King Henry then in France. The Engliſh being lifted up with this unexpected Succeſs, invaded Cumberland, thinking to carry it alſo; but being repulſed with great loſs, they came to a Truce, contented themſelves with Northumberland, and left Cumberland and Huntington in Poſſeſſion of the Scots. In the mean time David, Brother to King William, who ſerved under the Engliſh, obtained a Convoy, return'd to Scotland, managed the Government, and ſent to treat about his Brother's Redemption, who was then kept Priſoner at Faliſe in Normandy; and giving 15 Hoſtages, and the Caſtles of Berwick, Roxburg, Edinburg, and Sterlin, into the hands of the Engliſh for performance of Conditions, he was ſuffered to return: and on the 15th of Auguſt following, he, with the chief of the Nobility, were call'd upon to come to York; where, according to Engliſh Authors, they ſwore Obedience, and ſurrendred the Kingdom into the Guardianſhip and Protection of King Henry; but Walſingham ſays it was at Coutances in Normandy: But Buchanan, my Author, ſays, that this Interview was not for a Surrender, but to adjuſt his Ranſom, and that the Caſtles were agreed to be left in the hands of the Engliſh till the Money was paid; which he founds on the League renewed betwixt King William and Richard of England mention'd afterwards. An Aſſembly was afterwards Indited at Norham on Tweed, whither William came, and there the Engliſh laboured extremely that the Scotch Biſhops ſhould acknowledge the Biſhop of York for their Metropolitan, wherein the Pope's Legate concurred; but the Scots refuſed to ſubmit, and by a Decree of Pope Alexander III. were freed from Subjection to the Engliſh. In 1190 Richard of England having ſucceeded his Father Henry, and being about to go into the Holy Land, he ſent back the Hoſtages, deliver'd up the Caſtles to William King of Scotland, freeing him and his Poſterity from all Agreements which the Engliſh had obtained by Force or Fraud, and ſuffering him to enjoy the Kingdom of Scotland by the ſame Right and within the ſame Limits as Malcolm or any other former Kings had held it. King William, on the other hand, to teſtifie his Gratitude, ſent King Richard 1000 Marks in Silver, and commanded his Brother David, Earl of Huntington, to follow him into Syria. This David, in his Return, had his Fleet ſcattered by Tempeſt, was taken by the Egyptians, redeem'd by the Venetians, and at laſt returned, as did K. Richard alſo after many Misfortunes: whereupon King William and his Brother came to congratulate him, and gave him 2000 Marks in Silver, in conſideration of his former Bounty and preſent Want. So that there was a perfect Amity at that time betwixt the two Nations. William falling ſick in England, a Rumour was ſpread of his Death; whereupon Harald Earl of Orkney and Caithnes being incenſed at the Biſhop of the Place who prevented his obtaining ſome Deſire of the King, he ſeized him, cut out his Tongue, and put out his Eyes. The King, at his Return, overthrew Harald, deſtroyed moſt of his Forces, took him, and having firſt put out his Eyes hang'd him: after which, his whole Male Iſſue were gelded, and the reſt of his Kindred and Iſſue ſeverely fined: This happen'd in 1198. King Richard dying that ſame Year, and his Brother John ſucceeding, King William went to do him Homage for the Land which he held in England, as uſual; but refuſed to go with him againſt the French: whereupon King John ordered a Fort to be built over-againſt Berwick; but King William demoliſh'd it, and both prepared for War: but a Peace was ſettled, on condition that William's two Daughters ſhould be married to John's two Sons. King William, at his Return, found moſt of the City of Berth deſtroyed by an Inundation, with his own Palace, his Son an Infant, and 14 of his Servants; after which he built another City on a more commodious Place, altering the Name to Perth, now St. Johnſton, not long before his Death. William renew'd Leagues with John every Year; in one of which it was agreed, that the Scottiſh Kings ſhould not ſwear nor be Feudatories to the Kings of England Themſelves for the Land which they held in England, but their Children only. King William died An. 1214, in the 74th of his Age, and 49th of his Reign. Buchan.

WILLIAM I. ſirnam'd The Bad, King of Sicily, ſucceeded his Father Roger in 1152 or 54. A little after the Death of his Father, he took and ſack'd Tanes in Egypt, and defeated a Fleet of the Greeks of above 140 Veſſels. He took from the Church ſeveral Places belonging to it; for which, Adrian IV. Excommunicating him, he beſieged his Holineſs in Beneventum, and forced him to give him the Inveſtiture of the Kingdom of Sicily, the Dukedom of Puglia, and the Principality of Capua, with ſeveral extraordinary Privileges, which occaſion'd ſeveral Quarrels between him and the ſucceeding Popes: but at length he agreed with Alexander III. and died in 1166. Baron.

WILLIAM II. ſirnam'd The Good, ſucceeded his Father at 12 Years of Age. He took part with Alexander III. againſt the Emperor Frederick. He wag'd War with Andronicus Comnenus Emperor of Conſtantinople, with good Succeſs, winning Salonica and ſeveral other Places from him; and died at Palermo in the Year 1189. *Petrus Bleſenſis, Ep.*131. Collinutio Hiſt. Neap. Sigonius, &c.

WILLIAM III. the Son of Tancred the Natural Son of William II. was acknowledg'd King of Sicily under the Tuition of his Mother Sybilla, in the Year 1192 or 93. The next Year the Emperor Hen. VI. entring Italy with a potent Army, won Cajeta and Naples, took Sybilla and William Priſoners, condemn'd the Mother to perpetual Impriſonment, and put out the Son's Eyes. Roger. in Annal. Collinutio Hiſt. Neap. &c.

WILLIAM, Count of Holland, by Uſurpation from his Niece Adela, his Brother Thierry VII.'s Daughter. His firſt Wars were in the Holy Land, and after that in his own Country with the Biſhop of Utrecht: which being ended, he carried his Arms into Scotland, pretending ſome Right to that Kingdom; but hearing that the Count of Loſs, his Niece's Husband, had taken the Field, in Right of his Wife, he haſten'd back to his own Territories, and died in 1223. Petit. Grotius.

WILLIAM II. Count of Holland, was Elected King of the Romans after the Deceaſe of Henry of Thuringia, in 1247. The next Year he beſieg'd Aix la Chapelle; and having taken it, after ſix Months Siege, was there Crown'd. In the Year 1450, after the Deceaſe of Frederick, he was confirmed in the Empire by the Pope's Legate, though he never enjoy'd it quietly. He defeated the Flemings; but in 1256 going to reduce the Revolted Friſons, he was knock'd o'th' Head by the Country Peaſants, and hid among the Reeds in a marſhy Place, where his Horſe ſtuck in the Ice. John of Leyden. Mejer.

WILLIAM III. ſirnam'd The Good, Count of Haynault and Holland, &c. ſucceeded John of Aveſnes, his Father, in 1304, ſignaliz'd himſelf at the Battel of Mont Caſſel, and after he had diſtinguiſh'd himſelf upon ſeveral other Occaſions for his Courage and Juſtice, died in 1337. Froyſard.

WILLIAM IV. ſucceeded his Father the ſame Year, a Prince of great Courage: He aſſiſted the King of Spain againſt the Moors, took Utrecht, and refuſed the Imperial Diadem that was offer'd him by the Electors; and at length, waging War with the Friſons, he was ſlain in the Year 1345.

WILLIAM V. Son of Lewis of Bavaria, the Emperor, entred into a War with his Mother, whom he drove out of Holland in 1351: Afterwards falling mad, he was ſirnam'd The Mad Count. It alſo fell out, that upon his killing a great Lord in cold Blood in 1358, he was impriſon'd at Queſnoy in the Year 1377, and there died.

WILLIAM VI. Count of Haynault and Holland, ſucceeded Albert of Bavaria, his Father: and after he had ſat 13 Years at the Helm of Affairs, died in 1417, without making a great Figure in Hiſtory.

WILLIAM, Count of Provence, the Son of Bozan II. began his Government in 971, expell'd the Saracens out of the Fortreſs of Fraxinett, which was the laſt Refuge they had in France: and at laſt entring into Religious Orders, retired to the Abbey of Cluni. Du Cheſne. Noſtredamus & Bouche Hiſt. de Prov.

WILLIAM of Naſſau, Prince of Orange, Founder of the Commonwealth of the United Provinces, was born at the Caſtle of Dillembourg in the County of Naſſau, An. 1533. He was Page of Honour, for 9 Years, to the Emperor Charles V. who much admir'd his Senſe and Modeſty, did often commune with him concerning his greateſt Affairs, and was not aſham'd to own that he was many times ſurpriz'd with the Expedients and Counſels which that young Prince would ſuggeſt, that he could never have thought of; and therefore would uſually make him ſtay at the private Audience of Foreign Miniſters, when the reſt of the Company withdrew. He was ſcarce 20 Years old when the ſaid Emperor choſe him to carry the Imperial Crown which he had reſigned to his Brother Ferdinand. And for a Proof that he valued his Courage as much as his Prudence, he made him Generaliſſimo when but 22 Years old, though he was well furniſh'd with great experienc'd Captains at the ſame time, and that he was to act againſt two great Generals, viz. Monſieur de Nevers, and the Admiral of France. The Prince acquitted himſelf ſo well that Campaign, that he built Charlemont and Philipville in ſight of the French Armies. The ſaid Emperor did manifeſt his Eſteem for the Prince of Orange to the very laſt moment of his Adminiſtration, being attended by him at Bruſſels An. 1555, when he reſign'd all his Kingdoms to his Son Philip. But thoſe marks of Confidence, and profeſſions of Friendſhip, occaſion'd the Jealouſie of the Spaniards, who ruin'd the Prince in the Opinion of King Philip, though he was particularly recommended to him by his Father; inſomuch that he was charged as the Author of the States Refuſal to comply with the King's Demands, upbraided with it by the King himſelf: And therefore having taken his Leave of him as embarking for Spain, ſtaid at Fluſhing: and perceiving that the Government of Flanders, which was beſtowed on his Anceſtors, was denied to himſelf, and Cardinal Granville his Enemy was plac'd at the Helm; that there was a Spy upon all his Actions, and nothing of Importance communicated to him, he found himſelf obliged to provide for his own Safety. King Philip, at his Departure, having order'd the Inquiſition to be eſtabliſh'd in the Netherlands, it occaſion'd all thoſe Confuſions which follow'd, the People being altogether averſe to it. Cardinal Granville's Adminiſtration being unacceptable to the Nobility, the Prince, with the Counts de Egmont and Horn, gave an Account of it to King Philip, and deſired he might be recalled, or he would ruin the Netherlands; which the Spaniſh Court took ſo ill, that thenceforth they reſolved on the ruin of theſe three Lords and their Adherents: however, they diſſembled for a time, and recalled the Cardinal. The Diſorders breaking out however in Flanders, two of the Nobility were diſpatch'd with Orders into Spain, deſiring the King to compoſe them rather by Mildneſs than Severity; whereupon they were both cut off, which was a Warning for the reſt to ſtand on their Guard. And the Prince of Orange foreſeeing that the Duke de Alva was to come with an Army into the Netherlands to be revenged on the Malecontents; he deſired Leave to reſign his Governments of Holland, Zealand, Utrecht, and Burgundy; which was denied: he was alſo ordered to put away his Brother Count Lodowick, and to take a new Oath, obliging him to extirpate Hereſie as they call'd it, though his own Wife was a Lutheran; but declin'd both; and in the latter he was follow'd by abundance of the Nobility. In 1566 the Governeſs preſſing with great heat the eſtabliſhment of the Inquiſition and the new Biſhops, 400 Gentlemen, headed by Count Lodowick of Naſſaw, preſented a Petition to the Princeſs at Bruſſels, againſt the Inquiſition, the new Biſhops, and the Publication of the Council of Trent, which they maintained to be contrary to the Intereſt of the Provinces. The Nobility marching two by two modeſtly apparelled, and armed only with their Swords when they preſented this Petition, were called Gueux or Beggars; whence that Name came to be imparted to the Party. The Nobles were ſo far from taking Offence at it, that they applied the Name to themſelves, all put on grey Cloaths, wore little wooden Porringers and Beggars Bottles in their Hats, and at all their Entertainments drank Healths to the Gueux. They wore alſo a Medal of Gold, having the King's Image on one ſide, and on the Reverſe two Hands joyn'd holding a Bag with this Inſcription, Loyal even to Beggary: and on their Footmens Liveries they embroidered Diſhes and Beggars Bottles, declaring, that they would ſupport the Confederacy with their Lives and Fortunes. The Prince of Orange having intercepted Letters by which he found that King Philip had deſigned their Ruin, was for oppoſing the Entrance of his Army by Arms; but Count Egmont refuſing it, he told him what would be the Conſequence, and retired into Germany, the Count ſaying to him at parting, Farewel Prince without Land, and he anſwering, Farewel Count without a Head; which was verified in the Event. In 1568 all the Petitioners were declared Guilty of High Treaſon, and the Duke of Alva entred the Country as Governor at the Head of an Army; wherein he exercis'd ſuch Cruelty, that all the neighbouring Princes condemned his Conduct, having in a little time executed 20 Lords and Gentlemen at Bruſſels: And when the News was heard at Rome that the Duke de Alva had ſeis'd on all the Great Lords but the Prince of Orange, Cardinal Granville ſaid he had done nothing. The Prince being ſummoned to appear before the Duke, was condemned for not obeying, appealed to the States of Brabant, the King himſelf, and the Knights of the Golden Fleece, as his only competent Judges, which was approved by the Emperor and all the German Princes; but the Spaniards ſeis'd his Son William Count of Buren, a Child of 13 Years of Age, at the Univerſity of Lovain, contrary to the Privileges of the Univerſity and Country, and carried him to Spain: Whereupon he took Arms, and ſending an Army into Frieſland under his Brother Count Lodowick, defeated John de Ligny Governor of the Province, a famous Captain, kill'd him upon the Field, and took all his Artillery and Baggage; but not long after he himſelf was defeated by the Duke of Alva in that ſame Country, and narrowly eſcaped with his Life: However, the Prince of Orange raiſed another Army of 28000 Germans and French, and before he enter'd the Netherlands, publiſh'd the Declaration of his Reaſons, and did openly profeſs the Proteſtant Religion in which he had been educated, declaring that the Brabantines were not obliged by their Laws to obey the Errors and Miſtakes of their Princes, and were abſolved from their Allegiance till their Injuries were redreſſed. After this he paſſed the Meuſe, though the Duke of Alva was on the other ſide to diſpute his Paſſage, having broke the Strength of the River with his Horſe while the Foot waded through beneath, ſo that the Duke of Alva, upon the firſt News of it, would not believe it, but ask'd whether the Prince's Men were Birds? But finding it to be true, he poſted himſelf ſo advantageouſly, that though the Prince chang'd 29 Encampments, he could never draw him to a Battel: whereupon his Army grew mutinous for want of Victuals and Pay, refuſed to follow him into France to aſſiſt the Proteſtants: and no Town of the Country having declar'd for him, he was forced to disband them, ſeveral Officers having been ſlain by the Mutineers in his Preſence, and he narrowly eſcap'd himſelf. He paid them with what ready Money and Plate he had, ſold his Artillery and Baggage, and engaged his Principality of Orange and other Lordſhips to ſatisfie the chief Commanders: he march'd for Strasburg however ere he disbanded, having between Queſnoy and Cambray cut off 18 Companies of Foot and 300 Horſe, and taken moſt of their Officers, the Duke of Alva's Son being kill'd upon the place. The Prince having only reſerved 1200 Horſe, did, with his two Brethren, joyn the Duke of Deuxpont in aſſiſting the French Proteſtants. He was at the Taking of La Charte, and opened a Paſſage for the Germans to joyn the Admiral. He Commanded the main Battel of the Proteſtants at the Battel of Roche la Ville: he was afterwards at the fatal Siege of Poitiers, quitted the Camp at Foy-la Bineſe, and with great difficulty retired into his County of Naſſau to raiſe new Forces. Admiral Coligni adviſed the Prince to give out Sea Commiſſions to thoſe of Quality who had fled from the Low-Countries, and get footing in Holland and Zeland; which was accordingly performed with great Succeſs, the Spaniards being, for ten Years together, continually beat by the Hollanders at Sea. In 1570 the Court of France having a Deſign to over-reach the Proteſtants, promis'd to employ them againſt the Netherlands, loaded Count Lodowick of Naſſau with Honours, and promiſed to ſettle the Soveraignty of Zeland, Utrecht, and Frieſland, upon the Prince of Orange, his Brother, and join the reſt of the Provinces to France, which prevented the Prince's accepting of a very advantageous Treaty with the King of Spain; ſo that the Prince took Zutphen, and ſeveral other Places in Guelderland, and his Brother Count Lodowick took Mons; on the Recovery of which the Duke de Alva was ſo intent, that the other revolted Towns in Holland had thereby time to fortifie and provide themſelves. In the mean time the Prince enter'd the Low-Countries with a great Army, and the People being render'd deſperate by the Duke of Alva's Tyranny, were ready to receive him every where. Lovain gave him Money, and Ruremond and Malines open'd to him. In the mean time his Brother made a gallant Defence at Mons, and the Prince intended to have reliev'd him; but 7000 Horſe and Foot being ſent from France to Relieve the Place, were Defeated by virtue of a Correſpondence betwixt the Court of France and the Spaniards. The barbarous Maſſacre of St. Bartholomew at Paris, wherein the Prince's chief Friends were cut off, happening to fall out at the ſame time, the Prince advis'd his Brother to make an honorable Compoſition for Mons, and retired toward Germany himſelf, having narrowly eſcaped at Malines, 800 Spaniſh Horſe, with choſen Foot behind them, having entred his Camp by Night and made their way as far as his Tent, wherein they had certainly kill'd him aſleep, if a little Dog who lay in his Bed had not ſcratch'd his Face and awak'd him: So that having cut off the greateſt part of the Spaniards, he marched ſtraight to the Rhine, disbanded his Army at Orſay, and went thence to Holland and Zeland, which had all declared for him except Middleburg and Amſterdam, in the following manner: Thoſe Gentlemen who ſerv'd againſt the Spaniards at Sea by his Commiſſion being denied the Benefit of the Engliſh Ports any longer by Queen Elizabeth, for fear of making the Spaniards her Enemies, they did happily ſurprize the Brill; and though the Spaniards attempted to expel them, it proved all in vain. Whereupon the reſt of the Towns in Holland declared for the Prince, as abovementioned. The City of Fluſhing revolted at the ſame time, and the Spaniard who ſuperintended the Fortifications was hang'd, as were many other of the Spaniards whom they took Priſoners. The Prince of Orange being at the ſame time declared Governor by the States of Holland and Zeland, William Count de la Mark was appointed his Lieutenant, who afterwards deſerted the Prince, but was ſaved from Puniſhment, and died afterwards at Liege, of the Bite of a mad Dog. The Prince, though he did all things in the Name of the States, yet had the full Power of a King; ſo much did the People confide in him. To the 6 Cities in Holland which had right to Vote in the States, he added 12 more, and threw the Roman-Catholick Religion out of the Churches. The Duke of Alva being ill himſelf, ſent Don Frederick de Toledo to reduce the revolted Cities in Holland, &c. During which Expedition he committed many Barbarities, murthering the Inhabitants without diſtinction of Age or Sex, and ſuffering his Soldiers to raviſh the very Nuns at Narden. He broke the Capitulation, by which the Citizens were to have their Lives, burnt the City, murther'd the Inhabitants, and expoſed their dead Bodies in the Streets. He reduced Harlem to ſuch Extremity, that Parents eat the Corps of their dead Children; and when the City was taken, they hang'd above 2000 Perſons, which did exceedingly leſſen their Intereſt. Alkmar repulſed the Spaniards with great Reſolution. The Prince in the mean time ſurpriz'd Gertrudemberg, and his Fleet defeated the Spaniards at Sea, taking the Count de Boſſut, a famous Captain; but treated him civilly, though he had been guilty of a Plot againſt his Perſon. King Philip having recalled the Duke of Alva and his Son at laſt for their Cruelty, they bragged that they had cut off by the hand of the Hangman 18000 Men; and yet the cruel Vargas, who return'd with them, ſaid that their Clemency had loſt the Netherlands. In 1574 Middleburg in Zeland yielded to the Prince after two Years Siege, and that the Spaniards had ſpent ſeven Millions in Fleets to relieve it. But he had not the ſame Succeſs every where; for his Brothers, Count Lodowick and Count Henry, were defeated near Nimeguen by d' Avila, both of them kill'd, and their Cannon and Baggage taken. Whereupon the Spaniards laid Siege to Leyden, which after a long Siege and unparallel'd Famine was miraculouſly delivered by breaking down the Banks, which drowned a great many Spaniards. The Prince, after this, was received into the City in a ſplendid manner: he preſerved and embalmed ſeven Pigeons in the Town-houſe, in token of his perpetual Acknowledgment of the Service which they did him in carrying the Letters of the Beſieged to him, and his Anſwers back again. At that time he founded and endowed the Univerſity of Leyden. The Prince having loſt his ſecond Wife, Anne of Saxony, married Charlotte de Bourbon Daughter to the Duke of Montpenſier, who was of the Blood Royal of France, and had fled for her Religion. Her Father being a zealous Roman-Catholick, was unwilling at firſt, but at laſt conſented, and gave her a Fortune. After this a Treaty was ſet on foot at Breda; but the Spaniards refuſing the Liberty of Religion, it took no effect. Their Soldiers did alſo behave themſelves with ſo much Licentiouſneſs in thoſe Countries which remained in their Subjection, that they invited in the Prince of Orange, and entred into the famous Treaty of Ghent An. 1576; ſo that every one thought that the King of Spain had then loſt the Netherlands. Don John of Auſtria, famous for his Victory in the Lepanto, was afterwards ſent to govern the Netherlands, and flatter'd the Provinces into a Treaty, which the Prince of Orange proteſted againſt, as prejudicial to Religion, &c. And aſſoon as Don John was ſettled, he began to Govern with rigour, according to the Order of the Court of Spain: Whereupon the States join'd themſelves to the Prince of Orange, and conducted him into Antwerp and Bruſſels in great State, where he was declared Governor of Brabant, and Superintendant of the Finances of the Provinces; but though he had the love of the People, yet this procur'd him the envy of the Great ones; ſo that they ſent for the Archduke Matthias, the Emperor Rodolphus's Brother, to be Governor of the Low-Countries, thinking thereby to ruin the Prince's Authority: But he managed Matters ſo, that he turn'd the Storm upon his Enemies, was declared Lieutenant-Genernal by the Majority of the States, and intruſted with the chief Management of Matters by the Archduke. Don John of Auſtria being declared Enemy to the Low Countries, defeated the States Army at Gemblours, taking their Cannon, Colours, &c. But this was compenſated by the gaining of Amſterdam to their Party, and Don John was repulſed afterwards with conſiderable loſs by the Count de Boſſut, though he had put a Crucifix with this Motto in his Colours, With this Sign I have beaten the Turks, and with this I will beat the Hereticks; but he died not long after in his Camp at Namur, by the Fraud of the Court of Spain, as was believed, who were jealous of his Greatneſs. Janary 22. 1579, the Prince of Orange laid the Foundation of the Commonwealth of the United Provinces at Utrecht, by the ſtrict Union which he made between the Provinces of Guelderland, Zutphen, Holland, Zeland, Frieſland, and the Ommelands; the States taking this Motto for their Device, Concordia res parvæ creſcunt. In 1580, becauſe of the Deſertion of ſome Provinces, and the falling off of a great many Men to the Spaniard by means of the Duke of Parma, the Prince advis'd the States to chuſe the Duke of Anjou and Alencon, Brother to Hen. III. of France, for their Sovereign, upon condition that they ſhould enjoy their Religion and Privileges, which was accordingly done. The Prince was induced to this by a terrible Proſcription which the K. of Spain had publiſhed againſt him and his Adherents, and offering 25000 Crowns to any Man that ſhould bring him alive or dead to him. In December following, the Prince publiſh'd his Apology, in which he diſcover'd a great many Secrets, which it was the King's Intereſt to have had kept ſo; and therein the Prince did endeavour to vindicate himſelf from all the Aſperſions caſt upon him; and the States declar'd by their Decree, that he was wrongfully accuſed, and aſſign'd him a Guard for his Perſon. In 1581, the Spaniards ſurpris'd the Caſtle and City of Breda by the Intrigues of the Baron de Freſin, who was kept Priſoner there. The States General being aſſembled at the Hague, declar'd the K. of Spain to have forfeited the Sovereignty of the Netherlands by a long Narration of Infractions upon their Privileges, which they inſerted therein. The Duke of Parma took Tournay at the ſame time from the States. During the ſplendid Reception of the Duke of Anjou at Antwerp, one Jauregny a Spaniard, Factor to a Merchant, in hopes of the Reward promis'd in the Proſcription, fir'd a Piſtol at the Prince, which being loaden with one Ball, ſtruck him under the Right Ear, and went out through the left Cheek, breaking ſeveral of his Teeth. The Prince's Halbertiers killed the Aſſaſſin, and the People took Arms to revenge it upon the French, whom they thought to be Authors of the Fact; but Papers were found on the Miſcreant which prov'd him to be a Spaniard, the People were ſo much concerned, that they continued in Prayers till the Prince's Recovery, and then kept a Day of Thankſgiving. Aſſoon as he was fit to Travel, the Duke of Anjou carried him to Ghent and Bruges, where another great Conſpiracy was diſcovered againſt him and the Duke by one Salviedo a Spaniard, who confeſs'd that he had receiv'd 4000 Crowns from the Duke of Parma to cut off thoſe Princes by poiſon, or otherwiſe. Baza, an Italian, one of the Conſpirators, ſtabb'd himſelf to prevent other Puniſhment, and Salviedo was drawn to pieces at Paris by four Horſes, according to an Act of Parliament there. The Duke of Anjou having after this, as 'tis ſaid, by the Advice of ſome hot-headed Young-men, endeavoured to make himſelf Abſolute in the Netherlands, and to rid himſelf of the Prince of Orange's great Authority which was troubleſome to him, miſcarried in the Attempt, and ſo reſigned the Government in 1583; and retiring to France, died of Grief the next Year. The Flemmings being made to believe by ſome of the Prince of Orange's Enemies, that he was concerned in the Attempt, the Prince did thereupon retire to Delft in Holland, where he thought he ſhould be more ſecure from the Attempts of Aſſaſſins. He took for his Device a Didaper with this Motto, Sævis tranquillus in undis. His Behaviour was ſo ſweet and engaging to the People, that they always crowded in the Streets to ſee him; ſo that to avoid the trouble of returning their many Civilities, he ſeldom wore his Hat as he walk'd the Streets: and if he had heard any Quarrel betwixt Man and Wife, would enter the Houſe and reconcile it with incredible ſweetneſs, and drink of their Beer when they offer'd it him; which ſome of his Friends alledging to be too great a Condeſcenſion, he uſually anſwer'd, That what was gain'd by pulling off a Hat, or a little Complacence, was bought at a very eaſie rate: So that it was no wonder that he was univerſally lamented when he was unhappily aſſaſſinated in the 51ſt Year of Age, An. 1584, which was villainouſly perform'd by one Balthazar Gerrard a Burgundian, by a Piſtol with three Bullets, as he roſe from Table; ſo that he died without ſaying any more than Lord have mercy on my Soul, and this poor People. The Villain pretended to be a Proteſtant, and Son of one who had ſuffer'd for his Religion; by which he inſinuated himſelf into the Acquaintance of the Prince, who intruſted him with ſeveral Diſpatches, and at the very moment when he aſſaſſinated him he deſired a Paſſport to go ſomewhere where the Prince was ſending him. The Murther being divulged, all Men lamented his loſs, as that of a common Father. Never were Funerals celebrated with more Pomp and real Sorrow; and his Son erected him a ſtately Monument of Marble, equal to the moſt ſumptuous in Italy. The Aſſaſſin was condignly puniſh'd, but died obſtinate, ſaying, That if it were to do again, he would do it. And indeed the Spaniards gave out, That there was at Delft a Lorrainer and Engliſhman engaged in the Deſign at the ſame time; ſo that it could not have miſcarried. William Prince of Orange was the Father of two very great Captains, and from his Loins have deſcended Electors, Landtgraves, and Sovereign Princes in Germany; Princes, Princeſſes, Dukes, Cardinals, Mareſchals, and many great Lords in France, by his four Wives, Anne of Egmont a great Heireſs, Daughter to the Count d' Egmont of Burem and Leerdam; Anne of Saxony, Daughter to the Elector Maurice; Charlotte de Bourbon, Daughter to the Duke of Montpenſier; and Louiſe de Coligny, Daughter to the Great and Famous Admiral of France. The Baron de Mauriers Lives of the Princes of Orange.

WILLIAM II. Prince of Orange, was Son of Frederick Henry Prince of Orange, and Grandſon of William I. He was born in 1626, and the Sates General were his Godfathers. In 1630, he was declared General of the Cavalry of the Low Countries. Aſſoon as he was able to bear Arms, he followed his Father to the Army, and was preſent at the Siege of Breda. Upon his Father's Death, he took the Oath of Fidelity to the States, for the Government of which they had granted him the Reverſion. All being in Peace after the Treaty of Munſter, the States reſolved to retrench their Expences, and disband a great number of their Troops; which the Prince oppoſed, as ſome ſay, becauſe he knew that the Credit of the Places he was poſſeſſed of, could not be ſupported without them; but his pretence was, leſt France or Spain ſhould fall upon the Country, when not in a caſe of Defence. The States being reſolved to break 120 Companies, offered however to ſatisfie the Prince, that the ordinary Pay ſhould be continued to the Officers, which he was contented with; but the Province of Guelderland and City of Amſterdam oppoſed it. The Prince's Friends did hereupon adviſe him to viſit the principal Cities of the Netherlands, and perſuade the Magiſtrates that not only the Officers, but Troops, might be continued as they were, that ſo they might be ready to ſerve where ever there ſhould be occaſion. The Prince having hereupon ſent for the chief Colonels of the Army, went to four or five Cities in Holland, but was deſired to forbear coming to Amſterdam, Harlem, Medenblic, and others, for Reaſons which they exhibited. The Prince took this for ſo great an Affront, that he demanded publick Satisfaction from the States: To which the Deputies of Amſterdam, &c. having anſwered by a long Manifeſto, he was ſo touch'd, that he oppos'd the Disbanding of the Forces more than ever, arreſted ſix of the principal Magiſtrates, and ſent them to the Caſtle of Loveſtein. This alarm'd the People, who alledged that he aſpir'd to the Sovereignty; and his Attempt upon Amſterdam augmented their Suſpicion; though others ſuppoſe that he had no other Deſign but to humble that City, and ſupport his own Authority: But he was reſolved to Beſiege it, and had certainly ſurpriz'd it when he came before it July 30. 1650, his Troops did ſo exactly keep to the Time and Place of Rendezvouz, had not the Hamburgh Courier, who paſſed through them without being perceiv'd, given timely notice to the City, who put themſelves in a poſture of Defence, ſent Deputies to treat with the Prince till they opened their Sluces and laid the Country under Water; ſo that he came to a Treaty, which ended to his Advantage. Being ſenſible that the States would reſent this Attempt, to make Peace with them he releaſed the Priſoners from the Caſtle of Loveſtein, on condition that they ſhould for ever be unqualified for publick Employments; and at the ſame time ſent a Memorial of his Reaſons for attempting Amſterdam, which the States ſent back without opening it, aſſuring him, that the Difference being ſo ſoon adjuſted, there needed no Juſtification. About a Month after, at a particular Aſſembly in the Dutchy of Gueldres, he extinguiſh'd all their Jealouſies of him. He was obſerved to be melancholy after this Miſcarriage, and died of the Small-Pox, Nov. 6. 1650. He was a great General, and had a comprehenſive Genius. He ſpoke Engliſh, French, Italian, Spaniſh, and High Dutch, as readily as his Mother Tongue. He married Mary Stuart, eldeſt Daughter to Charles I. King of Great Britain; by whom he had William III. Prince of Orange. The Baron de Maurier*'s Lives of the Princes of* Orange.

WILLIAM (Saint) Duke of Aquitain, &c. was a Prince violent and cruel, who gave the full Swinge to his Paſſions. He took part with Pope Anaclet II. ſet up in Oppoſition to Innocent II. and defended him, notwithſtanding the Decree of the Council of Eſtampes, which declar'd the Election of Innocent Canonical. But at length being vanquiſhed by the Arguments of the Biſhops that were ſent to reclaim him, and particularly of St. Bernard, he quitted Anaclet, and adhered to Innocent; and not only ſo, but to make his Repentance more ſignificant for his former Miſcarriages, and retire from the World, having firſt made his Will and put his Affairs in order, became a Hermit in the Foreſt of Livallia, and afterwards retired to a Valley of Siena in Tuſcany, where he died in the Year 1156. Martyrolog. de Franca. Baron. A. C. 1136.

WILLIBORST or Willeborſt (Thomas) a Flemiſh Painter, who flouriſh'd in 1640. He was of Berghen op Zoom in Brabant, where he liv'd in 1642, when the Prince of Orange, Frederick Henry of Naſſau, in his return home, viſited him, and bought all his Pieces that he could find. He alſo took him to the Hague, where amongſt other rare Pieces, he drew that fine one in the Canoneers Hall, which is a Mars excited on one ſide to War by Furies, and held back on the other ſide by Peace and Concord. The Martyrdom of St. George in the great Church, is an admirable Piece. He died in the flower of his Age.

WILLIGISUS, a Saxon of mean Birth, by his Wit and Vertue, got the Emperor Otho the Second's Favour, who firſt made him his Almoner, and afterwards gave him the Archbiſhoprick of Maience in 976. Otho III. to whom this Archbiſhop did conſiderable Service, is ſaid to have made him the firſt of the ſeven Electors which he eſtabliſhed in the Empire. This height of Fortune never made him forget his Birth, which to remember the better, he writ upon the Walls of a Cloſet, whereof he always kept the Keys, Remember Willigiſus what you were, and what you are. He govern'd the Church of Mayence for 36 Years, and died very old in 1011.

WILLOUGHBY. Of this Right Honourable and Ancient Family, beſides the preſent Lord Parham, were two other, viz. Eresby and Brooke, both famous for their own, and Poſterities Noble Atchievements. The firſt of the Branch of Parham, was Sir William Willoughby Knt. Son and Heir to Chriſtopher Willoughby of Eresby, created Lord Willoughby of Parham in Com. Suff. (a younger Son to Chriſtopher Lord Willoughby of Eresby) created Lord Willoughby 1 Edw. VI. He died in 1569, and was ſucceeded in his Lands and Honour by his Son Charles, he by his Son William, and this by his eldeſt Son Francis; who leaving no Iſſue Male, was ſucceeded in his Honours by William his Brother, who married Anne Daughter of Sir Philip Cary Knt. by whom he had Iſſue ſeven Sons, George his Son and Succeſſor in that Honour, Henry and William who died unmarried, John yet living, James and Cary dead, and Charles; and five Daughters, Frances married to Sir John Harper of Swarkeſton in Com. Derb. Knt. Elizabeth died unmarried, Anne wedded to Sir John Harper of Calke in Com. Derb. Baronet, Mary died unmarried, and Catherine. George Lord Willoughby married Elizabeth, Daughter and Coheir to Francis Fienes alias Clinton Eſq; by whom he had Iſſue John now Lord Willoughby. Dugdale.

WILMOT (Henry) the only Son of Charles Viſcount Wilmot of Athlone in Ireland, famous for his Military Conduct when Lieutenant General of the Horſe in His Majeſty's Armies throughout all England and Wales, was 19 Car. I. advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm by the Title of Lord Wilmot of Adderbury in Com. Oxon; and afterwards farther manifeſting his Loyalty to the Crown by his conſtant and moſt faithful Services to King Charles II. both before and after the Battel of Worceſter, he was by the ſaid King advanced to the Degree of an Earl, by the Title of the Earl of Rocheſter, by Letters Patents bearing Date at Paris December 1652, and was ſent the ſame Year to the Diet at Ratisbonne, to ſeek Aſſiſtance on his Majeſty's behalf. This Henry took to Wife Ann the eldeſt Daughter of Sir John St. John of Lyddiard Tregoz in Com. Wiltſh. Knt. and Bar. and by her had Iſſue two Sons, Charles who died young, and John the late famous Earl of Rocheſter, born An. Dom. 1648. The Father dying at Dunkirk in 1659, this young Lord had little other Inheritance but the Honour and Title deriv'd to him, with the Pretenſions his Father's eminent Services gave him to the King's Favour, which were ſo well manag'd by the Prudence of his Noble Mother, that his Education was carried on in all things ſutably to his Quality. When he was at School, he was an extraordinary Proficient, and gave pregnant Proofs of what his great Parts might be improved to, acquir'd the Latin to that perfection that he retain'd a great Reliſh of the Beauty of that Tongue to his dying Day, being exactly vers'd in the incomparable Authors that writ about Auguſtus his time. Being at the Univerſity at King Charles's Reſtauration, the general Joy and Humour of that time wrought ſo much upon him, that he broke the Courſe of his Studies, and went to Travel; yet through the care of his Governor, Dr. Balfour, employ'd the Intervals of his Extravagancies in Reading; which Fits of Studies did not a little awaken his Underſtanding. He return'd to Court at 18 Years of Age, and appear'd with as great Advantages as moſt ever had. He was a graceful and well-ſhap'd Perſon, exactly well bred, of a modeſt and civil Behaviour, and eaſie and obliging Converſation. He had a ſtrange Vivacity of Thought, and Vigour of Expreſſion. His Stile was clear and ſtrong, his Figures lively and uncommon. He made himſelf Maſter of the antient and modern Wit, and of the modern French and Italian, as well as the Engliſh. Boileau among the French, and Cowley among the Engliſh Wits, were thoſe he admir'd moſt. Though theſe Accompliſhments render'd him very acceptable at Court, he quitted it to ſhew his readineſs to hazard his Life in the Defence and Service of his Country, ſhew'd great Courage in the Attack made upon the Dutch Eaſt-India Fleet in the Port of Bergen in Norway in 1665, and the Summer following went aboard the Ship commanded by Sir Edward Spragge the Day before the great Sea-Fight that Year: During the Action (wherein almoſt all the Volunteers of that Ship were kill'd,) Sir Edward not being ſatisfied with the Behaviour of one of the Captains, could not eaſily find a Perſon that would venture through ſo much Danger to carry his Command to him, until this Lord offer'd himſelf, and went in a little Boat through all the Shot, deliver'd the Meſſage, and return'd to Sir Edward, who highly commended his Courage, as did all that ſaw that deſperate Action. At his coming from Sea he aſſociated with Company that loved Exceſſes, and which, becauſe the natural Heat of his Fancy when inflam'd with Wine made him extravagantly pleaſant and diverting, they ſtudied to engage him deeper and deeper into that Intemperance; ſo that for five Years together he was continually either under thoſe Exceſſes, or at leaſt his Blood was ſo inflam'd, that he was not in all that time cool enough to be perfectly Maſter of himſelf. This led him to ſay and do the moſt wild and unaccountable Things imaginable, and involv'd him in odd adventures and Frolicks, very often to the hazard of his Life. He ſeem'd to affect ſomething ſingular in his Impieties as well as his Writings, above the reach and thought of other Men, framing Arguments for Sin, and writing Panegyricks upon Vice: And the Licentiouſneſs of his Temper, and the Briskneſs of his Wit, diſpoſing him to keep no other Company than thoſe like himſelf, who divided their Time between lewd Actions and irregular Mirth; he ſecured and fortified his Mind againſt the Belief and Apprehenſions of Religion: And though a Fit of Sickneſs help'd to perſuade him fully that Death could not be the annihilating or diſſolution of the Soul, becauſe he found his Reaſon and Judgment clear and ſtrong when the Spirits were ſo low and ſpent that he could not move nor ſtir; yet this did not make him change his Notion of God, which amounted to no more than a vaſt Power that had none of the Attributes of Juſtice and Goodneſs which we aſcribe to the Deity. Morality, he confeſs'd, he car'd not for, farther than the Reputation of it was neceſſary for his Credit and Affairs. He laid out his Wit very freely in Libels and Satyrs, in which he had a peculiar Talent of mixing Wit with Malice, and fitting both with ſuch apt Words, that Men were tempted to be pleas'd with them. His other Studies were the comical and witty Writings of the Antients and Moderns, the Roman Authors, and Books of Phyſick; which laſt qualified him for an odd Adventure; for being under an unlucky Accident, which oblig'd him to keep out of the way, he diſguis'd himſelf ſo that his neareſt Friends could not have known him, and ſet up in Tower-ſtreet for an Italian Mountebank, where he practis'd Phyſick for ſome Weeks, not without Succeſs. He took pleaſure to diſguiſe himſelf as a Porter or a Beggar, ſometimes to follow ſome mean Amours, which for the variety of 'em he affected: At other times, meerly for Diverſion, he would go about in odd Shapes, in which he acted his part ſo naturally, that even thoſe who were on the Secret, and ſaw him, could perceive nothing by which he might be diſcover'd. Though he continued thus to gratifie his diſorderly Appetites for ſeveral Years, magnifying Vice, and ridiculing Vertue and Religion as much as deprav'd Wit was able, yet at laſt, upon ſerious reflection of Things, and the Learned Dr. Burnet's ſolid and proper Arguments for all the Points that he excepted againſt, he ſaw through the former Slights of Wit that had fed his Irreligion, and became ſo perfect a Convert, that he died as great a Penitent as he liv'd a Sinner, feeling ſo deep and pungent a Sorrow for the Irregularities of his paſt Life, that the extreme pain he ſuffer'd for ſome Weeks in his Body, was often ſwallow'd up in the Agonies of his Mind, vowing, That though there were nothing to come after this Life, yet all the Pleaſures he had ever known in Sin were not worth that Torture. He took the Sacrament with great Satisfaction, and that was encreas'd by the Pleaſure he had in his Lady's receiving it with him, who had been for ſome Years before of the Communion of the Church of Rome by his own Perſuaſion; ſo that it added to his Joy to ſee the Error removed which he himſelf had occaſion'd. He was fully convinc'd of the Truth of the Chriſtian Religion by hearing the Prophecy of our Saviour's Paſſion in the 53d of Iſaiah, and comparing it with the Hiſtory thereof in the New Teſtament, finding it to correſpond ſo exactly with that Prophecy which the Jews, who are Chriſt's profeſſed Enemies, do own to be of Divine Inſpiration; the reaſon of this he own'd, did not only ſatisfie the Underſtanding, but the Words themſelves were accompanied with ſuch a Power which did as effectually conſtrain him to believe in his Saviour as if he had ſeen him. He took Order to ſatisfie his Creditors, and if God had ſpared him, reſolved upon another courſe of Life; nor did he deſire to live upon any other Account, but that he might by the change of his Manners, ſome way take off the high Scandal which his former Behaviour had given: And he left it in charge, to publiſh any thing concerning him that might be a means to reclaim others; praying God, that as his Life had done much Hurt, ſo his Death might do much Good. It being urged to him, that a Death-bed Repentance, without a Renovation of the Mind, afforded but ſmall ground of Hope; he Anſwer'd, that he was ſure his Mind was entirely turned; and though Horror had given him his firſt awakening, yet that was now grown up into a ſetled Faith and Converſion. He called often for his Children, and looking upon them one time, he ſaid See how good God has been to me in giving me ſo many Bleſſings, and I have carried my ſelf to him like an ungracious and unthankful Dog. He did actually overcome that execrable Habit of Swearing, to which he was ſo much addicted; and being reprov'd for calling one Damn'd Fellow who did not bring ſomewhat that he wanted ſoon enough, he bewail'd himſelf thus, Oh! that Language of Fiends which was ſo familiar to me, hangs yet about me! Sure none has deſerved more to be damned than I have done. A little before his Death he was heard to pray very devoutly, and ſo ended his Days July 26. 1680. Religion triumphing in its Conqueſt over one of the wittieſt and ableſt of its Adverſaries that this Age has produced. Dr. Burnet*'s Life of the Earl of* Rocheſter.

WILLIS (Dr. Thomas) the moſt eminent Phyſician of his time, Son of Thomas of North-Henxſey, near Abbington in Berkſhire, was born in the Year 1621, and Educated in Chriſt-church Oxford, where he took the Degree of Maſter of Arts in 1642; about which time, Oxford being Gariſon'd for the King, he, with the reſt of the Scholars remaining, Liſted himſelf in his Majeſty's Service, employing his leaſure Hours in the Study of Phyſick; in which Faculty he became famous in a ſhort time. In 1660, upon his Majeſty's Reſtauration, he was made Sedley's Profeſſor of natural Philoſophy, ſoon after commenced Doctor of Phyſick, and upon the Foundation of the Royal Society, was choſen Fellow of that Body. In 1666, he ſettled at Weſtminſter, at the invitation of Archbiſhop Sheldon, where his Reputation and Practice were extraordinary. He was likewiſe made a Member of the College of Phyſicians, and much valu'd by that Society. He died in London in 1675, leaving behind him the Character of a pious, charitable Perſon, as well as of a very Learned and Eminent Phyſician. His Works are: Diatribæ Duæ Medico-Philoſophicæ de Fermentatione, altera de Febribus. Diſſertatio Epiſtolica de Urinis. Cerebri Anatome. De Ratione Motûs Muſculorum. Pathologiæ Cerebri & nervoſi generis Specimina, in quo agitur de Morbis Convulſivis & de Scorbuto. Affectionum quæ dicuntur Hyſtericæ & Hypocondriacæ Pathologia Spaſmodica, vindicata contra Reſponſionem Epiſtolarem Nathan. Highmore, M. D. Exercitationes Medico-Phiſicæ Duæ: Prima, De Sanguinis accenſione: Secunda, De Motu Muſculari. De Anima Brutorum quæ Hominis vitalis accenſitiva eſt, Exercitationes Duæ. Oxon. &c.

WILTON, a Market and Borough Town in the South of Wiltſhire, ſeated between the two Rivers Willy and Madder; once the chief Town of Wiltſhire, and a Biſhop's See about 150 Years; the firſt Biſhop of it was Ethelſtan, inſtalled in this See about 906, to whom ſucceeded ten Biſhops of this Dioceſe, whereof Hermannus was the laſt, who having reſigned it becauſe the Monks of Malmesbury would not give him leave to remove unto their Abby, was made Biſhop of Sherborn; and having join'd both Sees together, did ſhortly after (that is in 1506,) remove both to Salisbury; the loſs whereof was a great occaſion of the Decay of this Place. It ſtill retains the Honour of ſending two Burgeſſes to Parliament, and of being the Place where the Sheriffs keep their Monthly Courts, and where the Knights of the Shire are uſually Elected. It's 72 Miles from London.

WILTSHIRE, Lat. Wiltonia, a large In-land County of England, bounded on the North with Gloceſterſhire, on the South with Dorſetſhire, Eaſtward with Barkſhire and Hampſhire, Weſtward with Gloceſter and Somerſetſhire. It's called Wiltſhire from Wilton, once the chief Place of it, as this is probably from the River Willy, on which it's ſeated. From North to South it extends 39 Miles, and from Eaſt to Weſt 29, the whole divided into 29 Hundreds, wherein are 304 Pariſhes, and 22 Market Towns, whoſe ancient Inhabitants, together with thoſe of Hampſhire and Somerſetſhire, went by the Name of Belgæ among the Romans, the Country being part of the Kingdom of the Weſt-Saxons during the Heptarchy, and now with Barkſhire making up the Dioceſe of Salisbury. 'Tis commonly ſaid, that if an Ox and a Sheep were left to their choice where to live, the Ox would chuſe in the North, and the Sheep in the South, but that a Man would chuſe to live betwixt both to have a ſhare in the pleaſure of the Plain and the Wealth of the deep Country. Wiltſhire is certainly a pleaſant Country to live in, enjoying a good Air and fruitful Soil with a great deal of Variety, well water'd by the Iſis, Kennet, Willy, Madder, two Avons, beſides ſeveral leſſer Streams. As to the Soil, the North Parts, called North Wiltſhire, riſe up into pleaſant Hills, finely cloath'd with Woods, and water'd with clear Rivers. The South Part is more even, yielding plenty both of Graſs and Corn. The middle Part's ſo very level, that here is a Plain which by its Spaciouſneſs bounds the Sight, I mean Salisbury Plain, the fineſt perhaps in Europe. As for Manufactures, no County goes beyond this in making of Whites. For the civil Building in this County, Long-Leat, now the Viſcount of Weymouth's, is counted the biggeſt, and Wilton the ſtatelieſt, and pleaſanteſt for Gardens, Fountains, and other Accommodations. Salisbury ſends two Citizens to Parliament, Wilton, Downton, Hindon, Weſtbury, Calne, Chipenham, Devizes, Malmsbury, Criclade, Bedwin, Marlborough, Wotton-Baſſet, each of them two Burgeſſes: The ſame do theſe three, which are no Market Towns, viz. Hylesbury, Lurgeſt-Hall, and Old Sarum. So that this County ſends no leſs than 32 Members to ſerve in Parliament, beſides the two Knights of the Shire. Laſtly, this County is noted for the Title of Earl it has given to ſeveral Families: Firſt, To William Scrope, Lord Treaſurer under the Reign of Richard II. Secondly, To James Butler Earl of Ormond, and Lord Treaſurer in the Reign of Henry VI. Thirdly, To John Stafford, ſecond Son of Humphrey Duke of Buckingham, created Earl of Wiltſhire by King Edward IV. Fourthly, To Thomas Bullen Viſcount of Rochefort, Father of Lady Anne Bullen: And Laſtly, To William Pawlet, advanced to the Dignity by King Edward VI. Anno 1550, but ſoon after created Marquis of Wincheſter; in whoſe Poſterity both Titles have continued hitherto, and are now enjoy'd by his Grace Charles Pawlet, created Duke of Bolton by his preſent Majeſty.

WINBURN MINSTER, a Market Town of Badbury Hundred in the Earldom of Dorſetſhire, ſeated on the North-ſide of the Stoure, over which it has a Stone-Bridge. Queen Cuthburga ſuing a Divorce from her ſecond Husband King of Northumberland, built a Nunnery here, whereof ſhe became Abbeſs. A ſtately Minſter was afterwards rais'd here, which added not only more Glory to the Place, but alſo inlarg'd the Name of the Town, ſince called Winburn Minſter. Here the Saxon King Ethelred, the fourteenth Monarch of England, lyes interred. It's 82 Miles from London.

WINCHELSEY, a Market, Sea-Port, and Borough Town of Haſtings Rape in the Eaſt parts of Suſſex, about two Miles South of Rye, upon an In-let of the Sea: A Member of the Cinque-Ports, and once a ſtrong beautiful wall'd Town, having 18 Pariſh-Churches; but by the Receſs of the Ocean now much decay'd, and the Haven choak'd up. In 1250, the greateſt part was deſtroy'd by the Sea, ſo that it conſiſts now but of one Pariſh. In 1628, Charles I. created Eliz. Finch Viſcounteſs Maidſtone, Counteſs of Winchelſey: To which Honour Thomas her Son ſucceeded in 1633, and Henry her Grandchild in 1639. It's 69 Miles from London.

WINCHESTER, Lat. Venta Belgarum, Vintonia, Wintonia, is a Biſhop's See in Hampſhire, the Biſhop whereof is Suffragan to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury. It lyes about 60 Miles from London, Weſt-South-Weſt, pleaſantly ſeated in a Valley under Hills, with the River Itching on the Eaſt, and a Caſtle on the Weſt, the Town ſurrounded with a Wall a Mile and a half in compaſs, with ſix Gates for Entrance. A City of great Antiquity, noted among the Romans for the rich Embroideries that were made here for their Emperors, and among the Saxons, for being the Regal Seat of the Weſt-Saxon Kings, and the Metropolitan of their Biſhop's See. During the Danes Invaſion, it ſuffered much. In the Normans time it was twice defaced by the Misfortune of Fire; and being repair'd, was ſoon after ſack'd in the Civil Wars of King Stephen and Maud the Empreſs. But it had the Fortune ſtill to recover, inſomuch that in the Reign of King Edward III. it came to be the Mart for Wool and Cloth. To keep the Aſſizes and Seſſions for the County, here is a fine Hall, where it is ſaid King Arthur's Round-Table hangs up as a Monument. For the Education of Youth, here is in the Suburbs a fair College, built and endowed by William of Wickham, for a Seminary to his other College in Oxford; and not far from it a large Hoſpital for the Relief of the Poor. For the Divine Worſhip, here are, beſides the Cathedral, 5 Parochial Churches. The Cathedral, ſays Heylin, firſt Founded and Endowed by Kingil the firſt Chriſtian King of the Weſt-Saxons, who gave it all the Land within ſeven Miles of Wincheſter. His Son Kenelwalchin went forwards with his Father's Fabrick, ratified his Donation, and made Additions to it; but the Church notwithſtanding, a large and beautiful Structure, was begun by Biſhop Walkin, continued by his Succeſſors, and at laſt finiſh'd in the Fourteenth Age by William de Wickham, who built the greateſt part of the Weſt end thereof. The Chapels on the Eaſt end, beyond the Choire, had their ſeveral Founders. The whole Church was Dedicated firſt to St. Amphibalus, then to St. Peter, afterwards to St. Swithin, once Biſhop here, and laſt of all unto the Bleſſed Trinity, as it ſtill continues. In this Church lyes interred the Bodies of King Egbert the firſt ſole Monarch of England ſince the Heptarchy, King Ethelwolf his Son, Alfred with his Queen Elwith, Edmund with his Sons Alfred and Elſward, Edred and Edwin both Kings, Canute the Daniſh King with his Queen Emma, Richard and Rufus, two Sons of the Norman Conqueror. The Biſhop of this Dioceſe is Chancellor to the See of Canterbury, and Prelate of the Garter. He was anciently reputed to be Earl of Southampton, as the Biſhop of Durham is Earl of Sadberg; but the Title has been otherwiſe diſpoſed of ſince. In ſhort, ſuch are the Privileges, and ſo large the Poſſeſſions of this Biſhoprick, that Henry of Blois, Brother to King Stephen, being Biſhop of this Dioceſe, had got a Faculty from the Pope to make it an Archbiſhop's See, ſeven of the Suffragants of Canterbury being allotted thereunto. And William de Edington, one of the Biſhops of this Church, being elected to the See of Canterbury, refus'd it, ſaying, that Canterbury had indeed the higheſt Rack, but Wincheſter had the deepeſt Manger. This Dioceſe contains the Counties of Surrey and Southampton, with the Iſle of Wight, together with the Norman Iſles of Jerſey, Guernſey, Sark, and Alderney, which were added to this Biſhoprick in Queen Elizabeth's time. The two Counties, with the Iſle of Wight, contain 362 Pariſhes, whereof 131 Impropriate, the Iſle of Jerſey 121, and Guernſey with the reſt as many more. Over the Engliſh part there are two Archdeacons, the one of Wincheſter, the other of Surrey; over the Norman Iſles two Deans. In the King's Books the Biſhoprick is valued at 2793 l. 4 s. 2 d. leſs by 1000 l. than formerly it was; and the Tenths of the Clergy amount to 846 l. 1 s. The preſent Biſhop is the 73d of this See. The firſt Earl of Wincheſter was Saer de Quinſey in 1207; the ſecond, Roger de Quinſey in 1219, who died in 1264; the third, Hugh de Spencer, created in 1322, and Beheaded in 1326; the fourth, Lewis de Bruges in 1472. In 1551, William Pawlet Earl of Wiltſhire, was created Marquis of Wincheſter, whoſe Poſterity in the 6th Deſcent, now enjoy it.

WINDER, or Wimander Meer, a Lake dividing a part of Lancaſhire from the County of Weſtmorland, extending about 10 Miles in length, and 3 or 4 in breadth, full of Fiſh, with a clear Pebbly Bottom.

WINDSOR, a Market and Borough Town of Ripplemore Hundred in Barkſhire, ſeated upon the Thames, 20 Miles from London. The Town it ſelf is of little Account, and owes its main Reputation to the Caſtle, the fineſt Royal Palace of England, and the only Caſtle now remaining of ſix this County had in former Times. Its Foundation is attributed by Geofry to King Arthur. It belonged to the Abbot of Weſtminſter until William the Conqueror compounded with him for it, giving him Wokendune and Ferrings in Exchange. The lofty Hill on which it is built, yields a moſt charming Proſpect, and the neighbouring Country excellent Game. King Charles made this his Reſidence in the Summer Seaſon, and built a ſtately Terraſs before it. In this Caſtle was born the Victorious King Edward III. who having Defeated the French and the Scots, had here at the ſame time two illuſtrious Priſoners, John King of France, and David King of Scots. In this Caſtle he inſtituted the moſt noble Order of the Garter; and this is the Place where the Ceremony of the Knights thereof is ſolemniz'd on St. George's Day. Here was alſo born Henry VI. from hence called Henry of Windſor; and this Henry, Edward IV. Henry VIII. and Charles I. lye buried in the ſtately Chapel. Windſor is noted for its neighbouring Foreſt, one of the greateſt in England.

St. WINEFRID's-WELL, commonly called Holy Well, in Flintſhire, not far from Cajervis, is a Place of great Note, and much frequented by Pilgrims and Gentry of the Roman Catholick Religion eſpecially, who bathe in this Well for the cure of many Diſeaſes. Over the Head of this Spring or Well, there ſtands a Chapel built of Free-Stone, of curious Workmanſhip, with wrought Pillars. In the Glaſs Window of the Chancel is lively portrayed the Hiſtory of St. Winefrid, how her Head was cut off by Cradoe, and ſet on again by St. Beuno. In this Well, there groweth Moſs of moſt ſweet and pleaſant Smell, which the Country People hold to be St. Winefrid's Hair. Out of this Spring ruſhes forth ſuch a mighty Stream, that within a Furlong turns three Mills. This Stream, in the Opinion of ſome Authors, broke out ſince the time of Giraldus Cambrenſis, who wrote in the Reign of Henry II. This Cambrenſis, taking no notice, either of the extraordinary rapidneſs of the Current, or of its being frequented for the miraculous Cures of the Waters, or of its being celebrated upon the account of St. Winefrid or St. Beuno's Memory, and yet it muſt be allow'd that Cambrenſis in his Journey into this Country, was particularly inquiſitive about miraculous Fountains, and other remarkable things of that nature. D. Poweli Not. ad Giraldi Camb. Itin. Cambriæ, l. II. cap. I. Cambd. Brit. publiſh'd by Mr. Gibſon.

WINFELD, called the Field of Victory, a Place between Paderborn, Dethmold, and Horne, in Weſtphalia in Germany, where Varus, Governor of the Roman Army, was defeated by Arminius. There are two little Rivers called Rodenbeck and Knockenbeck; that is, the Red River, and River of Bones, becauſe one had its Waters tinctur'd Red by the Blood of thoſe that died in the Battel, and the other was full of their Bones.

WIPREVULT, a little Town in the Dutchy of Berg, half a League from Cullen upon the Rhine. The Chambers are built there of an extraordinary faſhion, for they are very long, and vaulted with their Beams in the Air, as in ſome Churches.

WIRKSWORTH, in Derbyſhire, a pretty large and populous Town, ſo called from the Lead-Works. 'Tis beautified with a fair Church, and hath a Free-School and Alms-Houſes, as alſo a great Market on Tueſdays, chiefly for Lead, being the greateſt Lead-Market in England, and the Meeting of Lead-Merchants for the Sale thereof. From London 107 Miles.

WIRTEMBERG, or Wurtemberg, an ancient Caſtle and Dutchy of Germany. The Duke is Sovereign of this conſiderable Country that lyes between the Black Foreſt, the Palatinate of the Rhine, and Marquiſate of Baden, round the River Nekar, which gives it excellent Paſtures. In ſome parts it has much Fruit, in others is all ſtony and full of Sand. Its Rivers and Lakes abound with Fiſh. Towns and Caſtles lye very thick here, beſides a great number of Villages, whereof Stugard is Capital, and the Reſidence of the Dukes. There are alſo ſome Silver, Iron and Copper Mines. It was honoured with the Title of a Dutchy in 1465. The Dukes have the Title of Great Huntſmen of the Empire, and bear the Imperial Cornet, or Bugle Horn. They are Sovereign, and exerciſe Juſtice without Appeal in Criminal Matters; but in Civil there is ſometimes Appeal made to the Imperial Chamber of Spire. It's true, they can make no Laws, nor impoſe any Taxes, without the conſent of the States of the Country; but theſe generally agree with any which do not encroach upon their Liberties. The Dukes enjoy the Revenues of the Abby of Maulbron, and of ſeveral other Church-Lands, which he employs in maintaining rhe Univerſity of Tubingen, Hoſpitals and Proteſtant Miniſters. The Houſe of Auſtria takes the Name and Arms of Wirtemberg in its Titles. Since this Dutchy was confiſcated to Ferdinand I. Brother to Charles V. it was afterwards reſtor'd to the Prince of Wirtemberg, but upon condition that he ſhould hold it of the Houſe of Auſtria. This Feudatory Subjection ended in 1631, under Frederick Duke of Wirtemberg, upon condition only that it ſhould return to the Houſe of Auſtria upon the failing of Heirs Male. There are many good Places in this Principality, and the Prince can raiſe a conſiderable Army upon a very ſhort Warning. Some will have the Princes of this Family to be deſcended from Ebertat, Great Maſter of Charlemagne's Palace: But this Original is uncertain. Herſſe. Hiſt. Imper.

WIRTSCHAF, a kind of Maſquerade uſed in Germany and Denmark. The Word is High Dutch, and ſignifies the Innkeeper's Gueſts, as if one ſaid an After-Supper's Diverſion in an Inn. When the Company is reſolv'd to be Merry they write Billets, wherein are the Names of the Trades which they are to be of that make the Play; and theſe Trades are generally the meaner and moſt ſervile: When the Billets are drawn, each cloaths himſelf according to what has fallen to his Lot. When the Princeſs of Denmark was married to the Duke of Holſtein in 1667, there was a Wirtſchaf, where the Chance changed the King into a Poliſh Lord, the Queen into a Cut-purſe, made the Prince of Denmark a Barber's Boy, the Duke of Holſtein a Linnen-Draper, the Holland Embaſſador Maſter of a Ship, &c. Memoires du Temps.

WIRTZBOURG, a Town of Franconia in Germany, with the Title of a Biſhoprick, is called in Latin Herbipolis, that is, the Town of Herbs and Graſs, by reaſon of the vaſt number of Gardens and Meadows that environ it. The Goſpel was preach'd here in 684 by Killian, Coloman, and Theopman, Scotch-men, who amongſt others, converted Gobert Duke of Franconia, then reſiding in the Caſtle of Wirtzbourg. In 791, Boniface Archbiſhop of Mayence, made it a Biſhop's See under Burchard, who built the Cathedral of St. Sauveur. Hetam, Gobert's Son, dying without Iſſue, Charlemagne gave the Dutchy to this firſt Biſhop. Since this time it's a Cuſtom, that whilſt the Biſhop ſays Maſs ſolemnly, his Great Marſhal aſſiſts with a Sword upon his Shoulder, to ſhew, that beſides the Spiritual and Temporal Lordſhip of his Biſhoprick, he is alſo the Secular Prince, in Quality of Duke of Franconia. The Chapter of this Church is compoſed of 24 Capitulars, who have the Right to chuſe and be choſen Biſhops. When any of theſe die, one of the other Canons of the Church is admitted into his Place. To receive any one a Canon, they obſerve a very remarkable Particularity; for the Candidate is not only to give proof of his Nobility, a thing practis'd in all the great Chapters of Germany, but muſt go through the Canons that ſtand in order on both ſides, who beat him upon the Back with Rods. This Cuſtom is as ancient as the Biſhoprick. There is a famous Univerſity in this Town, that was Founded by the Biſhop Julius Echter of Meſpelbrun, who alſo Founded an Hoſpital, but died in 1617, after he had held the Epiſcopal See for 40 Years. This City is 15 Miles from Frankfort, and 19 from Mentz to the Eaſt. Huſſ. Hiſt. Imper. lib. 6.

WISBICH in Cambrigeſhire, a Town of good Account, tho' in the Fenny Part, being very well built, and fully inhabited. From London 75 Miles.

WISTOCK, a little Town of Germany in the middle of the Marquiſate of Brandenbourg, and upon the Frontiers of Mekelbourg. The great Victory gain'd by Bannier, General of the Swedes there in 1636, over the Emperor's Troops, has render'd it remarkable. It lyes upon the River of Dorſs. Baudrand.

WISTON, a mean Market Town in Pembrokeſhire, South-Wales, yet govern'd by a Mayor and Bailiffs, and ſtrengthned with a Caſtle. From London 173 Miles.

WITIKIND, a Saxon Prince, that kept the Saxons a long time in Rebellion againſt Charlemagne, who at laſt brought 'em to ſubmit to the Conditions he propoſed to 'em: But Witikind return'd with new Forces from Denmark, to awaken by his Example the antient Courage of the Saxons. Charlemagne hearing this, and being weary of ſpilling Blood after ſo many Rebellions that he had puniſh'd, had the Goodneſs to ſend one of his Gentlemen called Amalauvinus, to exhort him to his Duty, and proffer him advantageous Conditions; whereupon Witikind ſubmitted, and came to wait on the Emperor at Agny in Champagne, who receiv'd him very kindly, and gave him the Dutchy of Angrie, engaged him to be inſtructed in the Chriſtian Religion, whereof he made Profeſſion in 843. He was killed four Years afterwards by Gerold Duke of Suabia, leaving but one Son called Wipert, or Robert, the chimerical Head of ſo many great Genealogies. Crantz. Metropol. cap. 8. Witikind. Chron. Saxon.

WITNEY, a Market Town of Bampton Hundred in the South-Weſt Parts of Oxfordſhire, ſeated on the South-ſide of the River Windruſh, Eaſt of Burford. This is a large ſtragling Town, having a Free-School, and the conveniency of a fine Library. North from this Town is a noted Wood, called Whichwood Foreſt. From London 54 Miles.

WITTEMBERG, formerly Capital of the Electorate of Saxony in Germany, is a very ſtrong Place, built about 400 Paces from the River Elbe, in a vaſt Plain, ſo even that all lyes open to the Cannon of the Caſtle. The Form of the Town is near a ſquare, longer than it's large, and is Fortified by Nature as well as Art, having Marſhes to the North, and a great Channel ſluced from the Elbe to the Eaſt, beſides a very deep Ditch and good Rampart, with five great Baſtions on the ſide that it can be eaſieſt attack'd on. It's 9 German Miles from Leipſick to the North, 14 from Dreſden to the South-Weſt, and 10 from Magdeburg. In 1502, there was an Univerſity opened here by Frederick III. Elector of Saxony. In 1517, Luther began to preach the Reformation in this City, and in 1520 burnt here the Pope's Bull and Decrees, and in 1546 was buried in this City. This Strong-hold was then the only Place that held out for the Elector, who was in the Hands of the Emperor Charles V. In 1547, it was Surrendred to that Prince, who for ſome Years after made it a Priſon for ſuch as would not comply with him.

WITTEN (Henning) a German Hiſtorian, that has publiſh'd ſome Years ago five Volumes of the Monuments of the famous Men of the Seventeenth Age, viz. one of Divines, two of Philoſophers, Poets and Orators, one of Phyſicians, and one of Lawyers. Theſe comprehend the Lives or Funeral Sermons of theſe great Perſons, with a Liſt of their Works. It's properly a Collection of original Pieces made for the moſt part by theſe learned Mens Friends. As the Author is a German, he has inſiſted moſt upon his own Countrey; there be but a few French and Engliſh, no Spaniards or Italians made mention of in his Works. Baillet Jugemens des Scavans.

WIVESCOMB, a Market Town in Somerſetſhire, in the Hundred of North-Curry, upon the River Tone. From London 128 Miles.

WOBURN, a Market Town of Manſhead Hundred in the South-Weſt Parts of Bedfordſhire. It ſtands upon a riſing Ground near the Borders of Buckinghamſhire, and is much frequented, being a Thorough-Fair betwixt London and Northampton. In the Popiſh Times here was a noted Monaſtery, and at this time there is a Free-School Founded by Francis Ruſſel Earl of Bedford. About this Town great ſtore of Fullers-Earth is digg'd up, from hence called Woburn Earth. From London 37 Miles.

WOCKLEY-HOLE. This is in Mendip Hills about two Miles from Wells in Somerſetſhire: A wonderful Cave for its ſpacious Vaults, Stone-Walls, and winding Labyrinths. Dr. Hakewill, an Eye-witneſs of it, gives this account: That entring a good part of it with many Lights, he took particular Notice, that the Water which conſtantly dropp'd down from the Vault, turn'd into Rock it ſelf, as it appear'd unto him by the Shape, Colour, and Hardneſs, it being at firſt of a more clear and glaſſy Subſtance than the more antient part of the Rock; and this he found not in ſmall pieces, but in great quantity, and that in ſeveral places enough to load many Carts: From whence he concludes, that a great part of the Rocks owe their growth to that ſort of Water.

WOLFIUS (John) Native of Zurich in Swiſſerland, having ended his Studies, travelled to ſee the chiefeſt Univerſities of Germany, and at his Return to Zurich was made Miniſter and Profeſſor in Divinity in the place of Peter Martyr who died a little before. He writ ſome Books, as Commentaria & Conciones in ſacram Scripturam. Index Græcorum Nominum, quæ ad Geographiam pertinent, Onomaſticon Phyſicum & Topologicum. Onomaſticon Paleſtinæ, &c. Thuan. Hiſt.

WOLGAST, a Town of Germany in Pomerania, ſituated at one of the Mouths of Oder, called Pſin, 5 Miles from the Shore of the Baltick Sea, and 14 from Anclam. It is ſtrengthned with a noble Caſtle, formerly the Seat of its Dukes. This City was taken by the Swedes in 1630, re-taken by the Duke of Brandenburg in 1675, and reſtor'd again in 1679.

WOLLER, a Market Town in Glondale Ward in the County of Northumberland, ſituate on the ſide of a Hill near the River Till, falling Northward into the Tweed.

WOLMAR (Melchior) Native of Rotwil in the Territories of the Dukes of Longueville in Swiſſerland, ſtudied at Paris under James le Fevre of Eſtaples. Thence he went to Bourges, where he continued his Studies under Andrew Alciar. It was he taught Calvin Greek, who owns the Obligation in dedicating to him his Commentary upon the Second Epiſtle to the Corinthians. He was alſo Beza's Maſter. Vlric Duke of Wirtemberg having drawn him into Germany, made him Profeſſor of Law at Tubingen, where he taught a long time, and interpreted Greek Authors. He was ſo well vers'd in this Language, that he told the Duke he could Plead in it with more eaſe and facility than in Dutch. Having retired to Iſenach, he died there of an Apoplexy in 1561, being then 64 Years of Age.

WOLSEY (Thomas) Cardinal, a Man of ordinary Birth, but no Butcher's Son (as Cavendiſh, one of his Family, aſſures us in his Life,) of Ipſwich in Suffolk; being ſent from Ipſwich School to Magdalen College in Oxford, he became Batchelor of Arts at 15 Years of Age, and was therefore called the Boy Batchelor, and was preferred to be Schoolmaſter to the Marquis of Dorſet's Children. The Marquis dying, he went into France, where he became Servant to Sir James Nauphaut then Treaſurer of the Town of Calis, and behaved himſelf ſo well, that his Maſter preferred him to King Henry VII. His Diligence and Reſervedneſs made the King look upon him as fit for Buſineſs and Truſt; both which he ſhewed in his Embaſſy to Maximilian the Emperor, to the King's great Contentment, who beſtowed upon him, at his Return, the Deanry of Lincoln, and not long after made him the chief Almoner. Prince Henry coming afterwards to the Crown, the Favourite ſuited himſelf ſo to his Humour, that that King having taken Tournay, he beſtow'd the Biſhoprick upon Wolſey, who that he ſhould not be inferiour to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, obtain'd to be made Cardinal and Legatus à latere by the Pope, and was ſoon after advanced by the King to be his Chancellor. Wolſey now ſitting at the Helm of Church and State, had always two Croſſes and Pillars born before him where ever he went, by two of the talleſt Prieſts that were to be found in the Realm. To the better maintenance of this chargeable Eſtate, the King beſtow'd upon him the Biſhoprick of Wincheſter, and in Commendam the Abby of St. Albans, with which he held in Farm the Biſhopricks of Bath, Worceſter, and Hereford, enjoyed by Strangers Incumbents not reſiding in the Realm: And in this capacity he kept 500 Servants, among whom were 9 or 10 Lords, 15 Knights, and 40 Eſquires. But the Promotions of England being too little to fill his Graſp, he aims at Rome. Charles V. who paid him 24000 Crowns a Year, was his Client, and a great part of the Cardinals his Penſioners; but his Hopes being daſh'd by the Election of Adrian VI. the Emperor's Maſter after Pope Leo X. he fell off from the German Emperor to the French King: And to revenge himſelf farther, he promotes a Divorce from Queen Catherine, Charles's Aunt. In this Reſolution, King Henry reſolves to marry Queen Ann of Bullen, and would not hear talk of the Dutcheſs Dowager of Alencon, whom the Cardinal deſigned for him to engage King Francis the more in his own Intereſt. Wolſey hereupon writes to the Pope to oppoſe his Maſter's Deſigns, and refuſe the Diſpenſation he ſought for; which his Majeſty having Advice of by his Embaſſador at Rome, confiſcated all the Cardinal's Riches, and outed him of all Places and Benefices, except the Archbiſhoprick of York and Biſhoprick of Wincheſter, which he did not enjoy long neither; for being arreſted for High Treaſon by the Earl of Northumberland, and on his Journey to London, attended with the Lieutenant of the Tower, he fell ill, and died at Leiceſter in 1531, Aged 60. His laſt Words are ſaid to have been, Had I ſerv'd the God of Heaven as faithfully as I did my Maſter on Earth, he had not forſaken me in my Old Age, as the other hath done; adding, This is the juſt Reward that I muſt receive for my Pains and Study, not regarding my Service to God, but only my Reſpect to the King. So fell a Favourite, once look'd upon as the Arbiter of Europe, whoſe yearly Income did equal, if not exceed the Revenues of the Crown. He was ſo very exact in the honourable Circumſtances of Addreſs, that he would not abate the French Kings a ſtep in their Approaches. He gave the firſt Blow to Religious Houſes, by making his Cardinal College now Chriſt-Church, and his procuring the Pope's leave to convert 40 ſmall Monaſteries into his College of Ipſwich. Beſides theſe, he left other Monuments of his Fame, viz. White-Hall, Hampton-Court. The Lord Herbert, in his Character of him, ſays, That his Learning was far from being exact, conſiſting chiefly in the Subtilties of the Thomiſts; that his Stile in Miſſives was rather copious than eloquent, yet ever tending to the Point; and concludes, that during his Favour with the King, things ſucceeded better than afterwards, though it may be doubted, whether the Impreſſions he gave, did not occaſion divers Irregularities which were obſerv'd to follow. This Lord Herbert farther obſerves, That this Cardinal was remarkable for keeping his Word, and for the equity of his Decrees in Chancery. Dr. Corbet of his own College, complains thus of his hard Fate, and the Meanneſs of the Place of his Burial:

And though from his own Store Wolſey might have A Palace or a College for his Grave,
Yet here he lyes Interr'd, as if that all
Of him to be Remembred were his Fall.
Nothing but Earth to Earth, nor pompous Weight
Vpon him, but a Pebble or a Quait.
If thou art thus neglected, what ſhall we Hope after Death, that are but Shreds of thee?

Lord Herbert's Hen. VIII.

WOLVERHAMPTON, a Market Town in Staffordſhire, in Seiſdon Hundred, ſituate upon a Hill; enrich'd formerly with an Abby. Its Collegiate Church is annex'd to the Deanry of Windſor. From London 98 Miles.

WOLWICH, or Woolwich, a Market Town in the County of Kent, in Sutton Lath, upon the Thames; where it hath a Dock for the Royal Navy of England. From London 7 Miles.

WOODBRIDGE, a Market Town in the County of Suffolk, in the Hundred of Looes, upon the River Deben and the ſide of a ſandy Hill; provided with 4 or 5 Docks for building of Ships. It is a large and well-frequented Town, hath a fair Church with Monuments in it, and many Ships of Burthen belonging to the Inhabitants. The River Deben falls 12 Miles below it into the Sea. From London 66 Miles.

WOODSTOCK, a Market and Borough Town of Wotton Hundred, about the middle of Oxfordſhire, pleaſantly ſeated upon a ſmall River near a large Park wall'd about, and ſaid to be the firſt inclos'd Park; in which was once a Royal Houſe call'd Woodſtock Bower, built by King Henry I. and inlarg'd by King Henry II. but pull'd down and demoliſh'd in the Civil Wars under the Reign of King Charles I. In this Houſe was born Edward the Black Prince, and in the Labyrinth adjoining to it the beautiful Roſamond, King Henry the Second's Concubine, was poiſon'd by a Doſe his Queen forced upon her.

WORCESTER, Lat. Branovium, Vigornia, the chief Place of Worceſterſhire, and a Biſhop's See in the Province of Canterbury, lyes about 90 Miles Weſt-North-Weſt from London, pleaſantly ſituate on the Eaſt Bank of the Severn, over which it has a fair Stone-Bridge with a Tower upon it. And as it riſes with a gentle Aſcent, ſo it affords to the upper parts a goodly Proſpect in the Vale. Beſides the Advantage of its Situation, 'tis remarkable for its neat Buildings, number of Churches, and Wealth of the Inhabitants, who drive here a great Trade of Cloth, the fineſt in England. The Walls are 650 Paces in compaſs, with 7 Gates for Entrance, and 5 Watch Towers for Defence. 'Tis ſaid, the Romans built it to ſecure themſelves from the Britains beyond the Severn: But in the Reign of King Canute it ſuffered much from the Danes, as it did afterwards by frequent Conflagrations; yet it roſe again out of its Aſhes, aud ſo increas'd by degrees, as to contain at preſent 9 Pariſh-Churches, beſides the Cathedral. This was firſt built by Etheldred King of Mercia, and afterwards repair'd by ſeveral Biſhops of this See. Oſwald XVIII. was he who turn'd out the married Prieſts, and firſt brought in the Monks to this place, An. 964. But his Foundation being ruin'd by the Danes, the Church was brought to its preſent Perfection by Biſhop Wolfſtan, about 1030. In the midſt of whoſe Quire, the Body of King John lyes interred, and in the South-ſide that of Prince Arthur, eldeſt Son to Henry VII. whoſe Monument is all of black Jeat. The Dioceſe contains in it all Worceſterſhire and part of Warwickſhire, in all 241 Pariſhes, of which 71 impropriate: And here is but one Archdeacon which is called of Worceſter. In the King's Books 'tis valued 1049 l. 16 s. 3 d. the Clergy paying for their Tenth 228 l. In the flouriſhing times of the See of Canterbury, the Biſhop of Worceſter was peculiar Chaplain to the Metropolitan, and by his Office ſaid Maſs in all Aſſemblies of the Clergy wherein he was preſent. The City, on the other ſide, is remarkable for the Civil Titles of Honour it has given, firſt of Earl, then of Marquis, to ſeveral Noble Perſonages. The firſt Earl was Vrſus de Abot, created by William the Conqueror in 1087; the ſecond, Waleran de Beaumont in 1144; the third, Thomas Percy, Lord Admiral, in 1397; the fourth, Richard Beauchamp, in 1420; the fifth, John Tiptoft, Lord Treaſurer and Lord Conſtable in 1449, ſucceeded by Edward his Son, in 1477, who died in 1485; the ſeventh, Charles Somerſet Lord Herbert, Natural Son of Henry Beaufort, the 8th Duke of Somerſet, who was Beheaded under King Edward IV. created Earl by Henry VII. in 1414, in which Family it now is. Henry, the 7th in this Line, for his great Vertue and Loyalty was created Duke of Beaufort by Charles II. in 1682. Worceſter is particularly memorable for the Battel fought there Sept. 3. 1651, betwixt King Charles II. and the Rebels, wherein the King's Army was totally defeated. *Speed. WORCESTERSHIRE, Lat. Vigornienſis Comitatus, is an Inland County of England, having Staffordſhire on the North, Gloceſterſhire on the South, Warwickſhire Eaſtward, Hereford and Shropſhires Weſtward. From North to South it reaches 32 Miles; from South to North-Weſt 22, and from thence to its North-Eaſt Point 28. The whole's divided into 7 Hundreds, wherein are 152 Pariſh-Churches and 11 Market Towns, whoſe antient Inhabitants, together with thoſe of Cheſhire, Shropſhire, Stafford, and Warwickſhire, went by the Name of Cornavii among the Romans, the Country afterwards making part of the Heptarchy Kingdom of Mercia, and now with part of Warwickſhire making up the Dioceſe of Worceſter. A pleaſant Country both in its Air and Soil. Beſides the noble River Severn, which cuts this Shire in the midſt, it is watered by the Avon, the Team, and the Salwarp, with others of leſs Note, all ſtor'd with excellent Fiſh, the Severn particularly with Lampreys. Here are alſo Foreſts of Note, as thoſe of Wire and Teekenham; and beſides theſe, the great Woods of Norton, and the fair Chaſe of Malvern. In ſhort, this County does ſcarce yield to any either for Pleaſure or Profit, the Fields bearing plentiful Crops of Corn, the Hills and Plains ſwarming with Cattel, and the very Highways being beſet with Pear-Trees. Speed. Cambden.

WORKSHOP, a Market Town in Nottinghamſhire, in the Hundred of Baſſetlaw and the Foreſt of Sherwood, noted for excellent Liquorice. From London 110 Miles.

WORMES upon the Rhine, a Town of Germany, with an Archbiſhoprick Suffragant of Mentz. It lyes in the Lower Palatinate. The Biſhop is Lord thereof, as well as of the little Country whereof it's Capital. Authors call it Vormacie Borbetomagus, and Borbitomagus Vangionum. Attila deſtroy'd it in the 5th Age, and Clovis repair'd it again. It was often taken and re-taken in the laſt Wars of Germany. The Town was honoured a conſiderable time with an Archbiſhop's See, whereof it was depriv'd about 750 by Pope Zachary, who remov'd that Dignity to Mentz, leaving only the Title of Biſhoprick to Wormes, in Puniſhment of Gervillon, the laſt Archbiſhop his Treachery, who kill'd an Officer whom he had invited to come to confer with him out of his Enemies (the Saxons) Camp. The Canons of this Church have the Privilege to chuſe and be choſen Biſhops, but of a long time they have pray'd the Archbiſhops of Mentz to accept of the Dignity, to have the Protection of thoſe Electors. Here have been ſeveral Councils held, whereof ſome were Secular, as that held in 764 by King Pepin II. in 770, where there were Barons as well as Prelates, and no Eccleſiaſtical thing debated. Charlemagne, and Lewis the Meek, aſſembled others. It's 7 Miles above Mentz, and 6 beneath Spiers. Frederick II. Charles IV. Maximilian I. and Ferdinand I. added to its Privilege in their time. There was a Council held here in 1076, in which Pope Gregory VII. was depos'd by the Partizans of Henry IV. his Enemy. A famous Diet was alſo held here in 1521, in which Luther defended his Doctrine before the Sates of the Empire. Heiſſ. Hiſtoire.

WORSELY, a moſt worthy Family, of great Antiquity and Eſtimation in the County Palatine of Lancaſter, where at Worſeley Hall in Worſeley Demain, they have flouriſhed ever ſince the Norman Conqueſt; from whence branching into Hantſhire, where that valiant Knight Sir James Worſeley being Captain or Governor of the Iſle of Wight in the time of Hen. VIII. bravely repulſed the French in that memorable Invaſion An. 1545, when 'twas almoſt over-run; and for that good Service was rewarded with an honourable Augmentation of a Croſs ingrail'd Gules, charg'd with a Lion's Head erazed Or, in a Field Gold, to be born quarterly with his paternal Coat of Arms: which Sir James as a farther Mark of the King's eſpecial Favour, had a Grant of the Mannors of Launceſton in the County of Dorſet, Norridge in Wiltſhire, and Chidham in Suſſex, upon his marrying Ann Daughter and Heir of Sir John Leigh of Appledercomb, which hath ever ſince been the Seat of the chief of his Lineage, and is the beſt Edifice in the whole Iſle, being a large antient Stone Houſe, wherein there is a Chapel, Library, and Armory, ſtanding in a pleaſant Park, well ſtock'd with Deer, incompaſſed with a Stone Wall of about 5 Miles in Circumference, adorn'd with fine Walks, Bowling-green, Fiſh-ponds, &c. It was this publick-ſpirited Gentleman who built the Fort or Block-houſe called Worſeley's Tower, and was ſucceeded in that Government by his eldeſt Son, Richard Worſeley Eſq; who left Iſſue only two Sons, both blown up by Gun-powder, and unfortunately kill'd in their Infancy; whoſe Relict afterwards became the Wife of Sir Francis Walſingham Knight, principal Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth, and Mother to Frances their ſole Daughter and Heir (born at Appledercomb 1568,) a Lady who by her three famous Husbands, Sir Philip Sidney, Robert Devereux, Earl of Eſſex, Lord Deputy of Ireland, Knight of the Garter, &c. and Richard Bourk, Earl of Clanrickard and St. Albans, much increas'd the number of the Engliſh Nobility. John Worſeley of Swainſton in the Iſle of Wight Eſq; (Sir James's ſecond Son and Heir) founded a Free-School at Godſhill, and an Alms-houſe for ten poor Widows, whoſe Grandſon Sir Richard Worſeley of Appledercomb Knt. (Father to Sir Henry) was a great Benefactor to the Alms-houſe in the Borough of Newport, and by King James I. An. 1611, advanced to the Degree of Baronet, ſoon after the Erection of that Honour, being the 57th by Creation, but firſt of Hantſhire and moſt of the Weſtern Counties. This Family now flouriſhes in Hampſhire, and very proſperouſly continueth in the Perſons of Sir Robert Worſeley of Appledercomb Baronet, Sir Edward Worſeley of Gatcombe, and Sir James Worſeley of Pilewell, Knights, and Henry Worſeley Eſq; of Compton, Son of Sir Robert, and Brother to the preſent Sir Robert. Stow's *Annals. WORSELEY (Thomas) of Hovingham within the North Riding of the County of York, Eſq; lineally deſcended, and the right Heir of Elias Lord of Workeſly and Booths in the County Palatine of Lancaſter, in the time of the Norman Conqueſt.

WORSTIUS or VORSTIUS, (Conradus) Profeſſor of Divinity, and chief Miniſter at Steinfurt, was afterwards called to the higheſt Chair of the Univerſity of Leyden in Holland, where he preach'd, and in the beginning of this Age taught ſeveral ſcandalous Propoſitions, contrary to God's Perfections, viz. his Simplicity, Immenſity, Immutability, Eternity, &c. This Doctrine rendred him odious to many of his own Party. James I. King of England, ſaid, his Writings deſerv'd to be burn'd, and writ to the States of Holland to diſmiſs him. Spond. A. C. 1610.

WORTHINGTON, the Name of an antient Seat and Family within the Pariſh of Standiſh in the County Palatine of Lancaſter; taken notice of by the induſtrious Mr. Cambden in his Britannia, together with other Seats in the ſame Parts; as having given Names to famous Families, and till then continuing in the hands of thoſe of the ſame Name: Whereupon he makes this remarkable Obſervation, "That thoſe and ſuch like Families in the North County, as they roſe by their Bravery, and "grew up more and more by their Frugality, and the antient "ſelf-contented Simplicity; ſo in the South Parts of England, "Luxury, Uſury, Debauchery and Cheating, have undone the "moſt flouriſhing Families in a ſhort time, inſomuch that many complain, how the Old Race of our Nobility fades and de-"cays. Next to the Worthingtons of Worthington Hall; after a long continuance in Splendor, at laſt honourably eclipſed for their Loyalty, during the Troubles and Exile of King Charles the Firſt and Second; ſince tranſlated to London; and now almoſt failing for want of Iſſue, (not to omit the ſecond Deſcendants in Eſſex, of whom afterwards; nor thoſe reſiding ſometime at Welborn and Branuſton in Com. Linc. as neither thoſe of the Name in Northamptonſhire; all ſtanding upon Record in the College of Arms.) The moſt noted within the ſaid County Palatine of Lancaſhire, (found in the ſame Office,) are, Firſt, The Worthingtons of Blaynſco (aliàs Blyneſchoh) in the aforementioned Pariſh of Standiſh; derived from William de Worthington, Gent. (a ſecond Brother out of the Houſe of Worthington,) by Iſabel his Wife, Daughter and Heir of John de Bleyneſchoh, Gent. (tempore Edw. III.) in four Lineal Deſcents to Peter Worthington Eſq; who married Joan, Daughter and Coheir of Richard Lowde, of Preſton in Amounderneſs; and in four more to Tho. Worthington Eſq; who married Mary, Daughter and ſole Heir to George Alan of Roſs-Hall, Eſq; (Neece and Heir to Cardinal Alan,) and was Grandfather to Tho. Worthington Eſq; now living; who hath Iſſue by Jane his Wife, Daughter to John Plompton of Plompton in Com. Ebor. Eſq; two Sons and four Daughters; (others deceaſed,) as alſo Richard Worthington his Son and Heir apparent, hath by Margaret his Wife, ſole Daughter and Heir to Edward Alcock of Eccleſton in Com. Lanc. Eſquire. Secondly, The Worthingtons of Crawſhaw in Adlington, within the Pariſh of Standiſh; Of whom, Lawrence Worthington (fifth in Deſcent from Chriſtopher Worthington of Crawſhaw, Gent. by Joan his Wife, Daughter and Coheir to William Thornton of Thornton,) having buried his Son and Heir apparent without Iſſue, his Daughters became Coheirs; who at the Viſitation, Anno 1665, (he then living at 67,) were, Agnes Wife of Tho. Weſley of Chorley, Dorothy Wife of William Barnes of Blackrod, and Ann. Thirdly, The Worthingtons of Shevington in the ſaid Pariſh of Standiſh; Of which Line, Nicholas Worthington married Amelia, Daughter and Heir to Thomas Duxburie in Com. Lanc. Gent. by whom he had Iſſue, Nicholas Worthington of Shevington, married to Agnes, Daughter of Thomas Worthington of Worthington Hall, Eſq; by whom he had Iſſue Margaret his Daughter and Heir, married firſt to Edward Chiſenhall of Chiſenhall, afterwards to William Houghton of Parkhall, Eſq; Lieutenant Collonel of Horſe to Collonel Tho. Dalton of Lancaſhire, ſlain in the firſt Battel at Newbury, in the Service of King Charles I. Anno 1643. Fourthly, The Worthingtons of Snidehill in the Pariſh of Dene, deſcended from James Worthington, (a ſecond Brother of the Crawſhaw Line, Uncle to Laurence Worthington afore-named,) married at leaſt 100 Years ago, to Ann, Daughter and ſole Heir of Roger Pendlebury of Snidehill, by Ann his Wife, Daughter of Adam Eccleſton of Great Eccleſton, and Coheir to Adam Eccleſton her Nephew. Fifthly and Laſtly, The Worthingtons of Mancheſter; From Roger Worthington, a Perſon of chief Note and Eſteem in that Town, (contemporary with the afore-mentioned James Worthington,) continued to Francis Worthington, (deceaſed E. pr.) Son of Francis Worthington, a younger Son to the ſaid Roger: His elder Brother John Worthington, (afterwards Doctor in Divinity,) and Samuel Worthington his younger Brother, (who died young) being tranſplanted to Cambrige; where, as the Name was well known in the Univerſity long before, (not to mention others ſince) in the Perſon of William Worthington of Clarehall, (who died Feb. 17. 1507. and was buried in St. Edward's Church in Cambrige; witneſs his Marble Monument till the late Times;) ſo in the County, by the Office of another William Worthington, High Sheriff of Cambrigeſhire, &c. Anno Eliz. 8. 1566.

WORTHINGTON (Gilbert) D. D. Parſon of St. Andrew Holborn, in Com. Middleſex, in the time of King Henry VI. a moſt famous Preacher in thoſe days, greatly noted for his good Life; and (if not promoted, at leaſt) of powerful Intereſt at Court, as appears by the Teſtimony of Mr. Stow in his Chronicle, from a Record dated 26 Hen. VI. (1447) the Year in which he died.

WORTHINGTON (John) D. D. ſometime Maſter of Jeſus College, Vice-Chancellor of the Univerſity, and Rector of Fen-Ditton in the County of Cambrige; afterwards Rector of Ingoldsby in Lincolnſhire, and Prebendary in the Cathedral Church; born of virtuous and religious Parents at Mancheſter, in the County Palatine of Lancaſter, Anno 1617. His Father Roger Worthington afore-mentioned; his Mother deſcended from an antient Family of the Heywoods in the ſame County. As he was about to reſign the Rectory of Ingoldsby, by reaſon of his being choſen Lecturer at Hackney, near the City of London; and to hold of the Dean and Chapter of Windſor, the Rectory of St. Bennet Fynk, London, (where he had been Preacher before for two Years, till the dreadful Fire, Anno 1666;) departed this Life in Nov. 1671, at Hackney aforeſaid, (and lyeth interr'd in the Chancel,) ſurviv'd of his only Son and two of his Daughters, by Mary his Wife (deceaſed before him,) Daughter to Chriſtopher Whichcote Eſq; ſometime a Spaniſh Merchant at London, Brother of Sir Jeremy Whichcote Baronet. He hath left behind him the Character of a moſt excellent Perſon in all the Parts of his Life. In the private Capacities of a Chriſtian; one of ſtrict Piety and Devotion, accompanied with a ſweet and obliging Converſation, ſingular Sedateneſs and Sobriety of Spirit, profound Humility, univerſal Charity, and every other divine Grace and Vertue in a very high Degree: As a Scholar, of admirable Parts and Induſtry, well vers'd in all the varieties of ingenuous Studies and polite Literature, eminently skill'd in the learned Languages as well Oriental as Occidental, and completely furniſhed with all ſorts of uſeful Learning requiſite either to the Profeſſion of a Divine, or to render him more univerſally uſeful to the Learned part of the World: In his publick Capacities, a moſt vigilant Governor, profitable Preacher, and faithful Guide of Souls; whoſe conſtant deſire and endeavour was to maintain good Order, Peace and Charity, promote Piety and Learning, and propagate a reverential Regard to the Government and Diſcipline of the Church, where he had power and intereſt: One of ſingular Eminency for the vaſt Publickneſs of his Spirit, his mighty zeal and induſtry to be ſerviceable to the good of others, (much more in his deſire and eſteeem than heigth and greatneſs;) witneſs his unwearied Endeavours through the whole courſe of his Life; particularly thoſe uſeful pains he took for ſeveral Years together, in Collecting, Reviſing, and Publiſhing the Elaborate Works of the famous Mr. Joſeph Mede, one of the great Glories of our Church and Nation, ſometime Fellow of Chriſt's College in Cambrige, and Chaplain to that moſt Reverend Primate and Martyr, Archbiſhop Laud; a moſt laborious Undertaking, ſo exceeding well perform'd, that thereby he hath highly obliged ſucceeding Ages, and raiſed up to himſelf a Monument, as long as Religion and Learning laſt in the World.

WORTHINGTON (Thomas) D. D. a Seminary Prieſt, and noted Writer, much eſteem'd for his extraordinary Learning and Piety; many Years Preſident of the Engliſh College at Doway; at length Protonotarius Apoſtolicus: When grown old, he laid down his Government in the College, and return'd into England; where he was born at Blaynſco in Lancaſhire, about the Year 1548, (fourth and youngeſt Son to Peter Worthington Eſq; before-mention'd,) and died in Derbyſhire about 1626. Having for about ſix Months before his Death, taken upon him the Order and Habit of the Society of Jeſus; as had long before him two of his Nephews, John and Laurence, Sons to Richard Worthington of Blaynſco, Eſq; by Dorothy his Wife, Daughter of Tho. Charnock of Charnock in Com. Lanc. Eſquire.

WORTHINGTON (Sir William) of Springfeild, in Com. Eſſex, Knt. Gentleman-Porter of the Tower of London, (the Office being a place of Truſt and Dignity, held by Patent from the Crown) and one of the honourable Band of Gentlemen Penſioners to Queen Elizabeth and to King James I. as his Father had been to King Henry VIII. King Edward VI. Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth. A valiant and active Man in Martial Gallantry; as appears by an account of thoſe Lords and Gentlemen that were famous for publick Exerciſes of Arms in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth; particularly (to omit other Inſtances,) in his being one of the Defenders at that Royal Combat and moſt Magnificent Triumph perform'd before her Majeſty, 1 Jan. 1581. where Monſieur of France (then Brother and Heir apparent to the French King and Suitor to Queen Elizabeth,) the Prince D' Auſine, the Earl of Suſſex, the Earl of Leiceſter, the Count St. Aignon, Monſieur Chaunallon and Monſieur Barqueville, were Challengers. This Sir William Worthington was Son to William Worthington of Orſett in Com. Eſſex, by Ann his Wife, Daughter to Sir John Tirrell of Warley in the ſame County, Knt. Maſter of the Horſe to King Henry VIII. And having married two Wives, (firſt, Mary, Daughter to Richard Atkins Recorder of London; ſecond, Margaret, Relict of Richard Eden of Hanfield in Eſſex, Daughter of Chriſtopher Peyton of Bury St. Edm. in Suff. Eſq, by Jane his Wife, Siſter to Sir Walter Mildmay, Knt.) by the firſt he left Iſſue four Daughters and Coheirs; Margaret married to Francis Royſton of Hackney, Gentleman-Penſioner to King James I. Frances married firſt to Jo. Maſters, ſecondly to Jo. Gillett; Mary married to Gabriel Warcop of Alesford in Kent, alias of Hadley in Suff. Ann married to Francis Bernard of Margetine and Eaſt Hanfeild in Com. Eſſex, Eſq; Juſtice of Peace in the ſaid County, and Gentleman-Porter of the Tower of London, where he died at the Lodgings belonging to that Office, and was ſolemnly buried within the Chapel Royal in the ſaid Tower.

WORTIN, a Town and Dutchy of Muſcovy in the Northern part towards Little Tartary and Lithuania.

WOTTON (Edward) born at Oxford. He was bred to Learning, and practis'd Phyſick with great Reputation. He printed a Book, De Differentiis Animalium; in which, as Poſſevin obſerves, He has collected ſo fully what the Antients writ upon this Subject, and reconcil'd the ſeeming Diverſities of their Opinions ſo nicely, that all his Quotations ſeem to have been extracted out of one Author; and beſides this, he has made curious Remarks and judicious Corrections upon the whole. He died at London in 1555. Thuan. Hiſt. Poſſevin.

WOTTON (Sir Henry) Son of Thomas Wotton Eſq; by Elizabeth Daughter of Sir William Finch of St. Martin's Pariſh in the County of Kent, was born at Bockton-Hall in Com. Kent, in 1568. He was admitted in New College Oxford, from whence he remov'd to Queens, where he took the Degree of Maſter of Arts; at which time, he read three Latin Lectures, De Oculo, which gain'd him great Reputation, and the particular Eſteem of Albericus Gentilis, the Law Profeſſor. Upon his leaving Oxford, he travell'd into France, Germany and Italy; and having ſpent about nine Years abroad, he return'd into England, and became Secretary to Robert Earl of Eſſex, with whom he continued till that Earl was proclaim'd Traitor, and then left England once more, and retiring to Florence, became ſo well known to the great Duke, that he was privately by him diſpatch'd away with Letters, to James VI. King of Scots, to acquaint him with a Deſign againſt his Life; and here, for his better Security, he went under the Name of Octavio Baldi: Having acquitted himſelf handſomly in this Buſineſs, his Services were remember'd by that Prince, who, when he came to the Crown of England, Knighted him, and ſent him thrice Ambaſſador to the Republick of Venice, once to the States of the United Provinces, twice to the Duke of Savoy, once to the Princes of the Upper Germany in the Convention of Hailbrun: He was ſent likewiſe to the Archduke Leopold, to the Duke of Wittenburgh, to the Imperial Cities of Strasburgh and Ulme, and to the Emperor Ferdinand II. About 1623, he was made Provoſt of Eaton, where he ſpent the remainder of his Life. He died in 1639. Sir Henry Wotton was a Perſon of Wit, Learning and Piety, a very accompliſh'd Gentleman, and diſcharg'd his Embaſſies to ſatisfaction. His Writings are, Epiſtola de Gaſparo Scioppio. Epiſtola ad Marcum Velſerum. The State of Chriſtendom, or a more exact and curious Diſcovery of many ſecret Paſſages and hidden Myſteries of the Times; printed at London in 1657: Moſt of the reſt of his printed Works, are collected in a Book, call'd Reliquiæ Wottonianæ. Walton in Sir Henry Wotton's Life. Athen. Oxon.

WOTTON-BASSET, a Market Town in Wiltſhire, in Kingsbridge Hundred; ſo called for diſtinction from Wotton-Under-Edge in Glouceſterſhire. 'Tis the Capital of its Hundred. From London 66 Miles.

WRANGEL (Charles Guſtavus) Mareſchal, then General and Lord High Conſtable of Swedeland, acquir'd great Dignities by his Valour, which he ſignaliz'd both by Sea and Land. Having the Command of a Squadron, he burn'd the Ships of the Admiral of Denmark. In 1646, he ſucceeded Torſtenſton as General of the Army, and the next Year took Egger in Bohemia, and the Town of Bregens with the Fort towards the Lake of Conſtance, where he made a great Booty. In 1648, being join'd with Mareſchal Turenne and Koningſmark, he defeated the Imperialiſts and Bavarians near Sommerhauſen in the Neighbourhood of Augsbourg. In 1658, Commanding the Naval Forces, he beat the Hollanders at the Chops of the Sund. He died in 1676, being Lord High Conſtable of Swedeland. Puffendorf in Hiſt. Sivec. Memoirs Hiſtoriques, &c.

WUCZIDERN, Lat. Viminiacium, or Viminacium, a Town of Servia upon the Danube, 15 Miles from Belgrade towards the Eaſt. It belongs to the Turks.

WURINGEN, a Town of Germany in the Circle of the Lower Rhine. It depends on the Elector of Cullen, and is famous in Hiſtory by the Battel fought there formerly between thoſe of Cologne and the Duke of Brabant. Baudrand.

WURZEN, a little Town of Miſnia in Upper Saxony in Germany, upon the River Muldaw. It belonged formerly to the Counts of this Name. It's now a Dependance of the Biſhoprick of Meiſſen; ſo that the Elector of Saxony, Adminiſtrator or Diſpoſer hereof, enjoys it. It's two Miles from Leipſick towards the Eaſt.

WYTEMBOGART (John) a famous Miniſter of the Remonſtrants in Holland, was born at Utrecht in 1557. After he had finiſh'd his firſt Studies in his own Country, he went to Geneva, where he ſtudied Divinity under Theodore Beza. He return'd to Utrecht in 1584, where he was choſen Miniſter. Being thence invited to the Hague in 1590, he preach'd in this laſt place both in French and Dutch with equal Applauſe. He was lov'd and eſteem'd by the States of Holland, by John Oldenbarnevelt, Advocate of the States, and by Prince Maurice, who had him to his Camp to preach. He was alſo adviſ'd with upon all important Matters; but being of the Number of thoſe that were for tolerating the Remonſtrants, whereof himſelf was one, he was forced to fly to Antwerp, whence he made his Eſcape into France for fear of Barnevelt's Fate. His Goods were confiſcated in 1619; but there being no proof againſt him of any thing beſides his being a Remonſtrant, he returned into Holland in 1626, after Prince Maurice's Death, who was the Cauſe of his Baniſhment. He offer'd to juſtifie himſelf, but was not allowed, being only permitted, according to the Cuſtom of the Country, to buy one of his own Houſes: After which time he lived peaceably in Holland, performing the Function of the Miniſtry amongſt the Remonſtrants. He died there in 1644, in the 87th Year of his Age. The chiefeſt of his Works are, His Life, and Eccleſiaſtick Hiſtory, in Folio; wherein he gives a particular Account of what paſſed in Holland during the Synod of Dort. Johannes Wytembogarts Leven.

WYE, a River in Wales, riſes out of Plindlimon Hill upon the Borders of Montgomery and Cardigan Shires, runs through Radnorſhire, which it parts a good way from the County of Brecknock, and then through Herefordſhire. From thence it ſerves for a Boundary betwixt Monmouth and Gloceſter Shires, till it falls, within two Miles of Chepſtow, into the Severn. In Radnorſhire it waters Rayador Gowy; in Brecknockshire, Hay; in Herefordſhire, Hereford and Roſs; in Monmouthſhire, Monmouth and Chepſtow aforeſaid.

X.

X. THIS Letter has the force of a double Conſonant, which made the Ancients often make uſe of it inſtead of cs and gs, ſaying Apex for Apecs, and Grex for Grecs. Quintilian and Cicero have obſerv'd, that this Letter cou'd be very well ſpar'd in Latin. The Ancients made uſe of it to mark Ten, which is the Reaſon that V, half the X, is put for Five: and in this ſenſe Auſonius ſpeaks of it in his Verſes de Litt. Monoſ.

In Latio numerus Denarius, Argolicum X.

There are alſo ſome ancient Coins called Denarii, becauſe the Letter X is ſtamped upon them.

XACCA, the firſt Founder of Idolatry in the Indies and Eaſtern Countries: but none but the Japonees call him ſo; for the Indians call him Rama; the Chinois, Xian; the People of Tonquin, Chiaga. The Hiſtory of his Life relates, that his Mother being big with him, dream'd that ſhe bore a white Elephant: And this Fable is the Occaſion of that ſo great Paſſion the Kings of Siam, Tonquin, and China, have for white Elephants, that they believe themſelves very happy when they can meet with any. This Xacca having retir'd into a Deſart, invented the Worſhip of Devils, and at his Return out of this Solitude, found 80000 Diſciples, amongſt whom he choſe 10000 to inſtruct others in theſe deteſtable Doctrines, ordering them to put no other Title to their Books but this, Ipſe dixit; and this to imitate the Submiſſion of the Diſciples of Pythagoras, who in ſpeaking of their Maſter uſed to ſay αὐτὸς ἔφα, he himſelf affirm'd it, meaning their Maſter. The Deſign of this Impoſtor in this, was to hinder Diſputes, leſt People ſhould forſake his Superſtitions upon a ſtrict Examination. The Brachmanes ſay, that Xacca has ſuffer'd a Metempſychoſis 80000 times, and that his Soul has paſs'd into ſo many different kinds of Beaſts, whereof the laſt was a white Elephant; and that after all theſe Changes he was receiv'd into the Company of the Gods, and is become a Pagode. Kircher de la Chine.

XAGUA, a Gulf upon the Southern Coaſts of the Iſle of Cuba, one of the Antilles in America. The French call it the great Port, becauſe it's one of the faireſt and moſt convenient in America. The Length is about a Cannon ſhot, and the Breadth as far as a Piſtol can carry. It's hemm'd in on both ſides with Rocks, which ſeem a Wall they are ſo even: theſe form a Key. It's ſo deep, that any Ships may eaſily come into it. Over-againſt this Channel is a great Bay, environ'd with a riſing Ground. This Bay has about ſix Leagues in circuit; and in the middle of it there is a little Iſland, where Ships have the beſt Water in the World. In the Neighbourhood of this Port the Spaniards have Parks, wherein they breed a great number of Swine: theſe Parks have Trees which bear Fruit and Grain ſucceſſively every Year; ſo that theſe Hogs never go abroad for Food. There are ſome Spaniards who get 5 or 6000 Crowns a Year by theſe Parks, without being at any conſiderable Expences. Oexmelin. Hiſt. des Indes.

XAMSI, a Province of China, to the North, between Pekeli and Xenſi. The chief Town is called Taiven; the other principal Towns are, Tingianh, Teitung, Lugan, and Fuencheu; who have 72 other Towns under them. Some affirm, that there are hot Wells in this Province made uſe of to boil Meat in this faſhion: The hole or mouth of the Well is all made up, only a place left to put the Pot in; ſo the ſtrength of the Fumes being thus ſhut in, the Meat is boil'd in a very ſhort time. Theſe Wells are thought to be nothing elſe but certain Conduits that are heated by ſubterranean Fires. Here is alſo Pit-Coal, much of the nature of that of Juliers in Germany. When it's drawn up they break and make it up into a kind of Paſte or Mortar; and being thus prepared, it is hard to make it take fire: but when it once burns it laſts a long time. Kircher. China. Martinius Atlas Sin.

XANTHUS, a River of Leſſer Phrygia in Aſia Minor or Natolia, otherwiſe call'd Scamander. It was called Xanthus for the property of its Water, which makes the Wool of Sheep that drink of it Yellow; which the Greeks call Xanthum. Ariſt. Hiſt. Animalium, lib. 3.

XANTIENS, Xanthiens, certain People of Aſia, who being beſieged and brought very low by Harpagus Lieutenant to King Cyrus, ſhut their Children, Wives, Servants, and Goods, in their Citadel, and put fire to it, then ran deſperately upon the Enemy, and were all cut off. Herod. lib. 1.

XANTIPPE, Socrates's Wife, and a troubleſome one. Alcibiades ask'd Socrates, How he did to bear with her? the other anſwer'd, She exercis'd his Patience, and ſo inured him the better to bear the Humours of other troubleſome People. Laertius.

XANTIPPUS, a famous Lacedemonian, was ſent by his Country to ſuccour the Carthaginians againſt the Romans; who under the Conduct of Attilius Regulus had beat Amilcar and the two Aſdrubals. This brave Commander ſtop'd the Romans Proſperity, beat them in ſeveral Rencounters, and in ſpight of Regulus's Reſiſtance put the Carthaginians upon the Offenſive. After this Service the Carthaginians ſent him home with many Tokens of their Acknowledgment; but under-hand ordered thoſe that were to ſee him back, to contrive that he might be Caſt away. This Treachery confirm'd the general Opinion, That the Carthaginians were not to be Truſted. Appianus Alexandrinus de Bello Lybico.

XANTUNG, a Province of the Empire of China, one of the fertileſt of the whole Country. Its Towns are Cinan, Jencheu, Tachang, Cingeheu, Tengeheu, and Laicheu, which are Capitals of 98 others.

XAOHING, a Town of China upon the River Che in the Province of Chekiangt, one of the fineſt of the Country: built like Venice.

XAVIER. See Francis Xavier.

XAUXA, a River of Southern America in Peru. It comes out of the Lake of Chincacocha, and receives the Rivers of Parchos, of Timague, Abancay, Apurima, and Incay; and afterwards paſſes through the Provinces of Maina, Mananes, Pachamores, and diſcharges it ſelf into the great River of the Amazones.

XENARCHUS, a Peripatetick Philoſopher, Native of Seleucia, a Town of Cilicia in Aſia minor, and Strabo's Maſter. He taught publickly in Alexandria, and was belov'd by the Emperor Auguſtus. He loſt his Sight a little before his Death. There was another Comick Poet of this Name quoted by Ariſtotle, &c.

XENIADES of Corinth being about to buy Diogenes the Cynick amongſt other Slaves, ask'd him what he could do? To which he anſwer'd, That he knew how to command People that had their Liberty. This Anſwer made Xeniades buy him; and giving him his Liberty, with the Charge of his Children, ſaid, Receive theſe, and command them. Aulus Gellius l. 2. c. 18.

XENOCRATES of Calcedon, Philoſopher, Son of Agathenor, was Plato's Diſciple. Though his Judgment was good, his Parts ſeem'd a little heavy: which made his Maſter ſay, that Ariſtotle wanted a Bridle, and Xenocrates a Spur. He govern'd the School of Athens for 25 Years, and was ſent Embaſſador by the Athenians to Philip King of Macedonia, and a long time after to Antipater; in which Occaſions he ſhew'd much Prudence and Moderation. Alexander the Great had ſo great an Eſteem for him, that he ſent his Embaſſadors to carry him 30 Talents of Gold; which Xenocrates return'd again: and having treated the Embaſſadors at his Table, ſaid, You ſee I do not need your Preſents, for a little ſatisfies me; Money is neceſſary to Kings, Philoſophers have no occaſion of any. He uſed to ſay, That ſeveral have repented of Speaking, but none, or very few, of having held their Tongues. He chid a Scholar that came to hear him without ſtudying the Mathematicks, that Science being, in his Opinion, the Key to all others. He writ ſix Books upon Nature, ſix of Philoſophy, and one concerning Riches. It's ſaid he died ſtifled in a heap of Meal that he fell into, in the 82d Year of his Age. Voſſius. Geſner.

XENOPHANES of Colophon, a Philoſopher, was in great eſteem in the LXth Olympiad. It's ſaid, that being baniſh'd his Country he went to Zanale and Catana in Sicily, and that he compos'd a great number of Verſes; Diogenes Laertius ſays 2000. He admitted four Elements, and an infinite number of Worlds. Diog. Laert.

XENOPHILUS, a Muſician, and Pythagorean Philoſopher, noted for living 105 Years in perfect Health and great Reputation. Pliny.

XENOPHON, General, Philoſopher, and Hiſtorian, was Native of Athens, and Son of Gryllus. He ſtuck to Socrates, and was one of the moſt famous Diſciples that this Philoſopher had; but at laſt was oblig'd to take to the Profeſſion of Arms; and being at the Head of the Troops, he enter'd Byzantium, and by his Eloquence hinder'd that Town's being plunder'd. This was in the XCVth Olympiad. Afterwards he had the Honour of making that memorable Retreat with 10000 Greeks ſent to aſſiſt Cyrus the Younger; of which Retreat Xenophon hath left us the Hiſtory. He publiſh'd that of Thucydides, and continued it, being the firſt Philoſopher that undertook this ſort of work. He alſo writ Cyrus the Elder's Inſtitution; a Work, according to Cicero, purely Moral and not Hiſtorical. Theſe fine Pieces gain'd their Author the Sirname of the Grecian Bee, and Athenian Muſe, to expreſs his fine Language and ſmooth Stile. As for the Book of Equivocals, printed in the laſt Age under his Name, it's well enough known to be a Cheat of Annius de Viterbo, as well as that of Beroſus, and a dozen more. As for the reſt, he and Plato were no great Friends; but Diogenes Laertius tells us, it was only an Emulation for Reputation in point of Learning. After the famous Retreat out of Perſia, Xenophon follow'd Ageſilaus into Aſia, was with him at the Battel of Coronea, whence he retir'd to Scillus that belong'd to the Lacedemonians, becauſe he was baniſh'd Athens for ſiding with Cyrus. He liv'd there and ſtudy'd Philoſophy, compoſing ſeveral Treatiſes of Morals, with the Hiſtory mention'd before, until the Lacedemonians were ſubdued by Epaminondas: then he retir'd to Corinth, where he died, aged 90 Years, in the CVth Olympiad. It's ſaid of Xenophon, that News being brought him, as he was Sacrificing, that his Son was dead, he put off the Garland of Flowers which he wore on his Head; but when he heard that he died like a courageous Man, and that it was he who kill'd Epaminondas at the Battel of Mantinea, he put on his Garland again. There have been ſeveral other Authors of this Name. Diog. Laert. lib. 2. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc.

XENSI, a Province of China, the Capital of which is Sigan. The other Cities are, Fungciang, Hancchung, Pingleang, and Gungchand, Liniaco, Kingiang, and Sangang, with 108 leſs conſiderable Towns, and 19 Fortreſſes. Martin Martini Atlas Sinicus.

XEQUEAYDAR, King of Perſia, and Father of Iſmael Sophi, he was Native of Ardeville in the Province of Chirvan or Servan, near the Sea of Tabriſtan. It's in this Town the Kings of Perſia, and Princes of the Blood, are buried. Cha-Sophri's Tomb is in the principal Moſque, which is made of fine inlaid Wood, and environ'd with Silver and Gold Candleſticks for Lights on Days of Solemnity.

XEROPHAGIA, Faſt-days in the firſt Ages of the Church, on which they did eat nothing but Bread and Salt, and drank only Water. The Word comes from ξηρὸς Dry and φαγεῖν to Eat; as if we ſhould ſay, a Faſt wherein one is to eat nothing but dry things: afterwards there were Pulſe, Herbs, and Fruits added. This great Faſt was kept the ſix Days of the Holy Week, for Devotion, and not by Obligation; ſo that the Church condemn'd the Montaniſts, who of their own private Authority would oblige all People not only to obſerve the Xerophagia of the Holy Week, but alſo other Faſts that they had eſtabliſhed as well as ſeveral Lents. The Eſſenes, whether they were Jews, or the firſt Chriſtians of the Church of Alexandria, obſerv'd Xerophagia, or certain Days; for Philo ſays, that to their Bread and Water they put nothing but Salt and Hyſſop. *Epiphan. in Expoſit. XERXES, the firſt of this Name King of Perſia, though but ſecond Son of Darius, yet was preferred to Artabazanez, the eldeſt Brother. The Reaſon of the Choice was this, that Xerxes was born of Atoſſa when his Father was King, the other being born when Darius was but a private Gentleman. Xerxes ſucceeded in the 269th Year of Rome. He begun his Reign by reducing Egypt, whereof he made his Brother Achemenes Governor; afterwards made War againſt Greece, ſome ſay with eight hundred thouſand Men. He laid a Bridge over the Helleſpont, and then dug through the Iſthmus of Mount Athos; but being come as far as the Straights of Thermopylæ, Leonidas and only 300 Lacedemonians diſputed that Paſs with a great deal of Bravery againſt all his Army, and kill'd him and a great many Men, but at laſt were overlaid by numbers. At the ſame time the Athenians gain'd the Sea-fight of Salamis, which Loſs, attended with many Shipwrecks, ſo ſtartled Xerxes, that he return'd home, leaving Mardonius to command the reſt of the Army in Greece. Artabanus, Native of Hyrcania, kill'd him in the 289th Year of Rome, after a Reign of 20 Years. Artaxerxes ſucceeded him, and left Xerxes II. who reign'd but two Months, in the 329th Year of Rome. Herodotus lib. 7. & 8. *Diodor. XICOCO, an Iſland of Japan, alſo call'd Chicoko or four Kingdoms, becauſe it has ſo many, viz. Ava, Ivo, Sanuqui, and Toſa; but there is no conſiderable Town in any.

XIMENES (Francis) Cardinal of Spain, and Archbiſhop of Toledo, was of the Family of Ciſneres in the Country of Villaiza. He had a hand in the Edition of the Bible of Alcala, in Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and Chaldaick. And to make this Work perfect, bought the moſt ancient Manuſcripts that could be found, which he got examin'd by People very learned and well vers'd in the Tongues: Seven Hebrew Copies coſt him 4000 Crowns; the ancient Latin and Greek Manuſcripts of 800 Years ſtanding, coſt very conſiderable Sums; the Work began in 1520, and was in hand 15 Years. After the Taking of Granada he headed the Troops that Took Oran in Africa. It was he who Founded the fine College of Alcala, and the ſtately Library that is there. He preach'd to the Mahometans that remain'd at Granada, and had ſuch good Succeſs, that 3000 of them, with a Prince of the Blood of the Kings of Granada, were Converted in one Day. He Baptis'd this great Multitude in a ſpacious Square or Market-place where they were met; ſprinkled them altogether with Water; then ordering all the Books of the Alcoran to be brought into the publick place of Granada, he ſet fire to them, and this Day is ſolemnized yearly in Spain. In the War that Ferdinand undertook in Africa againſt the Moors, the Cardinal proffer'd to keep the Army ſix Months, upon condition that his Expences ſhould be again repaid, or he have the Lands and Profits of the Conqueſt ſettled upon his See. This Agreement being made, he made himſelf Maſter of the Fortreſs of Maſalcavir, then entred Victorious into the Town of Oran, whereof he ſent the Keys to his College of Alcala. He march'd arm'd at the Head of his Troops, a very tall Clergy-man bearing a Triple-Croſs before him, with others after him, and their Swords girt round them over their Habits. At his Return Ferdinand went to meet him four Leagues out of Seville, and alighted to embrace him: At another time this Prince happening to be ill, had himſelf carried in a Litter to meet him, as the Guardian of his Kingdom. This Cardinal foreſeeing a great Dearth, made publick Granaries at Toledo, Alcala, and Torrelaguna, which he fill'd with Corn at his own Charge. This won him the Peoples Hearts ſo much, that to preſerve the Memory of the Action, they had it engraven in Marble in the Senate-Hall at Toledo, and in the publick Market-place, where the Memory was renew'd by an Oration every Year in praiſe of this Benefactor. He alſo embelliſh'd the Borough of Torrelaguna with a very fine Monaſtery; and for the Conveniency of the Place, brought a Fountain of clear Water through Rocks and Mountains, which is thought to have coſt him a Million of Gold. Ferdinand, at his Death, in 1516, left him the Government of his Kingdom, becauſe his Grandchild Charles was then in Flanders, who at his Return home was proclaim'd King, though his Mother was then alive. Some of the Noblemen of the Kingdom were againſt this, which cauſed ſome Troubles; but Ximenes ſoon brought theſe Lords to acquieſce, then reform'd the Officers of the Supreme Council, and thoſe of the Court, and order'd a ſevere Adminiſtration of Juſtice againſt the Oppreſſions of the Grandees. Having diſmiſs'd the two Favourites of Prince Ferdinand, Brother to King Charles, whom he did not like, ſome of that Prince's Officers ask'd him boldly, By what Power he acted ſo? Whereupon he ſhew'd them ſome of the Army that were his ordinary Guard, and ſaid, The Power he had to execute the King's Command, conſiſted in them: Then ſhaking his Cord of St. Francis's Order, he ſaid, That was enough to bring haughty Subjects to Reaſon: At the ſame time he got ſome Cannons fir'd, and a Salvo of Fire-locks, concluding in theſe Words, Hæc eſt ultima ratio Regis; which put an end to that Boldneſs. After he had govern'd 22 Years under Ferdinand, Iſabelle, Jean, Philip, and Charles, he was poiſon'd by reading a Letter which he receiv'd from Flanders, and after by a Potion that put an end to his Life in 1517, at the 80th Year of his Age. See his Life by E. Fletcher Biſhop of Nimes, Printed at Paris and Amſterdam in 1693.

XIMO, an Iſland of Japan, and one of the three principal Parts of the Country. It's alſo called Saicock, that is, nine Kingdoms, becauſe there are ſo many, which are, Figen, Bunga, Chicuien, Fingo, Fiunga, Bugen, Satcuma, Voſumi, and Uto. The chief Towns are, Arima, Bungo, Nangaſachi, Satcuma, &c. Nangaſac, which is upon the Weſtern Coaſt of the Iſle of Ximo, and is Capital of it, has pleaſant Gardens and Plains, which makes it the beſt Peopled Place of Japan, and the Inhabitants are the civileſt of all the reſt.

XI-OAM-TI, or Xius, Emperor of China, who Reign'd about 246 Years before Chriſt, having ſubdued all China, whereof he poſſeſt but a part before, carried his victorious Arms againſt the Tartars, and to hinder their Incurſions, built the famous Wall that parts China from Tartary. It's ſaid this Wall is 300 German Miles in Length, beginning from the Gulf of Nanquin, otherwiſe called the Gulf of Gang, and continuing to the River Hoang, or Yellow River, in the Weſtern part of the Province of Xanſi, without any Interruption, except where inacceſſible Mountains render it needleſs. It's not all in a ſtraight Line, but winds according to the Situation of the Places which it encloſes. This Bulwark is 30 Cubits high, and 12 broad, and in ſome Places 15, fortified with Towers at certain diſtances one from the other. It has its Gates to go in and out by, as there is occaſion, and near theſe are Fortreſſes to defend them. There are alſo Arches for the Rivers to run through. This great Building was ended in five Years time; which is not very incredible, becauſe that Emperor order'd that a Man out of every ten, throughout the whole Kingdom, ſhould work at it. And the Chinois write, that ſeveral Ships laden with Iron were ſunk in the Gulf of Gang to ſupport the Foundations of the Wall that was advanced 10 Furlongs into that Sea. Kircher. China.

XIPHILIN (John) Patriarch of Conſtantinople, liv'd in the XIth Century, was a Perſon of Probity and Learning. He died in 1080. He Epitomiz'd the Hiſtory of Dion Caſſius. Glycas. Andr. Schottus. Prolog. in Phot. Bibl. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc.

XOA, or Xaoa, a Kingdom of Africa in Ethiopia, towards Zanguebar. The King of Abyſſinia poſſeſſes part, the reſt being taken from him by the Galas or Inbangales, who are very powerful in this Kingdom.

XYLANDER (or Xylandre William) a German, Native of Ausbourg. His Friends being poor, the Magiſtrates maintain'd him as a poor Scholar in the Univerſity whilſt he follow'd his Studies, in which he made ſuch progreſs, that he was a conſiderable Maſter in the Greek, Latin, and Hebrew Languages, was a Poet, a Philoſopher, Muſician, Hiſtorian, and Mathematician, as appears by his learned Works; the principal of which are, Geometrica & Aſtronomica varia Annotationes in Sleidamum de quatuor Imperiis. Strabonis Geographia, & Dionis Caſſii Hiſtoria cum Annotationibus, &c. He died at Heidelberg in 1576, being 44 Years of Age. Thuan. Hiſt. Melchior Adam. &c.

Y.

Y. THIS Letter is borrow'd from the Greek, and has its true Uſe in Words deriv'd from that Tongue; but ſome leave it quite out, and uſe i in its place. See Palamedes. It's alſo call'd Pythagoras's Letter: not that that Philoſopher invented it, but becauſe he aſcribed two Ends to all Things, Vertue and Senſuality, expreſſed by the two Points of the y. Hence Perſius Sat. 3.

Y, or Het-Y. Thus they call in Holland a Branch of Zuyder-Zee, that ſerves as a Port to Amſterdam, and runs from Eaſt to Weſt between South and North Holland, as far as Beverwyk.

YACOBDAL, a Royal Houſe, built about half a League or thereabout from Stokholm in Swedeland. This Houſe is, without diſpute, one of the fineſt of the whole Kingdom. The Kings of Swedeland walk there often in the Summer-time, becauſe there are fine Walks, Fountains, Grotto's, and Water-works, that render it very charming.

YARLEY, an indifferent good Market Town in the Fenny part of Huntingtonſhire, 72 Miles from London.

YARMOUTH, Lat. Garianonum, a Sea-Port and Borough-Town in the Eaſt parts of Norfolk, bordering upon Suffolk; called Yarmouth from the River Yare, near the Mouth whereof it is ſeated. 'Tis the beſt Harbour in the whole County of Norfolk, and the Key of this Coaſt, affording a ready Paſſage to Holland, and being a frequent Shelter to the New-Caſtle Fleets when diſtreſſed by Weather; noted beſides for Herring-fiſhing in the Seas adjacent about the Month of September, which draws a great Concourſe of People, and makes the Town much richer all the Year after. It was a Roman Town. Cordick, the firſt King of the Weſt-Saxons, Landed firſt in this place, about 507; and not finding it worth while to ſettle, went to Sea again, and founded the Weſt-Saxon Kingdom. Between this and the Conqueror's time this Town was rebuilt by the Saxons. In Edward the Confeſſor's time it had 70 Burgeſſes. About 1340 the Inhabitants Walled it. Henry II. gave it the firſt Charter. After this they had a War with the Town of Loweſtoft, between which two there was a Quarrel which has laſted to our Times. In 1652 there was a War with the Hollanders, and the Merchants of London oppreſſing them in their Herring-Trade, they began to ſend Ships to Legorne in Italy, and by degrees enlarg'd their Trade to all Parts; ſo that it became the beſt traded Town on the Eaſt of England: But the two following Dutch Wars fell heavy on them. In 1684 Charles II. made this a Mayor-Town. It has but one Church, but it's a very large one, built by Herbert the firſt Biſhop of Norwich, in the Reign of King William Rufus. King Charles II. in 1673, created William Paſton Viſcount Yarmouth, and in 1679 made him Earl of Yarmouth, whoſe Son now enjoys that Title. The Corporation returns two Parliament-Men. There is another Yarmouth upon the North-weſt Coaſt of the Iſle of Wight, in the Hundred of Weſt-Medine, well built with Free-Stone, fortified with a Caſtle and Works; the ſecond Town of Note next to Newport, in that Iſland.

YARUM, a ſmall Market Town in the North-Riding of Yorkſhire, ſituate upon the River Tees, over which it has a Bridge. It's 176 Miles from London.

YORK, Eboracum, the ſecond City of England, and an Archbiſhop's See, is the chief Place of Yorkshire, diſtant from London 150 Miles, North by Weſt. It lies in the North-Riding, watered by the River Ouſe, which divides it into two Parts, whereof the Eaſt Part is the chief. In general, 'tis a fair, large, and beautiful City, ſeated in a ſpacious Plain, adorned with many fair Buildings both publick and private, and encloſed with a good Wall with ſeveral Turrets upon it. A City rich and populous, well inhabited by Gentry and wealthy Tradeſmen, and containing about 20 Pariſhes. The Cathedral, dedicated to St. Peter, is a Church of ſo magnificent Structure, that it deſerves to be put in the firſt Rank of the Cathedrals. Firſt built, or rather begun, by Edwin King of the Northumbers, An. 627, and finiſh'd by his Succeſſor King Oſwald. But being afterwards deſtroyed by Fire, and by the Fury of the Danes, that which now ſtands was erected in the place thereof by Archbiſhop Thomas, and after, by degrees, adorned and beautified by his Succeſſors. This City was by the Romans held in ſo great eſteem, that Severus their Emperor had his Palace here, where he ended his days. Here alſo, upon the Death of the Emperor Conſtantius, ſirnamed Chlorus, his Son Conſtantine was proclaimed Emperor. So that York ſeems to be the Place where the Roman Emperors kept their Court in this Iſland. This City flouriſh'd alſo a long time under the Engliſh-Saxons Dominions, till the Danes coming like a mighty Storm fell foul upon it, and won it from Osbright and Ella Kings of Northumberland: but King Ethelſtan recovered it from them, and overthrew the Caſtle wherewith they had fortified it. After this it ſtruggled with many Calamities, till in the Conqueror's Time it began to flouriſh again, with the Aſſiſtance of the Nobility and Gentry in thoſe parts. It is govern'd to this day by a Mayor and 12 Aldermen, with ſeveral inferior Officers; the Mayor being honoured with the Title of Lord, as well as the Mayor of London, who are the two only Magiſtrates of this Rank that are ſo dignified. This is the ancienteſt Metropolitan See in England, being ſo made at the firſt general Admittance of the Goſpel in the time of the Britiſh King Lucius. When the Saxons embraced the Chriſtian Faith this City recover'd its former Honour in the Perſon of Paulinus, made Archbiſhop hereof about the Year 625, with a Metropolitan Juriſdiction over all the Biſhops of Scotland; who did from hence receive their Conſecration, and ſwore Canonical Obedience to this See. But, under colour of the many and moſt bloody Wars between the two Kingdoms, the Scots pretending the Metropolitan of York could bear no fatherly Affection to his Sons of Scotland, they withdrew themſelves from his Obedience, and had Archbiſhops of their own. This happened above 200 Years ago, George Nevil being then Archbiſhop of York. As for the Precedency betwixt the two Archbiſhops of Canterbury and York, it was ordered, by Pope Gregory's Inſtitution, that the firſt Confirmed of the two ſhould have the Precedency: But great Contentions ariſing about it, and ſeveral Appeals being made to the Pope for a Deciſion, at laſt it was determined in favour of the See of Canterbury; yet ſo that the Archbiſhop of York might write himſelf Primate of England, whilſt the other Archbiſhop aſſumed the Style of Primate of all England, as it ſtill continueth. Thus he has ſtill the Precedency before all Dukes not being of the Royal Blood, as alſo before all the Officers of State, except the Lord Chancellor, and has the Title of Grace given him. As a Metropolitan, he has but three Suffragan Biſhops, viz. Durham, Carliſle, and Cheſter; beſides the Biſhop of Man. As a Dioceſan, his Biſhoprick contains the better part of Yorkshire, and all Nottinghamſhire; in all 581 Pariſhes, whereof 336 Impropriated. The ſame was rated at firſt in the King's Book 2035 l. 14 s. 6 d. But now, ſince the great Diminution made by King Henry VIII. 1609 l. 19 s. 2 d. The Clergies Tenths come to 1113 l. 17 s. 9 d. And whereas the Biſhoprick of Canterbury has but one Archdeacon, this has four, viz. of York, Cleveland, Eaſt-Riding, and Nottingham. Laſtly, this City is diſtinguiſhed amongſt all the reſt for the Title of Duke it has given to divers Princes of the Royal Blood, and particularly to King James II. before he came to the Crown. As for the Prophecy concerning York, contained in theſe Words, Lincoln was, London is, and York ſhall be, 'tis plain that Lincoln has been a far greater and richer City than it is, and that London has now the Pre-eminency; but what York ſhall be, God knows. It was, I confeſs, in a fair way of Preferment, by the convenient Situation thereof, upon the Union of England and Scotland under King James I. But, as my Author ſays, thoſe who hope it ſhall be the Engliſh Metropolis, muſt wait till the Thames run under the great Arch of Ouſe Bridge. So that I am apt to think, the Meaning of the Prophecy is, that York ſhall be ſtill as it was before.

YORKSHIRE, Eboracenſis Comitatus, ſo called from York (Eboracum.) Its principal Place is a Maritime County in the North of England, and the greateſt in the whole Kingdom. Bounded Northward partly by the Biſhoprick of Durham, and partly by the German Sea, Southward by Lincoln, Nottingham, and Darby Shires, Eaſtward by the German Sea, Weſtward by Weſtmorland, Lancaſhire, and a part of Cheſhire. From the County of Durham it is parted by the River Tees, and from Lincolnſhire by the Humber. It extends to a Square of 80 Miles at leaſt. The whole divided into three general parts, called Eaſt, North, and Weſt Riding: the firſt ſub-divided into ſix Wapentakes or Hundreds, the ſecond into twelve, and the third into ten, in all twenty eight. Now in the Eaſt and North Ridings together there are reckon'd 459 Pariſhes, and 25 Market Towns; and in the Weſt Riding 104 Pariſhes, and 21 Market Towns, in all 563 Pariſhes, beſides many Chapels of Eaſe equal to moſt Pariſhes for Bigneſs and Reſort of People, and 46 Market Towns. The ancient Inhabitants of this large County were part of the Brigantes, a general Name whereby the Romans called not only the People of Yorkshire, but alſo thoſe of Lancaſhire, Durham, Weſtmorland, and Cumberland. In the time of the Heptarchy, Yorkshire, with the aforeſaid Counties, and that of Northumberland, made the Kingdom of the Northumbers. And now, for Church-Government, the better part of Yorkshire, with all Nottinghamſhire, make up the Dioceſe of York. Other Counties have indeed more of the warm Sun, but this has as much as any of God's temporal Bleſſings. Let a Surveyor, ſays the Ingenious M. Tho. Fuller, ſet his Centre at Pontefract or thereabouts, and take the Circumference of 20 Miles, he there will meet with a Tract of Ground not exceeded by any, nor equalled for the Goodneſs and Plenty of ſome Commodities: nay, he would term it the Garden of England, but that it is ſo far from the Manſion-houſe, the City of London. And thoſe, ſays he, who care not to go thither becauſe of its great diſtance, would not deſire (were they but ſettled there) to come from thence, ſuch is the Delight and Pleaſure therein. Then he goes on with the Story of Tonſtall Biſhop of Durham, who attending King Henry VIII. in his Progreſs to York, ſhew'd the King a Valley ſome Miles North of Doncaſter, which he avowed to be the richeſt that ever he found in all his Travels through Europe. For within 10 Miles of Haſſelwood, the Seat of the Vavaſors, there were 165 Mannor-houſes of Lords, Knights, and Gentlemen of the beſt Quality; 275 ſeveral Woods, whereof ſome of 500 Acres; 32 Parks, and two Chaſes of Deer; 120 Rivers and Brooks, whereof 5 Navigable, and well ſtored with Salmon and other Fiſh; 76 Water-mills, for the grinding of Corn, on the aforeſaid Rivers; 25 Coal-mines, yielding abundance of Fuel for the whole Country; 3 Forges for making of Iron, and Stone enough for the ſame; and, within the ſame Limits, as much Sport and Pleaſure for Hunting, Hawking, Fiſhing, and Fowling, as in any Place of England beſides. But to come to a general Deſcription of the County, Speed hits it right when he ſays, that if one part thereof be ſtony and barren Ground, another is as fertile, and richly adorned with Corn-fields. If ſome Places be naked and deſtitute of Woods, others are ſhadowed with fine Foreſts. If it be ſomewhere mooriſh, miry, and unpleaſant, it is in other Places as pleaſant and delightful as the Eye can wiſh. As for Rivers, here are many of good note: for, beſides the Tees and the Humber (this laſt a very large one) you will find in this County the Swale, Youre, Nyd, Wharf, Are, and Calder, whoſe Springs are in the Weſt, the Derwent in the North, and the Hull in the Eaſt Riding. In this County are bred the beſt Race of Engliſh Horſes, whoſe Keeping commonly in ſteep and ſtoney Ground brings them to firmneſs of Footing and hardneſs of Hoof. Here is alſo abundance of Jeat, Alum, Limeſtone, Liquorice, and Medicinal Waters. Amongſt its Manufactures, Cloathing is the principal: next to which, Rippon Spurs, Sheffield Knives and Blades, and Sherburn Pins, are of ſpecial Note: Theſe laſt, though counted a thing next to nothing, yet of that general uſe, that whereas formerly Strangers (according to Stow) have ſold Pins in this Land to the Value of threeſcore thouſand Pounds a Year, now there is much of them exported into foreign Parts. As for Noblemens and Gentlemens Houſes, for State as well as Conveniency, no County goes beyond this. Amongſt which, Wereſel-Caſtle upon the Derwent, erected by the Lord Percy Earl of Wincheſter in Richard II.'s Reign, was formerly counted an admirable Fabrick. Laſtly, 'tis obſervable, that this County yields the moſt Titles of Honour of any other, there being at this time two Dukes, one Dutcheſs, one Marquis, and nine Earls, that have their Titles out of Yorkshire. The Dukes are of Richmond and Bolton; the Dutcheſs, of Cleveland; the Marquis, of Hallifax; the Earls, of Mulgrave, Kingſton, Strafford, Craven, Burlington, Holderneſs, Derwentwater, Falconberg, and Scarborough. Beſides the Knights of the Shire, it has 15 Towns which ſend two Burgeſſes each to Parliament.

YUCATAN, Ycatana, a large Province of New Spain, ſeated in the Boſom of the Gulf of Mexico, in the Form of a Peninſula, over-againſt the North Point of Cuba; ſo that it divides that great Gulf into two parts, the North called the Gulf of New Spain, the South the Gulf Honduras. This Land was diſcovered by Cortez in 1517, and was then thought to be an Iſland. It is in Circuit 250 Spaniſh Leagues. The Air is of the hotteſt, and it has neither River nor Torrent, but plenty of Well-water. It yields Indian Fruits and Corn in good plenty. The Inhabitants ſay their Anceſtors came from the Eaſt; and they have a kind of Baptiſm amongſt them. There is vaſt Foundations of Stone Buildings, though they have no Iron, nor any other Metals whatſoever. They never contracted Matrimony before they were Baptized, and they faſted three Days before they were admitted to it; but they had nothing of Chriſtianity beſides this Ceremony, without any form of Words; ſo that it was nothing but a ſhadow of Baptiſm. They have now plenty of European Cattel brought in by the Spaniards. Mountains running from Eaſt to Weſt divide it into two parts; the North part is very populous, becauſe better watered and cooled by the Breezes; but thoſe that live on the Mountains are moſt healthful, and live longeſt. Cortez began the Conqueſt of this Province in 1527. The principal City is Merida in 20 North Lat. in which the Governor reſides. The Indians called it Mayapan. Yucatan is 70 Leagues diſtant from the North Cape of Cuba.

YVETOT, a little Tract of Land of Normandy in the Country of Caux near Caudebeck, whereof the Lord is ſaid to have formerly had the Title of King, and that from Clotarius I.'s days, who having kill'd Walter Lord of Yvetot in the Church of Soiſſons, condemn'd the Action afterwards; and being willing to repair it ſome way, erected the Lordſhip into a Kingdom: In which he did but follow the Practice of the Feudal Law, by which the Vaſſal was acquitted of all Homage and Service if the Lord aſſaulted his Perſon; of which there are ſeveral Precedents in Hiſtory. Thoſe that are againſt this Hiſtory, demand a ſight of the original Grant, which cannot be produc'd, and allege, that it's ſeldom that one Kingdom is erected within another; but anſwer'd, That the ancient Tradition and immemorial Poſſeſſion confirmed by the King's Letters is Title enough: And that the County of Portugal was erected into a Kingdom by the King of Caſtile, and the Kingdom of Majorca ſet up by the King of Arragon. But be this how it will, the Lords of Yvetot do not now enjoy that Sovereignty; and the Lords of Bellay that own it, content themſelves with the Title of Prince of Yvetot.

YUPI, a Kingdom of Tartary, Eaſtward of the Kingdoms of Niulham and Ninche. The Yupiens are called thus becauſe they make themſelves Head-pieces and Corſelets of the Skins of Fiſh, which they have an Art to harden. Martin. Martini Deſcription of China, in Thevenot's Collection, Vol. 36.

ZAARA, or Saara, great Deſarts of Africa, between Biledulgerid, Nubia, Nigritia, and the Atlantick Ocean. Modern Geographers obſerve ſeveral Towns in it round Rivers and Lakes, whereof the moſt conſiderable are, Zanhaga, Zuenziga, Targa, Lenta, Berdoa, which for the moſt part give their Names to the Deſarts that environ them. The Air of this Country is exceſſive hot, eſpecially during our Solſtice; for the Sun then caſting its Beams directly upon the burning Sands, dries all the Moiſture, ſo that the People are forced to keep in their little Huts, or ſeek refreſhment in Caverns, the moſt part of the Day. For this they chuſe Places where they may dig Wells, to have Water to quench their exceſſive Thirſt. Theſe Wells prove often Saltiſh, and the Wind ſoon fills them with the Sand it raiſes. It's to this extraordinary Drought that People attribute the great number of Monſters ſeen in theſe Foreſts: For Beaſts of all ſorts meeting where there is Water, and equally hot through the great Heat of the Climate, couple and breed Monſters that partake of the different Kinds. Theſe Deſarts have great Numbers of Lions, Tigers, and Oſtriches: Theſe laſt, the biggeſt of Birds, are ſome of 'em taller than a Man on Horſeback. They never fly, their Bodies being very heavy, and their Wings but narrow, which for all that, help 'em to run as faſt as an ordinary Gallop. Their Feet are cloven like to Deers, and they caſt ſtones with them when they are cloſely purſued. They lay their Eggs in the Sands of theſe Deſarts; and ſome ſay, are ſo forgetful, that they cannot find the Place again; and that the Eggs are hatch'd by other Birds that find and ſit upon them. But a Modern Traveller has diſcover'd the contrary. He ſays indeed, the Oſtriches leave their Eggs when they lay 'em, but keep in ſight, and watch, leſt any thing ſhould deſtroy them, until the Heat of the Sun and Sand hatches the Young Ones. He adds, That the Male and Female ſtand thus Century by turns. They are deaf, which makes it eaſie to take them when they are ſleepy. They will live on any thing, inſomuch that it's obſerv'd, that they digeſt Iron or any other Metal. The People of this Country trade in theſe Eggs, which are bought to make Veſſels of, and to hang 'em in Moſques; but the Feathers are far more conſider'd, becauſe ſought for from Europe. The Inhabitants of Zaara are unpoliſh'd and ſavage, yet a bold ſort of People; for they will ſtand and meet the fierceſt Lion or Tiger that is. They are divided into Families or Clans: Each Head of a Family is Sovereign in his own Canton, and the eldeſt is always Head. If he undertakes a War, he chuſes the ſtouteſt Man of all the reſt for his Lieutenant. They follow the Mahometan Religion; but are no ſtrict Obſervers of it. *Marmol. of Africa. ZABACHE (Sea of) formerly call'd Palus Meotis, to the Eaſt of the Black Sea, towards the Leſſer Tartary.

ZABARELLA (Julius) the Son of James, was of a Noble Family of that Name in Padua; James was a very Learned Man, both in Mathematicks, Philoſophy and Aſtrology, and wrote good Commentaries upon Ariſtotle: His Son Julius likewiſe wrote Commentaria in Libros Phyſicorum Ariſtotelis & de Anima. De Naturalis Scientiæ Conſtitutione. De Tribus Præcognitis. De Medio Demonſtrationis. De Rebus Naturalibus XXX. Thuan. Hiſt. Thomaſin. Elog. des Homes de Lettres.

ZABULON, Son of Jacob and Leah, was born A. M. 2288, and died at 124 Years of Age, in 2411. He was chief of one of the Tribes of Iſrael. The Lands of this Tribe between the Sea and Mount Carmel, comprehended all the Towns of Caina, Bethſaida, Nazareth, &c. with Mount Tabor, and part of Galilee.

ZACA, a Name the Turks give that part of their Goods they allow for the Maintenance of the Poor. The Alcoran does not expreſs how much this ought to be; but the Doctors think a good Muſſulman ſhould give the 10th part of his Revenues. Some Authors make this but the 40th or 50th, and others ſay, it's but one in 100. However this is, the Covetouſneſs and Policy of the Turks hinder the Rich from contributing their Proportions. Covetouſneſs will not permit that they part with much of their Wealth, and Policy makes them think it's not ſafe to make it known how rich they are, by an exact Proportion to their Wealth. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

ZACATECAS, or Los Zacatecas, a Province of New Spain in Northern America, between New Biſcay and New Galicia. Its Name is deriv'd from the People that inhabit it. There are five Towns in it, viz. Los Zacatecas, Durango, Nombre de Dios, Ellerena, and Xerez de la Frontera.

ZACHARIAH, Father of St. John Baptiſt. See St. Luke, Chap. 1. &c.

ZACHARIAH, ſirnam'd Scholaſticus, was Biſhop of Mitylene, and aſſiſted at the ſecond General Council of Conſtantinople. He wrote a Dialogue, Entitled Ammonios, concerning the Creation of the World, againſt thoſe Philoſophers who held it Eternal; which was tranſlated out of Greek into Latin by Gilbert Genebrard. This Zachariah likewiſe wrote a Diſſertation againſt the Two Principles of the Manichæans, inſerted in Caniſius's Works, printed at Ingolſtadt in 1604. He died about the Year 560. Mireus de Script. Eccl. Caniſius. Poſſevin. Geſner.

ZACHARIE, or Zechariah, one of the 12 Leſſer Prophets, was Son of Barachiah. He began to Propheſie about the Year of the World 3533, which was the ſecond of Darius his Reign. He exhorted the People to re-build the Temple of Solomon, and keep God's Commandments.

ZACHARIE, Zechariah, ſovereign Pontiff, Son of Jehoiada, who was alſo High-Prieſt, and in that Quality, eſtabliſh'd Joaſh Son of Achazar, but 7 Years of Age, upon the Throne of Juda, after he had Anointed him privately. Zacharie ſucceeded his Father in his Place and Zeal for God's Glory. Finding Joaſh, with all his Court, abandon himſelf to the Worſhip of Idols, he gave him that ſharp Reprimand mention'd in Scripture: Whereupon, the Prince forgetting his Obligations to Jehoiada, got Zacharie ſton'd to Death in the Porch of the Temple, 2 Chron. cap. 24.

ZACHARIE (Pope) a Greek by Nation, was choſen after Gregory III. in 741. He perſuaded Rachis, King of the Lombards, to quit his Crown, and to retire into a Monaſtery; and being conſulted about conferring the Crown of France upon Pepin, pronounc'd in his Favour. He died in 752. This Pope tranſlated St. Gregory's Dialogues into Greek; the beſt Edition of 'em, is that of Caniſius. Onuphr. Baronius.

ZACHARIE, Patriarch of Jeruſalem, ſucceeded Sophronius in 609. Choſroes King of Perſia, took this Town in 614, and carried our Saviour's Croſs away. The Patriarch was alſo led Captive into Perſia, where he was kept until the Emperor Heraclius reſtor'd him to his See after he had recover'd the Croſs, and brought it back to Jeruſalem. Baronius. Theophanes.

ZACHARIE, Zachariah, King of Iſrael, ſucceeded his Father Jeroboam II. but being young, there was an Interregnum of about 11 or 12 Years. He began to Reign about the Year of the World 3262, but was kill'd 6 Months after by Sellum: A juſt Puniſhment for his many Vices and Impieties. Torniel. Salian.

ZACHEUS, a Publican or Farmer of the Taxes rais'd of the Jews; yet our Saviour did not diſdain to dine at his Houſe, Luc. xix.

ZACHEUS, an Heretick Monk, liv'd about the end of the 4th Age. He retir'd to a Mountain near Jeruſalem, imagining no Prayers to be pleaſing to God, but thoſe made in Retirement; and that Prayers in publick in Churches, &c. ſignified nothing. He alſo pretended, tho' in no Orders, that he had Power to ſay Maſs. He died in theſe Errors. The Name of Zacheans was given to the Hereticks of the Sect of the Gnoſticks. Baron. S. Epiphanius.

ZAFI, a Sea Town of Africa in Buccala, a Province of the Kingdom of Morocco. It has a very convenient Port at the Mouth of Tenſifte, which renders it a Place of the greateſt Traffick of that Kingdom. Baudrand.

ZAFLAN, a Lake of Africa in Upper Ethiopia, with a Town of this Name. It belonged formerly to the Emperors of Abiſſinia, but now the Galas poſſeſs it.

ZAGA (Chriſt.) Prince of Ethiopia, and as ſome have believed, Son of Haſſe Jacob King of the Abiſſinians, or of Ethiopia, vulgarly call'd Preſter John. Jacob, after ſeven Years peaceful Reign, reſolv'd to exterminate the Roman Catholicks of his Country. Suſneos his Couſin, a Pretender to the Crown, and a Favourer of Catholicks, laid hold on this Occaſion to declare War againſt him. Jacob being wounded in a Battel fought in 1628, died ſome Days after, leaving two Sons, Coſmus and Zaga Chriſt, the firſt 18, and the other 16 Years of Age, who were then both in the Town of Aich in the Iſle of Meroe, the Place where the Emperor's Children are for the moſt part Educated. Nazerena their Mother, not thinking them ſafe there, adviſed them to make their Eſcape quickly to ſome Prince, Friend to their Father, and ſent them ſome Gold and Jewels to live on until Diſturbances were over. Prince Coſme took to the South, towards the Cape of Good Hope: Zaga Chriſt, accompany'd with about 500 Men, went Northwards towards the Kingdom of Sanar his Patrimony, and paſſed through the Kingdom of Fundi, where a Pagan King, call'd Orbat Vaſal, and Tributary to his Father, Reign'd. This King received Prince Zaga Chriſt very well, and offer'd him his Daughter in Marriage: But becauſe ſhe was a Pagan, he refuſed her. Whereat Orbat was ſo offended, that he ſeiz'd him, and ſent an Expreſs to acquaint Suſneos therewith, who immediately ſends a Company of his Guards for him, under the Command of a Venetian Gentleman call'd Lombarde, a Renagado, but a Chriſtian in his Heart, who retarded the Execution of his Commiſſion, and in the mean time acquainted Zaga Chriſt with his Errand by a Cophti Chriſtian. Whereupon this Unfortunate Prince reſolv'd to croſs the Deſarts of Arabia, follow'd only by 50 of his Train, whereof ſome periſh'd in the Journey, and he had the ill luck to be robb'd of part of his Baggage by an Arabian Prince. Being at laſt arriv'd at Cairo, the Cophtes receiv'd him very kindly, as being Prince of their Sect, and Son to an Emperor that loſt his Life and Kingdom in the Defence of their Religion. The Baſſha too ſent for him to his Caſtle, and treated him there for ſeveral Days. After ſome Reſt, this Prince, with 15 of his truſtieſt Servants, and 8 Rocolets, Miſſioners of the Kingdom of Egypt, ſet forward for Jeruſalem, where he arriv'd in the beginning of Lent 1632. Having viſited the Baſſha, he retir'd to the Religious Abyſſines, and in the Holy-Week aſſiſted at the Cophtis Ceremonies: But underſtanding by an Ethiopian Prieſt, that the Fire ſaid to come down from Heaven on the Saturday of that Week, was ſtruck in the Holy Sepulchre, he changed that Religion for the Roman Catholick; yet did not profeſs it publickly, becauſe the Superior of the Recolets, fearing it might draw the Cadi's and Baſcha's Anger upon him and all his Order, advis'd him to depart privately, that he might have the greater Liberty to execute what he deſigned. The Day being pitch'd upon, he went away in the Night, in company of three of his Servants, and eight Friars, arrived at Nazareth a little after Eaſter, and tarried until September; during which time he learn'd to ſpeak Italian, and ſome little French. The Pope hearing of the Adventure of this Prince, to be better ſatisfied, ſent to the Guardian of Jeruſalem, to have him come to Rome. Being come thither, the Pope gave him a Palace to live in, and kept him almoſt two Years. The Duke of Crequy being Embaſſador at that time at Rome, perſuaded this Prince to ſee France, and go to Paris; which he did in 1635, and died three Years after in Cardinal Richelieu's Pleaſure Houſe at Ruel near Paris, and was buried there with the Prince of Portugal. De Rocoles. Eugen. Roger Relations de la Terre Sainte.

ZAGATHAY, or Urbeck, the Name of a great Country in Tartary. See Tartary.

ZAGAYA, a Mountain, which the Antients call Helicon in Bœotia, a Province of Great Achaia or Greece, near Mount Parnaſſus, whereof ſome think it's part. It was at the Foot of this Mountain that the Fountains of Hippocrene and Aganippe had their Source; and it was there alſo, that Orpheus's Tomb was, in former mer Days. Poets made this the Muſes Reſidence, adding, That ſuch as drank of the Water of theſe Fountains were preſently inſpir'd by Apollo, who indues them with his Poetick Strain. Spon. l. 4. tom. 2.

ZAGRAB, or Agram, Lat. Zagrabia, an Epiſcopal Town of Sclavonia, in the Kingdom of Hungary, upon the Save. It's Capital of the County of Zagrail, well-peopled, and of great Strength; 45 Miles North of Vibitz, 15 Weſt of Gradiſca, and 11 from Cilly to the South-Eaſt.

ZAGRUS, now Adilbogia, a great Mountain of Aſia, which parts Media from Aſſyria. Niger pretends, that it's alſo called Semirami, and that this Name was given it, becauſe Semiramis Queen of the Aſſyrians, cut through it to paſs into Media; and this Paſſage was for ſome time called Zagri Pylæ, that is, the Streights or Gates of Zagrus, as the narrow Paſſage of Mount Oeta, Thermopyles. Strab. Chaſtalde.

ZAIRE, a Lake of Africa in Upper Ethiopia, which was formerly upon the Frontiers of the Empire of the Abyſſines. The River Zaire runs out of this Lake, and ſome have thought it was the Sourſe of the Nile. But Jerom Lobo, a Portugueſe, who liv'd 12 Years in this Country, and has endeavour'd to diſcover this Truth, is not of their Opinion, as appears by his Treatiſe of the Sources of the Nile, and Upper Ethiopia, printed at Coimbro in 1660. Several think, that this Lake of Zaire is the ſame now called the Lake of Zambeze. Baud. See Nile.

ZALDERANE, a great Plain of Media upon the Frontiers of Armenia, beyond the Euphrates, pretty near Tauris; formerly the Reſidence of the Kings of Perſia. It was in this Plain that Selim I. defeated the formidable Army of Sophi Iſmael, King of Perſia, on the 26th of Auguſt 1514. Leunclav. lib. 7.

ZALEUCUS, Legiſlator of the Locrians, a People of Italy, made a Law, That all Adulterers ſhould have their Eyes put out. His own Son happen'd to be the firſt that tranſgreſſed. The people ſued very much to have him pardon'd; but Zaleucus was abſolutely for putting the Law in Execution: Yet willing to ſhare the Puniſhment, he put out his own right and his Son's left Eye; ſhewing thereby, that he was no leſs a good Father, than a juſt Law-Maker. This Example of rigorous Juſtice made ſuch an Impreſſion upon the People, that that Vice was not heard of during his Reign. People add, That he forbad Wine to the Sick, upon pain of Death, if not order'd 'em by their Phyſician; and that he was ſo jealous of the Laws he had eſtabliſh'd, that he ordained, That all who ſhould propoſe an Innovation, ſhould come with a Cord about their Neck, to be hang'd up immediately, if what they propoſed upon due Examination, was found worſe than what they would mend. It's true, Diodorus Siculus attributes the ſame thing to Charondas, Legiſlator of the Sybarites: But 'tis probable both of 'em did ſo, to prevent the Laws from being altered. Cicero de Leg. Val. Max. Ælian. Var. Hiſtor. lib. 2. cap. 37. Stob. Serm. 42. Diog. Sicul. lib. 12.

ZAMA, a Town of Africa, in antient Times Capital of the Kingdom of Juba. It's now Zamora in the Kingdom of Algiers, famous for the Battel which Hannibal loſt againſt Scipio Africanus, General of the Romans; as appears by an Inſcription to be ſeen there ſtill. It's called Colonia, Ælia, Hadriana Auguſta, Zama Regia. Liv. Polyb. Plin. Strab.

ZAMA, a Fountain of Africa, in the Neighbourhood of the Town of Zama, which makes Voices clear that drink of it. Plin. lib. 31.

ZAMBALLAT, or Glapalat, Souldan of Egypt, ſucceeded Mahomet. His ill Treatment of the Mammeluc's and Lords of his Court, made them form a Party againſt him, under Tomombeye, who was the chief Inſtrument of raiſing him to his great Dignity, and Beſieg'd him in his Palace, took, and put him in Priſon, where he was Strangled by the ſame Tomombeye, who ſucceeded him. Pet. Mart. P. Jov.

ZAMBEZE, or Zambere, a great River of Ethiopia in Africa, which runs out of the Lake Zambere or Sachaf, upon the Frontiers of the Empire of Monomotapa and Abyſſinia; and after it has receiv'd ſeveral Rivers into it, diſcharges it ſelf into the Ethiopian Sea, upon the Confines of Zofala and Mozambique. It's divided into four Arms or Branches before it joins the Sea, whereof the firſt is called Quilimane, the ſecond Cuama, the third Luabo, and the fourth Luabo el Viejo. Between theſe Arms are ſpacious and fruitful Iſlands, having Mines of Gold; whereof the Portugueſe poſſeſs the richeſt. Baud. Davity of Africa.

ZAMBRI, King of Iſrael, kill'd Ela, and put himſelf upon the Throne in 3106. Eight Days after, Amri, choſen by the Army, came to Beſiege him in Therſa; whereupon, he, for fear of falling into the Enemies Hands, burn'd himſelf and Family.

ZAMEIS, or Ninyas, which ſome call the young Ninus, Son of Ninus and Semiramis, made his Way to the Throne of Aſſyria in 2038, by the Death of his Mother. When he had perfectly eſtabliſh'd his Authority, he left all the Care and Management to his Miniſters, and led a voluptuous and idle Life amongſt the Women in his Palace, appearing but very ſeldom in publick. He died in 2076, after 38 Years Reign. All his Succeſſors follow'd his effeminate Example to Sardanapalus. Juſtin. Euſeb. Chron. Diodor. Sic. lib. 3. cap. 6.

ZAMOLXIS, Servant and Diſciple of Pythagoras, one of the Getæ, accompanied his Maſter into Egypt; from whence, after he had learn'd the Cuſtoms of the Egyptians, he return'd home, and poliſh'd and civiliz'd his own Country, to the great Satisfaction of the Getæ and Tartars, who Deify'd him after his Death, believing, that ſuch as died went immediately to wait upon him, and uſed to make People draw Lots to go Embaſſadors to this God: They to whoſe Lot it fell to go, were thrown into the Air, and receiv'd upon the tops of Halberts and other Arms. Herodotus, lib. 1.

ZAMORA, a Town of Spain, with a Biſhoprick Suffragant to Compoſtella.

ZAMORIN, a Name the Indians give to the King of Calicut, whoſe Kingdom is upon the Coaſt of Malabar, in the Peninſula of India on this ſide of the Gulf of Bengala. The ſame Emperor was Sovereign in former times of all the Coaſt of Malabar, from Goa to the Cape of Comory; but Sarami Perymal having embrac'd Mahometiſm to end his Life at Medina, divided the Kingdom into four, viz. Calicut, Cochin, Cananor, and Coulan; giving one to each of his neareſt Relations; but ordering at the ſame time, that the other three Kings ſhould own him of Calicut (to whom he gave the Name of Zamorin,) their Sovereign. Since the Portugueſes have ſettled in that Country, the Zamorin has been ſo much weaken'd, that the King of Cochin is far more powerful than he at preſent. Mandeſlo, tom. 2. See Calicut.

ZAMOSKI (John) Great Chancellor of Poland, and General of the Armies of that Kingdom. This famous General and great Miniſter of State, by his Heroick Qualities deſerved the Titles of Defender of his Country, and Protector of Sciences. His Father Stanelas Chaſtelim of Chelm, a Town of Red Ruſſia in Poland, gain'd himſelf alſo great Reputation by his Sword and Pen. He was ſent Embaſſador into France for the Duke of Anjou, whom the Polanders had choſen King. But this Prince being recall'd to take Poſſeſſion of the Kingdom of France, fallen to him, Stephen Battori, Prince of Tranſylvania, was choſen King of Poland; who had ſo great a conſideration for Zamoski, that he married his Niece to him, made him Chancellor of the Kingdom, and firſt gave him the Command of 8000 Men in the War of Muſcovy, and afterwards of all the Army of Poland. Zamoski behaved himſelf in all theſe Employments with much Courage, and had great Succeſs, check'd John Baſilides Great Duke of Muſcovy's Arrogance, deliver'd Poleſia, Voleſia and Livonia, from under the Servitude of ſo formidable a Neighbour, and maintained a tough War againſt him; during which, this remarkable Occurrence happened. Zamoski laid Siege with a powerful Army in the depth of Winter to Pleskow, a Town of Muſcovy; the Rigour of the Weather prolonging the Siege, ſome Poliſh Gentlemen tir'd with lying idle in the Camp, took one Voinuski, a Man well verſed in Latin, Greek and Hebrew, along with them, to travel part of the Country: In one Place they found Cicero's Books of the Commonwealth, addreſſed to Atticus, and writ in Golden Letters: And ſix days Journey thence, they found in a pleaſant Valley and near a fine Fountain, an old-faſhion'd Tomb, cover'd part with Earth and Moſs; and when they rubb'd theſe off, they found by ſome Characters cut in the Stone, that it was the Poet Ovid's. In 1586 Stephen Batorri, King of Poland, being dead after 10 Years Reign, the Poliſh Gentry that of a long time had admir'd Zamoski's Virtue, judg'd him worthy of the Crown: But he himſelf being againſt the Honour, he voted with the Archbiſhop of Gneſna for Sigiſmund, Prince of Swedeland, whom he ſetled upon the Throne, notwithſtanding the Archduke Maximilian's Endeavours to obſtruct it. Zamoski was ſo great an Admirer of Learning, that beſides the ſeveral Colleges he perſuaded the King to eſtabliſh, he himſelf Founded a fine Univerſity in a Town he built, and call'd it Zamoski. After he had Commanded the Armies of this powerful Kingdom 24 Years, he died in 1605, aged 63. Academie des Sciences.

ZAMOSKI, a Town of Red Ruſſia in Poland, in the Palatinate of Belze or Belzki, near a Lake of this Name. It has the Title of Principality, and was built by John Zamoski great Chancellor of Poland, in a fine Plain near the River Weper, and made a Place of Strength, as appeared by its Reſiſtence againſt the Coſſacks in 1651. Baud.

ZANCHIUS (Jerom) Native of Bergamo according to ſome, according to others, of Azane, a little Town four Leagues off Venice, being in the Convent of Lucca, Peter Vermigli, call'd Martyr, the Prior thereof brought him over to the Opinion of Zwinglius, which he profeſſed at Strasbourg, where he ſucceeded Martyr, then invited to England. Thence he went to teach at Chiavene to the Griſons; hence to Pale and Spire; at laſt he came to Heidelberg, where he died at 75 Years of Age. Zanchius, ſays our Author, is the moſt moderate of all the Proteſtants, calling the Church of Rome his Mother, declaring withal, that he was ready to return to her Communion, provided ſhe would reform ſome Abuſes and Errors ſlip'd into her Creed and Diſcipline. His Works are, Miſcellanea Theologica. De Tribus Elohim. De Natura Dei. De Operibus Dei. De Incarnatione. Ad Ariani Libellum Reſponſio. Speculum Chriſtianum. De Spirituali inter Chriſtianum & Eccleſiam Connubio, &c. Thuan. Hiſt. Melchior Adam. Labber de Script. Eccl.

ZANCLE, a Town of Sicily, formerly deſtroy'd by Anaxila, Tyrant of Rhegio. Those of the Country pretend, it was built by the Tyrant Zanclus; but Nicander maintains, that it derives its Etymology from Saturn's Scythe that was hid there. This Town was afterwards called Meſſina. Ovid. Metam. lib. 15.

ZANQUEBAR, a great Country of Africa, between the Coaſt of Ajan and the Cafres in Lower Ethiopia. It comprehends ſeveral Kingdoms, whereof the chief are thoſe of Lamon, Melinde, Mombaza, Mongalo, Mazambique, and Quiolo, whoſe Capitals have the ſame Names. The Portugueſe are Maſters of Mozambique and Mombaza, and have other Fortreſſes. The Country is full of Foreſts and Marſhes, that render the Air very unwholſom. The Inhabitants are Black, and have all curled Hair. They are Idolaters, much given to Divination and Witchcraft. Magin. in Geogr.

ZANTE, an Iſland of the Archipelago in the Ionian Sea, Southward of Cephalonia and Weſtward of Morea, near the European Continent, formerly called Hytie, and afterwards Zacinthus. It has a Town of the ſame Name, which is a Biſhop's See. The Fortreſs is upon the top of a Mountain, well gariſon'd by the Venetians. The Iſland is very well peopled, and produces great ſtore of Wines, Corn, and Oil. Zante is about 50 Miles in Circuit, and is divided into three Parts, the Mountain, Plain, &c. It has ſeveral Ports, whereof the moſt conſiderable is Chieri, capable of receiving all ſorts of Ships. There are about 50 Villages, beſides the chief Town that bears the Iſland's Name, and lyes in the Northern Part: This may have between 20 and 25000 Inhabitants, and is a Biſhop's See. This and the Iſland of Cephalonia make but one Dioceſe, wherein are 50 Pariſhes of Greeks, with a great Number of Caloyers or Grecian Monks, who alſo have their own Prelate: Their Churches have each but one Altar, the Organ-loft turn'd towards the Eaſt; their Altars are only ornamented with Paintings, the Greeks allowing of no Repreſentations or Figures, either Rais'd, Carv'd or Caſt. The Jews have three Synagogues in it. Here happen in this Iſland frequent Earthquakes, accompanied with terrible Noiſe and naſty Fumes, that infect all the Air. There is but one River in the whole Iſland; whoſe Waters, by their Communication with the Sea, are brackiſh; but there is a very fine Spring below the Caſtle, near the Sea, which furniſhes all the Ships bound to Conſtantinople, Alexandria, and other Eaſtern Places, with freſh Water. Mr. Wheeler ſaith, that this Iſland is not above 30 Miles in Circuit, but one of the moſt fruitful and pleaſant he ever ſaw: Its very Curran Trade pays the charge of the Venetian Fleet. The Caſtle of Zante is built on the top of a very high ſteep Hill, very ſtrong, and in compaſs a large Mile and half; the Hill ſo rugged, that it will tire a Man to go up half the way: So that if the Gariſon be well provided with Neceſſaries for Defence, it may defie the Forces of any Prince on Earth. Coronelli. Spoon.

ZARA, Lat. Jadera, a Town and Port, Capital of Dalmatia, and an Archbiſhop's See, belonging to the Venetians, environ'd by the Sea, being join'd to Land only by a Draw-Bridge: Beſides this, it's defended with 6 ſtrong Baſtions. Ladiſlaus King of Naples, who alſo took the Title of King of Hungary, ſold it, with the depending Iſlands, to the Venetians in 1409, to whom it belong'd before; for they, being aſſiſted by Baudouni Count of Flanders, and other Princes that were going to the Conqueſt of the Holy Land, after Saladin's Death, made themſelves Maſters of it in 1200. Hiſtoire des Jean de Jeruſalem.

ZARLIN (Joſeph) an Italian, born at Chioggia in the State of Venice; he rais'd his Character very much by his skill in Muſick. Marinus Marſennus and Albertus Bannus look upon him as the moſt knowing Author that ever writ upon that Science. He died at Venice in 1599, where his Works were printed in four Volumes in Folio. Thuan. Hiſt.

ZARMIGETHUSA, formerly Capital of the Daci under their King Decebalus. It's call'd Ulpia Trajana in an antient Inſcription which relates to Trajan who Conquer'd the Daci: In another Inſcription it's called Colonia Ulpia, Trajana Auguſta, Dacia Zarmis. Now it's called, Veczel, or Venecz, or Vathel; and in the Sclavonian Tongue, Gradiſch, Borough of Tranſilvania. Lazius, Ptolom.

ZARNATA, a Town of Tzaconia or Braccio di Maina, in Morea; ſituate upon a very pleaſant Height. Its Figure is almoſt Circular; and it's a Poſt, where it ſeems Art and Nature have omitted nothing to make it conſiderable. The Venetians attack'd it in 1685; the Captain Baſſa had a conſiderable Army, and was but 5 Miles off it, yet durſt not venture to its Relief. Upon his Retreat the Gariſon ſurrender'd to Moroſini, and according to the Capitulation, march'd out 600 Men, who were conducted to the Place agreed upon: But the Aga, fearing the loſs of his Head, came to Venice. Moroſini left a Gariſon in the Place, of 250 Men, under Colonel Praſtini. P. Cornelli.

ZATMAR, a little, but well-fortified Town in the Mountains of Upper Hungary, upon the Frontiers of Tranſilvania. It's Capital of a Country, lately erected into an Earldom, and belongs to the Emperor; Tekeli made himſelf Maſter of it in 1680, but has loſt it ſince. Baud. du Val.

ZATOR, a Town of Little Poland, in the Paratinate of Cracovia, upon the Viſtula, between the Town of Cracovia and Province of Sileſia. Its Situation is by ſo much the more remarkable, that it's upon the Confluence of the Skauda and Viſtula. The Country that joins it is call'd the Dutchy of Zator.

ZATUS, Duke of the Lazes, a People of Perſia, went to the Emperor Juſtin at Conſtantinople, about the Year 520, and crav'd the Title and Quality of King, with Baptiſm. The Emperor receiv'd him very honourably, got him Baptized, and gave him the Royal Crown and Cloak. Zatus, when return'd into his own Country, eſtabliſh'd the Chriſtian Religion, and Preached the Goſpel to his Subjects, who all after his Example, embraced the Chriſtian Faith. Zonaras.

ZAYOLHA, the Name of one of the Hordes of Tartaria Deſerta. Horde ſignifies a Company of Tartars, that ſhift Places for the conveniency of Paſture. The Horde of Zayolha is in the Neighbourhood of the River Obi, towards the Northern Ocean or Sea of Tartary.

ZAZIUS (Hulrick) a German, was firſt a Notary in the Town of Conſtance, where he was born, and afterwards applying himſelf to the Study of the Law, prov'd very eminent in that Profeſſion, and was preferr'd to the Chair at Friburg, where he died in 1535. The moſt conſiderable of his Works are, Intellectus Legum Singulares. Tractatus dë Judæorum Infantibus Baptizandis. Epitome in Uſus Feudales. The reſt of his Works are Poſthumous, and not ſo well finiſh'd. Thuan. Hiſt. Melchior Adam.

ZEA, an Iſland of the Archipelago, towards the European Coaſt. It was formerly called Ceos or Cia. Its Northern and Southern Coaſts have great Mountains, but the Country between both lyes all in fine Plains. It has a very ſafe Port to the Weſt, with ſeveral Fountains, whereof one is ſaid to turn their Brains that drink of it; but they ſoon come to themſelves again. It had formerly four Towns, whence came its Name Tetrapolis. It is the Birth-place of the Poet Simonides and of the famous Phyſician Eraſiſtratus. As the Country was barren, there was a Law that order'd all of 60 or above 60 Years of Age, to take a Doſe of Poyſon, becauſe they ſeem'd to ſtand in the young Peoples way, and eat up their Victuals. The Town of Zea lyes in the middle of the Iſland, and is a Place of great Traffick for Silks and excellent Wines. Boſchini.

ZEALAND, is an Iſland of Denmark of a Circular Form, containing about 18 Engliſh Miles in Circumference; it being not to be commended for its Fertility, for there is no Bread-Corn grows in any part thereof, except Rye, which is in good quantity; it has but few Meadows, yet there is no want of Hay; moſt of their Graſs growing by the ſides of Corn-Fields and in ſome ſcattered Spots of marſhy Grounds; it has no Rivers but about half a ſcore of ſmall Brooks, yet a great number of fine Lakes ſufficiently ſtored with Fiſh: The Air is but indifferent, eſpecially about Copenhagen, becauſe of the frequent Fogs and low Situation; yet Colds of the Lungs are very rare here: The Face of the Land is pleaſant in many places, abounding with little Hills, Woods and Lakes, in a very agreeable Diverſity: It has no Sea Ports but that excellent one of Copenhagen, but 'tis no ſenſible want, becauſe there are no Commodities in the Iſland for Exportation: The Cattel here are generally ſmall and lean, kept within-doors ſeven or eight Months in the Year: In Summer-time their Beef is ſweet and juicy; but Weather-Mutton was a rare thing till of late, nor is it yet common, they being not uſed to geld their Sheep, and therefore 'twas uſually eaten while it was Lamb. The Feeding of the Commonalty here in all Denmark, is very mean, and they have but two Seaſons of the Year, viz. Winter and Summer; for a Spring is never known, and the Autumn ſeldom; you immediately leap from extremity of Heat to extremity of Cold, and ſo when Winter is over, from Cold to Heat; where, for June, July and Auguſt, 'tis more intenſe than in England.

ZEB, a Country of Africa, in Biledulgerid, with a Town of this Name: It's call'd in Latin Zebum and Zebes.

ZEBU or Cebu, an Iſland of the Indian Sea, in the middle of the Philippines: The Spaniards call it Iſla des los Pintados, becauſe when it was diſcovered, the Inhabitants painted their Faces with ſeveral Colours. They built the Town of Jeſus upon the Weſtern Coaſt, and it was there Ferdinand Magellan contracted Friendſhip with the King of the Iſland, whom he receiv'd into the Protection of the King of Caſtile, and made War for him againſt the King of Matan, in which he was kill'd in 1520.

ZEDAMET begun the Empire of the Cheriſs, who made themſelves Maſters inſenſibly of the Kingdoms of Morocco, Fez, Taffilet, &c. He retir'd firſt into a Deſart, to lead a ſolitary Life; ſaying, He was deſcended of the Falſe Prophet Mahomet; and to raiſe himſelf ſtill higher, began a War againſt the Portugueſes and other Chriſtians, and perſuading his two Sons to counterfeit his own pretended Zeal. He compaſſed his Deſign by Force and Hypocriſie, and ſetled himſelf ſo well, that the Succeſſion fell to his Heirs under the Title of Cherif, that ſignifies Wiſe Perſonages. Leo Africanus, lib. 2. cap. 32, &c.

ZEIAM, Prince of Mequinezia in Africa, being baniſh'd his Country by Mahumet King of Fez his Couſin, came to the Town of Azamor in the Kingdom of Morocco, upon the Coaſts of Africa, towards the Atlantick Sea: But not meeting with the Reception he expected here, he fled to Portugal, and perſuaded the King to undertake the Conqueſt of Azamor. The King ſent an Army under the Command of John Meneſes; which appearing before the Town, Zeiam, inſtead of aſſiſting Meneſes, as he promiſed the King, reconciled himſelf with the Azamoriens, and ſallied out with them upon the Portugueſes, but had the Confuſion of being worſted, and loſing 14000 Azamonians upon the Spot. Bibl. Hiſt.

ZELA, or Ziela, a little Place in Cappadocia, formerly a Biſhoprick under the Metropolis of Amaſia. It was here Cæſar defeated Pharnaces King of Pontus, when this Prince made an Incurſion into Cappadocia. It's of this Victory that Cæſar wrote thus to the Senate, Veni, Vidi, Vici. Strabo. Ptolomy.

ZELAND, one of the United Provinces, with the Title of a County. Its Name was deriv'd from the Dutch Word Zeelandt, that ſignifies Land of Sea. It conſiſts of 15 or 16 little Iſlands, whereof the chief are Walcheren, Duyvelandt, Bevelandt, Schouten, &c. The Towns are Middlebourg, Fluſhing, Veere, Tolen, Goes, &c. This Country lyes between Holland, Flanders, Brabant, and the German Sea. There have been 8 wall'd Towns, and 102 Villages, much leſſen'd by ſeveral Inundations, eſpecially by thoſe of 1304 and 1509. Zeland makes one of the ſeven Provinces of Holland, and has two Officers or Governors, called Rentmeeſtre. The Inhabitants are great Traders, and fiſh much. The Princes of Orange are Governors of this Iſland. Guichardin. des du Pais Bas.

ZELANDE, a new Part of the Southern Land diſcover'd by the Hollanders in 1654. But it's not yet known whether it be an Iſland or Continent.

ZELL, a Town of the Dutchy of Lunenburg in Lower Saxony in Germany, Capital of the Dutchy, and the Reſidence of the Dukes of the ſame Name, who are Dukes of Brunſwick too. It has a fine and well-furniſh'd Citadel, and lyes upon the River Aller, 6 Leagues from Brunſwick, and 5 from Newſtadt.

ZELL in HAMMERSPACH, or Zell-am-Hammerſpach, an Imperial Town of Germany in Suabia, under the Protection of the Houſe of Auſtria, 5 Miles from Stutgard to the Weſt.

ZELOTS, a Faction of wicked People, that appear'd when the Emperor Titus warr'd againſt the Jews. After they had robb'd and plunder'd the Country, they fell upon Jeruſalem, where they committed unheard-of Cruelties and Impieties; which obliged the High-Prieſt Ananus to make a Speech to the People, to excite them to take Arms againſt theſe Villains, who turn'd the Temple into a Citadel, and made it the Seat of their Tyranny, and had aſſum'd the Name of Zelots, to make People believe, that what they did was out of Zeal for the Glory of God, whilſt at the ſame time they profan'd the moſt ſacred things, and caſt Lots for a High-Prieſt unworthy of that Dignity, excluding thoſe from the Temple and Exerciſe of their Function, who, according to the Laws of God and their Country, had a Right to Officiate. The People, mov'd with Ananus's ſtrong Reaſons, took Arms, to beat theſe Zelots away: The Engagement was bloody, wherein the Zelots were forced from the outward Court; and being cloſely Beſieg'd in the innermoſt, the Idumeans came to their Aſſiſtance; and after they had defeated the Guard that lay before the Temple, join'd the Zelots, made themſelves Maſters of the Town, kill'd the High-Prieſt Ananus, and another Prieſt call'd Jeſus. The Idumeans being retir'd, the Zelots continued their Violences, which made ſeveral Jews, to ſecure themſelves from their Fury, to ſubmit to the Romans. Theſe ſeditious Knaves divided themſelves into two Factions; of one whereof John Giſcala was chief, and exerciſed his Tyranny in Jeruſalem. Joſephus de Bell. Judaic.

ZEMBLA, or New Zembla, ſeparated from the North of Muſcovy by the Straight of Waigats. Some think it's an Iſland of the Frozen Sea; others, that it joins Great Tartary towards the Eaſt. The Hollanders pretend, that it was not known by any of Europe before they diſcover'd it themſelves in 1594, when they ſought a Paſſage to Japan and China: After many Tryals, they made the Northern Coaſt of this Land the 29th of Auguſt 1596; and their Ship being frozen in the Ice, they came a-ſhore, and built them a little Cabin, wherein they paſſed the Winter, until the 29th of June 1597, undergoing an almoſt incredible Cold, ſo great, that their Wine loſt its Strength, and their very Breath was frozen, and ſtuck an Inch thick to the Roof, though they kept a continual Fire. The Place where they were forc'd to ſtay was altogether deſart, there being nothing but Bears and Wolfs of an extraordinary Bigneſs, againſt which they had enough to do to defend themſelves, there being three of their Men devour'd by them. Theſe Beaſts liv'd on the Fleſh of White Foxes which they took. From the 4th of November until the beginning of February, the Sun does not appear upon that Horizon. The Hollanders obſerv'd this; for all the time they were there it was Night. Voyage du Nord.

ZEMBLIENS, People of the North that inhabit New Zembla, about the Straights of Waigats. Theſe People are very little, but have great Heads, large Faces, their Eyes are ſmall, ſome have no Beards, their Hair is very black, and their Skin inclining to black too. They have little Lodges or Cabins to retire into in the Winter, and make themſelves Coats of Sea-Calf Skins, or Bird's Feathers: Their Arms are Arrows, pointed with Fiſhes Bones; they alſo make little Boats, 10 or 12 Foot long, of theſe Fiſhes Ribs and Skins; and this is ſo light, that a Zemblien finding himſelf purſued upon the Water, puts the Boat, Oars, and all upon his Shoulder, and makes his eſcape to Land. They adore the Sun and Moon, and ſtumps of Trees, which they ſhape like Men; and before theſe they pray devoutly on their Knees. In the Seas that waſh theſe Coaſts, are ſeveral Sea-Monſters; amongſt others, ſome that the Hollanders call Walruſſen or Morſen; but others call them Sea-Horſes or Elephants. Theſe Fiſh are as big and ſtrong as our Oxen, their Skin like a Sea-Dog's, the Hair very ſhort. Their Mouth reſembles a Lion's, and has two Teeth two Foot long, that comes out as white as any Ivory. They have no Ears, are four-footed, and breed but one or two little Walrus. They take great pleaſure to roll themſelves upon the Ice; and when they ſee any Fiſhers come, they caſt their little Ones into the Sea, and make Head againſt the Barques of thoſe that purſue them. Geogr. Blaeu. La Martin. Voyage des Pais Septentrion.

ZEMBLA, a Lake of Africa, towards the Source of the Nile, and a River in Meſopotamia. It's divided into three Branches; viz. Cuama, Spiritu-Sancto, and Los Infantes.

ZEMONICO, a Strong-hold of Dalmatia, 7 Miles from Zara. The Venetians yielded it to the Turks in 1573; but in 1647, the Providitor Foſcoli obſerving how the Turks of that Gariſon did annoy the Country all about, reſolved to beat them out of it; which he did, and then demoliſhed the Fort. In 1682, Aſſan Begh Durach at the Head of a great Number of Turks, deſign'd to ſettle himſelf there; but they were all cut off by the Morlaques. P. Coronelli.

ZENIAL, Son of Uſum Caſſum King of Perſia, was ſent by his Father in 1473 with a powerful Army to attack Trebiſonde. He had good Succeſs in the beginning; for having entred Cappadocia, he defeated 40000 Turks commanded by Caſamorat Baſſa, whom he made Priſoner; and afterwards beat Mahomet Baſſa and a Body of 35000 Men. Theſe Succeſſes put him upon engaging Mahomet II. in Perſon, who cut all his Army in pieces, and kill'd him himſelf in the Heat of the Battel. This Fight leſſen'd Mahomet's Forces conſiderably, and check'd Uſum Caſſan's Courage. Boiſſat. Hiſtoire de S. Jean de Jeruſalem.

ZENICETUS, a famous Pirate, who having built a Fortreſs upon Mount Olympus, deſtroy'd all Lycia, Pamphylia, and Piſidia, with continual Incurſions; but at laſt being defeated by P. Servilius, ſirnam'd Iſauricus, and cloſely beſieg'd without hope of Relief, burn'd himſelf and Family. Strabo, lib. 14.

ZENOBIA, Wife of Rhadamiſtus King of Iberia, (that was baniſhed by the Armenians for killing their Prince,) accompanied her Husband in his Flight, tho' ſhe was big with Child, and bore the Fatigue for a time; but her Strength failing her, ſhe begg'd of her Husband to kill her, that ſhe might not fall into ſhameful Captivity. He deſir'd her to take Courage; but finding ſhe was quite ſpent, ran her through. Some ſay ſhe died of this Wound; others, that ſhe was found on the Banks of Araxes by ſome Shepherds, who bound up her Wound; and underſtanding her Quality and Misfortune, carried her to the Town of Ataxates, and thence to Tiridates King of Armenia, who receiv'd and treated her according to her Quality. Tacitus.

ZENOBIA, Queen of the Palmyrenians, and Wife of Odenatus, an ingenious, couragious and prudent Princeſs. She inur'd her Body to the Fatigues of War, marching often a-foot at the Head of her Army, and by her Courage made her Husband Maſter of all the Eaſt; obſerving always this Maxim, to be obliging to ſuch as made uſe of her Clemency, and inflexible to Tyrants. After Odenat's Death ſhe not only held the Provinces under his Government a great while, but likewiſe made a Conqueſt of Egypt, but being taken Priſoner at laſt by Aurelian in 273, ſhe was carried to Rome, as an Ornament of that Emperor's Triumph. She was a handſom, chaſte and learned Princeſs, well vers'd in the Greek, Egyptian and Latin Tongues; epitomiz'd the Eaſtern Alexandrian Hiſtory, and took care to teach Herennianus and Timolaus her Sons, her ſelf; and was ſo Warlike, that ſhe wore her Armour even when ſhe went to the Temples. The only thing which is ſaid to tarniſh her Character, was her being an ill Mother-in-Law. Trebellius Pollio.

ZENO, Emperor, call'd Iſauricus, married Ariadne Daughter of Leo, and had a Son by her that liv'd but 10 Months after he was declar'd Auguſtus; ſome ſaying, that Zeno himſelf, to Reign alone, made uſe of Poyſon to diſpatch him. Soon after Baſiliſcus, obſerving the Peoples Love much diminiſh'd to this their vicious and debauch'd Prince, reſolved to deprive him of the Empire; whereat he was ſo frightned, that he fled from Conſtantinople; but returned ſoon after, having ſeduc'd by his Preſents, Hermatius, Baſiliſcus's General. Then counterfeiting Orthodoxy, he publiſh'd an Edict call'd the Henoticon, to reconcile the Orthodox and Hereticks. This Henoticon was ſpeciouſly drawn up, and ſeem'd to be a pious Expedient, ſetting forth a ſtrong deſire to procure the Repoſe of the Church, upon which the Happineſs of the Empire depended; however, this was but a Colour; for in reality, this Edict under pretence of receiving the Creeds drawn up by the firſt three General Councils, did no leſs than condemn that of the Council of Chalcedon: Notwithſtanding, this fetch of Policy did not ſucceed. The Account given of his Death is thus; that being in a Fit of the Falling-ſickneſs, which he was ſubject to, and given over for dead, the Empreſs Ariadne willing to be rid of him, cauſed him to be quickly carried to his Grave; where having recover'd his Speech after ſome time, he cry'd to be taken out: And when the Guards, plac'd there by the Empreſs, anſwered, There was another choſen in his Place; it's no matter, ſaid he, Take me hence into a Monaſtery, where I may end my Days: But they did but laugh at him; ſo that he died mad after he had eat his Slippers and Hands. Zanares ſpoke otherwiſe of this Death, ſaying, That Zeno being drunk, according to his ordinary Cuſtom, fell down as dead; and that Ariadne buried him in this Condition.

This happened An. Dom. 491, the 65th of his Age. Baronius. Godeau.

ZENO (Philoſopher) Native of Citium a Town of Cyprus, was Author of the Sect of the Stoicks: This Sect had its Name from the Portico, where he taught publickly at Athens. He was driven by Storm upon this Coaſt, which made him afterwards often thank the Winds that ſo happily forc'd him into the Port of Pireum. It's ſaid, that upon an Oracle's recommending to him the Colour of the Dead, he applied himſelf to his Studies, interpreting the Colour recommended to him, to be the pale Colour ſtudious People contract by their conſtant Application. He heard Crates, and afterwards having compoſed a Book of the Commonwealth, with ſeveral other Treatiſes, was follow'd by a great number of Diſciples. He placed Man's chief Happineſs in living conformable to Nature, guided by right Reaſon. Cleanthes, Chryſippus, and the other Succeſſors of Zeno, were ſo much for this Maxim, that they maintained, vertuous People could be happy amidſt Torments, and in ſpight of all the Diſgraces of Fortune. They ſpake of God as if they acknowledg'd but one; and Zeno held, that the Names of the other belong'd to him, as Titles by which the Grecians underſtood the different Effects of his Goodneſs and Power; but withal he fell into a great Error, in thinking this God was nothing elſe but the Soul of the World, which he conſider'd as his Body, and both making up the perfect Animal. He alſo had erroneous Opinions concerning his Wiſe Man, the advantages of Fortune, and the creditable Arts, &c. It's ſaid, Zeno hang'd himſelf after a Fall. His Diſciples kept up this Liberty of being their own Executioners. Zeno is thought to have died about 490 of Rome. He uſed to ſay, That if wiſe People were never in Love, as ſome held they ſhould not, there would be none ſo unhappy as the Fair Sex, becauſe they would be only admir'd by Fools: That a Friend is a ſecond ſelf. He compared ſuch as ſpoke well and did not act accordingly, to the Coin of Alexandria, that appear'd very fine, but had too much Alloy in't. He ſaid, A little Matter ſerv'd ſometimes to finiſh a Work, tho' the Finiſhing was no little matter. His Servant once, as he was beating him for Theft, cry'd out, 'Tis part of my Fate to be a Thief; yes Sirrah, ſays his Maſter, and to be drubb'd for't too. He uſed to bid talkative Boys reflect, that Nature gave two Ears and but one Mouth, that they ſhould hear more and ſpeak leſs. The Athenians had ſuch great Eſteem for him, that they left the Keys of the City at his Houſe, preſented him with a Crown of Gold, and erected him a Braſs Statue. Diogen. Laert. Suidas.

ZENO, a Philoſopher of Elis, inventor of Logick, was in great Eſteem in the LXX Olympiad, teaching, There were ſeveral Worlds, and that there was no Vacuum; that the Nature of all things was compoſed of Heat, Cold, Drought, and Moiſture, and that the Soul conſiſts of theſe four. Being convicted of Conſpiring againſt Nearchus, that Tyrant tortur'd him moſt cruelly, to make him diſcover his Accomplices: In the midſt of his Torments he called to Nearchus, pretending he would tell what he deſir'd; but inſtead of doing ſo, took hold of his Ear in his Mouth, and bit it off; and then to put him out of all hopes of knowing any thing from him, ſpit his Tongue in his Face. Diogenes Laertius in his Book De Vitis Philoſophorum, mentions ſix other Zeno's, whoſe Lives are not written by him.

ZEPHYRUS, a Pagan Deity, thought favourable to tender Flowers, and to the Fruits of the Earth, by a fine gentle Breath that invigorated the natural Heat of Plants, and ſo enliven'd all things. He is repreſented under the Form of a fair Young Man, having on his Head a Crown compoſed of all ſorts of Flowers. They ſaid, he was Son of Aurora, and that he was an Admirer of Chloris; to whom he gave the ſuperintendence of Flowers: For it's certain, that what the Romans called Flora, was the ſame the Greeks called Chloris:

Chloris eram quæ Flora vocor ——

Zephyrus now is the Name of a Weſterly Wind, very healthful and pleaſant, favourable to the Budding and Increaſe of all Fruit. Pliny.

ZEPHYRINUS (Pope) ſucceeded Victor in 201. He hid himſelf during Severus's Perſecution: But after Plautian's, this Prince's Father-in-Law's Death, the cruelleſt Enemy to Chriſtians that could be, he reſum'd the publick Exerciſe of his Function, which he continued 18 Years. Biſhop Pearſon makes him ſit from the Year 197 to 217; and Mr. Dodwell from the Year 195 to 214. De Rom. Pontiff. Succeſſione. Platina. Baronius.

ZERYNTHUS, a little Place in the Iſland Samothrace, now called Samandrachi. Lycoghron calls it Antrum Canis; and it's commonly ſirnamed the Cave of Hecate.

ZETHES and Calais, two famous Argonautes, Sons of Boreas and Orithye, very expert in ſhooting Arrows. Being favourably received by Phineus in their Voyage to Colchos, they freed him of Harpies that ſpoil'd his Meat always as he was ready to ſit down to it: But having purſued them to the Iſlands of Strophades, they were commanded by Iris from Juno, not to advance farther. At laſt having offended Hercules, that Demi-God kill'd and chang'd them into theſe Winds, that blow eight Days before the Dog-Days; and therefore the Grecians called them Prodromes or Fore-runners. Ovid. Metam. lib. 6.

ZEUGITANE, a Country of Africa, upon the Coaſt of the Mediterranean Sea, parted from Numidia by the River Tuſca, and now part of the Kingdom of Algier. It's ſaid, the People of this Country were much given to Chiromancy or Fortune-telling, and that the Vagabonds, called Bohemians or Egyptians, came thence; for the Germans call theſe latter Zigenui, which has ſome Reſemblance with the former. The firſt that appeared in Germany in 1417. were black, disfigur'd, and ill cloathed. They carried their Wives along with them, had a Captain whom they honour'd very much, and was diſtinguiſh'd by his better Garb. They called themſelves Egyptians, baniſh'd their Country becauſe their Anceſtors refuſed to receive the Bleſſed Lady with her Son, led thither by Joſeph; and endeavour'd to perſuade People, that they were condemned by an Order from Heaven to expiate that Crime by ſeven Years Baniſhment, and roving up and down without any Settlement. Afterwards, being come into France, they gave out, that the Pope had ordered this publick Penance, becauſe they renounced the Chriſtian Faith to become Mahometans; and that this Puniſhment was to be continued to their Deſcendants. But to paſs this by: It may be, theſe Vagabonds come out of Nubia and Egypt, had inſenſibly ſpread themſelves in the Countries about the Danube, whence they paſſed through Hungary into Bohemia, where they begun to appear then in Germany, Italy and France; and as they went through theſe Countries, pick'd up thoſe that were willing, and they thought fit for their purpoſe. Some affirm, that they were deſcended of the Inhabitants of the Town of Singare in Meſopotamia, now Atalib in Diarbek, who were baniſh'd their Country by Julian the Apoſtate; but whence they came is not ſo well known, as it's ſure Ferdinand V. baniſhed them out of Spain and Brabant in 1549, Charles IX. out of France in 1561, the United Provinces out of their Dominions in 1582; their Theft, Robbery and Witchcraft, rendering them odious to all Nations. There are ſuch other People in Turkey, called Torloques, who were baniſhed in ſeveral Places by Bajazet. Spond. Leuncl. Voetius.

ZEUGMA, was a Town of Syria, upon the Euphrates, where there are ſtill ſome Remains of a Bridge that was formerly there. It was a Biſhop's See under the Metropolis of Hierapolis, but now is but a Borough called Pont de Monbigz. They kept in this Town a Chain made uſe of by Alexander the Great, to hold his Bridge; and Bacchus his Cable made of Vine and Ivy Branches. Pauſan. Plin.

ZEUXIS of Heraclea, flouriſh'd in the fourth Year of the ninty fifth Olympiad (395 Years before the Chriſtian Æra,) and was eſteem'd the moſt excellent Colouriſt of all the Antients, tho' Cicero, Pliny, and other Authors tell us, There were but four Colours then in uſe, viz. White, Yellow, Red and Black. He was cenſur'd by ſome, for making his Heads too big, and by Ariſtotle, for not being able to expreſs the Manners and Paſſions; tho' Pliny affirms, his Penelope was an inſtance of the contrary. Zeuxis's Helena, which he painted for the Town of Crotona, gain'd him great Reputation. He was likewiſe much admir'd for ſeveral other Pieces; but, being very rich, could never be prevail'd upon to ſell any of 'em, becauſe he thought 'em above any Price, and therefore choſe rather to give 'em away to Princes and Cities. He died, as 'tis generally ſaid, of a Fit of Laughter, at the ſight of a comical Old Woman's Picture which he had drawn. The ſhort Account of the moſt Eminent Painters, &c. bound up with Dryden*'s Tranſlation of* Freſnoy.

ZIANI (Sebaſtian) was Doge of Venice, when Pope Alexander III. came there, after the taking of Rome by the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa, who ſent his Son Otho to the States to have that Pope deliver'd him; but was, after a Denial and the loſs of a Sea-Fight, wherein this Son was taken Priſoner by Ziani, forc'd to a Compoſition. The Pope, as an acknowledgment of his Obligations to the Doge, preſented him with a rich Ring, and gave him his leave to Wed the Gulf of Venice, as a Token of the Commonwealth's Right to that Sea. This is done every Year with a great deal of Ceremony. Daviti.

ZIBIT, formerly Saba, a Town, River, and Kingdom of Arabia-Fœlix. The Town is of great Traffick, was taken by the Turks, but retaken again by the Prince of the Country.

ZIEGLAR (James) born at Landau in Germany, was a Perſon of a fine Genius, and great Elocution: He was likewiſe a good Philoſopher, Mathematician and Divine. His Book of the Deſcription of the Holy Land, is written with a great deal of Exactneſs. He died in 1559. His other Works are, De Rebus Indicis Liber. Tractatus de Raptu Pauli in tertium Cœlum. Liber de Conſtructione Sphæræ, &c. Thuan. Hiſt. Paul. Jov. Elog. Voſſius de Mathem.

ZIITO, a famous Magician, that appeared at the Court of Wenceſlaus of Luxemburg, Emperor of Germany and King of Bohemia about 1490, and had the good Fortune of marrying Sophia Daughter to the Prince of Bavaria, who brought him a Troop of Gipſies and Mountebanks one Day to Prague, becauſe this Magician had a great deſire to ſee theſe ſort of People, and ſhew them, that he knew much more than they. After they had done ſeveral things that ſeemed very ſtrange, he began to appear like another Proteus, under the different Figures ſometimes of a Prince, at others of a Peaſant, now in a Boat upon Water, preſently in a Chariot drawn by Cocks, ſurpriſing, by theſe Illuſions, all the Beholders. He often diverted the King as he ſat at Table, hindering the Lords from eating, by turning their Hands into Horſes Feet, or making their Jaws motionleſs; at other times deſiring the Courtiers to put their Heads out at the Windows to ſee ſome Sight, he wou'd immediately clap them on Deers Horns, and hold them ſo until he was pleas'd to releaſe them. But at laſt the Devil took him away: And this Example of Divine Juſtice mov'd the King to give over thoſe criminal and dangerous Diverſions. Dubrav. lib. 3. Hiſt. Bohem.

ZIMRI. See Zambri.

ZINARA, an Iſland of the Archipelago, between Amorgo and Levita. It lyes now Deſart, having nothing in it but Wild Beaſts; but it has been formerly inhabited, as may be obſerved by ſome Ruins of antient Buildings and Pillars. Towards the Weſt of it is the little Iſland of Charuſſa or Chariſa. Boſchini Archipelago.

ZINDIKITES, Mahometan Hereticks, or rather Atheiſts, becauſe they neither believe Providence, nor a Reſurrection of the Dead. They hold there is no other God but the four Elements; that Man is but a mixture of theſe, and after Death reſolves into them; and ſo returns, ſay they, as Elements to the God that created them. Golius ſays, that Zendik was a Magi Follower of Zoroaſtre. Ricaut.

ZINGANES, Indians that live near Sindy, and rob moſt of the Barques that go thither, or come thence. The Mogul makes them Preſents every Year, though they are his Subjects, to give over Piracy; but this does not make them diſcontinue their old Trade. M. Thevenot.

ZIRICZEE, a Town of the Iſle of Schowen in Zeland: It's great, and one of the antienteſt of the Country. The Dutch were beaten here in 1304, and the Spaniards made themſelves Maſters of it in 1575, but were driven out of it ſoon after.

ZIRIFDIN, or Amanſiſordin, a Town of Arabia Fœlix, which Moletius takes to be the antient Carman, or Acarman; but it's more probable, that this laſt is the Chadbar of our Days, upon a River of this Name; and that Zirifdin is the Omanum of Ptolomy and of Stephanus, the ſame that's thought to be Omanagala.

ZISCA (John) General of the Huſſites in Bohemia about 1419. He was bred up at the Court of Bohemia in Wenceſlaus his time; and going to the Army very young, ſignaliz'd himſelf on ſeveral Occaſions, eſpecially in the Fight wherein he loſt his Eye; and was thence forward called Ziſca or One-Ey'd. And now the Opinions of John Huz having prevail'd over a great part of Bohemia, he commanded this Party, and having put himſelf at the Head of 40000 Men, gain'd many Victories over the Roman Catholicks. He built the Town called Thabor, from which the Huſſites were afterwards called Thaborites. As he laid Siege to Rabi, he had an Arrow ſhot into the other Eye, and ſo loſt the uſe of it; but ſtill continu'd the War, and won ſeveral Victories, particularly at Auſſig upon the Elbe, where Nine thouſand of the Enemy were kill'd upon the Spot; but Ziſca us'd his Victory ill, killing a great many Gentlemen that cry'd Quarter, pulling down Churches, and treating the Prieſts with great inhumanity, but at laſt he died of the Plague; being at the point of Death, he order'd, his Fleſh might be expos'd as Prey to Birds and Wild Beaſts, but that his Skin ſhould be made a Drum, aſſuring them, the Enemy would fly at the very Beat of it: What he deſir'd was done, which had the Effect he promis'd. For the Dukes of Saxony, the Marquis of Brandenburg, and Archbiſhop of Treves, having enter'd Bohemia with a powerful Army, and ready to come to a Battel, the Roman Catholicks were ſo frightned on a ſudden, that they ran away ſhamefully, leaving their Baggage and Artillery behind them. Soon after the Roman Catholicks publiſh'd another Croiſade under the three Archbiſhop's Electors, and Frederic Duke of Saxony; but aſſoon as they ſaw the Enemy, they took to their Heels, as before. Nor is this to be attributed to any thing elſe, but the weak Imagination of theſe People, who firmly believed this Drum bewitch'd them, and were perſuaded the Huſſites were Invincible with that Relique of a General who had won ſo many Battels; beſides, they were moſt of them new-rais'd Men, without Diſcipline or Experience, who could not chuſe but be ſomewhat daunted at the ſight of a well-diſciplin'd Enemy, and formidable by the many Battels they had gained. Æneas Sylvius Hiſtor. Bohem.

ZITTAW, a Town of Germany in Upper Alſace, upon the Neiſs and Frontiers of Bohemia, four German Miles from Gorlitz towards Prague. It belonged to the Elector of Saxony. Wenceſlaus King of Bohemia, fortified it in 1255.

ZIZ, a Ridge of Mountains in the Province of Cuzt, in the Kingdom of Fez in Africa, towards the South. They are inhabited by People ſo hardned to Cold, that amidſt Ice and Snow they go but thinly clad, and always bare-headed. There are ſuch Numbers of Adders and Snakes in their Woods, that they creep into Houſes, and draw near the People when they eat, to take what they throw them, and do no manner of hurt if not anger'd. There are Silver Mines in two of theſe Mountains, called Aden and Arucanes; but the People make no profit of them, becauſe they do not love Work. Marmol. de l'Afrique, lib. 4.

ZIZIME, or Zizim, Son of Mahomet II. Emperor of the Turks, and Brother to Bajazet II. During the Father's Reign, Zizime had the Government of Lycaonia in Aſia Minor, and Bajazet, Paphlagonia; ſo that they were both abſent from the Port at the Sultan's Death, who had always kept them aſunder, (excepting one interview,) leſt Friendſhip might unite them againſt himſelf, or Jealouſie make them both diſagree. Zizime, whoſe Name ſignified Love in the Turkiſh Language, was a Man of Senſe, had a noble Soul, and very generous Inclinations, equally tending to Arms and Learning; was Maſter of ſeveral Languages; amongſt others, of the Greek and Italian, as ſpoken at Rhodes; for tho' he was very zealous for the Mahometan Religion, yet had a kindneſs for the Knights of Rhodes, who were mortally hated by his Father. Bajazet, whoſe Name ſignified Lightning or a Thunderbolt, (a Title his dull and unactive Spirit deſerved but very little) car'd for nothing ſo little as War. Both theſe Brothers pretended to the Crown; Bajazet, as Mahomet's eldeſt Son, and Zizim, becauſe he was born after the Father was made Emperor, ſaying, Bajazet was Son to Mahomet when but a private Man: But for all this, his Party prov'd the weakeſt; for not having the conveniency of the Sea, he was forc'd to take his way through Bithynia, where he received the Tidings of his Brother's Coronation: Yet this did not daunt him; for by long Marches he came to Pruſa, the antienteſt Reſidence of the Ottoman Emperors, and then endeavour'd to gain ſome of the Great Men of the Port, and ſtrengthned his Army daily. Bajazet, leſt his Brother ſhould make himſelf Maſter of Aſia, ſent Achmet with a very numerous Army againſt him, who march'd in ſuch Diligence, that he ſoon encamp'd in a Plain not far off Pruſa; Zizim hereupon took the Field, put himſelf at the Head of the Cavalry, gave the Baſſa Battel, but loſt it; ſo that he was forc'd to apply himſelf for Succour to the Souldan of Egypt, the King of Cilicia, and Great Maſter of Rhodes, all mortal Enemies to the Turks. Caitbei, Souldan of Egypt, received him as a Great Prince, and treated his Wife and Children that follow'd him to Cairo, with the ſame regard: But his Mediation for an Accommodation loſt Zizim time. The Great Caraman, whom Mahomet had diſpoſſeſſed of the Kingdom of Cilicia, now called Caramania, ſent him an Embaſſador with Promiſe of Succour: Whereupon Zizim leaves his Wife and Children at Cairo, and went to join the Caraman, to whom the Great Maſter of Rhodes ſent five Galleys. Theſe two Princes encamped near Laranda, a Town of Cappadocia, which Bajazet had no ſooner notice of, but he marches at the Head of a hundred thouſand Men, whilſt Achmet advanced with his Army that had paſſed the Winter in Lycaonia. Things being thus, and the great Caraman thinking it Raſhneſs to come to a Battel, Zizim challenged Bajazet to put an end to their Diſpute, by ſingle Combat in ſight of both Armies; but he inſtead of anſwering this, propoſes to give Zizim what Province he would pitch upon on the Frontiers of Turkey, with two hundred thouſand Crowns of Gold Revenue, and a Court becoming his Birth. Zizim finding this was but an Amuſement, reſolved to retire; and hearing he was purſued, he, with a few of his Retinue, got into the Deſarts of Mount Taurus. The Caraman followed ſoon after with his Troops; and Zizim ſent one of his truſtieſt Servants to the Great Maſter of Rhodes; but this Meſſenger being taken and carried before Bajazet, Zizim quitted Mount Taurus, and marched on the ſide of Lycia towards the Sea, with the Great Caraman. They were hardly out of the narrow Paſſages of the Mountain, but their Troops were inveſted and cut in pieces by Achmet. This new Misfortune made him reſolve to ſend two Embaſſadors to Rhodes: Theſe by meer chance found a little Galley that belonged to the Knights upon that Coaſt, in which they embark'd. When they had delivered their Meſſage, the Great Maſter call'd a Council, wherein they reſolved to receive Zizim. Bajazet no ſooner heard of his being at Rhodes, but he propoſes a Peace with the Knights, who had ſued for one at his coming to the Crown, and returned them all their Ships taken ſince the Truce by the Corſairs of Lycia. Zizim apprehending that his Brother ſought Peace for no other end but his Deſtruction, reſolved to ſeek Shelter elſewhere, and preſt the Great Maſter for his Leave to go into France. Before he departed, he made ſeveral Acts in Favour of the Order, wherein he promiſed, if it did happen to be his Fortune to recover his Right, to reſtore all the Fortreſſes and Places taken by his Predeceſſors from them; and that he would ever maintain a conſtant Peace and inviolable Friendſhip with the Great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem. Then he Embark'd in the great Ship of the Religion, with the Knight Blanchfort, and ſeveral others to guard him. Sometime after Bajazet promiſed to live in Peace with Rhodes upon condition the Great Maſter would always keep Zizim under the Guards of the Knights, and hinder his falling into the Hands of any Chriſtian or Infidel Prince, offering withal, to pay 25 thouſand Ducats of Venice, every Year for his Penſion. The Prince being arriv'd in France, and meeting but cold Reception at Court, quitted it to go to the Commandery of Bourgneaf, a pleaſant Place upon the Confines of Poitou and la Marche. Whilſt he was here, the Kings of Hungary, Sicily, and Naples, deſir'd the Great Maſter to let them have him; and at the ſame time the Souldan of Egypt ſolicited for him to head an Army againſt Bajazet: But the Great Maſter, with King Charles VIII. of France's Leave, thought it better to ſend him to Pope Innocent VIII. who alſo deſir'd to have him. Being arrived at Civita Vecchia the 6th of March 1489, Leonard Cibo, the Pope's Couſin, receiv'd him, and made the Great Prior Blanchfort Governour of the Caſtle where he was to lodge. The Cardinal of Angiers, and Prince Francis Cibo, met him 12 Miles from Rome, where he entr'd in great State. The Pope that pretended tended to free the Eaſt from the Turkiſh Tyranny, promis'd himſelf great Matters from Sultan Zizim; but he died without ſeeing the effect of his Hope. His Succeſſor Alexander VI. begun his Pontificate by confining the Prince in the Caſtle of St. Angelo, removing the Knights, and putting his own Nephews about him; all contrary to the Great Maſter's Agreement with Pope Innocent. But Alexander durſt not refuſe him to Charles VIII. of France, who came to Rome, and receiv'd Zizim from the Pope in a publick and ſolemn manner, King Charles deſigning, when he had conquered the Kingdom of Naples, to undertake ſomewhat againſt Greece, wherein he expected Zizim would be ſerviceable; but was much ſurpris'd, as were all other People, when this Prince being taken ill upon the Road, died in a few Days, no Body knew of what. Some ſaid the Venetians, corrupted by the Turks, and alarm'd by this Expedition, got him poiſon'd, and ſeveral did not ſtick to ſay that the Pope deliver'd him poiſon'd to King Charles; and there was a Talk, that he had received a great Sum from Bajazet to do it. Some think he died a Chriſtian, and that he was baptized during Pope Innocent VIII's Reign: But the Authors that writ moſt of him, ſay nothing of this Converſion. P. Bouhors Hiſt. d' Aubuſſon.

ZNAIM, or Znoimo, a Town of Germany, in Moravia. It was often taken and re-taken during the laſt Wars of Germany. The Swedes made themſelves Maſters of it in 1645. It ſtands near the Borders of Auſtria, 7 German Miles from Brune to the South, and 10 from Vienne to the South-weſt.

ZOARE, Lat. Piſidon, a great Town of Africa in Barbary, upon the Coaſts of the Kingdom of Tripoli, with a good Port. In 1552 ſome of its Inhabitants that were Slaves at Maltha promiſed to lead the Chriſtians thither ſecretly, if they had their Liberty given them. This being agreed to, the Prior of Capoua ſet Sail with 16 Ships and 300 Knights. Being landed, they aſſaulted the Town according to the meaſures taken before, and made themſelves Maſters of it; the Inhabitants, who expected no ſuch thing, being in no condition to make their Defence. Boiſſat.

ZOCOTARA, or Socotar, an Iſland of the Indian Sea, towards the Mouth of the Streights of Babelmandel. It was known by the Ancients under the Name of Dioſcoride or Dioſcurias, but not known who diſcover'd it. A Portugueſe, called Edward Zeme, found it out in 1507. Its high Rocks are ſeen afar off: The Coaſts are ſo dangerous, that Ships dare not venture near them unleſs they have a Pilot from the Iſland. The Air is naturally hot, but much temper'd by Breezes from the Sea. The Land is hilly, dry, and barren, only ſome Valleys, which feed a great number of Cattel. Fruit, eſpecially Dates, grow here in abundance. Frankincenſe is very common, and the Aloes ſo very good, that the Druggiſts always call their beſt Socotaria, gathered in July, and the Juice expos'd in Braſs Pots to the Sun in Auguſt. The Inhabitants came thither from Arabia, as appears by the Conformity of their Language, Garb, and Cuſtoms. Their Commerce is all in Dates. They are Warlike, naturally treacherous, but diſguiſe it in their Dealings with Strangers. Their Religion is Mahometan, and they ſuffer no other. They are under a King who is Tributary to the Cherif of Mecca. Plin. l. 6. Daviti d'Affrique. Linſchot. Voyages, chap. 4.

ZOE, Daughter of Conſtantine the Young, was married to the Emperor Romanus III. ſirnam'd Argyrophilus, whom ſhe got ſtrangled in the Bath to marry Michael Paphlagon, a Goldſmith, with whom ſhe had fallen in Love. This fair-fac'd Goldſmith left all the Government to his Brother John, who managed his Weakneſs ſo well, that he perſuaded him to turn Monk, and then cloiſter'd the unchaſte Zoe. *Cedren. ZOFALA, or Sofala, a Kingdom of Cafreria in Africa, upon the Coaſt of the Ethiopian Sea, towards Zanguebar, between the Arms of the River Zambere, which forms ſeveral Iſlands there. It belongs to the Portugueſe, who built a conſiderable Fortreſs in it in 1560. This Fort is of great Advantage to them, both by reaſon of their Commerce in the Indies, and that it ſecures their Trade with the Cafres, who bring them Ivory, Ambergreaſe, Gold, and Slaves, in Exchange for Silks, Cloth, &c. Here is generally a Portugal Factor that keeps People at work in the Mines of Manica and Buro, towards the South, where they draw a great quantity of Gold. The Fort depends on the Government of Mozambique, though it's thought to be 120 Leagues off it. The King of Sofala is tributary to the Portugueſe. Daviti.

ZOFINGEN, a Town of Argaw in Swiſſerland, in the Canton of Bern. It's ancient, as appears by its Privilege to Coin from the Emperor Charles the Burley. It has had ſeveral other Privileges ſince his Time, and kept them, though it put it ſelf under the Emperor Rodolphus I.'s Protection in 1285: but his Son Albert beſieging it in 1295, brought it quite under his Obedience. It was burn'd all to one Houſe in 1396; and after it was rebuilt, received new Privileges from the Princes of the Houſe of Auſtria. In 1415 the Town and whole Country of Argaw became ſubject to the Canton of Bern, but ſtill preſerves its Privileges. It embraced the Reformation in 1528. Stumpf. Joſ. Simler.

ZOHAR, which ſignifies in Hebrew Splendour, is the Name of a Book for which the Jews have a great Veneration, both upon the ſcore of the Contents, and the Antiquity. It contains Cabaliſtical Explications of the Books of Moſes; but the manner of Treating this Subject is ſuch, that it gives but very indifferent Entertainment to People of ſenſe; being oftentimes little better than Jargon upon Letters and Numbers, and Romantick Stories and Conjectures grounded only upon Fancy. However, this Book has been tranſlated into Latin, and run through two Editions, the laſt of which was Printed at Mantua in 1680. There is likewiſe a little Zohar Printed, which may ſerve for a Supplement to the great one. The elder Buxtorf offers to prove the Antiquity of Points amongſt the Jews, becauſe they are mention'd in the Zohar, which the Jews miſtake for a very ancient Book. R. Simon.

ZOILUS, a Rhetorician, lived in Ptolomy Philadelphus's Time. To eſtabliſh his Reputation, he begun to criticiſe on Homer, Plato, and Iſocrates; which makes his Name to be given to all injurious Cenſurers. Ælian. Hiſt. var. &c.

ZOLNOCH, Lat. Zolnochium, a City of Upper Hungary, ſituate upon the Tibiſcus, Capital of a County of its own Name, 40 German Miles from Waradin to the Weſt, and 60 Eaſt from Buda: taken by the Turks in 1552, and retaken by the Imperialiſts in October 1685.

ZONARAS (John) a Greek Hiſtorian, liv'd in the 12th Age, about 1120. He had ſeveral conſiderable Employments at the Emperor of Conſtantinople's Court, and afterwards became Monk of St. Baſil's Order. He compoſed Annals in three Volumes, tranſlated out of Greek into Latin by Jerom Wolfius, and Printed at Bale in 1557. The firſt Volume comprehends the Hiſtory of the Jews, from the beginning of the World to the Taking of Jeruſalem: The ſecond treats of the Romans, from the Foundation of their City to Conſtantine the Great: The third, of what happened from this Emperor's time to Alexis Comnenus's Death in 1118. Zonaras has likewiſe written Annotations upon the Canons of the Apoſtles, and upon thoſe of General and Provincial Councils, and ſeven or eight other Tracts inſerted in the Bibliotheca Patrum. Bellarmin. de Script. Eccl. Poſſevin. Geſner. in Bibl. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. lib. 2.

ZONATRIE, the Pagans Worſhip of Beaſts, ζῶον ſignifying a Beaſt, and λατρεία Divine Worſhip. This Superſtition was very common amongſt the Egyptians, and is ſo ſtill amongſt the Indians, by reaſon of their Belief of a Metempſychoſis or Transmigration of Souls into other Bodies, as the Egyptians held that Oſiris's Soul had paſs'd into the Body of a Bull. *Voſſius de Origine & Prog. ZOPYR, or Zopyrus, Son of Megabyzes, and one of Darius Son of Hyſtaſpes and King of Perſia his Courtiers, rendred himſelf famous by what he did to take Babylon, which Darius laid Siege to a long time; for obſerving the Obſtinacy of the Beſieged, he bethought him of a Stratagem to gain them, which ſucceeded. He cut his Noſe and Ears, and in this condition preſented himſelf to the Babylonians; who receiv'd him, in hopes he would revenge that Cruelty, which he pretended was exercis'd by Darius's Order. Thus receiv'd, he made three Sallies, as he had concerted with Darius. His Succeſs in theſe, made the Babylonians give him the Command of the whole Town which he preſently deliver'd up to Darius, who had Beſieg'd it in vain for 20 Months before. *Herodot. ZOPYRUS, a certain Phyſiognomiſt, who was laugh'd at by all People becauſe he ſaid that Socrates was a debauch'd Man: but Socrates ſaid he was in the right; adding, that his Inclinations were naturally bent that way, and would make him very wicked, did not the ſtudy of Philoſophy correct his Nature. Diog. Laert.

ZOROANDA, a Place of Mount Taurus, upon the Confines of Armenia and Meſopotamia, or Diarbek. It's in this Place that the Tygris hides it ſelf under ground, as the Guadiana in Spain, and ſhews it ſelf afterwards ſome Leagues from thence.

ZOROASTRES, a famous Aſtrologer, who by his Predictions got himſelf the Empire of the Bactriens in Ninus King of the Aſſyrian's time. When he was conquer'd by Semiramis, it's ſaid he wiſh'd to be conſum'd by the Fire of Heaven, and that he adviſed the Aſſyrians to keep his Aſhes carefully, for that their preſervation ſhould prove the Mark of the duration of their Empire. The People receiv'd this Advice as an Oracle; and Zoroaſtre being conſumed with Lightning, they took great care of his Aſhes, which they preſerv'd until the Deſtruction of their Empire. Tho. Stanley Philoſ. Orient. lib. 1.

ZOROBABEL, of the Family of the Kings of Juda, was Son of Salathiel, after the Captivity of the Jews. He was the chief of thoſe that returned into Judea, under Cyrus, and began to rebuild the Temple. The Samaritans hinder'd this Work, ſo that it was not finiſh'd until Darius Hyſtaſpes's Reign, who knew Zorobabel, and gave him what he pleas'd to deſire to carry on the Work; which was finiſh'd 40 Years after, and dedicated ſolemnly about A. M. 3540. It's not known when Zorobabel died, but he is different from another of the Name, Son of Phadaia. Joſeph. Torniel.

ZOROYS, Wife of Mahomet Boabdelin, the laſt Mooriſh King of Grenade, ſeeing her Husband and the chief Officers of his Court make great moan, as their Eyes were put out by Ferdinand of Aragon's Order, ſaid, Weep like Women, ſince you would not fight like Men. Pet. Maath Hiſt. Henr. 4.

ZOSIMUS (Pope) a Greek by Nation, ſucceeded Innocent I. in 417. Celeſtius, an Heretick, and Companion of Pelagius, made him reliſh his Doctrine; ſo that he approved one of his Books, and received him as Orthodox; but being afterwards diſabuſed by the Biſhops of Africa, he condemned theſe two Hereticks. He died the 26th of December 218. Aneſlas in Zoſim. Baron. in Annal.

ZOSIMUS, a Greek Hiſtorian that lived in Theodoſius the Younger's Time. He writ a Hiſtory of the Emperors, in ſix Books. He goes not beyond the time of the ſecond Siege of Rome by Alaric. This Hiſtorian was ſo great an Enemy to the Chriſtians, that he is never juſt to the Princes that favour'd them; and amongſt the reſt, is very hard upon Conſtantine the Great. Leunclavius endeavours to excuſe him in his Apology he publiſh'd for him, with the Tranſlation of his Hiſtory. Baronius.

ZOSTER, a Town and Promontary of Attica, between the Port of Pireum now Il Porto Lione, and the Iſle Zea. Mythologiſts pretend that it was here Latona firſt untied her Girdle, a Ceremony uſed amongſt the Ancients before the Conſummation of Marriage; and that it was hence the Town had this Name: However, the Place was ſo much given to the Superſtitions of this Goddeſs, that the Inhabitants offer'd Fiſh yearly to her and Diana. Cic. Strab.

ZOTMONDE, a Hungarian, that ſignaliz'd himſelf when the Emperor Henry III. laid Siege to the Town of Presbourg to revenge the Death of Peter Allemand King of Hungary, who had his Eyes put out by Andrew in 1046. He came out of the Town in the Night-time, ſwam to the Emperor's Veſſels, and bor'd them ſo cunningly, that they were obſerv'd to ſink at Break of Day, which occaſion'd the Raiſing of the Siege. Bonfin.

ZOTYPUS, the Citizen of Argos that cut Pyrrhus King of Epirus's Head off, when he was ſtruck dead with a ſtone at the foot of the Walls of that City. It's ſaid the Argien, when he pull'd off his Head-piece, was ſo frightned at the very ſight of his majeſtick and commanding Face, that if he had not expected a great Reward for the Action, he could never have had Courage enough to go through with it. Plutarch.

ZOUCH (Richard) a younger Brother of an ancient and noble Family, was born in the Pariſh of Anſley in Wiltſhire, educated firſt in Wincheſter School, from whence he remov'd to New College in Oxford; where after he had taken his Degree of Bachelor of Law, he fell to practiſe in his Faculty, and became an eminent Advocate in Doctors Commons. In the Year 1619 he was admitted Doctor of the Civil Law, preferr'd to the Profeſſor's Chair, and by the Intereſt of his Kinſman Edward Lord Zouch, Lord Warden of the Cinque-Ports, was choſen Burgeſs for Hyeth in Kent. He was afterwards made Chancellor of the Dioceſe of Oxon, Principal of St. Albans-Hall, and at laſt Judge of the Court of Admiralty. He loſt this laſt Preferment during the Uſurpation, but was reſtor'd to it upon the King's Return. He was a conſiderable Scholar in general, and the beſt Civilian of his time. His Works are, The Dove, or Paſſages of Coſmography, a Poem, which he wrote in his Youth, and dedicated to Edward Lord Zouch, his Kinſman. *Elementa Jurisprudentiæ Definitionibus, Regulis & Sententiis, ſelectioribus Juris Civilis illuſtrata. ZOUCH (James) of an ancient Family both in the County of Surry and County of Southampton, the Son of James Zouch, who having raiſed a Troop of Horſe for the Service of King Charles I. at his own proper Coſts and Charges, in which Sir Allen Zouch and Edward Zouch, his two younger Brothers, were Captains, died at Pedding in his Return from Oxford. He was the Son of Sir Edward Zouch Knight Marſhal of England, and one of the Privy Council to King James I. who for his Fidelity and Service, did by Patent under the Great Seal of England, dated the 13th of November, in the 8th Year of his Reign, grant to him and the Heirs Male of his Body, the Mannors of Wokeing, Bagſhot, Biſleigh, and Chobham, and alſo the Hundreds of Wokeing, Blackheath, and Wootton, all of them being in the County of Surrey. He had likewiſe the Mannor and Hundred of Odiham, and the Mannors of Hartley, Wintney, and Bramſhill in the County of Southampton, which came to him from Edward Lord Zouch, Baron of Harringworth, Lord Warden of the Cinque-Ports. All which Hundreds and Mannors (except Bramſhill) which he ſold for the maintaining the Troop of Horſe raiſed for the Service of King Charles I.) deſcended and came unto, and are now in the poſſeſſion of, James Zouch, as Heir Male lineally deſcended from the ſaid Sir Edward Zouch.

ZUCCHERO (Frederic) Native of the Dutchy of Urbin in Italy, Brother to Thadæus, under whom he learn'd to paint, and after his Death finiſh'd what he had begun at Rome; then came to Florence, to put an End to what Vaſari had left imperfect. Pope Gregory XIII. ſent for him hence back to Rome; where, upon ſome Difference with his Holineſs's Officers, he made a Piece, wherein he repreſented Calumny, and drew thoſe to the life, with Aſſes Ears, that had offended him: And having hung this at St. Luke's Church-door, on that Saint's Feaſt-day, he left the Town to ſhun the Pope's Anger; came into France, went thence to Flanders, afterwards to Holland; hence to England, where he drew Queen Elizabeth's Picture; returned into Italy, and was pardoned by the Pope. In Sixtus V.'s time Philip II. King of Spain ſent for him to paint the Eſcurial. At his Return to Rome, he labour'd for the perfect Eſtabliſhment of the Academy of Painters, putting Pope Gregory XIII.'s Brief in its full execution. He himſelf was the firſt that was choſen Prince of the Academy. He built a very fine Houſe, where they met; and having laid out his Money on this Work, went to Venice to print the Books he had compoſed of Painting. He died at Ancona, in the 66th Year of his Age. Beſides Painting, he Carv'd very well, and underſtood Architecture. Felibien.

ZUCCORA, a Borough and Caſtle of the Iſland Piſcopia in the Archipelago, towards Aſia. There is a Brook of freſh Water in all Seaſons: and the Inhabitants affirm, that here are many good Mines, but that they dare not work in 'em, leſt the Turks hearing thereof, ſhould deprive 'em of both them and the Iſland. Roſchini.

ZUENDIBOLD, King of the Sclavonians of Moravia, and Duke of Bohemia, a very vertuous Prince, who preferr'd an Hermitage where he died, to his Kingdom; which he left to his two Sons Moemarus and Suatebogus, who were ſoon driven out of it by the Hungarians. Regino. Aventin.

ZUG, Lat. Tugium, a Borough, and one of the 13 Swiſſer-Cantons, lies between Zurich towards the North, Schwitz to the Eaſt and South, and Lucerne towards the Weſt. It enter'd into the Alliance in 1352, 44 Years after that Schwitz, Uri, and Underwald withdrew themſelves from Albert Archduke of Auſtria. The City ſtands a Mile from the Lake of Lucerne to the Eaſt, and is all Roman Catholick.

ZUICKAW, a Town of Miſnia in Germany, and in the Country of Voiglandt, at the Foot of the Vandalique Mountains or Wenderberg, and almoſt at the Source of the River Main. This being the Seat of Charlemagne's War againſt the Sclavonians, the Town was much ſpoil'd. Henry the Fowler re-eſtabliſh'd it afterwards. It now belongs to the Elector of Saxony. Ferrari.

ZUINGLIUS (Ulricus) the famous Reformer of Swiſſerland, was of good Parentage, and born at Wildhaus An. 1484. He began firſt to preach in 1519 at Zurich, much about the time when Luther began his Reformation in Saxony, and preach'd againſt Samſon a Franciſcan, ſent thither with Indulgences, as Luther preach'd againſt Teccelius on that ſame Account. In 1525. He publiſh'd his Book De vera & falſa Religione, which was dedicated and preſented to Francis I. of France; Morery ſays, this Book was full of Errors. The ſame Year the Maſs was aboliſh'd, and Zuinglianiſme ſetled at Zurich. He was ſucceſsful againſt the Enthuſiaſts called Anabaptiſts. But his oppoſition to the Church of Rome occaſion'd a civil War among the Cantons; and Zuinlius taking up Arms in this Quarrel, was killed in the Field in 1531, aged 44. He declar'd againſt the real preſence in the Sacrament. Thuan.

ZULCH, or Zulpich, Lat. Tolbiacum, a Town of the Circle of Weſtphalia in the Dutchy of Juliers, 10 Miles from Cologne. It's the ſame that was formerly called Tolbiac, famous for the Victory won there in 496. by Clovis, becauſe it occaſion'd his Converſion. Hiſt. de Franc.

ZULCIMIN, otherwiſe called Soliman, an Arabian, made himſelf Maſter of Perſia in 754; and after his great Victory cut off Marvan and all the Royal Family. He renew'd Ali's Sect, and took the Title of Amirel Mocelemin, that is, Emperor of the Children of Salvation. Marmol.

ZULFA, a Town of Armenia or Turcomania, upon the River Araſs, ſituate between two Mountains where this River runs. Cha-Abbas, to ſave the Charges of defending it againſt the Turks, demoliſhed it, with its fine Stone Bridge. The Inhabitants were carried to Iſpahan, where that Prince gave them a Suburb now called Zulfa, in memory of this Town. Cogia Nazur, one of the chief Armenians that came from Zulfa, got ſo much credit with Cha-Abbas and Cha-Sefi his Succeſſor, that they made him Kelanter, that is, Chief Judge of the Armenian Nation; he grew ſo rich, that he built 2 Carvanſeras, one on each ſide of the River that Zulfa was built upon. This Colony of Armenians are moſt of them Merchants and Silk-Weavers, who being Chriſtians, ſuffer no Mahometans among them: Their Houſes are better built than any of the Perſians: They have the Privilege of inheriting Lands, and are favour'd more than their Fellow-Subjects. Tavernier.

ZUNCHIN, Emperor of China, Brother to Tienki, and his Succeſſor in 1628, to remedy the Diviſion of the Great ones at Court which had begun in Tienki's Reign, he put the Eunuch Gueo, with ſeveral of his Faction, whoſe Power he ſtood in fear of, to Death. This render'd him odious to the principal Eunuchs and Mandarins, who then began to keep Correſpondence with the Rebels, and manag'd Things ſo well, that Licungz their Chief became Maſter of Pekin, where Zunchin was in his Palace; who finding he was not able to reſiſt their Power, wrote a Letter with his own Blood, inſtead of Ink to Licungz, deſiring him to take Compaſſion of his People. Then he cut his Daughters Head off, that was of Age to be Married, leſt Licungz ſhould violate her; and getting into the Garden, hanged himſelf with his Garters. This happen'd in 1644. He is the laſt of Thamin's Family. His Wife, with ſome of the Courtiers that were faithful to him, follow'd his Example. Martini Hiſtoire de la Guarre des Tartars contre la Chine.

ZURICH, a Town and Canton in Swiſſerland, Head of the 13 Confederates. The Town, in Latin Tigurum, is very ancient, for the Inhabitants join'd the Cimbrians when defeated by Marius. Charlemagne afterwards built the great Church, wherein his Statue is ſtill to be ſeen. The Canton of Zurich is very populous and rich: It's alſo conſiderable for its Bigneſs. Cæſar ſpeaks often of Zurich in his Commentaries. It's divided into two Parts by the River Limat, and ſtands between Schafhouſe to the North, and Lucerne to the South, 25 Miles from each, 11 from the Rhine, and 45 from Soleurre. Cæſar ſubjected it to the Romans. It was burnt by the Germans A. C. 300; and Re-built afterwards by Diocleſian. The Canton of Zurich is bounded by Berne and Lucerne to the Weſt, Schafhouſe to the North, Zug and Schwitz to the South, and Appenzel to the Eaſt. It conſiſts of none but Proteſtants.

ZURICHER ZEE, Lat. Lacus Tigurinus, a Lake in the Canton of Zurich, 25 Miles long from Eaſt to Weſt, and 5 broad.

ZURZACH, a Borough of Swiſſerland upon the Rhine, in the Bailywick of Baden and Dioceſe of Conſtance, famous for its two yearly Fairs, where there come not only a great many Swiſs and German Merchants; but alſo many from France. There is alſo a rich Abby of Benedictins, founded by the Kings of France of the ſecond Race; who were call'd Carlovingiens, and gave it to the Biſhop of Conſtance in 1251. Joſ. Simeler de Script. Heloet.

ZUSKI, or Baſili Zutki Knez, that is, a Lord of the Court of Muſcovy, diſcovering the Impoſtor Griska's Cheat, who had uſurped the Title of Great Duke, acquainted the other Lords therewith, and altogether conſpir'd this falſe Demetrius's Death. The Plot was diſcover'd, and Zuski condemned to dye; but the Sentence was not executed; for he received his Pardon juſt as they made ready to carry him out. Yet for all this Danger, being ſtill uneaſie under Griska's Uſurpation, he invited a great many of the Knez and Bojares to his Houſe, and engaged them to ſhake off the Impoſtor's Yoke: So during the Ceremonies of his Marriage, knowing that he was drunk, and the Guards in no condition to make any great Reſiſtance, he rung the Toc-ſin or Town-Bell at Midnight, and enter'd the Caſtle at the Head of the Conſpirators; where, after they had killed the Poliſh Guards, they forc'd the Doors, and ran to the Great Duke's Chamber, who ſaved himſelf thence by leaping out at the Window; but being taken, Zuski ſhot him through the Head. This Enterpriſe having ſucceeded ſo well, the Lords and People choſe Zuski Great Duke, aud crown'd him the 1ſt of June 1606; which was no ſooner done, but another diſputes for it: He was called Knez Gregoti Scacopski, but took the name of Demetrius, giving out that he was the Great Duke, and had ſaved himſelf, whilſt another taken for him was kill'd. There appear'd a third, that made uſe of the ſame Pretext. Theſe Rumors cauſed much Diſorder, which the Polanders fomented, to be reveng'd of the Affront they had received from the Muſcovites in Zuski's Enterpriſe. The Succeſs of the War that begun then was of very ill Conſequence to the Muſcovites; who imagining that all their Misfortunes were occaſion'd through Zuski's unjuſt Domination, depos'd and ſhut him up in a Cloiſter. In the mean time the Polanders ſtill favoured the ſecond Demetrius, and at laſt forced the firſt's Wife to own him for her Husband. At laſt the Muſcovites, to put an end to their Diſorders, choſe for Great Duke Uladiſlaus, eldeſt Son of Sigiſmond King of Poland, who conſented upon condition Zuski were put into his Hands, which was done in 1610; and Zuski died the Year after at Smolensko in Poland. Olearius Voyage de Muſcovie.

ZUTPHEN, a Town and County between Overyſſel, Weſtphalia, Gueldres, and Cleves. The Town of Zutphen is ſituate upon the Yſſel. It's ſtrong by Nature, having the Yſſel on the ſide and the Berkel, whereof a Branch fills its Ditch, and runs through it, on the other. The others are Doesbourg, Doetecum, Lochem, &c. It was taken by the Duke of Orleans in 1672; and the French having demoliſhed the Fortifications, quitted it two Years after. The Dutch took it from the Spaniards in 1586 when Sir Philip Sidney was ſlain.

ZUYDERZEE, a Gulf of the Sea of Germany, between the County of Holland, the Lordſhip of Over-Yſſel, and Friſe: There is an Arm of this Gulf that reaches Amſterdam, where it forms a very convenient Port; but is ſo ſhallow towards the Texel, that great Ships muſt unload part of their Burthen, elſe there will not be Water enough for them. Bleau. Theat. Belg.

ZWOL, Lat. Zuvolla, ſituate upon the River Aa not far from the Yſſel, and 18 Miles from Deventer to the N[illegible]; once an Imperial City and Hanſe-Town, but now exempt. It was a place of great Strength before it was diſmantled by the French, who took it in 1672.

ZYGACES, a River of Thrace, near the Town of Philippes, and upon the Confines of Macedony. Poets ſay, Pluto's Chariot, when he carried Proſerpina away, broke near this River. Appian. Claud. de Rap. Pros.

ZYGANTES, or Gyzantes, ancient People of Africa, that uſed to paint their Bodies with Vermillion, and liv'd on Hony and Apes. Herodot. lib. 4.
